Sixty cents buys you a dollar's worth of boots, shoes and clothing at the marshal sale, 64 and 66 Canal street. 52-ly

We call the attention of ladies to the advertisement in this paper of "Dr. Marchi's Uterine Catholicon." We have in our possession indisputable evidence of its worth, and we recommend the afflicted to try it. This remedy differs from quack nostrums in the following respects: 1st. It is prepared by a regular physician; 2d. It is not recommended for all diseases, but only for a particular class, peculiar to females; 3d. It is recommended and used in practice by many physicians, one of whom at least is well known to the people of New Bedford. 47-ly

No one should neglect this rare opportunity in securing good bargains in boots, shoes and clothing at the marshal sale, 64 and 66 Canal street. 52-ly

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning. The signal perhaps of the sure approach of that more terrible disease Consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents, to run the risk and do nothing for it. He knows from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup, and Whooping Cough, at once. Mothers do not be without it. For Lame Back, Side or Chest, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Sold by D. R. Meenges.

Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of these distressing complaints. If you think so, call at our store and get a bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer, every bottle has a printed guarantee on it, use accordingly and if it does you no good it will cost you nothing. Sold by D. R. Meenges.

We have a speedy and positive cure for Catarrh, Diphtheria, Canker mouth and Head Ache, in SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. A nasal injector free with each bottle. Use it if you desire health and sweet breath. Price 50 cts. Sold by D. R. Meenges.

Do not neglect a Cough or Cold until it is too late, try Elliott's Extract of Tar and Wild Cherry, we are sure you will be convinced of its merits, Chronic Coughs, and even Consumptives are cured by following the directions, every bottle is warranted to give satisfaction. 40-ly

DR. JACQUES' German Worm Cakes stand unrivaled as a worm medicine. Give them a trial. Sold by all Druggists. 40-ly

UNCLE Sam's Nerve and Bone Liniment is most efficient in Rheumatism, Bruises, Burns, Scratches and many other ills incident to man and beast. Sold by all Druggists. 40-ly

WHEN horses and cattle are spiritless, scraggy and feeble they need treatment with Uncle Sam's Condition Powder. It purifies the blood, improves the appetite, cures Colds and Distempers, Invigorates the System and keep the Animal in a Healthy, Handsome Condition. Sold by all Druggists. 40-ly

An Entire Success.

It has been proved by the most reliable testimony that Thomas' Electric Oil is an entire success in curing the most inveterate cases of rheumatism, neuralgia, lame back, and wounds of every description.

THE United States marshal sale of boots, shoes and clothing, 64 and 66 Canal street, is fast approaching its close. The stock is decreased every day, for everybody is trying to purchase while there is a well selected stock on hand. As soon as the stock passes the hands of the marshal no one can ever get the same goods at 40 per cent. of each dollar. 52-ly

DR. TOWNS will return to the City Hotel, March 1st, for a few days, where he will make the treatment of chronic diseases a specialty. Consultation free and confidential. 52-ly

Common Council.

HOLLAND, Mich., Feb. 15, 1881.

The Common Council met in regular session and was called to order by the Mayor.

Aldermen present: Ter Vree, Beach, Butkau, Benkema, Kramer, Winter, Landaal, and the Clerk. Minutes of last two meetings read and approved.

The regular order of business was suspended, in order that the Committee of the Whole could report the result of their visit to Muskegon, on the question of water works.

Ald. Kuite appeared and took his seat.

(Here follows the report which will be found in another column.)

Accepted and ordered printed in the Hollander, Grandduet and the HOLLAND CITY NEWS.

PETITIONS AND ACCOUNTS.

M. D. Howard petitioned to have a special assessment tax of $8 remitted, he claiming that said tax was assessed on the south 45 feet of lot 11, block 29 when it should have been assessed on the north 35 feet of the south 80 feet.—Referred to the Com. on Ways and Means.

W. J. Scott and R. Kanter petitioned to have gasoline burners put in the street lamps on their premises, agreeing to donate said lamps to the city providing the city will keep them lighted.—Referred to the Com. on Streets and Bridges with power to act.

The following bills were presented for payment: G. J. Te Vaarwerk, paid poor orders, $ 4 75 Columbia Fire Engine Co., salaries, 102 75 H. D. Post, book and envelopes, 7 53 Peninsula Gas Light Co., oil and freight, 6 60 —Allowed and warrants ordered issued on the Treasurer for the amount.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES.

The Com. on Ways and Means reported the following.—See another column.

Accepted and ordered printed in full in the Hollander, Grandduet and HOLLAND CITY NEWS.

The Com. on Poor reported presenting the semi-monthly report of the Director of the Poor and said committee, recommending $34.80 for the support of the poor, for the 2 weeks ending March 1, 1881.—Approved and warrants ordered issued on the City Treasurer for the amounts.

Also having rendered temporary aid to the amount of $5.75.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM CITY OFFICERS.

The City Physician reported having treated three cases in the month of January.—Filed.

The Clerk reported the expiration of Insurance of fire and engine company, Hook and Ladder company and jail buildings, also the lease of Common Council rooms, and rooms of R. Kanter for fire department purposes.—Clerk instructed to have city property re-insured, and the Com. on Public buildings and property instructed to attend to procuring Council rooms and rooms for Columbia fire engine company.

Council adjourned to Tuesday 7:30 p. m., March 1, 1882.

GEO. H. SIPP, City Clerk.

Mr. John D. Brothers, of Portsmouth, O., writes: "Two years ago I suffered from a severe attack of malarial fever; I was brought very low to death's door; I had never fully recovered, and often was distressed with biliousness, headache, sinking chills, night sweats, indigestion and painful urination. About three months ago I noticed an advertisement of Brown's Iron Bitters in a Cincinnati paper. From the first, it seemed to be just the medicine I had long needed. I am now just as strong and hearty as a buck, and weigh nearly one half again as much as I did three months ago."

CARDINAL McCloskey and the Catholic dignitaries at New York are not inclined to credit the Chicago story that the pope has decided to invest the bishop of Little Rock, Ark., with diplomatic functions as a delegate or nuncio of the Vatican to this country. They are disposed to look upon it as a jest. The reasons they assign for their incredulity are that no necessity exists for the creation of such an officer, and that if it were deemed expedient by the Vatican the appointment could not be made unless a concordat had been negotiated with the United States. As the United States does not assume to recognize any system of theology, and as the pope is wholly without temporal power, the United States could not give welcome to such an officer. He would be an anomaly. When the pope was a temporal sovereign the United States maintained diplomatic representation with Rome, not because he was the head of the church, but because he was the chief of the state. We continue to hold relations with the czar of Russia and the sultan of Turkey, each of whom has a religious authority, but this ecclesiastical feature has no bearing in the matter. The government at Washington can not well have diplomatic relations with ecclesiastical establishments, however ancient and powerful. It deals only with political divisions, and when the pope ceased to reign as a sovereign the government of his successor was recognized by the United States.

While There's Life There's Hope.

There is no condition so low as to be hopeless, nor any plane so high as to be without fear. Many use Brown's Iron Bitters in health as well as in sickness. It is nature's best assistant in keeping health and in restoring health. Its use will make you and all your family healthy, robust and strong, and save much loss of time and heavy doctor bills.

REMEMBER all diseases of the stomach and intestines, urinary and digestive organs, cured by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

[OFFICIAL.]

Report of Committee on Ways and Means on Water Works.

To the Honorable the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Holland:

GENTLEMEN:—Your Committee on Ways and Means would respectfully report the following on the question of water works:

In regard to the workings of the same we are fully satisfied that in cases of fire, there is nothing equal to the high pressure system for controlling and extinguishing the same. In regard to the expense of water works in the city of Holland, Mr. M. Walker visited Holland on the 8th day of February, 1882, and after carefully looking over the whole city, has furnished us with a detailed estimate of all expenses to be incurred in putting a system of water works in this place, the several items are as follows, viz:</

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

OSCAR WILDE, the aesthetic philosopher, was lecturing in Rochester, N. Y., when a mob of about 200 students of the university behaved in so disgraceful a manner as to call for the intervention of the police. Two freshmen of Syracuse University were kidnapped by Sophomores and carried fifteen miles, to Onondaga lake, where they were left to find their way back as best they might.

JUSTUS KOEHLER, manager of a German insurance company in New York, committed suicide while riding in Central Park. On the Pennsylvania railroad, near Huntington, Pa., three trains were wrecked, the engineer and conductor of one being killed, and the fireman fatally injured. Two men were killed at Newburgh, N. Y., by an explosion of giant powder.

FIVE leaders in a kidnapping case at Cornell University have been ordered to leave Ithaca, and President White declares that he will repress hazing at any cost.

PETER COOPER has just entered upon his 92d year, an event which was celebrated by a party of friends at his residence in New York, among whom were Hamilton Fish and the Rev. Robert Collyer.

THE WEST.

A DECISION of peculiar interest and import was rendered by the Kansas Supreme Court. It sets aside as unconstitutional that clause of the Prohibitory law fixing a punishment for drunkenness, on the ground that this provision was not expressed in the title of the bill. The decision covers still another point, the court holding that persons legally in possession of liquor may drink, burn or give it away. Charles Miller, who was under sentence of death at Benton, Mo., for the murder of Franklin Hamilton, hanged himself in his cell with strips torn from his blanket. At Canton, Ohio, a patient suffering from cancer in the stomach, died of starvation after an involuntary fast of fifty-one days.

