The financial year of the city closed Monday noon and the books of the treasurer and the clerk are being audited by the ways and means committee consisting of Alderman Wm. O. Van Eyck and John C. Dyke. There is a balance in the city treasury of $89,089.22. This includes $30,000 of city hall bond money, leaving a balance slightly larger than last year.

At a meeting of the board of trade of Grand Haven a resolution was passed in which the council was asked to make public what steps were being taken toward closing up the Gorham case. C. J. Mayo, who is negotiating plans for putting in a factory for manufacturing steel doors was notified that the proposition for securing him a building in this city had failed.

At an enthusiastic meeting of the Merchant's association Monday evening plans were discussed for securing better roads leading into the city. A committee was appointed consisting of Austin Harrington, H. W. Hardie, and C. J. Lokker to meet with the Filmore township board in regard to the East Saugatuck road; a similar committee to take up the matter with the Holland township board is composed of J. Lokker, B. Cook and J. J. Rutgers. Other regular business was transacted.

The March term of the Ottawa Circuit court opened Monday with Judge Sessions on the bench, Judge Padgham being absent on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Padgham. The criminal cases were taken up immediately, and the case of arson against James Wordhuis, of Holland went over the term. Abraham Hamelink, charged with furnishing liquor to a minor, pleaded guilty. Bert Van Patten of Zeeland, charged with wife desertion, pleaded not guilty, and with Mannes Boersen, Charles Ver Meulen and Arthur Hill liquor law violators will be tried at this term.

At a meeting of the classis of Holland of the Reformed churches to be held here April 6, Rev. G. J. Hekhuis of Overisel will deliver a sermon on Missions and Rev. J. P. DeJong of Zeeland will speak on Widows' and Disabled Ministers' Funds.

Henry Cronkright has sold his house on West 15th street to Chris Nibbelink. Mr. Cronkright will move about the first of next month to Moundsville, West Va., where he has taken an interest in a general store which he will manage. His brother is heavily interested in the business and also in a coal mine there.

At a meeting of the Prospect Park Improvement Asso. it was decided to place a drinking fountain at the corner of State and 24th streets and to erect a flag pole. Flower beds at the school grounds and other improvements are also contemplated. These are steps in the right direction and deserve commendation.

A colony of 500 Hollanders will settle in Alberta, Canada, this year. They will settle upon the irrigated lands of Alberta and all of them are experienced farmers. It is expected that this will be but the beginning of a big influx from the land of the dykes. The advance guard has already arrived in Canada. Besides the Hollanders there are about 75 from Sweden in the party.

Navigation opened Thursday afternoon when the steamer City of Traverse left on her first trip to Chicago, via St. Joseph. Aided by a strong off shore breeze which arose at midnight and carried the ice into Lake Michigan, the big freighter slipped the channel practically unhindered. The trip up Black Lake was made without any difficulty. The channel is now clear and no difficulty is expected to inaugurate the tri-weekly freight service. The Puritan will go into commission about April 1.

Merchants report very little maple sugar and syrup coming in this spring. In former years the syrup and sugar business was quite an important industry and thousands of gallons of the delicious syrup and tons of sugar were marketed. As the forests disappear the sugar bushes became few and scattering and at present there are only a few. There is a sugar bush at Drenthe, a couple at Jamestown and one or two at Salem. Very little effort is made to market the product as generally it is in such demand that customers go to the woods and buy it before it has any chance to be put on the market.

Last Saturday circuit court was in session considering the case of Mrs. Ika L. Burton against Mrs. Allie De Boer for alienation of the affections of the former's husband. The complainant was awarded a verdict of $2,500 against property held by the latter woman. These people live in Holland and it is said Burton was a good man but was overcome by the "sweetness" of Mrs. DeBoer so he left his own wife and four children and went to Minneapolis with his paramour. The property attached is in Allegan county so the suit was brought in this court.—Allegan Gazette.

Interesting figures on the work of the police department during the year just ended and in the year previous are contained in the annual report which Chief of Police Kamferbeek has submitted to the board. Arrests made number 204, as compared with 141 the previous year. During January there were 33 arrests, in February but eight, September with 35 was the highest. Of this number 51 were drunks. Others were as follows: disorderly, 8; loiterers, 16; assault and battery, 22; larceny, 14. The remaining were for various offenses. Fines and costs of $716 were paid, an increase of nearly $200 over the amount for the preceding year. The main item of expenditure in the department is salaries, which amounted to $3,252.50 for the regular force and $145.20 for specials.

Attorney Walter I. Lillie of Grand Haven had a fine blooded bull dog poisoned a few days ago. The dog was very valuable.

There are over 7,000 beekeepers in this country, and product of their hives last year was enough to fill a train of cars over 400 miles long.

Justice Vander Meulen fixed the bail to the amount of $1,000 and it was furnished by Bert Slagh and L. D. Visser.

Local trappers are busy these days and the river bayous and the marshes are alive with traps for muskrats. Will Sparks secured 20 rats the other morning out of a total of only 40 traps. Muskrats are bringing a record price this spring and many believe that the day is coming when rat pelts will bring over a dollar a piece. Grand Haven Tribune.

M. E. Brown of Grand Haven a photographer and inventor of the kite camera for taking aerial views has invented a flying machine. A complete working model, equipped with a specially constructed motor, has proven a success it is said, and the inventor is now in the east completing arrangements for a patent and for the manufacture of his device.

A suggestion for household economy was given in a scientific lecture recently, when a professor of physics said that the ordinary stove used in most kitchens wastes in a day enough heat to keep food hot for a month. Anything that will cool the kitchen in summer or warm it in winter, whether or not it cooks the meals, will be welcomed by the cooks themselves.

Helen continues to retain its popularity as a name for girls. Not long ago it was voted the favorite name by the students of a men's college and it has been discovered as the result of a canvass of the names of the students in Smith College, that more than a hundred of the total of 1,600 bear that name. Mary, with less than ninety, comes next. Margaret, Ruth, Florence and Elizabeth follow in the same order. The good old-fashioned womanly names have fortunately displaced the fancy names of a generation ago.

Prof. L. R. Taft, of the M. A. C. well known in Holland, the man whom the News brought here to investigate the San Jose scale three years ago, is a member of the noted Taft family whose original home in this country was Mendon, Mass. He is fourth cousin to President Taft whom in some respects he strongly resembles. He is of ruddy complexion and brown hair while the president has a dark color and black hair. The smile and rotundity and good fellowship seem to be family traits.

The dreaded predictions of last fall concerning the potato market are coming true. The tubers are being offered in New York by the carload at less than 20 cents per bushel. In many places in Michigan the buyers will not offer any at all for potatoes and yet there are thousands and thousands of bushels still in the pits all over the state. It is thought that before planting time the price will be fifteen cents and a very limited market at that figure. This means a great loss to growers everywhere, especially in Michigan, the greatest potato state in the union and a great loss to those to those buyers who bought quantities last fall at forty and fifty cents a bushel.

Geerlings for Mayor

At the republican caucus held in Prices Rink last evening there were 203 votes cast of which Henry Geerlings received 168 and was made the unanimous choice of the convention. Nicholas Essenberg was renominated by acclamation for City Treasurer as was Supervisors Van Duren and Vanrooy. Fred T. Miles also received all the votes for Justice of the Peace. Mr. Geerlings made a rousing speech on republicanism after being nominated which was enthusiastically received. There is no doubt but what Mr. Geerlings is one of the strongest men the republicans could have placed on the ticket. Austin Harrington acted as chairman and Henry Luidens as secretary of the convention.

