A Centenarian

Mrs. A. V. Coster, who has the distinction of being Holland's first centenarian is commemorating her 100 birthday anniversary today. She was born in France and emigrated to America in 1848 the year after the Van Raalte colony was settled in western Michigan and been a resident of Holland township and city for 33 years. Despite her advanced age, she retains her faculties to a remarkable degree and goes about unassisted. Since the death of her husband in 1885 she has lived with her grandson, Paul R., a Holland letter carrier. Before coming to America, her husband was an officer in the Dutch army and later was head book keeper for the Heath Milligan company of Chicago.

Wholesale Liquor House for Zeeland

The News has received information from very reliable sources that a wholesale liquor house and bottling works will be opened in Zeeland. The informer tells the News that the building has been leased and that the required bondsmen have signified their willingness to serve. Zeeland comes under the same provisions of the state law as does Holland relative to wholesale liquor houses and if the required bonds are given the Zeeland council is compelled to issue a license. This will be a sad blow to the Holland wholesalers as they will have to retire from their well beaten path.

Central park's beauties will be added to by four flying squirrels which Dr. Edward Hoffman has captured and will turn over to the authorities of the park.

A jury has awarded Mrs. McNetton $1,100. Mrs. McNetton of Allegan, sued a saloonist named Herp for damages for the sum of $10,000 for selling liquor to her husband, which she claimed caused alcoholic insanity. The case has been in the courts two years. At the first trial the plaintiff secured a verdict of $1,500 damages; but the supreme court sent it back for retrial.

The article concerning the passing of the wild pigeon which appeared in last week's News, proved of interest to many Holland people who still remember wild pigeon days. Many of the older residents and some of the younger ones too have hunted the wild pigeon in this vicinity many times. In fact some of the old timers assert that it was nothing unusual to be able to knock down enough birds with a club to last as a mess for several days.

A local lodge of Elks is to be instituted at Grand Haven in a short time. Several who are members of Daisy lodge at Grand Rapids will transfer their membership and with the new men who have signed the charter, it is expected that the lodge will start with a membership of 70. Daisy lodge of Grand Rapids and Muskegon will be on hand at the institution and see that the new fellows are properly antlered. Holland should follow suit in this as there are at the least calculation 50 Elk members in this vicinity.

Not Over Four Saloons

Even if the saloon proposals carried at the spring election there will be but few favored ones who will be able to dispense the amber brew. A man who knows the in and outs of the bondsman question says that at the most Holland could not possibly get more than four saloons. It requires two bondsmen for each bond, and these bondmen must have property unincumbered with an assessed valuation of $6,000 and there are not over eight of such men in the city who would sign such a bond.

The new law also forbids saloon men going on one another's bond as has been the case formerly. This makes the proposition still more perplexing to the applicants as heretofore there were at least four who signed on two bonds each.

Navigation Open

The Graham and Morton boats will go into commission tomorrow for tri weekly trips.

The starting of the boats is a matter of much interest to shippers as affording a quicker and cheaper service to Chicago and western points. It is stated a large quantity of freight has already accumulated for the boats.

The Holland Interurban has made pro-rating freight contracts with all but two of the roads out of Chicago, and this season will be able to quote through rates to points southwest and north of Chicago. This is an important concession, and will be of great advantage to shippers as rebelling from Chicago will be unnecessary.

TRAIN IS WRECKED BY AN ELEPHANT

BIG BEAST AFTER CRASH FIGHTS BULLETS FOR TWO HOURS.

ENGINE RUNS INTO HERD

Torches Light the Tracks in an African Jungle to Keep Off Lions While Men Tackle the Enraged and Injured Brute.

Johannesburg.—An extraordinary accident recently befell a Rhodesian train on the journey from Victoria Falls to Bulawayo.

Passing through jungle country in the darkness the engine crashed into a herd of elephants. A huge bull received the full force of the impact.

The engine was derailed, the cow-catcher being buckled up like scrap-iron and twisted back under the front wheels.

Through the violence of the collision the passengers were thrown in all directions, and a wild rush was made for the coach doors. About a hundred Kaffirs who were on the train were ordered out to make bonfires, and soon these were blazing on both sides of the track.

Then the electrician tapped the telegraph wires and sent word to the nearest station to send a wrecking crew and "jacks" for raising the engine.

According to a Johannesburg man who was among the passengers, great difficulty was experienced in disposing of the elephant, which was entangled in the wheels. "For two solid hours they potted the poor brute, but it wouldn't die," he said. "It was furious and lashing with its trunk and blowing sand all over the place.

"They could not get near enough to see the extent of its injuries; one hind leg seemed to be under the train, between wheels, and the other was through the side of a Kaffir truck.

"People were afraid it might kick itself free and charge the crowd. Several times it tried to rise. Finally it died. It was a huge bull, 11 feet high, measuring 25 feet from the tip of the trunk. Its tail was cut off, and its two hind legs were fearfully smashed.

"They had great difficulty in disentangling it from the train. Ropes were put round the forelegs and all the Kaffirs and many of the passengers had to pull and tug for a long time.

"At last an engine and truck came along the line; the implements were gotten out and they tackled the engine. It had plowed its way into the sand, and the wheels were nearly buried.

"We were there for 13 hours. Bonfires were kept up all the night to keep off lions, which might be attracted by the smell of carrion." Another of the elephants was injured, but got away.

Navigation Under Difficulties.