CHARLES F. KRING, of St. Louis, who has four times been convicted of the murder of Dora Broemser, has been granted a writ of error by Justice Miller, of the United States Supreme Court. William Miller, the oldest Freemason in the United States (and probably in the world), died at Caldwell, Ohio. He was 98 years old, and was initiated in 1801. The shrinkage in the price of grain has had a disastrous effect on a number of St. Louis firms which were carrying wheat for customers, and several houses have suspended.

CROP reports gathered by the Chicago Times from every portion of the Northwest show that winter wheat is in excellent condition and that the area of spring wheat will be increased. Farmers in Southern Illinois and Indiana are buying corn for their own consumption, and the hog crop has been quite thoroughly marketed. Minnesota still has on hand 20,000,000 bushels of wheat, and expects to raise a crop one-fourth larger than last year. A young woman named Mary Beggar, residing with relatives on Michigan avenue, Chicago, was fatally shot by a worthless scoundrel named George Robinson, whose matrimonial overtures the poor girl had rejected. The murderer then took his own life.

ALBERT WILDE, an architect, once a wealthy citizen of Cleveland, of late imprisoned as a vagrant at Kansas City, hanged himself in his cell. A Deputy Sheriff's posse at Albuquerque, New Mexico, attacked a gang of highway robbers, three in number, and killed them all. One of the Sheriff's party was killed and two others seriously wounded.

THE SOUTH.

A PRIZE-FIGHT between John L. Sullivan, of Boston, and Paddy Ryan, of Albany, for the championship of the United States and $3,500 a side, was fought at Mississippi City, Miss. (sixty-five miles from New Orleans). Sullivan won the victory after nine rounds, fought in eleven minutes. Ryan had his jaw and nose broken, and was otherwise severely injured. The brutal spectacle was enjoyed by about 1,100 persons, including some municipal officers of Chicago and New Orleans. Immense sums of money were staked on the contest.

MAJ. D. W. WASHBURN, a prominent railroad man, together with a Mr. Stall, his wife and little boy and two negroes, were riding upon a hand-car, near Waco, Texas, when they were run down by a freight train and all of the party, with the exception of the negroes, crushed to death. Maj. Washburn was Chief Engineer of the Pacific Improvement Company, the International Construction Company and the Mexican Construction Company. He was, in short, at the head of the construction department of the Gould system in the Southwest. He was about 37 years old, and held the highest position in his line of service in the world. He was from Elmira, N. Y.

MORMON missionaries are actively at work in Union county, Tennessee, where they have succeeded in securing a number of negro converts.

On the Louisville Short Line railroad a freight train was thrown from the track, killing the engineer. A colored member of the Virginia Legislature started that body by the introduction of a bill designed to prevent white men from having mulatto mistresses, the penalty being the recognition of children as heirs-at-law.

GEORGE ALLEN, cashier of the Savannah, Florida and Western road, is $6,000 short in his accounts, and has disappeared. An opinion of the Tennessee Supreme Court declares invalid and unconstitutional the act of April, 1881, to compromise the bonded indebtedness of Tennessee at par and 3 per cent. interest, the coupons receivable for taxes.

POETICAL.

A CONFERENCE of between thirty and forty Democratic Congressmen was held at Washington last week. The chief object of the meeting was to discuss informally a plan of action regarding the coming tariff contest in the House. Those who were present are known as "tariff reformers." After a free interchange of views, it was determined to make a resolute opposition to the passage of the Tariff Commission bill as reported from the Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON.

THE House Committee on Railways and Canals held a meeting to consider the Hennepin canal scheme. On its behalf Gov. Carpenter, of Iowa, made an extended argument showing that the proposed measure was thoroughly national in its character. It is believed that the committee are favorably disposed toward the measure.

THE House Judiciary Committee on the Geneva award recommended the payment, first, of exculpated war claims, and, secondly, of war premiums; leaving whatever balance may remain for future action by Congress. A five-cent postage stamp bearing an excellent likeness of the late President will be issued March 1.

A. M. SOTKLO, clerk to the Senate Committee on Railroads at Washington, who had been for some time the subject of criticism in the columns of the National Republican, went to the office of that paper with his younger brother and made an attack upon Mr. Clarence M. Barton, the news editor, in the course of which he received a bullet wound, which will probably prove fatal. Mr. Barton was wounded in the neck and breast, but neither are believed to be fatal. Guiteau, says a Washington telegram, is becoming very much depressed. The Jail Warden says that he never assumes the confident air which he always has had, except in the presence of newspaper people. He is to be cut off from all communication, and that fact depresses him very much.

CUSTODIAN PITNEY went before the treasury investigation, on the 10th inst., and asked to be informed of the nature of the testimony given by Upton and Lamphere. He then declared that John Sherman and his wife knew that employees of the treasury were paid from the contingent fund for work done for the ex-Secretary, and produced incriminating notes purporting to have been written by the Shermans. The committee has decided to recall Upton and Lamphere, and confront them with Pitney.

GEN. GRANT has written to Capt. Eads to complain of having been imposed upon in the ship-canal project, and withdrawing from the Board of Directors. J. W. Guiteau says his brother has no fear of death, and will meet it "with the air of a martyr."

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has signed the commission of Frederick A. Tuttle as Governor of Arizona, in place of Gen. Fremont. Sotklo, who was shot by Clarence Barton in the office of the Washington Republican, died from his wound two days after receiving it. Senator Sherman issues a card to state that the testimony reflecting upon himself and his wife which was alleged to have been given by Custodian Pitney is a pure concoction, as will very soon be shown by the printed evidence. A Washington telegram says: It is possible, at least, to state the exact situation of the case against Gen. Carr. When the War Department ascertained the exact facts it was determined not to order a court of inquiry, but to submit the facts to Gen. Carr himself, knowing that he would ask for a court. The charges were these: First, mismanagement of the campaign; second, disobedience of orders; third, disrespect to a superior officer. This was communicated to Gen. Carr, and to-day a request has been received from him for a court of inquiry.

GENERAL.

COL. BOUDINOT, chief of the Cherokees, states that Gould has drawn upon himself the bitter hostility of all the tribes of Indians. He thinks his people would be glad to give the right of way to any important road which would pursue an independent course.

By the spilling of coal-oil on the floor, the house of John Moreland, near Huntington, Ontario, took fire, and his wife, step-daughter and three children were burned to death, two young men also nearly losing their lives. In reporting 131 failures for the past week, a mercantile agency of New York finds them generally caused by speculation or deliberate fraud, and again urges the passage of a severe national bankruptcy law. Jesse Barber, colored, was hanged at Winsboro, S. C., for the murder of Mack Perry last July. Quirino Gaitan, a Mexican, graced a gallows at Brownsville, Texas, and died.

In order to extend her profitable concert tour, Miss Clara Louise Kellogg has postponed for some weeks her marriage to a Philadelphia broker. The Globe foundry in London, Ont., burned, involving $75,000 loss.

FOREIGN.

CHINESE advices, considerably overdone, received via San Francisco, report that on July 10 an earthquake, followed by a heavy rain-storm, destroyed many human lives, live stock and property in the Khamow district. At the reassembling of Parliament the Queen's speech was read by Lord Selborne. Her Majesty announced approval of the contract of marriage between Prince Leopold and the Princess Helena of Waldeck: spoke of the cordial relations subsisting between England and all the powers; referred to the Egyptian question in a way showing that the joint convention with France to exercise a protectorate over the affairs of Egypt will be adhered to; and spoke hopefully regarding the prospect of concluding a satisfactory commercial treaty with France, of the trade of the country, and the improved outlook for the agricultural classes, and of the success which has attended the policy of the Government in respect of Irish affairs.

A FURTHER installment of details has been received regarding the cruise of the Jeanette in the Polar sea. The vessel drifted for twenty-one months along with her prison of ice, which at last closed in and crushed her hull like an egg-shell. The average winter temperature was 33 degrees below zero, and the coldest weather noted was 58 degrees below zero.

MR. GLADSTONE stated in the House of Commons that the reduction in rentals made by the Land Commissioners had been an average of 23 per cent. He said the Land League had been confronted, and there had been every indication that it had been defeated.

EARL GRANVILLE, British Minister of Foreign Affairs, in a dispatch to Minister West, at Washington, takes the ground that a waterway which shall connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans is a matter that concerns not only the United States but the entire civilized world. He is in favor of a convention of the maritime nations, and would gladly see the United States take the initiative steps toward calling such a convention. Great Britain will endorse the action of that body, provided that it does not interfere with the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Berthold Auerbach, the celebrated German novelist, is dead.

OFFICIAL statistics show that in 1881 there were 17,341 persons evicted in Ireland. The number of ejection decrees for non-payment of rent was 1,724, representing arrears of £47,000, or an average of less than $140 per head.

THE revolt in Herzegovina is increasing, and a provisional government has been established. Disturbances among the students caused the closing of the university at Charkoff, Russia.

