LOCAL ITEMS.

THE snow is about four feet deep—in some places.

THE harvesting of ice is still progressing. The quality of the crop is very fair.

THE frost made some wonderfully beautiful pictures on our office windows this week.

PROF. BANGS has removed to San Francisco, Cal., with his family, and is engaged in mercantile pursuits.

ANDREW FLINTSTRA, of Grand Haven, was shaking hands with his old friends in this city last Wednesday.

IT is rumored that Ed. J. Harrington and Fred Metz have bought a two-thirds interest in the steamer Macatawa.

THE railroad officials are debating the advisability of putting their cars on runners. There is certainly enough snow.

ELDER CLAPPER is holding revival meetings in the first story of the Grand-west building on the corner of Seventh and River streets.

THE Keystone and Phoenix planing mills started up last Monday. The musical hum from these two institutions is rather pleasant to hear.

WE learn that Mr. W. J. Scott has leased his hotel in the First Ward to Mr. Wm. Swift, baggage man at this station. Will make a good landlord.

WE understand that Mac Walker says that he will commence work on his contract for lowering the pumps of our system of water works as soon as the weather will permit.

MANAGER F. E. COOLIDGE, of the roller rink, left last Saturday night for a visit with friends in Detroit. Financial difficulties in this city was the cause. Mr. C. L. Waring, manager of the hall, will run the rink during the absence of Coolidge.

PLEASANT weather this week with the thermometer playing around "nothing" all the time. Then the intervals in which the gentle zephyrs hurried the beautiful in your face, down your back, and up over the tops of your boots added much to the enjoyment of the season. Let her hurl.

NOTHING will do more to induce good entertainments to visit this city than to give them a good patronage when they do come. Such a one is the "Cerry Gow" Comedy next Tuesday evening,—and as the price of tickets is placed at 35 cents the lovers of a good show should fill the house.

ALL levers of a fine comedy should see Mr. Murphy in "The Kerry Gow" next Tuesday evening at Lyceum Hall. We would not have had an opportunity of seeing this entertainment here had it not been that they made the date to break a long jump between Ionia and Michigan City. After playing in Michigan City this same company plays one week in Louisville, Ky.

THE Gospel services held in Hope church are increasing in interest and attendance. They will be continued every night next week except Saturday. They begin at 7:30 and last one hour. The singing, led by H. V. Peeke, of the college, is an attractive and impressive feature. To do good and to receive good are the objects of the meetings. All are invited to be present.

A TWELVE year old boy of J. Dykstra came near being killed by a large dog last Monday. The boy was going down River street and was attacked by the brute which bit the boy in the leg and threw him down and then grabbed him by the neck shaking him. The dog would have undoubtedly killed the lad if he had not been beaten and made to loose his hold. The boy was taken to the drug store of Dr. Wm. Van Putten who dressed the wounds. The dog was promptly shot.

THE "Dutch Local," the freight train running between Allegan and Pentwater, met with an accident at Fillmore last Tuesday morning. The forward trucks of a flat car, loaded with lumber, broke and let the car down on the track and smashed up the car in pretty bad shape. With a great deal of hard work the train men succeeded in getting the train to this station, where the "wrecking crew" promptly disposed of the damaged car. The mail train from Allegan was delayed two hours in consequence.

DRY wood taken at this office in exchange for the News.

BUSINESS is at a standstill and our merchants are keeping close to the fire.

PROF. T. ROMEYN BECK, who has been ill for some weeks past, is slowly improving.

THE next social of Grace Episcopal Church will be held at the residence of Dr. R. B. Best on Friday evening next. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

EDITOR Holmes, of Fennville, looked in upon us Thursday. John said that he was very busy. This cold weather gave him extra work—carrying in wood and water.

MR. D'EGERY, the popular Piano Tuner of Grand Rapids, was in this city on Thursday and tuned the Piano in Lyceum Hall, for special use at the "Kerry Gow" entertainment.

MARRIED—At residence of bride's parents, 388 Van Buren Street, Milwaukee, on Thursday, January 29th, 1885, at one o'clock, Bertie C. Geerlings to J. Marion Doesburg, of Ashland. Wedding private. No cards.

TICKETS to all parts of the house for the "Kerry Gow" entertainment will be 35 cents with no extra charge for reserves, which will be on sale at Breymann's commencing Monday morning. It costs no more to reserve a good seat in advance, than to buy a poorer one at the door.

LAST Thursday, the day set apart as a day of prayer for Colleges, was duly observed at Hope College in the College Chapel. Prof. G. J. Kellen delivered an interesting address to the students. Dr. Chas. Scott, president of the institution, read some very interesting statistics and facts in which he stated that the Y. M. C. A. of the College had forty members.

J. R. KLEYN is adding some very substantial and large improvements to his planing mill, the Keystone, which will increase the capacity of the mill and add much to his facilities for turning out work. He will build a dry kiln and a large warehouse for the storage of lumber. He also intends enlarging the mill and will add considerable new machinery. Mr. KleyN tells us that hereafter he will keep the mill running regularly.

THE Grand Haven business men are actively engaged in looking up industries to take the place of the fast disappearing pine. They are more especially engaged in an endeavor to establish a tannery in their midst. Although Holland has no pine, it has a good farming country around it, and enough industries to keep all active. With this state of affairs should not our business men follow the example of their Grand Haven brethren and seek to enlarge our industries. We have more reason, with our better facilities, to expect greater results from such a combined effort, than our neighboring city. Let our people up and to work.

AMONG the prosperous enterprises of this place is the Holland City Marble Works, heretofore owned by De Merrel & Bertsch, but now owned by Richard N. De Merrell. This establishment has, during the past season, not only controlled the entire trade of this locality, but has a very extensive trade in our sister cities and towns as Grand Haven, Muskegon, Newaygo, and towns in that locality. We understand the prospects for the coming season are good, and De Merrel hopes to give employment to several men during the season. His building on Eighth street is awaiting the plastering which will be done as soon as the weather will permit and will then be occupied permanently as a shop and show room. As to work, De Merrell has no superior in Western Michigan, and his business has had a rapid growth in consequence.

MR. AND MRS. R. VERNEKLAMEN, of Zealand—a son.

EX-MAYOR I. Cappon is reported at this writing as being again prostrated and is quite ill.

M. KRUIENGA, father of John Kruienga, died last Wednesday afternoon, aged sixty-five years.

THE masquerade at the rink last night was a success. A large number of maskers and skaters were present and it was a very enjoyable affair.

MR. H. BOONE, our city liveryman, furnishes the horse that is to be used on the stage in the blacksmith scene of the "Kerry Gow" entertainment, Tuesday evening.

J. W. SQUIRES, late traveling passenger agent of the Chicago and West Mich. R'y. is now holding a similar position on the Illinois Central, with headquarters at Grand Rapids.

LIST of letters remaining in the post-office at Holland, Mich., Jan. 29, 1885: Peter Boyle, James Dowd, John I. Van Dorn, Henry Goodin and Miss Polens Oscar.

WM. VERBERE, P. M.

AN official time-table, with the rules and regulations governing employees of the Chicago and West Michigan railway has been issued, together with a new and improved railroad map, showing the road, its branches and connections. Important changes have been made in the rules and regulations, and the signals printed therein are made to agree with the established code of uniform signals.

DYNAMITERS are creating a great sensation in England. On last Saturday an alarming explosion occurred near the House of Lords. No one was killed outright, but several women and children were injured and one policeman was quite seriously injured. Vigorous efforts are being put forth to discover the perpetrators of the act which endangered the lives of so many innocent people. The clues thus far obtained point strongly to women as the guilty parties.

LAST Saturday night brakeman J. C. Richar, of the freight train running between this city and Big Rapids, had a miraculous escape from instant death. He was sent forward on the train as they were entering this station to watch the signals, and in stepping from one car to another, slipped and fell between the cars and either bounded or rolled from beneath the moving train, between the forward and rear truck of the car from which he fell. Jumping up he caught on the caboose and sat down in it completely prostrated, but not hurt to any extent.

LAST Sunday morning the special train, bearing the Union Association of Lumber Dealers of Ohio, returning from the excursion to Muskegon was derailed at Dunning, a small station between here and Allegan. The cause of the accident was a broken switch rod. The two forward coaches were overturned and four occupants injured but no one seriously. The coaches overturned were occupied by only a few of the excursionists. Those who were injured are: P. P. Birch, Sidney O., side injured; D. C. Fisher, Findlay, O., back severely wrenched; T. F. Bond, Springfield, O., temple badly bruised; J. W. Alker, Burgettstown, Pa., scalp wound.

THE anticipators of an open winter have been rudely shocked for the fifth time by the popular waves of this week. One thing will be said of the present winter at least, and that is that for extremes of fair and cold weather it has had no parallel for many years. Four times in the first half of the season has the mercurial guage sunk below zero, to be followed in its turn by rains and mud. The "oldest inhabitant" hardly remembers its like and all the younger ones do not care to have any further examples impressed upon them. This week for varied weather beats all the previous seasons all to smash. Monday and Tuesday blustery; Wednesday, pleasant, the hopes of the citizen on the upward incline for something better; Thursday, worse than ever and thermometer down below zero—hopes of the citizen blasted; Friday united the blasted hopes and was mild. As we go to press in the evening, we look into the future and say Saturday must be the pleasantest day of the week.

To Dr. and Mrs. H. Kremers, January 30—a son.

Mrs. ROBERT FINCH, of Grand Haven, Mich., is visiting friends and relatives in this city.

DID you ever try the "Little Pathenia" cigar? They are very fine and can be had at Yates & Kane's.

TEACHERS, your attention is asked to the notice of the Secretary of the Board of County Examiners in another column.

C. DE RUYTEN, who ran the store "Bee Hive" last winter, has opened up business in the Kulte building on Eighth street, near the Bank.

MARRIED—In this city, on Saturday the 24th inst., by Rev. T. W. Jones, Carroll S. Ludlew to Lenora E. Lucas, both of Grand Rapids.