Navigation of the North Canadian river as far up as Woodward has always been beset with many trials and dangers. The steamship City of Woodward, which started on a down river cruise several days ago, is having a hard time. Here is part of the daily log, in the neighborhood of Alston: "Nothing more was sighted until we reached the railroad bridge at Alston, where we rammed pier 3, knocking it fully six inches out of plumb. The next encounter was a sandbar, which was soon overcome, and we proceeded on down-stream, only to encounter 23 more sandbars in rapid succession. Having got clear of these we succeeded in picking up a barbed wire fence, which was a lucky event, for the posts were used for firewood. Things moved on smoothly from this time on, except on one occasion, when the ship attempted to climb a tree."—Kansas City Times.

House Cleaning Season

This house cleaning season is awful! It seems just a shame, so I say, To turn a nice house topsy turvey, And soak it in soapsuds each day. To pull the insides from the cupboards, To tear carpets up from the floors, To use pictures, chairs and pianos To blockade the windows and doors. Now things disappear just like magic, Unless you hold on to them tight; And things that have been lost for ages Are just being brought into sight. We missed baby's best shoes and stockings And what do you think was their fate? Packed down in an old rubbish barrel Way out by the back alley gate. One night Pa fell over the ladder, That some one had left near the door, And he got so cross and disgusted He won't come to meals any more. But, 'tween you and I, dad's a wise one, He don't want to come home to eat, For fear, if the meal wasn't ready, He might have a carpet to beat. Dear mother seems all out of patience, And grandma is all out of tune; The maid she is crosser than any, I hope it will end very soon. —Ex.

Move the Fair

There is some talk and has been for some time by the directors of the Holland Fair to plat a strip the length of the west end of the Fair grounds into lots of fifty feet and moving the stock stables to the east end of the grounds. The Fair association could easily spare a strip the length of the west end and the width of a city lot and still retain enough ground for fair purposes. It is estimated that 40 lots could easily be sold at $100 a lot, giving the association $4,000 to do with. No doubt new stables would be built and a new art hall erected, both of which are practically imperative. The News still maintains as always that the grounds are not properly located. In the first place it is too near the cemetery, making it an eye sore to many who have friends and dear ones interred there. Then from a commercial standpoint it should be on a street car line where patrons can ride to it for a nickel with the least possible delay coming and going. If some decent figure could be had for this property and a desirable option could be secured on a convenient location it would be the proper thing to do. The News would be willing to wager that the attendance would be increased nearly double. Then consider also the possibility of other attractions such as race matinees, base ball grounds and the like. It would by proper management pay for itself.

There is no doubt but that the council will pass the proposition of resubmitting the saloon question to the people of Holland this spring. The fact that the "drys" had only 200 names two years ago and the proposition was submitted and the "wets" now have 640 names was too strong a factor to overlook and the council members cannot see the fairness of sidetracking the large list when a much smaller one brought the matter to a vote before. After all it is only a case of letting the people decide for themselves.

WHAT YOU SAW IN THIS PAPER

35 Years ago To-day.

The Hope gives the collection taken up on last Sunday for relief of the Kansas sufferers as follows: First Reformed, $93; Third Reformed, $100. At Zeeland a similar collection realized nearly $300. And there was no concert or fair, or oyster soup about it either; it was a plain old fashioned collection.

Miss Sarah Morrissey, aged 17 years, daughter of the widow Mrs. Morrissey, of this city, died very suddenly at Saugatuck last Sunday.

On Sunday noon P. Dijkshoorn, living a mile north of Zeeland, on coming home from church went in his barn to feed the cattle. As he got up stairs to throw down some hay, the roof of the barn fell in under the heavy weight of snow. One of the rafters struck him on his neck killing him instantly.

The neighboring village lost one of its oldest settlers. He died after the following incident connected with his sickness has reached us, but we think it will stand publication nevertheless: One of the old residents of the village was taken very sick the other day and being 84 years old he was not expected to remain many days, before departing this life for his final home. The neighbors and friends cheerfully rendered their services in what they supposed to be his last days on earth, and among those who especially desired to demonstrate their sympathy and express their regards for the old gentleman were Mr. M. and his wife. One evening the venerable patient was very low and it was thought he wouldn't pull through until the morning. M. and his wife were to bestow the last favors in sitting up with him that night. At an early hour in the morning the old gentleman gathered all his remaining strength, and with the help of these two friends, raised himself up in bed, wishing to express what was thought to be his dying request. He could barely move his lips, but finally succeeded in an audible whisper to give utterance to the following: "Brother M— when are you going to pay me those four dollars you've been owing me these many years?" Upon hearing this statement the patient was allowed to return to his pillow in a hurry, and Mrs. M. forthwith tying on her bonnet was heard to say, that in her opinion the old man was still too much attached to the goods of this world, to relieve her of all doubts as to his future state.

At a meeting called by the Mayor for the purpose of discussing the question, whether the city of Grand Haven should purchase the bridge between this city and Spring Lake, for the purpose of making it a free bridge, the Council were requested to appoint a committee to confer with its present owners and examine the said bridge, in order to report more fully the cost and expense and to report at a meeting of the citizens to be called hereafter.

P. Dutton, Pioneer, Eveline, W. Bates, Four Brothers and Scudd. In the community the captain was an exemplary citizen, neighbor, husband and father, and a leading member of the M. E. church. New Thoughts at Board of Trade Banquet

"One for all and all for one," was the trend of thought which ran through all the speeches delivered at the Board of Trade banquet last Friday night. Pres. McLean uttered this sentence in his address as retiring president and it was straight way followed up by the speakers present.

Dr. Wishart of Grand Rapids in an eloquent address promulgated the idea of unselfishness in business and the fostering of a single aim which shall direct business as well as religious life. George E. Kollen toastmaster of the evening, discoursed upon the subject "Disinterestedness" and Bishop N. McCormick set forth the qualities of a business man as leader.

