A Message to Alumni

Fellow Alumni:

Another successful year of work at Hope College is drawing to a close, which recalls to your minds the many friends you greeted on former occasions at Commencement time. We extend to you a most cordial welcome to join us in making these festivities a happy occasion. Arrangements are about completed and with the largest graduating class in its history and one of the most successful years of work almost finished, these closing exercises deserve the personal attention and presence of every graduate and friend. Your presence will add your personal interest to the work of the College in the various fields in which it is making its Christian influence strongly felt.

This Christian spirit of Hope, which animated its founders, and has prevailed throughout all the years of struggle is still strong and active in shaping the lives and characters of these young people, who will add their strength and influence to furthering Christian principles to those who have already entered service all over the world. More students are volunteering for Christian work in foreign fields, our Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. are exceptionally strong, and this Christian spirit prevades all campus activities. This Christian spirit urges you to help make this commencement one long to be remembered.

JUNE FESTIVITIES

- June 12—Baccalaureate Sermon.
- June 13—Closing exercises of the Preparatory School.
- June 14—Meeting of the Council, 10 a. m.
- June 14—Meeting of Alumni Association.
- June 15—Commencement exercises in Carnegie Gymnasium.

The President's Report

A digest of the President's Annual Report to the Council of Hope College. Published by request of Council's Committee.

Gentlemen of the Council:

I desire to bring to your attention three matters of prime importance in the conduct of your institution. I trust that it will be your pleasure to give them the fullest consideration and such approval as your wisdom may direct.

The catalog number of the Year Book is before you and constitutes part of this report. Details with reference to attendance and courses will be found in its pages. Your attention was called last year to the fact that with present endowment funds, income, and equipment it would be announced as a fixed policy to limit the attendance in both the Preparatory School and the College to the number which could be cared for adequately under the existing conditions. Publicity work was limited with this policy in mind. The total attendance for the academic year is 487. Of this number there are 285 in the College, 134 in the Preparatory School, and 68 in the School of Music. Your attention is called to the steady growth of the Preparatory School, a fact which is in line with our desire inasmuch as the aims of the institution require strong recruits from Secondary Schools who will be adequately trained for collegiate and graduate work. At present the average Secondary School graduate is not properly prepared. In 1919 the enrollment of the Preparatory School was 75, in 1920 it was 97, and in this year 134. It is planned to stress this part of the work constantly but with adherence to the policy noted above.

In finances there has been encouragement along some lines but a large degree of discouragement along other lines. The Treasurer's Annual Report is in the hands of your Secretary and from it you will obtain the details of this department of your work. The Capital Funds have been increased during the year by $56,109.46, the income of which will be available in another year for maintenance purposes. The income for general operation, maintenance and administration has been insufficient to meet expenses and the balance sheet for the year shows a deficit of $6,240.64, which with the deficit of 1920 which was carried forward makes the active debt of this account $10,578.05. Very naturally no advance movement is advisable while this condition persists. In this connection I desire to call your attention to the names of a few men and women who have continued to be notable contributors to your work and I would suggest your official recognition of their gifts, Mrs. Elizabeth R. Voorhees, Rev. James De Pree, Mrs. Eva De Bey, Mr. Cornelius Dosker, Mr. William Brouwer, Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, and Mrs. Frances E. Browning. It would be a pleasure to record in this way the names of all those who in a larger or a smaller way have given of their wealth and interest during the year but I wish to emphasize particularly the gift of one of your oldest graduates, Rev. James De Pree, whose letters have been a source of genuine inspiration and helpfulness and who in the evening of his life has given to your Alumni Maintenance Fund as he was especially enabled through the Providence of God; and the establishment of the Grace M. Browning Scholarship in Music by Mrs. Frances E. Browning of the city of Holland. Miss Browning was instructor in voice for a number of years in the School of Music and it is in memory of her work, her influence and her life that her mother has endowed this scholarship. With a deep appreciation of the high ideals of that life and a solemn sense of the sacredness of the trust the gift has been accepted and with your approval the music studio will be known henceforth as the Grace M. Browning Studio.

