2-19-1992

The Anchor, Volume 104.17: February 19, 1992

Hope College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.hope.edu/anchor_1992

Part of the Library and Information Science Commons

Recommended Citation

This News Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Anchor: 1990-1999 at Digital Commons @ Hope College. It has been accepted for inclusion in Anchor: 1992 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Hope College. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@hope.edu.
Pledging-Fantasia conflict creates dilemma for Greeks

by Heather Mumby

Staff writer

Two of Hope College's biggest events are coming up in the next couple of weeks. The Greeks' pledging process begins Feb. 21 and runs through Mar. 7. Right in the middle of that, Feb. 28, is Winter Fantasia, the Social Activites Committee's (SAC) annual winter formal.

"SAC seems to be getting the blame for this conflict when it's really not our fault," said Anne Bakker-Gras, SAC coordinator.

The Amway Grand Hotel only makes certain dates available to SAC for them to hold Fantasia. SAC usually likes to schedule in August. The pledging coordinator was aware of this scheduled date before they planned their pledging schedule.

This conflict creates a dilemma for those who are involved or are getting involved with the Greek organizations. Pledges must decide whether or not they want to take the chance of missing a pledge event to go to Fantasia.

"Some people may not have planned on pledging...and made plans to go to Fantasia. Then they got a bid and they have to make a choice.

--Tracy Piasceki

"Some people may not have planned on pledging while they were rushing and made plans to go to Fantasia. Then they got a bid and they have to make a choice," said Tracy Piasceki '92, president of Delta Phi.

The Greek organizations seem to have mixed feelings on the subject. Some feel that pledges should be able to go if they want; others think that they shouldn't. Overall, the Greeks strongly discourage pledging conflicts.

But according to Greta Hausereng '93, president of Alpha Gamma Phi, "We're not cruel, evil monsters who make them do everything we want.

Most people involved don't think there's a major problem with the conflict. Winter Fantasia is an annual event. If you don't go one year, some Greeks say, you can go the next.

"People can go to Fantasia any year. If I was a pledge, it wouldn't even be an option because I'd be so wrapped up in pledging," said Hausereng.

"The best we can do is avoid a conflict in the future is what we did this year: schedule early," said Bakker-Gras.

Haley's legacy not forgotten

by Cynthia Tanty

Campus editor

Alex Haley's untimely death has shocked many.

Haley suffered a heart attack Sunday evening, February 9, and was admitted to Swedish Hospital in Seattle, Washington. He passed away early Monday morning, having lived 70 years. Just ten days after sharing his life with us, "it was like losing a friend," said Chaplain Mary Newbem-Williams. "You'd just met him but you felt like you'd known him for a long time. But I also feel very grateful that our campus had an opportunity to be in his presence," continued Newbem-Williams.

Jon McDonald, artist and Kendall School of Art and Design professor, is working on a portrait of Haley to be included in a touring exhibit focusing on the achievements of successful African-Americans.

Said McDonald, "Even though he's gone, his work is still here. That's what we have of him.

--Staff writer

"We've had so many speakers over the years, but he had such an effect. It strikes so close to home even though we only met once.

Haley was born in Litcha, New York, and grew up in the west Tennessee town of Henning. He said he was inspired to become a writer by the story-telling of his older relatives.

Commented Newbem-Williams, "His presence to us on campus was a gift of grace from God. He shared his life, a life of linking us together.

--Mary Newbem-Williams

Off-campus policy made simpler

by Jill Flanagan

News editor

its that time again.

Hope students will be receiving their housing packets this week, complete with a few changes from last year.

According to Director of Residence Life, Derek Emerson, one of the biggest changes has come in the college's off-campus policy.

Students will now be required to have 75 credits completed by the March 12 housing deadline. For the past several years, students only needed 70 credits to gain off-campus permission.

For students who have completed the required credits, permission is pretty much automatic.

There is another new twist for people with fewer than 75 credits who hope to get off campus. A committee, rather than individuals, will now decide whether or not to grant permission.

According to Emerson, exceptions are commonly requested for financial and medical purposes, as well as a host of other reasons. New in the housing booklet are outlines for students applying for exceptions.

Said Emerson, "An exception will be granted if it is legitimate. People take advantage of the system so others who really deserve it have to go through more.

For both off-campus and commuter students, there is yet another change. False information may result in termination of the student's financial aid—even for freshman students, such as professors' children.

Said Emerson, "We are aware that some students will claim commuter status and live off-campus and we find these students through out the summer and students get their first choices.

Students also frequently wonder about their chances of keeping a double room or getting a roommate. Said Emerson, "Chances are that you'll get a roommate and you can't pay to keep a room single. I'd encourage students who want to try and get a Vowers single.

According to Emerson, all students should complete the back of the housing cards. Said Emerson, "We often can't get our waiting lists through out the summer and students get their first choices.

Students also frequently wonder about their chances of keeping a double room or getting a roommate. Said Emerson, "Chances are that you'll get a roommate and you can't pay to keep a room single. I'd encourage students who want to try and get a Vowers single.

According to Emerson, all students should complete the back of the housing cards. Said Emerson, "We often can't get our waiting lists through out the summer and students get their first choices.

Students also frequently wonder about their chances of keeping a double room or getting a roommate. Said Emerson, "Chances are that you'll get a roommate and you can't pay to keep a room single. I'd encourage students who want to try and get a Vowers single.

According to Emerson, all students should complete the back of the housing cards. Said Emerson, "We often can't get our waiting lists through out the summer and students get their first choices.

Students also frequently wonder about their chances of keeping a double room or getting a roommate. Said Emerson, "Chances are that you'll get a roommate and you can't pay to keep a room single. I'd encourage students who want to try and get a Vowers single.
Bush to launch campaign focusing on health care and the economy

WASHINGTON (AP) President Bush will focus on the themes of health care and ways to revitalize the nation's sluggish economy when he formally launches his campaign today.

The second summit, on Dec. 30, was overshadowed by bickering between Russia and Ukraine over the Black Sea fleet.

Many people in the former Soviet Union still wonder if they are going to pick up the pieces together again in something resembling a country, with a single economy.

He announced an end to the "time-honored tradition of rewarding friends and overlooking enemies." We do not do and will not promise jobs or special favors," Candidate Jones said reportedly.

The practices of Gov. Jones have diferente from what he was preaching of Candidate Jones. In the two months since he took office, there have been a half-dozen or so instances of jobs or special favors extended to friends and contributors.

The irony is that these instances probably would have been given scant attention if they had not set a precedent for special scrutiny. By setting a different standard for himself than previous governors, Jones has invited study of his hiring practices.

The second summit, on Dec. 30, was overshadowed by bickering between Russia and Ukraine over the Black Sea fleet.

Many people in the former Soviet Union still wonder if they are going to pick up the pieces together again in something resembling a country, with a single economy.
Bush proposes restructuring of Federal student aid

WASHINGTON - President Bush unveiled a budget proposal Tuesday for reorganizing federal student aid that would increase the maximum Pell Grant but finance its cost by removing about 4 million students from the program.

The president's fiscal 1993 Education Department budget would boost Pell Grant funds from $1.1 billion to $1.3 billion, the maximum grant from $2,400 to $3,700 a year for the neediest students. But the president was careful to note the increase by reducing the number of Pell Grants and slashing other financial aid programs.

Bush's budget would provide no new funds for the college work-study program and Incentive Grants and would cut college work-study funds by $160 million, forcing colleges and universities to increase their contributions to the program, the government provides 70 percent of work-study salaries; the proposed budget would cut that amount to 50 percent.

President Bush's fiscal 1993 budget confirms for the fourth consecutive year that he is "an education president," said Tajel Shuja, director of the United States Student Association (USWA), a lobbying group in Washington.

Bush criticized the White House for restructing access to Pell Grants during a recession.

"With 30 states in budget crises and record-high tuition increases, these proposals would wash financial aid and force many students out of postsecondary education," she said.