Patriotism and active citizenship, intelligent voting and discretion in the choice of public candidates, love for one's country and city expressed in active interest in time of peace as well as in war times, were the thoughts which Arthur VandenBerg of the Grand Rapids Herald marshaled home in a brilliant, earnest address.

Judge Everett of Chicago limited his speech to local conditions. Citizens' pride finds its embodiment also in the beauty of its city and the judge urged the laying out of a park between the tannery and the Scott-Lugers dock in order that travelers coming by boat may receive right impressions of the city of Holland as soon as they enter the city.

Cornelius Verschure, cashier of the Holland City State bank, was elected president for the coming year.

After the speeches the board of trade members repaired to the heavily laden banquet tables on which a spicy menu invited them to the full enjoyment of a most excellent repast which Dr. J. J. Mersen and his committee had arranged. Under the supervision of Meadames J. J. Cappon, Arend Visscher, B. VanRaalte, Jr., J. J. Dykstra, A. C. Keppel and J. J. Mersen, several young ladies waited upon the assembled guests.

Wolgast Boxed Here,—Broke

Grand Haven fight fans saw the present light weight champion of the world, work in this city before he had attained the distinction of being the greatest lightweight in the world. That was five years ago and the Michigan Wildcat was then not on the bottom rung of the ladder of pug fame. A bout had been scheduled between Billy Moore a colored man to take place in the armory, and a bunch of fight fans came down from Grand Rapids to see the go. As openers they took with them a couple of lively youngsters, and one of the youngsters was Ad Wolgast, who was then glad to get on in any sort of a preliminary bout, that held out a chance to make a little meal ticket money for him. He had the stuff in him that makes a boxer and the few fans who had seen him battle called him Kid Wolgast. When he struck town that night he was on his uppers and he didn't have enough money in his pockets to buy a cup of coffee, but as nearly as the fans can remember he put up a good article of goods, hungry or not hungry.

Nevertheless, Addie was coming along even then. He left Grand Rapids to go to Milwaukee, where after a hard struggle in the preliminary class, he was picked up and started. One by one of the good lightweight failed to stop him until only Batling Nelson stood between him and the lightweight championship of the world. He recently met Nelson, the terrible Dane and after forty rounds of terrific battling, Wolgast was champion of the world—the same little hungry Addie Wolgast, who boxed before a few faces in the armory here five years ago.

Now he has the money and the title, all gained since the night five years ago, when he was picked up on the streets in Grand Rapids and brought here to be hammered for a dollar or two.—Grand Haven Tribune.

Notes of Sport

Hope college administered a crushing defeat to the fast prison city five Friday by the score of 53 to 25. The Dutchmen tried to run away from the visitors in the early stages and through superb team work and feature plays by J. Vruwink, Levan and Stegeman scored at will. In the second half the visitors remained stationary for fully five minutes while Hope kept on scoring. Bucknell and Dewey starred for the visitors.

Final Score—Hope 53, Jackson 25. Score first half—Hope 32, Jackson 11. Baskets from field—Stegeman 8, Veenker 4, J. Vruwink 9, Levan, H. Vruwink 3, Dewey 2, Bucknell 5, Corbett, Hodgeman. Baskets from fouls—Bucknell 4 in 8; Dewey, 2 in 4; Veenker 1 in 3; Levan 1 in 3. Referee—Huebner. Time of Halves, 20 minutes.

In one of the most exciting contests ever witnessed on the gymnasium floor, the co-eds were defeated by the Holland High school sextet on Tuesday evening by a score of 13 to 11. The regular period of the game ended in a tie score, after which both teams secured an extra point on a double foul. Capt. Notifer of the High school team, thereupon shifted the Maud McClellan from guard to forward and in a remarkable short time she scored a pretty field goal which won the victory. Both teams now have a game to their credit and a third to determine the city championship, in all probability will be arranged.

An enthusiastic rally of the athletic association was held on Tuesday morning for the purpose of arousing interest in the numerous events which are being planned by the track team, the first of which in the cross country race scheduled soon after the spring recess. Captain Brooks has an abundance of good sprinters available and the successful contestants will soon be chosen. Teams from Olivet, Lansing, Muskegon and Grand Rapids will compete for the trophy, which was won by Muskegon last year.

Getting rattled in the sixth inning of a fast an interesting game the Veneer factory indoor team handed the laurels to the Shoeman who defeated them by a score of 15 to 5. The Veneer lads were game until the fifth inning, Foster having allowed but a few hits and striking out some ten men. After this inning they went wrong and Roy Peterson got after the Veneer for further orders, securing 18 strike outs and allowing 18 hits.

Flushed because of their victory over the Hope college co-eds the High school basket ball team made a long dive for Western State Championship by challenging the South Haven maidens. However, poor floor accommodations handicapped the locals and penalizing and further blasted all hopes for the coveted title. The final score was 14 to 12.

Owing to conflicting engagements, the date of the Burns Potter wrestling bout for the middleweight championship of Michigan has been changed to Friday evening, March 11, at the Lyceum roller rink in this city. Burns meets Shelp, of Bancroft, at Ionia, the night before for a side bet of $100 and gate receipts. Burns was matched with Shelp at Saranac recently, but the bout had not progressed very far when he was forced to throw up the sponge owing to an injured leg. He thereupon at once challenged Shelp for a purse of $100 and receipts, which the later accepted. Burns and Potter have each won a match and this go will be worth the price of admission alone.

In a terrific struggle for the state championship the fast Hope college basket ball five were defeated by the husky M. A. C. quintet Thursday night, by a score of 40 to 21 on the M. A. C. floor.

