Saugatuck Gets Nod on Harbor Improvements

House Allots $25,000
For Dredging River
Near Entrance to Lake

SAUGATUCK (Special) — Information was received Wednesday from Washington that the House Tuesday approved a $25,000 appropriation for dredging the Kalamazoo River where it flows into Lake Michigan, more commonly referred to as the Saugatuck harbor.

Rep. Clare E. Hoffman (R-Mich.) offered the item as an amendment to a pending appropriations bill. It was accepted by voice vote.

The campaign for harbor improvements began last November by the civic committee of the Saugatuck Chamber of Commerce headed by Walter Bray as chairman. The committee received staunch support from service clubs, township and village boards and the Lake Michigan Yachting Association. More than 250 individual letters were directed to Congressmen and departments during the campaign which was part of an overall harbor improvement program.

Previously, the Corps of Engineers had insisted that the volume of business done in the harbor did not warrant the improvement and there even had been introduced legislation recommending abandonment of the project, but it never passed. The harbor was constructed in 1911.

Improvements were reconsidered after Bray's committee compiled new statistics on the value of craft permanently based in the harbor (estimated value, $765,200) and also showed that commercial fishing had an annual take of 142 tons of fish.

These figures resulted in a revised cost-benefit ratio from the Corps of Engineers. It is expected work will begin as soon as possible on dredging two particularly bad spots in the channel close to the mouth of the river.

The next step on committee work is to effect an arrangement between village and state on a marina which could be located at Butler park which has 180 feet of river frontage belonging to the state. Matching funds from the village would be available for such a project.

The committee also is working to have Saugatuck designated as a harbor of refuge.

Area Students Honored at MSU

Several Holland and area students at Michigan State University have attained grade averages placing them among the top 10 of their classes in their respective colleges of study, according to the registrar's office at the university.

The rankings are based on cumulative grade averages through the fall term of 1955 for students enrolled in the winter term of 1956. Students with grade averages of 3.75 or better also rank scholastically among the top 10 in their entire class. Grade averages are listed numerically, with a 4 equalling an "A" and a 3 a "B."

Those listed from Holland are Ronald Hamelink, junior, agricultural engineering, 3.95; Sara-Jo Kleinheksel, junior, chemistry, 3.76; Terry McKenney, junior, business, 3.82; Joan Patterson, senior, divisional social sciences, 3.92; Marilyn Poest, junior, political science, 3.92; and John Vanderploeg, sophomore, accounting, 3.76.

Others are Alvin Doezeman, Zeeland, sophomore, business and public service, 3.77; Marjorie Chittenden, Marne, sophomore, speech, 3.35; Carolyn Kitchel, Grand Haven, freshman, non-preference, 3.85; and Donald Zysk, Grand Haven, sophomore, non-preference, 3.60.

Turn About's Fair Play At Holland High School

Girls opening doors for boys?

And carrying armfuls of books?

This seemingly unusual behavior is all part of Dutch Treat Week at Holland High School, proclaimed by Mayor John Stryker this week. According to the proclamation, girls must perform all duties usually done by the boys such as opening doors, carrying books and paying expenses of dates.

Pan American Club started the ball rolling Monday with a skit in chapel Monday morning and held a carnival in the school gym Monday night. The Latin Club presented a skit for the Tuesday chapel program and the H Club had a noon dance. A noon dance Wednesday and today is the contribution of the Chemistry Club and Future Teachers of America.

On Friday night the Student Council is planning a dance in the gym open to all high school students. Girls invite the boys to this affair which begins at 8 p.m. The Cosmo Combo will be playing for the dancing until 11:30 p.m.

Karen Damson is serving as general chairman of Dutch Treat Week. Assisting her are Bruce Van Leeuwen, Pat Oonk and Tom Boss, Dutch Treat Specials; Lyn Gordon, Sally Houtman and Fred Protsman, publicity; Verna Grotenhuis, Friday dance; Connie Cook, chaperones; Bruce Brink, band; John Kleinheksel and Dave Polich, tickets.

Stu Post, refreshment chairman, is assisted by Tom Ragains and Terry Lindgren. Decorations are in charge of Kay Keane, Jo Lee Hurlbut, Margo Munro, Lindy Streur and Dawn Poppen.

After Friday night everything goes back to normal. Boys open doors for girls, carry their books and pay for dates again.