AN English mechanic has invented a horseshoe composed of three thicknesses of cowhide compressed into a steel mold and subjected to a chemical preparation. It will last longer than the common shoe, weighs only one-fourth as much, does not split the hoofs, requires no calks and is very elastic.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Mr. Garland introduced a bill in the Senate, on the 7th inst., to grant the right of way through the Indian Territory to the Mississippi, Albuquerque and Inter-oceanic railway. A petition was presented asking unobstructed navigation of the Missouri in the construction of bridges. The bill to donate bronze cannon for a statue to Garfield was amended to authorize the Secretary of War to pay $700 to the Society of the Army of the Cumberland out of the sales of condemned ordnance. A report was made on the claims for depredations committed by the Utes at the White river massacre. In the House a resolution was adopted calling on the Postmaster General for information concerning the sub-letting of mail contracts. Majority and minority reports were presented on the bill to extend national bank charters. Mr. Ryan reported the Indian Appropriation bill, setting aside $1,920,203, and reducing the number of Agents to sixty. The Apportionment bill was taken up, and six amendments were offered, fixing the number of representatives at 319 to 365. Mr. Prescott asked that the wealth of the various States be taken into consideration, for which sentiment he was sharply rebuked by Mr. Horr.

Mr. Blair, of New Hampshire, proposed in the Senate, on the 8th inst., a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture or sale of liquor after 1900. Mr. McCall offered resolutions directing the Secretary of State to negotiate for a reciprocity treaty with the Central and South American states. Messrs. Vest and Maxey, in a debate on the matter of arrears of pensions, warmly eulogized the present law. Bills were passed to establish ports of delivery at Kansas City and St. Joseph. The President nominated Commodore John C. Feibiger to be Rear Admiral, and Capt. John L. Davis to be Commodore. In the House, Mr. Randall gave notice of an amendment to the Tariff Commission bill, making the body consist of two Senators, three Representatives and four experts. Mr. Lacey reported a bill to establish a postal-savings depository. The Sherman Funding bill was taken from the Speaker's table, and referred to the Ways and Means Committee. After eulogies upon the late Representative O'Connor, of South Carolina, the House adjourned. The House Banking Committee made a favorable report on the bill to extend the charters of national banks. President Arthur sent a special message to both houses transmitting letters from Secretary Kirkwood and the acting Governor of Arizona in regard to lawlessness in that Territory, and urges the amendment of the posse comitatus act to permit the use of troops in assisting the civil authorities.

Mr. Pendleton presented in the Senate, on the 9th inst., a petition from leading citizens of Pittsburgh asking that competitive examinations be held for appointments to offices, and that no removals be made on partisan grounds. A favorable report was made on the bill for the sale of portions of the reservation at Fort Leavenworth. Mr. Saunders introduced a bill for a bridge across the Missouri near Omaha, and Mr. Grover an act for civil government for Southeastern Alaska. Neil Brown, of Tennessee, was nominated for Secretary of the Senate, but was defeated by the vote of Mr. Brown, of Georgia, who voted with the Republicans, much to the surprise and indignation of the Democrats. Eulogies were delivered upon the late Representative O'Connor, of South Carolina, during which Mr. Bayard paid a glowing tribute to the Irish race. In the House, Mr. Hewitt introduced a bill to regulate the meeting of electors and the counting of the votes for President and Vice President. With Mr. Aldrich in the chair, some hours were spent on the Apportionment bill. Mr. McCall advocated the seaton plan, which fixes the number of Representatives from each State without regard to fractions. General sentiment seemed to favor provision for 319 members, which will divide the gain equally between the political parties. A bill was introduced to retire M. C. Meigs with the rank of Major General.

The measure for placing Gen. Grant on the retired list came up in the Senate on the 10th, but was laid over because Mr. Logan was absent. Mr. Maxey urged the enlargement of the Mexican war list, and Mr. Beck expressed his willingness to aid needy and deserving veterans, but not to others. In the House Mr. Gunther reported a resolution of inquiry as to the practicability of lowering the dam constructed for the improvement of the Fox and Wisconsin rivers. The House went into committee of the whole on the private calendar and took up and passed the bill authorizing the President to appoint to a Captaincy in the army T. D. Kirby, who was cashiered for drunkenness when a brevet Brigadier General. The Secretary of the Treasury submitted a report showing that twenty-nine employees of the Internal Revenue Department had been killed and fifty wounded while enforcing the laws against moonshiners. Both houses adjourned to Monday, 13th. At a caucus of Republican Senators, held after adjournment, it was determined to resist any motion to bring up Harris' resolution for the appointment of Neil Brown as acting Chief Clerk of the Senate.

A bill for the sale of the Miami lands in Kansas was passed by the Senate on Feb. 13th, and a measure was introduced for the disposition of the Fort Larned reservation in Kansas. The bill for the relief of Samson Goliath, which involves the right of Congress to remit the sentence of a court-martial, was recommended at the request of Mr. Logan. Mr. Ingalls introduced an act to adjust the claims of the confederated Peoria Indians of Kansas, and Mr. Hill a bill to provide suitable agricultural lands for the Southern Utes. Mr. Vest made a favorable report on the bill for a public building at Jefferson City, and Mr. Harris introduced a similar measure for Chattanooga. The Senate in executive session, after some discussion, confirmed the appointment of Col. Rucker as Quartermaster General. In the House Mr. Davis introduced a resolution calling on the Secretary of War for correspondence and other information in regard to encroachments upon the harbor of Chicago. A resolution was adopted calling for facts concerning the perils of American missionaries in Persia. Mr. Young introduced a bill to create the office of Mining Commissioner, with a salary of $4,000. Mr. Herndon proposed a constitutional amendment limiting the number of members of the House to 325. The Supplemental Census bill was passed. For two and a half hours the clerks were kept busy reading bills. Among them were measures to prohibit polygamists from voting or holding office in the Territories, for a ship canal from Lake Pontchartrain to the Mississippi, to reduce the wherry tax to 50 cents per gallon, to aid in erecting monuments on Revolutionary battle-fields, to abolish the national bank, and to prevent the spread of infectious diseases among cattle.

A Real Need.

Amusement in itself is a real need, which always makes itself felt, and in some way or other is sure to get supplied. It is not, as some suppose, a sort of superfluous luxury which should be patiently waited for till all other desirable advantages are secured; it is, in all circumstances, must and will be satisfied, if not from fountains pure and sweet, then from sources unwholesome and corrupt. The young need it more than the old, the busy more than the idle, the poor more than the rich; but all need it, and all in some form obtain it.

ADDITIONAL NEWS.

By the treaty of peace with Peru, Bolivia is left without a seaboard. The Chilean Government gave a cordial reception to Mr. Trescott, special envoy from the United States, who stated that an unfortunate misunderstanding had arisen, which explanation would dissipate. The Chileans are to occupy all minor ports north of Callao. The President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company disavows any intention to make a claim for compensation for courtesies extended to President Garfield, his family or the Government, the service rendered being a duty and a pleasure.

It costs $200,000 per year to maintain a force at Castle Garden, New York, to take charge of the tremendous immigration. A recent decision took from the Commissioners the power to tax the steamship companies, and renewed efforts will be made to have the Federal Government take control of the work. The ocean lines express a willingness to pay 25 cents head money. Judy Powell, colored, died at Pittsburgh at the age of 113.

THE State of Texas has conveyed to Charles B. and John V. Farwell, Abner Taylor and C. A. Babcock, of Illinois, a tract of land larger than Connecticut, in return for a contract to erect a Capitol at Austin. Several firms of cotton brokers in New Orleans have suspended. All were speculative dealers.

NOTWITHSTANDING the attention of the Russian Government has been called to the atrocities perpetrated in the empire against the Jews, they continue, and fresh outrages are continually reported. An entire Jewish family were recently murdered at Ananieff by the peasants. Russia is heaping up a fearful score against herself which will some day be terribly avenged. Jewish money and nihilistic weapons combined will be a hard foe for the Government to deal with.

GEN. FITZ JOHN PORTER was in Washington last week, and had a long interview with the President. They discussed together the Pope campaign, and Gen. Porter explained to the President how he had been, as he believes, misjudged for so long. He invited the President to a careful perusal of the records as he claimed that Gen. Grant made before recently declaring his belief in Porter's innocence.

THE people of Bismarck have organized a company with $2,000,000 capital, to build a road of 180 miles toward Manitoba. Oscar Wilde, the English esthete, delivered his lecture on the "English Renaissance" to an audience of over 2,000 persons at Central Music Hall in Chicago. He was given a respectful hearing.

A GANG of workmen were sent into the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel at Baltimore to repair the track. They had proceeded but a few yards when they heard the distant rumbling of an approaching train. Hardly had they caught the sound of the one train approaching when the glare of a locomotive headlight was seen in the opposite direction. The next instant the two trains came thundering along. Terror-stricken and confused, the unfortunate men jumped from one track to the other only to step into the yawning jaws of death. Several of them had the presence of mind to crouch up against the walls of the tunnel a couple of feet outside the track, and thus made their escape, but five of their companions were struck by the locomotives, hurled forward on the tracks and their bodies then torn and mutilated by the wheels of the cars. Two of the poor fellows had their heads severed from their bodies, and arms and legs were scattered for fifty yards along the tracks.

Blaine and Arthur.

A Washington telegram says: A friend of the President said to-day that it always took two parties to make a quarrel, and that Mr. Blaine would not have very much success in keeping himself prominent before the country on the issue made with the President, because the President does not intend to take any further notice of the matter. In other words, the administration people propose to allow Mr. Blaine to go ahead and say and do what he pleases, and have it all his own way for a time. On the other hand, Mr. Blaine's friends claim that they will be able to make such a showing to the country in a short time that silence upon the part of the administration will suit them only too well.

THE touchstone by which men try us is most often their own vanity.

