NEWS
Students Don’t Care About Spending Money
Page 2

CAMPUS
Group Wants To Re-activate The Dorian Sorority
Page 3

SPORTS
Women Advance To NCAA National Swim Meet
Page 9

FEATURE
Interview With Dean Beal
Page 7

It’s Time For Mid-terms Again

With Spring Break coming up soon, professors are not likely to let us get away scot free. That’s why mid-terms were invented, right? Well maybe, and maybe not... At any rate, some people sure seem disgusted at the thought of studying extra.
Students Spending Surprises Some

Food and Alcohol Top List

By Geoff Penrose
anchor Staff Writer

Students at Hope College spend most of their money each week on food for themselves, followed closely by alcoholic beverages, and do not seem to worry about a great deal, according to a recent poll. In a poll conducted recently on the campus of Hope College by The Anchor, it was found that students spend an average of $13.18 on food each week. Alcohol expenditures averaged $9.52 a week. The anchor, it was found that students spend an average of $13.18 on food each week. Alcohol expenditures averaged $9.52 a week.

But more interesting than the amount of money spent in the average week by the students polled were their attitudes toward spending in general found among the students polled.

"All the people here aren't worried about money," said Tanya Andrade, a sophomore. "It's like they can call home for money at any time."

The amount of money spent on food, although the highest of the categories, was inflated to some extent by a number of people who were polled living off-campus, and therefore lacking a meal plan.

The alcohol expenses, however, were not inflated, and seem to contradict a recent national poll conducted among college newspaper editors.

In a national poll, 41.6 percent of those polled placed themselves in the "virtually never drink" category while 31.2 percent placed themselves in the "only 10 percent of those polled did not list any amount in the category for alcohol expenses.

Of the amounts listed for entertaining,obil guest, was the highest, while one frugal student listed $1.49 as his weekly expenditure upon women. The average was $6.58, not even enough for two tickets to a movie. Chivalry may be dead.

Students recognize this lack of dating.

"It's non-existant," said sophomore Scott Mancinelli. "Everyone's got girlfriends or boyfriends or one-night-stands after parties."

On the subject of how each student pays for his tuition and room and board, a varied response was found. Each student has his own formula to pay the $10,314 required to attend Hope.

On the average, the students polled pay 21.2 percent of the cost of college themselves. Parents pay 32.1 percent with loans, scholarships and grants making up the difference.

Not all students receive assistance from home, however, 24 percent of those polled are funding their education alone with the help of loans and scholarships. When these people are not counted with the others who receive parental assistance, the average percentage of personal help rises to 73.3 percent of the cost of college, with 24 percent of the students receiving a free education from their parents.

This help from home may account for the findings of the national college editors' poll which found that "quality or cost of education" rated last out of list of "most pressing issues facing today's college generation," AIDS was first.

Many of the students polled by The Anchor did not think that Hope costs too much, perhaps due also to the amount of parental assistance.

"Small schools on the whole are more expensive," John Hafenden, a sophomore, said. "You can't really say it's just Hope."

The average household income of the 44 percent who answered the question was $59,636 a year.

To help themselves, 36 percent of those polled currently hold jobs and average $5.21 an hour. 92 percent work in the summer. 52 percent regularly receive spending money from home.

Looking to their futures, 74.1 percent "realistically hope" for an income of $50,000 a year 10 years after they graduate. In their first year out of college, however, most students expect to be in the $10,000 to $20,000 range, according to the national poll.

In general, Hope College students have a very liberal financial sense.

"My spending would definitely increase if I had more money," Brian Goodwin, sophomore, said. "I spend pretty much everything I have." Those sentiments were echoed by Elke Sappok, a senior at Hope.

"I don't even care," Sappok said. "I just waste money because I have it."

The findings of the survey are not scientific and are based upon a small sample of Hope students.

DISCOVER YOUR POSSIBILITIES

Find out how you can use your work skills and experience to serve God. Thousands of Christian organizations offer fulfilling job opportunities in a wide range of occupations in the U.S. and overseas. Call The Christian Placement Network and discover your possibilities. Call today!

Toll free 800-426-1342
(206) 667-7330 in WA, OR and Canada
Or return the coupon below.

Shupe To Speak On Televangelism

By developing a grass-roots political organization modeled after traditional Baptist networks, Pat Robertson will have a major impact on the fortunes of the Republican Party. Recent, he and Anson Shupe, the momentum which Robertson's campaign could hold their Republican primaries. At the heart of this group will be a large number of Southern states where Robertson's organization has been particularly effective at drawing evangelical Christians into the political sphere. According to Shupe, the momentum which Robertson's campaign could develop on Super Tuesday could have him with certainty, swing votes to be used at a "bickered" August Republican Convention in New Orleans.

While Shupe does not predict that Robertson will definitely win the nomination, he is convinced that Robertson's delegate strength will be a significant one after Super Tuesday. With that strength, the former preacher will be in a strong position to demand that issues close to the heart of the New Religious Right — such as an anti-abortion amendment and a prayer in public schools amendment - will be included on the GOP's platform and in the campaign of the eventual candidate.

Recent in-fighting within the Republican Party of Michigan has been a precursor to future struggles between neophyte Republican supporters of Robertson and the traditional "old guard" proponents of Vice President George Bush. That Robertson has effectively called Bush's credibility and political strength into question in Michigan is, according to Shupe, further evidence of the unexpected — and grass-roots nature of Robertson's support and organizing ability.
Attempt Made To Reinstate Dorian Sorority

By Kaylene Shannon
anchor Feature Editor

The enthusiasm around the table in the Dykstra R.A. room was contagious. That five sophomore women who make up the executive board of the latest attempt to reinstate the Dorian sorority had just completed a meeting with 36 other similarly committed individuals.

It was midnight, but the board was excited about the progress of the meeting as well as interested in sharing with these reporter their ideas and aspirations for what they hope will be a new addition to Greek life on campus.

The Dorian Sorority (Kappa Beta Phi) was founded in 1921, but because of inadequate funds, small pledge classes and what the archives call "a lack of sisterhood," the sorority died 30 years later in 1971. They had been the sister sorority to the Emersonians and their colors were lavender and yellow.

Since 1971, several individuals and groups, including Dorian alumni, have attempted to get the sorority reinstated. But five have come as far as this group of women.

The idea to start the Dorian sorority again was born from the brainstorming of Heidi Bohannon, who is also a member of the executive board, and groups, including Dorian and Pan Hel's scrutiny. Bruce Johnson and the Pan Hellenic Board, who would wait until after Spring break, did hear it to guarantee that the board ultimately did suspend Gorman for allegedly harassing and verbally abusing two URI staffers in an argument about using a student van.

But the three-judge U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit, which has been viewed as a "best buy" by Money magazine and in the guide, Best Buys in College Education by Edward B. Fiske, education editor of The New York Times.

Charging Times magazine asked a panel of 13 education experts to pick the nation's top low-cost, high-quality schools "Colleges that cost less than average but offer better-than-average academic quality should fit anybody's definition of a bargain," the magazine's story read.

From a base of objective data and the opinion of the experts, the magazine compiled a list of 100 colleges and universities.

A school's final selection was based on a variety of criteria. The first measurement, though, was price. Each of the schools listed in Changing Times had to have a cost below $10,500, the national four-year school average, for the academic year of 1986.

The guide, Best Buys in College, has been featured as a "buy" by Money magazine and in the guide, Best Buys in College Education by Edward B. Fiske, education editor of The New York Times.

Twelve of the brightest minds in the country had the same idea last summer.

Bohannon concluded by saying, "I see our next big challenge as going before the Pan Hellenic Board. We thought we would wait until after Spring Break when they are not so busy with pledging. And besides, we don't want to be hasty. We plan to approach them with a well though-out plan. All we want is for them to listen and to give us a chance...just give us a chance."
Confusion Plagues Greek Organizations

By Brian Breen
anchor Editor

Reports of hazing have touched off a wave of confusion among Hope's Greek organizations. The resignation of all faculty advisors, and campuswide rumors have also added to the air of uncertainty, being breathed by both pledges and actives.

