Hoffer this morning to a charge of drunk driving and paid $50 fine and $7.70 costs. Mrs. Saggars, Holland's Oldest Resident, Dies at 99

Mrs. Jennie Saggars

Mrs. Jennie Saggars, 99, believed to be Holland's oldest resident, died early this morning in her home on route 6 where she lived for 80 years. Mrs. Saggars has been in failing health for several years and spent most of the last nine years in her chair when unable to walk alone. She was confined to her bed since last June. Until her 99th birthday, she always was guest of honor at family birthday parties each year.

Mrs. Saggars was born Oct. 1, 1844, in the Netherlands and came to this country with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bishop, 88 years old when she was 11 years old. The Bishops settled in the area south of Holland which was then a small colony founded only a few years before in 1847. The Bishops cleared their own farm.

The home which Mrs. Saggars occupied for 80 years is a frame structure and was built prior to that time. Her husband died 40 years ago and since that time Mrs. Saggars lived quietly with her two sons, George and Ben. When her health failed, her daughter, Mrs. Henry Wiegmink, cared for her.

Although her sight and hearing failed somewhat in recent years, Mrs. Saggars retained a brilliant memory to the end. Speaking almost exclusively in Dutch, she memorized many Dutch psalms which she could recite readily. The patience she displayed in past years when her health failed was an inspiration to those who knew her.

Mrs. Saggars was a member of Central Park Reformed church for many years, joining the congregation years before the church was moved from Graafschap to its present location.

Surviving are the daughter and two other sons, Henry and John of route 6; nine grandchildren, 16 great grandchildren and one great-great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the home with the Rev. H. Van Dyke of Fourth Reformed church officiating. Burial will be in Graafschap cemetery. The body is at the Ver Lee funeral home and will be taken to the Saggars home tonight. Friends may call at the home Saturday and Sunday from 2 to 3 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Grand Haven, Jan. 27 (Special)—Lt. Gene Roth, who received his wings and commission in the army air corps at Lubbock field last Dec. 5, has received an assignment as instructor of C-47 transport planes at Bergstrom field, Austin, Tex.

Roth enlisted in September of 1942 and entered service Feb. 18, 1943. He was graduated from Grand Haven high school in 1940 and attended Hope college during 1941 and 1942.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Roth, 210 Madison Street, Grand Haven. His wife, the former Ruth Casemer, who spent some time with him in Texas, is at present visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Casemer, also of Grand Haven. She expects to join her husband later.

Hold Two Youths After Car Theft

Two 16-year-old youths have been turned over to juvenile officer Frank Chahk of Muskegon after being picked up by state police of the Grand Haven post about 8:30 p.m. Saturday after the two allegedly stole the car of Gerald Kemper, 475 Central Ave., and abandoned it about 14 miles south of the intersection at US-31 and M-21.

The car had been parked on West Eighth St. near The Sentinel office, where Kemper is employed, and was missed about 7:30 p.m. after he had been absent only a few minutes while going to a store on Eighth St. According to state police, the two youths had taken the car of one of their fathers and had gone to Indiana where they abandoned it after the motor block was broken. That car was recovered by Indiana state police.

The boys hitchhiked from Indiana to Holland and apparently had a hard time getting a ride here and appropriated Kemper's car. The car probably hit a bump causing the steering gear to crack off, making the driver lose control, and the car went into the ditch, police said. In addition to the broken gear, the brakes also are burned out, the owner said.

One of the youths is a ward of Muskegon probate court, officers said. The two are residents of Muskegon.

March of Dimes Is Arranged for Paralysis Fund

Event Set Saturday;
Epidemic Last Year
Worst in 12 Years

Municipal Judge Raymond L. Smith, chairman of the Ottawa county infantile paralysis committee, announced today that a special "march of dimes" will be held in Holland Saturday from 1 to 8 p.m. to promote the fight against infantile paralysis here. The "march of dimes" will be held on Eighth St. between River and Central Aves.

The campaign in Ottawa county is promoted by the Lions clubs of Holland and Zeeland, the Kiwanis club of Grand Haven and County School Commissioner D. H. Vander Bunte who is taking charge in the rural areas. Schools throughout Holland and Ottawa county have already been making contributions. Each room has its own envelope. Coin boxes for the fund also have been placed in stores and other places of business.