Group Discusses Ottawa's Juvenile Detention Problem

Second Meeting Set
Later This Month;
Crisis Approaching

Allen Robinson, superintendent of Coopersville Schools, was elected chairman of a county Citizens Committee to study needs for juvenile detention facilities.

The 13-member group had an organizational meeting Thursday night at the Court House in Grand Haven, and also elected Mrs. Dennis Allan of Spring Lake, secretary.

A second meeting has been scheduled for March 28 in Holland to hear Hugh P. Reed of Chicago, director of the National Probation and Parole Association.

Millard Prichard, director of child services in Western Michigan for the State Department of Social Welfare, is a resource person for the committee.

Problems to be considered by the committee are: (1) Does Ottawa County need a detention home? (2) Can a residence be converted into a home or is a new, modern facility most desirable? (3) Should Ottawa County consider a cooperative arrangement with another county in establishment of a detention home?

Representatives of the committee are to meet with officials of Muskegon Probate Court and Muskegon Board of Supervisors to discuss the possibilities of an Ottawa-Muskegon detention home operation. At present Muskegon operates a private children's home supported by charitable organizations and donations from citizens.

Probate Judge Frederick T. Miles, acquainted the group with juvenile problems for this county, explaining that 896 days of detention care were contracted by the Ottawa juvenile court in 1955. This county spent $17,120 on boarding care last year. At present Ottawa sends juvenile delinquents to the Kent County detention home and the Muskegon children's home. This county soon will be forced to make other arrangements as Kent county is moving its home into smaller quarters and increasing the rate from $5 to $8 a day for each person detained, Judge Miles said.

Present rates at the Kent home are $5 a day and $4 a day at the Muskegon home. It was pointed out that both sites are presently crowded with "their own people." According to state statistics it cost $9 a day to detain a child in a detention home. At present Ottawa County has eight girls in girl's training school and two boys in Boy's Vocational School.

While experts feel it takes nearly two years to help a boy in vocational school, Michigan's facilities are so overcrowded that the average stay is four and a half months.

Avery Baker, county juvenile court agent, also met with the group and showed a movie dramatizing the court's handling of juvenile problems.

He said demands for juvenile services result from a steady increase in population and a continuing rise in delinquency and cases of child neglect throughout the state.

Buck Read Slated To Talk to Cagers

Herbert W. (Buck) Read, basketball coach at Western Michigan College, will be speaker at the annual basketball banquet honoring Holland players next Tuesday, March 27, at American Legion Country Club at 6:30 p.m.

Speeding Cars Collide, Put Seven in Hospital

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Two carloads of thrill seekers who sought to outrun a police cruiser at speeds exceeding 80 miles an hour got a real come-uppance Saturday when their intricate paths crossed resulting in a terrific crash and injuring seven occupants.

City police picked up the trail of the two racers at 2 a.m. Saturday near south police headquarters just north of the bridge. The cruiser followed the two speeders into Grand Haven along US-31. At Adams St. one car turned while the other continued and the officer decided to pursue the car that turned.

After a series of maneuvers, the two cars crashed at the corner of Madison and Sixth with the police nearby to witness — and assist. Both late model cars were a total wreck and all occupants severely bruised and shaken. All were taken to Municipal Hospital. Four remained and three were released after treatment. Time of the crash was 2:07 a.m.

Driver of one car, Jackie Tuller, 18, of 609 Washington, received at least seven broken ribs and remained in the hospital. The other driver was Francis Roon, 20, route 2, Spring Lake, who received lacerations and bruises.

Roon's two passengers, Donald Van Raalte, 18, Ferrysburg, and Robert Freeland, 25, of 428 Monroe, Grand Haven, also remained in the hospital today. Van Raalte received severe cuts and bruises and Freeland a fractured hip as well as cuts and bruises.

Three passengers in Tuller's car were all released after treatment. They were James Corbett, 18, of 512 Washington; James De Weerd, 17, route 1, Nunica, and Donald A. Hill, 18, route 2, Spring Lake.

Blue Birds Have Birthday Parties

Third graders had their celebration Monday afternoon and fourth graders, Thursday afternoon in Van Raalte school gymnasium.

At each party, the children sang the Blue Bird Wish, a new song this year, and other songs of their choice. The children were divided into groups for various games, conducted by Blue Bird leaders. As each girl entered the gym, a vegetable designating her game group was pinned on her. Vegetables were used to carry out the theme "Plant Seeds, Reap Friendship."

