ALLEGAN BOY CHARGED HELPED CATCH DAVIS WITH MURDER

CHARGED ARMY AVIATOR WITH ALLEGAN CRIME.

BELIEVE YEAR-OLD MYSTERY
UNRAVELING

Four Eye Witnesses Said to Have Signed Affidavit Accusing Young Man of Strangling Woman—
Ferris Grants Papers

ALLEGAN, Mich., Jan. 7.—That year-old mystery of pretty Mrs. Alra N. Talmadge in her home here September 14, 1913, will be cleared up before many days is the general opinion being expressed in Allegan today.

Mrs. Talmadge was found doubled up on the floor of her home September 15, 1913, with a napkin tightly bound around her neck. There were several suspects arrested at the time but the evidence at hand was not strong enough to convict anyone of the crime.

Local police have been at work on the case for some time. A short time ago they secured a confession from four local young men, professed eye-witnesses of the crime, implicating Glenn Austin, now stationed at Fort Worden, Wash., as a member of the U. S. army navigation corps, as a participant in the affair which resulted in the death of Mrs. Talmadge.

Sheriff on Way West.

Sheriff Short in company with Prosecutor Pearl Fouch left for Lansing this morning to secure extradition papers from Gov. Ferris that they might return Austin to stand trial for the murder here. Advice received from Lansing late this morning were that the governor had granted the papers and that Sheriff Short is now speeding on his way to the west to bring the man back to the county.

Austin is about 20 years old. Last summer he gained quite a reputation locally as an aviator and in November, at St. Louis, Mo., enlisted in the aviation corps of the U. S. army. Shortly after joining he was transferred to Fort Worden, which is located near Seattle, Wash.

LETTER FROM AMSTERDAM,
HOLLAND

We are still safe in Holland. Very little evidences of the fearful war going on are seen here except the slackened trade, the many parades of soldiers, the many groups of unemployed on nearly every street, and especially the crowds of Belgian refugees still in nearly every place. Holland is doing nobly in caring for them all. But it is a fearful strain, and now that the winter is setting in with its cold storms, the prospect is all but bright.

December 5 is celebrated here as Christmas St. Nick is very busy, but, poor fellow, people have no money to entertain him long enough to relieve him of his packages! The stores are making a fine display and thousands of people stop a moment to admire and then, with sober countenances, pass on, with the war, the cruel war in mind, not wanting to if they could spend money on luxuries when there is so very much suffering and poverty to be relieved.

I visited a Belgian refugee camp at Bergenop-Zoom last week on a lecture tour in Zeeland, and witnessed a scene such as only war can bring about. Five thousand and more in tents are lovingly cared for. Bergenop-Zoom is a town of 15,000 inhabitants and at the besiegement of Antwerp, only a half hour's train ride from Bergenop-Zoom, 500,000 refugees passed through and 150,000 remained for a number of days to be fed and housed. Then later 35,000 stayed for a few weeks, and now there still are some thousands left. In spite of all that is done for them the loneliness and suffering are terrible—no hopes, no homes to which to return, no money, loved one dead—ah! the cruelty of it all!

Here in Amsterdam, too, as I visit the places—warehouses, vacant buildings, where hundreds upon hundreds are housed, my heart bleeds for the poor people who look about stupefied with fear and suffering.

When and what will the end be? You get the news daily of the thousands upon thousands slain in furious battle, and the stories of the horrors of it all cannot be exaggerated.

Europe appreciates very highly all that is done by the United States so generously to relieve suffering.

Three of us preachers have undertaken to give English services to the British soldiers—1,500 of them—interned in Groningen in the north of the Netherlands.

OLD FILES TELL OF DAVIS' CAPTURE

John Bosch of Zeeland Has Copies of Harpers' Weekly Published in 1865

MICHIGAN MEN IN CAPTURE

Grand Haven Tribune.—The capture of Jefferson Davis, president of the confederacy, in the closing days of the great civil strife of the sixties is always interesting reading to Michigan people for Michigan troops had a leading part in the capture. The late A. J. Ward of this city was a member of the division which assisted in the capture of the head of the confederacy.

John Bosch, formerly of this city, but now of Zeeland, has in his possession files of the Harper's Weekly of war days. In looking them over the other day, in the issue of May 24, 1865, he came across the following account in that magazine of the capture of Davis:

"Lieut. Co. Hardin, commanding the First Wisconsin, has just arrived from Irwinsville. He struck the trail of Davis at Dublin, Laurens county. On the evening of the 7th he came upon the trail and followed closely night and day through the pine wilderness of Alligator Creek and Green Swamps via Cumberland to Irwinsville. At Cumberland Col. Hardin met Col. Pritchard with 15 picked men and horses of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry.

Hardin followed the trail directly south while Pritchard, having fresher horses, pushed down the Oconulgee toward Hopewell and thence by House Creek to Irwinsville, arriving there at midnight of the 9th.

Jeff Davis had not arrived. From a citizen Pritchard learned that this party were encamped two miles out of town.

He made a disposition of his men and surrounded the camp before day. Hardin had encamped at 9 p. m. within two miles he afterward learned from Davis. The trail being indistinct to follow he pushed on at 3 a. m. and had gone but little more than a mile when his advance was fired on by men of the 4th Michigan. A fight ensued, both parties exhibiting the greatest determination. Fifteen minutes elapsed before the mistake was discovered. The firing in the skirmish was the warning Davis received.

The captors report that he hastily put on one of his wife's dresses and started for the woods, closely followed by our men, who at first thought him a woman, but seeing his boots while he was running they suspected his sex at once. The race was a short one and the rebel president was soon brought to bay. He brandished a bowie knife and showed signs of battle but yielded promptly to the persuasion of Colts revolvers.

He expressed great indignation at the energy in which he was pursued saying that he believed our government to be too magnanimous to pursue women and children. Afterward he behaved himself with dignity.

TAX PAYER WILL KNOW COST TO THE PENNY

The exact figures of what the boulevard lights will cost each individual will be published in due time. The business men intend to put it before the people in a plain business-like manner so the tax payer will know just exactly how much it is going to cost him.