Ted Van Dyke, who heads the infantile paralysis drive in Holland, said the disease in 1943 alone claimed some 12,000 victims, more than three times the number of casualties at Pearl Harbor. The 1943 epidemic was the worst in 12 years. Only twice before in the recorded history of infantile paralysis have there been more cases reported. It costs about $1,800 to give a year's care and the Kew treatment to one patient. The total cost of the 1943 epidemic cannot be estimated because many of those stricken will still be patients in 1944 and many years thereafter.

However, the high cost of the 1943 epidemic indicates the great necessity for continuing the fight to conquer this mysterious enemy and find the cause, prevention and cure of the disease, Mr. Van Dyke said.

Fifty per cent of the contributions are retained by the county for direct work while the remainder is turned over to the National Infantile Paralysis foundation which in turn sponsors research at the University of Michigan and University of Michigan among other places of learning.

Persons desiring to contribute to the drive other than in the "march of dimes" may send their contributions to the local Lions club, Mr. Van Dyke, Judge Smith or Adrian Van Dyke, cashier of Zeeland State bank, treasurer for the county committee.

Sergeant, Whose Crew Killed Many Japs, Returns Home From Australia

Sgt. George Zietlow, whose machine gun crew was credited with killing more Japs than any other unit of the 126th infantry during the Papuan campaign in New Guinea in December, 1942, was glad to be back in Holland today after spending 21 months on the other side of the world.

Home on a 21-day convalescent leave, Zietlow who arrived here last week will return to O'Reilly General hospital in Springfield, Mo., for further treatment of a knee injury and then, perhaps, limited service. He arrived at Letterman General hospital in San Francisco Jan. 7 from Sydney, Australia, where he had been confined in the 118th General hospital. He sailed from Australia Dec. 12.

Ironically enough, Zietlow did not suffer the knee injury in his numerous scraps with Japs but received it while unloading supplies in Australia much later. While confined in the Sydney hospital, he met Eleanor Roosevelt whom he described as "swell" and a great help to morale. "She has a very pleasant personality and puts you right at your ease, and before you know it, you're talking just like to anybody else," he said. He added that Mrs. Roosevelt is much better looking than her pictures and that her visit went "over big" in that part of Australia.

Zietlow in a matter-of-fact way related blood-curdling episodes which occurred during the Papuan campaign in New Guinea Nov. 5, 1942, through Jan. 2, 1943, during which he and his company were behind Jap lines for 25 days. He was section leader of a machine gun squad of nine men which captured three Jap trucks on a Jap ration trail (supply line). His squad and another led by an Australian by the name of McKivick who had seen action in Syria, Crete and Greece, together with a platoon of Co. I, formerly of Grand Rapids, wiped out a Japanese first aid station near Sananda, killing 168 Japs.

He said the attack was well planned and in order to approach the station, the men had to go through water up to their necks, carrying all their guns and supplies. The two machine gun squads approached from one direction and Co. I from another "and the whole thing was over in 15 to 20 minutes." One of the men in the machine gun squads was hit by a piece of shrapnel but returned to active duty in seven hours. During the raid, mortar squads in charge of Sgt. Jack McCormick of Holland were operating about 1,800 yards away. This attack was part of the Higgins crossing or roadblocking which started the Sananda drive.

Of the 168 Japs killed in this attack, some were doctors but most were wounded soldiers on stretchers and some were malaria patients, Zietlow said. Malaria, practically the biggest threat to American soldiers in the south-west Pacific, struck the Japs, too, he said. Zietlow, himself, had 14 attacks. He said few Holland soldiers had escaped malaria and that once they contract the disease it recurs during four or five days about every month.

One member of Sgt. Zietlow's squad in the first aid station raid was Sgt. George Bruunsma of Holland, who was killed a few days later by a Jap sniper.

Zietlow also reviewed the widely circulated "Japanese sword" story, but denied that he ran the sword through the Jap officer's body. He said it happened about eight or nine days after the attack on the first aid station. It had rained all night and just as dawn was breaking he jumped from his fox hole into the machine gun hole about three feet away from where two of his squad were stationed.