Captain Van Weelden of the Macatawa life saving station has received official notice from the treasury department of the opening of station April 1.

Henry P. Boot a well known former local boy is now located in Amoy, China, has written to the Lokker-Rutgers company of this city asking that another suit "just like the last one" be made and sent to him.

Rev. D. R. Drukker, pastor of the 14th St. Christian Reformed church has received a call to the First Christian Reformed church at Pella, Ia. It is the third call received from that church by him. Rev. Drukker has received 21 calls the past eight years.

John Buchanan is in Detroit with his flying machine where the Aerial club of Detroit holds forth. The club had been in communication with Mr. Buchanan and wished to see his model having heard of its peculiar advantages. Mr. Buchanan expects his patents within a few weeks when he will build a full sized machine. Outside capitol is already interested in the enterprise.

Martin De Haan, the Hope college Freshman student, pleaded guilty to burglary in circuit court Monday, and owing to the intercessions of a host of friends who begged for leniency, was released upon paying $5.80 costs. Judge Sessions placed him under probation for two years. De Haan was caught tapping the till in the Boone dry goods store in Zeeland.

The Holland Reformed church at Montague, with a poor congregation that has been struggling for five years to clear up a $2,000 debt, was enriched by being left the entire estate of Mrs. Richard Haan a pioneer resident of the village who died recently in circumstances of apparent poverty. Her will opened today, left all her possessions to the church, and it was found that she had bonds and bank certificates approximating $10,000 in value.

"The Dawn of Tomorrow" was the title of a well rendered play given by local talent before the Century Club Monday night at the W. L. C. rooms. The cast of characters was: Glad, a shun wail, Miss Ethelyn Metz; Anthony Dart, a masquerading nobleman, Pro. E. D. Dinment; Jennie Montaubyn, a one-time chorus girl, Mrs. George Luscomb; Polly, a country girl, Mrs. Theodora Thurber; a thief, Prof. Henry Brush; a curate, Hoyt Post; Drunken Bet, Ruth Post.

Miss Henrietta Warnshuis entertained the missionary committees of the Local Union at her home, 312 Central avenue Monday night. A program consisting of a paper on the "Necessity of Mission Study Classes" by Miss Gertrude Hoekje, a solo by Miss Jennie Veneklassen, a paper on "The Missionary Committee Work" by Miss Gertrude Hoekje, a solo by Miss Hilda Stegeman and a solo by Miss Elizabeth Barkema was rendered. Discussions followed and a pleasant and profitable evening was spent.

Henry Grevengeod was a Holland visitor today. Mr. Grevengeod is again in the milk business at the county metropolis. He says that the dealers there are getting five and six cents a quart for their milk, with the majority getting but five. How does that compare with Grand Haven where the dealers are getting seven cents? Mr. Grevengeod expressed the opinion that Holland would vote against saloons again and he is strongly of the belief that Kent county will vote for local option.—Gd. Haven Tribune

Doubtless there is still the grumpy farmer who sees nothing but gloom close by and privation ahead—the wheat looks bad, the meadows are thinner than usual at this time, the new horse cost $200, and one of the twin lambs died. Pshaw take a dressed hog, an old cow or a few dozen eggs to market, buy an automobile and a steam plow and be glad your're alive.

Graafschaap, Mich.

March 21, 1910.

Editor Holland City News,
Dear Sir—Will you please give me a little space in your paper this week to correct an impression made by an item that appeared in your issue of March 17? The item follows:

"John R. Bouws of Graafschaap contemplates buying an auto dray to carry freight to the village. John always was a progressive individual and if talk counts for anything John will be there with the goods."

It is alright to give credit to whom credit is due, but the complimentary notice of this item is hardly due me inasmuch as I never contemplated nor now contemplate buying an auto dray to carry freight. The market for beef and pork is in such condition that I would not care to go into a venture as radical as your item seems to indicate.

I therefore simply wish to correct the impression made by your paper among my neighbors and friends. The News is read eagerly by nearly every farmer in this community and we all think very highly of it. It is a welcome visitor each week and we all like to read its news columns which usually tell the whole truth and nothing but the truth. So when a misstatement does slip in I trust you will show your usual willingness to correct it. Thanking you in advance for your kindness I am

Very truly yours,
J. R. B.

If Women Only Knew

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Holland Homes

Hard to do housework with an aching back,
Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains come from sick kidneys,
I would save much needless woe.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Holland people endorse this:

Mrs. Edwin McCarty, 290 Van Raalte Ave., Holland, Mich., says: "I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills as they are the best remedy I have ever used. Backache caused me much suffering and I was subject to bad attack of dizziness. None of the remedies I tried brought me relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills. They not only removed the pains but corrected the difficulty with the kidney secretion and did me a world of good. Another member of my family has taken Doan's Kidney's Pills and has been helped as greatly as I."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