The game was the most brilliant and fastest played this season and although the locals put up a plucky fight they were not able to stop the fast play of the Aggies, who outweighed them greatly and had a decided advantage over the Hope men by their tall guard and center. During the first minutes of the play Johnnie Vruwink set the Hope scoring machine going, and though playing under the unfamiliar intercollegiate rules the locals clung to their opponents like leeches preventing them from getting ahead more than 9 points in the first half which ended with a score of 21 to 12 in favor of the Farmers.

The second half was more disastrous for the Hollanders than the first. Playing under their own A. A. V. rules, which are much more restrictive than the intercollegiate and which the Hope delegation had booked to win, the locals, nevertheless, last out. Levan, especially had to guard a hard man, and Captain Veenker was constantly bothered by M. A. C. guards. During this half Brooks made a sensational play, a field goal from the centre of the floor. The second half ended with a final score of 40 to 21.

The game, however, can hardly be called a criterion of the relative strength of the teams. The floor conditions of Hope and M. A. C. are so different that at M. A. C. the Aggies have a great advantage over their opponents. Girders are stretching low across the Farmer's gymnasium, preventing high passing to which the locals are accustomed. Then Hope's crack guard, Martin Verburg was out of the game on account of a burned hand which badly crippled the Hope five in its machine like team work. Referee Huibner of Detroit proved the right man on the floor, his decisions never being objected to.

Grand Haven high school never had a strong track team. For many years the students of the local high school have paid but little attention to track and field events, devoting all their athletic energy to base ball and foot ball. Back in 1897 and 98 Grand Haven high school maintained track teams which participated in dual meets with Muskegon. Later there used to be dual meets with Holland high school, but the local students have never gone very far with the sport, principally because there has been no field and track at their disposal. This year a call has again been made for track men and if enough respond there will be another effort to revive the good sport. An invitation has been received to enter a team in the Holland cross country road race in which several high schools of this vicinity will enter teams and several of the men who think they can do long distance work may be coached up for entry. —Grand Haven Tribune.

About 600 rooters including the half hundred Hope rooters cheered on the respective team, the farmers being better in the rooting con test.

their yelling was executed with as the accuracy of a brassband concert.

Tomorrow night the M. A. C. five will meet the college quintet on the Hope floor, and this game will practically decide the title to the championship. If Hope wins this game a third game will be played on a neutral floor, probably Detroit. Last Monday the Aggie's defeated the fast Detroit Y. by the narrow margin of three points. Jackson, which Hope defeated last Saturday, beat the Detroit quintet earlier in the season. So the changes are highly in favor of the local college lads. Tickets will be sold for 35 cents.

Having up to this time been easy leaders in the Auditorium League the Chemicals last Monday night had the scare of their lives when the West Michigan drove them up to their last trench, taking a defeat by the narrow margin of 9 to 8. Prins and Vanden Berg were in the box for the West Michigan's while Te Roller and Lievense were the battery for the winners.

The Hope College basket ball girls have just scheduled a game of basket ball with the Fremont team which is reported to be a formidable aggregation this season. The local Highschool girls will also be played to decide the championship. At a meeting held yesterday it was moved that the girls be presented with the basket ball H. A grand stand will also be erected on the baseball grounds and a new tennis court be laid out to accommodate all the tennis lovers this spring.

Johnny Vos of this city who meets Eddie Wosinski at the Lyceum Rink Friday evening has several good bouts in prospect. Immediately after the show here he leaves with his manager, Frank Van Ry, Jr., for Windsor, Canada, where he meets Curley Gerhard one of the toughest boys in his class. From there they travel to Buffalo, N. Y., where he meets Willie Kelly the Buffalo newsboy. Kelley recently met Abe Attel and gave a very good account of himself. Returning they take on Young Perry at Muskegon in a 10 round go for a $100 purse. Local fight fans have put up $150 to back Johnny against anybody in the state at 118 lbs.

Albion College Orator Wins

Giving their undivided attention for more than three hours to the speeches of nine college orators, the 1600 people that packed the Judging Pavilion at the Michigan Agricultural college held their breath when at 11.15 the judges' decision was announced, giving first honors to S. H. Howe of Albion college who spoke on the subject "A New Ideal." A mighty yell arose from the strong Albion delegation and, carrying their orator on their shoulders, they left the building for their triumphant journey home.

The judges' decision showed Albion an easy winner with G. C. Converse of Hillsdale trailing in for second. Verhulst, of Hope college, showed up well, his manuscript work coming dangerously near that of the Hillsdale man. Hope's orator, though next to last in order of speaking held the attention of the large audience from beginning till end, his forceful delivery and good stage presence greatly aiding him in securing a hearing by his audience.

The Hope delegation, though not one of the largest, nevertheless quite out-noised even the strong Albion tribe. A siren brought along from a local garage, worked wonders, the miniature mocking bird whistle easily drowning the frantic yells of the combined colleges.

The ladies contest in the afternoon drew almost as large an audience as did that of the men in the evening. The gold medal was awarded to Miss Katherine Joy Mauck, daughter of President Mauck of Hillsdale college, while Miss Carder of Kalamazoo took second honors.

M. A. C. people furnished splendid entertainment to the 800 delegates. The different colleges were entertained at supper at the different dormitories upon the campus. A feature of the day, was the annual electrical show given by M. A. C. engineers in the large electric building.

Mr. Howe, winner of the men's contest, will represent the Michigan Oratorical League at the interstate contest to be held at Omaha, Neb., under the auspices of Creighton University. Ten states enter into this contest, Ohio, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois and Indiana.

Wider Tired Wagons

State Highway Commissioner Ely and Deputy Rogers attended the road institute at Detroit and Mr. Ely states that a bill is to be presented to the next legislature, to prohibit the use of heavily loaded narrow tired wagon on county roads of macadam and gravel.