Mr. Champion of the Board of Public Works does not have his figures complete yet but will have them ready within a week and we understand that they will be materially less than they were in making his rough estimate at first.

John Vandersluis, president of the Merchants' association said this morning that everything will be done in a business like manner and every taxpayer would know to the penny just exactly what the cost would be to him. There is still nine weeks before election so there is ample time.

BOULEVARD LIGHTS GO TO A VOTE—COUNCIL UNANIMOUS.

Fifth Ward Division Also Goes to The People

Mayor Bosch and the city aldermen started the new year right as far as business administration is concerned by completing all the business brought before the meeting in just 42 minutes. Mayor Bosch pushed business from the first and although each alderman was given plenty of time for discussion there was no unnecessary delay. Fifteen minutes of the time was spent in discussion on the boulevard lighting question because of a misunderstanding between the aldermen.

People To Vote On Boulevard Lighting System

Acting on a petition to the council signed by the members of the executive committee of the Holland Business Men's Association requesting that the council submit to a vote of the people at the earliest possible time the question of installing a boulevard lighting system in our city the council unanimously voted to submit the question to the people on Tuesday, March 16, 1915 when the regular primary election will be held.

The city 'dads' were all heartily in favor of granting the wish of the businessmen that the question be put fairly to the people themselves and that the council, businessmen and all concerned abide by the decision of the people. The News with the businessmen is also favorably impressed with the prompt action on the matter by the council feeling that as the boulevard lighting system as proposed is a benefit to the city at large and to every voter personally it is the voter who must decide whether they do or do not want the benefit of a prosperous looking city and well-lighted streets.

The dissent among the aldermen came about by the fact that the report referring the matter to the committee on Ways and Means alone and that the members of the committee on lighting had not signed. Alderman Prins, chairman of the committee on Ways and Means stated that all along Alderman Drinkwater, chairman of the committee on lighting, had been against the proposition of submitting the question to the people and at the last moment Drinkwater had come to him and asked to sign the report but as Ald. Prins had drawn up the report he felt as if he wished to make it himself.

Drinkwater stated his position by saying that he was at first against submitting the matter to the people—and was upheld by Mayor Bosch—unless twenty five per cent of the people petitioned to have the matter submitted to them but that later he realized—as did Mayor Bosch, according to his own statement—that the businessmen should be given a hearing in the face of what they had already accomplished having thus been encouraged by the aldermen to do so and that the proposition should be submitted. To make his statement strong Drinkwater declared that he was with the businessmen heart and soul and that he would be with them on election day and do all he could to help the proposition win.

A cloud hung over the council room for a few minutes when Alderman Drinkwater challenged as a lie a statement that Alderman Vander Ven made to the effect that Drinkwater said he would do nothing unless the businessmen got twenty-five per cent of the people to sign the petition to have the question submitted but Mayor Bosch interfered and the matter was settled peacefully. The lighting committee members then signed the recommendation made by Ald. Prins and Ald. Drinkwater's name now appears at the head of the list.

The following is the petition submitted by the Business Men's association:

To the Honorable, The Mayor and Members of the Common Council of the City of Holland:

We, the undersigned, members of the Executive Committee of and acting for the Business Men's Association of our City hereby most respectfully request that your Honorable body will submit to a vote, at the earliest time possible, the question of installing boulevard lighting system in our City in accordance with the report of the Committee on Boulevard lighting and the resolution to be submitted to your honorable body.

LOW PRICE OF OIL SAID TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FACT THE FENNIVILLE FARMERS WILL RAISE SUGAR BEETS

Several of the extensive peppermint growers in Fennville will turn their attention to the growing of sugar beets this season. About 1000 acres will be planted by farmers there and in Pearle. The A. M. Todd Co. expect to grow about 200 acres. The soils formerly used for growing peppermint are ideal for sugar beet culture. The low price received for mint oils for several seasons is mostly responsible for the change to the sugar beets.

NEARLY THIRTY THOUSAND TON OF BEETS SLICED IN THE LOCAL PLANT SEASON IS CLOSED Season Was An Average One; The Weather Conditions Unfavorable For Crop.

The season at the Holland Sugar factory came to a close Sunday evening when the slicing of beets for the season was finished. After all the beets have been ground up there is still a little work left at the plant and the factory, but this is finished and the plant closed yesterday. The close of the season comes early this year, although it has been an average year, it has not come up to some other years in number of tons of beets sliced and number of pounds of sugar manufactured. This year's record was about the same as last year. Weather conditions during the summer however were not at all ideal and that was chiefly responsible for the fact that the yield was not larger than it was.

But even at that the record was not a bad one. Between 28,000 and 30,000 tons of beets were sliced during the fall at the local factory, and between six and seven million pounds of sugar was the yield of the crop.

The season at the St. Louis factory was also an average one and the same conditions prevailed there that prevailed here.

Work for the next summer crop has been in progress for some time and many farmers have already signed up acreage for the coming season. The price of beets has been raised and the profit for the farmer during the coming year will be larger than it was during the past year.

PUBLIC PULSE

Mr. Editor of the News:—

I notice the Public Pulse in Monday night's paper and think the common council should treat the business men fair in this matter. There is no doubt judging from the list given in the article, that these men have done their share of public good. Although a workman, still I feel as if I would like to do what I could to help it along. I have worked in towns smaller than Holland that have a boulevard lighting system and I tell you the town looks dressed up and it would be some advertisement looking down Eighth street and seeing a mile of the lights from the depot to the dock, and those who come through on the train at night would be sure to take notice. According to the assessment valuation on my property the lights would be about 34c per year for the first year or a little over 1/4c per week. I am certainly willing to pay that amount to have my folks come down town on Tuesday and Saturday night on streets where you can see something, and this surely will be the case judging from the light in front of the city hall. This certainly is not the case now. Let there be light. TAXPAYER.

WILL GET BETTER SHIPPING FACILITIES FOR THEIR

FRUIT IN PENN- VILLE

Several prominent fruit growers of Fennville are planning to form a stock company and build a large cold storage plant for apples and other fruits, also an extensive packing house. J. A. Barron their present shipping agent, will be general manager.