The children were told how the Camp Fire girls are earning money to buy seeds to send to people in India, Pakistan and Philippines, the special birthday project.

The children were given fudge-slices before going home.

Friendly Corner Class Hears Miss Vander Kolk

The March meeting of the Friendly Corner Class of Trinity Reformed Church was held Monday at the church.

Miss Myrtle Vander Kolk of Hamilton told of her work with the deaf in this area. There are approximately 125,000 deaf people in this country, she said, and many of these have no opportunity for religious instruction. Miss Vander Kolk has organized a group which meets regularly in Zeeland. With her guidance they have been able to conduct religious services and take active part in the meetings. With the assistance of her sister, Mrs. Hester Borton, a demonstration was given showing the class how the services are conducted.

Kathleen Hoedema and Lois Van Hoff accompanied by Arthur Oosting, entertained with flute solos. Mrs. Dorothy LaBouff, president, conducted the business meeting. Miss Esther Kooyers was in charge of devotions. Mrs. Arthur Hoedema and Mrs. John Gerding were in charge of the program. Following the program and business meeting an auction of baked goods furnished by the members was in charge of Mrs. Gordon Weighmink as auctioneer.

Hostesses for the evening were the Mesdames Frank Klomprens, Marjorie Bell, Joe Otting, Alvin Strabbing, Justin Dubink and Harold Oosterink.

Mrs. Martin Bast, 81, Succumbs Unexpectedly

Mrs. Martin John Bast died unexpectedly at her home, 59 East 18th St., late Thursday evening. She was 81 years old and was born in Kesteen, the Netherlands. On June 25, 1903 the Basts were married near Arnhem, the Netherlands. They came to the United States in 1909 and made their home in Fennville for 33 years. While there Mrs. Bast was a member of the Methodist Church and taught Sunday School. She was a member of the Missionary Society.

The Basts have made their home in Holland since 1952. Surviving are the husband, three sons, Martin of Middletown, N.Y., John of Fennville and the Rev. Henry who is pastor of Bethany Reformed Church of Grand Rapids; two daughters, Mrs. A. D. Bell of Sydney, Australia and Mrs. Gleon Bonnette of Holland; 16 grandchildren; two great grandchildren.

U.S. Department of Agriculture records show that in 1925 few city homemakers had full time jobs outside the home—just 10 out of a hundred were so employed. Today 25 out of every 100 city wives are employed outside the home.

First Nighters Acclaim 'Lady Windermere's Fan'

A rather small but appreciative audience gathered in Hope College's Little Theater Thursday night for the opening of the Oscar Wilde classic, "Lady Windermere's Fan," given by Palette and Masque.

All in all, "Lady Windermere's Fan," was a happy selection. Action moved easily and smoothly and the cast seemingly enjoyed the whole production. Even the handkerchief-sized stage seemed larger and the movement in the play scene was easy and natural.

Beautiful, elaborate costumes of the 1890's added immeasurably but did not overshadow the play itself, which was a fine discourse on strict social ethics in the England of 1892 when women were ladies of puritanical innocence and gentlemen were men with pasts.

Thursday's performance was more of a well knit entity than a mirror for single talents. Yet throughout it all, it was Marilyn Luidens as the gracious and socially acceptable Lady Windermere who controlled the performance.

Equally effective and in direct contrast was Ramona Te Grotenhuis as the seeming corrupt Mrs. Erlynne. How Mrs. Erlynne's identity as Lady Windermere's mother was kept from the leading lady provided a situation comedy establishing Oscar Wilde as a top playwright of all time.

Comedy relief was provided by Connie Miller as the Duchess and Aileen McGoldrick as her shy daughter, Lady Agatha. Strong support for the leading women came from Tom Ten Hoeve as Lord Windermere and Al Timmer as Lord Darlington.

One of the liveliest scenes in the play in which lively talk predominated was in the third act during a men's gabfest in Lord Darlington's rooms.

Others in the cast were Marlin Vander Wilt, Pete De Moya, Del Farnsworth, Paul Koels, Henry Doe, Mike Brummel, Jocelyn Freyling, Nelvie Meerman, Marianne Hagaman, Una Hunt and Jane Gowens.

The play was directed by Elva Van Haitsma of the faculty.