The Lash of a Fiend

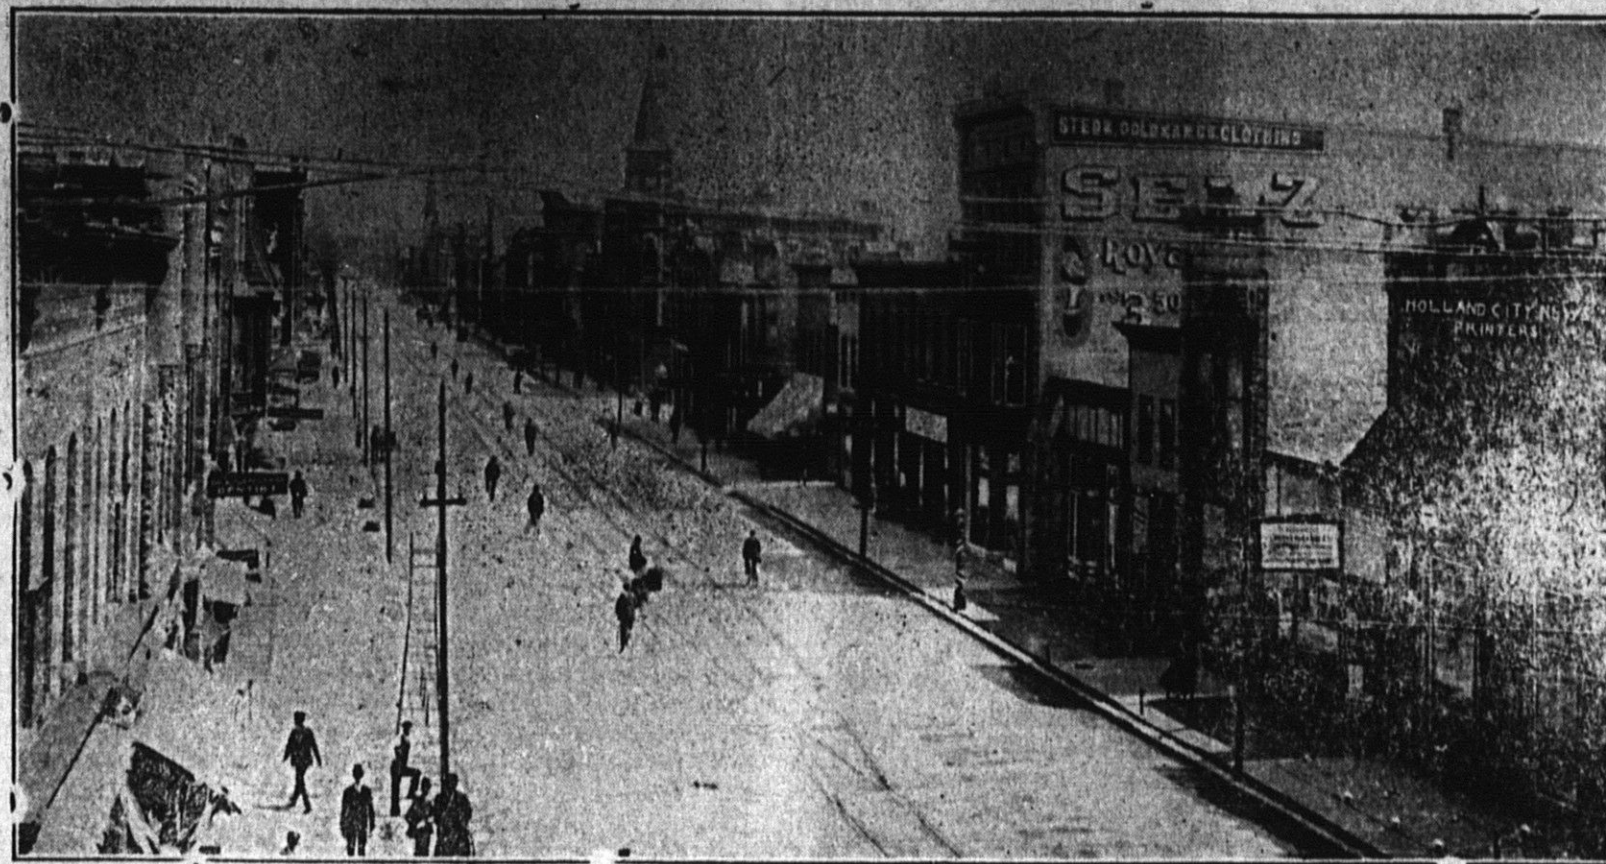

would have been about as welcome to A. Cooper of Oswego, N. Y., as a merciless lung racking cough that defied all remedies for years: "It was most troublesome at night," he writes, "nothing helped me until I used Dr. King's New Discovery which cured me completely. I never cough at night now." Millions know its matchless merits for stubborn cold, obstinate coughs, sore lungs, croup, lagrippe, asthma, hemorrhage, whooping cough, or hay fever. It relieves quickly and never fails to satisfy. A trial convinces. 50c; $1. Trial bottle free. It's positively guaranteed by Walsh Drug Co. and H. R. Doesburg.

Why not the County Sanitarium?

For several years now the health department of this city and the local anti-tuberculosis organization has taken its part in stamping out the disease which claims its thousands of victims every year. The Holland organization has done effective work and the public meetings that have been held in this city to arouse the interest of the people at large in the subject, have done an incalculable amount of good. There is hardly a man, woman or child in the city who has not had a chance to learn about the best methods of prevention and who has not had it dinned in his ears that in this disease especially an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure.

But still the ravages of the disease go on in Holland and all over the land. The following facts are significant:

"There are 10,000 people in Michigan at the present time who have tuberculosis and in a majority of the cases no proper treatment can be provided. The sufferers must remain in their own homes, a menace to others and without a chance to be cured. In 1909, 2,465 citizens of Michigan died of tuberculosis."

This does not mean that the efforts against tuberculosis have failed. But it does seem to show that they have been inadequate. They have saved thousands of people who would without the aid of the anti tuberculosis movement have fallen a victim to the disease. The campaign of education was necessary not only for this reason but has been of great value because it has helped to do away with the carelessness of the public on the subject.

But now the News believes more strenuous measures are necessary.

Every one of these 10,000 victims of the white plague could have been saved if they had had the chance which every sick man ought to have. It is no longer necessary for a sufferer to take an expensive western trip, in fact that method is no longer considered the most effective. In some sections of this state and other states sanitariums have been erected and their success in saving life and restoring health has been phenomenal. The News is intimately acquainted with the work of one of these institutions and it cannot speak too highly of them. It is a pity that there are so few of them and that so few people can take advantage of their aid.

The physicians of this city and of all the other cities in the state will not allow the interest in tuberculosis to die out. But they cannot wage the fight alone. It should become a matter of legislation. The law-making bodies of the state or county often expend their energies on matters that are of far less importance than the establishment of such institutions. It was Mr. Whelan's bill in the Michigan legislature that erected the sanitarium at Howell, and if the legislatures would pass other bills for establishing similar institutions they would be doing good work.

Why not have a sanitarium in every county of the state? Every county has a poor-house, the inmates of which pay nothing toward their own support. But a large part of the expenses of a sanitarium could be born by the patients themselves. Does it not seem that ten thousand victims would make such a step necessary?

Or if every county could not support one, the state might be divided into tuberculosis districts. The News is very sure that the fight on tuberculosis has but just begun and that the biggest battles are still to be fought. We have always tried to support enthusiastically the noble work of the local physicians whose efforts go unappreciated entirely too often; and even our humble service in the big campaign against disease, we trust, has been of some value.

Greater Ireland

A liner which arrived from Queenstown a week ago, included in its freight several boxes of Irish soil, which were brought over by Irishmen to be placed where Pres. Taft stood when he laid a cornerstone at Chicago on St. Patrick's Day. Accompanying the soil were other boxes filled with shamrocks. The Irish are a people of sentiment and glory in the fact. As Americans they retain the trait and are appreciated for their warm hearts as well as manly courage, energy and ability. A Greater Ireland has sprung up in this country through immigration. It is in the United States that the Irish strain of blood has had a fair field for the first time, and its American history can be traced in the biography of distinguished statesmen, soldiers and captains of industry. A reader of Grant's memoirs will notice that his right hand in bringing about the end at Appomattox was the son of Irish parents. When in the early spring of 1865, Grant had a personal interview with Sheridan, and the latter agreed positively that the end could be forced at once, the commander in chief gave his orders for a final effort. The general, sprung from poor Irish immigrants accomplished for his part all and more than he had promised.

Whatever Ireland may get in the shape of home rule the Greater Ireland must always remain on this side of the Atlantic. Beautiful as is the Green Isle and filled with inspiring traditions, it is a small bit of land compared with the continent in which transplanted Irishmen and Irishwomen have reached their best material conditions and find their best broad opportunities. When Thackeray wrote his sketches of Irish travel in 1842 the famine in the island was near at hand, but sharp as were his literary perceptions he failed to see the ominous signs or to realize the catastrophe that a single bad harvest could bring about. He was a student of character, not of economics, and yet he thought he was getting close to the material affairs of the people. Probably no Englishman has ever understood the Irish, nor has England ever been able to assimilate the race, giving it scope to make the best of itself. The U. S. has afforded the chance and it has been well improved. Irish-Americans have their full share of what goes on in America, and even if the population of Ireland continues to decline the race is marching on elsewhere.

The Grand Haven butchers have given their customers 40 days notice to get on a cash basis, but do not state if any discounts go with it.

Trust in Providence is beautiful and blessed, but when you jump into holes with your eyes open and think Providence will pull you out, you are a sucker.

A burglar stole diamonds worth $300,000 from a woman's room in a New York hotel. We shall probably hear now, how he overlooked $80,000,000,000 in cash which was lying on the dresser.

A tariff war brought on by Canada might turn out to be a Dominion boom for annexation.

It is stated in the dispatches that Mr. Roosevelt's first breakfast at Khartoum consisted of six eggs and a large platter of bacon. He is the prodigal son alright.

Our own Shackleton's gold mine is so productive that "gold sticks to one's shoes." What man will shake the dust from his feet on leaving Kimberly.