During the months of August September, October and December there were 588 cars of fruit shipped over the P. M. road from that station. About the same amount went over the boat lines from Saugatuck, Douglas and Pier Cove. It is said that neither the express nor railroad company made any effort to get the Chicago consignment business and many growers hauled their fruit from five to eight miles to the boats and claimed that they saved money by so doing.

HEARING OF HANS DYKHUIS BOOKLET IS ISSUED SHOWING STUDENTS OF HOPE COLLEGE PARENTS IN GRAND RAPIDS REFUSE TO CALL FOR FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD SON.

The examination of Hans Dykhuis, sheriff of Ottawa county will be held this afternoon at two o'clock in the court house in Grand Haven before Justice Dickenson who issued the complaint made against Dykhuis by Thomas Mahan. Some people from Holland are enough interested in the case so that they will make a special trip to Grand Haven for it, while it is safe to say that hundreds of Grand Haven citizens will be present to listen to the examination. Because of the interest in the case the hearing will probably be held in the court room instead of in the office of Justice Dickinson.

Fred Allison and Mrs. Thomas Mahan who were arrested on similar charges have been placed on the court calendar for the January term and they will have their trials early in the term, probably during the first week of court. Court opens next Monday and the calendar having been made up the Dykhuis case, should the examination today result in a circuit court case, will probably not come up until the next term of court.

A neat folder has been published for distribution, containing a few of many unsolicited testimonials that have recently been received, relating to the excellent quality of the educational work carried on at Hope. The commendations come principally from educators. Among those quoted are Dr. Campbell Boner, head of the Department of Greek in the U. of M., Prof. Benjamin L. D'Ooge of the Michigan State Normal College, Ypsilanti, Dr. William H. S. Demarest, President of Rutgers College, President Lancaster of Olivet, and Ex-Gov. Chase S. Osborn.

Text Book of the Tongue of the Celestials Placed in Hope College Library

There has been placed in the library of Hope College a book entitled "Lessons in the Amoy Vernacular", of which the Rev. A. L. Warnshuis and the Rev. H. P. De Pree, both missionaries in China and graduates of Hope College are the authors. The book is designed to be a great help to missionaries and others who take up the study of the different languages. The demand for the book has exceeded expectations on the part of the librarians.

The students of Hope College are interested in a prize contest put on by the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration. Last year a Hope College Student, Harry Hoff won fourth place in this contest and that fact, more than any other, has aroused an interest in the contest on the part of the local students. The contest consists in the writing of an essay on the subject of "International Arbitration." It is open to the undergraduate men students of any college or university in the United States or Canada. The prize is $100 and the donor of the prize is Chester De Witt Pugsley of New York City.

Last year a student of the University of Indiana won the first place, a Harvard man second place, a Leland Stanford University man third place, and the Hope College man fourth. The fact that Hope was in a class with these high grade universities has fired the ambitions of some Hope students and some expect to enter the contest this year. It closes on March 15. The judges this year are Charles F. Thwing, LL.D., president Western Reserve University; Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, U. S. Navy, retired and James L. Tryon, Ph.D., director New England Department American Peace Society.

Frank Doornbos Ran Away to Get Away From School and Losen Home. The new jail or detention room for women and children in the city hall was used for the first time yesterday when Frank Doornbos, aged 15, was locked up to await the decision of Grand Rapids officers. The boy is a son of John Doornbos, 710 Dykema Court, Grand Rapids, an employee at the U. B. A. Hospital. He ran away from home Tuesday because he said he did not want to go to school. He had a little money in his pockets and came direct to Holland. He stayed here overnight and bright and early yesterday morning he appeared in one of the restaurants to buy cream puffs. Officer Steketee nabbed him and he confessed to having ran away from home.

The Grand Rapids police were notified and they informed the parents of the boy. However the parents said that this is the third time that Frank had run away from home, and they refused to come to Holland to get their son. The only other course open to the officers was to turn the lad over the Juvenile court and this was done. Officers from the Juvenile court of Grand Rapids called for the lad yesterday.

ing was later added that the boulevard lighted be installed from the Pere Marquette Depot to the Graham Morton Dock on Eighth Street and from Fifth Street to Thirteenth Street on River Avenue.

To the Honorable, the Mayor and the Common Council of the City of Holland:

We, your Committees on Ways and Means and Public Lighting, to whom was referred the matter of lighting certain streets in the business districts of the City, by what is known as the "Boulevard Lighting System."

Respectfully recommend that the Committee on Ordinances, be authorized by the Common Council to arrange immediately with the Board of Public Works for plans, specifications and estimates, providing a Boulevard Lighting System for such parts of Eighth Street and River Avenue that lie within the business district of the City, and to prepare an Ordinance or Resolution providing for the installation, and to defray the expense of such Boulevard Lighting System; to submit to the electors of this City on Tuesday, March 16th, 1915 when a primary election shall be held within said City and to have the same before the Common Council for consideration at the next regular meeting thereof.

Respectfully submitted,
Jas. A. Drinkwater
P. Prins
F. J. Congleton
Wm. Vander Ven
Bert Slaght
Dirk Steketee.
Fifth Ward Division To Be Submitted

Another question that the people of Holland will be given a chance to vote on is the proposed division of the Fifth Ward at Pine Avenue making the East section the Fifth Ward and the west section the Sixth ward. This will be submitted at the annual election the first Monday in April.

A resolution to this effect was unanimously adopted by the aldermen last night. The question will be submitted as an amendment to the charter.

This action was taken by the council in accordance with a petition submitted by the people of the Fifth Ward some time ago. The petition called for the division line at River Avenue but Aldermen Vander Hill and Steketee of the Fifth ward declared that, that people of that ward were well satisfied with dividing the ward at Pine Avenue.

"The dividing of the Fifth Ward into two wards is no more than fair to the residents of that ward. It is now so large and covers so much territory that it has become unwieldy. The people should vote favorably to divide this ward."