Over 100 highway commissioners declared in favor of this move and are receiving the hearty backing of the state highway department. The commissioners also urge that a law be passed limiting the size of loads on narrow tired rigs, if it was impossible to secure more strict legislation.

Eleven Quarters Bring $50, Ace

A big land deal, involving eleven quarters in Faulk county, has just been closed. The purchasers are C. E. Gunhus and John Gabler of Cresbard, and the price paid was $88,000, which figures up $50 an acre.

Land in this territory can be purchased at a fair price and several good sales to settlers were made recently. The sale of eleven quarters reported today means a speedy development of the country contiguous to Watertown whose trade territory is fast extending in all directions, especially in the west.

The country west of here is developing rapidly and this is especially true in Faulk county. The land purchased by Messrs. Gunhus and Gabler is improved and contains a few buildings. It is considered a bargain and it is reported that there is plenty more good land to be found in that vicinity at prices that will appeal to farmers.

The last big land deal in Faulk county happened last summer. It involved the sale of 1,080 quarters at an average price of $37.50 per acre, a total expenditure of nearly $6,500,000.—Daily Public Opinion, Watertown.

Nearly every residence in Holland will undergo a complete transformation within the next month. It is the time of house cleaning, of spring moving. The time to make changes and improvements in the furnishings. As the householder takes inventories of furniture and fittings they notice probably that new carpets are needed, that rugs and matings are getting old and worn and should be replaced with new ones, that the curtains and draperies are a trifle shabby and out of style and should give way to newer patterns. So it is with numberless articles of furniture. The spring winds whisper that they should be changed, renovated, replaced with brighter and better goods. If you want to make this change profitable, pleasant and at a comparatively small cost, go to James A. Brouwer's furniture store on River street. Mr. Stephan has scoured the markets for the choicest goods and they are offered to the public at reasonable prices.

In the matter of the petition of Oramel B. Fuller, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, for the sale of certain lands for taxes assessed thereon.

On reading and filing the petition of the Auditor General of the State of Michigan, praying for a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of land therein described, for the amounts therein specified, claimed to be due for taxes, interest and charges on each such parcel of land, and that such lands be sold for the amounts so claimed by the State of Michigan.

It is ordered that said petition will be brought on for hearing and decree at the March term of this Court, to be held at Grand Haven, in the County of Ottawa, State of Michigan, on the 21st day of March, A. State of Michigan—To the Circuit Court for the County of Ottawa, in Chancery:

The petition of Oramel B. Fuller, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all the lands in said County of Ottawa upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid; together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General under the provisions of Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1903, as delinquent for non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and which taxes remain unpaid.

Your petitioner further shows that in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes and the sale or sales so made have been set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree in favor of the State of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.
Dated January 24th, 1910.
ORAMEL B. FULLER,
Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State.

The lawyer took himself off. Brand saw the danger of delay. He doubted if any man would be able to successfully withstand the pressure that Bartelmy and Nolan's family would be able to bring to bear on the owner in another twenty-four hours.

"No, no," he exclaimed to Nolan. "You would fail me again. I have tried to prove this judge's guilt to the people, but I fear I have only succeeded in proving it to his daughter. A day's delay would be fatal. I know. At least Bartelmy could get another judge to issue an injunction against us even if he would not dare to do it himself. And there are other steps he might take."

His voice rose higher, and he worked himself into a frenzy of earnestness. He stood before the little group gathered around the ink black form and continued his impassioned words: "You know I thought we were going to be absolutely unmuzzled here. You were a free man. Poverty couldn't frighten you, and you had seen both sides of life. You promised to back me up, no matter what it cost, so long as we printed the truth, but at the last big test you fail me."

Mrs. Nolan was on the point of becoming hysterical in her agitation.

"Michael, Michael!" she began.

"There, mother, you go home with Sylvester. He's waiting outside for you. After all, this is a man's job we've got here. I am the head of the family, and I will settle this matter in my own way," he said sternly. "You must not attempt further to interfere."

He led her out of the room.

Brand spoke to McHenry.

"Did you hear, Mac?" he asked. "He won't decide to run it."

"It's tough, old man—it's tough."

"This is such a live thing I don't see how I can kill it," the managing editor said, rubbing his hand over the face of the form.

"That's the best first page ever made up in America," said McHenry, with justifiable professional pride.

Brand was inconsolable.

"I've been working ten years for just this thing," he said, "something so plain that even children would see what the big thieves are doing."

"You go home," Brand suddenly ordered McHenry.

"What?" was the surprised exclamation.

"I said go home!"

Brand's face was beginning to twitch nervously. He stood in the middle of the composing room, under the flooding white glare from a sixty-four candle power electric light, and clinched and unclenched his hands, not daring to look McHenry squarely in the face. The night editor began to guess what was passing through Brand's mind.

"Yes, but," he began to protest—"but!"

Brand cut him short, saying agitatedly:

"I am still managing editor."

McHenry now realized plainly that the intensely earnest Brand had decided to run the story that very night regardless of Nolan's attitude. It would be an easy matter, as Nolan, of course, would not remain at the office much longer. And McHenry well knew that such an act would not only bring about Brand's discharge from the Advance, opportunity to study or even become familiar with the important questions and the problems that confront the men that guide the policy of newspapers.

Nolan drew close to Brand and placed his hand affectionately on the young editor's shoulder.

"But you, Wheeler—you have taught me much about those big issues that I did not know, and you have shown to me the high ideals that should guide the newspaper writer, the newspaper editor and the newspaper owner as well. You are right in this case." His voice rose to majestic heights. "Wheeler Brand, I have learned from you that the Advance is more than a newspaper. It is a great, throbbing, potential force. It is the strong arm of the Right standing against the evil arm of the Wrong. So we must not falter. We must not delay. Show the big thieves up, Wheeler. Let the story go to press."