Since the big fire at Kalamazoo last December, store rentals have increased. Stores that rented for $1200 are now valued at $1800 and in some sections of the city higher yet.—Ex. Thank goodness this is not the case in Holland, otherwise there surely would be a reasonable excuse for more bankrupts.

The site on which the building is to be erected has not yet been decided upon but it rests between the vacant lot on Market street between 7th and 8th streets and on the lot next to Huntley's machine shop on 7th St. Jas. As A. Huntley and his 13 year old son Alfred were out driving their colt Thursday afternoon, they met with a very serious accident. The colt took fright at the white horse of James Huntley and turned over the cart in which they were seated. Both were more or less entangled, but Mr. Huntley soon managed to loosen himself and escaped with a broken arm in his left arm. Alfred, however could not extricate himself, and as the cart again righted, he was caught in a semi suspended between the seat and one of the wheels, the hub and spokes of the latter constantly rubbing against his back as the horse dashed off toward home. For a distance of a mile he was forced to remain in this position, managing to keep his head clear from the wheel, until the cart dashed against the barn door on Seventh street, smashing one of the wheels and dropping him from his perilous situation. Those witnessing the colt and cart as they sped by, rushed to the aid of Alfred, picked him up and carried him to the house. This morning Dr. Yates informs us that the boy has no bones broken and is not hurt internally, but that his back is all discolored and a large part of it a mass of raw flesh.

Halley's Comet

The following article is a prediction by Prof. H. Allen of Otego. Mr. Allen is an astrologer of note and many of his prediction in the past have come true.

As shown from the positions and directions of the planets including the two great comets, A-1910 comet and Halley's comet. They are whirling through space toward the earth at a terrific speed, coming directly toward each other at the rate of one hundred thousand miles an hour. The A-1910 comet may now be seen with the naked eye and is going from west to east, while Halley's comet is moving around the sun from east to west. Thus we are confronted with still another danger, it is the A-1910 comet, now flying through the western sky and leaving behind it a fan shape trail of glaring red flame. These harbingers of war, famine and pestilence, deadly diseases, seismic shakes and many dire disasters, electric storms, cyclones and tornados will follow in its train, as these comets and the earth nears their point of crossing, the earth's path, orbits, which will occur between the 16th and 19th of May. From present directions of these comets it looks as though our earth and these great bodies with come to in a head on collision. The extraordinary position of the great planets Mars, Uranus, Saturn and Neptune, with the planet Mars passing from quartile with the planet Saturn, and in conjunction with the evil planet Uranus. This indicates a critical period for the people of the entire world, great unrest and violence will continue. Halley's comet has now rounded the sun. The affect of these comets upon the earth will be to lighten the pressure of the atmosphere, thus leaving nothing for mankind to breathe.

The entire world is watching with awe and wonder what the outcome will be. Will these comets destroy the earth, and many astronomers as well as some astrologers, believe that the end is near, and from all planetary indications and directions I believe that the end of time is not far distant. As we read in that holy book, as the first sign of the end of time and the Lord's advent upon this earth, is found in the twenty-fourth chapter of Mathew and the 14th verse, which reads as follows: "The gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then shall the end come." I find from all planetary positions, aspects and conjunctions and directions shown, that the various planets are now moving in opposite directions, thus indicating that the end is near.

But from my further planetary investigations I find from the prominent and peculiar position of the various planets with the sun, the planet sun may be the means of causing these comets to be drawn from the attraction of the earth's gravitation. The head of these comets are from observation supposed to be a gaseous body in a high state of tenuity. Tails are due to the direct transmission of sunlight, caused by the comet, light being reflected at an angle at which it enters the sun's lens.

My planetary observations are all made with the aid of the telescope, which extends the view and broadens the field of observation, which makes my study of the planets, stars and the foreign bodies, such as comets, etc., very attractive and fascinating. In the thirty years that I have been stading the heavens and the signs which God has placed therein, I could not have had a more fascinating outlook than the one which my telescope has given me. Kind reader, I would warn you of impending danger, which is indicated before us and is just as sure as that Joseph warned Pharaoh of the great famine which was to come to Egypt. There is before this people grave and serious dangers, but from the signs as shown this earth will not be destroyed by these harbingers of disasters and trouble, but this earth will pass through very serious and perilous times before the close of the month of May, 1910. These predictions are accurately given, watch the signs of the times and you will see. The end is not yet, but many disasters are before us.

Warning to Potato Growers

The department has just issued a warning to potato growers to be on the lookout for a new disease affecting potatoes, which has been spreading swiftly through Europe. The warning is meant to be of first importance to the great potato producing sections around the Great Lakes. The new affliction is known as the wart disease. Also as "black scab," "canker" and "Cauliflower." Big warty excrescences, sometimes as big as the tuber itself appear on the sides or ends of the potato.

In an advanced stage of the disease the tubers are wholly covered with the growth and lose all resemblance to potatoes. When this fungus growth has utilized every particle of food stored in the potato it is reduced to a brownish black soft mass giving off a most unpleasant odor of putrefaction.

This last is the most dangerous stage of the disease and if an attempt is made to harvest the crop the potatoes break into pieces and the spores of the fungus inoculate the ground so thoroughly that it remains infected for years. British experts who have studied the disease declare it by far the most serious menace the potato crop ever has faced.

J. W. Eastham of the British college of agriculture and horticulture says:

"When this disease is once established in the land it is useless to try to grow potatoes there again until the pest has been starved out. So far as is known no other crop is liable to be attacked. Cases have been noted in England where potatoes had not been grown upon land for six years, yet upon an attempt to raise that crop the disease was found still virulently present. Some of the same seed used elsewhere did not develop the disease, and some of the same manure used on other lands failed to show a trace. From this it is apparent that even as long as six years it is not enough to starve out the disease."

The department of agriculture says there is grave danger of importing the disease through the use of foreign seed potatoes. A considerable importation of potatoes from Europe occurs every year and the department advises against the use of any of these for seed purposes.

The disease was first noted in Hungary in 1896, but it has already spread practically all over Europe and England and Scotland and the British government is now making strenuous efforts to keep it out of Ireland. Potatoes imported into this country within the last year or two have gone as far west as Arizona, so that the fears of the department that the disease may secure a foothold far in the interior appear well grounded.

The senate committee on commerce has favorably reported a bill requiring ocean-going vessels carrying 50 or more passengers to carry wireless apparatus and operators. This move is a good beginning to a move in the right direction. The value of the service has been proven so many times that there is no necessity, especially to boats carrying passengers. Within the last year or two the stories of rescues by wireless have been many and startling in detail. In fact they have been nothing short of marvelous.

The new automobile record is a mile in twenty-eight seconds. It is no longer a question of whether a man can fly, but if any bird can keep up.

In lecturing to hobos on alfalfa it is safer to mention that it needs no replanting for years than that it must be cut several times each season.

Speculators who corner the markets will be apt to avoid Manchester as a place to play the hero. Mr. Paten found the cotton pit more like a bear pit.

Finds Death in Black Lake

On pretext of going for a pail of water Tuesday night about 8:30 Mrs. John Bredeweg, Jr., left her home on West Fourth street and ended her life in the waters of Black Lake. Her body was found floating Wednesday morning after an all night search by the police and relatives. She had been in poor health and it is thought that despondency prompted her to commit suicide.

Failing to return to the house her husband inquired for her at his father's home and then at her parent's home, and finding that she had not been there the police were notified. A search throughout the vicinity failed to reveal a trace and it was decided to drag the lake. Work was begun at daybreak.

Bert Beekman, an employee at the glass factory, saw floating on the surface near Kelley's boathouse and called the officers over there. It was the body of Mrs. Bredeweg and less than ten feet away was the shawl which she had worn when she left the house. Coroner Cook was called and impanelled a jury.