Ice Company Must Move Building
Acting on a motion made by Alderman Congleton, chairman of the committee on Streets and Crosswalks, the council passed a resolution instructing the Superior Ice Company to remove one of their buildings from the street. The building in question is one of the C. L. King Co., buildings recently moved by the Ice Company and is in Van Raalte Avenue about ten feet. The building is near the main plant on Van Raalte Avenue and the Lake front.

City Attorney Mc Bride wrote the company a short time ago asking them to move the building off of the street but the company has as yet taken no action. It seems that the Ice Company takes the stand that all bathhouses must be moved if they are compelled to move but acting city engineer Zuidema said the bathhouses could be moved on short notice if desired but such a large building could not.

Gas Tests Good For Year 1914
Acting City Engineer Zuidema last night handed each one of the aldermen a complete list of all gas tests taken during the year 1914. The total for twenty four reports to the council during the year is number of tests 876; Highest test, 679; Lowest test, 521; Average test, 602.2. There were 515 tests above 600 B. T. U. and 361 tests below 600 B. T. U. It is peculiar that the highest test is 79 above 600 B. T. U., which seems to be the mark the gas company is striving to maintain while the lowest test was 79 below 600 B. T. U.

The following was the tests for the past three weeks: Number of tests, 37; highest, 637; lowest, 560; average, 616.4. Two were below 600.

Items Of Interest
A petition to have some property used for church property made exempt from taxation by the Ninth Street Christian Reformed church consistory was referred to the committee on Claims and Accounts.

G. J. Duer, secretary, last night petitioned the council for the use of the City Hall January 18 for the purpose of holding an Ottawa county Farmer's Institute here. The petition was referred to the committee on Public Buildings and Property with power to act and unless the court room and Board of Trade rooms are to be used for some other purpose that day the request will be granted.

William Vander Water last night petitioned the council to have his $250 liquor license money returned to him. Vander Water recently sold out to Van Dommelen and Van Dommelen purchased a new license. The matter was referred to the license committee.

Ter Beek and Bronkhorst, contractors grading 22nd Street petitioned the council to have time for completion extended until ground has thawed. They were given until April 1, complete the work.

Alderman Congleton recommended to the committee on public buildings and property that walks in front of the city hall be kept clean.

The council last night ordered the city clerk to notify all Justices of the Peace that they must make a report of collections to the Council every month. This action was taken when one Justice sent in a report of collection taken since August 5.

City Clerk Richard Overweg reported to the council that all but $5,422 of a total of $71,685.83 of the tax assessment had been collected. Alderman Harrington recommended to the committee on streets and crossings that unsightly poles along the streets of the city be ordered removed.

The committee on streets and crossings was ordered to investigate the condition of the live wire of the Holland Interurban Co., that is stretched across Fairbanks Avenue. This wire has fallen twice and endangers lives and property.

The Cigarette ordinance brought before the council sometime ago was revived last night when alderman Congleton asked that it be brought before the council and voted on. The ordinance will be brought up at the next meeting. This ordinance calls for all cigarette dealers to pay a license of $100 and those selling cigars one dollar, or those selling both $101 for the two.

Mayor Bosch asked for more speed on the Building ordinance now under the consideration of the ordinance committee. The committee will take up the ordinance with the City Attorney this week.

City Attorney Mc Bride notified Fred Boone that the time allowed him to tear down his livery barns on Central Avenue between Eighth and Ninth Streets had expired. Mr. Boone promised to tear down the buildings as soon as he could make the necessary arrangements and so no action was taken by the council.

JOHN DINKELOO IS STRUCK BY RUNAWAY TEAM AND IS KILLED

Is Thrown About Twenty Feet; Son Also Struck But Not Injured.

John Dinkeloo, aged 59 years, suffered fatal injuries when he was struck by a runaway team and was thrown about 20 feet at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mr. Dinkeloo died later in the forenoon at his home on East Eighth street.

Mr. Dinkeloo and his son William Dinkeloo were crossing 9th street near Lincoln Avenue when the accident occurred. The men did not hear the team coming until it was upon them, because of the noise made by a passing train. The men turned, and, unable to get out the way made an effort to stop the horses. Both men were hurled aside. John Dinkeloo struck on his head and his skull was crushed. William Dinkeloo, although thrown some distance, escaped uninjured.

John Dinkeloo was taken to his home at 185 East Eighth street in an unconscious condition where he was attended by doctors A. Leenhouts and G. H. Thomas. It was necessary to remove a piece of the skull in the front part of his head and from the first no hope was held out for his recovery.

The only eye-witness to the tragedy was H. Vander Water, an employee of the Vander Veer meat market. According to Vander Water's story the team of horses, which later was found to belong to Mr. Tinholt, a Zeeland livery man, was standing on Eighth street facing east waiting for the passenger train to pass by. The sudden starting of the train frightened the horses and they suddenly turned off along the track toward Ninth street throwing the driver, Mr. Habers out of the cutter.

Seeing the danger of the two men who were walking along the track near Ninth street Vander Water shouted to them, but the noise of the moving train drowned out his voice as it drowned out the noise the frightened horses made in approaching. The horses struck the men before they knew there was any danger and the older Mr. Dinkeloo was the next moment hurled into unconsciousness so that he probably did not realize what had happened.

The funeral of John Dinkeloo, who was killed Tuesday when he was struck by a runaway team, will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the home, 85 East Eighth street. The Rev. J. W. Esveld and the Rev. A. F. Bruske will officiate. Interment will be at the Pilgrim Home Cemetery.

Friends will be given an opportunity to view the remains Friday morning between 10 and 12 o'clock.

Mr. Dinkeloo is survived by a widow and two sons, William, who was with him at the time of the accident and John, a professor of vocal music at a Conservatory in Goshen, Ind. John was notified immediately after the accident and he arrived home Tuesday night.

Mr. Dinkeloo, besides having been a painter, will be remembered as a fireman. For 25 years he was a member of the Holland Fire Department and he served as chief of the department before the late L. Kanters, held that position.