ALWAYS KEEP COOL.

To stick to your subject and the truth is an excellent plan, and whether it be in questions of finance or fishing, or any topic whatever, civil or political, always keep cool and tell the truth. However, there is a certain margin allowed for lying, when it comes to fishing, that is permitted in no other subject, and no doubt our friends in the picture are indulging in that special employment, as well, perhaps, as in a little scientific swearing. Their bodies and tempers are cool, and the air is cool (as they should be, but are not), and they are apparently in the condition when it is much easier to catch rheumatism than fish, in which case it would be well for them that they be provided with a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil, the Great German Remedy for this as well as other painful ailments.

WELL NAIL ITS COLORED TO THE MAST. "Hello, Denny! what is the trouble?" "Oh, I'm all broke up," was the response to the inquiry of an old shipmate of William G. Dennison, one of Farragut's war-worn veterans, well known in the southern section of this city, who came limping into the American office yesterday. "I thought I would go under the hatch this time," continued Dennison. "I never suffered so much in my life. I had the rheumatic gout so bad that I could not get off the bed or put my foot to the floor, and would have been there yet if a friend had not recommended St. Jacobs Oil to me. I hesitated some time before getting a bottle, thinking it was another one of those advertised nostrums, but was finally induced to give it a trial, and a lucky day it was for me. Why, bless my stars! after bathing the limb thoroughly with the Oil I felt relief, and my faith was pinned to St. Jacobs and his Oil after that. I freely say that if it had not been for St. Jacobs Oil I should, in all probability, be still housed. My foot pains me but little, and the swelling has entirely passed away. It beats anything of the kind I have ever heard of, and any person who doubts it send them to me at 1924 South Tenth st.—Philadelphia Times.

SALUTATORY.

With this issue, we have the pleasure of greeting the readers of the HOLLAND CITY NEWS, as its editor and publisher.

In assuming our new duties, it is expected that we will give to the public, an outline of the future course, which we intend to pursue with this paper.

If not from experience, then from observation, we have learned that it is not safe to promise too much and especially not under the existing circumstances.

The News ought to be the leading and representative paper, not only of the City of Holland, but of this part of the county. This, we shall endeavor to make it, and to that end we shall labor. The impediments and peculiar obstacles to be surmounted are well known to its friends, and if we do succeed in this, be it only to a limited extent, we shall in return expect a liberal, moral and material support.

We cannot please all and do not expect to.

Politically the News will not be an organ of any one man, set, clique, faction or party, deeming it decidedly unprofitable to be otherwise, judging of course, from the very partial manner in which official patronage is often assigned.

Local interest, when properly recognized by us, should reciprocate in a practical manner. This will enable us at an early period, to enlarge the News.

We are young in years. This is no fault of ours. If properly sustained by a kind public, among whom we have long ceased to be a stranger, we intend to grow older, and we trust that this growth may manifest itself favorable through the columns of this paper.

In conclusion we desire to state that the Job Office connected with the News, will be pushed, and its present reputation maintained and extended, as fast as our means and ability will allow.

Hoping that each and every one desiring to see an American paper prosper and flourish in their midst, will extend to us a fair amount of support and patronage.

We remain yours truly,
WILLIAM H. ROGERS.

OUR "PLUMED KNIGHT."

The causes leading to the present difficulty between President Arthur, and his late Secretary of State, Mr. Blaine, are assuming greater proportions, as the controversy is drawn out. The subject matter is not entirely new or original on the part of the late Secretary. It is more a revival of a part of the theory, which, half a century ago, was made popular, and which since has been known as the "Monroe doctrine," or rather a feature thereof. Mr. Blaine and his friends are said to be crowding the issue at present, while the administration does not intend to take any more notice of the matter than is absolutely necessary, consistent with its dignity. The Washington Post in a number of recent date is supposed to have proscribed the following as the Blaine side of the matter.

"There is not a country in Central or South America where English influence is not to-day far more potent than the influence of the United States. England monopolizes their trade, dictates their policy, and from year to year grows steadily in prestige and power among these countries. It was the aim of Secretary Blaine to see if our nearest neighbors could not be brought into closer alliance and better commercial relations with the United States. Peru was very friendly to us, and had every cause in the world to distrust and hate England. Chili, on the other hand is but the commercial agent of England, and, with the aid of English iron-clads commanded by a British born admiral, has conquered Peru. It was the openly-avowed opinion of Secretary Blaine that Chili, with England behind her, should not be allowed to despoil Peru and appropriate all her resources. He induced the president to send a friendly commissioner to protest against such a result, and to use all our influence, while conceding to Chili a proper war indemnity, to save the national existence of Peru, and anchor her as the fast friend of the United States, for all the future. Mr. Blaine left the department of State; Mr. Frelinghuysen came in; Mr. Trescott's instructions were revoked, and Chili was practically informed that she might do as she pleased with her prostrate and bleeding victim, whereupon the English papers that had been denouncing Mr. Blaine and his policy fell to praising Mr. Frelinghuysen in terms of extravagant eulogy. The London Times has gone so far as to declare that 'Mr. Frelinghuysen could not have done more to please Englishmen if his policy had been devised in their special behalf.' All this is lovely—extremely lovely—for John Bull; but how is it for Brother Jonathan? Downing street proclaims a foreign policy for the promotion of British interests in South America, and Mr. Frelinghuysen 'bobs up serenely' to endorse it. He of course secures the praise of English statesmen and of English papers, but such praise at such a time is proof of the destruction of American interests and the surrender of American prestige. It is praise that no American statesman can afford to receive, and is prima facie evidence that the interests of his own country have been sacrificed. Last year Peru sent products to the markets of the world worth $50,000,000. The tonnage for English ships was nearly as large as the cotton export of the United States. It was the belief of Mr. Blaine that a country of such vast resources for commerce and trade was worth saving as a friend to the United States, and that it ought not to be turned over as a commercial dependency of Great Britain. It was in our power to secure its friendship, to secure a good share of its freights for American ships, and a large amount of its trade for American manufacturers and American merchants; but Mr. Frelinghuysen has ordered that no contest shall be made, and that the American flag be hauled down in the waters of the South Pacific. We can all recall what it was that Gen. Dix declared should be done to any man who hauled down the American flag; but what punishment is commensurate with crime—a crime still, even if a blunder—of hauling down the American flag from a hundred American vessels at the bidding of John Bull?"

"Gath," the famous Washington newspaper correspondent, who apparently does not like the present Secretary of State, also comes to the relief of Mr. Blaine, but in a different strain, and writes to his paper the Cincinnati Enquirer: "Frelinghuysen, the Dutch tulip recently set down in his flower-pot in the white house conservatory, never heard of Mr. Monroe or his doctrine, and knows no other doctrine but that of election, taught by his Dutch Reformed progenitors when they beheaded Barneveldt, and put Grotius (Hugo De Groot) in jail because the latter was too much of an authority in international law."

To which the Chicago Times very properly excepts, saying: "Inasmuch as some of Frelinghuysen's ancestors 'fought into' the Revolution on the right side and have been Jersey men for many generations, it is rather late in the day to be assigning him to Holland. He is fairly entitled to be classed as an American; otherwise, we must be all set down pretty generally as foreigners."

Back Pension.

The U. S. Senate on Wednesday of last week, resumed the consideration of the resolution, introduced by Senator Ingalls, of Iowa, declaring that the pension arrears law ought not to be repealed. Among those who participated in the debate was Senator Vest, of Missouri. In a brief, but pointed speech he said "he had been a confederate honestly and earnestly, with his whole soul devoted to the success of that cause which surrendered at Appomattox. He mentioned to-day this piece of personal history only that he might state in the most emphatic manner, and in this place, that he had accepted the full and legitimate results of that surrender with out qualification, evasion, or limitation. All he had ever asked,—all the people of the south ask,—is that they might be believed to have been honest in their devotion to the confederate cause, and honest in their statement that they accepted all the legitimate consequences of its defeat. One of the inevitable evidences and legitimate consequences of the success of the union arms was the payment of pensions and bounty to the men whose valor and heroism gave victory to the union cause. A people who would not thus reward the sacrifice of life and limb for the nation's life would deserve to be stricken from the map of Christendom. He (Mr. Vest) had been a member of the confederate senate, and if, in the providence of God, his cause had succeeded, he would have voted to the survivors of those gallant brigades whose tattered gray was buried by Lee and Jackson against the union lines every dollar of money, every acre of land, until their just demands had been satisfied. Standing here to-day, in the presence of victors and vanquished, I declare the confederates accept cheerfully the result which leaves to them only the consciousness of honest motives, only the history of unqualified heroism; and they accept at the same time the further result which gives to the soldiers of the union what has been awarded them by a grateful country."

MANHOOD

How Lost. How Restored!

Just published, a new edition of Dr. CULVERWELL'S Celebrated Essay on the radical cure of Spermatorrhoea or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately, and radically.

This Lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address on receipt of six cents or two postage stamps.

MACATAWA Bay is open and entirely free from ice, and our mariners are busy fixing up their vessels in preparation for the season's trade.

Those of our citizens, who desire to contribute to the Garfield Hospital Fund, can do so by calling on our genial Postmaster, Mr. Wm. Verbeek.

The contract of Mr. R. Kanter, is nearly completed, and he, with the men under his employ from this city, are expected home about the 1st of March.