Mrs. Bredeweg was 24 years of age and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Schregardus. She is a sister of Mrs. Geo. Phillips, the local woman who figured in the sensational double attempt at suicide in Lansing last fall. Besides her husband, she leaves a 17 months old child.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock from the residence on Fourth street and interment will be in Pilgrim's Home cemetery.

Voters Should Enroll

The attention of voters is called to section 4 of acts 281 of the Public Acts of 1909 which reads as follows:

"No person shall be permitted to vote at any primary election held in this state unless he shall have been enrolled in the manner herein provided as a member of a particular political party, except in cases of new political parties as hereinafter provided. The voters in the various political parties are to be afforded an opportunity to become enrolled voters of the particular political party with which they are affiliated on the first Monday of April preceding the September primary election, whether they are registered or not," and a further proviso in the same section reads that "it shall not be necessary for the election who were enrolled under any previous act to again enroll under the provisions of this act."

Mr. Zwemer settled in Rochester, N. Y., and became an elder in a Holland Presbyterian church. In 1853, when the pulpit became vacant, he suggested the transfer of this church to the Reformed church which was accomplished and it joined the classis of Geneva.

GIRL IS THE HEROINE OF A MONTANA MISHAP

DIGS A DRIVER OUT OF SNOW.
DRIFT AND THEN FALLS IN A FAINT.

Helena, Mont.—Mary Smith, a 10-year-old Carbon county girl, proved that she is a heroine in a recent experience and, incidentally, one of the most unusual straw-ride spills ever reported in southern Montana happened the other night on the highroad between Washoe and Bear creek.

There was a dance at Bear creek and several couples started from Washoe, a few miles away, in a bobsled drawn by four horses driven by Clarence Deihl. The snow was deep and the night was clear, but not illumnated by the moon. It was a hard pull up the hill, but after that the journey was resumed with quickened pace, while the merry company sang and shouted like children. Suddenly the party was plunged into a ravine filled with snow. The horses had missed the bridge that spans a gully about 15 feet deep. The song was rudely broken off. The heavy bass and clear, ringing soprano, with the altos and tenors, were silenced.

There ensued an exciting scramble. At least ten of the party were under the big sled box. They wiggled out and scrambled for high ground. The horses had broken away and were dashing madly down toward Washoe.

The uninjured applied themselves to the task of assisting those who still remained beneath the wreckage. Two women suffered sprains of a slight nature and one man was considerably bruised about the head. However, all agreed to walk to Bear Creek and enjoy the dance. Six couples bored their way through the snow and reached the hall where the dance was proceeding.

Suddenly one of the company thought of the driver. He had not been seen since the spill and no one had thought of him. Immediately a party was organized and set out to find Deihl.

The revelers did not think of the absence of the little girl who had started with them and had been rescued uninjured from the wreck. They had hastened on to the dance; but not the little girl. She walked a few paces, and then, thinking of the driver, turned back to the scene of the spill. There, in the bottom of the ravine, 20 feet or more from the sled box, she saw two heavy boots wiggling in the snow, soles upward.

The little heroine dug up with her hands and feet and tugged and strained every muscle. She worked heroically and finally succeeded in removing enough snow so that Deihl could help himself, which he did. He managed to get out before his breath was cut off entirely. After he emerged from his tomb of snow he fell over in a swoon. The girl rubbed his hands and slapped his face and the man was revived. Then the girl, realizing that a life had been saved by her own efforts, promptly keeled over in a faint. Mr. Deihl picked her up in his arms and carried her to Bear Creek, where assistance was found and the heroine restored to normal condition.

By this time the dancers had learned of the sequel of their spill and they promptly carried the girl into the dance hall and showered her with praise, candy and paper flowers. Clarence Deihl went after his horses and found them in a corral.

The Washoe party returned home in another sled. Mr. Deihl did not drive.

First Living Creatures.

The first organized living forms are extremely minute, and can only be recognized by a powerful microscope. A filtered infusion of hay, allowed to stand for two or three days, will literally swarm with living things, many of them not exceeding the forty-thousandth part of an inch in diameter. And yet, minute as these animalcules are, they are thoroughly alive. They dart about and digest, shooting out their jelly-like substance to seize their food. The way in which these living things began is as great a mystery, however, as it was when the mind of man first applied itself to the task of investigating the subject. The moment when something that was lifeless became alive was the most wonderful in all the history of the planet, but how the thing came about nobody knows. Life is a mystery, and such it is likely to remain for a long time to come.

MASON AND DIXON'S LINE

Geographical Division That Has Figured Prominently in the History of the Country.

The historic Mason and Dixon's Line is a name that was given to the southern boundary of Pennsylvania about 150 years ago. It coincides with 39 degrees 43 minutes and 26.3 seconds north latitude.

Except for a distance of 22 miles the line was marked out by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, English engineers. They surveyed it for a distance of 258 miles west from the Delaware river, between November 15, 1763, and December 26, 1767. Each five-mile stone bears the coat of arms of Maryland cut on one side and that of Pennsylvania on the opposite. The intervening milestones have the letters "P" cut on one side and "M" on the opposite.

During the progress of the violent debate in congress in 1820, which resulted in the historic measure known as the Missouri Compromise, on the question of excluding slavery from Missouri, John Randolph made use of the phrase "Mason and Dixon's Line" as the dividing line between slave and free states, Maryland being a slaveholding state and Pennsylvania a free state. At that time the crossing of this line meant freedom to the fugitive slave.

The application as made by Randolph drew attention to Mason and Dixon's Line all over the country as indicative of a bar to freedom.

ELECTRICITY IN BIBLE TIMES

Speculations Which Explain Miracles by Supposing Its Use to Have Been Known.

An electrical Engineer of Munich named Stadenmann makes an ingenious argument to prove that the Jews in the time of Moses had an advanced knowledge of electricity, using passages from the Bible to enforce his claim.

His theory of the famed serpent of bronze is that it was a lightning conductor and he also says that the temple at Jerusalem was protected by metal points connected with the ground.

The most ingenious speculation is in regard to the ark of the covenant, which was made of walls of wood covered on both sides with metal. If this were connected with the metal teeth on the temple roof it would form a sort of Leyden jar charged with the electricity of the atmosphere and would give a shock to any one touching it.

Mr. Stadenmann presumes that Moses gained his knowledge of electricity from the Egyptians. This ancient race certainly had a knowledge of many branches of science that it took the rest of the world thousands of years to learn. But the only proof that they were electrical engineers is one recently advanced by an archaeologist—that they must have had electric lights because their underground temples show no traces of smoke.

The Teachings of Nature.

But, some one asks, how can you ever expect a boy to graduate from college or university if his education does not begin until he is ten years of age? He will be far too old.

First I answer that the curse of modern child life in America is over-education. For the first ten years of this, the most sensitive and delicate, the most pliable life in the world, I would prepare it. The properly prepared child will make such progress that the difference in time of graduation is not likely to be noticeable; but, even if it should be a year or two later, what real difference would it make? Do we expect a normal plant to begin bearing fruit a few weeks after it is born? It must have time, ample time, to be prepared for the work before it. Above all else, the child must be a healthy animal. I do not work with diseased plants. They do not cure themselves of disease. They only spread disease among their fellows and die before their time.—Luther Burbank in Nautilus.

Infantile Diplomacy.