B. F. HARRIS TELLS WHAT THE BOULEVARD LIGHTING SYSTEM HAS DONE FOR WESTERN TOWNS

Believes It Would Be The Very Best Way to Advertise the City Of Holland

Few citizens of Holland have had a better opportunity to see cities in various parts of the United States and to receive an impression as to the progressiveness or backwardness of these cities than B. F. Harris, ticket clerk at the local Pere Marquette station. Mr. Harris is interested in the boulevard lighting system for Holland and in his travels he has paid particular attention to other cities that have installed this system. He has traveled all through the southwest, and along the Pacific coast, and through the states of the northwest, especially Oregon and Washington. He has made three trips to the coast during the past few years.

"I have paid particular attention to the talk on the train when ever we passed through a city that had the boulevard system," he said today in discussing the possibilities of that plan carrying in Holland in case it is submitted to a vote of the people as it will undoubtedly be done. "Invariably when we passed through such a city there were numerous remarks to the effect that that city must be pretty wide awake and that it must be a town worth while. Frequently we passed through cities smaller than Holland lit up in that way and invariably the passengers got the impression that the city must be quite a large one. That seems to be the most significant effect of the boulevard lighting system on the stranger passing through the town. He gets the impression that the town amounts to a great deal and is larger than it really is. Now I believe that the impression in regard to the size is one of the most valuable forms of advertising for any town. It is a well known fact that people want to be where other people are. That is human nature and on that to a large extent depends the growth of a city. I believe that if we had the boulevard system in Holland, people passing through on the Pere Marquette would look upon Holland as a real city, while at present the impression of a village is more often than not left with a stranger. A mile of electric globes from a train window is not easily forgotten."

Mr. Harris has been a citizen of Holland for 19 years. He owns a home here and as a taxpayer is deeply interested in everything that affects the welfare of the city. "If you want to boost a town, there is no better way, I believe than to pass the boulevard light plan," he said.

HOPE SCHEDULE OF THE HOME CONTESTS WAS TOO MUCH FOR PURSES OF STUDENTS

The Board of Control of athletics at Hope College has called off the game that was to have been played with Battle Creek at Carnegie Gym. Friday evening. This action of the Board of Control was concurred in willingly by the athletic association. The step was taken because it was felt that Hope college had too many home games for the welfare of the pocketbooks of the students who are looked to to support the games. Nine home games were scheduled of which two have been played. The next Hope game will be played on January 13, when they will play M. A. C. at East Lansing. The other games on the local team's schedule are: Jan. 21, Detroit Rays at Holland; Jan. 28, Detroit "Y" at Holland; Feb. 5, North Western at Holland; Feb. 12, Kalamazoo Normals at Kalamazoo; Feb. 17, Kalamazoo College at Holland; Feb. 24, M. A. C. at Holland; March—Grand Rapids "Y" at Holland.

PROF. NYKERK PLEASED WITH SHOWING MADE BY HENRY JACOBS

Prof. J. B. Nykerk of Hope College who attended the National Prohibition Oratorical Contest at Topeka, Kansas, in which Henry Jacobs won second place is well satisfied with the showing made by the representative of Hope College. The winner of the contest served one year in the California State Legislature and is a recognized public speaker. Miss Ethel Bedient, representative from Albion won fifth place.

While in Kansas Prof. Nykerk was the guest for a day of Dr. and Mrs. J. N. Vander Vries at Lawrence. Dr. Vander Vries was formerly a Hope College student. He is now at the head of the department of mathematics in the University of Kansas.

LOCALS

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wareham and daughter Irene of Holland spent New Year's with Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Scott and family.—Grand Haven Tribune.

Electric lights have been put up around the skating pond on the H. P. Zwemer lot, just east of Fairbanks Avenue. Many skaters make use of the pond when skating is good.

About 200 Hope College students and Holland people attended the Basketball game between Hope and the Grand Rapids "Y" at Grand Rapids last Friday night, which Hope won 33-28. Capt. Stegeman starred for Hope with Van Putten getting creditable mention. Capt. Fowle led in offensive work for the "Y."

The week of prayer will be observed in the local M. E. church as in churches all over the land. On Jan. 10 the Self-denial envelope will be handed in to raise the $250,000 needed in the Methodist Episcopal relief fund and the local pastor, the Rev. J. W. Esveld urges the people to give freely to this cause.

The American Telephone and Telegraph companies of which the local Bell Telephone exchange is a member announces that arrangements have been made by which employees of the Bell system who have been two years or more in the service may purchase stock of the company on easy payment plan. The issued capital stock is $350,000,000.

Sixty of the best known citizens of Berlin are involved in a complaint brought by Mr. and Mrs. J. Meade that at the time of their daughter's marriage about a month ago a party of citizens assembled in a charivari and affected damage to their premises. They ask for a settlement and it is said that the matter will be settled.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Molenaar, 199 West Sixteenth Street have found no trace of their fifteen year old son John who disappeared from his home November 12. A friend received a letter from him from Chicago shortly after his disappearance but he has not been heard from since. The mother is prostrated with grief and her condition is critical.

G. W. Kooyers, elected last November as legislator from this district left for Lansing Tuesday and took up his duties. Before going he declared himself for Chas. W. Smith of Lapeer as speaker and against "Freak Laws." He will not introduce a bill for the present. He will continue to make his home in Holland and will spend Saturday and Sundays here.

Miss Hattie Zend of Springfield Mass. who was spending a few months in Blenden township while there received word that a second and last will of her uncle, George P. Zend, Jersey City, had been found which left to her estate valued at $86,000. A first will found among his possession gave all his estate to charitable institutions but the will last found bears a later date. Miss Zend has left to claim her property.

The Grand Haven Poultry association has decided to hold its 1916 poultry show during the week of January 3 to 8. The association was very much encouraged by the class of birds exhibited in the recent show.

The attendance this year was far below what it should have been, due perhaps to the fact that the show was held too near the Christmas holiday time.

The "movies" had a liberal inning at the meeting of the Social Progress Club Monday night at the home of the Rev. J. Van Peursem. Prof. Wynand Wichers read a very excellent and exhaustive paper on the subject "Moving Pictures," and at the conclusion of the reading of this paper the members of the club discussed "movies" in general and the "movies" in Holland in particular.