In presenting the budget on Jan. 29, Education Secretary Lamar Alexander said the plan reflected unprecedented federal support for education. Even with the restructuring, he said, the budget proposes a 17 percent increase in student aid. "The president's budget priority is education," Alexander said.

Of the $2 billion in new money for student aid, about $1.1 billion would come through higher subsidies for Guaranteed Student Loan programs. The Education Department said it expects a 50 percent increase in loan volume this year, and the department also would raise the loan limits on several GSL programs.

The administration also proposed to increase eligibility for Pell Grants by $417 million for TRIO programs that offer pre-college help to disadvantaged students, a six percent increase from current funding. Similar to last year's budget, the administration proposed a consolidation of four TRIO programs under a new state formula grant for Pre-college College Access.

The Bush budget now goes to the House and Senate, where lawmakers will begin work on education spending bills for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Bush proposed several new measures to combat loan defaults. One plan would force states to provide 70 percent of work-study salaries; the proposed budget would cut that amount to 50 percent.

President Bush's fiscal 1993 budget confirms for the fourth consecutive year that he is "an education president," said Tajel Shuja, director of the United States Student Association (USWA), a lobbying group in Washington.

Bush criticized the White House for restructing access to Pell Grants during a recession.

"With 30 states in budget crises and record-high tuition increases, these proposals would wash financial aid and force many students out of postsecondary education," she said.

In presenting the budget on Jan. 29, Education Secretary Lamar Alexander said the plan reflected unprecedented federal support for education. Even with the restructuring, he said, the budget proposes a 17 percent increase in student aid. "The president's budget priority is education," Alexander said.

Of the $2 billion in new money for student aid, about $1.1 billion would come through higher subsidies for Guaranteed Student Loan programs. The Education Department said it expects a 50 percent increase in loan volume this year, and the department also would raise the loan limits on several GSL programs.

The administration also proposed to increase eligibility for Pell Grants by $417 million for TRIO programs that offer pre-college help to disadvantaged students, a six percent increase from current funding. Similar to last year's budget, the administration proposed a consolidation of four TRIO programs under a new state formula grant for Pre-college College Access.

The Bush budget now goes to the House and Senate, where lawmakers will begin work on education spending bills for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

Records suggest Tyson has little hope of suspended sentence

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) Convicted rapist Mike Tyson is eligible for a suspended sentence because he's a first-time offender and used a deadly weapon or seriously injured his victim.

"But I can tell you right now it'll be a cold day in hell before that happens," says Indianapolis defense lawyer Monica Pointer.

Until Tyson returns to court March 27 maybe it's anybody's guess how much time the former heavyweight champion will serve.

So far, those who talk don't know. And the one person who may know Marion Superior Court Judge Herbert Rudman, Tyson's presiding judge.

Among the voices Tyson will listen to in deciding the sentence, 18-year-old Desiree Washington's will ring the clearest.

Washington testified during the trial that Tyson, 25, coaxed her to his hotel room July 19 during the Miss America contest, then overpowerd her. She said he blamed her for the test before receiving their certificates.

But the former head of a panel that advised the Michigan Department of Education on creation of the tests says the exams themselves are fraught with problems.

"They should not pay to aid the contractor to eventually assist us," he said.

"I don't know why the leaching profession is doing this. If it's a step toward recovery for Washington says the exams' timing may keep some students from graduating on time.

"It doesn't require that they take a test," said Sen. John Schwartz, R-Battle Creek.

"They want to know all of our subject matter a year in advance. It doesn't make any sense," said Kelly McCann of Bloomfield Hills, a junior at Michigan State University.

Members of the House and Senate appropriation subcommittees on education said they were deeply concerned about the requirement for this year, but insisted the tests are here to stay.

"You are going to have to understand that the Legislature is going to require that they take a test," said Sen. John Schwartz, R-Battle Creek.

Rep. James O'Neill, D-Grand Rapids, said the tests may not guarantee better teachers, but can be an indication of performance like bar exams for lawyers.

"Don't know why the teaching profession should be treated differently from other professions," he said.

A 1986 law requires that students pass a basic skills test and separate exams in each subject they wish to teach prior to student teaching. The Great Grant but finance it is part by removing 400,000 students from the program.

The students have been given no study guides for the exam.

"We are clueless," she said, adding students are not prepared for the test. "Currently, we wanted to have a fair chance at being prepared.

Since students won't get exam results in time to retake the test before student teaching in the fall, some may end up unprepared to teach when it's offered," he said.

Sen. Dan DeCrew, R-Port Huron, said lawmakers will waive the requirement that tests be taken prior to student teaching this year. Students still would be required to pass the test before receiving their certificates.

But the former head of a panel that advised the Michigan Department of Education on creation of the tests said the exams themselves are fraught with problems.

"They should not pay to aid the contractor to eventually assist us," he said.

"I don't know why the leaching profession is doing this. If it's a step toward recovery for Washington says the exams' timing may keep some students from graduating on time.

"It doesn't make any sense," said Kelly McCann of Bloomfield Hills, a junior at Michigan State University.

Members of the House and Senate appropriation subcommittees on education said they were deeply concerned about the requirement for this year, but insisted the tests are here to stay.

"You are going to have to understand that the Legislature is going to require that they take a test," said Sen. John Schwartz, R-Battle Creek.

Rep. James O'Neill, D-Grand Rapids, said the tests may not guarantee better teachers, but can be an indication of performance like bar exams for lawyers.

"Don't know why the teaching profession should be treated differently from other professions," he said.

A 1986 law requires that students pass a basic skills test and separate exams in each subject they wish to teach prior to student teaching. The Great Grant but finance it is part by removing 400,000 students from the program.

The students have been given no study guides for the exam.

"We are clueless," she said, adding students are not prepared for the test. "Currently, we wanted to have a
A cappella group gives powerful performance

by Erica Brubaker
features editor

The Albert McNeil Jubilee Singers gave a wonderful performance to about 300 faculty, students and community members at Dimnent Auditorium this evening. Their presentation will feature the two organs in the main hall and the choir in the balcony, with a presentation of the organ's history and the sounds of the spiritual, "I want Jesus to Walk with Me." The selection featured "Ellingtonia," which featured the sounds of the late Duke Ellington. Many times the audience was moved to clap along with the rhythm or even to stand up and exclaim "Amen!"

The group sang in the traditional a cappella style (no accompaniment) arrangements made famous by the Fisk Jubilee Singers. That group of seven men and four women sang to Queen Victoria at the court of St. James in 1869. That was the first time the world learned of Negro spirituals.

Amen Havemann ('92), said, "I think they have really dynamic, spiritually upbeat songs." It kind of reminds me of going to a Christian rock concert. It's neat that people can get up and clap and really get into it.

The next event in the Great Performance Series will be Dawn Kotsok, a soprano who will sing on Tuesday, March 10, at Evergreen Commons at 8 p.m.

Winter Happening to feature Soviet students, Hope professors

by Cynthia Brubaker
campus editor

Winter Happening was a success on campus last week, with strong attendance. The event featured several Russian student groups and was a great chance for students to learn about Russian culture and music. The selection ranged from the light and airy tones of the spiritual, "I want Jesus to Walk with Me." to the swinging of a melody called "Ellingtonia," which featured the sounds of the late Duke Ellington. Many times the audience was moved to clap along with the rhythm or even to stand up and exclaim "Amen!"

THE ALBERT MCNEIL JUBILEE SINGERS wowed crowds with a performance including Negro spirituals to folk songs. The group sang in the traditional a cappella style to the delight of the audience.

Student Congress discusses smoking

by Cindy Krep
staff writer

The issue of smoking in residence halls has been brought up in Student Congress. The issue was raised when many students have complained that they can no longer smoke in dorm rooms in order to be close to other students who do not smoke.