Nolan turned quickly away and hastened out and down into the street.

A warm glow of enthusiasm spread over the face of Wheeler Brand as he picked up a bundle of proofs.

"We'll show them up!" he cried exultantly. "We'll show them up, and we'll put them down!"

CHAPTER XIV.

BRAND and McHenry began eagerly to inspect the final proofs of the Bartelmy story.

Two figures suddenly stood in the doorway of the composing room. Ed Dupuy's telephone call was beginning to show results. Judge Bartelmy and Judith, ready for a last effort to prevent the publication of the condemnatory article, quite unobserved, glanced to where Brand and his associate editor were at work. "Don't come in yet. Wait a few moments," whispered the judge. The girl slipped down the hall into the managing editor's little office, the cogen of vantage from which she had previously been able to hear all that took place in the composing room. Bartelmy proceeded directly to the form before which the two editors were working, and Brand saw that he must undergo another unpleasant encounter before the presses began to whirl off his story. He glanced impatiently at the clock and raised his brows questioningly to the judge.

SHE THREW HERSELF OVER THE INKY FORM.

out that it would as well injure his reputation in other newspaper offices, where obedience to one's superior, as in any well regulated organization, is a man's first duty under all circumstances.

"Why, man," he exclaimed questioningly, "you're surely not going to run this story?"

Before Brand could give an answer to this last question, even if he had intended to do so, Nolan broke in on the pair.

"Mr. Nolan," began Brand, "you have heard the whole story of this miserable affair, both sides of it—Bartelmy's and my own, from our own lips. Whatever defense or explanation Bartelmy gave you I don't know. But, so far as I am concerned, I told you the facts and the truth. You must know that by this time. You must believe it. Therefore why do you or how in heaven's name can you hesitate?"

Michael Nolan's face shone with the light of determination.

"Wheeler, my boy," he said, "I have learned much from you. I have needed contact with such a man as you. I have led a rough life for most of my career. When I rose to be chairman of the Street Railway Workers' union I did so simply through my ruggedness of character, my ability to master men. Then I was driven out into the world, an outcast, and became a day laborer in the mines. When the day came that I owned my own mine it was again a case of fight. Fight, FIGHT, for the lawless claim jumpers threatened me above ground, and the lawless floods assailed me below ground. So in the life I led I did not get the

"Mr. Brand, has Mr. Nolan been here tonight?" asked Bartelmy.

"Yes."

"Have you received instructions about this story?"

"Yes."

"What were those instructions? Is the story to be printed?"

"I am not at liberty to discuss with any outside person the communications I receive from the owner, but I will add for your information that the story will be on the press in a very few minutes."

At this latest declaration of Brand's Judith could restrain herself no longer. She rushed through the doorway, across the grimy floor, regardless of the flowing train of her silk gown.

Brand rubbed the back of his hand across his eyes as though they were deceiving him.

"Good God, it is Judith!" he exclaimed. Then he turned to his assistant.

"Here, Mac, hurry—take this form away."

The girl's face and eyes were aglow with the effects of the nervous strain under which she labored on that epoch making and epoch breaking night before the startled night shift of the Advance.

"Wheeler, you're not going to use that picture?" she pleaded.

"Take the form away," again ordered Brand, his voice almost falling him.

"No, no; don't send it! Wait, wait!" She threw herself over the ink form, her arms outstretched.

Brand tried to draw her away.

"Judith, please!" he protested.

"They can't have"—She was hysterical.

"Go to lunch, boys," ordered Brand to the typesetters.

"We'll miss the mail," protested McHenry.

"I don't care. Go to lunch."

The compositors ceased work at the linotypes and, wondering and whispering, slowly filed out.

"Judith," Brand besought her, "won't you?"

"Listen to me, Wheeler," she broke in. "I know everything. Father has told me everything about—his—guilt. You understand what it means to me—what he is to me. You must spare him for me!"

"Judith, it's impossible."

"But it is the human thing to do. Oh, forget these ideals. Be just a man—a man who loves a woman and protects her. You do love me, I know, in spite of everything that you've done."

"Yes, I love you!" he cried fervently.

"And Wheeler, dear, I've not changed," she told him fondly. "I can see how right you mean to be in what you are trying to do, but in this you are wrong. Whatever my father may have done, his intentions were honest. He had been involved by others and when he tried to extricate himself it was too late. They, not he, were guilty. It was for their sakes, not his own, that he offered you that money, so you see you are wrong. Why, Wheeler, if you belonged to me and committed a crime I would die to shield you from the penalty."

Brand answered her quickly.

"That is wrong reasoning."

"No, no; it is right. That must always be," she cried. "It is like—a law of life. Can't you see that too? I belong to you. Yes, I belong to you, and you should shield me. You must feel toward my father as he were your own because he is mine. It's not possible that you would do this thing to your own father. Think of him that way—your own father! You'll not regret it. I'll make it up to you with all

The judge had drawn a few steps away from the pair during the scene between them. He viewed with calculating satisfaction the battle that his daughter was waging so valiantly in his behalf, and he had felt that not even the young stoic Brand could resist this powerful and final appeal of the girl he loved. At his daughter's last outcry he drew near to the editor.

"Brand, are you human?" he demanded strongly, pointing to the prostrated girl with his walking stick.

"Human, human, Judge Bartelmy!" he exclaimed. "You are true to yourself to the end. You bring your daughter here so that by torturing me with the sight of her suffering you may escape the penalty of your thievery. I was willing she should think me heartless to spare her the greater pain of knowing you as you are. But now you bring her here in her innocence to repeat to me your lies. You're degrading her, dragging her down to your own level, just as you did her mother before her. If she lets you go on using her it will be with her eyes open."