Last week, six more Greek advisors resigned over differences involving liability insurance and the legal representation of advisors who may be sued. Two advisors had already resigned earlier last month. "Our action definitely was not aimed at any perceived incompetence or omissions by Bruce King," said Dr. James Pieris, former advisor to the Fraternal Society. "With hazing coming up, we weren't clear over the legal liability and the roles we expected to play by the college.

According to Pieris, all of the Greek advisors met on Feb. 22 and during the meeting decided that resigning would be a good idea. "We decided to give the college an opportunity to clarify their position," explained Pieris.

Adding to the confusion, a number of Greek organizations have been accused of hazing new members. They include the Arcadian fraternity, and the Delta Phi and Sigma Sigma sororities. However, details remain sketchy.

Last week, Phil Beal, Dean of Students, called a meeting with Arcadian president Jeff Beird regarding pledgeing. Yet, Beird claims he has no idea what prompted the meeting, and subsequent warning. "We still don't know what's going on," said Beird. In the report of meeting, Arcadian activities, had been painting body parts of pledges. Beird, Director of Student Activities, would neither confirm or deny the incident.

Incidents involving the Delta Phis and Sigmas were brought up during an impromptu meeting of the new Greek Forum on Friday. Members of the Forum are supposed to have 24 hours notice of a meeting. However, sources have stated that less than four hours was given, and there was not present when a decision involving the Sigma sorority was made. Seattle residents were substituted for faculty members at the meeting.

Incidents that the Delta Phis were blindfolding their pledges during errands have been confirmed. However, no formal action has been taken by the Forum. Ironically, the decision to suspend Sigma pledging activities did resume Monday morning. "There seems to be a huge problem with communication," said Jill Vandervelde, former Pledgemaster, "between us and our pledges, between us and the women, and between all of the Greek organizations."

Toppen's remarks echoed those made by many Greek members. 'Some of the communication problem lies in the fact that too many parties are involved," stated Toppen. "As far as I'm concerned, there wasn't a problem of hazing, it was a problem of our pledges dealing with stress.

Complaints against the Sigma's have also brought attention by pledges, and included doing required errands. However, some feel the action was too harsh. "I don't think the punishment fit the crime," added Toppen.

Monday afternoon, the Greek Forum met again to discuss incidents involving pledges and Sigma Sigmas. No details have been released by the Student Development Office.

The whole situation is further complicated by the creation of the Greek Forum itself.

Boyd Wilson, chairman of the Campus Life Board, said he was pleased that any disciplinary board had been formed. "I just found out this Monday night," Wilson said.

Creation of any student judicial organization would fall under jurisdiction of the Campus Life Board, but the Greek Forum has not followed that route. "It has been created out of thin air by the Student Development staff," explained Wilson. "I'm pretty upset that correct channels weren't used.

The Greek Forum is supposed to consist of three students and three faculty members. Earlier this year, the Inter-fraternity Council submitted a list of 12 professors who were approved to sit on the Forum. But only one member accepted a position. Instead of soliciting other faculty members for the two remaining spots, Bruce King appointed two head residents who were not present.

Toppen, Pledgemaster Gina Stallions, and Sigma President Doris Nielson discussed their situation with King on Monday morning. They questioned the decision made by the Forum, which didn't have proper faculty representation and not all members were present.

According to them, King stated that with or without the Forum he would have made the decision to suspend Sigma pledging himself.

Nevertheless, it is not known what decisions were made at Monday's Greek Forum meeting or who exactly made them. Maybe the current disciplinary board had followed that route. "It has been created out of thin air by the Student Development staff," explained Wilson.

Upward Bound Celebrates National Trio Day

By Lisa Nordlund
anchor Staff Writer

Last Friday, Feb. 26, five students from Hope College's Upward Bound program participated in the Third Annual National Trio Day Celebration. The festivities took place in Lansing with the students marching to the Capitol to help people become aware of the Trio programs.

Trio was established by the Higher Education Act of 1965 following programs: Upward Bound, Talent Search, Student Support Services and Educational Opportunity Centers.

It offers low-income, first generation and handicapped students with basic skills instruction, counseling, tutoring services, college admissions and financial aid information. These programs provide students with an opportunity to develop the skills necessary for successfully completing their college education and prepare them for careers and productive lives in communities.

Since 1968, Upward Bound has been the Trio Program affiliated with Hope College. In 1974 they attend seminars and workshops on job-related skills such as resume writing and interviewing. In the following weeks they receive hands-on experience in Holland and Zeeland internship sites. These range from hospitals to car dealerships.

Upward Bound will celebrate their 20th year at Hope next fall.

The Criminal Service Conduct law of Michigan covers many situations with which college students face, according to a police officer. Jane A. Vandervelde, of Gara and Vandervelde here in Holland, spoke to a group of students last Wednesday, Feb. 26, in the Herrick Room on the legal implications of date rape as part of the Sexual Harassment Awareness Series.

Vandervelde asserted that the laws do not distinguish between male and female offenders and explicitly lists the types and severity of offenses.

First degree criminal sexual conduct involves using a weapon and results in any one of a list of circumstances including use of a weapon being aided by one or more persons. The victim is 13 to 16 years of age. First degree is punishable by up to life in prison.

Second degree criminal sexual conduct involves the same set of circumstances without penetration, only the touch of the genital area. It is punishable by up to 15 years in prison.

Third degree criminal sexual conduct involves once again deals with penetration, and applies if the victim is 13 to 16 years old, force is used, or if the actor knew or should have known the victim was under 13. Third degree is punishable by up to 10 years in prison.

Fourth degree is the level with which college students should be most concerned about, and is the most common in "date rape." "This is the one you have to watch out for," Vandervelde said, "because it is very easy to be guilty of 4th degree." "Fourth degree criminal sexual conduct is when any form of sexual contact short of penetration occurs and either force is used or the victim is under 13. It is punishable by up to 2 years in prison.

Fourth degree is the level with which college students should be most concerned about, and is the most common in "date rape." "This is the one you have to watch out for," Vandervelde said, "because it is very easy to be guilty of 4th degree." "Fourth degree criminal sexual conduct is when any form of sexual contact short of penetration occurs and either force is used or the victim is under 13. It is punishable by up to 2 years in prison.

Since intoxication has been defined as a form of physical helplessness, fourth and third degree on the levels with which date rape is most often associated with for often it occurs after being picked up at a party.

This is where the gray area occurs, according to Vandervelde. She presented a common scenario in which a woman goes home with a man, has sex, and then regrets it. Role-played by Vandervelde. "She says yes, I have sex with her, and now she says no." The next event in the Sexual Assault Awareness Series is the March 5 keynote address of "It Also Happens At Hope: Date Rape on College Campuses."
contradiction to its slow alternating throughout from slow Op. 79" by Gabriel Faure, a piece long show consisted of six pieces

Helmrich to the Hope College Series last Thursday, Feb. 25

The latest Great Performance Series was the piano and its volume. Of very fast, falling and rising, Of sharp, loud, burst. It continued, notes ended each time with a punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

Throughout the concert the piano was quite soft, necessitated by the flute's comparative lack of volume. In this piece, however, Mr. Helmrich was given license use the piano fully, and did do, presenting a nice contrast. The segment ended with a soft return to the beginning.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

Mr. Helmrich was given license use the piano fully, and did so, presenting a nice contrast. The section ended with a soft return to the beginning.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

Helmrich to the Hope College Series last Thursday, Feb. 25

The latest Great Performance Series was the piano and its volume. Of very fast, falling and rising, Of sharp, loud, burst. It continued, notes ended each time with a punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

Throughout the concert the piano was quite soft, necessitated by the flute's comparative lack of volume. In this piece, however, Mr. Helmrich was given license use the piano fully, and did do, presenting a nice contrast. The segment ended with a soft return to the beginning.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

Mr. Helmrich was given license use the piano fully, and did so, presenting a nice contrast. The section ended with a soft return to the beginning.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.