"Suddenly we heard a blood-curdling yell behind us, and there was a Japanese officer waving his sword wildly and a private swinging his gun. They must have been out of ammunition because the Jap was using it as a club. One of the boys in our hole had his Tommy gun out but had trouble with the safety. However, when he did get it working, the force of the bullets at close range cut the Jap private's body in two right at the chest."

"But the officer swinging his sword came right for me and I grabbed him. His sword hit me on the head putting a dent in my helmet. If the branch hadn't been there, that sword really would have finished me. A thousand thoughts ran through my mind in that split second and I thought I'd never see Holland, Michigan, again."

He threw the officer, who was only a little fellow weighing about a hundred pounds, against the other side of the machine gun hole where the third soldier, Dale Tripp of Iowa, knocked him down with a lusty kick. Zietlow then jumped on the Jap and yelled at Tripp to shoot. Tripp's first shot wounded the Jap, but the pistol was so close to Zietlow's ear that the sergeant thought he himself had been hit.

"The Jap lay moaning there," Zietlow said, "and I told Tripp to shoot him again, this time through the heart. He did and then the Jap was really dead. When we went through his pockets, the one near his heart was full of watch parts, and Tripp who was quite a souvenir hunter was plenty burned up because he wanted the watch intact. After that I passed out."

Zietlow's hands bear many scars, the result of the hand-to-hand fighting.

As for souvenirs, Zietlow sent the Jap sword to his wife and it now is in Muskegon Heights. It is a two-hand sword of superior quality and had six names engraved on it. Zietlow assumed that it was a family heirloom which had been handed down several generations—it "certainly doesn't look like government issue."

The stories about Michigan's famous "lost company" have not been too exaggerated, Zietlow said. His own company was behind the Jap lines for 25 days and the "lost company," Co. I of Grand Rapids, was also behind the lines and was trying to communicate with the company to which Zietlow was attached. The Japs would continually cut the lines or force the company back. It was many days—some say 21—before Co. I rejoined the main body. On Jan. 15, 1942, the 126th infantry pulled out of New Guinea following the Buna victory and returned to Australia for a well-deserved rest.

The Jap soldiers are good, but not so good as the American soldiers, Zietlow opined. They are small and quick and the few six-footers found with the Jap fighters really are not Japs but are Mongolians hired by the Japs. He said Japs will make suicide stands and also commit hari-kari when about to be captured, "but most of them are just as afraid in battle as you or I," he stated.

In speaking of other Holland men in that part of the globe, Zietlow said Lt. Col. Henry Geerts was in Melbourne on active duty the last he heard, and Lt. Homer Lokker was an instructor in an OCS school in Australia. Staff Sgt. Gordon Zuverink and the Glatz brothers, Gerrit and Harry, all were at base section 7, and Sgt. William Verhey was in 118th General hospital ill of malaria the last time Zietlow saw him.

Besides Mrs. Roosevelt, other American celebrities whom Zietlow saw in Australia were Gene Tunney, Ray Bolger, Little Jack Little, Una Merkel, Cary Grant and Phyllis Brooks.

Zietlow's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ellison are residing at 36 West 12th St. He also has two sisters here, Mrs. Paul Pressler, Jr., and Mrs. Robert Ertel. Zietlow joined Co. D, Holland's national guard company, nearly nine years ago.

G.H. Drug Store Is Damaged by Fire

Grand Haven, Jan. 27 (Special)—A small fire in the rear of the basement of the Mulder Drug store, Washington and Second Sts., caused considerable damage by smoke Friday night. The fire apparently was started by spontaneous combustion. The smoke went on up between the partitions into the Eagle's and Odd Fellows lodge rooms and into the building occupied by the National Utilities Co., and in the main floor of the drug store.

The store had been closed at 11 p.m., according to Jack Biehl, employee, and smoke was discovered about 11:05 p.m. by members in the Eagle lodge rooms on the second floor.

No Petitions on File Yet for City Primary Feb. 21

Most of Incumbents
Are Expected to Run
For Office Here Again

Other than the possibility of a contest for the mayor's office, indications today were that Holland's primary election Feb. 21 would be a quiet affair.

With less than two weeks remaining before the 4 p.m. Feb. 7 deadline, no petitions had been filed for candidates for the 11 city offices at stake, City Clerk Oscar Peterson said.

Mayor Geerlings, who is completing four consecutive terms, indicated he probably would seek reelection, although he said he had not definitely made up his mind. The mayor also served two terms as mayor about 40 years ago.