"Gran'ma!"
"What is it, pet?"
"You're purty old, ain't you?"
"Yes, dear, grandma is very old."
"An' will you die after awhile, an' won't I never, never see you any more?"
"I fear so, my child—very soon, now!"
"O gran'ma! When I die, too' c'n I be buried close beside you?"
The old lady is so affected that she cannot speak—she only clasps the innocent prattler to her breast. Her emotion so overcomes her that she can scarcely comprehend the next sweet query:

"Gran'ma, will you please gimme a dime?"

Says the Optimist to the Pessimist.

"Life," said the pessimist, "is a dreadful bore. I don't know what happiness is."

"Life is all right," rejoined the optimistic man, "if you only look upon the bright side of it."

"But my life has no bright side," protested the other.

"Then," said the optimist, "get busy and polish up one of the dark sides."

Notice of Meeting

To whom it may concern: Be it known that on the 20th day of June, A. D., 1909, an application was filed with Edwin Fellows, County Drain Commissioner of the County of Ottawa, for the locating and establishing of a certain drain, which said drain was described in said application as follows, to-wit: Commencing at a ravine on the east half (E1-2) of the west half (W1-2) of the southwest one quarter (SW1-4) of section twelve (12) town six (6) north range sixteen (16) west running eastward about thirty rods, thence north about forty rods, thence west about twenty rods, back to line, thence north to quarter line road, that said drain will traverse the township of Olive.

Be it further known that on the 28th day of March, A. Three bottles completely fixed that compound cold and stopped the terrible cough—and what surprises me most, at the same time it cured me of a severe stomach trouble that has bothered me for 20 years."

Vinol is certainly a wonderful medicine."

Mr. Toppan is one of Lynn's most prominent and highly respected merchants, whose word is as good as his bond.

TRUE MEANING OF "MORTIFY"

Would Seem That Users of the Word Have Little Conception of Its Real Significance.

The strange acquired meanings of many words were being discussed the other night, when one of the group said: "I wonder how 'mortify' has come to mean something similar to humiliate. The word shows on its face that it was derived from the two rootwords which mean 'death' and 'to make,' yet except in the sense of gangrene having set in it has no connection with 'death' in our modern vocabulary."

The interest generated by the remark caused the word to be looked up in the dictionary and it was found originally to have been used in relation to "making dead" the carnal affections and bodily appetites or worldly desires, through religious or other discipline.

A number of early English writers were quoted showing a use of the word entirely different from ours at present.

Harte writes: "With fasting mortified, worn out with tears."

Prior furnishes this: "Mortify thy learned lust," and Addison writes, "How often is the ambitious man mortified with the very praises he receives!" Evelyn contributes: "The news of the fatal battle of Worcester exceedingly mortified our expectations."

The writers of these sentences would have found it hard to understand the present-day conversationalist who speaks of having been "mortified by the remark some one made," and would probably have guessed it an emphatic sentence indeed that would have "made to death" a human being.

USE DEW AS DRINKING WATER

Method of Collecting for Use of Soldiers of British Garrison at Gibraltar.

Hitherto dew has been used as a beverage only in poetry, by the sun, flowers, and butterflies. It has recently been robbed of all its poetic character by being used for the refreshment of English soldiers.

The English administration at Gibraltar, where water is very scarce, now collects dew by the following very simple method: A large pit is dug in the earth and covered with dry wood or straw, which in turn is covered either with earth or with sheet iron.

The straw or wood serves as a heat insulator and effectually prevents the conduction of heat from the ground to the layer of earth or the sheet iron above. Consequently this earth or iron cools after sunset much more rapidly than the ground, so that its temperature soon falls below the dew point of the surrounding air.

Hence dew is formed upon the iron or the layer of earth in very large quantities. The water thus obtained is drained off into reservoirs and after clarification is used for drinking.—Scientific American.

Treatment of Burns.

Small burns are too lightly regarded. Though seemingly slight, they are not properly treated, or if the blood is in bad condition they may fairly mar one's beauty. A young girl dropped some hot fudge on the forefinger of her right hand. It did not pain very much, and after the preliminary scream little attention was paid to it. The blister that was raised was allowed to break rather than be opened carefully with an antiseptic needle; poison got into it, the finger became infected and eventually had to be removed below the second joint. Exclude air from any burn, however slight. This can be done in several ways. If no other remedy is at hand common kitchen soap applied in a thick paste helps remove pain.

Science Not Sentiment.

Vegetarians are sentimentalists, but sentiment and science are far apart as poles. Science is not even logic, because science is facts, and facts and bullets prove themselves and are their own logic. Vegetarians will say, "Look at the robust peasants of Europe. Behold, how little meat they eat." But when these bulky peasants, Norwegians and Swedes, for instance, bring their vegetarian habits of life with them to New York, London or Chicago, their lungs melt away like ice cream in hungry boys. These big, fine Swedes were protected at home by isolation, fresh air and slow, lifelong habits.—New York Press.

The Turban.

The turban, the new headpiece the women are wearing, is like charity: it covers up everything. A woman can do her own hair in a little wad as small and tight as a doorknob, then cover it over with a turban, and she looks as if she had so much hair she is real careless about it. The turbans sell for ten cents, but the woman who is hard pushed for a dime can cover an old wire bustle with her switch, and she will have one on her head as good as anybody's without a cent of expense.—Athenian Globe.

An Eye for Business.

White—Why are you so anxious to lend that friend a dollar whenever he asks it? He only spends the money in drinks and cigars.

Black—Oh, he always pays it back!

White—But there must be some other reason for your ready generosity.

Black—Well, there is. He always spends half of the money on me.—Judge's Library.

KILLS BIG MOOSE WITH LAST BULLET

BILL DOUGLASS, AN OLD MAINE GUIDE, HAS EXCITING EXPERIENCE.

TRAILS THE ANIMAL 18 DAYS

Slays the Charging Moose with Last of His Cartridges—Nearly Freezes to Death, But the Hide Saves Him.

Bangor, Me.—The longest moose hunt on record in Maine is credited to William Douglass of Eustis, who now, at the age of 87, still pursues the calling of guide for hunters, and kills his full share of game every season.

Douglass was born in the woods of Maine and has never been out of the shade of the pines for longer than a few days at a time. All he knows he has learned in the woods, and he is as much at home in the depths of the wilderness as any bear or wildcat. He can tramp for days without tiring.

The long moose hunt upon which rests much of the fame of Old Bill Douglass lasted 18 days, but it yielded a prize that paid him well for all his work and exposure and for the danger he encountered at the last, when the bull charged upon him and fell before the last shot in his rifle.

It was a cold, snowy morning when Bill started to tramp down his moose—a difficult undertaking for any man—but he was used to cold, hunger and hardship, and made up his mind that if anything worth $500 was wandering around in the woods he wanted it. Completely equipped and with provisions for ten or twelve days, he started to find the moose tracks, and soon came upon just what he was looking for—the tracks of a large bull. So familiar is he with moose and their ways that he can tell from the size and shape of the tracks and from other indications nearly the weight and height of the animal and also its sex.

When followed by a hunter a moose for the first few days will keep miles away; after that lagging along, just out of hearing distance. Finally, when nearly tired out and enraged at pursuit, the animal will turn and make a furious fight if not dropped by a good shot. For 12 days Douglass hung on the trail of the monster moose, and for 12 cold nights he slept in the woods. The morning of the 13th day he found him out of food and suffering from rheumatism, but he had no idea of quitting. He shot a buck deer that gave him four days' food, and kept on after the big game. On the 17th day he caught sight of the moose several times, and saw that he was pretty well tired. On the 18th day he noticed blood on the trail, indicating that the game could not hold out long.