"Cantilena" continued the piece, the rising and falling voice of the flute suggesting a search, punctuated at intervals with sharp bursts. "Frest gloccino," ended the piece, sharp and fast, ending after a fast, rhythmic exposition point of a note.
Prof To Give Concert

Pianist Charles Aschbrenner will present a silver anniversary recital in Dimnent Chapel on the campus of Hope College on Sunday, March 6 at 4 p.m.

Aschbrenner is a professor of music at Hope College where he is celebrating his 25th year on the faculty. A versatile musician and pianist, he appears frequently throughout the Midwest as a revivatist and chamber musician. He has also presented lecture-recitals in Mexico, and last November, he was a guest of the American Embassy in Portugal where he presented a two-week recital tour of the major cities and conservatories.

Aschbrenner performs regularly on campus and last season was featured in a performance of Gershwin's Rhapsody in Blue with the Hope College Wind Ensemble. He also teaches music theory courses.

One of his teaching areas of special interest is eurhythmics, the study of musical rhythm through body movement. He received his training and certification for this work at the Dalcroze School of Music in New York City.

The recital will be the same as any that American musicians can provide them. Furthermore, Gershwin is forbidden at their conservatories!

Aschbrenner holds degrees in piano performance from the University of Illinois and Yale University. He studied in Fontainebleau, France, with the noted teacher, Nadia Boulanger, and in New York with Adele Marcus. He has also coached with such famous pianists as Robert Casadesus, Clifford Curzon, Arthur Rubenstein and Menahem Pressler. Studying more currently at the Dorothy Taubman School of Piano, he is noting the relationship of piano technique for virtuosity and for the prevention of pain and injury. A reception sponsored by Delta Sigma Nu and the Hollis Sisters and Friends — a group of men — gave an enthusiastic audience over an hour of solid gospel music.

This was the second year the Hollis sisters performed at Hope, and there was good reason for the return engagement. They cranked out tight gospel music as they beckoned their audience to come closer to Jesus. This time around, it seemed that they were a little louder and a little less technically coordinated than I remembered them during some of their patter, the band didn't seem to know whether to play or stop playing — but these were minor points. The Hollis Sisters and Friends have got their act together both vocally and spiritually. Hope College would do well to make them an annual musical tradition. After a ten minute intermission the concert began with "Sequenz" by Luciano Berio, the only all flute piece in the performance. It was characterized by a seemingly chaotic progression filled with distortions and loud, sharp, notes. The show continued with "Sonata for Arpeggione and Piano D. 821" by Franz Schubert. The piece was long and in two parts, "Allegro moderato" and "Adagio—Allegretto," suggesting throughout alternation of images of birth, death, laughter, dancing, falling and on and on, ending at length with a long, low, note. The scheduled portion of the performance ended with "Fantasie Pastorale Hongroise Op. 26" by Franz Doppler, a piece that suggested to me a conversation between the vital spontaneity of youth and a repressive, world-wise and bitter maturity. The performance ended with an encore, a short, quick, fast little piece. Mr. Shocker reflected the music he played with his body language throughout the performance, most notably with his eyes and eyebrows. Periods of concentration in the pieces were reflected in his creased brow. In addition, his body rose and fell with the music, bending over for the low notes, almost standing on his toes for the high ones. Overall, this physical manifestation of the music contributed greatly to the performance.

A short biography of each performer was provided on the back of the program. Space does not allow me to include the many distinctions and awards won by each. Nevertheless, both performers were of the highest caliber, and, as the series title suggests it was indeed a great performance, my only criticism being the lack of good acoustics in Dimnnett.

The series will conclude Thursday, April 7, with a performance by Cellist Christopher Kostanza, Clarinetist Daniel McKeeley, and Pianist Reina Dakhirshi, entitled "Music by Three."
Student Development: More Than It Seems

An Interview With Dean Beal

By Eric Shotwell
anchor News Editor

Last week, the anchor met with Philip Beal, Dean of Student Development here at Hope College, in order to bridge the gap somewhat between the campus community and the Student Development Office, and discuss some programs that currently affect the college. This article is the result of this interview with Dean Beal, and represents his viewpoints as well as those of the Student Development Office as a whole.

The Student Development Office is composed of the following programs and offices: Campus Ministry; Career Planning and Placement; Counseling; Disabled Students' Services; Food Service; Health Services; Multicultural Life; Orientation; Residential Life; Substance Abuse Education; Student Activities; and Work-Learning. The views presented here are not necessarily the views of the anchor, its staff, or any students of the college.

anchor: What made you decide to do this interview?
Beal: Well, this all started at the suggestion of a Student Congress committee that I met with almost a year ago during fall semester. I went to several presentations in dorms throughout the college, and it seemed that to expand the coverage some, I should speak to both the anchor and WTHS.

anchor: What kinds of things are you interested in getting across to the students here at Hope College?
Beal: In my dorm presentations, I tried to illustrate functionally what it is that the Student Development Office does.

In a broad sense, Student Development is attempting to help students collect their own resources and fit them alongside their own growth as a person. You'd hope that some changes in a person would take place in the 3 or 4 years here, and we don't pretend to be totally responsible for the change, but in areas that we deal with, we want to help along the way.

anchor: Student Development is basically counseling then, right?
Beal: Well, in a sense, but when you say a counseling program, I'm not sure exactly what people think of. We try to think of it in terms of helping people cope, for example, with physical or emotional abuses that they have encountered in their lives. We try, for example, to try discovering the questions of identity and where they are going to fit, and trying to see how come they can't get along with other people if it's a problem, or why it is that they get so angry, why it is that they can't handle alcohol.

There are all kinds of reasons why a person might come to counseling, but yes, that's a part of what we consider Student Development.

anchor: What other areas does Student Development work?
Beal: Multicultural Life, for example. When we think of the many incidents that did take place on this campus, as recently as last semester, in identifying these incidents as 'racist' might be a little strong, because that's a gross misunderstanding of how people ought to relate to other people. There's a student, I believe, in his second year, who's had a difficult time in his past. So he might feel that people may think that they need to be more accepting of other people. That's another area of counseling, but it may affect different things in different areas of counseling, and we do try to keep those two separate.

anchor: Would you say then that there's no try to alter the beliefs of people?
Beal: Yes, somewhat, although that might be a bit of a long term for it. Because underlying beliefs is very difficult because people have pretty strong beliefs whether they are aware of it or not, and it's difficult to change the associations and experiences in the past. What's even harder is changing the underlying beliefs of a person may think that they need to be more accepting of other cultures, and they may act differently. That's in part why we have a Multicultural Life program.

anchor: Does Bruce King, being a minority of your staff, have any effect on the things that go on in Student Development, then?
Beal: Well, you have to realize, Bruce has experienced racism because he is black, it is very difficult for people who are not black, or not white, it can be hard. It is very difficult to relate, or to even attempt, to what it could be like for a person of a minority race or culture. That's a year-long thing, and we should talk about things on a daily basis, but it's nice to emphasize it in some new ways once in a while.

anchor: You see these things as the same kind of process as with Disabled Student Awareness, I remember so well what it was like last year, to see people manipulating wheelchairs who have never seen one before. You learn many things with exposure like this, one of which is that you have to see the world from 3 feet high. It's a window into a thing that generates awareness, but it's not to generate sympathy, since that's not its purpose. A lot of things that go on here at Hope are that way: They've got benefits to everyone that aren't always readily apparent. Mainly, it helps us all see that everyone should be treated as human, rather than as black or white or handicapped, or anything like that.

anchor: It seems that there's a lot more to Student Development than most people think. What are the areas you involved in here on campus?
Beal: Well, the whole area of Leadership Development. When you have a budget to run, they contact their parent, and they are responsible for the budget. They have to be in charge of a program. It helps them develop as a person, more than just the knowledge gained in a classroom environment does. It's even useful on a resume or in an interview with an organization, it involves responsibility, and in some cases, even involves a conflict resolution.