The financial affairs and the purely academic situation are of importance in the conduct of your College, but I feel that it is safe to say that the private college in particular but public institutions of higher learning as well, are today rather more concerned with another phase of the educational outlook. The stampede of young men and women to the colleges, which for several reasons came as a coincidence of the Great War, has reached its peak. In fact there is already a falling off in the number of resident students in most of our colleges due to the general financial situation in the country and to certain other prime causes. This will doubtless continue for several years. Another uncertainty is thereby created for the administrators of these institutions.

A further consideration is the probable demand for given courses. For instance, German is undoubtedly coming back. To what extent the national propaganda will succeed in restoring the German to its former place in the curricula one cannot say, but that there is a large probability of rapid increase in demand for this subject is beyond question. It will be our policy to restore it gradually in such degree as seems wise to meet the university requirements for graduate work, professional or research, and to make it possible for our students to minister to the German churches of our denomination. I take it that there is as much need for this in our working scheme as there is for the Holland tongue, the only difference being that there are more Holland churches in the denomination than German.

French is now in full swing and there is the likelihood that pressure will be brought to increase these courses in the same way that German was brought to its fullness before the war. It will be our policy to limit the French to the same terms with the German, providing only so much as will enable our graduates to teach secondary French, carry on graduate work and meet the demands of the liberal scholar. Spanish is in the ascendancy but as it is a purely commercial proposition, it is proposed to carry no courses in it at present.

The large question is what is necessary nowadays to make a liberal education? We should understand at the outset that, by a liberal education, the colleges mean an equipment that will enable the man or woman who possesses it to enter with the fullness of his being into the life of his own times, to appreciate the life of antiquity, and in some measure to forecast the life of the coming days. To further define the thought which is the propelling spirit of this administration, I would note an incident which came to my attention several days ago. A sister institution in a neighboring city was compared with your College in this way,—It is the conservative wing of the Reformed faith; Hope is the liberal element. It is this sense of the word "liberal" that men think of alone today and it is exactly this sense of the word which I wish to put out of the thought of your students entirely. A "liberal education" is not a training in looseness of thought, an acceptance of every thing which is tinged with the so-called "modern spirit," and a refusal of all things which have the imprimiture of the past. No man is liberal in the academic sense until he is so thoroughly grounded in the learning of all history that he knows the truth, and by the truth is set free from errors past, present and future. This man is a "master" of the liberal arts and his mastery consists in his ability to use knowledge and handicraft for his own and for the world's benefit. To adapt the incoming Freshman of each year to this "liberal training" and propose for him this "mastery" is the problem which becomes increasingly difficult each year.

There is another aspect of the problem. The world is more than ever asking the famous American question,—Where am I at? And more than ever it is the duty of the man of "liberal" training to diagnose the case of the world. Of a certainty only a practiced technician can sit in the case. What then becomes of the student who browses without proper thought or direction in the field of intellect? He has thrust aside the ancient classics,—those original sources of the thought upon which the western civilization is founded. He has heard so much sport made of the Latin and the Greek by his intellectual forebears that he is convinced that they contain nothing worthy of his budding powers. He has taken with avidity to the modern social sciences and he finds himself at sea because these have, in a self-styled scientific spirit, started with nothing as a basis and have found their terminal in the same satisfying locus. He has tackled the religious problem with the same fortitude and, with the equanimity of the Homeric hero, he is ready to swear to anything with his tongue the whiles he makes diplomatic reservations with his heart. Not a few of this kind are in our pulpits; they make our laws; they are writing our editorials and are manning our schools. It seems a characteristic of the age brought about by the international chaos and an unstable educational policy. But this kind cannot be the saviours either of the world or of their own souls.