Rotarians Hear

Of School Study

Discussing "Holland Area School Study," Superintendent of Schools Walter Scott and Dr. Byron Hansford of Michigan State University were guest speakers at the Rotary Club noon luncheon Thursday at the Warm Friend Tavern.

Scott explained steps already taken in the study of the public school situation in Holland and the surrounding communities. He said 27 area school districts have joined Holland in the study, with Holland assuming the expenses. There is a seven man steering committee, composed of four sender members and three city members. The overall committee is made up of one representative from each of the 27 participants and 13 city members. These are divided into seven subcommittees with the task of compiling comprehensive data for the study. He said the group hopes to complete its work by June 1.

Dr. Hansford was selected to be coordinator of the data accumulated and to offer his suggestions for a solution of the problem in this particular area. Dr. Hansford said that regional studies are being made all over the country. Educational costs are constantly increasing because there are more children and they are being kept in school for longer periods.

The fact that the pattern of school districts and school organizations has been unchanged for a hundred years in Michigan points out the need for group study of present and future needs, Dr. Hansford said.

Tree Orders From Soil District Reach New High

A final check of the West Ottawa District tree orders today shows a total of 2,152,000 trees on order for spring delivery according to Clarence Reenders, chairman.

This is the largest season since the start of the nursery in 1938. Since the demand for Scotch pine exceeds the supply it was decided at a special meeting to reduce all orders of more than 2,000 by 10 per cent.

A few of the extremely large orders will be cut even more, it was stated. It will also be necessary to substitute some Austrian pine and spruce for a part of the Scotch pine.

Tulip Lane Plantings Promoted by Group

Residents living on tulip lane will be urged again this year to plant other flowers as soon as the tulips have died, according to a plan adopted Thursday night by the executive board of the Holland Council for Civic Beauty. The meeting was held in the home of the chairman, Lida Rogers.

For the last couple of years, the Council of Civic Beauty has promoted the planting of petunias, dwarf marigold and other flowers in tulip lane in an effort to keep the city colorful all summer.

Several methods for promoting civic beautification were discussed and arrangements were made to distribute instruction sheets to persons living on tulip lane later in the season.

Attending the meeting were Raymond Wenke, Mrs. John K. Vander Broek, Kenneth Zuverink and Miss Rogers.

Let's Plant Beauty -- Now It's Time For Planting Tuberous Begonias

Do you have a shady nook or north-side setting where brilliant colors languish and finally cease to bloom altogether? Tuberous-rooted begonias, coming in a variety of eye-arresting hues (reds, pinks, white, apricot, yellow, and orange), may more than adequately solve your problem. Besides the standard camellia and carnation types and the heavily ruffled crispa type, there are also the novelty types: Cristata or Crested, a single fringed type with a tuft or pom-pom in the center of each petal, Marginata, a lovely ruffled type in white with pink edge or salmon copper edge, Narcissiflora, a unique novelty resembling giant daffodils, Picotee Double resembling a two-tone pastel camellia, and Rosebud Double, a striking begonia with a name explaining its appearance.

In a current booklet we came upon an interesting article on hanging tuberous-rooted begonias. We quote: "These cascading beauties are at their best when grown in a lath house where they form a canopy of spectacular beauty; however, they also make an effective picture when planted atop a low wall, in a flower box, or on a sheltered porch. They offer a grace not found in the standard tuberous begonias, and although the flowers are smaller, a well-grown plant will produce hundreds of blooms throughout the season."

One nursery lists the hanging basket type, Pendula Lloydii, which is an all double type well adapted for baskets, edgings of window boxes or in the rockery, producing a mass of color.

Tuberous-rooted begonias grow from tubers and not from tuberous roots, since the eyes are formed on the tubers themselves. The tubers, usually concave at the top and rounded at the base, should be started in February, March, or April either by planting them one inch below the surface in pots or pans filled with garden soil, humus and well-rotted manure or by first laying them in flats or trays on damp peat sand, or vermiculite. It will take four weeks for them to produce masses of white roots and pink sprouts. They are then ready for potting in 4-to-6-inch pots.

Avoid bruising the rootlets when transplanting them. Place pots in the light but away from direct sunshine. Begonias need abundant moisture, good drainage, rich soil, and "high" shade which means lots of light but not direct sunshine. They are ready to try their legs outdoors as soon as all danger of frost is past, usually around the end of May in this area.