anchor: What kinds of responsibilities or conflicts?
Beal: The first one that springs to mind is that a Greek Organization. There's a lot of emphasis on fellowship, on getting acquainted with a small group of peers, and the kind of pressures that people may see in the Greek system. It's even useful on a resume or in an interview with an organization, it involves responsibility, and in some cases, even involves a conflict resolution.

anchor: Do you see it as a problem that, with increasing diversity on campus, many Hope students aren't from the Reformed Church?
Beal: No, I don't see it as a problem. Only about 30 percent of our students are from the Reformed Church, and a large percentage of these interview other cultures, other denominations, but how strong each person's relationship is with his faith is varied. Granted, it's not the first requirement that most students come to Hope College. They come here because it's got a good academic program, it's an excellent small liberal arts school. There might be other reasons that are more significant. But you wouldn't get the same kind of questions at Michigan State or Western Michigan, that you do here. I've been to a couple of state schools and sure, they have some Bible study in the dorms, but those are kind of on the periphery, they're the exception and not the rule. It should be natural to be involved in a religious experience, just as it's natural to be involved in athletic programs or music programs. It should be just an accepted function of life here at Hope, that it's something people can do. It's not for everybody, but we hope everybody will give it a shot.

anchor: Do you have anything else you'd like to mention, to say to the campus in general, then?
Beal: Okay, just by way of a wrap-up, there are a lot of students that may not have the slightest idea of what Student Development is, at least up until this article, and there are others who may have a feeling like that's where all the rules and regulations reside. I'm hopeful that means of explaining that, and other methods, will come to realize that it's not just students involved in religion, but in some kinds of services, which are really important here to improve their educational experience. The rules and regulations that are in pretty small aspect of what we do overall, and there's much more here for the benefit of the students. Also, I want people to feel that they can come in and talk to me at any time.

ACCELERATE YOUR EDUCATION

Attend Wayne State University as a "guest student" this summer and transfer your credits to the institution you attend in the fall and winter. To ensure that courses taken at WSU fulfill degree requirements at the institution at which you are enrolled, obtain a Uniform Michigan Guest Student application form from your college registrar and complete it before coming to Wayne State.

The Spring/Summer semester at Wayne State offers eight and thirteen week semesters and you don't need to be formally admitted to take most courses.

For more information, write:
Wayne State University,
Spring/Summer '88, 5001 Cass, Detroit, MI 48202.

Wayne State University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer.
Freeze Frame

If you could be or have the job of anyone at Hope College, who would it be?

Angela Carey
Senior
“I’d like to work in admissions and be in charge of recruitment. I was impressed by how Hope stayed in contact with me by phone and mail when I was deciding where to go to school.”

Constance Jennings
Senior
“I’d like Juke’s job, so I could hang out at Juke’s joint.” (Juke’s is the music building custodian.)

Rob Hodson
Senior
“I’d like to be professor Bob Thompson. He’s living proof that blondes have more fun.”

Amy Von Ins
Sophomore
“I’d like to be the president because you get to live in a big house for free.”

Jim Getzinger
Junior
“ ‘I’d just like to be a professor. I enjoy teaching.”

Forensic Team Does Well In Competition

The Hope College Forensic Association Individual Events team made an outstanding showing in their first intercollegiate competition at Rock Valley College last weekend.

Nancy Bates took top honors in Impromptu Speaking (novice) and placed third in Informative Speaking (novice). Jon Vanden Heuvel ranked fourth in the final round in Impromptu Speaking (novice). Vanden Heuvel also competed in Persuasive Speaking, and Bates performed Dramatic Interpretation for her third event.

Teammates Shawn Neville and Hisatsugu Kitahara received good comments from their judges for their efforts in Persuasive Speaking and Impromptu Speaking. Kitahara was cited especially for his ability to handle the challenge of impromptu speaking in a “second” language.

Tournament competitors represented the top speech teams in the country including Bradley, Eastern Michigan, and South Illinois and came from as far away as University of California at Berkley.

The Hope Individual Events Team is coached by Prof. Sandy Alsapch.

Wind Ensemble Performs March 9

The Hope College Wind Ensemble, conducted by Russell Floyd, will present a concert at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, March 9, in Dimnent Memorial Chapel. The Wind Ensemble is comprised of 40 students of varying majors and utilizes the concept of one player per part.

Everyone is invited to attend this free concert.

McCoy Tells Stories Well

By David Lambert
anchor Writer

Storytelling is an art which sometimes seems destined to be overshadowed by the trend toward print and television. Fortunately, people like Sarah McCoy refuse to let the stories die.

McCoy told some of her stories in the DePree Art Gallery on Monday, Feb. 29. Her audience was transfixed as she told an African story which explained why the sky was far away, and as she spun a yarn about Anansi and Nikumbu. She told of a slave whose true love turned him into a pine tree, and she told of how Briar Rabbit showed an alligator trouble.

When asked an audience member asked if she told true stories, she responded by telling the tale of Sojourner Truth.

As she told her stories, Ms. McCoy radiated a serene, yet powerful presence that undergirded the rhythm and meaning of her words. The light of distant times and places shone through her, making the stories as real as the people who told them.

It is a wonderful experience to be in the presence of someone who has found their calling; Sarah McCoy has found hers — master storyteller.

Deadline For Chicago Humanities Seminar

The flavor of urban life on Chicago’s near north side combined with a challenging academic program is what has attracted juniors and seniors to the Newberry Library’s Humanities Seminar for the past 24 years.

The Seminar is a full-semester-credit program held each fall in which about 20 students from liberal arts colleges work on guided research projects of their own choice and share the insights thus gained about a common theme. Topic for the Fall 1988 seminar is “Cultural Encounters in the New World.”

The Newberry Library is a world-renowned research center with thousands of books and unique manuscripts in a range of specialized fields: Native American history and ethnology, American and European history, music, mapmaking, family and social history and the culture of the Midwest, to mention a few.

All these resources are available to the student researchers.

Cosponsored by the Great Lakes Colleges Association to which Hope belongs, the program has a March 15 application deadline. Interested students should contact Professor Charles Huttar, ext. 7617, for more information and application forms.
Hope Women Swimmers Capture Title, Men Take Second

The Hopewomen's swimming team was highly successful in the NCAA Division III national championships held in Atlanta, Ga. They captured first place overall, with the men's team finishing second. The team's performance was a testament to the hard work and dedication of the athletes, under the guidance of head coach Dr. George Kraft.

Hope ended with 636 points, followed by Kalamazoo with 454, Calvin 263, Albion 250, Adrian 200, Alma 172, and Olivet 91. The Kalamazoo men finished second at the conference following a strong performance. The Hope women's team dominated the event, capturing first place in 14 events.

One of the highlights of the event was the performance of Hope's Roosevelt Russell, who captured three individual national championships in the 50-yard, 100-yard, and 200-yard freestyles. She also gained a berth in the NCAA Division III playoffs, but only the first one if I ever get past regional play.

The Flying Dutchman are comprised primarily of liberal arts colleges that are members of the Great Lakes Colleges Association, a consortium of 12 midwest liberal arts colleges which sponsors a number of academic programs. In recent years Ohio Wesleyan has been a recognized national Division III soccer power.

Deleware is a community of 30,000 people and is near Columbus, Ohio. The Flying Dutchmen competed in a holiday tournament at Ohio Wesleyan in January, 1985.

Hope to Play in NCAA Regional Tournament

Sixth Appearance in Seven Years

A first-ever NCAA Division III regional championship will be the goal of each of the four teams who'll compete in the Great Lakes regional men's basketball tournament at Ohio Wesleyan University in Deleware, Ohio this Friday and Saturday, March 4-5.

The MIAA champion Hope College Flying Dutchmen (18-11-0) will face Muskingum College (21-7) of the Ohio Athletic Conference in a first round game at 6 p.m. Friday. The second game will pit host Ohio Wesleyan University (22-5) against Ohio Northern University (20-8).

The Flying Dutchmen will be making their sixth straight appearance in seven years in the Division III playoffs. Hope has yet to get beyond the regional level through the Dutchmen have advanced to the regional finals three times.