Judith raised her head amazedly.

"What are you saying?" she asked.

Brand turned to her and then to the judge.

"Why, he's lied to you just as he's lied all his life. He told you he was trying to shield others. He lied. He never shielded any one but himself. Judge Bartelmy, the power of men like you must be destroyed. When justice is corrupted the nation rots. If I keep silent about you and your methods I become your accomplice; I betray my trust just as you have betrayed yours."

Bartelmy raised his hand deprecatingly. Brand, however, drew a deep breath and went resolutely on. He spoke to both the girl and the judge.

"Judith, if at the cost of my life I could spare you this grief I would do it gladly. But even that would do no good. You would always despise me for failing when my test came and al-toward him, she searched his strong young face as best her tear dimmed eyes would let her. He returned her gaze unflinchingly.

Judge Bartelmy saw the girl's struggle to decide between the father who had dishonored her name and the lover who meant a life of happiness, purity, success and inspiration. He was wise enough in the ways of the world to know that again was Brand to prove a victor over him.

"Six hours, did you say, Mr. Brand?"

The girl stood immovable a moment. Then she extended her arm toward her lover. Judith Bartelmy had made her choice.

The judge's features showed but little of the storm into which his emotions had been plunged. His years of practiced self control had come to his aid and enabled him to face the ruin of his career and his life and his name without the frenzied demonstration in which most men in his position would have indulged. To the last he was the cool, polished, suave hypocrite that he had been in the beginning, when those who sought to loot the public for private gain found him a willing tool.

"He is right," Bartelmy said to Judith. "He has told you the truth to-night—the absolute truth." He looked at his watch. "Six hours, did you say, Mr. Brand?" he asked.

Brand had gathered Judith in his arms. She sighed contentedly as she laid her head upon his shoulder.

"Yes," he answered the judge.

Judge Bartelmy stood watching the united couple for a moment before he turned and walked away, muttering as he went: "Six hours. One may travel far in these days in that time."

The great ship heaved and lunged through the giant seas that swept over her bows, out of the freezing night, out of the cold northeast. The captain and the first officer, lashed to opposite ends of the lofty bridge, choked in the flying spume of wind riven midocean.

Somewhere a deep toned bell told of the hour in the sailors' accustomed fashion. From somewhere out of the depths of the vast groaning fabric tumbled the men of the watch who were now to go on duty to relieve their storm beaten fellows.

And somewhere down in the shivering, rearing hull a gaunt faced, hollow eyed man lay on the saffron hued velvet cushions of a narrow couch at the side of a luxurious stateroom. He was fully dressed in spite of the lateness of the hour and of the fact that he was sleeping—just as he had been the night before. He tossed uneasily. Sometimes he thrust his hands out convulsively as though to ward off a threatening danger. He began to talk incoherently. The ship rolled, and a tray containing dishes and an evening meal that had gone untouched crashed to the floor. "The press—the printing press—has started," he muttered disjunctly as the sound of the breaking dishes penetrated into his wearied brain: His hand instinctively crept under one of the cushions. It grasped and for a moment fumbled with a blue steel object, which it drew weakly forth—a revolver. The shock of the cold steel roused the sleeper. He opened his eyes and gazed fascinatedly at the instrument of death. With a cry of terror he relaxed his fingers, and the object dropped to the floor. He groaned the groan of a lost soul in the anguish of its never ceasing torture. He turned his face to the wall and tried in vain to close his eyes in sleep.

Judgment had been pronounced in the case of "JUDGE BARTELMY VERSUS THE PEOPLE, WHEELER BRAND AND THE ADVANCE."

THE END.

"Oh, say you will do what I ask!"

Brand tried to raise her, but she clung to him frenziedly.

was losing all control of herself in her desperation.

"Judith, listen to me," he said inspiredly. "I'm not the man who loves you or is loved by you. I've no right to think of you or of myself. I'm an instrument to an end in the history of a great God. Can't you see this thing as I do?"

"I can't reason. I can't argue. I can only feel."

Time was ten, fifteen and twenty years ago when a team of horses was a necessary adjunct to the office of sheriff of Ottawa county. In the days before the arrival of the Holland and later of the Grand Haven Interurban the county sheriff used to have to make long drives across the county and the only way to make these trips was by team. Now all is different. The interurbans cover a large territory and the drives that are necessary are so long as to be almost "horse killers." Sheriff Andre has found that it costs more to keep a horse for the service required than an automobile and the other day in Grand Rapids he ordered a neat little Rec runabout which will be here in a few weeks, ready for service.—Grand Haven Tribune.

Coming here from his home in the old country to pay a short visit to his sons William and Wouter Van Asselt of this city, death has denied to aged Wm. Van Asselt the pleasure of ever seeing his home at Hilversum, in the Netherlands, where four other sons and a daughter were awaiting his return. Anxious to see their father, the local men sent him a ticket and just before Christmas he was welcomed here. After a two month's visit he left for home again and word has just been received that his death occurred on the liner in mid ocean, bound for Rotterdam. His remains were buried in the ocean with the impressive burial service used on such occasions.

MISSIONARY TELLS OF WORK

Labor and Perils of Those Who Go Among Savages to Carry Gospel Message.

In the course of a lecture on "The Savages of New Guinea" at the London Institution, A. H. Dunning referred to Dr. Chalmers, the great missionary, who died in the island, and said that for many years there was no photograph of the Goaribardi tribe which murdered him. He placed on the screen a portrait of a savage who was not only a member of the tribe, but he had reason to believe was the actual man who struck Dr. Chalmers down and helped to eat him. A profile photograph of the same native showed an extraordinary receding forehead, the sign of a low type of humanity. The savage was taken prisoner in the course of a governmental expedition to recover the remains of Dr. Chalmers' fellow victim, Mr. Tompkins, and he was generally stated by the other natives to be the man who struck the missionary.