Tuberous-rooted begonias do not like a spot under the eaves, behind the rhododendrons, or close to a foundation planting. They may need shade, but they also need air (strong winds or vicious gales of force forty will leave them disheveled, cracked, and pretty much looking like washed-up debris). Make sure too that the soil in which you set them is not a mass of roots but composed of good topsoil and humus—that is, if you wish to have a profusion of green leaves and sparkling flowers.

If you are tempted to try the hanging basket type, the cultural requirements are the same with this exception: "When the sprouts attain four or five inches of growth the crowns should be pinched from them. This induces the development of lateral growth and the growth of new sprouts. Lateral sprouts should not be pinched."

When the plants reach a height of four or five inches, move them to wire baskets, lined with florist's moss, or make your own of ¼ inch hardware cloth, 10" in diameter and 4 to 6 inches high. For our do-it-yourself kind, we sawed nail kegs in half, painted them green, and hung them with furnace chain—very rustic looking and handsome, too.

Try this with one or more of your roses. Take from four to seven canes and peg them as horizontally to the ground as possible, being careful not to crack them. Remove all other growth. This should be done in March. After three weeks, release the canes from the pegs and permit them to go back in position. The one we read about was a Frau Karl Druschki and four of these bushes produced 2,200 blooms in June, 1,000 in July, and stragglers until frost.

This phenomena is explained by American Rose Society director David Watson: "When growth begins, laterals spring from the base of the leaf axils where the 'eyes' are along the length of each cane. These 'eyes' shoot upward

FAMILIAR PATTERN

The same familiar pattern that has kept the Michigan GOP from winning the governorship for years has made its appearance again.
When the Republican party suffered a near-disastrous defeat in November, 1934, high resolves were voiced that it would never happen again. That defeat, and several in earlier years, were due largely to Republican division.
Many GOP leaders highly resolved that the party would close ranks and face the opposition as a unit.
But it does not look like that at this moment. There are at the moment two candidates. Donald S. Leonard and Wm. L. White of Jackson. Others are almost sure to enter the race, and that will result in a primary battle that will leave the party exhausted at a time when it needs all its strength for the main battle.

Leonard and White have of course a complete American right to offer themselves as candidates for governor. But the fact that Leonard has been a candidate twice before and did not capture the imagination of the Michigan voters to a sufficient extent to make a credible showing might have given other candidates pause.
Usually two such strikes on a candidate constitute at least a strong hint that he isn't wanted.

In theory the primary election gives every citizen the same chance to become a candidate. But it is hard on the party that happens to be disunited, as Michigan Republican has been for some years. During the past several years the Democrats of the state have been able to put all their efforts behind a single personality;
the Republicans have during the same years fought one another until it was too late to unite in any effective way.

The result has been disastrous for the Republicans. And if the familiar pattern of past years is followed, the chances are that it may be disastrous again the coming November. The best GOP hope is to unite behind one man in the primary as well as in the election.
If there is a bitter inter-party struggle in the primary, the chances are that the defeated candidates will sit on their hands during the election fight.

At least that was the case in the last two or three elections and the same pattern seems to be threatening to develop this time. And that way lies disaster for the Republicans. There would be no point in being mealy-mouthed about the situation.

The Meaning of Christ's Suffering
Luke 23:4-18
By C. F. Dame

(Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.
S. A. and used by permission.)

It is a fact of history that Christ died. When we say with Paul that Christ died for our sins we proclaim the gospel. We then give meaning to the death of Christ.

I. The Jews said Jesus was guilty, a Roman judge said he was innocent. Pilate the Roman had a better sense of justice than the Jewish religious leaders. The real enemies of Jesus were the Jewish religious leaders. The governor, Pilate, after he had examined Jesus said, "I find no fault in this man." The religious leaders became the more fierce when they heard this statement and said, "He stirreth up the people." A pagan ruler declared Jesus guilt-less, religious leaders and rulers said he was guilty. Pilate acted nobly, it seems to me, than the Jewish leaders. The chief fault of Pilate was his weakness, not his wickedness. The religious leaders were wicked, prejudiced, spiteful and selfish. The passions and motives which they revealed are still at work in our world.