According to Tom Werkman, President of Student Congress ('92), smokers are "furious with the idea of banning smoking in the rooms and in the Kletz." He said, "I think people who have problems with smoking should be allowed to smoke on the same dorm—have their own-smoke-free dorm." Westra was surprised that this issue has even been brought up. One smoker said, "I don't think anyone has the right to tell me whether or not I can smoke in my own room... I think you should be able to do what you want in your own territory." The student is shocked that there are very few places to smoke here because other universities have more areas. The student added that, "it's a concern or bother to anyone I would try to work it out." Students who feel strongly on this issue should contact their representative or write a letter to Student Congress. Also, students may express their feelings on this issue at the Student Congress meetings on Sundays at 7:00 p.m. in the Masa Conference Room.

A suggestion came up about having a dorm or floor where smoking is allowed. However, there are not enough students who smoke to fill one.

Mike Nowlin, an R.A. ('93), commented that "as long as people can keep their doors closed and open their window, it's not such a big deal." Nowlin added "if they ban it, they would almost have to have some place where people can go and smoke... I think it's pretty much an individual right."

According to Eric Westra, a member of Student Congress ('93), smokers are "famous with the idea of banning smoking in the rooms and in the Kletz." He said, "I think people who have problems with smoking should be allowed to smoke on the same dorm—have their own-smoke-free dorm." Westra was surprised that this issue has even been brought up. One smoker said, "I don't think anyone has the right to tell me whether or not I can smoke in my own room... I think you should be able to do what you want in your own territory." The student is shocked that there are very few places to smoke here because other universities have more areas. The student added that, "it's a concern or bother to anyone I would try to work it out."

Students who feel strongly on this issue should contact their representative or write a letter to Student Congress. Also, students may express their feelings on this issue at the Student Congress meetings on Sundays at 7:00 p.m. in the Masa Conference Room.

Student Congress discusses smoking
Some students feel that Scibilia should be considered to fill Bruins' vacany. The administration, however, points out that Bruins's and Scibilia's areas of specialty are different.

Said Nyenhuis, "Dr. Scibilia has brought a special quality here and we are grateful for that. We were pleased to get him for one year."

Nyenhuis also said, "At some point in the future, we might say we would be pleased to appoint someone in the Roman Catholic tradition."

Scibilia is not being considered for Bruin's position.

Nyenhuis further explained that, in accordance with college policies, guidelines for replacing Bruins were established before the search began.

Said Nyenhuis, "The policies we are operating with have been worked out with the faculty and with the trustees. These are general policies and procedures that have been accepted."

Jacoba Nyenhuis

Outstanding gospel groups featured in Hope College's annual gospel festival

by Erika Brubaker

features editor

The Hope College Black Coalition: in celebration of African American history, presented "Lift Every Voice and Sing!" their annual gospel festival on Saturday, Feb. 15 in Dimnent Chapel.

The festival brought together outstanding gospel groups from across the state of Michigan.

Groups from other colleges and universities, such as the Michigan State University Gospel Choir (of East Lansing), Western Michigan University's Voices of WMU (of Kalamazoo) made exceptional performances.

Hope's own Hope College Gospel Choir had its own. Groups from churches in Detroit and Muskegon, like the Mt. Pleasant Missionary Baptist Church Mass Choir, the New Liberty Missionary Baptist Church Mass Choir, and the Holy Trinity Mass Choir gave superior performances as well. The fest also featured All For Christ, Ms. Vicki Boyd, and the Hope College Sign Language Choir.

The festival included a tribute to James Weldon Johnson, the writer of the black national anthem, "Lift Every Voice and Sing."

The Hope College Gospel Choir dedicated their pieces to the memory of Dr. Alex Haley. Hope's own Rev. Dr. Mary Newburn-Williams provided the congregation with prayers. Various members of the Black Coalition read the Scriptures, encased the event, and worked with the other participants of the Festival to ensure that the event flowed smoothly.

The audience was moved at many times to actively participate in the service. The crowd, that was good-sized in spite of rivaling the Hope-Calvin game for time-slots on this Saturday afternoon, stood clapped and swayed, and, at times, even sang along with the various choirs.

The fest, of three hours in length, enabled Hope College students and faculty, as well as community members, to experience a glimpse of another culture.

Women's Week packed

by Sudi Greicar

staff writer

The eighth annual Women's Week is being held on campus from February 17-28. Women's Week is now becoming a tradition as it started in 1985. Posada Green, Director of Special Events, said "Women's Week was started to recognize women and their contributions but also as a celebration of women. Every year we've seen it gotten bigger and we add more programs."

There are a variety of open sponsored events that are coordinated by various ac-

CAMPUS

College recruitment policy sparks controversy

by Jill Flanagan

news editor

When religion professor Elton Bruins retires at the end of this year, he will be sorely missed.

While the college will replace Bruins with someone who has a background in church history, the administration also hopes to find someone with similar ties to the Reformed Church in America.

This hiring directive has upset some students.

Provost Jacob Nyenhuis said that although this is not the general policy for faculty recruitment, the administration feels it is justified in this case.

Said Nyenhuis, "We will lose a person...who is recognized as a leader within the denomination over an extended period of time. With the retirement of Dr. Bruins, only Professor Voskuil would come close to fitting this description."

Nyenhuis explains that Bruin's successor does not have to be theologically Reformed but should be "rooted in and recognized within the RCA."

The administration believes that this is justified given the 125-year-old ties of the college to the RCA and the college's stated goal to maintain and strengthen ties with the RCA.

Part of the students' anger is due to the one-year appointment of Dr. Dominic Scibilia while Voskuil is a Sabbatical.

"The policies we're operating with have been worked out with the faculty and with the trustees. These are general policies and procedures that have been accepted."

Jacobs Nyenhuis

Businesses give students real-life lessons

Holland businesses help students learn practical lessons. Hope College accounting students are being given a chance to see how their classroom lessons relate to real-life practices.

More than 100 Hope students, enrolled in Principles of Managerial Accounting, will be visiting at least one of seven Holland industries before mid-February.

Dance 18 tickets available for March Performance

The Hope College department of dance will sponsor its annual concert, Dance 18, from Thursday through Saturday, March 5-7, in the DeVitt Center main theatre. Curtain time for all performances is 7 p.m.

Tickets for Dance 18 will be available from the Hope ticket office beginning Monday, February 24, and cost $4 for senior citizens, $5 for all others and $3 for students.

Graduate to speak on corporate training

The Hope chapter of the IABC (International Association of Business Communicators) is sponsoring a speech by Tracy Bockhmeier Brewer ('89). Brewer graduated with an English Communication composite major and began working part-time at the Donnelly Corporation. She is now working full-time in the training department and will be speaking on "Getting Started in Corporate Training."

This lecture will be held Thursday, Feb. 27 from 3:30 to 5:00 in Van Zoonen 135 and will serve as a communication colloquium alternative.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Faculty/Alumni duo-piano recital scheduled

Robert Knuth, an adjunct assistant professor of Music at Hope, and Arlene Wannem, Hope College graduate, will perform in a faculty/alumni duo-recital at Hope College on Friday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. in Wichers Auditorium of Nykerk Hall of Music.

The public is invited. Admission is free.

The program will include works by J.S. Bach, Robert Schumann, Johannes Brahms, Dmitri Shostakovich, Muzio Clementi, Norman Dello-Joio, Darius Milhaud and Julia Smith.