At 4 p. m. that day the hunter heard a loud bellowing, and the next instant saw the moose charging down upon him like a runaway locomotive. Up went Bill's rifle and seven shots were sent in rapid succession at the bull, but none of them seemed to have much effect. In three more jumps the bull would be upon him, and there stood Bill, his back against a tree, with only one cartridge left in the magazine. Just as the great antlers seemed swinging over his head Bill took steady aim and sent his last shot at the moose. It missed the head, where he had intended it to go, but served just as well, for it plowed the entire length of the backbone, cutting the hide open as cleanly as if it had been done with a knife, and the bull dropped in his tracks directly at the hunter's feet. It was a monster, weighing 1,225 pounds, and said to be, next to the one shot at King Bartlett's lake, the largest moose ever killed in Maine.

That night Bill Douglass would have frozen to death had it not been for the moose hide. He rolled himself in all his blankets and then wrapped himself up in the warm hide, so that he slept as snug as a bug in a rug.

GHOST GIVES WARNING OF APPROACHING DEATH

DRIVES SPECTRAL COACH AND FORETELLS DROWNING OF HEAD OF THE HOUSE.

London.—Up the drive of a certain manor house situated in one of the southwest counties of England a phantom coach with spectral horses and driver is always heard or seen prior to the death of the head of the family or of some important member of it.

On an occasion of quite recent years a number of gentlemen and two ladies who formed a portion of the house party at Christmas were startled on their return at dusk to hear the sounds of several horses' hoofs coming up the drive. Upon turning, all the party saw an old-fashioned coach with a team of white horses advancing toward them. They drew aside and as the coach passed them the two ladies screamed and fell almost fainting in the arms of their companions. One was the daughter of the house.

All retired to rest about 11 o'clock, some, no doubt, to think over the mysterious appearance of the coach, and others to sleep. Early in the morning a telegram, which had been dispatched too late the previous night for delivery, came to hand, conveying the intelligence that the only son of the house had been drowned while wild fowling in the Fens.

It was nearly 40 years before that the coach had last been seen, although it had been heard to drive up to the front door and away again down the avenue in the middle of the night. On this occasion the head of the family had died in his sleep the next night.

The Sea Flower, a bark of some 450 tons, was, in the early hours of the twenty-third of June, 1864, bound for Bristol, under the command of the first mate, her captain, John Ellis, having been left behind at Kingston suffering from "yellow jack." It was about four bells in the middle watch (or 2:00 a. m.), when the mate, who was standing near the binnacle giving the helmsman his course, suddenly became aware of a mysterious presence in the waist of the ship. At the same moment his companion clutched him by the arm and, pointing, shrieked: "D'ye see him, sir?"

Before he could reply the mate became aware that the dark shadow he had just before observed had so far materialized that it bore the appearance of Capt. Ellis. The figure of the captain advanced along the deck and disappeared slowly down the companion.

Recovering himself, the mate left the helmsman and hurried down into the cabin, meeting, just coming out of it, the second mate, who told him he had been awakened with a start after dreaming that the captain had come aboard and was calling him. Both men then made a complete search of the saloon and the other cabins, but it is needless to say without result. Later it was found that Capt. Ellis had died between 1:00 and 2:00 a. m. in the morning of June 23.

The story got about and the ship obtained a reputation for being haunted. Consequently a difficulty was found in obtaining crews, and, in the end, it was renamed and sold to a foreign firm.

The Vital Question.

New York club women considered a resolution that the woman's page in the papers had too much about fashions and complexion care, but they found a difference of opinion when the matter came up for discussion. If some of those women could know how many of their sisters write personal letters to the editors of such columns for more information on such subjects they would forever cease to discuss the subject. The few women may be in a high-brow class where the complexion and dress seem of little account, but to the great mass of them, judging from the number of letters received, the vital question is: What can I do to make myself more beautiful?

MANY NOTCHES ON PISTOL OF BANDIT

MURDERER, TRAIN ROBBER AND BANK LOOTER IS HARVEY
LOGAN.

RECORD OF TRAINS HELD UP

Major Sylvester of Washington Police Will Try to Extradite Desperado from Argentine Where He Is Refugee.

Washington.—"This is the longest criminal record I have ever seen," remarked Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of the International Association of Police Chiefs, exhibiting two typewritten pages received from Eugene Van Buskirk, superintendent of the national bureau of criminal identification.

The record was that of Harvey Logan, 45 years old, of Dodson, Mo. Murders, train robberies and other crimes he is blamed for, committed at various places throughout the United States. He is also believed to be one of a "hold-up" band working in South America.

This bad man was wanted by the authorities to serve sentences aggregating 130 years in the Ohio penitentiary. He escaped from jail at Knoxville, Tenn.

Maj. Sylvester has taken a deep interest in the fugitive's case. He intends to try to bring him to justice.

That he may be in the Argentine Republic or some other South American country may not save him from the Ohio penitentiary. Maj. Sylvester will invoke the aid of the state department to get him back here.

While his right name seems to be Harvey Logan, he is known to police and criminals also as "Kid" Curry, Bob Nevilles, Tom Jones, Robert Nelson and R. T. Whelan. His criminal career includes seven murders and two suspected murders, any number of robberies and shooting scrapes.

Christmas day, 1894, the record states, he became known in the criminal world. Pike Landusky, Mont., was killed that day by him.

In June, 1897, he helped rob a bank at Belle Fourche, S. D., under the name of Tom Jones. He was arrested and placed in jail at Deadwood, S. D., escaping the last of October of that year.

Two years later he participated in the hold-up of a Union Pacific train at Wilcox, Wyo. Three days later Sheriff Hazen of Converse county, Wyo., leading a posse in pursuit of the robbers, was shot to death at Tea Pot creek, near Casper, by Logan.

Ten months later, in May, 1900, to avenge the death of a comrade in the band of train robbers, Logan killed John Tyler, sheriff of Grand county, Utah, and Sam Jenkins, who was an acting deputy sheriff. Three months later his record has him participating in the hold-up of a Union Pacific train at Tipton, Wyo.

In July, 1901, he is said to have taken part in an exciting train robbery on the Great Northern railroad, near Wagner, Mont. Explosives were used and $41,500 in incomplete bank notes was secured as loot.

James Winters, one who hunted July 26 for Logan, 23 days after the robbery, fell a victim of the bandit's revolver. After Winters' death the bad man, accompanied by a woman, left Montana for the south.

In October of that year the woman was arrested at Nashville, Tenn., for attempting to pass some of the incomplete notes, proceeds of the train robbery. Logan managed to escape.

The next heard from the bandit was the night of December 13, 1901, when he shot and dangerously wounded two policemen in Knoxville, Tenn. Six months later he was convicted of assault and sentenced to serve six months in the county jail.

In November, 1902, he was arrested in Knoxville and convicted of having attempted to pass some more unfinished bank notes. Sentences aggregating 130 years were imposed.

While in jail at Knoxville awaiting transportation to the Columbus, O., penitentiary, Logan escaped from prison. He was not again heard from for two years. Then he turned up in Argentine as the leader of a band of robbers.

USEFUL MAN IN COMMUNITY ON BEING A GOOD SPORT

Records Show Pioneer Might Reasonably Claim to Be Jack of All Trades.

It is necessary that the pioneer be a man of infinite resource, who can do for himself or his neighbors every necessary task. Such a man was Col. Samuel Sloper, one of the early settlers of Blandford, Mass., whose astonishing versatility is recorded by Mr. S. G. Wood in "Taverns and Turnpikes of Blandford."