IF we only had some of that wood that was promised us on subscription we could keep warm this cold weather. Friends, look out, or the News will freeze up.

THE divorce suit, Clara Names vs. Augustus Names in the Grand Rapids Circuit Court, has resulted in favor of Augustus Names who filed a cross bill to the petition of Clara Names for a bill of divorce.

EX-REGISTER BAAR is advertising that he has removed the "Ottawa County Abstract Office" and will continue to furnish abstracts. The intelligent public is probably aware that Ottawa county is not the owner of an abstract office, as intimated in his advertisement, and that the books therein referred to are the ones formerly owned by E. D. Blair and contain an abstract of only a part of the records of titles to lands in Ottawa county.—Coopersville Observer.

THE following are the officers of the Chicago & West Mich. R'y Co., located at Muskegon, as furnished officially: Vice Pres. and General Manager, J. B. Multiken; Secretary to General Manager, T. C. Clark; Auditor, U. B. Rogers; Assistant Treasurer, C. L. Gunn; Freight Accountant, G. J. Daily; Ticket Accountant, F. W. Stilson; Car Accountant, O. E. Fink; Master of Transportation, P. Couley; Road Master, Thos. Murphy; Master Mechanic, W. F. N. Davis; Stationer, R. W. Brock; Time Keeper, L. B. Howard; Operator, J. J. McLane; General Agent, G. A. Mazoon.

A. C. VAN RAALTE Post, No. 262, G. A. R., held a meeting last Wednesday evening and completed arrangements for the reception of Colonel Orlando H. Moore who will make this city a visit next Wednesday. The reception is tendered by the Post, but more particularly by the members who served in the twenty-fifth Mich. Inf. during the Rebellion, which regiment Col. Moore commanded, and of which Company "I" was composed of boys wholly from this locality. The Colonel is now on the retired list of the regular army having commanded the Sixth Regiment, Inf., since the close of the Rebellion. He will arrive from Coldwater by way of Allegan at ten o'clock, and will be received at the depot by a detachment of the Post and escorted to the Post room where an informal reception will be tendered and a general handshaking indulged in. The remainder of the day the Colonel will be in the hands of his old boys who will take good care of him. In the evening a public reception will be given at Lyceum Hall. The program is to be as follows:

MUSIC—By Hope Church Choir, under the direction of Mr. D. Gillmore. Address of Welcome—By Prof. G. J. Kellen, of Hope College.

MUSIC—By Choir. Oration—By Lieutenant C. Van Loo, of Zealand.

MUSIC—By Choir. Talk with the Grand Army Boys—Col. E. P. Gibbs, of Grand Haven. Remark by Colonel Moore. Song by the "Soldier Boys."

THE arrangements that are being made for the entertainment of the Colonel are quite elaborate and the men who served in his command are very enthusiastic over the expected visit of their old commander, who is now well advanced in years, but rugged and hearty notwithstanding his continued service in the regular army. The committee of arrangements appointed by the Post is composed of the following gentlemen: John Kramer, B. Van Raalte, John Grootenhuis and Dr. Wm. Van Putten.

HOLLAND CITY, MICHIGAN.

THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

CREDITORS of Oliver Brothers & Phillips and of the Oliver & Roberts Wire Company met in Pittsburgh. It was announced that the liabilities of Oliver Brothers & Phillips amounted to $1,508,338, with assets estimated at $2,319,352. The statement of the wire company showed total liabilities of $902,432 and assets $1,259,510. The firms asked an extension for five years, one-fifth of the indebtedness to be paid each year. Action by the creditors was deferred. The Court of Appeals of New York pronounced unconstitutional the law to prevent the manufacture of cigars in tenement-houses. J. W. F. White, Associate Judge of Common Pleas at Pittsburgh, failed, with $75,000 liabilities.

Two of the largest potteries in Trenton, N. J., took their men back at the old rates of pay. Other manufacturers are expected to back down. The Jamestown (Pa.) Savings Bank failed, and a defalcation of $40,000 has been discovered. One of the officers is missing.

THE thermometer on Mt. Washington, N. H., went down to 50 degrees below zero on the 22d of January, one degree below the record. A hurricane was blowing at the time at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

A SECRET marriage between the daughter of a millionaire of Cohoes, N. Y., and a laborer's son is agitating the gossips of that place. The attachment was formed at school and an elopement was the result.

MRS. WILHELMINA STOLTE, of Aurora, Ill., was robbed in New York by George Bullinger, a former farm-hand. He had worked for her and had made trouble between her and her husband, and was on his way to Germany with her. She gave him $2,400 to change into gold, and he made away with all but $600 of the amount, and was arrested. A loss of $60,000 was incurred by the burning of one of the shops of the Whitney Arms Company, at Whitneyville, Conn.

THE WEST.

A DISPATCH from the West reports that "meetings are held almost nightly in the towns of Southwestern Kansas in the interest of the Oklahoma boomers, and the action of the United States authorities is vigorously condemned. Capt. Couch, the leader of the boomers, is said to have advised Col. Hatch of his intention to stay where he is until forcibly expelled. Col. Hatch is trying to starve the intruders out. The latter are building rifle-pits. Their fighting force is 400 men. All non-combatants have been sent out of camp by Capt. Couch, as well as all whose obedience to discipline cannot be counted on. Col. Hatch's force about equals that of the boomers. Re-enforcements are held in readiness at Leavenworth by Gen. Augur."

ROBERT JOHNSON, a robust young negro, died suddenly at Edwardsville, Ill., of blood discharges from eyes, ears, nose, and mouth. The colored people are alarmed, fearing a contagious and deadly malady is about to break upon them.

A BRITISH corporation carrying on business as a cattle company in Wyoming sued John T. Stewart of Council Bluffs, Iowa, who sold his cattle range to the plaintiff, claiming that when the cattle were rounded up and counted there was a shortage in the herds. The jury gave the plaintiff $55,000. A broken rail wrecked a Wabash train near Edwardsville, Ill., severely injuring four employees. Two men were killed by an accident on the Canadian Pacific Road, near Smith's Falls, Ontario, and three coaches were burned. Roswell Grant, aged 85 years, an uncle of Gen. Grant, died at Charleston, W. Va. He was the last of a family of eight children, and had voted for seventeen Presidents, all of whom had been elected. W. H. Gurnersell & Co., a St. Louis dry-goods firm, failed. The liabilities exceed $200,000, while the assets amount to only $31,000. Michael Roch murdered his wife at Cleveland, and then committed suicide. William and O. J. Wilson, bankers, Earlville, Ill., have been indicted for embezzlement. John J. Orton, one of the best-known lawyers of Milwaukee, died last week, leaving $300,000 to his wife and two children. C. E. Andrews, a baking-powder manufacturer of Milwaukee, has made an assignment. Assets, $62,000; liabilities, $180,000.

THE special Grand Jury of Cook County, Ill., in returning indictments against eighty-three election judges, declares that the laws are inadequate to secure honest returns in Chicago; that the appropriation of $100,000 for extra policemen was actually defeated by the voters, and that there is a deficit of ninety thousand in the returns for the State House appropriation. There is said to be hardly a town in Kansas which has not a colony of from fifty to 500 boomers ready to start for Oklahoma as quickly as the lands are thrown open to settlement. General sympathy with the cause is manifested throughout the State. Atchison has a colony of 150 members, who held a meeting last week and adopted a resolution calling a State convention of boomers to meet in Topeka. Colonies all over the State are invited to send delegates.

A DISPATCH from Anoka, Indian Territory, gives meager particulars of a bloody affray in which five men were slain: "A dance was held at the house of Jim Bounds, in the Chickasaw Nation, by a 'renter' named Buck Smith. During the progress of the dance several white men arrived on horseback, coolly tied their horses, and entered the house without an invitation, and they were treated indifferently. Presently one of the strangers fired a pistol into the ceiling. This was the signal for a general fusillade. One of the guests, named Gordon, opened on the leader of the intruding gang and killed him, but Gordon then received a bullet in his heart. The lights were extinguished and the battle raged. Over a hundred shots were fired. The women ran screaming from the room into the woods. After five minutes' continual firing two of the five strangers rushed out, mounted their horses, and escaped. When lights were brought two of the strangers were found dead on the floor, covered with blood and gore. Near by lay three dead guests, including Gordon, while Buck Smith and one other guest were found dying."

THE SOUTH.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE has appealed to the United States Exposition Commissioners at New Orleans to place in her hands the $50,000 appropriated for her department, of which sum she has only been able to obtain so far $3,900 from the management. For want of money Mrs. Howe has been compelled to curtail the original designs for the exhibit, and her landlady is threatening to dislodge her property for her board. Wood's gambling-house at San Antonio, Texas, was entered by six masked men, who bound the employees, opened the safe with chisels, and secured $4,000 in coin and currency.

At a hamlet in Kentucky called Green's Store, the Widow Maguffin heard a noise in her barn at night. She stepped out with a rifle, fired at a moving figure, and shot through the heart a notorious colored hog thief.

A TROOP of the Fourth United States Cavalry had a fight with Mexican bandits in Arizona. Four of the latter were killed and twelve were taken to Fort Yuma. It is believed they are part of the force of soldiers which recently mutinied at Escenada. The special Grand Jury engaged in investigating the election frauds at Chicago has found true bills against 255 judges of election and the late canvassing board for negligence in making returns. Arkansas City (Kan.) dispatch of Jan. 22: "Gen. Hatch has surrounded Couch's Oklahoma boomers at Stillwater, and intends to starve them out. Those willing to leave Couch's camp are permitted to go, and numbers are taking advantage of the order."

EX-CONGRESSMAN UPSON, of Texas, says that grazing companies have taken possession of the public domain and fenced it in so that the cattle-trails are all closed. There is no route to drive without going hundreds of miles out of the way.