I believe that your institution is in an enviable position to cope with the situation. In the first place it has held to a conservative policy during all previous administrations. The elective system never dominated it. It was almost a pioneer in the group system. It was not in a position to follow the vagaries of the educational world, for these things, like bizarre fashions in clothes; require much money for their development. It has always held to a definite aim in the life-purpose of its students. Mere culture without an objective in service never appealed to it, and it never offered courses with this as their only end. Here, too, it is true that to some extent its physical limitations were its salvation, but once and again it put aside the mess of pottage and retained its birthright. I would pass over the ministerial and missionary interest of which you all know—an element so strong in your College that one of our ministerial candidates said to me a few days ago that he was afraid to think foreign missions for fear that he would be drawn by the enthusiasms of the Volunteer Band. I would pass on to the problem still to be solved:—What of the practical value of this liberal training to those students, men and women, who are still without definite aim in life? What of the new life which all are certain is opening before them as it never happened to any youth in all previous eras to face?

I have suggested that the man of liberal training must be a man of universal knowledge and of practical applications. Therefore I wish to submit for your discussion a proposition which I have thought upon with much care. It is a proposition the value of which must be determined experimentally. We have for several years broadened the scope of the work in history until at present the courses outlined in your Year Book may seem widely divergent from those of your own day. But I wish to place before you for your consideration a still broader development of the work. I desire that you consider whether the time is not ripe to so modify all your courses that each student shall be required to cover a minimum amount of work in the culture systems of the ancient world, either through the medium of the ancient languages; the Greek and the Latin, or through an adequate portrayal of these civilizations in the English language. The struggle of the next generation will be the struggle of the eastern civilization with the western civilization. To be victorious in the struggle the west must know her traditions and her ideals with utmost thoroughness. I wish I were as confident of the faith of the western world in the Christianity which is essentially western as the east is confident in the gods many and lords many which it believes have guided its destiny. Of one thing I am confident and that thing is that your Institution must stand unswervingly and loyally faithful to the Christian concepts which brought your forefathers in their religious struggles to a new land where they could retain a conscience void of offence before God. In the midst of all the vaporings which America is befogged with and by today, HOPE COLLEGE must inculcate a staunch and certain Christianity which will palter no questions of the "ifs" and "ands" but will prove all doctrines whether they be of God or man, and then, without debate or animadversions, will abide by the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. On this basis it can go forward and place before its youth the thoughts of men of all ages on politics, social themes, economic developments and moral issues. But they must know this body of universal knowledge, these liberal arts which are now given such scant attention by the devotees of "modernism," "practical science," "vocationalism," and the rest of the series.

I wish to recommend for your consideration and approval the introduction of a course in Practical Hygiene to be required of all girl students of the Senior College. This is to be a course in lecture, text and demonstration work giving a training in the health of the home and the community, the basic elements of nursing and first aid, and sanitation, individual and social. The majority of your women graduates go into lines of activity in which this work will fit them as assistants in nursing and it appears to me that it is essential for the women of today who are entering the larger fields of activities to be trained in some degree to meet the practical problems of this larger life.

It is desirable also to enlarge the scope of your work in Economic and Social Science. These problems are pressing upon the world today from all viewpoints and the graduate of a college must know the trend of thought of his times or be subject to hopeless confusion and error.

It is to be understood thoroughly that these courses are intended to strengthen your work and that they are not in any sense a surrender to the demand for "popular courses," that open sesame to do-little degrees.

In conclusion, it gives me pleasure to state that I am of the opinion that the work done throughout the academic year by Faculty and students alike has been most commendable. This is not to say that we have not faced difficulties but the year has been singularly fruitful in many ways. The Christian tone of the College has been delightful and the work of the Christian organizations helpful from all viewpoints. There has been little of the spirit of restlessness which the war years produced. "Normalcy" is in sight and altogether it seems to me that we may be thankful to God in a most reverent way for the experiences, the progress, and the accomplishments of the year. The suggestions of this report have been made with this sense of gratitude actuating policies for the future which will bring about a greater degree of usefulness on the part of students, graduates and academic and administrative forces to that redeemed society known as the Kingdom of God.

N. B.—Part of this report was already in its first draft when President Butler's recommendations to his Board were made public and it is with great satisfaction that the writer found so much approval of the general idea evidenced in Columbia University.