There were reports that labor might consider entering a candidate in the mayoralty contest.

John Gallen, appointed supervisor last July to replace the late Abel Postma as supervisor from Holland, is the only incumbent so far to come out definitely for reelection. None, however, have said they won't run.

Elective officers whose terms expire April 3 include Mayor Geerlings, City Treasurer Henry J. Beckfort and Supervisor Gallen. All are two-year terms; members of the board of public works, Joe Geerds, five-year term, and the following aldermen: L. P. Van Hartesveldt, first ward; John Bontekoe, second ward; Bernard De Pree, third ward; Gordon Streur, fourth ward; Donald Slighter and George Damson, fifth ward, and James H. Klomprens, sixth ward. All are two-year terms, except Slighter who will serve a one-year term.

Beckfort who has served seven years in all, three full terms and one year filling a vacancy, is considering running for reelection.

None of the aldermen would say definitely whether they would seek reelection, although most of them indicated they probably would run again. Van Hartesveldt, Bontekoe, De Pree, Streur all are completing their first terms. Slighter was appointed last August and Klomprens in July. Damson is completing his fourth term in council, having served two terms in the fourth ward and two in the fifth.

Rev. G. Mooers Speaks to Lions

"The service clubs of the nation are today performing a great service by turning out the kind of men who will wisely and surely make the peace tomorrow," the Rev. George E. Mooers told members of the Lions club at their regular meeting Tuesday noon.

"The trouble with the world is just people," he added, "and as soon as the kind of men who think right have a chance to govern, the world will again be sane and free. The war has given us a great opportunity to be real people—may we profit from what we have learned when the time comes for us to use that knowledge." Rev. Mooers was introduced by George Damson.

Charles DuHmeier was introduced to the club as a new member, and Lion Bernard De Pree spoke on the membership drive and announced the new members. Announcement was made of the March of Dimes program to be presented Saturday from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m., and the Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp spoke on the fourth war loan drive.

Rev. Koeppe Tells Club About People of China

Serving Under the Stars and Stripes

Rev. Edwin Koeppe

The Rev. Edwin Koeppe of Holland, who spent nearly 25 years working among the Chinese as a missionary, addressed the Holland Rotary club Thursday noon in the Warm Friend tavern. Speaking from his own wide experience, he entitled his talk, "Let's We Forget" and described the people of China and their habits. He said that his own first impression of the people of China was "we have so much and they have so little."

Delving into the rich history of China, Rev. Koeppe told of "the many things that we owe to the nation and its people" through the use of several illustrations. He remarked further that the discovery of America could be considered an accident in the history of China since Europeans ran upon this hemisphere while hunting the fabulous riches of the east.

He emphasized that relations between the nations of the west and the Asiatic peoples will depend largely on China's attitude toward whites and stated that a Chinaman never forgets a deed whether it is good or bad.

The speaker told of the characteristic of the Chinese that make them difficult for westerners to understand and described the entirely unique interpretation of law held by them. He declared that the Chinese people know the whites through three channels, business, politics and missions and went on to explain how each influences their opinions of Americans and British. Speaking of "a reservoir of good will" that must be built up in China towards the west, Rev. Koeppe cautioned against easy forgetfulness of the debt owed to China by the United States for the long delayed action that has limited Japanese imperialism, and in closing, reminded his audience that any peace founded on anything but Christian principles must surely fail.

Guests at the meeting included William C. Vandenberg Jr. of Muskegon, H. A. Koble of Cape Rapids and A. F. Dencke of Cape Girardeau. Mr. Rev. Marion de Vilder arranged the day's program and announced the showing of the film "War Department Report" at the next meeting.

Furlough Panel In Ration Office

Provided by the Holland Junior Chamber of Commerce, a service men's blackboard has been placed in the rationing office, 25 West Eighth St., for the convenience of local men home on furlough.

The board which is about four feet square can accommodate about 16 names with proper space for home addresses and furlough dates.