The Kraft and Wannem duo was formed in the fall of 1989, when the two were invited to perform at the MMA State Convention in Traverse City. Since then they have presented a number of programs in Western Michigan.
Elderly woman wandering around Centennial Model student takes on Good Samaritan role since no one was around and the lady did not disoriented, so Davidson approached her library and there was this little old lady who in need last Thursday as she was walking home to her apartment. Davidson saw an suspicious cars. We finally got used to that, because at the end you find yourself being suspicious of everybody. And that's when you tell yourself...if they are going to kill me, they will kill me. If they are going to arrest me, they will arrest me…" "What would make me happy, if I was to be gunned down or arrested, is knowing I could die having made my voice. The only weapon I have left is my voice and I am in the battlefield. I am using my voice. Other people have killed without saying a word. Most of the people that have died are suspects. We finally got used to that, because at the end you find yourself being suspicious of everybody. And that's when you tell yourself...if they are going to kill me, they will kill me. If they are going to arrest me, they will arrest me…"

Amnesty International raises awareness features editor by Erika Brushak

Amnesty International is a group of people working worldwide to stop the unfair treatment of all political prisoners of conscience and the end of torture, executions, and all other human rights violations. One of the main catch-phrases of the group is "Write a letter, save a life." The group at Hope has at least one letter write-a-thon per semester, usually with pretty good turnout. Elizabeth Borz (92), last semester's leader of Hope's chapter of AUUSA, explained that "Human rights day is on December 10. We have this write-a-thon that day, if possible...we've gotten really good response from that." The group at Hope write letters to an average of two prisoners per week. Bos explained: "We write letters every week, usually on behalf of one or two people. Otherwise, kind of an umbrella letter which involves anywhere from twenty to one hundred people, who we obviously don't mention by name." Bos said: "Amnesty makes you more aware of the things that go on in the rest of the world and in our own country. It's not political, it's not religious, it's just a particular mindset. We're all human beings. It's not excluding anyone. It's a very simple concept, actually." Bos continued, saying that "It's important to develop a sense of a different world view while in college, or it will be lost in the 'real world.' We need to acknowledge it as something really important and hopefully it will last past two years." "Amnesty allows me to reach out beyond the Hope College Community, and have an impact on someone's life. Not a bad way to spend one hour a week," said Kirsten Strand (92). Two years ago, the group had an "Amnesty Day," where students presented statistics, information, petitions, ad membership forms. This wall coincided with the coming down of the Berlin Wall. David Deshais (93), co-leader of this semester's Amnesty group on campus, said: "As new leaders of Amnesty, we'd like to continue to bring awareness of human rights issues closer to the campus and Holland community."

Model student takes on Good Samaritan role by Stephen D. Kaukonen

"It's something that is really no big deal, but it is really important. . . . That's what life is all about." - Cathy Davidson

In stepped Sherlock Davidson, mystery sleuth extraordinaire, who asked the lady to look through her purse for an address or at least a clue as to her residency. "She had just come from doing a paper in the library, there was this little old lady who looked kind of cold, and didn't look like she knew where she was going, but [as if] she was looking for something." Davidson noticed that a few students passed the woman. The woman looked cold and disoriented, so Davidson approached her and asked if she could come inside the library. The lady said she was looking for her daughter, but Davidson figured she was lost, since it was 24 degrees out. She didn't know exactly why she was supposed to meet her daughter or where she was supposed to go. "I just felt bad for her," Davidson said. "She had just come from 24th Street to Eighth Street and had not gotten used to her new address."

Since the lady had no coat to wear, Davidson gave her the lady's own coat and walked her to the address. Outside of the retirement home, the lady still did not recognize whether or not this was where she lived and Davidson was about ready to get up on being a detective. But Davidson didn't give up, and walked the lady to the home, to an address board or similar clues as to where she lived. "So I brought her farther in, and there was this little information booth and there were three or four older ladies sitting there saying, 'Oh, Leticia where have you been?'" As it turned out, the elderly woman who Davidson helped out had a different apartment that morning but had gotten lost when she went out looking for her daughter. The woman's daughter had been worried and was very grateful to Davidson for helping her find her way back home. But throughout all the ordeal, the heroine remained quite modest. "It's just part of being a Christian. If Jesus were walking down the street he would have done the same thing," Davidson said. "I was also thinking to myself, 'If I ever get old and lose it, I want to be someone like that comes along, because you just hear too many bizarre stories of old ladies being raped.' I'm just really thankful that I happened to be there when she happened to get lost." Davidson downplayed her heroine, but emphasized that being a Good Samaritan is important. "It's something that is really no big deal, but it is really important. It's something that you want people to say, 'Oh, what a good person you are,' it's just something you kind of do. That's what life is all about."

Although Davidson believes that what she did was nothing out of the ordinary, in the eyes of an 89-year-old lady and her daughter, she will always be an extraordinary hero.
Hey, Hope College
have you been practicing your free throws?
Why, you ask?
Well, read the rules and regulations for the Pistons/Pepsi/Phelps (CDS) contest and find out why.

Rules and Regulations
All students entering the dining hall at Phelps on the night of February 20, 1992 will receive a Food Ala Card game piece. Please follow the instructions on the card.

1) Anyone winning a "SPECIAL," Congratulations!! You are on your way to the February 27 Piston game at the Palace of Auburn Hills! You must bring your ticket to the Emcee immediately.
2) Any Food prize winners can redeem their ticket at the Kletz after 6:00 p.m.. any Monday through Friday. Tickets expire March 12, 1992.
3) Any "Beverage" winner, redeem your ticket with the Emcee down front for Pepsi products.
4) All losing ticket holders, don't lose hope. Legibly print your name on the back of your ticket and deposit it in one of the second chance drawing boxes in the Dining Hall. We will draw names to shoot baskets for a chance to win more Piston tickets.
5) You must be on a valid meal plan to participate in the contest.
6) You must be present to win.
7) Listen for other basketball contest announced throughout the evening

List of Prizes
1) Ten-First prize trips to the Feb. 27 Piston game.
2) Nine-Second chance trips to the Feb. 27 Piston game.
3) Sandwich, Dessert, and Fries prizes to redeem at the Kletz.
4) One Sony Walkman cassette player.
5) Ten Kletz cards—a $10 value.
6) Various food prizes.
Hope loses to top ranked Calvin

by Cal Hodgson
sports editor

Can you say "robbed" boys and girls? I can. ROBBED! ROBBED! ROBBED!

Anyway, back to my unbiased reporting.

Out in the hall, before the game, I spoke with former Hope hoops star
"Hey Cal. What's going on?" he replied.

It's a good thing we didn't have this conversation inside the Civic Center gym, because we wouldn't have been able to hear one another. It was deafening.

Well, there are still 30 minutes to tipoff. Let's fast forward shall we. WhizzzzzzZ.

Ah, here we are. Tip off.

Calvin drew first blood with a bucket by Steve Hondred ('93). Hope responded with a drive by Tom Halbert ('92).

The early going was tense as both teams had more nerves than a bum tooth. Calvin connected on two free throws, then Doug Mescar ('93) knocked down two for Hope.

Mark Lodewyk ('93) then got a tippy tee "I hope I don't hurt my pinky" dunk to go down. Hondred followed with a jumper to make it 10-6 Calvin.

A three point play by Colly Carlson narrowed the lead to one, but a hoop by Hondred pushed the lead back to 12-9 for Calvin.

Then Wade Gugino ('92) came into the game.

Gugino was getting mugged in the lane by Calvin. In fact there were seven police officers ready to take away the five Knights on the floor, but wouldn't call a foul to stop the game.

Regardless, Gugino broke free from the convicts to throw down a one handed "I'm sorry, is someone hanging on me? I didn't notice" jam.

Mike LeFebre ('92) followed with a two for Calvin, and Chris Knoester ('94) added three more. The offenses continued inside on Gugino, but he muscled in another to bring into 17-13 for Calvin.

Knoester got a steal and bucket to put the Knights lead back at six. Hope couldn't seem to hit the close ones for a while. Like amuse smelling the cheese right next to him but not able to partake because of a muzzle covering it's mouth. (Nice analogy eh?)

Meanwhile, Brian Westra ('93) put in two for Calvin.

Bart Verholst ('92) hit a free throw line to make the score 21-15 for the Knights.

Lodewyk scored again, and Hondred got hurt.

With Hondred out, Gugino was asking for the ball more than ever. He would have filed a written application for it if he had the lime. Finally, they got him the ball but not able to partake because of a muzzle covering it's mouth. (Nice analogy eh?)

Gugino cut the lead to seven with a three, and the Knights had a 38-29 lead.

After a time out, Kevin Westrain ('93) hit a basket for Hope, and Hondred retaliated with a drive. Gugino cut the lead to seven with a turn around "Is there defense on me? I don't know." shot.