In Memoriam

Mr. Arend Visscher

Holland lost one of its most helpful citizens and Hope College one of its most loyal supporters, when death claimed Mr. Arend Visscher on Sunday, January 23, 1921. Friends of Hope College, who fully recognize his efforts in behalf of this institution, as well as the alumni who know him as an earnest worker for his Alma Mater and theirs, and his associates in the business world, who benefited by his broad experience and business acumen, offer this respectful tribute to his memory and to his years of faithful service.

Mr. Visscher was born in Holland 71 years ago, three years after the Van Raalte Colony came here to make a home for themselves and their children. He was born of sturdy Christian parents, whose strong qualities of perseverance and industry he inherited. His rough environment, in the days of toil and hardship, incident to settlement in a wilderness, aided in shaping a strong, persevering, industrious youth. Here he received his early education and graduated from Hope College in 1872, being the only member of that class. He graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan in 1875, after which he returned to Holland and entered eagerly upon the work before him. His business integrity, his high moral worth, and his keen interest in the community's welfare and progress, paved the way for his entering actively into the industrial, civil, social and religious growth of the city, and in each he made his influence strongly felt.

Holland being his birth place and his home, he centered his best efforts, perhaps, in the business life of the city. He became closely identified with the better industries, gave his judgment and experience freely for securing larger industries, and was directly responsible for building up several of our best institutions. At the time of his death he was president of the Peoples State Bank, The Holland-St. Louis Sugar Company, The Holland Furnace Company, The Ottawa Furniture Company, and the Holland Aniline Company, having served these and other institutions, and others also, faithfully as a director. The business life of Holland recognized his real worth in its development and welfare, and mourns his departure, realizing that a faithful friend has been taken from their midst.

As a true citizen of his community he also took an active part and served the city well. This city owes a large part of its civic progress to the earnest efforts of Mr. Visscher. He served as an alderman from 1893 to 1897. He was a member of the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners from 1907 to 1910. For six years he served as prosecuting attorney for Ottawa County. For seventeen years he served as a member of the Board of Public Works, acting many years as its president and giving his time and energy gladly and gratuitously to provide Holland with a first class municipal light and water plant. He was always deeply interested in this and took considerable pride in showing results accomplished. His earnest efforts for the city stand today as a monument to his memory.

A man of such strong qualities and such far-reaching influence could not help but serve the social and religious demands of the community. He was a charter member of the Century Club, and was deeply concerned with every activity tending toward social betterment. He was a charter member of the Third

Reformed church, holding various offices in this church and taking a leading part in its gradual growth. He served for several years as superintendent of the Sunday school. But his influence was wider than one church nor was it limited to one denomination. He always worked enthusiastically for the religious betterment and the moral uplift of the city, using his religious convictions and legal talent against lawlessness of every phase and for civic righteousness.

We, as alumni, are in a position to appreciate his long years of faithful service and devotion to Hope College. Since 1885 he was a member of the College Council; treasurer from 1896 to 1915, chairman of the Executive Committee at the time of his death, and for several years he served as treasurer for the Board of Benevolence, which aided many students in securing an education.

Giving his financial and business ability gladly to the college he loved, always present at every meeting pertaining to its progress and supporting it in every way, he helped to build Hope College in its struggling years, and he lived to see the fruits of some of his earnest efforts. As a member of the Alumni Association he was present at every business session, at the annual banquets he eagerly sought a place as a part of his sacred duty to the college, and at the last banquet he remarked what great pleasure and satisfaction he felt as he looked forward to these annual festivities and realized the great work Hope College and its alumni were doing all over the world. He felt proud that he had been permitted to serve Hope College for so many years. His expressed wish and hope was that other and younger hands might come forth to take up the work which "we older men must soon lay down."

Even though Mr. Visscher was so actively interested in all of Holland's institutions, he loved the quiet life in the garden of his own planting. He loved the great out-of-doors—his garden, his orchard, and the quiet surroundings of his beautiful home. In his home life all his strength of character and devotion to the highest ideals found expression and with Mrs. Visscher he imparted to his sons and daughter those same high purposes which so characterized his long and serviceable life.