Rev. D. Broek, pastor of the Third Ref. Church, who has been ill for some time past, is improving nicely and will soon be able to occupy his pulpit again.

Mr. W. C. Harper, Supervisor of Robinson, passed through this city last Tuesday, en route for Norville, Jackson Co., Mich., to attend the golden wedding of his parents.

We hope our readers will bear with us until the "newness" of our position wears off, when we hope to be able to present as sprightly and interesting a paper as has been issued heretofore.

We understand that the store lately occupied by John Te Roller, as a cigar store, has been leased by a Mr. Van Raman, of Chicago, Ill., and that he intends to open a jewelry store in the near future.

Messrs. Werkman & Van Ark, the wide-awake proprietors of the Phoenix Planing Mill, have let the job of building an addition of 45x80 feet to their present building, to Mr. G. J. Nyland, who is to commence work immediately.

WHILE in Grand Rapids recently, we stepped in to see Messrs. Joslin & Best, the enterprising jewelers of that city, and found they have an elegant stock of Jewelry, Watches, etc., which our readers will do well to go and examine when visiting that city.

In recognition of the courage shown by Prince Bismarck the other day in the Reichstag, in interpreting and defending the Prussian Constitution, the Emperor meditates conferring some higher military rank on his devoted Chancellor. He is already a General of Cavalry, attached to the Seventh Cuirassiers.

MAYOR Steketee, of Grand Rapids, has been arrested, tried and acquitted last week on the charge of violating that section of the State Liquor Law which regulates the trade of druggists in spirituous, vinous or brewed liquors. It was probably done through spite, as the Mayor has made many enemies in the enforcement of the city ordinances regulating the traffic.—F.

On Monday last, our Street Commissioner was busy putting up the gasoline street lamps which were ordered at a recent session of the Common Council, and in the evening when they were lighted our city assumed quite a metropolitan appearance. We would advise the citizens to petition that body to purchase more lamps and have them placed on the back streets.

SENATOR Conger has introduced a bill in the Senate which provides for additional life-saving stations at Pentwater, near the mouth of White river, Holland, South Haven, Michigan City, and at Kingston—all on the coast of Lake Michigan; also one near Grand Marais, Lake Superior. The keepers are to be paid not exceeding $800 yearly, and members of crews disabled and widows or orphans to be paid full salary for two years.

Two law suits from this section of the county are to be carried up to the Supreme Court. One is the case of Howard & Van Dyk vs. the Public Schools of the City of Holland. The other is Klaas Trompe vs. J. Verhage, growing out of the killing of certain sheep of the former, by a dog said to have belonged to the latter. In the first named case the attorneys are J. C. Post and W. B. Williams for the plaintiff, and Norris & Uhl for the defendant; in the latter case, W. H. Parks for the plaintiff, and P. H. McBride for the defendant.

Did you receive a Valentine.

Mr. A. M. Kanter is expected to reach home, from Texas, next Monday.

We are told that there is a prospect of a larger peach crop this year than ever before.

A goose and an elephant's trunk both grow down. Make your own conundrum out of the fact.

Mr. G. Rankins, our enterprising dealer in musical instruments, sold four first-class pianos this week.

LAW is like a sieve—you may see through it, but you must be considerably reduced before you can get through it.

Rev. J. W. Beardsley, of Constantine, Mich., occupied the pulpit of Hope Church, both morning and evening, on Sunday last.

As a curiosity, Mr. R. E. Werkman tells us that the tulips in his yard, are making their appearance, which at this time of the year, is indeed true.

An adjourned meeting of the Holland Soldiers' Union, will be held in the News office, on Saturday evening, Feb. 25. All soldiers are cordially invited to be present.

Mr. James L. Fairbanks has purchased a new and powerful traction engine and will now be able to grind feed and graham flour, Fridays and Saturdays, at his residence in Fillmore.

Mr. P. F. Pfandstehl has purchased the store on River street belonging to Mrs. Ledebor, and will move it to the vacant lot directly south of Mr. P. H. McBride's law office. It will be occupied as a boot and shoe store.

The Common Council of Grand Haven have published an address to the voters, in both the English and Dutch languages, setting forth the importance and necessity for voting in favor of an extension of their water works.

At a late meeting of the Macatawa Park Association, the following officers were elected: President, Prof. Chas. Scott; Vice President, C. A. Dutton; Secretary, H. D. Post; Treasurer, Daniel Bertsch; Directors, H. Walsh, H. Boone, O. Breyman, Jacob Kuite and F. O. Nye. We understand that the association has procured a skiff of the Mohawk Club of Grand Rapids, and desire to contract for the building of twelve boats after its model.

THREE young fellows took it into their heads to dance at the grave of a friend at Lawrenceville, Ill., and one of them fell into it. Their conduct shocked the mourners, who drove them away, and subsequently prepared to lynch them. They fled hastily, making their way down the river fourteen miles in a leaky boat, which finally sank under them. They swam to the shore, but it was a cold night. They were too exhausted to go any further, and in the morning their dead bodies were found.

GRAND HAVEN ITEMS.

The schooner R. B. King arrived Tuesday morning, from Chicago and sailed up the river, being the first vessel in this season.

The frame of Bryce & Bloeker's foundry is up, and the work is being pushed as fast as possible. The firm expect to be able to recommence work about next week.

THE new iron propeller Wisconsin, of the Goodrich line, in coming in Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock from Milwaukee, struck the north pier and stove a hole into her port bow about 18 to 20 feet long and 4 to 5 feet wide, she managed, however, to get up into the head of the river, where she now lays with her forward end on the bottom. Being provided with water-tight bulkheads, her engine room is free of water, and the engine was kept to work pumping out water from the other compartments, the forward part of the vessels, however, being full of water. The deck-load was taken off immediately by the aid of large scows and is not injured. The cargo in the hold consisted of flour and it is feared has been largely damaged. How this accident could happen on a clear morning, with perfectly smooth water and no wind, is a mystery which has not yet been explained. It is said, however, that the pier being covered up by ice, was mistaken for a large ice bank, and hence the collision.

BEAUTIFUL balmy weather.

Esquire Fairbanks is confined to his house by a severe bilious attack.

THE Goodrich Transportation Co., have decided to run the Menominee this season, between Grand Haven and Chicago. She is to make three trips weekly.

SURVEYORS are reported to be running a preliminary line in Kalamazoo and Barry counties for the proposed railroad between Toledo and Allegan.—Allegan Tribune.

SENATOR Ferry who has been spending a few days at his home, in Grand Haven, passed through this city, en route for Washington on Saturday last.

Miss Ella June Meade is expected here next week to give the next entertainment of the lecture course. The exact date cannot yet be given, but will be announced by circulars as early as possible.

HERE's a positive fact that occurred in one of the public schools in Philadelphia recently: A small boy was asked to name some part of his own body. He thought a moment and then replied: "Bowels; which are five in number—a, e, i, o, and u, and some times w and y."

THE Chicago and West Michigan railway company has completed the new road bed from New Buffalo, Mich., to Laporte, Ind., with the exception of a deep cut which will be finished in about two months. The company intend to extend the road to La Grange, Ind. They are putting new engines and cars on the road to keep pace with the patronage, which is now reaching immense dimensions.—Allegan Democrat.

WILD WEATHER OUTSIDE.

BY MARGARET E. HANCOCK.

Wild weather outside where the brave ships go
And fierce from all quarters the four winds blow—
Wild weather and cold, and the great waves swell,
With chaos beneath them as black as hell.
The waters frolic in Titan play,
They dash the decks with an icy spray,
The spent sails shiver, the little masts reel,
And the sheeted ropes are as smooth as steel.
And oh that the sailor were safe once more,
Where the sweet sea smiles in the cottage door!

The little cottage, so white and fair,
Over the lull sea, like the polar star,
The mariner tossed in the jaws of death
Hurled at the storm a defiant breath;
Shut out the storm through the writhing foam,
"O courage! please God, we shall yet reach home!"
Fay n and a lullard sang and gray,
But the storm was not to be so easily won.
And the storm was not to be so easily won,
Somewhere a praying to-night for him.

Ah me, through the drench of the bitter rain,
How bright the picture that rises plain!
Surge he can see with his merry look,
His little maid crouching her spilling brook;
The baby crows from the cradle fair,
While hither and yon, with a quiet grace,
A woman fits with an earnest face.
The kitten purrs, and the kettle sings,
And a nameless comfort the picture brings.

Rough weather outside, but the winds of balm
Forever float o'er that tale of calm.
Oh, friends who read over tea and toast
Of the wild night's work on the storm-swept coast,
Think, when the vessels are overdue,
Of the perils of the sea and the gray,
Of stout hearts, and the sailor's song,
And the storm was not to be so easily won.
And breathe a prayer from your happy lips
For those who must go "to the sea in ships;"
Ask that the sailor may stand once more
Where the sweet sea smiles in the cottage door.

THE LOST PACKET.

It was drawing toward Christmas time, and Harry Wentworth was very busy—busy with his employers, and busy in his own behalf—for it had been arranged that on Christmas day he and Emma Dwight should be made man and wife.

Harry Wentworth was a young man, three-and-twenty years of age, enterprising and possessed of intelligence far above the average; and not least of his good qualities was the unswerving, untiring and heartfelt zeal and faith with which he had appeared to serve his employers; for he was employed as head bookkeeper and confidential clerk of a heavy importing house in the city. He was the only child of a young man who had looked to him for love and care since he had been old enough and strong enough to earn the wherewith for her support.