Then came a crucial play. Hope played great defense, not allowing Calvin to shoot. Knoester finally put up a prayer as the shot clock expired. Or had the shot clock already reached zero? You make the call.

On the next possession, Gugino cut the lead to seven with a turn around "Is there defense on me? I don't know." shot. Lodewyk got a stuff that was O.K. fora Calvin player, and Knoester broke free for a lay in. LeFebre hit another three, and the Knights had a 43-32 lead.

A time out followed, and Hope made a crucial play. Calvin got out of bounds, and Knoester was directing the offense. Calvin was now using all five players and it's coach Ed Douma to guard him.

Lodewyk got a stuff that was O.K. fora Calvin player, and Knoester broke free for a lay in. LeFebre hit another three, and the Knights had an 8-2 lead.

After a time out, Kevin Westrain ('93) hit a basket for Hope, and Hondred retaliated with a drive. Gugino cut the lead to seven with a turn around "Is there defense on me? I don't know." shot.

Then came a crucial play. Hope played great defense, not allowing Calvin to shoot. Knoester finally put up a prayer as the shot clock expired. Or had the shot clock already reached zero? You make the call.

Oh no you don't! You might screw it up. I'll make the call. The shot clock had run out and it should have been Hope's ball.

As a result, no call was made. Lodewyk got the rebound and scored. Hendrickson drove and scored two for Hope. LeFebre responded for the Knights with two free throws with 17 seconds remaining.

Jeff DeMasse ('93) hit one free throw after being fouled with three seconds remaining to end the first half scoring at 44-36 for Calvin.

Gugino dominated the first twenty minutes with 18 points. Wade's World! Excellent! Party on!

In case you don't have your rivalry mother
ping

Wade Gugino attempts to guard against Calvin's inside game (left). Tom Halbert searches over the head of Calvin defender Chris Knoester ('94) for a cutting Dutchman (below).

Play stops after Honderd received a painful eye injury (left). After the game only remnants of the crowd remain as people leave with anticipation of the next meeting of the Dutch and the Knights (below).

Tom Halbert skies above Calvin center Steve Honderd ('93) for two (left).
Dilemma over ticket sales creates animosity toward system

Sold Out. These two words greeted many students as they entered the building. The early sell-out has made many students upset over the lack of seating at the game.

One has to wonder why a college basketball team with a 1993 season that may be read and summarized in many newspapers and magazines as a season of success would receive such criticism. The students are upset over the lack of seating at the game. The early sell-out has made many students upset over the lack of seating at the game. The students are upset over the lack of seating at the game.

Dear Eugene\n
I got up from bed at 1:35 p.m. because something happened in my "Hereditary and Evolution" class. Dr. \-- made a few announcements regarding scientific articles that may be read and summarized for extra credit. He then held up a copy of the book, The Beginning Was the End, by the German doctor Ott\n
But with this event in the past, Hope students can do little but complain and hold Jane Holman to her word. She not realize this may have been the last Hope-Calvin basketball game some students would be able to attend? She not realize this may have been the last Hope-Calvin basketball game some students would be able to attend? She not realize this may have been the last Hope-Calvin basketball game some students would be able to attend?

The early sell-out has made many students upset over the lack of seating at the game. The students are upset over the lack of seating at the game. The students are upset over the lack of seating at the game. The students are upset over the lack of seating at the game.

Letters to the editors
Professor's remarks provoke embittered response

Dear Eugene:\n
I got up from bed at 1:35 p.m. because something happened in my "Hereditary and Evolution" class. Dr. \-- made a few announcements regarding scientific articles that may be read and summarized for extra credit. He then held up a copy of the book, The Beginning Was the End, by the German doctor Otto Fiss Maem. Maath asserted that millions of years ago, apes each other's brains, which gave them intelligence. Then they ate each other's brains again, and got smarter and smarter until they were men. After denouncing the book (without reading its contents) and provoking the class to laugh at it, he called it garbage, and threw it down. Well I had to have a good laugh too. It was after all the most prepos\n
What are our values? What are our beliefs? Who do we want to become? What direction do we want to go with our lives? These are questions faced by young adults today. Some of us take the time to examine ourselves and make conscious decisions about the answers. Of course, no one has to stick with a decision indefinitely. Because of free will and the freedoms we have here in America, we have the right to change our values, beliefs, and directions for any reason we choose. In fact, it's healthy to keep open the option of change because of our changing society and circumstances. Because we are the sum of all of our experiences, we also change a little bit every day.

What makes me sad is the people who never take the time to consciously answer these questions. They simply follow the model of their friends or their parents or society as a whole. Of course, choosing not to make a decision is a choice we all have, but isn't it sad that so many people sit passively by and don't even realize they've made the choice? Most of us are very lucky to have been blessed with the mental ability to gather options, think critically, and make sound personal decisions based on concrete evidence—or even on simple gut-level feelings. We are also lucky to have the freedom to articulate and live by our own values and beliefs.

Recently I was reminded of how passionately I have been living my life and was challenged to make my own decisions and form my own values based on my personal beliefs. I was also challenged to act on these beliefs because I have the right as an American citizen, a child of God and a human being to do this. In fact, it's my responsibility. I have the power to help change society.

was also shown that I have been given many gifts, and it's up to me to decide what to do with them. I can accept or reject them, I can open them or close them and I can throw them or hide them under a basket and keep them for myself.

The reason I'm sharing this with you is that I want to also challenge you to make conscious decisions about your values and beliefs and about what you choose to do with your own gifts. This can mean taking time to contemplate faith and religion or making personal decisions about morality and ethics. It can also mean standing up to authority when you feel your values and beliefs are in conflict with their decisions. You have the choice. You have the voice. Now what are you going to do with them?

Jennifer Bigler 1993

Student challenges others to answer life's questions

I have been learning about my life and was challenged to make my own decisions and form my own values based on my personal beliefs. I was also challenged to act on these beliefs because I have the right as an American citizen, a child of God and a human being to do this. In fact, it's my responsibility. I have the power to help change society. I
Cal's Ratings

After tonsing back five pitchers (plus a couple of bottles of red wine, a can of beer, and a three cans of Inger art I felt terrifyingly good, and Percival to triumphantly ride the waves. Cal is a surfer, with all the necessary accoutrements: carrying a giant kitchen knife, an oar, a pair of sunglasses, and a bottle of suntan lotion.

The final pretentious, with various guitars and frilly coverings. Thy schooldays frightful, as was the fashion, and I heard Budweiser offered to sponsor the gathering of the Hkeley Omega. Now that the Winter Olympics are underway, Cal became interested in Olympic coverage, and we quickly learned the Olympic theme song: "Where is Perkins?," the life of a small town. No, I don't mean the glory or the fame, but the simple pleasures of life.

The Olympics have been a big topic for the last few weeks. Everyone seems to be talking about them. I heard that some people are even planning to travel to see the games. I don't know about that, but I am planning to stay home and read some books about the Olympics. I have always been a great fan of the Winter Olympics, and I am looking forward to seeing some of the exciting events.

Getting back to the neighborhood, I still wish I could visit more often. The neighborhood is a wonderful place, but I have been busy with my college graduation. Yes, youth is a wonderful time. Their four-year cycle of living is a reality that everyone must face. Their four-year cycle of living is a reality that everyone must face.

I have been busy with my college graduation. Yes, youth is a wonderful time. Their four-year cycle of living is a reality that everyone must face.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

That is what is going on in the world today. The world is in a state of flux, and we are all trying to find our place in it. The world is a big place, and there are many different cultures and ways of living. It is important for us to learn about these different cultures and ways of living.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.

The fire ritual, "I said, 'So be it.' Neitzsche would say, we're never a self that can be defined. Therefore, we have no self that can be defined.
Powerful performances carry Brecht play

by Matt Boys

The Caucasian Chalk Circle, a play by Bertolt Brecht, produced by the Hope College theatre department, opened this weekend in the DeVos Center.