It is estimated that the loss to stockmen in Texas on account of the recent cold snap will exceed $1,000,000. The Louisville & Nashville Railroad has cut the rate from Memphis, Tenn., to Chattanooga from $9.30 to $2. S. D. McReynolds, a private banker of Bentonville, Ark., failed with liabilities estimated all the way from $125,000 to $200,000.

WASHINGTON.

It has been discovered by the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs that Townsend, a former agent of the Indian Bureau, negotiated with an agent a lease of the Iowa Reservation. Just before the lease was signed Townsend resigned. The lease includes nearly the whole of the Iowa Reservation, and gives the exclusive right of occupancy of some hundreds of thousands of acres to Townsend and his partner. The lessees paid the Indians $2,000. Nobody witnessed the payment and there was nobody to protect the Indians' rights. No fences were put up, and the money paid for the lease went back into the pockets of Townsend and his partner, who were licensed traders at the agency. The collections of internal revenue for the first half of the fiscal year decreased $4,270,786, chiefly in the item of spirits. The wife of Justice Stanley Matthews, of the Supreme Court, died at Washington.

BECAUSE of an affront offered a young lady a son of Congressman Holman struck Don Carlos de Castro, of the Venezuelan Legation, in the Stewart residence at Washington. Blows were exchanged, but the parties were soon separated. It transpires that De Castro was not the offender, and that Holman mistook his man. The Venezuelan refuses to accept an apology, demands personal satisfaction, and a duel is impending.

WILLIAM PENN NIXON, of the Chicago Inter Ocean; Morrison Mumford, of the Kansas City Times; and D. R. Locke, of the Toledo Blade, were before the House Committee on Postoffices and Post-Roads in behalf of the reduction of newspaper postage. The committee appointed Representatives Money and Bingham to recommend to the committee appropriate legislation to be embodied in the postoffice appropriation bill providing for the reduction of postage on newspapers from 2 cents to 1 cent per pound. If the Appropriations Committee should find it impracticable to comply with recommendations, the Post-office Committee will endeavor to secure the passage of a bill embodying this provision under the suspension of the rules, on the third Monday in February.

A DISTINGUISHED Republican Senator says that in his opinion the United States cannot maintain exclusive control over a canal such as that proposed by the Nicaragua treaty. If we should close the canal in time of war all the nations of the earth would be after us. A canal can only be cut through Central America under conditions of absolute neutrality, and it must be as free as the highway of the sea itself. A delegation of Iowa settlers upon lands along the Sioux City and St. Paul Railroad is urging the Senate Public Lands Committee to act favorably on the bill already passed by Congress declaring the forfeiture of these tracts. It is represented that many of the settlers will be ruined if the railroad is permitted to hold the lands, which are worth over $1,000,000. There does not seem to be much prospect for the passage of the bill by the Senate this session. The committee arranging for the inauguration of President Cleveland expect to have 100,000 men in procession and 100 bands of music. Democratic Congressmen have been heard to express their belief that the Nicaragua treaty will be ratified at this session.

Donald Cameron was endorsed by the Republican caucus in the Pennsylvania Legislature, and the California Republican caucus expressed its preference for Leland Stanford.

The Iowa Temperance Convention, which was attended by 400 delegates from all parts of the State, passed resolutions to secure the enforcement of the prohibitory law by the use of all proper means, even to its amendment by the Legislature.

A COMMITTEE of the Minnesota Senate recommends the passage of a bill granting permits at $5 each per annum to all male adults who can prove that they are only moderate drinkers, and that their families or friends are not liable to suffer by their tipplings. These permits will be necessary to secure drinks in saloons and penalties are provided. The money thus raised is to be turned into the State reserve fund. Gov. Squire, of Washington Territory, urges its admission into the Union. The Territory now has a population of 147,000. Gov. Tritt's message to the Arizona Legislature favors the purchase by Congress from Mexico of enough of the State of Sonora to give Arizona a deep water outlet for its foreign commerce. The Texas Senate will probably pass the Shannon bill to regulate railway passenger rates. The Indiana House voted to fix the legal rate of interest at 6 per cent.

Window-glass manufacturers say that a reduction in wages will be necessary, and that in all probability work will be suspended from April 1 to Sept. 1, when a new scale will go into effect. The Liberty Bell was taken from Independence Hall, in Philadelphia, and shipped by special car to the New Orleans Exposition.

DURING the month of December, 1884, the value of merchandise exports from this country was $91,294,810, or about $3,000,000 a day. This has been exceeded but twice before. Manitoba has secured telegraphic communication with the Canadian capital outside of the territory of the United States by the completion of a link around the north shore of Lake Superior. The Montreal express on the Canadian Pacific Railway ran off the track near Smith's Falls, Ont. Four cars were burned, two men were killed, and several seriously injured.

FOREIGN.

THE alleged text of an agreement between England and Turkey, cabled across the ocean, provides for the deposition of the Khedive of Egypt, the Sultan to appoint his successor from another family. Famine prevails in the governments of Archangel and Volga, Russia.

M. DE GIERA, the Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, has issued an order forbidding the delivery of several thousand rifles ordered by the Chinese Government from Russian manufacturers on the ground that it would be a violation of neutrality obligations between Russia and France. The Marquis Tseng has made an unavailing protest. A proclamation has been issued at Hong Kong declaring that in the event of war between two nations with which England is at peace the men of war of neither of the belligerents will be furnished with equipments or supplies at British ports. A Soudan dispatch of Jan. 24 says: "The British war office has received no reports from General Stewart, but press dispatches state that he has entrenched himself in the desert, surrounded by the rebels, to await re-enforcements from General Wolsley." France is said to be willing to modify her Egyptian policy if England will recognize the French occupation of Tunis.

At the American exhibition in London next year it is being arranged to hold national congresses of Freemasons, engineers, yachtmen, bicyclists, and ball clubs. Much of the New Orleans show will be in the general exhibit. Much anxiety is felt in Germany in regard to the condition of the Emperor, who shows frequent signs of failing health, his great age aiding the advancement of ordinarily slight ailments. Admiral Courbet was defeated in an attack on the mines at Ke Lung. Two nihilists shot at Police Superintendent Kallert, of St. Petersburg. They were arrested. The revolutionists in the United States of Colombia are overturning the present Government, and it is reported that they have captured President Santo Domingo Vilo. The troops at Panama are joining the Radicals, and it is believed that President Nunez will be forced to resign.

A LONDON dispatch of Jan. 27 says that excitement in that city over the dynamite explosions continues at fever heat. Immense crowds are attracted to the vicinity of Westminster Hall and the Tower. Several arrests have been made. Cunningham, the man who was arrested on suspicion, has given a very contradictory account of himself. The injured policemen, Cox and Cole, seem likely to recover. The approaches to all the public buildings are rigidly guarded. Persons carrying parcels on the streets are frequently stopped and the parcels examined. It is reported that the police have discovered an important clue. The official estimate of the damage done by the explosions is $70,000. The royal apartments in Windsor Castle have been ordered closed by the Queen. The London newspapers are calm in tone but the provincial journals bristle with horror. Vigilance committees are proposed, and a system of espionage is suggested over all persons of Irish extraction. The adoption by the American Senate of Mr. Bayard's dynamite resolution is hailed with delight in England.

"GREAT anxiety is felt in London," says a cable dispatch, "for the safety of Gen. Stewart's little army, and apprehensions of disaster are gaining ground, notwithstanding the fact that Gen. Wolsley telegraphs that there is no cause for alarm. A regiment is to be sent at once to Malta, and is to proceed to Egypt if occasion requires. An unofficial dispatch states that Gen. Wolsley has sent re-enforcements to Stewart from Korti, and is himself about to press forward. No news of the battle at Abu-Klea Wells has reached Korti except the dispatches brought in four days after the fight by the Bashi-Bazouks."

MR. BAYARD's resolution expressing indignation at the attempt to destroy the British Parliament buildings, and denouncing such deeds as crimes against civilization, passed the Senate on the 26th of January, by a vote of 50 to 1. Mr. Riddleberger, of Virginia, spoke and cast the only vote against the resolution. The Senate passed the bill to quiet and confirm the title to certain lands in Basin Bay, Mich. The bill involves certain accretions and marsh lands in respect to which there is no conflicting claim. Mr. Sawyer presented a protest from forty or fifty iron mining companies against the Spanish treaty. The Nicaraguan treaty was discussed and encouraged in executive session. Messrs. Sherman, Miller, Edmunds, and Bayard were among the speakers. Mr. Bayard's position is substantially that of Mr. Sherman. He thinks the Clayton-Bulwer treaty is still in force. He also holds that the incoming administration ought not to be embarrassed by action upon the question at this time. The President sent the following nominations to the Senate: Commodore Samuel R. Franklin to be Rear Admiral. Postmasters—Theodore E. Patton, Altoona, Pa.; S. S. Munger, Lampasas, Texas; George E. Wilson, Lebanon, Ind.; Thomas D. Campbell, Ottawa, Ohio; Jonathan F. Scofield, Painesville, Ohio; J. W. Hestetter, Orrville, Ohio; W. B. Fish, Anamosa, Iowa; T. J. Ross, Nevada, Iowa; J. M. Bacon, Oregon City, Ore.; D. McDonald, Grand Forks, Dakota; E. O. Kennedy, Globe, Arizona. In the House of Representatives a bill was introduced by Mr. Rosecrans appropriating $100,000 to aid and encourage the perfecting of the highest class of guns. Mr. Findlay and Mr. Hewitt offered resolutions asking the Secretary of State for information as to whether any citizen or resident of the United States had been concerned in the dynamite explosions in London. Another resolution was offered by Mr. White of Kentucky condemning the extension of the bonded period for whisky and abolishing the office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue and the entire system of internal revenue taxation. Mr. Blaine introduced a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information concerning the alleged refusal of the New York Clearing-House to receive silver dollars or certificates in settlement of balances; also, as to whether any national bank has attempted to discredit the silver dollar. Mr. Dorseimer introduced the Edmunds bill for the punishment of crimes committed by means of explosive compounds. Mr. Forney reported the army appropriation bill, calling for $24,424,003. A bill was introduced to appropriate $30,000 for a navy yard at Brunswick, Me. Mr. Wise offered a resolution requesting Secretary Chandler to inform the House in regard to the last cruise of the Tahapoosa, which sunk off Newport a few months ago. The resolution inquires why the vessel was sent on her voyage, under whose orders she was cruising, and why she was lost.