Emma Dwight was the daughter of a Judge of the Supreme Court of the commonwealth—a true-hearted, bright-faced, trustful girl, loving her Harry with all her strength of heart and soul. She was her mother's child in quality of spirit and general disposition—mild, unassuming, gentle and charitable. The father was of sterner stuff—an upright, religious man, but not so apt to smile as were his wife and daughter.

It was near the Christmas time, and in the house where Harry was employed the hands were very busy. Country traders were buying for the holidays, and a large share of the custom of those who dealt in the class of goods carried by the concern came to that place. One day the regular messenger had been sent upon an important mission to the Custom House, and as it drew near the time for the bank to close Harry thought him that if he did not make haste in some other way, he would miss the opportunity of reaching the paying-teller of the bank. He had upon his desk, or in his possession, the company's check for $30,000, and this check was to be cashed in bank notes for the use of another firm, the senior partner of which was the brother of the senior of Harry's firm. This other firm was engaged in the wool business, and the money was for the use of purchasing agents who were to go through three or four States of the Union.

The messenger had taken the bank-book and cash for deposit on his way to the Custom House, so that Harry had only the check to attend to. Having looked at the check, and seen the brief space of time that was his, and having looked toward the street door and seen that no messenger was coming, he prepared to go upon the errand himself. He had on an old office coat, worn and ink stained, but he would not stop to exchange it. The capacious overcoat would cover such imperfection, and, having donned the latter garment, he hurried away.

It was past 2 o'clock when Harry reached the bank. The wicket of the receiving teller was closed and the paying teller was just in the act of closing his; but when he saw the newcomer, heated and puffing with exertion, he slid it open again and asked what he wanted. Harry stated the circumstances and produced the check. The teller turned to the bookkeeper, at his private desk, and, having found he could enter the new item without trouble, he turned again to the customer and, with a bland smile, informed him that he could have the money. Said he:

"We don't make a practice of doing this thing, but I don't think the officers would care to disappoint such customers as are your folks when it could be avoided."

Then he smoothed out the check before him, and counted out the money in such denominations of notes as the applicant had suggested would be convenient—fives, tens, twenties and fifties, mostly—there were ten $100 notes, ten $500 and two notes of $1,000 each. Harry ran it over after him, and then asked for an envelope in which to put it. The teller gave him an envelope of strong manila paper, sealed at the back and for that same purpose. The notes—a goodly packet—were put carefully in, and the envelope sealed, after which Harry returned to his store.

Once more at his post, Harry Wentworth put away his overcoat, and then went to his desk, and put his hand into his pocket for the precious envelope—into the inner breast-pocket of his coat on the left side. The pocket was empty! He felt in other pockets—ran to his overcoat, and went through the pockets of that—but the packet of bank-notes was gone!

Oh! he had forgotten his old office-coat—had not once thought that the old working-sack was upon him, with its breast-pocket torn more than half-way! Aye—the pocket—or the hole—into which he had put his sealed packet was not only minus a bottom seam, but fully one-half of the lower part of the pocket was torn away!

Once more Harry sprang into his overcoat, and away over the route by which he had come from the bank—his eyes fixed upon the sidewalk, and in the gutter—every possible space, nook, corner and gully, looked upon—but no packet such as he had lost. Up the stairs of the bank—the banking-rooms were on the second floor—he went slowly, peering into every corner—and thus he reached the bank counter empty-handed. The people of the bank were just coming out of the Directors' room, where they had been making up the accounts of the day, when Harry entered. He saw the paying-teller and told him of his loss.

"In mercy's name! Can you give me comfort?"

The teller was at first like a man humbled, then he shook his head sorrowfully. "He could give no comfort. And if he could not, of course, none of the others could; for he had been the last one in the banking-house."

With a heart heavy and sad—a heart sunken into an agony such as he had never before even dreamed of—Harry returned to his store, looking again on the way, and inquiring of men whose faces encouraged him—but his looking and his inquiries were in vain. At the store he went into the private office of the senior, and to that individual told the story of his mishap. The first effect upon the merchant, who was a man of quick and tender sympathies, was made by the outbursting grief and agony of his favorite clerk; and when he had heard the whole story, and had been shown the tattered fragments of a packet, he said cheerily:

"Well, well, my boy, don't be broken-hearted. We'll make a general movement for the missing packet at once, and I guess we'll find it. Do you go directly to the Chief of Police, and set him at work first. I will see the printer. Ah! I have great faith in printer's ink, Harry. It is one of the seven mighty powers of the age in which we live."

And so the search commenced; and it was continued until Christmas day, without effect. Not a clew—not a sign—not a thing of any description had been discovered. It was as though the money never had been, or else—

Ah! poor Harry Wentworth was to know, sure enough, what else people thought might have been! He discovered the cloud first at the home of his beloved. He found her, on the evening of the second day before Christmas, with red and swollen eyes, and sobbing as though her heart would break. In terror he asked her what had happened.

"Oh, Harry! Harry! Ask papa! Ask papa! I cannot speak!"

The youth was thunderstruck. The truth burst upon him in that moment for the first time. The thought that it could ever enter into the mind of one who had been his true friend that he—Harry Wentworth—could do so wicked a thing had never come to him, even by so much as a shadow. He did not see Judge Dwight on that evening.

On the following morning—the morning of the day before Christmas—when Harry entered the counting-room, his senior employer called him into the private office, and pointed him to a seat. The old man's face was not hard, but sad and stern, as though he had put on the sternity for the occasion.

"Harry, I want you to tell me the truth—the simple, straightforward truth—and nothing else. Have you, within the last two or three months, purchased and paid for a house in the upper part of the city?"

The young man started and gasped for breath. The accusation was plainly made in those words! He had bought the house and paid for it. In a moment he had turned pale as death; and for that single moment every atom of strength seemed to forsake him.

"Harry Wentworth," pursued the merchant, with a terrible look, "where did you get the $7,000 you paid, in cash, for that house?"

Poor Harry! He must tell the only thing he had ever done of which he could feel in any degree ashamed—must tell of the only dollar he had ever gained, which he had not legitimately earned.

During the summer last passed he had been induced by a friend, who was just ready to start for Cuba, to invest $10 for a package of tickets in one of the Havana lotteries. He had bought the ticket, and had drawn a prize of $5,000. The other $1,000—and considerably more than that—he had saved from his salary. He had never spoken of the lottery tickets, nor the prize, because he had felt that the operation was not such as he would wish to recommend. Still he had tried to flatter himself that a great portion of the wealth of the day was gained in a way no better—that the thousand-and-one bargains of almost every day, on the street, and at the brokers' board, were of the same character. He had told himself this, and had used the money.

And this story he told to his employer—the story of the lottery ticket, the prize, and of the travail of his spirit.

"Where is the man who bought the tickets for you?"

Harry thought he had gone from Havana to Brazil.

"He sent to me by mail, sir, and wrote that he should go to South America before returning home."

"Ah!" said the old man, sadly and solemnly shaking his head, "I should not blame you for having bought a lottery ticket. I am sorry to say that much of the business of the day is done upon a basis no better. Only yesterday I purchased six tickets in six different lotteries to be drawn by religious and benevolent societies to-morrow evening. It is not that, Harry. I wish you could prove to me that it had been no worse."

Harry Wentworth arose to his feet, and laid his hand upon the merchant's shoulder.

"Mr. Lempiere, do you mean to tell me—that—that you believe I could have kept for myself that packet of money which I said I had lost?"

The merchant was certainly staggered by the youth's look, and by the heart-sent, fervent, honest speech. But the cloud returned upon his face, and, with another shake of the head, he said:

"Harry, I am not alone. The people at the bank declare it must have been so. Look at it for yourself. Think of the time of day—"

"Ah," cried Harry, breaking in upon him, "think of that thing—the time of day! Just the time when business men were almost entirely alone on the street, and when they were hurrying homeward, or office-ward, as swiftly as possible—their banking business done, and their thoughts given to dinner and luncheon. None were going to the banks, but all were going the other way; and how many of them were messengers long used to feasting their eyes upon wealth which they could not possess, but which they would possess if the opportunity should ever offer. Think of it, sir, and say if there might not, have been many ways in which that packet could have been picked up and kept. And think of another thing: The very character of the packet—the way in which it was made up—so large a sum, in notes of such small denominations—would convince any person, at all versed in bank affairs, that the numbers of those notes had not been registered; so the money might be used at any time, and in any place, without fear of detection. Why, sir—one-half of that money might have been deposited in that same bank on the very next day, and the receiving-teller could not have sworn that a note of it had been paid out on your check."

Still the merchant was not convinced. A story of excuse was very easy to frame, he said; and no reliance could be placed upon unsupported testimony of that description.

On the evening of that day Harry saw Judge Dwight, and that man sternly forbade the youth to visit his daughter more. He could not listen—he had seen and heard too much of excuse and special pleading by guilty parties to be influenced by anything which did not clearly disprove the thing alleged. No, no—he would not listen. He was stern and harsh, and Harry Wentworth must consider the door of his house as closed to him thenceforth.

But Harry met Emma in the hall as he went out. She fell upon his bosom, and wept and moaned piteously. Her faith in her lover was not shaken; and when he had told her that he would not rest until the cloud had been lifted from his name and fame she told him she would wait for the time.

"Oh, Harry! take my love with you, and let my faith in your goodness give you strength!"