The play tells two stories eventually weaving into each other. The first involves a woman who, at the risk of her own life, secretly adopts the child of a hated and, more significantly, beheaded governor. The second story follows Azad, the classic Brechtian hero, a judge, a drinker, a thinker and a just lover of injustice. Especially when it comes to blackmailing the rich and giving to the poor. Brecht, being no stranger to war (he fled Germany when he was 17), would be familiar with the way a large number of topics can be discussed in one play.

The theatre department should be commended in this production. It was a bold choice, Brecht himself saw the potential in the play, and they resisted the temptation to edit the casual profanity associated with Brecht. But of significant importance was this production's incorporation of two major changes from the first German version. The original has a prologue in it which starts not in Persia but in WWII Nazi Germany on a communist farm. Brecht intended to make the production a play within a play, having the German communists farmers act out the ancient play.

The prologue was cut, perhaps for purposes of time constraints. However, this is not without precedent. Brecht himself ordered the prologue cut in the original version because it was scheduled to be printed at the same time as his appearance before the infamous Un-American Activities Committee in 1947. Cleverly deducing that a Marxist farm was not what the anti-communist committee would relish reading about, Brecht put the intended opening in some years later.

The second major alteration in the play is changing the female role of Ludvica, originally intended opening in some years later.

nantly intended for a woman, to a man. Ludovia, Reversing the gender, perhaps for Women's Week, the play now includes a rich man who is found guilty of reducing a poor woman, instead of vice versa. Whether Brecht would agree with this change or not we cannot know for certain.

Holy Soldier stays on track with latest release, Last Train

by Bill VanZandt
guest reviewer

Ever since the release of Holy Soldier's outstanding self-titled debut album in early 1990 many fans of Christian metal have eagerly awaited their second project, Now, Last Train is here.

This five-man band from southern California has undergone some personnel changes since the release of their debut album. Lead singer Steven Patrick, wishing to spend more time with his wife and newborn child did not tour with the band. However, when his replacement Eric Wayne left the band after the tour, Patrick was persuaded to return. Guitarist Michael Cutting left to form his own band, he was replaced by Scott Slocum.

The band is rounded out by original members Jamie Cramer on guitar, bass player Andy Robbins and drums on drums.

Holy Soldier has overcome these changes to record an excellent sophomore effort.

According to drummer, Terry Russell, the new project is a "louder, more reckless" one than Holy Soldier. The producer, solo artist and former Bloodgood guitarist David Zaffiro, encouraged them to take this approach.

Indeed there is a somewhat rawer feel to Last Train as opposed to the slickly produced, flashy style of Soldier's debut. What hasn't changed, though, is quality.

Another packaged "in your face" metal awakens the listener. Robbins' bass playing is superb, though not given as much prominence as on their first release. Patrick's vocals, though at some time amusing, are a distinctive element of the band's sound; it's good to have him back.

Overall this is another superior project from Soldier. Lyrically, themes range from drunk driving or the loss of a parent to the inner struggles between good and evil, with a love song and a bitter apocalyptic vision thrown in for good measure.

The album includes "Crazy Friend," a catchy song about a broken relationship, with the band's introduction mainstays to摇曳 popularity if there is any justice in the world.

The standouts are "Fairway Friend," a sassy little tune about a sensational journalist; "Dead End Drive," an intense rocker with great guitar licks and a furious Terry Russell drum solo; and, oddly enough, a cover of the Rolling Stones' "Gimme Shelter."

The only weak song on the album is "Tuesday Morning," the lament of a child dealing with the loss of his mother. This song is touching, but Patrick's whining vocal is a bit too shrill and painful.

Minor criticism aside, Last Train is an excellent introduction to Holy Soldier for the uninitiated. For a Diehard Soldier fan, this is the one you've been waiting the past two years for. Enjoy!

Japanese animation matches technology with human heart and makes for big questions

by Matt Boys

Japanimation: biomorphic robots, red-headed barbarians, cloned, giant machine fish, and just about everything a disturbed child could hope to watch. Here children are presented, but metaphorically mindboggling in ramifications. Robot Carnival combines eight animated cartoon strips from Japan to create...create...something. It's like Saturday cartoons gone bad with mass electronic barbarism of both families and society. The same exact moment, whether the producers know it or not, the film asks disturbing questions. If a computer can think like a person, can it act like a human, and feel like a person—a proposition that sounds fantastic, but let us not forget the ever expanding boundaries of technology. Can a human love it? Notary or grow attached to it, but a computer—a love of metal, circuitry and electronics that can display emotion. The mathematician, scientist, and philosopher A.M. Turing indicated that not only could humans love machines, but that machines could. If Turing's work is pursued to its furthest extent, love humans: "When a computer can monitor its own programs so as to achieve some purpose more effectively," he who can say, with absolute certainty, that a computer cannot some day be capable of love. All these questions arise in the third animation clip "Pygmalion," which is about a lonely inventor who falls in love with an android. More significantly, Robot Carnival opens science fiction novel makes the grade

by R.G. Blair

guest reviewer

The summary on the back of the book suggests that the reader is about to enter another story about alternate dimensions, with the added bonus of being a hard science fiction novel.

Hard science fiction more often than not uses real science as a crutch to gloss over the details. Readers then find themselves swimming in data that they do not need to know to understand the story. Twister pleasantly surprises the reader by it's true focus and it's treatment of the real science it utilizes.

The story revolves around a research project at the University of Washington. Dr. John Cramer Jr. expertly blends true hard science fiction with science fiction to create something altogether unique and wonderful. Cramer's novel is a great example of a hard science fiction novel.

The story follows the double trail of Dr. David as he is catapulted into a "shadow" universe along with the children of his best friend, Dr. Paul Ernst, and Vickie as the enlists help to recover David and stay alive. Dr. John Cramer Jr. excellently blends true science fiction with imagination. He did not do it well enough, however, to merit the small section at the end of the book that pointed out what was and was not true science. His use of hard science is technical enough to merit the label of hard science fiction, but he seamlessly merges the real science with the plot of the story so that one is not overwhelmed.

The "shadow" universe is not depicted as an alternate reality, and, in fact, is shown to be closely linked by true physical means as our own universe. He does not, however, describe the "shadow" universe with much detail. The focus of the novel could have keyed more on the difference between the universes. This, however, belies to a sequel which Cramer alludes to in the end notes of the book.

Along with Cramer's fresh ideas on different dimensions, he also brings a slighty new viewpoint of the computer hacker. Vickie's younger brother William is an ex-hacker. He is staying with his sister so that he can remain reformed. Cramer depicts the computer hacker as a junkie, someone who cannot control his actions with computers. This view is to berefreshing if it is to resemble the typical depiction of computer hackers as noble heroes.

Science fiction novel makes the grade
THE CAUCASIAN CHALK CIRCLE

BY BERTOLT BRECHT

February 14, 15, 19, 20, 21, 22, 1992
8:00 p.m.

HOPE COLLEGE THEATRE
DEWITT CENTER

12th Street at Columbia Avenue • Holland, MI 49423
Ticket Office Phone 394-7890
Muskegon, MI, Cheryl Becker ('92) of North Johnson ('94) and Steve Kaukenon f 92), John Nowak ('94), Steve Cross Country runners returning for a little co- captain Mark Bonnel ('93), and co-captain returning letterwinners are Phil Cratty ('93), seniors to this relatively young team. Other from Spring Lake, MI and Mike Zoetewey of winter. (Hope outscored Kalamazoo62 to21 they had to rely on their own talent the rest of } 14, their biggest of the game.

"hit" is such a violent word to use for such a serene event as a leather ball sliding through another J, this one surpassing even the first in its beauty and style.

"Here I come to save the day!" Not.曼

"I was freaking charged! But more importantly, how did it feel for the players to win. Carlton - Awesome! We spanked!"