When Ben Loftman of Hudsonville went to the stable Tuesday morning to do his milking he found two of his best cows down and in much pain. He gave the usual remedies but to no avail. A veterinarian was sent for and he pronounced it a case of arsenical poisoning. The cows died a few hours later and a post mortem revealed the presence of enough Paris green to kill ten cows. From where the poison came Mr. Loftman is at a loss to know.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR NEW BRIDGE

Meeting of Township Board Members and Supervisors in Coopersville Yesterday

The question of building a bridge across Grand river at Eastmanville was to be discussed at a meeting in Coopersville yesterday. Members of the township boards of the townships of Polkton and Allendale, Supervisors D. M. Cline of Spring Lake and George E. Hubbard of Georgetown, and Austin Harrington of Holland, a member of the county road commission, were to come together to thoroughly thresh out the proposition.

The township boards have already offered to submit the question of raising $5,000 to the people to assist in the construction.

A bridge built at this point would have to be a swing bridge, or one with a draw of sufficient size to admit the passage of steamers and the cost would be at least $50,000. The supervisors, therefore, are of the opinion that the interested townships should contribute a greater proportion of the cost.

WOMAN'S LITERARY CLUB DISCUSSES FOREIGNERS IN AMERICA

The Woman's Literary Club resumed work Tuesday afternoon after a brief mid-winter intermission. The president, Mrs. J. P. Oggel, requests the members to look up the subject for response to roll call Tuesday, which is "A Prominent American and His Nationality."

The balance of the program was as follows: "Emigrants in their Foreign Homes," Mrs. Browning; reading, "Unguarded Gates," of T. B. Aldrich, Mrs. Wheeler; Instrumental solo, Mrs. Keppel; "Immigrants in their American Homes," Mrs. Dregman; "Jacob Rills," Miss Geiger.

RESOLUTIONS

The members of the Woman's Literary Club wish to express their sorrow and sense of loss caused by the death of their beloved friend and fellow member, Mrs. Charles M. McLean.

Mrs. McLean was a noble example of American womanhood and was possessed of a many-sided personality, shining first as a devoted wife and loving mother. Her activities in church and Sunday school were earnest and untiring; and to what ever tended to promote the civic and national good, Mrs. McLean gave unstintingly of her time and efforts.

The Woman's Literary Club, of which Mrs. McLean was a charter member and long a faithful officer, feels keenly her loss; but she has left a precious memory of a worthy life actuated by high ideals.

Our hearts go out in deep sympathy to the sorrowing family, and we pray that God may comfort and strengthen them.

For the Woman's Literary Club,
Frances E. Browning,
Rubie S. Garrod,
May S. Dregman.

The old Dutch church of Harlem, N. Y., is among the oldest churches in our country, its existence dating back to the year 1660. It is still vigorously active, and is now under the pastorate of the Rev. Henry Mandeville, D. D.

Dr. F. J. Schouten had a little run away last week which terminated very lucky. The horse started from the drug store, where the Dr. keeps his headquarters, and ran to the barn of Mr. H. Boone, where it stopped of its own accord. Nobody hurt.

The peculiar weather is the topic of general conversation. On January 2nd, the steamer Lizzie Walsh went to Ottawa Beach, with a load of lumber. On the same day farmers were seen plowing in the fields, as if it were April, instead of midwinter. No frost, ice or snow. We have been advised to dig up Uncle Harm's load, so as to give our readers some weather prognostications. We expect to send our reporter to South Blendon to interview the animal, next week, if the government weather department does not send a snow storm before that time.

CITY TREASURER AND CITY
CLERK WATCH OLD YEAR

GO OUT AND NEW

YEAR COME IN,

BUT ON CITY

BOOKS

When City Treasurer VandenBrink closed his books at 4 o'clock in the morning New Year's day, finishing the December tax campaign, there was in the neighborhood of $7,000 still to be collected. Both the city treasurer and City Clerk Overweg worked till the sky was beginning to get pale in the east in finishing up the work after a very strenuous day of tax collecting Thursday. At four o'clock they were pretty much all in and they knocked off work, leaving a few odds and ends to be completed Saturday morning.

The amount left uncollected is rather large. While last year the total amount not collected at the end of December was larger than this year, in proportion to the total sum to be collected it was considerably smaller. During December 1913 all the taxes were collected making a total of about $300,000, while in December, 1913, only about 30% of the total was collected, which makes the amount of delinquent taxes rather high. On the amount still left the usual collection fee will be charged. The city treasurer will make every possible effort to collect a considerable share of the sum before he makes his returns to the county treasurer.

ALFRED JOLDERSMA TAKES BIG
NEGRO TO THE COUNTY JAIL

Alfred Joldersma, clerk at the Police Headquarters, was given a taste of real police work when Chief of Police Van Ry bestowed on him the custody of Felix De Seles, a big burly negro. De Seles was sentenced to spend 15 days in the county jail by Justice Sooy Thursday afternoon and Joldersma was given the job of taking him to Grand Haven. Joldersma took good care of his man and handed him over to Sheriff Dykhuis without a mishap. He did not have him handcuffed either.

DEER ANTLERS ARE FOUND BY SEINERSHorns, Thought To Be From 300 Lb.
Buck Given Deputy Game
Warden

Grand Haven Tribune.—Deer horns which are believed by authorities to have at one time adorned the head of some noble, 300 pound buck deer, the type of which formerly abounded in this locality, were found Saturday in Bear Lake by the contractors, engaged in seining the lake, although having laid in the water for an indefinite period of years, are fine specimens and have been turned over to George Wellhamer, deputy State game warden.

The theory is advanced that the big buck after having been severely wounded by a hunter, swam into the lake and was drowned in its efforts to escape. This may have occurred a few years ago as five, when an occasional deer is alleged to have been seen in this locality.

The work of seining the lake is said to be meeting with remarkable success. In the neighborhood of 25 tons of so-called objectionable fish, which will be disposed of in the Ghetto district, New York city, have already been taken from the lake by Edward C. Smith and Cornelius Nyland of Grand Haven who are engaged in the work.