When Pilate heard that Jesus was a Galilean he sent him to Herod who was in Jerusalem at that time. Herod had heard much about Jesus and therefore was glad to see him and he hoped that Jesus would perform some miracle for him. In the presence of Herod, the Lord was silent. Herod had de-spiritualized himself by his attitude towards John the Baptist whom he had killed because of the wish of his wife and daughter. The religious leaders vehemently accused Jesus in the presence of Herod. In spite of their accusations, Herod found no fault in Jesus and so he sent him back to Pilate arrayed in a gorgeous robe which showed the trifling spirit of the man.

II. Christ suffered for others.
When Pilate gave the Jews the opportunity to choose between Bar-abbas, a murderer, and Jesus, they chose Barabbas and thus they revealed their character. The religious leaders stirred up the people to make a wicked and wrong choice. Some leaders will have much to account for because they influenced people in the wrong way. Today some persons and some groups still make tragic choices. The world has suffered much from wicked and selfish leadership.

III. Two criminals were crucified with Jesus. The soldiers placed Jesus in between the two thieves.
All his life long, Jesus was with sinners and so it was fitting that even while he was dying he should be with them. At first both robbers ridiculed Jesus but one of them changed his mind and his attitude and repented. He showed his repentance by rebuking his fellow criminal with whom he at first ridiculed Christ and by his testimony concerning Christ and himself and his fellow robber.

He said that they suffered justly and were getting the due reward of their deeds but Christ had done nothing amiss. It is remarkable that in so short a time such a sudden change took place in this man's attitude. He expressed his faith in the words: "Lord, remember me, when thou comest into thy kingdom." And Jesus, answered,
"Verily, I say unto thee, Today shalt thou be with me in paradise."
What a great change took place in this man's life in one day. In the morning he was far from Christ, at noon he was in Christ, in the evening he was with Christ.
Out of Christ, in Christ, with Christ—all in one day. Great things can happen in a single day.

1. Weak people have hurt many people by their weakness.

2. Christ suffered for the sins of the world.

3. Some people trifle with great things.

4. Some people refuse a great opportunity, others lay hold of the opportunity offered. The one thief was lost, the other saved.

5. Not many people are saved just before dying.

6. We have a gospel to preach because Christ died and rose again.

SWING STEP—Senior High School students in the dancing classes sponsored by the Thomas Jefferson School PTA execute the under arm turn, one of the steps in the "swing." Boys in this group outnumbered the girls until Mrs.

William DeLong instructor, appealed to the girls to help teach the boys to dance. The popular class regularly attracts 75 students. In the adult group 35 couples are learning new steps. The final two sessions are scheduled in both groups.

Jefferson School PTA Sponsors
Adult and Student Dance Groups

Thomas Jefferson School gym is really "rocking and rolling"
these days with the Senior High School class learning to do the "swing."

A series of dancing classes has been sponsored by the Jefferson Parent Teachers Association in adult and high school age groups every other week. About 75 students and 35 couples are learning to do the swing, mambo, tango, foxtrot, waltz and rhumba.

A minimum fee has been charged with all proceeds earmarked for the PTA treasury.

Mrs. William De Long has been instructor for all the groups, donating her services. Parents of senior high school students and PTA members chaperone the student groups. Mr. and Mrs. C. Lessen Butler are host and hostess to the adult class.

This innovation in learning to dance has proved so popular that requests have been made for another series later in the year.

Two more sessions are scheduled in each group. The high school class will meet at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 27 and Monday,
April 9. The adult group will meet Thursday, March 22 and Thursday,
April 12.

Plans are being made for a party in each class at the final session with refreshments to be provided by the PTA.

Ottawa County
Farm News

By Richard Machiele
County Agricultural Agent

Many requests have come to our office regarding the registration of the Centennial Farms. We would like to encourage people who have had a farm in their family for 100 years or more to register their farm as a Centennial Farm. The organization that processes these farms is the Michigan Historical Commission located in the State Office Building at Lansing. Proper blanks for making application can be secured from this office.

There are four categories on which you can register: 1. Owner operating farm. 2. Owner with related tenants, that is, those owners not engaged in farming but renting to relatives. 3. Owner not engaged in farming but renting to non relatives. 4. Owner whose farm is not being used in any farming activity.

A series of soil testing meetings which are being sponsored by the four cooperatives in the county will be conducted the last week in March beginning at Hudsonville on March 27; at Coopersville, March 28; at Zeeland on March 29
and at Holland on March 31.