Host Ohio Wesleyan will be making its first-ever appearance in the playoffs. The Battling Bishops were co-champions of the North Coast Athletic Conference which is comprised primarily of liberal arts colleges that were formerly members of the Ohio Athletic Conference.

Like Hope, Muskingum gained a berth in the tournament as an automatic qualifier by virtue of winning the Ohio Athletic Conference post-season tournament this past weekend with a 46-45 victory over OAC regular season champion Ohio Northern.

Muskingum will be making its third appearance in the Division III playoffs, but only the second in the Great Lakes regional tournament. The Fighting Muskies appeared in the Great Lakes Regional in 1977, competed in the West Regional in 1961 and were seeded in the Northeast Regional in 1983. Like Hope, Ohio Northern will be making its third Division III playoff appearance, all in the Great Lakes Regional. The Polar Bears last competed in 1982 when the regional tournament was played at Hope. Ohio Norther lost to eventual national champion Wabash, Ind., in the first round of the 81-61. Ohio Northern also competed in the 1980 regionals, defeating Calvin in the first round, 62-50, before bowing to OAC rival Wittenberg.

Earlier this season Ohio Northern defeated Hope in a holiday tournament at Heidelberg College, 81-65. Ohio Wesleyan University is a four-year co-educational liberal arts college with an enrollment of 1,500. Both Hope and Ohio Wesleyan are members of the Great Lakes Colleges Association, a consortium of 12 midwest liberal arts colleges which sponsors a number of academic programs. In recent years Ohio Wesleyan has been a recognized national Division III soccer power.

Boyce and Mys Tops In Racquetball

By Ben Hanneman, anchor Sports Editor

They have been dubbed "the two best student racquetball players Hope College has ever seen" according to Dr. George Kraft, director of Hope's racquetball program. They are junior Bob Boyce and freshman Courier Mys, who in Hope's Feb. 6 tournament finished first and second respectively.

"Other Hope students in that tournament included quarterfinalists Brian Schrader, Dave Hoffman, Troy Shumaker, Kurt DeGoede, Teri Heetderks, an consolation champion Tim Moermond.

Boyce faced Mys in the championship game and emerged victorious 11-15, 15-2, 11-0.

"Courtey played well," said Boyce. "I had played her before so I knew what kind of a challenge she would be." The two are interesting contrasts in their approaches to the game itself, with Boyce taking a low key attitude and Mys playing more competitively. "I play just for fun and to stay in shape," Boyce added. "At that's probably the only reason I'll ever play." Mys, on the other hand has been playing for eight years and has had five private coaches.

"My family joined a racquet club when I was 10 years old. One of the pros saw me playing there one time and told my parents if I began training I had a good chance at being successful." Mys, Boyce, and Moermund played in the Ferris State tournament in which Mys was the highest Hope finisher at fourth place.

"I could have played better, but hindsight is always 20-20 I guess. The woman that beat me went on to win the whole tournament," she added. Mys, just a freshman out of Rockford High School, has always played against older people because of her talent.

"I got sort of a reputation around the club," she kidded. "The older women would see me coming and would hide because they knew how powerful my game was and didn't want to play me." Courtey is currently a junior tournament player, but has had visions of the professional circuit.

"I've thought about it, it's pretty competitive and to go pro and you need to be sponsored. I would have to wear and use the products of quite a few tournaments and right now I'm not playing in enough to be worth the cost."

Mys hopes to play racquetball for as long as she can, which for this 18-year-old phenom could be a long, long time.
USA has had despite that fact they did not win many medals in the XV Olympics. At first, I didn't think they would win any gold medals this year. Why? Accidents. Team USA could not seem to rid themselves of their accident prone tendencies. First there was the United States hockey team, more famous for their miracle comeback in 1980 over the Soviets. This year the U.S. team famous for their miracle Czech in their second round game. After jumping out to a 3-0 lead Team USA accidentally gave up seven goals to team Czechoslovakia and lost the whole shooting match 7-5, and eventually lost their chance for gold. The worker, Calgary native Steve Lounds, 27, suffered knee damage and a bruised hand. I've heard that skiing is a spectator sport, but that's carrying literalism a bit too far. Team USA was able to boast two other golds on the ice though as Brian Bolzano skated out of his mind to beat Brian Orser and Bonnie Blair skated out of the arena with a world record in the 1000-meter sprint. The biggest example of heart, though, comes in the form of Dan Jansen, possibly the best speed skater in the U.S. since Eric Heiden. Prior to the 500-meter sprint Jansen already had the weight of the world on his shoulder. Dan's sister, Jane was dying of leukemia in Wisconsin and he had considered dropping out to donate some of his bone marrow to save her. As per her request just hours before the race Jansen decided to remain in the competition. Three hours later Jane died and later that night so did Dan's chances at the gold. Rounding the first turn Jansen slipped and crashed into the side-paddling, weighed down, said Sports Illustrated, by a heavy heart. For many of us that would have been enough to send us packing back to mom, dad, apple pie and Chevrolet. But not Jansen. He had one more chance to make a name for himself. This time though he fell again just meters from the finish line and for Jansen the Olympics proved as cold as the ice on which he skated.

Were the gods of Mt. Olympus not happy? More than any other I've watched these Olympic Games have shown the character of the true Olympic athlete.

It shows up not only in Jansens's will to compete despite it all, but also in the athletes who have trained for years knowing that they only have two chances of winning: slim and none. Take, for example, the Puerto Rican bobsled team and the lone biathlete from Guam, or even Eddie “the eagle" Edwards. For me, just to compete would be enough.

My hat is off to Dan Jansen, the rest of Team USA, and the rest of the athletes if for nothing else, their heart.

As for the debauchery that ABC showed I have one suggestion: Why not package the entire 94 hours on video tape and call it “How the West was Won...and Lost.”

By Ben Hanneman anchor Sports Editor

Dutchmen Lose To G.R. Baptist

By Ben Hanneman anchor Sports Editor

What a difference a game makes!
After dumping the Albion Britons to clinch their seventh MIAA title the Dutchmen bowed to the Grand Rapids Baptist Comets in an 83-81 heartbreaker.

"I'm not making any excuses for anybody," said coach Glenn Van Wieren. "They (Baptist) played well. The last play was beautiful and they deserved to win."

On that "last play" junior guard Scott O'Day, who poured in 29 points on the night, launched a jumper in heavy traffic with 32 left to put his team ahead to stay 82-81.

"This was not a good deal for us. We've certainly played better. We just weren't reacting and moving quick enough. Offensively they were able to do whatever they wanted to do."

From the word go everything seemed a bit out of synch for Hope as they looked more like a team just playing out the season than like league champions.

The Comets made little more than half their shots in the game shooting 55 percent, but the Dutchmen shot even worse at 49 percent.

"The key to this game, though, was rebounding," Van Wieren added. "We were outrebounded all night (19-15), especially on the defensive boards (14-7). It will be interesting to see how we rebound in the tournament after this."

Despite the disappointing loss Van Wieren assured that his team would be ready come tournament time.

"I do not think that this will hurt our concentration any when it comes to practice. We've got to put this one aside, work hard to prepare for the tournament and go. We'll be ready."

One bright spot in the all too dismal game for Hope was that Matt Strong headed seven points and got 13 to become Hope's 15th all-time leading scorer with 1,004 points, surpassing the old record held by Marty Snaap ('68-72) by one point.

In doing so the senior center became the 16th Dutmen to achieve that distinction, but only the third to do it in just three years.

Jim Klunder also moved to within 28 of the millenium mark with a 26-point performance.