Mr. Dunning gave an amusing account of his adventures among the savages, one of his stories relating to a bottle of strong smelling salts. The first man who smelt, under the impression that it was a "white man's love charm," was so startled that he fetched a friend to try. Then they formed the salts into a sort of trust and scoured the neighborhood for recruits. Nobody gave the show away. They brought new people up one after the other, propped them up against a tree and sat round like Christy minstrels to wait for the result.

Kissing or fondling was unknown in New Guinea until the advent of the missionaries. These were seen kissing the children and the custom spread. Having been kissed by oily natives, he preferred the old style of salutation.

IMMENSE DEPOSITS OF SODA

Shallow Lake in African Valley, Twenty Miles in Extent, Covers Much Wealth.

Further details of the journey just concluded by Mr. Fred Shelford, the well-known engineer, in connection with the projected railway to be constructed from the Uganda railway to Lake Magadi, have been received.

This wonderful lake, which is only reached after a long and difficult journey over uninhabited and waterless country, is described as follows by Mr. Shelford:

"Lake Magadi is picturesquely situated amid weird surroundings at the bottom of a valley 3,000 feet deep. On one side are mountains 6,000 feet above sea level, and on another a range having an altitude of 8,000 feet. There is no sign of human life, but on and about the lake are immense numbers of flamingo.

"From the surrounding mountains the lake, which is ten miles long by two to three miles in breadth, looks like an ordinary sheet of water of somewhat reddish hue. On reaching the shores, however, we found that the water was only a few inches deep and covered a hard surface looking exactly like pink marble. This is an immense deposit of soda, which was bored and found to extend to a considerable depth, thus indicating an area of at least 20 miles of solid soda.

"The heat upon the soda lake was very great."

Brighton.

Brighton, which is patronized by kings and neglected by novelists, is not without its literary associations. Dr. Johnson was a frequent visitor in his later life, and a tablet to his memory was recently unveiled in the parish church of St. Nicholas, where he worshiped in company with the Thrales. Charles and Mary Lamb were at Brighton in 1817, and Mary told Dorothy Wordsworth that she and her brother found the air of the Downs almost as good as the Westmoreland mountains. Among other Brighton lovers may be mentioned Fanny Burney, Horace Smith, Theodore Hook, Thackeray—who thought of "Vanity Fair" as a suitable title for his most famous novel while staying at the Old Ship—Dickens, Harrison, Almsworth and Macaulay.—London Chronicle.

Opposed Use of Cocoa.

The use of cocoa, which was imported by the Spaniards from Mexico in 1520, was even more vigorously opposed than the use of tea itself in France. Cardinal Richelieu, for instance, in a letter to his brother Alphonse, says: "I cannot conceal from you my apprehension that the drug called chocolate, which you are using freely, may be harmful to your health, and I think it would be better for you to have recourse to ordinary remedies." Physicians went so far as to say that chocolate could cause a continuous and mortal fever.

Helps Poor Girls.

Mrs. James J. Storrow, wife of the Boston banker, is interested in a number of charities, among them being the girl's bowl shop. In the spare time which the girls have, they make pottery articles, which they sell, the money to be used for purposes of education. Mrs. Storrow has a girls' library club, and every summer she sends a number of girls to the country, 14 at a time.

He Took It.

The Wife—I wonder if all men are as big fools as you are?
The Husband—I guess not. I'm only one who was a big enough to marry you.

White Steamers and Coyotes

The White Steamer has introduced a remarkable innovation on the level prairies of western Kansas, according to advice received by W. C. Urquhart, general manager of the western sales department of the White company. They are using White steamers in running down coyotes and other wolves, and this is reported to be intensely exciting. One man operates the steamers while another uses a Winchester.

The steamers, which can be run miles on the prairies of the west without coming in contact with a fence or a grade, are fitted for the purpose of pursuit. When a wolf or a coyote is sighted the Steamer takes after him. A wolf runs in a circle, so it is comparatively easy for the driver to keep right behind him, providing his machine has the speed.

A coyote can run 30 miles an hour with ease and keep up the speed for several hours. For a machine to run down a coyote is considered a great hunting feat. When hunters used to chase coyotes on horses and with fleet grey hounds there was a record of their driving a coyote to its den, but it is different with the White Steamer.

Coyotes run until they are about to be taken and then make for their dens. In order to smoke them out the driver attaches a rubber hose to the gas tank of his car and runs the other end down into the hole which soon brings the coyote out and the run is resumed until the animal is bagged.

This novel and exciting method of hunting is attracting great attention among the sportsmen and from advances received from the White dealers who have inaugurated this exciting sport, it is probable that there will be a number of hunters with their machines and guns in that vicinity during February, when coyote hunting is especially good.

The implement men of the state are planning on a big time early this spring to take place at Minden city. A special invitation has been tendered Lieut. Gov. Kelley to address the meeting and he will probably accept if he has no conflicting dates on the date which the implement dealers choose for their meeting.

FATHER 80-MOTHER 76

The aged father and mother of a prominent Boston lawyer safely carried through the last two winters by

Vinol

The son says: "My father and mother owe their present strength and good health to Vinol. During the last two trying winters neither of them had a cold, and were able to walk farther and do more than for years. I think Vinol is perfectly wonderful. It certainly is the greatest blood-making, strengthening tonic for old people I ever heard of."

We want every feeble old person in this town to try Vinol. We will return their money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it.