I am sure you will be getting a notice from your local cooperative or elevator regarding this soil testing program. We would like to encourage all farmers who have not had soils tested to take advantage of this soil testing conducted in your local neighborhood.

A Mr. Herrington, who runs the equipment at the county farm bureau office, will be there to process this soil, SCS Service, the local ASC office and the county agent will be there to make soil recommendations and in those cases where necessary to sign up cooperatively for lime and fertilizer and to help lay out your soil rotation plans.

Early transplanting of strawberries pays off in bigger yields the next year. Runners that form in June will produce twice as many berries the next year as runners that form in July. This is true for June bearing varieties. Everbearing varieties produce the best crop
the same year they are planted.

We recommend setting out plants as soon as the ground can be suitably worked in the spring. We also advise growers to set plants about 28 inches apart. The ideal spacing is no more than four plants per square foot by Sept. 1.

Many growers have been setting plants about 18 inches apart because of likely losses of several plants. However, plants have become more vigorous with increased control of diseases and insects
so that fewer die now.

Many of the farmers in this county are enthusiastic about the use of a grass silage. This is certainly one way to stretch your pasture to the limit. We highly recommend in cases where practical that part of the first hay crop be put up as silage. You may want to use one of the preservatives such as sodium bisulfate, ground corn cob meal, molasses and others but if hay is put in at the right condition no preservative will be necessary. Probably the most objectionable feature of grass silage is the strong smell that clings to your clothes. With preservative, part of this trouble can be eliminated.

It might be a good idea to check your storage grain every few weeks this spring. There is little danger of damage of stored grain when the weather is cold but when with warm weather coming up, insects are active again. At the first sign of insects, fumigate. Your local elevator will have the right type of material to use for proper fumigation.

From the Poultry Department at Michigan State University comes this note: Culled hen prices are best in March. This is the month to get rid of star boarders in your laying flocks. Prices for culled hens are usually highest during March so if you have been holding back some culs, move them now.

Christian
Endeavor

March 25, 1936
No Greater Love

By Raymond E. Welas
John 3:16, John 15:9-17,
Rom. 5:6-8.

To the leader: This topic has been picked for this week because on Friday we commemorate Christ's death for our sin. Your purpose in the topic must be more than just leading a "proper" topic for Holy Week, however. It must be to try to give everyone a deeper understanding of the love which led Christ to die. Christians need to understand so they will more completely dedicate their all to Him who so loved them (II Cor.
5:14-15). Non-Christians need to know of it so that they can believe and be saved. To present it you must ask God to help you really understand His love for you.

Suggested Leader's Talk: We are going to think about love. When "love" is mentioned various thoughts come to various minds.
Somehow the boys think of the girls and vice versa. We also think of mother and dad and home. If we have had a happy home a warm feeling comes inside. We are going to think about God's love, a love which is greater than all other love.

It is so far greater than our "puppy loves" that it is a different kind of love altogether. It is greater than the love mother and dad have for us. It is a love which goes far beyond loving good and lovable people and those who love in return and loves unloving sinners. God loves sinners so much
He sent His Son to die for them (Jn. 3:16, I Jn. 4:10).

To try to understand God's love and how great it is let us examine our own thoughts to see how great our love is. Willingness to die for another is the test we will use to test our love. Rom. 5:6-8 gives us an outline by which to test our love.

1. Would you die for a righteous man? Mention the names of some great and godly men. For many this will include mother, dad, etc.
Ask the group if they would consider dying for these people. Illustrate this point by stories from the newspaper or history of some who loved enough to die for such a person.

2. Would I die for a good man?
The people referred to here are just the common "good" people, your buddies, friends and neighbors. Do you have enough unselfish love that you would die to save them? Would you say, as many might, it was either he or I or it might as well have been he? Attempt to find illustrations of this type of love, as the four chaplains, etc.

3. Would I die for a sinner?
Think of the so-called "bums" on Skid Row the gangsters and the crooked politicians. Would you die for such a person as this? Jesus Christ, our Savior, did. We are sinners like that. He died for us.
(If you think you are not like that ask yourself if you would like God to tell you C. E. society all He knows about you.)

As we come again to Good Friday we are reminded of the great love of God and that out of His great loving heart He calls men to repent of sin and to trust what His love has done to save them.
"God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us."