CONGRESSIONAL.

The Work of the Senate and House of Representatives.

THE proceedings in the Senate were dull and uninteresting on Jan. 21. Mr. Coke's speech on the interstate commerce bill and eulogies on the late Congressman Evans, of South Carolina, filled the entire time. In the House of Representatives, Mr. Kelly reported a bill to allow drawbacks on imported articles used in manufacturing tobacco for export. While in committee of the whole on the Indian appropriation bill, Mr. Burnes declared that Oklahoma is practically in possession of cattle companies, to the exclusion of individual settlers. The agricultural appropriation bill was referred to the House. It appropriates $40,200.

THE status of Oklahoma lands was the chief subject for debate in the Senate Jan. 22. Mr. Vest urged the passage of his resolution directing the Secretary of the Treasury to report on what terms the Creeks and Seminoles would surrender the remaining rights in the tract. Messrs. Dawes, Vest, Harrison, and Maxey held that the law forbade the invasion of the lands by white men, and that the tract had never been surveyed or sectionized. Mr. Plumb claimed that, without the consent of the Indians, the lands could be opened to settlement by the action of Congress and the President. Mr. Plumb's resolution, calling upon the President for his views of the present status of the Oklahoma lands, was agreed to. The House of Representatives agreed to the conference report on the bill to forfeit the Oregon Central land grant. In committee of the whole on the Indian appropriation bill, an amendment to set aside $50,000 to relieve extraordinary cases of distress among the tribes was ruled out. It was resolved to appropriate $25,000 for the erection of an Indian industrial school at Santa Fe. A clause was adopted to open the Territorial A clause was adopted to open the Territorial courts to litigation by Indians, as well as to subject them to trial for grave criminal offenses. An amendment was adopted for the commencement of negotiations with three tribes for the opening of the Oklahoma lands to white settlers.

WHEN Mr. Vest's resolution for negotiations with three Indian tribes for the cession of the Oklahoma lands came up in the Senate on Jan. 23, Mr. Plumb offered a substitute for a bargain with the red men for all lands above 160 acres to each head of a family, the surplus to be used for actual settlers, only. Mr. Conger denounced the system of robbing Indians of their lands, "whether to accommodate Oklahoma boomers or pleuro-pneumonic cattle from Texas." Mr. Ingalls replied that nothing could resist the march of the Anglo-Saxon race. He offered a resolution for the acquisition of 25,000,000 acres of arable land outside of Government reservations would inevitably be absorbed within five years. Both resolutions were referred. The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: Henry S. Hildesoper, Postmaster at Philadelphia; Stanford E. Chaille, Louisiana, member of the National Board of Health; Lucius H. Foote, of California, Minister Resident and Consul General at Mexico City; Nelson A. Dunning, of Michigan, Consul of the United States at Auckland; Capt. Almon F. Rockwell, Assistant Quartermaster, to be Major and Quartermaster; Andrew S. Draper, New York, Judge of the Court of Commissioners of Alabama Claims; John T. Hartranft, Collector of Customs District of Philadelphia; William S. Steele, of Pennsylvania, Corner of the Mint in Philadelphia. In the House of Representatives the constitutional lawyers took an interest in the discussion of a resolution directing the Judiciary Committee to investigate and report whether in its opinion the Senate, by originating, passing, and sending to the House for its action bills appropriating money, has thereby attempted to invade the constitutional prerogatives of the House. Friends of the educational bill were greatly relieved when the resolution was tabled by a majority of four votes, that measure being particularly specified in the preamble. Each house of Congress received a fine American flag made of silk, raised, spun, and woven in America, and this achievement of American industry evoked some highly commendatory resolutions from Mr. Beck, free-trader, in the Senate, and Mr. Kelley, protectionist, in the House.

SENATOR EDMUNDS introduced a bill in the Senate, on Jan. 24, making it a felony to manufacture dynamite for use at home or abroad, and a few moments later the news reached the Senate of the London explosion, which is noted as a singular coincidence. After the news Senator Bayard introduced a resolution expressing the indignation and sorrow of the country at the event. The House went into committee of the whole on the agricultural appropriation bill. There was no general debate, and the bill was read by paragraphs for amendment. On motion of Mr. Dibble, an amendment was adopted appropriating $3,000 for the cultivation and distribution of the tea plant on the Government farm. The committee then rose, the bill passed, and the House adjourned.

Horseshoes.

Now that the horseshoes, as a pretty symbol of good luck, forms so much a part of household decoration, it may not be amiss to say a word about its significance in the olden times. The horseshoe was anciently believed to be an effectual protection against witchcraft and witches, who could no more overcome the sanctity of its semi-circular form than they could the movement of a stream, which even the most powerful could not cross, if in the shape of a running brook, as witness the race of Tam O'Shanter, who, pursued by them, passed the keystone of the bridge himself, while the tail of his good mare, on the wrong side thereof, became the prey of the pursuing warlocks. We have seen the horseshoe nailed to the lintel of barns and masts of vessels, for a witch, mounted on her broomstick, might take it into her head to descend upon some unlucky craft, or she might call up the surging waves to engulf it, unless it were protected by this holy symbol. For a horse to cast a shoe was a bad omen when a gallant knight was about to start upon some expedition; hence, if a horse stumbled, which he would be sure to do if imperfectly shod, it was unlucky. We do not in our day believe much in witches or "bad signs," but everybody is pleased with the good luck involved in the finding of a horseshoe. By an old Norman custom, which has been preserved to the present, the venerable castle as Oskham is plentifully bedecked with horseshoes. The Lords de Freres were in olden time entitled to demand from every Baron on his first passing through the town a shoe from off one of his horse's feet. There are several shoes over 200 years old, the most notable being one given by Queen Victoria. The Princess of Wales recently visited the town, and, in conformity with the custom, a gilt shoe with her name inscribed upon it will be fastened to the castle wall. In our day it is not much to give a gilded horseshoe, as did the Princess of Wales, but it was a serious thing to an old knight, who, giving direct from his horse's hoof parted with his good luck. —Brooklyn Magazine.

The number of those injured by the explosion is as follows: At the tower, six injured seriously and fourteen slightly; at the Parliament buildings, four seriously and ten slightly.

There is much rejoicing over the fact that the downward force of the dynamite failed to reach the gas-meter of the House of Commons, which is directly below the ventilating chamber. The latter was badly damaged. The latest inspection shows that the damage has been much greater than first reported. Half the length of the front of position bench was torn away. The magnificent window in the south of St. Stephen's porch can be restored, complete copies of the design having been unearthed.

sions on Friday, Jan. 23, and adjourned on Monday, the 26th. Bills were introduced in the Senate: To amend the act relative to public instruction and primary schools; to provide for the removal of the records of the courts and declare the effect of such; to repeal the act relative to jury fees in civil courts; to repeal the act to prevent debtors from giving preferences to creditors and to compel assignment. In the House a bill was introduced providing for the compulsory reformatory education of juvenile offenders. It provides for the establishment of a central institution for the confinement of truant officers to compel the attendance of wayward children; also that parents shall compel the attendance of children, and sets a penalty for neglect so to do. Provisions are to be furnished when necessary. There was also introduced a bill to enable corporations and mutual benefit associations to create a sinking fund for the redemption of bonds to be invested in securities and deposited with the State Treasurer; also a bill to compel railroad companies to use in passenger coach heating apparatus designed to protect passengers from scalding and burning in case of accident. Bills were introduced making an appropriation of $50,000 to pay expenses of Michigan sailors and marines engaged in the late war from payment of poll-tax.

HOLLAND CITY NEWS.

WILLIAM H. ROGERS, Editor.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1885.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE for February opens with the second instalment of the amusing international story "On this Side," introducing Sir Robert Heathcote and his party on their arrival in New York and while gaining their first impressions of American manners and customs. Under the title of "Steering to Liverpool, and Return," Thomas Wharton gives a graphic account of his experiences on board the "Oregon" and the "Alaska," and manages to convey the impression that for real enjoyment and opportunities of seeing life the steamer is to be preferred to the saloon on a transatlantic voyage. In an article on "The Representation of the People in Parliament," Prof. D. B. King sketches the successive steps in the history of this subject, from the first admission of burgesses into the House of Commons, in the thirteenth century, down to the recently-enacted bill extending the franchise to the whole body of householders. The Prussian Civil Service is described by Alfred C. Lee. Miss Brewster has an entertaining article on old Paris and its associations, and two very agreeable papers on "Cats and Poets" and "Aesthetic Children," with some excellent short stories, poems, and sketches, help to diversify the contents.

The Chicago Tribune of the 21st inst. has the following: "It is rumored that a syndicate has been or is about being formed in this city for the purpose of reorganizing the Chicago and Great Southern Railway (now in the hands of a receiver), and to extend its present Eastern terminus to La Crosse, Ind., where it is to connect with the Chicago and West Michigan for points in Upper Michigan. The Chicago and Great Southern now runs from Fair Oaks, Ind., to Yeddo, a distance of eighty miles, and it is also to be extended into the Brazil coal fields, to tap which it was built in the first place. At Fair Oaks connection is made with the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago for Chicago. It is understood that the West Michigan and the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago are interested in the scheme for reorganizing and extending the Chicago and Great Southern, which in connection with the above named roads will make a through line from Chicago to all prominent points in Upper Michigan and points on the east shore of Lake Michigan. If the scheme is carried out it will seriously affect the Michigan Central, which at present forms the outlet for the West Michigan to Chicago from New Buffalo.