In grateful remembrance of the years of faithful service rendered to Holland, in building up its institutions, in furthering its welfare, and in promoting its best interests, and in special recognition of his earnest efforts in behalf of Hope College we dedicate this number of the bulletin.

(From the address pronounced by Rev. Prof. Evert J. Blekkink, D. D., at Hope Church, Holland, Michigan, April 4, 1921, at the funeral services.)

"For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith."
—Acts XI:24.

The passing into the other life of Dr. Beardslee will stir the heart of the whole Reformed church, and touch particularly the heart of our western Synods. Broad enough to appreciate the work of the whole denomination, eastern in training and traditions, he learned to love the west, and give it his heart and his life. Many thoughts and sentiments struggle for utterance within us, as we think we shall look upon his fine, venerable figure no more, and hear no more the sound of his rich, soul-full voice.

Strongest of all impressions he made on the long line of students who loved him was the conviction he begot in us that he was a good man, full of faith, and guided by the Holy Spirit. That quality was always dominant, and was the key largely to the power he had over the life of the studentry. We felt in him the steady flame of a pure devotion, unsullied by self-seeking. We knew he sought our welfare, we knew he loved the church of God, we knew his plans and hopes were for the cause of the Savior whom he loved. This is a great achievement, and may we say that it was specially great because accomplished in a Theological Seminary?—For the familiar handling of the things of the Spirit sometimes, alas, exacts a sad penalty in a less reverent touch of divine truth. Here was a man who was, so long as we knew him, devout, unaffectedly pious, good.

And who can forget his gentlemanly culture? Did he not fulfil Drummond's definition of a gentleman, "A man who does things gently and with love?" He held the even tenor of his way, always with unvarying courtesy, having within himself the reserve that was "not easily provoked," because he dwelt so much with God.

He also set his students the example of conscientious, exact scholarship. That itself has remained with his boys like a noble tradition to attune our hearts and purposes, a scholarship all his own, not flashing, not self-conscious, but always built on a great deal of hard patient toil, and revealing to the student who was inclined to probe into it how carefully and holily he had done his best in searching into the minds and labors of men who had explored that line of work. Better even than that, it revealed how diligently he had searched into the Word to find the mind of the Spirit. Nor was his scholarship ever stridently self-asserting. One felt himself in the presence of a man who had been over the ground carefully and prayerfully, reverently yet fearlessly, and had come to matured conviction. He was of the believers that do not make haste, because he took the time to come to his conclusions. Surely that is also a fine legacy to leave to his disciples.

If these were the marks of the man in the classroom, they were no less the marks of the preaching. For in the days when he still preached, he probably impressed us first of all with the fact that he knew the dignity and the worth of the Word of God and honored the Word and the noble worth of the sanctuary of God. His prayers were beautiful. How often he was called upon to pray in public, and always, both in his occasional prayers, as well as in his prayer during the services when he preached, there was the fitting and chaste dignity of word and phrase. These prayers were but the prelude to the preaching, which was above all the simple and elegant preaching of the old Book that he loved. Always it was a joy to hear him discourse on some passage from the Old Testament, for much as he loved the Savior, and unerringly as he found the Christ latent in the Old Testament, he handled the Old Testament as the book that he lived with and knew in its riches.

He lived among us a good man, good as a neighbor, good as a citizen, and good in the affairs that he helped conduct, for this scholar was the same kind of painstaking man of affairs.

These things he has left us, and we rejoiced in them for a season. But his legacy to the world is not in these. For he himself told us, on that unique occasion when he celebrated among us at once his seventy-fifth birthday, the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination, and the twenty-fifth anniversary of his professorship,—on that occasion he told us himself that his greatest joy was in this, that everywhere in this country and in the foreign mission fields “his boys” were preaching the riches of the Gospel that he loved so well.

Having done all these things he fell asleep, and devout men did not mourn and make lament over him, but rather thanked God for the life he had lived.