PARTY
with Campus Marketing
YOUR BEST DEAL TO DAYTONA BEACHFRONT HOTELS

YOU DRIVE (TO THE PARTY) $129

WE DRIVE (THE PARTY STARTS HERE) $209

INCLUDES:
• Round trip motor coach transportation to beautiful Daytona Beach (WE DO NOT PACKAGE ONLY). We use nothing but modern highway coaches — never a bus.
• Eight Florida days/seven endless nights at one of our exciting oceanfront hotels located right on the Daytona Beach strip. Your hotel has a beautiful pool, sun deck, or conditioned rooms, case TV, and a nice long stretch of beach.
• A full schedule of FREE pool deck parties every day.
• A full list of pre-arranged discounts to save you money in Daytona Beach.
• Airport transfers (some), please use a smooth tip and a good time.
• Optional side excursions to Disney World, Epcot, deep sea fishing, party cruises, etc.
• All taxes and tips.

Spend a Week — Not a Fortune

For further information and sign up CALL x 6198

After 5PM Weekdays Anytime Weekends

Ask for Shannon!

Sponsored by Campus Marketing "Enriched Professionals Through College Life"
They came for me yesterday. I'm not paranoid, but I always knew they were out there. I noticed them the beginning here at Hope College. My room is filled with dust. I used to think that it came from out of the air in some type of spontaneous generation. I also thought it was very normal to have dust in the room. Little did I guess. Everything would have continued as normal if I hadn't decided to clean the solid sheet of dust off my computer. As I was always on the lookout for dusty, it was coated half an hour later I was sitting at my dusty computer when I heard a strange rumble that had nothing to do with lunch. I glanced around uncertain. I knew I wasn't alone in the room, but no one was there. I became uneasy.

The room started to simmer as if the very dust on the furniture was suddenly standing at attention. It looked like this because it was. The dust was alive and I was, The dust was alive and I was standing at attention. It became uneasy.

From my keyboard came a small voice that sounded like Jimmy Carter trying to do a Bruce Springsteen imitation and failing miserably. The voice ordered me to sit back in my chair. I obeyed, wanting the voice to start singing; I'm not that strong. The dust punched keys and soon a question was written on my computer screen. Not wanting to hear that voice again I replied:

Dust: Did you clean the fan?
Me: Yeah.
Dust: Why?
Me: Because it was getting dust on everything.

Dust: That was it's purpose, you herniated idiot.
Me: What do you mean?
Dust: Can't you read your own screen?
Me: I'm talking to dust?
Dust: How did you get to Hope? I've met smarter house plants that were pregnant.

Me:

Dust: Good thinking, Sherlock. The boss wants to cover Holland with dust and then sand and make a new sand dune national park. Sleeping Bear Dunes is getting a bit boring. Anyway, the boss wants you to deliver our message to Hope College.

Me: The students are kind of apathetic. Do you think they will believe I've talked to dust?
Dust: Did I ask you to think? I will get them out of your lethargy. You have no idea our power. Look at yourself. You pushed us to actually talk and try to improve your surroundings by cleaning a stupid fan. We'll get a Girls' Aid out of the student body eventually. Trust us, we've been here before.

Okay faithful readers, the dust has returned to its usual state here in my room. Here's their message through. Are you going to pack for Kazoo? I'm not and I don't care what this paper says anymore.

Anchor Uses
sexist language

I am writing to express my offense at the language in the Feb. 24 issue of The Anchor. The article on page 2 entitled “Freshmen Bids Assaulted” contains sexist language in both the headline and the article. I would like to make it clear that my problem is not with the article itself, but with the choice of words. I realize this problem is not confined to this article alone (and certainly no one can blame the anchor) and this is in no way meant as a personal attack against the writer.

Using the term freshman in a situation involving two female students is not inappropriate (exactly which male students were assaulted?) It is much more appropriate to use the term Freshperson or Freshwomen. In addition, the two women are referred to in the headline, and repeatedly throughout the article, as girls. This term is also inappropriate when referring to college students. I see few, if any, reference to male students at Hope College as boys and believe women deserve the same respect. This objection may seem nit-picky and unimportant to some, but I do believe this is the case. Language is a powerful force that greatly affects how we think of ourselves and others, and needs to be dealt with in a serious manner.

I have noticed and appreciated the anchor’s use of non-sexist language in other articles. I hope that, in the future, the anchor will give the issue of non-sexist language consistent consideration in order to produce a higher quality publication.

KAREN FROMHOLD

The Anchor

Dust comes alive

Jim Monnett

Editorial

Rumor Mill Works Too Well

We could say we told you so, but we are not that vindictive. Yet, the current problems experienced by many Greek organizations are not surprising. In light of the recent reports on hazing, we stress again the need for the Greeks of Hope to unite together and help each other. The administration can fight each of you. It cannot fight all of you. That brings up an interesting question. Do the Greeks need to fight the administration at all? Maybe not, but they do need to stick up for themselves.

We all need to stand up for what we believe in. To remain firm in our beliefs and ideals. It does not matter what the cause is: the prevention of AIDS, sexual harassment, apartheid, tuition hikes, etc.

The majority of the campus is NOT Greek. In fact, less than 20 percent belong to fraternities or sororities. However, the campus community should be aware of the situation. The quality of life at Hope is directly and indirectly influenced by the Greek system. For example, the student director of SAC is Greek. The Student Congress President is Greek. The general manager of WTHS is Greek. And the editor of The Anchor is Greek.

The non-Greek community has taken a role in causing problems for the Greeks, too. The rumor mill at Hope works far too well. Both the Greeks and Bruce King have stressed that unsubstantiated rumors around the campus have added greatly to confusion regarding pledging violations involving some fraternities and sororities.

It causes other problems as well. If Bruce King and the Student Development staff have to spend the majority of their time investigating, reviewing, and disciplining the Greek system (and the rumors), other student organizations will undoubtedly suffer. It’s already hard enough to get an appointment with Bruce King.

Communication is essential. But false communication does no good. We would like to see the recent Greek issues put to rest. But as Prof. Boyd Wilson reported to the Campus Life Board in January, the topic of Greek life will occupy the Board’s agenda for a number of months, even years.

The anchor’s influence is not measurable. We know we speak to many deaf ears. But, we will continue to recommend what action we feel is necessary. That’s our job. It’s up to the Greeks, the administration, and the campus to do the rest. Change comes so slowly in some areas and too quickly in others. We have mentioned that before.

We recommend that the college reach an agreement with the resigned advisors of each fraternity and sorority. And approve the appointments of advisors for organizations that do not have them.

We recommend that a fair and active judicial board governing the Greeks be established. One that will function properly, with substantial representation. The present Greek Forum has yet to do any of that.

Finally, we recommend the college form a permanent Greek committee as part of the Campus Life Board. Believe it or not, Greeks are very important to Hope College. They are some of the most loyal alumni of the past, present, and future. We would like their support to continue.

Anchor Uses

Sexist Language

I am writing to express my offense at the language in the Feb. 24 issue of The Anchor. The article on page 2 entitled “Freshmen Bids Assaulted” contains sexist language in both the headline and the article. I would like to make it clear that my problem is not with the article itself, but with the choice of words. I realize this problem is not confined to this article alone (and certainly no one can blame the anchor) and this is in no way meant as a personal attack against the writer.

Using the term freshman in a situation involving two female students is not inappropriate (exactly which male students were assaulted?) It is much more appropriate to use the term Freshperson or Freshwomen. In addition, the two women are referred to in the headline, and repeatedly throughout the article, as girls. This term is also inappropriate when referring to college students. I see few, if any, reference to male students at Hope College as boys and believe women deserve the same respect. This objection may seem nit-picky and unimportant to some, but I do believe this is the case. Language is a powerful force that greatly affects how we think of ourselves and others, and needs to be dealt with in a serious manner.

I have noticed and appreciated the anchor’s use of non-sexist language in other articles. I hope that, in the future, the anchor will give the issue of non-sexist language consistent consideration in order to produce a higher quality publication.

KAREN FROMHOLD

Opinion

Editorial

Rumor Mill Works Too Well

We could say we told you so, but we are not that vindictive. Yet, the current problems experienced by many Greek organizations are not surprising. In light of the recent reports on hazing, we stress again the need for the Greeks of Hope to unite together and help each other. The administration can fight each of you. It cannot fight all of you. That brings up an interesting question. Do the Greeks need to fight the administration at all? Maybe not, but they do need to stick up for themselves.