At a meeting of the "Singing Class" of the Holland Christian Ref. Church held on Tuesday, Jan. 20th, 1885, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, it has pleased Providence to take from our midst Cornelius A. Vette, an honored member of the "Singing Class," Resolved, That we express our hearty sympathy to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Vette, in their great affliction, and as we are imperfect comforters would commend them to the grace of God, who alone can perfectly sympathize with them, and soothe their wounded hearts,

Resolved, That we express our deep sorrow that he was taken away from us at so early an age and that we are deprived of his companionship during this life.

Resolved, That a copy of the above be sent to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Vette, and be inserted in the columns of the HOLLAND CITY NEWS, and in the minutes of the Class. ARTE VAN WOERKOM, A. EKKENS, JENNIE ROZEBOOM, Committee.

"Errotype" is a word suggested to take the place of "typographical error." If we are going to coin a new word for the purpose why not make it "compondrunk," which is euphonious, easily pronounced and has some real etymological significance.—Somerville Journal.

In speaking of the "Kerry Gow" entertainment the Cleveland Herald says: "The realistic horseshoeing scene in the third act, where Dan O'Hara draws a red-hot piece of iron from the forge and in plain sight of the audience converts it into a perfect horseshoe, is a pleasant episode, not merely forced into the play to exhibit Mr. Murphy's ability of manufacturing a horseshoe, but it naturally leads on to one of the principal climaxes of the drama and assists in the development of the story in the most natural imaginable. Mr. Murphy not only makes the horseshoe, but shoes the horse in true blacksmith style. It is said he paid a blacksmith $150 to teach him the art, and being at work at it for the past seven years, he now accomplishes it in the highest style of the art.

On a certain street in Denver is a stone mansion which, with its grounds, cost nearly $1,000,000. Directly opposite, on a vacant lot, is a tent, boarded up inside as far as the angle of the roof. The back end of it is pierced with a stove pipe, and in the front end are a door and window. In the window hangs a curtain of costly lace, and in the tent is a piano of exquisite tone. The tent itself did not cost over $20. The piano, upholstery, and furniture inside are said to have cost over $3,000. The owner planted his tent here over twenty-five years ago, and is one of the moderately successful Colorado miners, being worth about $50,000. He prefers his tent to any dwelling house, and says he would not exchange it for Windsor Castle.

The Condition of Our Country.

Cheap wheat, cheap iron, cheap money, are the raw materials of prosperity, and these the United States now has in abundance. While our population has been increasing, deposits have been accumulating in the banks, inventions have been multiplied, intelligence has been spreading, and all the processes of civilization have been going on, the course of industrial readjustment has been strengthening all the foundations of our prosperity. Credits have been revised, and many abuses which grew up during the generous practices of the too abundant confidence of a few years ago have been put an end to. Tendencies to extravagant living have been checked, and it is a very rare exception that people are not living within their means. Frauds that take root naturally and flourish in eras of expansion have been overtaken and exposed. Enormous masses of debt have been liquidated. The commercial observer will, on the whole, probably find it impossible to discover in any preceding period of the history of this country a greater accumulation than that which he can now easily find of what we term the raw materials of prosperity.—The Age of Steel.

THE February ("Midwinter") number of the Century, the first edition of which is 180,000 copies (the largest number of Centuries ever published), contains—besides such notable contributions as Gen. Grant's article on Shiloh—the beginning of a novel by Henry James, entitled "The Bostonians," which introduces the reader to a characteristic group of the "strong minded" of both sexes. Mr. Howell's descriptive papers, entitled "A Florentine Mosaic," also begin in this number, with their accompaniment of etchings and sketches by Pencil. Perhaps the most timely illustrated feature of this number is Dr. Beers's paper on "Canada as a Winter Resort," with Sandham's graphic and spirited pictures. Mr. Stedman writes about Dr. Holmes in his critical series on the American Poets. Mr. Stillman has a brief illustrated paper on Dutch Portraiture. The articles in the War Series are yet to be enumerated. First in importance is General Grant's long-expected paper on "The Battle of Shiloh," which is accompanied by a large number of portraits and illustrations drawn from photographs or minute descriptions. A supplementary paper from a Confederate point of view is contributed by Colonel William Preston Johnston, on his father, Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, and the Shiloh campaign, including a running description of the battle, of which the writer has made special study. Two excellent portraits of General Johnston accompany this paper. General Thomas Jordan, the Confederate assistant adjutant-general at Shiloh, makes record of his experiences in the battle. Four maps appear with these papers. Three brief articles are grouped under the convenient title "Memoranda on the Civil War," the first being an account by General Fitz John Porter of the circumstances attending the offer to Sidney Johnston in 1861 of the command of the Union armies in the field.

Publishers and Printers of 1790.

Of English newspapers we read: "In the year 1790, in London alone, 63,000 were printed every week," and we are told how Woodfall, the printer of the Advertiser, once the famous newspaper in London, defeated the attempt made by the Government to discover who "Julius" was. The Captain says: "It is not at all uncommon to see a printer put in the pillory or dragged to gaol," and although by naming the author they would escape these indignities, they never did so without his consent. "The Rev. Mr. Horne Tooke, curate of Brentford, was so generous as to allow himself on an occasion of this kind in 1778." Our author once saw a printer in the pillory surrounded and protected by a countless multitude of people, who cheered him and crowned him with garlands of flowers, and gave him refreshment, putting it into his mouth, as his hands were fastened. Persons of rank stood by and talked familiarly to him with cheering and encouraging words.

THE secret of sustaining a good reputation, always has, and always will depend upon the quality of the commodity. H. A. & L. J. DeLand & Co. of Fairport, N. Y., and the great manufacturers of Saleratus and Soda, realize this to its fullest extent, and the thousands of patrons who use DeLand's Saleratus and Soda, testify to its wonderful purity and strength, always uniform, always reliable, and full weight.

Invention of Gunpowder.

In a paper recently read before the Shanghai branch of the Royal Asiatic Society, Dr. Macgowan affirms the claims of the Chinese to be the originators of gunpowder and firearms. This claim was examined in an elaborate paper some years ago by the late Mr. Mayers, and decided by him in the negative. Dr. Macgowan admits that gunpowder as now used is a European discovery. Anterior to its granulation by Schwartz it was a crude compound, or little use in propelling missiles; this, says the writer, is the article first used in China. The incendiary materials stated by a Greek historian to have been employed by the Hindus against Alexander's army are stated to have been merely the naphthos or petroleum mixtures of the ancient Koreans, and in early times used by the Chinese. The "stink pots," so much used by Chinese pirates, are, it appears, a Cambodian invention. Dr. Macgowan states also that as early as the twelfth or thirteenth century the Chinese attempted submarine warfare, contriving rude torpedoes for that purpose. In the year 1000 an inventor exhibited to the then Emperor of China "a fire-gun and a fire-bomb." He says that while the Chinese discovered the explosive nature of nitre, sulphur and charcoal in combination, they were laggards in its application, from inability to perfect its manufacture; so, in the use of firearms, failing to prosecute experiment, they are found behind in the matter of scientific gunnery.—Scientific American.

A Lawyer's Opinion of Interest to All.

J. A. Tawney, Esq., a leading attorney of Winona, Minn., writes: "After using it for more than three years, I take great pleasure in stating that I regard Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, as the best remedy in the world for Coughs and Colds. It has never failed to cure the most severe colds I have had, and invariably relieves the pain in the chest." Trial bottles of this sure cure for all Throat and Lung Diseases may be had free at H. Walsh's Drug Store. Large size, $1.00.

St. NICHOLAS for February opens with the first chapters of a new serial by E. P. Roe, author of "The Opening of a Chestnut-burr," and "Barriers Burned Away." It tells how a family in moderate circumstances was driven from the confinement of a city "flat" to the freedom of a country farm. The question, "City or Country," is one that is constantly presenting itself to thousands of anxious minds, and parents as well as children will gain many valuable suggestions from Mr. Roe's presentation of the problem. Another prominent and valuable feature of the midwinter St. Nicholas is Gail Hamilton's "English Kings in a Nutshell." The talented author has here given in easy flowing verse a comprehensive view of all the English sovereigns, with the principal events and distinguished personages of their reigns. Portraits of nearly every person mentioned, with many other illustrations, accompany the descriptive text. There is also a bright little Masque, or "Miracle-play" as it was called by its author, the late Wm. M. Baker, author of "His Majesty, Myself." The idea is very novel and bids fair to be popular. Palmer Cox tells in his imitable pictures and verses the story of the "Brownies' Return" to their native land, and the ingenious manner in which they accomplished it; "Ralph's Winter Carnival" tells of a boy's visit to the winter Carnival at Montreal; and W. T. Peters and Margaret Johnson are contributors of bright valentine verses.

LIKE HIS MOTHER USED TO MAKE.

BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

"I was born in Indiana," says a stranger, lank and slim. As we tell in the restaurant was kind of guy in him. And Uncle Jake was slidin' him another pun-kin pie. And a' ex-ra cup of coffee, with a twinkle in his eye. "I was born in Indiana—more'n forty year ago. And I hain't been back in twenty—and I'm workin' back'ards slow. But I've et in every restaurant 'twixt here and Sandy Fee. And I want to state this coffee tastes like gettin' home to me!"

"Pour us out another cup, daddy," says the taller, warmer up. A-speakin' 'cross a saucerful, as uncle tuck his cup. "When I s'ed your sign out yonder," he went on, to Uncle Jake. "Come in and git some coffee like your mother used to make!"

"I thought of my old mother, and the Posey County farm. And me a little kid agin' a hangin' on her arm. As she set the pot a-bilin'—broke the eggs an' poured 'em in"—And the feller kind o' halted, with a trinkle in his chin.

And Uncle Jake fetched the feller's coffee back, and stood. As solemn, for a minute, as an undertaker would. Then he sort o' turned and tiptoed to'ards the kitchen door—and next. Here comes his old wife out with him, a-rubbin' of her specs—And she rushes for the stranger, and she hollers out "It's him!" Thank God we've met him comin'! Don't you know your mother, Jim?" And the feller, as he grabbed her, says: "You bet I hain't forgot!" But, wipin' of his eyes, says he: "Your coffee's mighty hot!"—Philadelphia Call.