"I shall, darling! I know the truth will appear by-and-by. I feel it, deep down in my heart of hearts, that the cloud shall not always rest upon me. Pray for me, dear one! and I will both pray and work!"

Then Harry Wentworth went home to the one being on earth who knew him innocent and good—his mother!—and there he found rest!

Christmas day dawned—the day which had been set for his wedding! His new house, bought and paid for, he could not move into, and he let a friend have it for a season at a nominal rent. He did not wait to be discharged from the employment of those whom he had served so long; he went to the store on the morning after Christmas, and, calling the three partners into the office, he told them he would take himself out of their way.

"I do not think," he said, "that you intend to prosecute me, because, first—you are not assured in your own minds that I did the dreadful wrong of which I have been suspected; and, second, the crime would be difficult to prove against me. But, sirs, know that I will not rest until this thing is made clear; for I am firm in the faith that I am not to go to my grave with the stain upon me."

It is doubtful if they would have turned him away of their own accord; and yet his presence would have been a source of annoyance, from the fact that the second member of the firm absolutely believed in his guilt, and would have pushed him to the law had not the other two objected.

A remark made by Mr. Lempiere dwelt upon Harry's mind: "The power of printer's ink," and he did not fail to make use of it. He drew up a statement of his case, giving all the particulars—the date, the streets through which he passed, to and from the bank, on that day of misfortune, and, in short, every point that could tell—and at the end he begged that publishers who could feel for him, and who would help a suffering fellow-creature—helping the right at the same time—should copy. Even English or French papers might help him, if they would. This he carried to the publisher of his own favorite daily, and the man took the article as a favor, and would listen to no mention of payment.

The article was printed, and very soon Harry knew that it had been extensively copied. At the end of a month or a little more, Harry met one of the reporters of his daily paper, who informed him that at least two London dailies, and one of Liverpool, had copied his article.

The winter passed—a cold, cheerless winter without, and to Harry Wentworth, cold and very near to cheerless within! It was very hard thus to live.

He could not fail to see that the finger of suspicion was pointed at him; and more than once he heard, as he passed certain people who had once been proud to be classed among his friends, such words as these: "Poor fellow! I pity him, anyhow!" or "Ah! see. It wears on him, don't it? Well, I don't wonder!" And once he heard: "Bah! if I was in his place, I'd either clear out and make my money do me some good, or else I'd own up."

During these dark months he did not see Emma once; but he had a precious line from her that gave him courage and strength. She was as true as refined gold.

The spring opened and one day in early May Harry met Loren Barnett, the paying-teller of the M— Bank—met him on the street—looking pale, thin and wretched. He had at first seemed inclined to avoid the youth, but when he found he could not, he met him with seeming frankness and pleasure.

"You are looking poorly, Mr. Barnett. Have you been sick?"

So spoke Harry, after the opening salutations and a few casual remarks.

"I've had a bad turn," answered the teller, languidly. "In fact, I've got a sort of run down. The confinement of the bank is too much for me. I think of going into the country—on to a farm—in the course of a few months. Come up this summer and I'll give you some trout. There are splendid streams in the neighborhood of my farm."

"Oh—you own a farm?"

"Yes—I've owned one for some time."

And with this he turned away. Two things surprised Harry: First—That any man holding the office of paying-teller should talk of the confinement of the business. And second—that a man possessing such health and vigor as Loren Barnett had possessed six months before could have become so reduced by any amount of legitimate labor. And these thoughts were not quick to leave the mind that had conceived them.

It was on Monday that Harry met Barnett on the street. On the following Wednesday he received a note from Mr. Lempiere, the chief sentence of which was, "Be at my private room at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. Fail not!"

And Harry went. On entering the little private sanctum he found there the three members of the firm, and with them a man whom he at first took for an utter stranger, but whose countenance became familiar when he had been introduced as Mr. George Sefton, of London, England; and our hero then remembered of having met him and spoken with him, at a large city carpet store, a year or so previously. He was the son of a heavy carpet manufacturer of England, and acting as American agent.

"Come, come," cried Lempiere, as soon as Harry had taken the only spare seat at hand; "we have no time to waste. Harry, my boy, your printer's ink has served you, after all. But I won't anticipate. Let Sefton tell his story. We have heard it, Hal, so he may tell it to you as he pleases."

"It is very simple," said the young Englishman, turning to Harry. "Some time in February last—toward the last of the month—I took up a copy of a daily newspaper, and found therein the article which you had written, and caused to be printed; and you may imagine my feelings when the fact came home to me that I, very likely, was the one man in the world—and the only one—for whose eye it had been written. Ah! you start. Let me tell you—it is very simple, and can be told in a few words."

"On the 20th day of last December, in the afternoon, I was on my way, on foot, to the steamer in which I was to take passage for England. I had only an hour of my own, and you can imagine that time for me to waste was not then. I was walking rapidly, with my coat collar turned up and my hat pulled down, because a strong east wind set up the street and struck me in the face. Still, I kept my eyes open before me, and by-and-by I saw you come out upon the sidewalk from the M— Bank, and as I looked I thought I saw something drop at your feet—something of a bright yellow color, and glistening in the light. You turned down a street to the left—your own left—before I met you; and when I had reached the spot where I had seen the object fall I found an envelope of bright manila paper, evidently filled with bank notes, and upon the face of the envelope was the imprint of the bank. Had my time been my own I should have followed you, but as I had none to spare I ran up into the bank and found the paying teller alone at his desk and alone in the room! I showed him the envelope and asked him if he recognized it. 'Certainly,' he said. 'I gave it not five minutes ago to Mr. Wentworth for Lempiere and Company.'

"Then I told the teller how I had seen you drop it, and how my need to reach the steamer had prevented me from following you. Ah! I can remember how eagerly—how heartlessly—he asked me if I was going to Europe! and then how earnestly he protested his gratitude to me in your behalf; and how he offered to give me any sum which I might be pleased to claim for my trouble, feeling warranted in the assurance that either you or your employers would cheerfully make it up. But you can imagine how I treated that. 'I only got the man's name—Loren Barnett'—and then, having been assured that the packet should be faithfully delivered, I went my way."

"And that was the last until I saw your appeal in the paper. You can imagine my surprise. I saw it all in an instant. The temptation had been too strong for the teller's honesty. He had said to himself: 'That man is going to Europe. That may be the last of him in this country. Here are $30,000—to me a fortune! Ah, how easily I can hold on to it!' So he thought, and so he did; and—so he might have done to the end, but for your appeal in the paper. I have not put myself out at all in anything I have done. I was arranging for another visit to the United States when I saw the article, and the most I did was to expedite matters a little. And now, gentlemen, you have the matter in your own hands. Call upon me as you may feel to need my assistance."

Mr. Lempiere looked at his watch. It was just half-past 9. The bank would open at 10 for business; and if they should go thither at once they would be likely to find the working force at their posts.

Only three went to the bank—Mr. Lempiere, Mr. Sefton and Harry Wentworth. Arrived at the outer door of the institution they knocked at the door of the private room of the cashier, whom they found in. Mr. Lempiere was at once welcome, as were any whom he might bring in; so the three entered and were seated.

"Is Mr. Barnett in?" asked the merchant.

The cashier, with a swift glance at Harry and another at the stranger, seemed to comprehend. A tremor shook his frame, and his breath came with evident labor.

"Yes," he said, in a whisper, "And this is his last day with us. He is instructing his successor."

"Will you call him in?"

The cashier arose and opened the door communicating with the bank room and called Mr. Barnett's name, and added, "Will you step this way?"

Barnett came quickly. He had entered the room before looking to see whom he was to meet. He saw the old merchant and then saw Harry Wentworth, and then he saw another face. There was a moment's hesitation—a start—a flash—a light upon his countenance as the recognition came to him, and then, with a gasping groan, he tottered back against the wall and stared upon the Englishman with deadly terror and affright.

"Oh, Loren Barnett," spoke Mr. Lempiere, "what have you done? I would not have believed it possible. The taking of the money was nothing compared to the deadly sin of the murder! Ay, the murder of a young and hopeful reputation! Loren Barnett, what reparation can you make?"

Let us not attempt to picture the scene. It was dreadful. The wretch went down upon his knees and begged for mercy. The money he had withheld—stolen—ay, ten thousand times worse than stolen—had been a curse to him, and only a curse. From the moment that he had put that packet away next to his bosom, resolved to keep it as his own, and allow another to suffer for the crime—from that moment he had known no such thing as peace—had known no joy, no gladness—and not a natural smile had appeared upon his waning, fading face! Those who saw and understood would not punish him more. He had not spent the money—or he was able to make up the amount, and when that had been done he was suffered to depart to his far-away country home, there to drag out a weary existence, burdened by the memory of one deed that was sufficient to make dark and cheerless his pathway to the silent shore.

Need we tell of the result to Harry Wentworth? Need we tell how the old friends came flocking back, and how they all declared they had never believed him guilty?

But what cared he so long as the stern Judge, of his own free will, sought him out, and, with warm and generous impulse of love and good-will, asked his forgiveness, and led him like a son of his choice back to the side of his once smiling and happy daughter?

Fighting Trifles—Three Short Stories.

What a world of trouble, time, and nerve irritation would be saved if boys, and men too, would never mind trifling annoyances. Only the other day we overheard one boy telling another what a third boy had said about him, and urging him to "lick" him. "Oh," said the second boy, "tisn't worth minding. He knows it ain't so, and I won't stoop to his level by taking any notice of it." We inwardly thought, "that's a very wise head on young shoulders."