We all need to stand up for what we believe in. To remain firm in our beliefs and ideals. It does not matter what the cause is: the prevention of AIDS, sexual harassment, apartheid, tuition hikes, etc.

The majority of the campus is NOT Greek. In fact, less than 20 percent belong to fraternities or sororities. However, the campus community should be aware of the situation. The quality of life at Hope is directly and indirectly influenced by the Greek system. For example, the student director of SAC is Greek. The Student Congress President is Greek. The general manager of WTHS is Greek. And the editor of The Anchor is Greek.

The non-Greek community has taken a role in causing problems for the Greeks, too. The rumor mill at Hope works far too well. Both the Greeks and Bruce King have stressed that unsubstantiated rumors around the campus have added greatly to confusion regarding pledging violations involving some fraternities and sororities.

It causes other problems as well. If Bruce King and the Student Development staff have to spend the majority of their time investigating, reviewing, and disciplining the Greek system (and the rumors), other student organizations will undoubtedly suffer. It’s already hard enough to get an appointment with Bruce King.

Communication is essential. But false communication does no good. We would like to see the recent Greek issues put to rest. But as Prof. Boyd Wilson reported to the Campus Life Board in January, the topic of Greek life will occupy the Board’s agenda for a number of months, even years.

The anchor’s influence is not measurable. We know we speak to many deaf ears. But, we will continue to recommend what action we feel is necessary. That’s our job. It’s up to the Greeks, the administration, and the campus to do the rest. Change comes so slowly in some areas and too quickly in others. We have mentioned that before.

We recommend that the college reach an agreement with the resigned advisors of each fraternity and sorority. And approve the appointments of advisors for organizations that do not have them.

We recommend that a fair and active judicial board governing the Greeks be established. One that will function properly, with substantial representation. The present Greek Forum has yet to do any of that.

Finally, we recommend the college form a permanent Greek committee as part of the Campus Life Board. Believe it or not, Greeks are very important to Hope College. They are some of the most loyal alumni of the past, present, and future. We would like their support to continue.

Anchor Uses

Sexist Language

I am writing to express my offense at the language in the Feb. 24 issue of The Anchor. The article on page 2 entitled “Freshmen Bids Assaulted” contains sexist language in both the headline and the article. I would like to make it clear that my problem is not with the article itself, but with the choice of words. I realize this problem is not confined to this article alone (and certainly no one can blame the anchor) and this is in no way meant as a personal attack against the writer.

Using the term freshman in a situation involving two female students is not inappropriate (exactly which male students were assaulted?) It is much more appropriate to use the term Freshperson or Freshwomen. In addition, the two women are referred to in the headline, and repeatedly throughout the article, as girls. This term is also inappropriate when referring to college students. I see few, if any, reference to male students at Hope College as boys and believe women deserve the same respect. This objection may seem nit-picky and unimportant to some, but I do believe this is the case. Language is a powerful force that greatly affects how we think of ourselves and others, and needs to be dealt with in a serious manner.

I have noticed and appreciated the anchor’s use of non-sexist language in other articles. I hope that, in the future, the anchor will give the issue of non-sexist language consistent consideration in order to produce a higher quality publication.

KAREN FROMHOLD
Opinion New York Arts Program Isn’t Worthwhile

By David Lambert
anchor Writer

This column is dedicated to Lowell Rinker, my former supervisor and mentor in Hart, Hugh, whose infamous columns are titled “Rambling with Rink.”

Spring is finally in the air... two more weeks and Spring Break will finally be here. The week after vacation we’ll print The Rancher, Hope’s annual lampoon of local college life. If you have any suggestions or ideas, drop us a note at the office. We have some good stories in the works already.

The Kletz coffee shop doesn’t sport a gourmet menu, but they do come up with some surprises. They had crab legs a while back. However, their staple seems to be chocolate chip cookies... I eat one just about every day.

The new micro-computer lab in Van Wylen Library is a great idea. They actually have IBM compatible Zenith’s and Apple computers, too. The printers are top notch. It would be nice to have more... but we probably have a better setup than most small colleges.

Have you heard about the Riverview Development Project? Basically, it’s a plan to rejuvenate the downtown waterfront area. The developers behind the idea have staked out 100 acres of land develop. Included in this area is Hope College. Two of the main planners are former President Gerdon Van Wylen and alumnus Tom Wolterink. One of the ideas is to build a new basketball arena on Fairbanks Avenue where the old foundry building is located. Sound good?

One of the questions at a recent faculty meeting was, “Why is brown brick being used on the new admissions building?” A good question from the students might be, “Does it matter?”

The anchor has been criticized lately for not covering the faculty meeting, Academic Affairs Board, and Campus Life. In turn, I will criticize the people who issue the agendas or the mailroom itself. I planned on being at the last faculty meeting. However, I got the agenda at 11:45 a.m. on Tuesday. The meeting was at 11 a.m. on Tuesday. See the problem?

The anchor has been criticized for its columns. If you are titled “Rambling with Rink,” you have any suggestions or ideas, drop us a note at the office. We have some good stories in the works already.

The anchor needs a desktop system! Van Wylen Library is a great idea. They actually have IBM computers, too. The printers are top notch. It would be nice to have more... but we probably have a better setup than most small colleges.

For The Record...

An article in last week’s issue about the South African Scholarship program incorrectly stated that the Alpha Gamma Phi sorority presented Neil Sobania with a $100 check. The donation was actually made by the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity. However, according to Sobania, the Alpha Gamma Phi’s are welcome to make a donation, too.

ATTENTION STUDENTS! Bruce King needs a 36-hour day! "School Daze" is a movie all Greeks don’t want to miss! According to an associate who has seen the movie in Ann Arbor, it deals with the rushing and judging activities of Greeks at a small, black college in the south. They include the hazing and all! Not that any of Hope’s fraternities and sororities would need any more ideas...

Speaking of movies, remember that book "Ironweed" we had to read in Prof. Boulton’s ‘Religion and Society’ class? Well, it’s now a movie staring Jack Nicholson. Crazy Jack might win an Oscar for it, too.

"The Winter Olympics were good..." "The Olympics were great..." "The Olympics... they were terrible!" The American hockey team has no defense. The skaters can’t skate. Eddie Edwards can’t jump. By the way, did Frank Gifford and Kathie Lee get married?

A young woman (notice I didn’t say girl) wrote this week and said she was offended by an article we ran last week. It contained the headline, "Freshman Girls Assaulted." She commented that The anchor wasn’t the only organization guilty of this type of "sexism" on campus. It’s true, even the Hope catalog still describes first year females AND males as Freshman. However, we will not change our usage. At least not as long as I’m sitting in the editor chair. Call me sexist, call me a chauvinist, call me whatever... but chairwoman, or chairperson, or femmale are awkward expressions.

And someone better apply CPR to the women libbers, they just had a heart attack reading this.

The program offers three or four tickets to oddball musical and theatrical events which were worth less than $100. Thus, even being generous with the figures, the total worth of the program is less than $1,270. That it costs $3,000 is criminal.

It is hard to describe how frustrating it is to be in a city which offers itself up to you for cash when you’re not making money and working 40 hours a week to boot. This is why I eventually decided to let the New York Arts Program and my musical and theatrical interests hang, so I could stick to my paying job. That was when I really started enjoying myself.

If the New York Arts Program was the only way to get into New York City, I would warn you about it, and then would enthusiastically encourage you to go. However, the New York Arts Program is probably one of the most expensive, most frustrating, most inhumane experiences one can have in the city. What a shock to those who were in the program advised me to seriously consider the benefits of the program, everyone else who I told about the program laughed loudly.

Otherways to get into the city abound. Hunter College offers a junior year in New York program, and I’m sure other colleges in the city would accommodate sojourning students. In addition, Hope will grant credit for a dependent internship experience in the city, which would give one the opportunity to look for the internship they wanted.