How Mr. Nicholson Misled THE BABY.

CHAPTER I.

Mrs. Nicholson was standing in a dubious attitude, with the study-door half open, and her eyes turning from the quiet figure in the arm-chair by the table to mother open door in the passage behind her, through which she could see a flood of sunshine, and in the sunshine a cradle.

"I don't feel quite easy," she said, "I am so afraid she should cry and no one hear her. I wish I had not let nurse go out; but all you have to do, coming into the room and speaking impressively, 'all you have to do is to ring the bell violently—violently, remember—for cook. For heaven's sake, John,' leaning on the table and stretching out a pretty hand to attract her husband's attention, 'look up, or speak, or answer me, or you will drive me mad!'"

"What is it all about, Agatha?" The calm, placid, intelligent face opposite was lifted gently, and the thin finger was slipped on to the page to mark a pause.

"It is baby, John," said Mrs. Nicholson, in a faltering voice, and with idle, angry tears rolling down her cheeks. "Here have I, for the last ten minutes, been begging and imploring of you to remember baby; not to nurse her, I wouldn't trust you, but only to ring the bell if she cries."

"Does that stop her? It seems simple enough. I think even I can do that."

But Mrs. Nicholson shook her head, still weeping.

"You may laugh at me or sneer if you like. If it were my own baby I would say nothing. I would bear it all; but Emmy's!"

With a patient sigh the gentleman at the writing table pushed the book away and lost his place. He looked at her in a bewildered way.

"What is it, Agatha? a baby! O, Emmy's baby, of course."

"And not one-half, one-hundredth part, one-thousandth part, as valuable in your eyes," broke in Agatha, with impetuosity, "as the smallest, the most unknown, the most undiscovered star! You need not tell me; I know it."

"Of course," frowning gently, "every one knows that a star, however small—stars are not famous according to their size, my dear, is of infinitely more value than one half of a baby's head. I mean,"—hastily—"speaking from the entirely scientific point of view; but as you were saying—you were saying, were you not—a little doubtfully—something about that unfortunate babe of Emmy's?"

Mrs. Nicholson had dried her eyes, and was confronting him in all cool splendor of her pretty summer dress, and with all the calm determination of a woman who has made up her mind.

"Yes, I was," she said; "only, once for all, John, if you call it a babe I will leave your house at once, and never come back; and if you call it unfortunate I shall take that hateful manuscript with me and burn it at the kitchen fire. If it were yours—with impassioned irony—"it might indeed be described as unfortunate; but Charles is the best of fathers, and he has always been the best of husbands."

"Yes, yes, of course, my dear. I said nothing against Charles. I did not know we were talking about him. We can finish him up to-night," cheerfully. "If that is all, you had better go out now, while it is fine," turning his eyes to the dazzling sunlight for an instant and then back to his blotted page.

"You can tell me about Charles, you know, when you come in. The best of husbands! I don't know much about them, I fear, but I know a little about the best of wives."

He rose and laid his hand on the long, slender, soft gray glove that was leaning with determination on his neat manuscript. The gray glove closed round his hand gently and clung to him almost as if it were loath to leave the thin worn fingers; but he patted it gently and laid it aside. Mrs. Nicholson gave a faint sigh, but when she spoke again she spoke with decision and more pleading.

"It is not Charles, indeed it is not; it is the baby. Nurse has gone out, and I have put her cradle in the morning-room by the window. "John," suddenly, "are you listening? What did I say last?"

"The morning-room, Agatha."

"Well," with a sigh of relief, "I see you are taking it in and forgetting those horrible stars, and how you can compare a star to a baby" parenthetically, "is past me."

"I am sure I never did," he said gently.

"Well, don't interrupt me, John, or I shall never get out. What was I saying? Oh, baby is in the morning-room, and if she cries—makes one sound—you are to ring your bell—this bell, John—for cook; do you understand?"

"Yes, I believe so. I am to ring the bell—this bell—for cook."

"Oh, I hope you will," after a pause.

"Fancy," her eyes filled with tears again, "if she cried, and no one heard her. O John, you will not deceive me? You will try—and—ring?"

"My dear," speaking with some dignity, "surely I am not utterly destitute of common humanity or common sense. I have interesting work here," pointing to the manuscript and the books of reference heaped around him, "but I suppose, after all, I am human."

"Oh, I hope so, I think so," cried Agatha, clasping her hands; "only you might not hear her that is all I meant."

"Then I think," he said, with a gentle sarcastic smile, "that you may dismiss your fears they are quite groundless."

"Very well," said Agatha, moving in a hesitating way to the door. "I am satisfied; I am trying to be satisfied; don't forget."

"No," cheerfully, "I will take a leaf from Charles's book, the best of husbands."

"Oh"—the gray glove had closed on the handle of the door, but released it again—"the Paynters are coming to-night, so you must not go out star gazing."

"Good-bye." The bright face, that had almost disappeared round the door, came back again, and leaned against the worn velvet of the astronomer's coat; for a minute the lips were passed to it, then lifted. "Kiss me, John; you are a dear old fellow after all, and I am a fiend."

The sunshine seemed to leave the room with the sweet, bright presence and hover over the pretty cradle, among the sounds and scents of the midsummer day. In the library there was only one shaft of light that came through the high windows and fell across the velvet coat, and the tidy manuscripts, and the open books, and left the handsome, clever, refined face in shadow.

CHAPTER II.

It might have been two hours afterward—painful after events created a confusion in Mr. Nicholson's mind, and the two hours might have been two days—when he became aware of a laugh in the passage by the door. His hand had grown tired by writing, but the pen traveled steadily on; his eyes had grown a little tired, and it was a relief to raise them for a minute to the locked door, behind which he heard the laugh. He rose, with a half smile on his grave face, and paused, struck by a sudden presentment. Something came back to him, as he stood in the dull light of the dull room: was it a dream or a memory, or was it—the baby? He pushed his paper hurriedly away, and walked over to the door and unlocked it, throwing it wide open. There was nothing in the passage but the yellow sunlight now upon the walls and on the old prints, and Mrs. Nicholson standing in her pretty gray dress, with her slim hands stretched out and the laugh that had disturbed him still upon her lips.

In the room beyond there was more sunlight and the cradle.

"John," cried Mrs. Nicholson, laughing again as if she could not help it, "what have you done with her? Give her to me. You are earning your title to the best of husbands!"

He looked up in quick perplexity.

"What is it, Agatha? What do you want? I have nothing to give you."

"Oh, don't, John!" she cried, impatiently; "don't tease! I want baby."

"Well"—the same perplexed look creeping over his face, and softening its sternness—"take her," stretching out his hand to the cradle in the sunlight. Agatha's eyes were turned on him for a minute with a look of contempt before which he positively quailed. Then she swept over to the cradle, and tossed out the little pillow, and the sheets with their lace edges, and the pale-blue satin coverlets onto the floor in a soft heap, and stood looking down upon the empty cradle as if she would conjure up the pink face and the flaxen head into their accustomed place.

Mr. Nicholson had followed her on tip-toe and was stirring the softly shining heap on the floor with his patent leather shoes, as if he half imagined that she had tossed the baby out among them.

"Well?" said Agatha, sharply.

"Well?" he echoed feebly.

"Do you mean to say," she said, putting aside her angry vehemence and speaking tearfully, with her gray eyes turned up to his—"Oh, John, do you mean to say that you have lost her?"

"I never touched her," he cried hastily. "I never—" heard her, he would have added, but again that faint memory—that dream—stirred him. "Upon my honor, Agatha," he said abruptly, leaning down into the cradle, and poking at the mattress with his thin fingers, "upon my honor I can't remember."

"You don't remember," said Agatha, with slow scorn. "Why, John, she roared! Cook heard her in the kitchen. She came rushing up, and found the cradle empty and a baby gone. She thought you had taken her into the study; she told me so; but oh, John, it was somebody else, and they have stolen her."

"My dear," he said, shaking himself together and speaking more lightly, "who would steal her?—a baby roaring, as you say!" He shuddered. "Why, surely no one in his senses would do such a thing!"

"Emmy's baby!" cried Agatha, tearfully, "and that is how you speak of her! O John, dear John, think again; didn't you hear her? Perhaps you have put her somewhere and she has gone to sleep. Sit down, John, and think—perhaps you have put her somewhere and forgotten."

Mr. Nicholson sat down on the window-sill and covered his face with his hands. He tried to think, but whenever he concentrated his mind on the baby he was dimly conscious of that fading fancy that he could not grasp—that dream of a cry. It had disturbed him, he remembered, that a loud, painful, jarring cry, but it had died away; surely it had died into peace without his interference. "Agatha," he said, lifting up his face, sharpened by the effect of crying, "I do remember something—somebody crying; it must have been the babe."

"Yes," said Agatha, eagerly, "go on! You heard her, she roared so. Well, and then? You—"

"I—I can't remember, Agatha. I may have gone on writing, that seems the most likely, I think; but I may have gone to the door. No," shaking his head, "I can't get beyond the cry. I do remember that now distinctly."

"Perhaps," said Agatha, hopefully, through her tears, "you have put her somewhere in the library. What have you been doing or using this afternoon?"

Mr. Nicholson followed humbly as she swept in before him, and flung open the great curtains, so that the light rushed in onto his table strewn with plans and manuscript. Even then he spread out his hands, almost unconsciously, to defend his precious papers from her light scornful touch; but she stood in the center of the room, looking into every corner with her quick, soft eyes.

"What have you used, John—this chair? You have not been to the cupboard? No," peeping into the dark recess, musty with papers. "What else?"

"Nothing else, Agatha, here, except," with a quick smile, "the waste-paper basket, and that is empty. 'You can see for yourself.'"