MAYER'S WIN MAKES HISTORY Hope women triumph for first MIAA win

by Cal Hodgson sports editor

2 Legit. 2 Legit 2 Quit. On the two month anniversary of Hope's last win, the women's basketball team scored the Hornets of Kalamazoo at the Dow center.

It was a day of 38's. Kalamazoo scored 38 points. Hope won by 38. Hope scored 2 times 38. Kalamazoo lost by 38, and Lauze, former canoe TV star, would have been 38 that's 266 in dog years! Shelly Visser ('93) fired up Hope's engine with a 2 to give the Dutch the first lead.

"Kalamazoo hit a long two to tie up, "Kalamazoo players will be referred to henceforth only by their numbers since their names are long and complicated and you probably don't care any way."

"No. 12 scored. 'No. 12 had a school record 36 points against Hope in their last meeting when K-Zoo won by 22.

Another long J from 'No. 12 puts the Hornets up 6-2. with a basket off a lob from Jamie Crone ('91). Sarah Hackett ('92) changed the oil with a rainbow J to tie the game at 6. Visser wiped the windshield with a lay up of a long lead pass. Crooks put air in the tires with a steal and a hoop. The Hope machine was ready to roll. The stingers kept in the game though a couple of tough buckets. A score by Amy Alverson ('92) off a lob from Nikki Mannes ('95) put Hope on top 11-10. K-Zoo hit a bucket to grab the lead back, but Carlton snatched it for the Dutch with a bucket of her own. "Uh oh! The Hornets hit a free throw and a three pointer to take a three point lead, 17-14, their biggest of the game. Fortunately, that is the last of the three wishes K-Zoo had in their magic lamp, and they had to rely on their own talent the rest of the way. (Hope outscored Kalamazoo 62 to 21 from here.)

Carlson hit a three and then another Coach Mark Northius

Sports Briefs

MENS SWIMMING
Hope defeated Kalamazoo 124-107, Grand Valley 129-97, Calvin 114-102, and Adrian 80-44. They are now 6-1 overall and 4-1 in the MIAA.

WOMENS SWIMMING
Hope lost to Kalamazoo 121-119. They defeated Alma 113-90, Wheaton 125-101, and Albion 126-113. Their record is 5-2 overall and 51 in the MIAA.

Hope will host the MIAA championships for men's and Women's swimming on Feb. 20-22 at the Dow Center.

MENS BASKETBALL

WOMENS BASKETBALL
Hope lost to Concordia 65-58. Kristen Carlson('95) led, with 10 points for the Dutch. Hope lost to Alma 77-68, Amy Alverson('92) had 11 points and 11 rebounds. Hope lost to Calvin 77-47. Jamie Crooks('93) led scoring with 14 points.

Track Team full of youth, promise for spring season

by John Nowak guest writer

Spring 1992. It's that time of year again, and spring is approaching fast for Hope's Spring Athletic teams. However, a couple of the teams that will be competing this spring are already having practice deep in the heart of winter. These are the men's and women's track teams. Each one is full of promise and youth for the upcoming season and future.

On the men's team, Matt Buys ('92) from Grand Junction, Ohio, and Mike Thune ('92) from Spring Lake, MI and Mike Zoetewey ('92) of Bellaire, CA are the returning seniors to this relatively young team. Other returning letterwinners are Phil Cratty ('93), co-captain Michael Tonnell ('93), and co-captain Cody Ingles ('93). This team also has many Cross Country runners returning for a little speed on the track, Jason Elmore ('93), Jim Forrey ('94), John Nowak ('94), Steve Johnson ('94) and Steve Kaukenon ('92), and Ingles.

The women's team has many newcomers, and like the men's team, is relatively young. Senior Beth Tremble ('92) of Muskegon, MI, Cheryl Becker ('92) of North Muskegon, MI and Michelle Brown ('92) of Hope's first meet is on Saturday, March 21st at the Marshall University Invitational.
Health tips from the Health Clinic

Self-care for a sore throat: When your throat is red and sore, there are ways to help relieve pain quickly.

While few sores are serious, you should also know when your sore throat means you should call the health center. Then you’ll be able to use self-care with confidence.

Facts about sore throats: When your throat is sore, stop smoking or straining the voice. If your throat is sore, stop smoking at once. If your throat is sore, stop smoking at once.

Several things might happen:

• Develop a go-ahead: self-care goal is to feel less pain and to avoid smoking or straining the voice.

• Self-care for a sore throat: When your throat is sore, stop smoking at once. If your throat is sore, stop smoking at once.

Drinking plenty of liquids—at least 6 glasses per day. Gargling with warm salt water every hour or two offers temporary relief. Sucking on cough drops or lemonade or taking aspirin or aspirin substitutes will lessen pain from a sore throat, and an antihistamine will stop irritating mucus from dripping. If possible, stay in environments where allergens are filtered out.

Call or come to the Health Clinic if:

• Your temperature is 102 degrees F or higher

• You have white spots on your tongue

• Breathing or swallowing is difficult

• Redness and nodes in your neck are hard, tender or swollen

• You have a skin rash

• You recently were exposed to strep

If your throat is sore, stop smoking at least until the redness and pain disappear.

BBall Continued from photostory pocket calculator hands, Gugino scored 18 of Hope’s first half’s total.

No way! Hwaayy!

The second half started with three points from LeFebere. (The guy shot 17 percent from the floor last season. Gimme a break.)

No matter: Gugino’s ‘that’s Mister Gugino if you’ve ever seen Mister Gugino” was fouled on a free throw. Seconds later he poured in two more on a break by DeMasse.

Halbert tacked a free throw after being fouled to bring Hope with in 47-42. Lefebre hit yet another three for Calvin. Someone get my gun.

Verholst couldn’t and Carlston got a lay in. Gugino (pronounced ‘move-it’) produced two more unstoppable points and Hope was down only two, 50-48. Halbert scored on a drive to jack the lead back to four.

Halbert hit a shot from behind the arc and signaled a touchdown for himself. Unfortunately, the officials would not award him the six points and he had to settle for three.

At this point, Carlson and Hondred could tell the fans were scared so they fell on top of each other and started to wrestle. The referees broke up the match before any three counts were recorded.

When play resumed, DeMasse took the ball coast to coast and was fouled in the act of shooting. One free one tied the game at 52-52.

Loderovykh a free throw. Yawn.

Verholt received a back pass and hit it. The shot hit a foul line and hope up by three! The crowd got rather loud. (If you calling shots on the speakers at a Gunks and Roses concert “rather loud” that is.)

DeMasse hit a three! Other journalists reminded me that I should not be laughing press box and not to cheer. Forget that! I was stunned!!!

Ryan Stevens (94) scored on a back pass for Calvin. DeMasse came right back with a rebound and an on the mark jumper to keep the lead at six.

Hondred wished in a jump shot and converted a point play after being fouled on a lay up.

Carlson hit one charity toss after being fouled by Hondred to make the score 62-60 for Hope.

Then Knoester got a steal and a lay up to knot things at 62. Knoester added a three pointer (at least it wasn’t LeFebere) to give the lead to the Calvin.

Gugino was accorded once again and nailed two free throws.

Harrison hit both off the drive. Halbert hit a keener in the lane. Harrison hit one of two free throws. Halbert guided gin all Calvin team on his way to another bucket.

12 points and scored. (I wrote down number 12 but just realized that the Knicks don’t have a number 12. Who cares? He’s from Calvin right?)

Verholst and DeMasse drilled both free throws like a bad cavity.

The score was 72-70 for Calvin with 1:30 remaining when Gugino fouled Hondred on half court, C’on Mondred, MESS!!! Unfortunately Mondred is 24th in the nation in foul shooting at 86%.

There were obvious benefits to informational interviewing: practical advice, employment contacts, interview experience with minimum risk, and a perspective on your own career decision making.

Sample questions include:

• What are the most interesting aspects of the job?
• What is a typical day like?
• What kinds of problems do you handle?
• What are some of the challenges your department or organization is facing?
• How long does it take to move from one step to the next in this career path?
• What is the best way for me to get started in this field?