Whatever you do, plan ahead; go to the city in search of internships and apartments well in advance of your semester start. Make sure that your classes at whatever school have been arranged. If you can’t find an internship, an apartment, or a paying job, you will want to try the New York Arts Program. But don’t say I didn’t warn you.
Living on the fringes of the Hope community, I rarely get to catch up its affairs, however, I always keep abreast of the relationship between the college and the Greek system.

From what I've seen, the Greek community at Hope has lately been under a great deal of pressure. In a speech last week the president of the college said that he had authorized an investigation to be started by the administration to find out how the Greek system was operating. He mentioned the presence of the Greek system "on campus." I'm not sure what he meant by that. It seems to me that if the Greek system is "on campus," it is more than likely because the students have invited it.

Mr. Kind, the president of the college, has recently enforced a minimum GPA for pledging which is higher than the minimum needed for every other organization on campus. He has allowed the position of fraternity and sorority advisor to be vacated by the fraternity and sorority advisor. What he has not allowed is for the Greek system to be disreputable. If the Greek system is "on campus," it is because the students have invited it. It is a weekly practice for our college administration to become involved in the lives of students and to "educate" them about doing things the right way. As a result of Mr. Kind's action, the Greek system has been disreputable.

Mr. Kind also has allowed potential pledges of one organization to overturn their bids in favor of another organization after the bid deadline. This wouldn't be so outrageous if it weren't illegal. Mr. Kind has also allowed potential pledges of one organization to change their minds and switch to another organization after the bid deadline. This wouldn't be so outrageous if it weren't illegal. Mr. Kind has also allowed potential pledges of one organization to withdraw their bids before the bid deadline. This wouldn't be so outrageous if it weren't illegal.

I think that Mr. Kind's actions have been intended to make the Greek system more reputable. However, I don't think he has been successful. The Greek system is still disreputable. I think that Mr. Kind's actions have been intended to make the Greek system more reputable. However, I don't think he has been successful. The Greek system is still disreputable.

The result of all these actions and inactions is that the Greek system has been almost unanimously feared and loathed. The Greek system has earned my contempt and disdain. His ideas are ill-conceived, his reasoning hollow, and his words are lies. But I doubt he will lose any sleep over this, and I will wake up in the morning as always ready to do my best to make the Greek system as possible.

Robert King

If you're a guy about to turn 18, you need to register with Selective Service at the post office. The reason is simple—federal law requires it. Registering is also simple. You just fill out a card. It only takes five minutes.

That's right, it's time to wake up REALITY. I'll try to take it easy for most people in saying it's rather difficult to take serious a camels mate. Rather, I'd like to get to the point at hand — sexual harassment, and add a new twist: discrimination.

There seems to be a lot of talk these days of how two campus organizations have incorporated sexually suggestive substance into their rush posters and table tents. I think taking a side and shut. It's as plain as the nose against those with no noses or matter out of that ol' dead horse. That evening I was brutally refereed to me! I remained in the dark as to why these people, my friends, had turned against me. That evening I was brutally made aware of a thing had brought on this violent verbal abuse. While enjoying my dinner and reading The anchor, I found (to my horror) a large ad sporting the quote, "Dipping is for DIPS!"

That's right, I chew tobacco. Can you say harassment? Sure... I knew you could. That's right... double reverse backwards discrimination!

In closing, I'd like to quote a famous dippier, "I have a dream..." Dippers Unite!

KEVIN D. SCHREUR
COSMOPOLITAN 306

I would like to respond to the review of "Good Morning Vietnam" that appeared in the Feb. 24 issue of The anchor. Obviously, the writer knows very little about the Vietnam War and the roles the Armed Forces Radio deejays played in it. It is their job to provide entertainment to the troops so they can theoretically get a mental break from the hell they are in. This is what Robin Williams was trying to depict. The film also showed a few very important things about the war that few films have shown. These include how the Viet Cong disguised themselves so well and also how, because of government regulations, WE lost the war.

This film had subtle, disguised meanings in it that anyone with a fair amount of knowledge about the Vietnam War could easily see.

PFCC Christophor Rork
U.S. Marine Corp
Kollen East 130

Great Lakes Pizza
317 Central Ave. At 13th St.
392-6080

Attention Hope College!
Great lakes Pizza wants to be your pizza place.

Open 7 Days
M-Th. 11 AM-1 AM, F-Sat. 11 AM-2 AM
Sun. 5 PM-12 AM

FREE DELIVERY
M-Th. 11 AM-1 AM, F-Sat. 11 AM-2 AM
Sun. 5 PM-12 AM

BIG MEAL DEAL FOR JUST GET A
$9.95 16" PIZZA
Plus a 2-LITER BOTTLE OF POP
With This Coupon

$1.00 off any 12" pizza exp. 3-9

$1.00 off any 2 stromboli exp. 3-9

$1.00 off any 2 subs exp. 3-9

$1.50 off any 14" pizza exp. 3-9

M.D.

The Volunteer Services Department of Holland Community Hospital is looking for college students to volunteer in the Intermediate and Critical Care Units during the evening hours. This would be good experience for those interested in a health related field. If you would be interested, please call 392-5141, ext. 140.

RESEARCH CAREERS

in Molecular and Cellular Physiology
Studies leading to the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees

The Department of Physiology, Wayne State University School of Medicine, has assistantship and several NIH-supported fellowship programs leading toward advanced degrees and career opportunities in biomedical research and teaching. The annual initial stipend for most of our fellowship programs is about $9,000 plus tuition and medical insurance. Special consideration will be given to students majoring in the biological sciences, chemistry, physics, and/or psychology.

For more information, write to:
Graduate Officer
Department of Physiology
Wayne State University
School of Medicine
Scott Hall 540 E. Canfield
Detroit, MI 48201
I Love You, Denise!!!
(Guess Who!?)

Mar. 2, 1988

332 College Avenue
Holland, Michigan 49423

DESIGNS IN HAIR
OPEN
TUES, THRU SAT,
PH. 396-2915

Anchor Files

15 years ago today...
March 2, 1973 -- The first abortion clinic in western Michigan opened in Grand Rapids. A dance marathon took place on campus with winners receiving a portable TV and an RCA stereo.

20 years ago today...
March 2, 1968 -- The Issues Symposium was based on topics ranging from “Black Mlaney” to “Lessons from Summer.” Numerous European study semesters were being offered including Madrid, Nantes, Paris, Vienna, and Freiberg.

30 years ago today...
March 2, 1958 -- Fraternities and sororities held a penny carnival to raise money to bring an Austrian exchange student to Hope. The all-college sing occurred in early spring, not fall.

This year the Darians and Cosmopolitans were victorious with their renditions of “Oklahoma” and “Thumbelina” respectively.

Best Buy continued from 3

Hope measured very well on all those counts. The college’s tuition, room, and board for 1987-88 is $10,314; this year’s freshman class averaged 1100 on the SAT and a 23 composite on the ACT; and one-fourth of Hope students are members of the Reformed Church in America, Hope’s affiliating denomination, while 72 percent of the college’s students are from Michigan.

Then, from a list of 100 colleges and universities who met the cost and academic standards, the panelists came to their final 62 college conclusion by selecting “the schools that they would readily recommend. Schools endorsed by three or more experts made our list,” said Changing Times.

The only other Michigan colleges included in the magazine’s list were Calvin College of Grand Rapids and Michigan State University of East Lansing.

I was in the Peace Corps

Overseas positions are available for all academic degrees, including Liberal Arts.

On-Campus interviews taking place March 16, 1988 in Dewitt Hall.

For more information call 394-7800 or 1-800-533-3231
EIGHT REASONS NOT TO USE SMOKELESS TOBACCO.

- I'll stay home before I date a dip.
- It's like kissing a spittoon.
- Major uncool.
- If you spit, you're not it.
- Yuck, Gross!
- Dips don't touch my lips.
- Smells like something died in his mouth.
- The first thing I notice about a boy is his smile. Ever see a dip's smile?

DIPPING IS FOR DIPS.

DON'T USE SNUFF OR CHEWING TOBACCO.