"Ah," said Agatha, "here is cook," as a heavy breathing became audible in the passage. "Cook," her voice trembling at sight of the sympathetic face, "your master has not seen the baby—at least, he thinks not. He was very busy, but he heard her cry, and he may have taken her up and forgotten. We are looking for her."

"Which you won't never find her, then," said cook, in a broken voice. "In my last place but one, where I was general cleaner in Mrs. All's family, there was a child disappeared, as it might be this, and it was never found—gypsies or not, it was never come across again."

"Oh don't cook!" cried Agatha, plaintively. "And Emmy coming this evening! Your master thinks he may have put her somewhere and forgotten. He remembers hearing her."

"Which he might," said cook, "not being deaf. Which I don't mean no disrespect, sir, but she was roaring awful, and I says to Mary, says I, Master'll never know 'ow quiet that child, so I'll run up and bring her down a bit; and I stops to change my apron, and I ups, as it might be here, and the cradle, as it might be there, and no sound, and the cradle as empty as it is this minute."

Cook turned dramatically, and pointed one stout arm to the little cradle in the sunlight. Mrs. Nicholson's tearful eyes followed the hand, and her husband stood uneasily in the center of the group with an anxious frown upon his face.

"Which," added cook scornfully, "I think a baby—and such a one, bless her!—is of more vally than all this rubbish." She waved her hand over the table, on which lay the neat manuscript and the rows of mended pens; and Mr. Nicholson moved instinctively a step backward, as if she had an evil eye and his writings would shrivel up at her scornful gesture.

"Cook," said Mrs. Nicholson, with dignity marred a little by the quiver in her voice, "you don't understand. Your master is very clever, and his writings are of great value. Of course," with a pleading look upward, "baby is our first thought just now. There are no wild beasts here, so she cannot be eaten. But she has gone, and before Emmy comes this evening she must be found."

"Of course she must," said her husband, plucking up courage from her exceeding gentleness. "We will begin systematically, and go through every room in the house."

So the search began that ended an hour later in the great hall, with three perplexed faces meeting each other at the foot of the stairs, in a silence that Mrs. Nicholson broke.

"It's no use, John; I cannot bear it any longer. She is lost!"

She flung out her empty hands with a despairing gesture, but her husband caught and held them.

"Don't give up, Agatha; it will all come right. If I search the world through I will find her."

"Or the body," said the cook.

Mrs. Nicholson shuddered.

The minute's silence was broken by a sound of merry laughter and the tramping of feet. For a minute Agatha raised her head, listened intently and then she drooped it with a sigh.

"It's only the rectory boys, John," she said. "They have been in the hayfield all day, and I asked them to tea. I can't speak to them; I am so anxious." She would have moved away, but the noise and laughter were in the hall already, and the boys were stumbling up toward her in the darkness, over rugs and skins. Something white was being shoved from one to the other, and was pushed into Agatha's arms at last, and held there by a pair of rough sunburned hands.

"What is it? Oh, Jack, what is it?" she cried, bending down and kissing, to their owner's great surprise, the boy's rough hands.

"Don't I say," said Jack, drawing them away with a curious, shame-faced look. "It's only the baby, Mrs. Nicholson. She was crying in the cradle, so I just got into the room and bagged her. She's been playing in the hay; she nearly got jabbed with a rake, but Jim got it instead. She's a jolly little thing. Did you miss her?"

"Yes, I thought she was lost," said Agatha, gently.

"Lost!" with a roar of laughter. "Well, that is good! May we wash our hands for tea? I'm not so dirty, I've been holding her; but Jim's simply mud all over. Here, have you got her? it's so dark I can't see."

The turbulent tide swept away into the dim distance of stairs and passages, leaving a little group in the twilight of the hall; a tall, dark figure, against which a golden head was leaning, and two arms with a white bundle folded in them.

"Kiss her, John," came a soft voice out of the darkness. "I know you would rather not, she's only a baby, not a star; but just as a punishment, because you were so stupid."

The tall figure stood and laid a dark mustache against the little bundle.

"She's very soft," said another voice; "I don't think I ever knew so much about a baby before."

There was, after a moment's silence, a movement on the man's part, as though he were drawing himself up to his full height with a view to reasserting his dignity. He cleared his throat.

"After all, Agatha," he said, stiffly, "I did not lose the baby."

"I never said you did," said Agatha; "I only asked you, and you couldn't remember."

"Another time," with an evident effort, "I suppose I shall be condemned unheard."

"Another time," scornfully. "You may set your mind at rest. Neither I nor Emmy are in the least likely to trust you again, at least not with anything valuable."

"Then, how about the baby," with a laugh.

"That," said Agatha, firmly, "includes the baby."—London Society.

Ignorance of Etiquette.

The late Lord Brougham, seeing a herald bungle in a court ceremonial, observed that, "The foolish man did not know his foolish business." Foolish or not, the laws of etiquette, which are supposed to be so binding on persons in high station, appear to be by no means generally understood by these exalted ones. "Lord Malmesbury's Memories" have just been telling us how an invitation to a concert at Buckingham Palace was once issued to the members of the Diplomatic Corps, "male and female;" and how Lord Russell, being Foreign Secretary, went to a court festivity unsuitably attired; and how various Ambassadors, French, Italian and Austrian, who ought to have been models of decorum, were always doing wrong things—flying into tempers, speaking loudly and coarsely, and behaving with gross rudeness to ladies. This week we have seen Mr. Chamberlain, a Cabinet Minister, bandy words with Lord Randolph Churchill, a Duke's son, in a style which might be voted vulgar even at a vestry meeting. If gentlemen holding high positions in a country noted for aristocratic refinements cannot behave themselves in public, we need hardly wonder that the inexperienced diplomatists whom the French Republic sends to distant lands should so often get their country into trouble by ruffling the feathers of barbarians. The recently published "Malagasy Blue Book" showed that the war with Madagascar was brought about in the first instance by the flippant disrespect of the French Consul in addressing native dignitaries; and now a Chinese Yellow Book discloses that Li-Hung-Chang would have been much more accommodating with French plenipotentiaries if these had not persisted in putting petty affronts upon him. One of them committed exactly the same blunder as M. Benedetti perpetrated at Ems in 1870, when he walked up to the King of Prussia and presented him with an ultimatum without having first solicited an audience. This breach of good manners cost the French so dear that one is surprised to see them repeat it.—London Graphic.

"That won't do."

"Why?"

"Because she chews wax all the time. You had better take her out of school and rent her mouth for a sausage-grinder."—Newman Independent.

A Moonlight Idyl.
'Twas beauteous moonlight, and the air was filled with a subdued, silvery glow never seen in the glare of day.
It was a night that would make a poet trot out his lyre, and bring from it notes of the most enrapturing melody.
If he didn't break a string or get the contents of a sloop-jar from an upper window. It was such a night as would make lovers delight to walk abroad and define on door steps, talking of love and the expense of matrimony, till the old man pops out his turbaned head and yells: "Young man, meander, and all, you go to bed!" It was a good night for meditation and chicken roasts,
and a poor one for the body-snatching man of surgical knowledge. All nature, including the police, was in peaceful repose, except reporters and concert halls on State street. In certain locality naught was heard save the braying of the faithful watchdog and the occasional yell of a streetcar driver, as he stirred up the mules, or whistled a belated huckster off the track, or, in plain, square-toed English, it was a beautiful moonlight night, and the dog in the front yard was howling as though the entire seven devils that left the woman were in him.
The young wife tossed about nervously on her couch, but couldn't get to sleep to save her. Of a sudden she would sit bolt upright in bed, rearrange her back-hair, replace her night-cap, give her elbows
a twitch, like a soldier without arms getting ready to double-quick it to quarters, and then she would flop back into a horizontal position, bury her nose in her pillow, and remain as motionless as a farmer spelling out a hand-bill, for an interval nearly as long as it would take the Pride of Bonnet to get around the ring. Then she would flop over, give a kick, first with one foot, then the other; then with her elbow she would jab her husband in the ribs, and want to know if he was asleep. If he had been, the probability is that he was wide-awake at that instant. Then she would go back to the beginning and do it all over again, winding up by taking out her earrings and putting them down on the floor, where she would be sure to step on them when she got up in the morning, giving diversity to the performance by changing the order, and now and then introducing a few variations with heels and elbows, and finally, away long in the small hours, when the early milkman was out cursing the cows and chawing out the pump, she gave a flounder like a fish trying to swim on dry land, and put her tongue in motion, with words of honey and tones of vinegar.
"Hubby, dear," with more elbow
jabbing.
"What is it, love?" replies the man
of much patience.
"I can't get to sleep, dearest, to save my life," and if the gas were lighted he could see that her under lip is drooping.
"Well, that's too bad, hon. No more can I," replies the man, with resignation in his voice.
She remains silent for a couple of minutes.
"I say, precious."
"What is it, darling?"
"I'm not asleep yet, love."
"There's two of us awake, then, my dear," says the man, with the veracity of exhortation.
"I can't think what makes that dreadful dog keep up such a horrid howling, dear. I could go to sleep at once if he would only keep still and let me."
"More drooping of the nether lip."
"Did you feed him to-day, my pet?"
"He—with newly awakened interest.
"Yes, indeed, precious. He can't be hungry; I gave him all he could eat."
She—with animation heightened by the joy of her thoughtfulness.
"What did you give him, darling?"
"Why, dear, I gave him some of those boiled dumplings we had left from dinner. But why do you jump out of bed so suddenly, Herbert, dear?"
"Why, love, that's what's the matter with him, and we might as well get up and read, for we won't get a wink of sleep to-night, unless they kill him before sun-up. You should have told me this before, dear, and I would have went out and shot him, ended his misery, and got a good night's rest."
The endearing talk came to a sudden and unceremonious end.

The Progress of Poverty.
Historian McMaster does not believe in the popular myth about the better times they had in the "good old days."
When asked for a Thanksgiving Day sentiment he wrote: "Every man to-day earns more money, wears better clothes, eats better food and of more kinds,
lives in a more comfortable home, knows more of the world, holds broader views than he could possibly have when the nineteenth century came."