Listed on the board Friday were the following names: Corp. Donald C. Bryan, 9 West 13th St.; Aviation Cadet Robert Hamm, 358 Washington Blvd.; Zigmund Gryzbowski, East Saugatuck; Robert E. Egg Driers to Be Big Buyers

Hamilton, Jan. 27.—Buying by egg driers again will be a big factor in stabilizing prices next spring and summer, Andrew G. Lohman of Hamilton, manager of the Hamilton Farm bureau and member of the shell egg industry advisory committee, was advised in Washington where the committee held conferences with the food distribution administration and office of price administration. Lohman reported that Dewey Termohlen federal investigator, had just returned from an inspection trip through the North African war zone. He reported lots of dried eggs had gone bad, the army would need large quantities of dried eggs.

Termohlen found that a few but most shipments had proved so satisfactory the army quartermasters had recommended production of large quantities for 1944 deliveries.

The industry committee suggested, Lohman reported, that the support price for eggs should be placed at a reasonable level to encourage production in the face of increased labor and feed costs.

With feed supplies limited, the committee recommended that farmers cull about 10 per cent of their lowest-producing hens from their flocks to release feed for the good hens.

Lohman said the committee estimated the 1944 production would reach a new all-time high of 60,000,000,000 eggs. It is expected fewer eggs for hatching will be required, due to contraction in broiler production resulting from the feed shortage. The war production board was urged to speed the manufacture of egg cases. The committee estimated between 28,000,000 and 30,000,000 new cases will be needed to handle the big crop.

Club Women and Guests Hear Anti-Nazi Leader

In a lecture dramatic in its implications, Dr. Hans L. Leonhardt, exiled anti-Nazi leader and noted maritime lawyer of the Free City of Danzig, told members of the Woman's Literary club and their guests Tuesday night that no civilization can stand an accumulation of wars like the two world conflicts of this century and declared that a reconsideration of international policy is imperative for the preservation of peace.

Dr. Leonhardt, now professor of history and political science at Michigan State college, developing his subject, "Experiences of the Past and Ideas for the Future," told the poignant story of his early life in "beautiful Dusseldorf," and his later bitter experiences in the Free City of Danzig where he initiated a five-year struggle against the insidious growth of the National Socialist party, finally realizing that his small minority "couldn't fight Hitler." With his English wife and seven-year-old daughter, he fled the "poisoned air" of the Third Reich in 1938.

Speaking out of his background of rich experience, Dr. Leonhardt warned against the disproportionate view that American civilization is the only civilization. "We must raise ourselves over frontier barriers; after the war we must stand with Great Britain and Russia as trustees of a better order," he advised.

"If we follow only self-interest," he predicted, "the victorious union with the other great Allied powers will end in failure. On the other hand, international institutions without power to enforce their commitments, are worse than nothing, the speaker said. 'The strength of our obligations lies in their fulfillment, and that means sacrifice.'"

In closing the speaker stated as his point of view—learned the hard way—that one can't go on living without the belief that "man is here on earth with a duty and opportunity to improve his lot and create a social order superior to the world in which we live. This should be the human goal, which can be achieved if enough people believe sufficiently in it," he declared.

Mrs. John Dethmers, club president, presided, welcoming the large group which crowded the club house auditorium to capacity. The occasion was the club's annual evening guest night. Mrs. E. C. Brooks and Mrs. Paul E. Hinkamp were hostesses.

CHASE OSBORN'S
NEWEST PHASE

A phrase maker even in ripe old age, former Governor Chase S. Osborn has recently achieved a saying that has true wisdom as its base. On the occasion of his eighty-fifth birthday anniversary he was moved to comment on the country's problems, in which he is still as much interested as any younger man.

"People who take more from the table of the earth than they need," he said, "do not always know that they are pigs, but they are." And then came his wisdom-packed phrase: "Socialism will not cure the pig habit."

There has never been a time in our history when there was greater need for giving attention to that thought than now. For we have been drifting into Socialism for years, and right at this moment we are continuing to drift into it. If that trend were open and above-board, it would not be particularly dangerous. At least, if the people of this country decided deliberately that they wanted to have it. Danger lurks in the fact that Socialism is being clamped down on us under pretense that so-called "human rights" are being given precedence over "property rights."

But not deceived. "Socialism will not cure the pig habit." It certainly has not cured the pig habit. The people who are imposing Socialism on us are certainly not less piggy than were those who preceded them. They merely have put on a new camouflage that fools the people into voting for them under the impression that they are benevolent and unselfish. Without the least question, there are benevolent souls among them, sincere idealists who sincerely believe that their "new order" is the antechamber of Utopia. But that has always been true. A movement must be judged by its drift, not by individuals.