Col. Sloper, among other things, kept something of a stable, and pastured horses and stock. For the munificent reward of three shillings, the old veteran, in 1788, moved the family of David Knox, by means of "Team and Boy." Now and then he turned his hand to odd jobs. He carded and laid out John Waldo Wood's flax one season for seven pounds ten shillings.

He seems to have made shoes and garments for his family, and for his neighbors. For Enos Loomis' young son, who was bound out to him, he did on this wise: "Caping your son's shoes, 1-3." "One bottle-green coat trimmed and made for Moses, seven shillings." He made several shirts and a frock for the Martin Leonard Company.

The number of things which this veteran and "dabster" did make an astonishing list. He was surgeon-in-ordinary to the parish of Blandford, and this long before he had accumulated an army experience. Veterinary, too, he was. His journals are peppered over with charges for the treatment of young horses. In the account of Eliphalet Thompson, in the year 1772, along with a "frying Pan" and "1 Pr Sizers," is the charge, "To Setting your boys rist, twelve shillings." James Sinnett, in 1785, became indebted to "Setting your knee and Dressing," and to "Sundri Dressings," four and three shillings respectively.—Youth's Companion.

CHEAP THIEVERY IN STAMPS

By Means of Want Advertisements—Postal Authorities Are Unable to Prevent It.

"There is one fraud upon the public that we would like to root out," said a postoffice inspector, "but it is almost impossible to reach the culprits and to make out cases against them. It is even more difficult to obtain evidence on which to base a fraud order against their mail. This fraud is simply the larceny of two-cent stamps by means of fake advertisements in the 'help wanted' columns of newspapers which have no means of knowing the fraudulent nature of the advertisements.

"It costs only a trifle to advertise for some kind of help and some of these advertisements will bring from 1,000 to 1,500 replies from persons who are looking for work or seeking to better themselves. Four-fifths of these applicants for the bogus 'job' will inclose stamps for reply. You can figure it out. Eight hundred stamps are worth $16. These stamps done up in packages of 25 or 50, are sold at a small discount."

A Wily New Yorker.

"There were two vacant seats in the subway car when I went in," said the young man. "I took one of them, and right behind me came a man and a mighty good looking young woman. The man took the other seat, directly opposite mine, and the young woman stood looking up and down the car. I got up, gave her my seat and received a grateful smile."

"That would have been all right if it had stopped there, but at the same moment that the young woman smiled her thanks the man across the aisle raised his hat and thanked me, too. Then I saw a great light. That man knew that his wife was attractive and he took the only way of getting a seat for himself."

"What did you do?" he was asked. "I went out on the platform and told the guard that the public service commission ought to make them put on more cars."—New York Sun.

Somewhat Ambiguous.

A pupil in one of the grades at Brownell school startled his teacher the other morning by inquiring: "What is a feebly?"

"A feebly!" repeated the teacher. "Feebly is an adverb, not a noun. Where did you ever see that?"

"Right here in this book," replied the pupil. "It tells here about a guy that had one of 'em growin' on his chin." He pointed to a passage describing the appearance of a young man in the story.

The sentence read: "He had a feebly growing down on his chin."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Politeness and Servility.

No one can deny that there is vast room for improvement in American politeness, especially in the north. But politeness and servility are far apart. It does not take long to tell whether a man is fawning upon you or merely using ordinary civility. The latter any man has a right to expect. But none but a self-satisfied prig expects others to be servile or will tolerate that quality when he finds it.

A Disraeli Story.

There is a good story of Disraeli in his Aylesbury days. He was speaking from the balcony of the George hotel to a great crowd in the market square, when a cattle dealer shouted: "Speak up, Dizzy!" To which the great man made answer: "Were my voice as loud as thunder and my words as sharp as flints, my sayings would never penetrate the thick skull of my radical friend, John Ivants."

Many Others There Are Besides Those Who Indulge in Contests on Athletic Fields.

The marks of a good sport in any athletic game are easily recognizable. In golf he plays his ball exactly where it lies and carefully observes every rule safeguarding the rights of his opponent and other players on the course. In tennis he never calls a ball "out" if there is the slightest doubt about it, preferring the loss of a point to the loss of his self-respect. In baseball or football he keeps constantly in mind the fact that he is a gentleman and gives his opponent credit for being as well bred, no matter how keen the competition or how great the temptation to resort to questionable methods of play.

Not that the athletic fields have a monopoly of the good sports. Far from it. Every mother who is uncompromisingly denying herself for the benefit of her children is a good sport. So is every father who pinches so that John may go to the Tech. So is every physician who cares for the poor and takes for pay the satisfaction of helping somebody. And the nurse who "turns night time into day time," but without the recompense of good fellowship or "the good song ringing clear." And the school teacher who mothers hundreds of children to their everlasting benefit, but herself is mother to none.—From "Nautilus."

TAXES IN THE OLDEN TIME

In the Reign of George the Third One Could Not Even Escape Them by Dying.

For taxes out of the common one must turn back to the days of George III. For in the reign of that monarch one was almost forced to "die beyond one's means." The army and the navy were in urgent need of money and the chancellor was at his wits' end. He thought of the dead and gravely suggested a tax on coffins. Which proposal recalls the day when one could not be born without involving a proud parent in a tax. A graduated tax. The birth of an eldest son, for instance, cost a duke as much as £30, whereas a cottager was forced to pay only two shillings. To be born with a silver spoon in the mouth cost money in those days!

Not only was there once a tax on hair powder, but hair itself has been called upon to pay its due share to the revenue. For beards were, at various times, taxed in England. Henry VIII. graduated his levy according to the status of the wearer, the sheriff of Canterbury, for instance, having to pay three shillings four pence for his beard, and Elizabeth fixed the same sum for every beard of over a fortnight's growth.

Keeping a Friendship.

"Time was," remarked a man prominent in Cleveland financial circles, "when if a close friend had come to me and wanted to obtain a personal loan and offered to give me his ring or his watch or his wife for security, I wouldn't have taken any security. I would have insisted that we were too good friends for that and if I lent him money at all it would have been without any collateral."

"Now I'm older and know more of the workings of human nature than I did then. If a close friend comes to me to-day to borrow money and offers to put up his ring or his watch or his wife for security I'll accept the security. For if I do not and he isn't able to pay me back shortly he'll begin to avoid me and from there it is only another step until he'll hate me. So long as he has given me security however, whether he pays me or not, he does not feel under obligations to me and I retain his friendship and good will."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Eye Strain in School.

A little boy or girl totally blind is an extremely pathetic sight, but next to this is a child wearing spectacles to pieces out of its defective eyesight. Yet such cases are declared by doctors to be on the increase, and they claim that many of them are caused by the eye strain to which those under ten years of age are subjected in the schools. A number of years ago a crusade was begun against nursemaids, older sisters and even reckless mothers who would expose babies' eyes to the direct glare of the sun when taking the helpless infants out for an airing in baby carriages. That crusade is by no means ended yet, and many a courageous woman will to-day stop a baby carriage whose occupant's unprotected eyes are being blinded by the sun, and will instruct the attendant to either shut out the light or wheel the carriage in another direction.

How Glass Affects Bacteria.

From the investigations of a German scientist, it appears that bacteria are affected favorably or otherwise by the character of the glass containing the water in which they are suspended. Marked differences in the behavior of cholera germs were noted, according to the kind of glass composing the vessels used. The degree of alkalinity imparted by the glass to the water is believed to be an important factor in these experiments.

Consolation.

"That candidate insists that he was defeated by the trusts," "Yes," answered Senator Sorghum, "whenever a man gets the worst of it he likes to console himself with the idea that he had a mighty big antagonist."