Incurable Invalids.
Your peevish, fretful people are usually out of health. They lack vigor and digest ill. After though their peevishness is annoying, we could not be inconsiderate of its cause—feeble health. Their stomachs need toning, their nerves require invigoration more than their bodies merit reproach. A course of Hoster's Stomach Bitters, when they are induced to try it, does them more good than all the selectives and opiates they are fond of taking for their "nerves." Nervous they are, not in fancy only, but in reality, and nervous they will remain until they invigorate. Sound digestion is really a blessing worth securing in itself, and its value is enhanced by the fact that through nervous quietude is attainable. The Bitters purge, besides, dyspepsia, fever and ague, constipation, kidney and bladder troubles, and symptoms especially indicative of a disordered condition of the liver and bowels. Medical practitioners commend and administer it.

"Won't wheat look up a little, eh?"
"Not a look."
"Any new enterprises?"
"Not so much as building a wood-shed."
"But do the merchants complain?"
"I should smile! They even hire folks to help 'em growl!"
"Isn't the railroad business a little more favorable?"
"Yes, they manage to run trains, but that's about all."
"Well, there must be some business in the West which holds its own," persisted the Bostonian. "How's matrimony?"
"Deader'n Joseph's old boots," was the confidential answer. "A year ago has flattened matrimony until a widow worth $20,000 has got to hunt a man

A MINOR incident of Kossuth's visit to this country in 1851 illustrates the way in which fashions in dress are sometimes originated. The eloquent Hungarian wore a soft felt hat, which became fashionable for young men, bename of the Kossuth hat. Until that time felt hats were almost unknown in this country, and in Europe, as Herbert Spencer has pointed out, they were worn only by a few political agitators.

OF GREAT INTEREST

To Millions of Miserable Men and Women.
"I say, reporter, I know something that some of you newspaper men ought to investigate and publish for the benefit of thousands of people that are fixed as I was a couple of months ago."

"Tell me about it, Mr. Hyzer, and perhaps I'll go for it."

"Well, I'll tell you. I've been troubled with rheumatism for over ten years, and often had it so bad that it laid me up. I doctored and doctored, and took all kinds of remedies that people recommended, but I never found anything that would take the pains out of me till I tried Hops and Malt Bitters. I commenced taking them about six months ago, and, after taking about eight or ten bottles, they cured me right up. I never felt better in my life than I have for the last two months. Now, these bitters are made right here on Larned street, and I think the people ought to know more about them. They will knock rheumatism, and I know it, and they are splendid for the kidneys, for mine were all out of order, and now they are all right."

The Speaker was Mr. Jacob Hyzer, of the American Express Company, and his suggestion was made in such dead earnest that the reporter resolved to go around and see what more could be learned about Hops and Malt Bitters.

These bitters are manufactured in a fine
four-story brick block at 136 West Larned
street, where the employees were found busily engaged in disposing of orders from wholesale druggists. The bitters are recommended for dyspepsia, liver and kidney complaints and rheumatism and are recognized as the most thorough blood purifier ever produced.

The Hops and Malt Bitters Company has hundreds of testimonials from prominent and well-known men of influence and veracity, among whom are many ministers, who eulog-ize Hops and Malt Bitters as a tonic preparation without parallel in their experience.
When Mr. Hyzer's case was mentioned our reporter was informed that there were five cases within a square of the office of men cured of rheumatism and dyspepsia and women relieved of the miseries peculiar to their sex. The formula of these bitters embraces hops as an appetizer and tonic; malt as a highly concentrated nutritious element; cascara, or buckthorn bark, as a laxative; dandelion as the finest liver regulator in nature's pharma-copoeia and an acknowledged specific for derangements of the kidneys, spleen, and urinary organs; buchu, the most popular diuretic in the world; sarsaparilla, the great and only antidote to mercurial poison; mandrake,
a liver alterative without a peer, and aromatics to give the compound a palatable and pungent flavor, and to stimulate the stomach.

Those familiar with these several ingredients will readily perceive that Hops and Malt Bitters contain the elements for healing
many of the most aggravating chronic ailings with which men and women suffer.
Every wholesale druggist in the West handles these bitters, though they are but a year old,
and the style of all their guarantee to retailers is similar to the following from all of the prominent houses in the West:
To the Trade and Consumer:
We guarantee "Hops and Malt Bitters" to be equal, if not superior, to any other Bitters in the market.

AN EXPLANATION,
With a Little Common Sense Advice.
He Who Becomes a Treasurer of Money for Another is Responsible for a Safe Return.

How much more responsible is he who has in charge the health and life of a human being.
We have considered well the responsibility, and in preparing our ALLEN'S LUNG BAL-SAM, which for twenty-five years has been favorably known as one of the best and purest remedies for all Throat and Lung Diseases, we are particularly to use nothing but the best ingredients. NO OPIUM in any form enters its composition. It is to your interest to stand by the old and tried remedy, ALLEN'S LUNG BAL-SAM, and see that a bottle is always kept on hand for immediate use. READ THE FOLLOW-ING

ADDISON, Pa., April 7, 1888.
I took a violent cold and it settled on my lungs, so much so that at times I spit blood. ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM was recommended to me as a good remedy.
I took it, and am now sound and well.
Yours respectfully,
A. J. HILEMAN.

SAM as being the best remedy for Colds and Coughs I ever used."

ASTORIA, Ill., April 6, 1888.
Gentlemen:—I can cheerfully say your ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM, which I have sold for the past fifteen years, sells better than any cough remedy, and gives general satisfaction. 'Tis frequently recommended by the medical profession here.
Yours truly,

An Interesting Account.
Stone in the Bladder Expelled by using Dr. Kennedy's
"FAVORITE REMEDY."

Mr. S. W. Hicks, of Pleasant Valley,
Dutchess Co., N. Y., the son of Mr. E. S.
Hicks, whose name may have appeared in this journal in connection with an article similar to this, was, like his father, afflicted with Stone in the Bladder, only that his case was more serious than his father's. On the appearance of the disease, the father advised the son to write to Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who, he said, would tell him what to do. Dr. Kennedy replied, suggesting the use of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy," which had worked so successfully in the father's case. Mr. Hicks, who had been assured by the local physicians that they could do nothing more for him, tried "Favorite Remedy" at a venture. After two weeks' use of it he passed a stone $\frac{1}{2}$ of an inch long and of the thickness of a pipe-stem. Since then he has had no symptoms of the return of the trouble. Here is a sick man healed.
What better results could have been expected? What greater benefit could medical science confer? The end was gained; that is surely enough. Dr. Kennedy assures the public, by a reputation which he cannot afford to forfeit or imperil, that the "Favorite Remedy" does invigorate the Blood, cures Liver, Kidney, and Bladder complaints, as well as all those diseases and weaknesses peculiar to females. "Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" for sale by all druggists.

GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS.
Dyspepsia is the prevailing malady of civilized life.
A weak, dyspeptic stomach acts very slowly or not at all on many kinds of food, gases are extricated, acids are formed and become a source of pain and disease,
until discharged. To be dyspeptic is to be miserable, hopeless, depressed, confused in mind, forgetful, irresolute, drowsy, weak, languid, and in a word, a prey
to the Teeth, Complexion, Strength, Peace of Mind,
and Bodily ease. It produces Headache, Pain in Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of Chest, Dizziness,
Sour Eructations of Stomach,
Bad Taste in Mouth,
Bilious Attacks, Flatulency
of Heart, Inflammation of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms. Dyspepsia yields to the vegetable remedies in GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS,
the great purifier of the blood and restorer of health.
In these complaints it has no equal. We warrant a cure.

Woman's Suffering and Relief.
These lamid, throbbing sensations, causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity; driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved as once, while the special causes of periodical pain are permanently removed. None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful, and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters, as women.

If one were to stand beside a broad river, and see its surface crowded with drowning men and boys, with now and then a woman floating down with them, his first impulse would be to reach out and pull them from the water. But should he find that no matter how hard he labored the fuller of victims the stream seemed to be, he would naturally be led to enquire how they came there. If, seeking to solve the problem, he should begin to look around, and should find that at the fountain head there were men throwing them in, and all up and down the stream, above him and below him, were other men pushing them back as they strove to reach the shore, he would be horror-stricken, and would lose no time in calling to his aid the entire community to stop those human fiends from their work of death.

Yet such a scene is passing before his eyes every day. The river of destruction is rolling by, bearing upon its murky surface the forms of tens and hundreds of thousands. Year after year men and women have stood upon its banks, striving to save these drowning wretches, only to find the waters bringing them down more rapidly.

Now they have gone to the fountain head and found there the man who sold the boy his first drink and started him down the stream. Along the river banks on either side, they find other liquor sellers pushing him farther from the shore. They call upon their neighbors and friends to help them to stop these men. Is there one who will fail to respond? Is there one who will say there are other things more important? That we must wait for public sentiment? That the time has not yet come, or that it cannot be done? If there is such a one let him remember that his son or perhaps his daughter, may be the next to come floating down the dark river, with hands outstretched and face turned toward us in speechless agony.

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the blood, regulate the bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50c. a bottle by H. Walsh.

Why He Was Invited.

Young Squipps: "Yes, my dear child. Your sister honored me with an invitation, and I would not miss such an opportunity for the world. By the way, Tom, here is a new silver dollar for you. Now, I want you to tell me something I want to know. Mr. Gayfellow isn't going, is he?"
Tom: "Oh, yes."
Squipps: "Hang him! I thought I would have your sister all to myself to day."
Tom: "But you shouldn't want to hang Mr. Gayfellow. He was the one who told sister to invite you."
Squipps: "He? Why, what did he want me for!"
Tom: "To carry the baskets."

The coming holidays will be more generally observed than any for many years, and we would remind our readers that a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup will prove a most acceptable holiday present.