We are being told by the men who want to make America over completely that if we will only support their new and untried Socialistic theories, the problems of the world will automatically disappear. On paper they are very persuasive. And even while they are in the act of feathering their own nests, they try to make us believe that butter wouldn't melt in their mouths. "Just scrap the old machine," they plead (but it is the machine that gave us Washington and Jackson and Lincoln and Cleveland), "and everything will be all right."

But this ripely wise former governor of Michigan knows better. Certainly Chase Osborn can never be accused of being reactionary; he was a liberal thinker and doer when most of our present-day disguised Socialists were still wearing diapers. "Socialism will not cure the pig habit," is his comment. The system under which we have been living for more than a century and a half has produced plenty of pigs, and it has plenty of faults that cry out for correction. But people who were pigs under that system will be pigs under another. Michigan's former governor packed a world of wisdom into a single phrase.

THE CHURCH INVITES YOU

Woodrow Wilson said, when discussing the world situation immediately after the former World War, "The sum of the whole matter is this, that our civilization can not survive materially unless it is redeemed spiritually. It can be saved only by being permeated with the spirit of Christ and being made free and happy by the practices which spring out of that spirit. Only thus can discontent be driven out and all the shadows be lifted from the end of the road."

Here is the final challenge to our churches, to our political organizations, and to our capitalists—to every one who fears God or loves his country. Shall we not earnestly cooperate to bring in the new day? Why not accept the invitation and go to church next Sunday?

Is there something more than think, is there more than wish for opportunities, is there more than...

Jesus Uses His Power to Help—
Mark 4:35-41; 5: 35-43
By Henry Geerlings

Christ was still by the Sea of Galilee where he gave utterance to a series of parables. Now we turn to two miracles which, for some reason received Mark's special attention. Always vivid, concise and picturesque, this gospel writer sets these miracles before us in a unique and graphic manner. They are recorded also by Matthew and Luke, but are given more fully by Mark. They bring to our attention the power of Jesus as seen in relation to the perils of a storm-tossed sea and the raising from the dead of a young girl. That the power of Jesus was genuine and all inclusive may be discovered in the varied ways in which it became active. He used it, not to benefit himself, but to benefit others.

Mark connects the departure of Jesus to another region with His exhaustion due to a busy day of preaching to the crowds. These were the most popular months of His entire ministry, and He was so pressed upon by the people needing one kind of assistance or another that He scarcely had time to eat or sleep.

The journey to the eastern shore was made at His own request. Over there he was less likely to be disturbed, for that region was not so densely populated. He thus took advantage of the evening, when many of the people who had listened to Him all day were ready to turn homeward. He did not escape entirely from the crowd, for not a few had been listening to Him from their own boats. No special preparation was made for this journey by way of providing additional clothing, for under the mild skies of Palestine it was no hardship to sleep out-of-doors wrapped in a cloak which was the outer garment by day and the covering by night.

The Sea of Galilee has been known for its great storms which have lashed its waters into a fury. The waves were rolling high and filling the boat occupied by Jesus and His disciples. Though Peter and John and some of the others were sea-hardened, they could not feel seeing that the boat was in grave danger of sinking. Not knowing where else to turn they hastened to the Master and appealed to Him for help. The words of Mark seem to imply reproach, while those of Matthew and Luke vary the idea of direct appeal for help.

When Jesus awoke and beheld the tumultuous waves, he did not show any signs of fear. He was conscious of His power over wind and wave. That He could sleep through the noise of the storm and the tossing of the boat indicates how weary He was. That He needed sleep at all reveals to us the reality of His human nature. His composure was in sharp contrast to the frantic excitement of the twelve. He first calmed the sea and then calmed the disciples. The words "be still" should be translated "be muzzled," which would convey the idea that the swelling sea was like a raging beast. At His word the wind ceased and the waves became calm.

It is easy to see that Jesus' word of death removes the reason of unrestrained sorrow. The child was on the eve of waking so the deep grief did not beset the occasion. We do not wonder they found that view incredible. Their experience was too limited to accept it. He did not mean she was not dead, only He did not view it as death in the light of His power to restore her to health.