LAW 75 YEARS OLD TO BE TESTED
IN THE COURTS

The constitutionality of a law 75 years of age will be tested in the supreme court at the January session according to an announcement of Attorney General Grant Fellows. The law in question permits the prosecution of offenders on the Great Lakes in any county bordering on a lake.

The state game department arrested Bert Andrews for violating the fish laws on Lake Huron and took him to Port Huron for trial. Andrews was released by the circuit judge on the grounds the act was unconstitutional. Andrews wished to be tried in Bay City.

The state officers claim the act is constitutional and want a ruling on it. That is the reason for taking the case to the high court.

SHERIFF DYKHUIS LIKE HIS PREDECESSOR MUST FACE A CHARGE IN CIRCUIT COURT

Is the office of sheriff of Ottawa county an unlucky one? Are the fates in conspiracy against the holder of this office?

The past two sheriffs of Ottawa county have been compelled to face charges in circuit court of a serious nature.

The charge brought against Sheriff Dykhuis recalls the charges made against his predecessor, Sheriff Cornelius Andre, and his under sheriff, Frank Salisbury, both of whom were indicted on different charges by the only grand jury ever called in this county.

Every one of the cases brought against Sheriff Andre and his force resulted in the acquittal of the officers after highly sensational trials. Should the jinx continue, the office of sheriff will not be so eagerly sought after in the future as it has been in the past.

CHAPTER IX.

A Duel in a Cage.

All the way back to the hut and the cages they drove us, the negro's spear always within an inch or two of my back and the scientist's own spear always poised in readiness to help the black in case of need.

Back into her cage they put my Joan and lashed new bars in place where I had rent the old ones asunder to effect Joan's release. It was now night. They worked by moonlight.

Plenty of food and water they then placed in Joan's cage, making her in every way comfortable for the night—with fresh grass for bedding and a clod of moss for a pillow.

As for me, instead of taking me to the hut, as I supposed they would, they lashed me to Joan's cage. They first tied my feet together at the ankles, then chained me to one of the bars of Joan's prison.

"You seem to like my specimen in that cage well enough to take it away from me," the old scientist said, laughing his mad laugh. "Well, you shall remain within sight of that excellent specimen till morning."

And so they left. I found I could squirm around so as to look into Joan's cage. She put her arms through her bars and stroked my head tenderly, saying:

"Poor John! What a fate! If only we had not taken such a long rest at that stream we would not now be here. It is all my fault. It was I who induced you to rest there."

"No, dear," I said, "they would probably have found us anyway. They know the forest better than we do. And, mad though they are, still they are cunning enough to track down two such tenderfeet as you and I."

"Shall we dine?" she asked, and she smiled, a forlorn, hopeless sort of smile.

She thrust through the bars some wild honey—using a leaf as a plate. And then she gave me some berries—and a chunk of meat. Lastly, she handed out her water jar from which I drank. Thus we dined.

The night was beautiful. The moonlight made the scene of rapturous delight to the senses. And yet it all seemed like a stage setting—like a horrible nightmare.

"Do you know," Joan said, "that you called me 'dear'?"

"Yes, I couldn't help it," I replied. "Forgive me if I offended you."

"Call me dear—again," she whispered. "If you could only know in full what a joy your coming has been to me. For two long years, the only human being I have seen—well, can't you guess what happiness you mean to me?"

"Yes, dear. I know. If only I could get my hands free, I might succeed in unchaining my feet. Could you try, dear?"

I squirmed up close to the bars where she could reach my hands, which were tied in front of me. She tussled at the rope, but the hard knots and the interposing bars of her cage rendered her task too difficult for accomplishment.

Presently, from sheer fatigue, she slept.

"Good night, dear!" I whispered. She was not really asleep. She rose on one arm and whispered: "Good night—dear John!"

And so we slept.

Morning came, and with it came our two mad captors. Again they led Joan—and again Joan fed me. And then—shall I ever forget the way my heart sank when the mad old scientist said to me:

"And now, as I promised you, you shall occupy the cage next to my other specimen—if you live!"

The slave forthwith untied me, hand and foot. Their intention regarding my fate had already become manifest. For the old man had ordered the slave to desist from feeding the mountain lion in the cage adjoining that of Joan's, saying:

"No, don't feed the lion this morning, Chacha. We'll give him a chance for food more rare."

So I was to be thrust into the cage with the fierce beast. "If I lived" meant, evidently, that if I survived the forthcoming inevitable fight with that lion my life would be spared—spared to endure it henceforth as a prisoner in that same cage. Had it not been for Joan I'm sure I would have entered the cage determined to let the lion destroy me as quickly as possible, putting up no fight at all myself, in order to have the whole business through with, rather than continue to live there a prisoner.

They removed two bars from the lion's cage—thrust me in—then quickly replaced the bars. The mortal combat between a mountain lion and John Gaunt, mining engineer, was on.

Joan watched from her cage through the separating bars in mortal terror. Never shall I forget the anguish I saw in her eyes when she viewed me in what she had reason to believe would be my last moment on earth—the last moment, too, of the personification of her only earthly hope of possible release from her prison.

The lion crouched in the corner of the cage, watching me. I kept perfectly still. I had read somewhere that the quieter one keeps when in such a tight fix with a wild animal the better. So I gave no more sign of life than if I were a statue.

The lion watched. So did I. The lion for many minutes never once took his eyes from mine. And I kept my own eyes fixed on that animal as a hypnotist views his subject.

Outside the cage stood the two madmen, also watching. The madman cackled. He seized a bar of wood and prodded the lion.

That settled the matter. The fight began. The lion sprang upon me. Down my back one of his paws tore a gash that certainly must have looked fatal to the watching Joan. For blood flowed from the long wound and bespattered the floor. Thank God! In the first onrush of the beast I had had the presence of mind to seize him by the throat. I hung on like a bulldog—giving to my hands the supernatural strength of a desperate man. But the lion, in one mighty wrench, freed itself from my grasp and crouched for a second spring.