• What did you do before you entered this occupation?
• How does your college help you in the most?
• What does the future look like in terms of this career?

Can you offer names of other people in this field I may contact for further information?

Career notes: informational interviewing

• Informational interviewing is an effective method for uncovering the “hidden” 75 to 80% of the job market.

• The purpose of an informational interview is to expand your knowledge about a particular field by talking to people who are actually doing that work.

• Most people are more than willing to share their knowledge and experience with you if you understand correctly what you want and how they can help.

An informational interview is not an employment interview. Your objectives in an informational interview are to:

• get advice on how to move into your field of interest

• obtain useful information regarding your area of interest

• develop contacts in your field

• discover job opportunities and leads

Seek out people who currently are in positions which interest you. Prepare in advance specific questions regarding qualifications, position responsibilities, training programs, career paths and methods for entering the field.

As a skilled informational interviewer, you should not only seek information and advice, but also relate how your background, skills and potential would be useful to the employer.

If you have impressed the employer, several things might happen:

• He may ask you to turn the interview around and probe for more specifics about your background.

• The employer might ask for your resume to the appropriate manager in the department or organization is facing?

• The employer might extend an invitation for an employment interview.

Follow up the conversation with a thank-you letter. To expand your informational interviewing list, always request the names of other organizations and persons you might contact for similar career-related information.

There are obvious benefits to informational interviewing: practical advice, employment contacts, interview experience with minimum risk, and a perspective on your own career decision making.

Several things might happen:

• You might discover job opportunities and leads

• You might develop contacts in your field

• You might obtain useful information regarding your area of interest

• You might self-care goal is to feel less pain and to avoid smoking or straining the voice.

Drinking plenty of liquids—at least 6 glasses per day. Gargling with warm salt water every hour or two offers temporary relief. Sucking on cough drops or lemonade or taking aspirin or aspirin substitutes will lessen pain from a sore throat, and an antihistamine will stop irritating mucus from dripping. If possible, stay in environments where allergens are filtered out.

Call or come to the Health Clinic if:

• Your temperature is 102 degrees F or higher

• You have white spots on your tonsils

• Breathing or swallowing is difficult

• Redness and nodes in your neck are hard, tender or swollen

• You have a skin rash

• You recently were exposed to strep

If your throat is sore, stop smoking at least until the redness and pain disappear.

MEMBERS OF THE ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES GROUP are willing to pick up styrofoam waste products, such as packaging materials, and transport them to the styrofoam recycling center of the City of Hope. Whenever you need to dispose of styrofoam packaging materials, please call one of the following, and we will make sure your styrofoam is collected.

Call 875-7739 after 7:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday, or Saturdays a.m.
innocent people, people that have never said a thing about the South African government and the policies they have implemented.

"The strategy that the South African government is using right now is to kill blacks as much as possible...how does one explain a situation in which commuters (are) on a train coming into work...[and] gunfire just get into the train coach, and they open fire...then people die in hundreds."

"My call right now is to the international structures that are willing to stand by the freedom fighters in South Africa. I call to justice before peace. People are calling for peace, which is good, but they cannot have peace without justice. People cannot have peace if they are still holding grudges.

"What does justice require? I think this is the most important thing. Whenever I go to churches, I hear people speaking of justice, and maybe some people don’t know what justice requires. It requires action. It could be through petition...you can have lots and lots of money, but without justice. People cannot have peace if they are still holding grudges.

"And our president...says that he is reforming apartheid. He has only been in two years in Parliament, and over four thousand people have died...that is an increase that has never been seen."

"I say call to justice. Structures that are willing to stand by the freedom fighters in South Africa. I say call to justice."

Continued from page 6

Many of the people killed in shootings were made by assassins are not activists. Children are killed at their schools; pregnant women are gunned down outside their homes. We would have mass funerals. We would have people taking political platforms and making speeches because they are angry.

"The government called into exile those who were active against it. I said, ‘No, I’m not going that way. I’m going to remain in the belly of the beast and fight.’ Not with a gun, but with my voice and helping those who cannot help themselves...I find myself in the middle of the thing, and having direct confrontation with the enemy...it has gone so far that I have forgotten my voice and helping those who cannot help themselves..."

"I cannot be silenced."

"We work with Amnesty International in London. I have contact with most of them. They would phone in and just get information about some people...they need to write letters, petitions, and all of that...The Amnesty here at Hope have called me."

"You will find that there is hope...Mandela’s case is different. There is so much focus on it. There were many others who were in the trial...very little has been said about those people, and how they are coping, morally and financially...that is something that we need to talk about."

In 1989, a group of women decided to defy the restrictions that had been placed upon them. These women, who were under house arrest, went to meetings in the early mornings. Since their houses were checked every morning at 9 a.m., they were discovered and arrested. Some took their young children with them to jail.

"Many of the people killed in shootings were made by assassins are not activists. Children are killed at their schools; pregnant women are gunned down outside their homes. We would have mass funerals. We would have people taking political platforms and making speeches because they are angry.

"The government called into exile those who were active against it. I said, ‘No, I’m not going that way. I’m going to remain in the belly of the beast and fight.’ Not with a gun, but with my voice and helping those who cannot help themselves...I find myself in the middle of the thing, and having direct confrontation with the enemy...it has gone so far that I have forgotten my voice and helping those who cannot help themselves..."

"I cannot be silenced."

"We work with Amnesty International in London. I have contact with most of them. They would phone in and just get information about some people...they need to write letters, petitions, and all of that...The Amnesty here at Hope have called me.

Notice to all Communication Majors
The Colloquium for this Thursday has had the time changed from 7 p.m. to 6 p.m.
Please make note of this.

Bring Hope into your home

Through stunning, full-color photography, Hope College: Then and Now provides a glimpse into a year in the life of Hope, from campus scenes and the first days of classes, to traditions like Christmas Vespers and graduation. The contemporary images are complemented by black and white photographs from the Joint Archives of Holland that survey the college’s first 125 years.

This popular, limited edition book is available through the Hope-Geneva Bookstore on the Hope College campus for $39.95.

Amnesty
Continued from page 6

handmade by natives of Guatemala and other South American countries. Bos commented that "The profit went mostly to Amnesty International, so we can function as a group. This last sale we had money left over to help out with postage and other expenses."

Bos said that "The Guatemalan sale this year and last year have involved petition-writing, too. This is to try to raise awareness. Two years ago, we wrote on two different cases in Guatemala. People looked at the products...and were able to look at specific examples of human rights going on in that country." Bos elaborated. "There are some organizations in Guatemala that are demanding money for secondary schools. Three of their leaders, also students, were killed. We wrote letters expressing concern for the situation and for the safety for the other members of the group, and to ask for an investigation of the situation."

Amnesty groups, the one at Hope writes letters as its main project. While some local AlUSAs write letters for the of cause only one prisoner until he was released, campus groups tend to write softly what is called "Urgent Action" letters, directed toward prisoners worldwide. The reason, according to Bos, is that "it is hard for a college group: we don’t meet all year long and we are not as consistent as a city group; there is a high turnover rate of members."

The group has been in existence since an international group since the ‘60s. In fact, Amnesty International celebrated its 30th anniversary in 1991. Hope’s chapter has been active for the past three years. The group on campus meets Monday nights in the Baker room (inside Phelps, on the Maas side) at 9:00 p.m.

CONGRATULATIONS
To the winners of the Creative Dating Contest

Grand Prize: Jennifer Kush
First Prize: Kym Kicket
Second Prize: Michael Swift

Grand: Most fun...This one could be creatively altered for holland...for those who live near O’Hare, Detroit Metro, or any other bustling urban airport with international flights: dress up as tourists and wander around the airport with bewildered looks on your faces, stopping passers by to ask them questions from your (borrowed—it’s cheaper) tourist guide.

First: Cheapest entry...total cost $02

Due to the length of some of the entries, we will be unable to print the top 10. If you wish to see all of the entries, contact Fonda in Student Development.