Laying His hand on the lifeless hand of the child, He spoke to her and with His word there went the power to accomplish the miracle. His word was heard in the spirit world, and with that word there went the power to obey. There was no lingering recovery. The vigor of radiant, buoyant childhood was hers again. So far as we know here was the first of this kind of miracle the Master performed. It was prophetic of that indestructible life of those who believe in Jesus. It is more than a dreamy wish or a speculative hope that never can satisfy.

SUNDAY DINNER
Suggestions

THE most plentiful menu items on the market today are pork, potatoes, cabbage, eggs, citrus fruits and avocados. Most of these are now so abundant that they fairly clamor to be purchased and eaten, to avoid market-glut and spoilage. All cuts of lamb are available. Veal is decreasing; beef remains about the same. Poultry continues very short.

There is a nice variety of vegetables to choose from, according to the Service for Homemakers. In addition to those mentioned above, broccoli, escarole and cauliflower are plentiful and low in price. The quality of spinach is improving and heavier shipments are due. Better supplies of peas, also, are expected. Receipts of iceberg lettuce have been cut to moderate. Beets, celery, parsnips and sweet potatoes are freely offered.

A fair supply of Eastern apples has come into the market. There are more strawberries and the quality is good; prices still high. Both California and Florida oranges are abundant.

Bearing in mind these aspects of the food market, the following suggestions are offered for the Sunday dinner menu:

- No. 1
Tomato Juice Cocktail
Roast Leg of Lamb
Brown Potatoes
Creamed Spinach
Apple Pie
Coffee
- No. 2

Home Fried Potatoes
Avocado and Citrus Salad
Boston Cream Pie
Coffee or Tea
- No. 3

Spaghetti with Meat Balls
Cauliflower au Gratin

Year's Events Reviewed For Local Century Club

Cornelius Vander Meulen, speaking before members of the Century club at their meeting Monday night in the Warm Friend tavern, characterized the year 1943 as one of significance, a year of "blood, sweat and tears," a year of great planning and earnest striving, which revealed the best and the worst in mankind.

In his talk, "Vignettes of 1943," Mr. Vander Meulen said that history may be told through biographies, and presented a series of sketches from the lives of prominent persons who figured in the news of the past year.

The speaker's recital included a tribute to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as "a good sport," a brief discussion of Wendell Willkie's "best seller," comment on John L. Lewis and his labor triumphs, significance of the celebration of America's Independence Day by King George of England, the increased collaboration between great nations.

Mr. Vander Meulen gave a brief resume of events of the war highlighted by meetings of prominent Allied leaders, and as a final picture, the dramatic appearance before the United States senate of Madame Chiang Kai Shek, whom he characterized as "physically so frail, intellectually so discerning, morally so strong."

Preceding Mr. Vander Meulen's talk, Miss Ruth Ann Poppen, accompanied by Miss Frieda Grote, sang several vocal solos. Both are students at Hope college. Miss Poppen's numbers included "I Heard You Singing," by Coates; "Bells of St. Mary's," Adams; and the encore, "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," Tate.

Deep Planting of Tulips Advised

Florists at Nelis Nurseries, one of Holland's leading nurseries, today urged the gardeners of Holland to practice the policy of deep-planting of tulips for the utmost of enjoyment and the least effort.

Advantages of this kind of planting are less danger of damage from frost, cooler summer storage, less danger of damage from mice and other animals living underground and ability to produce blooms each year without the necessity of digging up the bulbs. Best results are obtained when bulbs are planted 10 to 12 inches deep.

Preparation of the bed is also important, with adequate drainage and loosening of the soil to a depth of at least 18 inches necessary. When the soil is heavy and drainage is poor only trial plantings should be made, and the soil loosened with sand or peat moss.

Nelis Nurseries was established in 1922 and incorporated in 1937. Besides tulips they also handle a complete line of nursery stock, trees, flowering shrubs and evergreens of almost every description. Many other novelty plants are grown, outstanding of which are Lilium Bowmii and Colchicum, from which the drug colicid is now manufactured. An up-to-date line of daffodils is also handled with nearly one hundred of the finest varieties being carried by the company.

"Give Seven to Ten to the Service Men"

They're busy during the day. A few hours each night are about the only time they have to telephone. Wouldn't seem right if a casual call of yours held up a soldier's call back home.