It reminded us of two men, one of whom started on a foot journey of 150 miles or so. Two days later the other man started on the same road, and on the fourth day overtook the first one. The latter remarked:

"This is the worst and slowest road I ever traveled. There is the greatest lot of snarling, barking little dogs I ever saw, and it has taken half my time to drive them off."

"Why," said the second man, "I didn't pay any attention to them, but came right along as if they weren't there." Half the time of many boys and men is wasted in fighting trifles.

A veteran Circuit Judge was always sure of meeting some cutting or sneering remarks from a self-conceited lawyer when he came to a certain town in his rounds. This was repeated one day at dinner, when a gentleman present said: "Judge, why don't you squelch that fellow?"

The Judge dropped his knife and fork, and placing his chin upon his hands, and his elbows upon the table, remarked:

"Up in our town a widow woman has a yaller dog that, whenever the moon shines, goes out upon the stoop and barks, and barks away at it all night." Stopping short, he quietly resumed eating. After waiting some time, it was asked: "Well, Judge, what of the dog and the moon?" "Oh, the moon kept right on," he said.—American Agriculturist.

VOLTAIRE was once affected with something which he called decay of the stomach but which would probably be better termed debility of the stomach, or paralysis of the digestive function. For nearly a year he took no other nourishment than yolks of eggs, beaten up with flour and water, and thus was cured. This diet is thus prepared: Beat up an egg in a bowl, add six table-spoonfuls of cold water, mixing well together. Then add two table-spoonfuls of farina of potatoes, mix again thoroughly, and add as much boiling water as is necessary to convert the whole into a jelly. It can be taken alone or with the addition of a little milk.—Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.

I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them and enclosing a stamped envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply I have described my case and the treatment used, and earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks stating that they had commenced the treatment and were much better already."

Natural Foes Living in Harmony.

Among other animal stories, Kingston relates the case of a parish or outcast dog that was thrown as food to a caged tiger in India. The dog stood on the defensive in a corner of the cage, and as often as the tiger attempted to molest him, seized it by the lip or neck. The tiger was hungry, but eventually, finding the dog so tough a customer to tackle, it relinquished its onslaughts, and came to an understanding with the foe. When a mess of rice and milk was put into his cage, the larger brute willingly shared it with his courageous opponent; and henceforth they became staunch friends; the dog would run in and out the cage, evidently looking upon it as his home, and indeed, making it such, until the tiger's death left it once more homeless and friendless.

The very best remedy ever invented for the cure of general ill-health, especially dyspepsia, bad blood, nervousness, universal lassitude, weak kidneys, liver troubles, etc., is Dr. Guy-sott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It will not harm the most delicate invalid. Its use wonderfully revives the mental faculties, increases the power of physical endurance, and makes the blood rich, red and pure, enabling it to counteract the effect of exhaustive and debilitating diseases. In localities where this remedy is best known, druggists find it difficult to supply the demand. It contains Yellow Dock, Sarsaparilla, Juniper, Iron, Buchu, Celery, Calaisaya, etc. Every physician knows the merit of such ingredients.

The Stamp.

(Ingersoll.)

I sympathize with the wanderer, with the vagrant out of employment, with the sad and weary men who are seeking for work. When I see one of these men, poor and friendless—no matter how bad he is, I think that somebody loved him once—that he once had a mother—that he slept beneath her loving eyes and awakened in the light of her smile. I see him in the cradle, listening to lullabies sung soft and low, and his little face is dimpled as though by the rosy fingers of joy. And then I think of the strange and winding paths—the weary road—he has traveled, from that mother's arms to vagrancy and want.

Mr. E. B. ROLAND, of Covington, Ky., writes: "I had given up ever finding relief from the ills that afflicted me. I suffered greatly, both mentally and physically. Pimples and boils were all over me. The smallest cut or wound would cause a sore. My digestion troubled me, and my back and kidneys pained me severely. A friend recommended Dr. Guy-sott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. Thanks to its use, I am again in sound condition, and I never can grow weary of praising it to my acquaintances."

A Successful Bluff Game.

A sneak-thief grabbed the carcass of a lamb that hung on a hook in front of a meat market, and, on finding he was pursued, ran into an alley near by, threw his booty behind a pile of boxes, and boldly turned back. His pursuers met him at the corner.

"Where's that lamb?" demanded one.

"What lamb?" innocently asked the thief.

"Why, the one you ran around the corner with a minute ago," explained the one who had taken hold of the stranger.

"I'm not the man. You've made a mistake, but I did meet a fellow just now, running like thunder, with a sheep over his shoulders. He turned that corner there just two minutes ago."

"He's our man," exclaimed both, and off they started, leaving the real thief to disappear hastily down the street. The men found the stolen meat, but did not catch the thief.—Detroit Free Press.

A Punishment Worse Than Death.

An execution to which more than passing interest attaches will take place in Windsor, Vermont. The condemned person is Emeline M. Meaker, of Waterbury, who was convicted of the murder of an orphan girl thirteen years old, Alice Meaker by name, April 22, 1880. The wretched woman protested her innocence on the occasion to set aside the verdict, as she has always done, but was sentenced to be hanged in the prison at Windsor on the last Friday of May, 1883. The crime, for which a son of Mrs. Meaker, Almon Meaker, is already under sentence of death, was one of the most horrible in even the criminal history of Vermont. The child was a half-sister to E. O. Meaker, husband of Emeline, and was an inmate of their household, where she was severely abused and maltreated, being treated, indeed, as a slave by Mrs. Meaker and Almon. Almon was a half-witted, pliant tool in the hands of his mother. Mr. Meaker is believed to be innocent of all complicity in either the abuse or the murder of the child. The child was taken from bed and dressed, a sack was tied over her head, and she was taken in a wagon to a lonely spot in the woods, where a dose of strychnine was given her, and she was left to die in a swamp. The crime was conclusively fixed upon the two wretched prisoners, and nothing can now save them from the terrible consequences. The time allowed the condemned to prepare for death is so long that the execution will undoubtedly be welcomed as a termination of the feeling of terror that will possess them.

A TENNESSEE girl who found a bean she liked better didn't snap the golden cord with the old one by suddenly returning his letters and lock of hair. She sent for him, told him how it was, gave him $5 in cash and 300 pounds of peanuts, and took his receipt in full of all demands.

A Good Family Remedy.

STRICTLY PURE.

Harmless to the Most Delicate.

By its faithful use Consumption has been cured when other Remedies and Physicians have failed to effect a cure.

JEREMIAH WHITE, of Marion county, W. Va., writes us that his wife had PULMONARY CONSUMPTION, and the use of Allen's Lung Balm entirely cured her. He writes that he and his neighbors think it the best medicine in the world.

Wm. C. BIGGERS, Merchant, of Bowling Green, Va., writes, April 4th, 1881, that he wants us to know that LUNG BALM HAS CURED HIS MOTHER OF CONSUMPTION after the physician had given her up as incurable. He says others knowing her case have taken the Balm and been cured; he thinks all so afflicted should give it a trial.

Dr. M. BENDITH, Dentist, of Cincinnati, was induced to be in the last stages of CONSUMPTION and was induced by his friends to try Allen's Lung Balm after the lung mela was shown him. We have his letter that it cured his cough, and that he was able to resume his practice.

Wm. A. GRAHAM & Co., Wholesale Druggists, Zanesville, Ohio, writes us of the cure of Mathias Freeman, a well-known citizen, who has been afflicted with BRONCHITIS in twelve years, and who took the Lung Balm cure, as it has many others, of BRONCHITIS.

Dr. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that Dr. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this powerful remedy, has in my hands, made a wonderful cure. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as Dr. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice.

A NUMBER of Ohio ladies residing in Washington have gotten up a very handsome fire-screen, which is to be sent in a day or two to Grandma Garfield, as an expression of their deep sympathy for her recent bereavement and their admiration of the character of her son, the late president. The screen is made of glass, with the designs painted by hand and then burned. This glass part swings in a frame of carved ebony, which stands nearly five feet high and is about thirteen feet wide. In the center of the glass there is an excellent picture of Gen. Garfield, painted from a copy of the photograph taken for Queen Victoria. Above the head is the coat-of-arms of the state of Ohio. In one of the upper corners is a shield, and in the other a spread eagle. Below the picture are flags, cannon, and shot appropriately arranged. The whole forms a very pretty piece of furniture.

We are glad to announce that the Scientific American came out of the late fire in New York, like the fabled Phoenix, with renewed life. The subscription lists, account books, patent records, patent drawings, and correspondence were preserved in massive fire-proof safes. The new Scientific American offices are located at 261 Broadway, corner of Warren Street, a very central and excellent situation.

EARS FOR THE MILLION!

Foo Choo's Balm of Shark's Oil

Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.

This Oil is extracted from a peculiar species of small WHITE SHARK, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as Chondodon Bonedelli. Every Chinese fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by a Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $1 per bottle.

Only Imported by HAYLOCK & CO., Sole Agents for America. 7 Day St., New York.

Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Among the many readers of the Review in one part and another of the country, it is probable that numbers are afflicted with deafness, and to such it may be said: "Write at once to Haylock & Co., 7 Day Street, New York, enclosing $1, and you will receive by return mail a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. You will never regret doing so."—Editor Mercantile Review. 21-2m.