CHAPTER X.

The Friendly Worms.

To my astonishment she had thrust her hand through a bar of her cage and had seized the spear of the negro. The spear had been left standing within her reach, the negro never dreaming that such a trick would or could be played on him by the lovely prisoner.

"Here! Here!" now shouted Joan for the third time, distracting the lion's attention from me, his more immediate opponent, till she could swing the spear into proper position to hurl it.

And now, as the lion leaped again toward my corner of the cage, the spear entered his side—was withdrawn and thrust again into his body, hitting this time a vital spot. The lion collapsed on the floor of the cage—dead.

And Joan, my brave, plucky Joan—had fainted.

"You live," the scientist said, viewing the result of the fight with no more heart than one would view the result of a dog fight, since he didn't care which of the combatants in that cage won. "You may eat the lion," he added, and again he cackled madly, as if at a great joke.

"Joan, my poor Joan!" I said, thrusting my arm through the separating bars and stroking her beautiful hair. "Joan! See here!" I shouted to the madmen, "don't leave this girl like that." They were going away toward the hut. "Come back here and bring some water," I called. But they heeded me not at all.

Presently Joan regained consciousness—and sipped some water—and then put her face between the bars and said:

"John, perhaps it was cruel to save your life. For they will keep you now in that cage—as they have kept me here in my own cage. And to live so is worse than death—far worse."

"Dear," I replied, "remember I have you to live for."

She understood. And—yes, I kissed her square on the lips.

For two long years we remained thus, cellmates, all but for those intercepting bars. Night and day we would hold each other's hands and keep each other from going mad. By day we would tell each other stories of our past lives. By night we would lie close together by the bars, still holding hands. Strangest wooing, strangest love under the strangest conditions ever man experienced.

And so passed the two years—two long years of torture.

I noticed that frequently now the old scientist and the black man quarreled. Once, near our cages, the two madmen came to blows. What if they were to kill each other and leave us in these cages—to starve? I could see that the same thought was in Joan's mind. But neither of us spoke. The thought of what would happen to us if those two madmen should destroy each other was too horrible.

Came then the great day when, almost mad with desire for liberty, I tore frantically at the bars of my cage. And what happened? To my amazement and joy I felt one of the bars yielding to my tugging grasp.

"The bars are worm-eaten!" I cried to Joan. "By all the gods, the bars of this cage are worm-eaten."

"Pull!" cried Joan. "Pull hard. There! There! Oh, God—you are free!"

Yes, I was free. First one bar then another had broken in the middle, where worms had so weakened them that they readily yielded in the hands of the desperate man whom they had imprisoned for two years.

"And now yours!" I cried to Joan, running to her cage. "Now to free you!"

"You can't," she wailed. "They put new bars to my cage only a month ago. While the bars of your cage have never been renewed in my memory."

"Well, then, I'll free you with a club as a lever—same as I did before."

And I went in search of a stout stick.

"Fly, John! Fly!" cried Joan, her voice ringing with fear. "Run away quick! They are coming. Don't stop for me."

"I'll return with help, dear!" was all I had time to say to my darling Joan—and then I heard the footsteps of the two madmen approaching—and I ran, ran for dear life.

How long I ran nor how far I shall never know. For when I awoke it was to see the sun rising on a new day. I must have ran till I fell exhausted and unconscious. For I remembered nothing of this place in which I now found myself. It was a place amid trees, yet sandy. Yes, there was white sand under my feet.

"Sand!" I exclaimed. "This means that the sea is near."

Onward I hastened toward the rising sun—for I knew that the sea-coast lay directly east. All that day I hastened eastward, stopping only long enough at streams to drink and bathe my fevered head.

Yes, fevered. For now I felt stealing over me that terrible, all-gone feeling that precedes tropical fever. But still I must reach the coast, and reach it before the fever made too great ravages upon my physical strength.

And so, fever-stricken and exhausted, I at last reached the sea. Fishermen found me and carried me to their home. There they nursed me back to health.

I told them my story and begged them to form a little expedition and come with me into the forest to save my Joan from her imprisonment at the hands of the madmen.

The natives—Spanish-American fishermen—well, I could see that they believed, from my strange and incredible story, that it was I who was mad—not the two men of whom I told them.

The result was that while they pitied what they believed to be my mental infirmity, they would not raise a hand to help me.

Then came a fishing smack into the harbor. She would proceed thence, with a cargo of fish, I learned, to the nearest large port. I determined that my best plan to aid Joan would be to work my way on this vessel to where help could be had.

I applied to the captain of the ship for a berth. He gladly accepted me as a member of the crew, being short handed. When the vessel reached the Honduras port, I again told my story to the natives there, and again none would believe my tale. Not a man could I find to volunteer to go into the interior with me to rescue my darling girl.

A ship was sailing for New York. I at last induced the captain to ship me as one of the crew. And so—I worked my passage to New York and—here I am.

Thus John Gaunt, the Fifth Man, concluded his story.

He now turned with eager countenance to his friends and said:

"Will you help me to rescue Joan? Or do you, boys, believe that I am mad?"

"You're the sanest man that ever came over the pike!" cried Doctor Sadler, thus relieving the tension by injecting into the situation a forced air of levity befitting men who had decided already to embark on an enterprise involving the life and liberty of a beautiful American woman.

"We'll help you, Gaunt," said Thomas Wynn, with an air of finality. "We will leave here for Honduras within—well, while all good people are in church tomorrow."

John Gaunt looked from one to the other of his friends with deep gratitude and said fervently: "Thank God! Joan Darey is at this moment almost as good as free—free."

BEST ANGLER.

Thomas Rosendahl of this city has been daubed by his friends the "Ike Waltman of Holland" for his success on a fishing trip at Saugatuck last Wednesday and Thursday. According to reliable information he went to Saugatuck Wednesday on a fishing trip and he saw a large pickerel. He showed a true fisherman's patience, however and the next day he caught the fish. It weighed 6 3/4 pounds. Besides this he caught two other pickerel together weighing five pounds and after the fish had quit biting he caught a two pound sucker.