Best way to avoid that is to play safe and not place any Long Distance call between 7 and 10 P. M. unless it is really urgent.

Tonight and every night, "give seven to ten to the service men."

Holland Comes From Behind to Defeat Jackson

Pulls Into Tie at End Of First Half, Goes On To Win, 37 to 27

Coming back slowly but steadily, after the first quarter found them behind, 13-5, the Holland high school cagers rung up their fifth victory of the season over Jackson high school, 37-27, in a game played at Jackson Wednesday night.

At one stage of the first quarter Coach Malcolm Mackay's boys found themselves behind, 9-1, as the Jackson quintet started off hard and fast and clamped on a defense which forced the Holland five to shoot over the opponents' heads.

The second quarter found the tables turned when the locals outscored the Jackson five 13 points to 5 and made the game an 18-12 tie at the half.

In the third canto the Jackson five started moving out to hold down the Dutch longs and it was then the Dutchmen started taking the winning margin by fast breaks and many dog-shots. Holland led at the third quarter, 27-23.

Klompers for Donald Lam in Trinidad Leads Family There to Visit Holland

Few if any local persons have ever entertained guests from Trinidad, British West Indies, but Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Lam, 193 West 22nd St., are having that experience this week as hosts to Mr. and Mrs. Mathys Glerum and their 31-year-old daughter, Martina, of Pointe Fortin, Trinidad.

The Glerums included Holland and the Lam home in their visit to the United States as the result of a friendship with Pfc. Donald A. Lam, son of the Lams, who has been stationed in Trinidad for 21 months. Receipt of a pair of wooden shoes as a Christmas gift in Trinidad in 1942 stamped Pfc. Lam as a Dutchman and when the Glerums, who are originally from the Netherlands, offered to entertain eight or nine American soldiers on New Year's day, Don was selected because of his Dutch connection.

The wooden shoes were given to Mrs. Glerum who wears them while gardening. Although the Glerums speak Dutch and English equally well, there is little of the Netherlands in the British island of Trinidad, and the wooden shoes were a pleasant reminder of the native land they had left 17 years ago. Mr. Glerum is chief draftsman for the British division of the Royal Dutch Shell Co. and the family spent 12 years in Venezuela before going to Trinidad five years ago.

The Glerums have a daughter, Rikste, 18 next month, who is attending Boston university. There are two adopted daughters, 34-year-old Martina and Marilyn Jacoba, who was born Dec. 30, 1909, in Holland, the Glerums will go to Los Angeles, Calif., where Mr. Glerum will consult on business matters and then will return to Boston and pick up the new baby in Canada.

Mr. Glerum who is granted a three-month leave every three years by the petroleum company which employs him has taken his family to the United States on two other occasions. On the present leave and the previous one three years ago, the family was unable to go to the Netherlands because of the invasion. On another leave they visited the United States en route to Europe.

The families of both Mr. and Mrs. Glerum reside in the Netherlands, but no news has been received from their parents since that country's downfall. Mrs. Glerum has an aunt in Boston.

The Glerums flew from Trinidad to Florida arriving Dec. 10 and have been traveling in the United States by train. After visiting in Los Angeles and Boston they will return to Miami and fly back to Trinidad, the "Land of the Humming Bird." These birds which boast 18 species are more plentiful than any other kind.

Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Tenpas returned last Thursday from Clymer, New York, where they were called the previous week because of the serious illness of the former's mother. The latter is recovering from her illness.

Pfc. Earl Bolks, stationed at Seymour Johnson Field in North Carolina was a recent visitor in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Bolks.

The Kings' Daughters' Missionary group of First Reformed church met in regular session last Tuesday evening in the church parlors. Gertrude Boeriger, the recently elected president, was in charge, and Mildred Lubbers, the vice president, assisted by Margaret Lampen, presented a playlet "The Army visits our Mission Work." The constitution of the society was discussed by Esther Bartels and an original poem, composed by a friend of the group, was read by Blanche Rigerink. Mrs. N. Rozeboom favored with a reading and Yvonne Bartels played a piano selection. Plans were discussed to send a box of books and literature to the Brexton School in Alabama. Five new members were added to the roll. Miss Esther Bartels is the newly elected secretary and Pearl Bartels, the treasurer.