Winged Victory Chorus
To Appear April 26

Volunteers were continuing their work today lining up members for the 1936-37 Civic Music Association series and leaders expressed the hope that last year's record would be equaled or exceeded.

The drive will conclude at 6 p.m.
Saturday. Headquarters are located in Meyer Music House and special telephones are 3825 and 4326.

Members who join the association for the first time this year will be invited to attend the last concert of the current season which will be given April 26, and not Monday, March 26, as reported in Tuesday's Sentinel. However, it so happens that the 68-voice cappella choir of Northwestern College of Minneapolis, Minn., will appear in a concert that evening.
No admission will be charged. Consequently, persons going to Civic Center Monday night will receive a choral treat, although not the Winged Victory Chorus which comes to Holland exactly one month later.

To complicate Monday's musical schedule further, a Civic Music concert is scheduled in Grand Haven Monday, April 2. The Con-tinentalaires, a Negro quartet, will appear.

Coast Guard Station
Will Open on May 1

Holland's Coast Guard station has been authorized to open on May 1, it was learned today from BM-IC Walter G. Sears, who is in charge of the station.

An attempt is being made to have a full complement of men at the station by April 1, Sears said.

The new station, erected last year, is located on the north or Ottawa Beach side of the channel.
Sears said that the 50-foot storm warning tower, formerly on the Macatawa side of the breakwater, was to be moved to the Ottawa beach side. The move was being made today.

In the Tropical Chamber on the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., technicians recreate a climate comparable to weather on South Pacific islands. Their purpose is to test airplane equipment
under tropical conditions.

Dog Notes

by Peter Boggs
Pups Had Mom For A Mother

A Houston, Texas, lawyer, with a big estate on Memorial Drive, owned a female pointer that was his pride. She had six puppies, purebred baby pointers. She was an ideal mother to the newborn pups, but she was not left alone with the job of mothering them. A queer bantam hen—the only chicken left on the estate—discovered the litter before they were a day old.

She settled down on top of as many of them as her small body and outstretched wings could cover, and there she brooded over them for hours. The only time she left them was when they were feeding. That was a job for their real mother, not for the feathered foster-mother. The pointer did not make any objections to this sharing of her duties. Perhaps because the bantam laid an egg nearly every day near the brood nest: an egg which the puppies' mother devoured always with dainty relish.

An odd story, isn't it? A scientist explained the bantam's motherliness toward the pups by saying she had never had a chance to display her strong maternal instinct for a brood of baby chicks of her own.

The Springtime Puppy

People who raise dogs think springtime should be puppytime. They claim that pups born in the early spring have the best chances for a healthy life, and this may be more or less true. I don't say it is not, though some of the hardest of my own dogs were born in mid-winter. I have checked on pups at all times of the year and, actually, I cannot discover that the season of their birth made any difference in their health.

Of course, pups born in early spring gain some slight headstart before the summer fleas begin to rob them of spirit and appetite. Also, there is less danger of injury from icy weather than for winter-born pups, but any sensible breeder can arrange for the safety and comfort of pups born in cold weather and can easily protect them from winter's hazards.

By reasonable care, the pup born in late spring or summer can be kept free of fleas, too. In brief, the time of year in which your pups are born is infinitely less important than the kind of care you give them after their birth. That's what counts.

What Color Eyes?

A letter received this week asks me a question which several others of you have asked from time to time. The question was:

"Do all dogs have brown eyes? Since I have begun wondering about that, I have noticed many dogs. All of them have had brown eyes. Are there any with eyes of different color? Also, you have spoken of extremely old dogs. My cousin found a young but full-grown Airedale. He kept her for 26 years, to my certain knowledge, though in her last years she was deaf and shaky."

I am glad to get this new record of a dog's amazing old age. Does anyone know of an older canine? As to the first question:

The average dog has eyes that range in color from light yellow to darkest brown. But there are exceptions. Many merle (gray) collies have pale grayish-blue eyes. So have certain dogs of other breeds. Some of them have one brown eye and one bluish eye or blue eyes flecked with brown.

A snow white dog (or cat) with bright blue eyes is likely to be deaf. I don't know why, but often it is true (Test such an animal's hearing before buying him). The average dog, as I said, has eyes from yellow to deep brown. But the blue or grayish-eyed dog is no great rarity.

Hansford Explains Area School Study

Dr. Byron Hansford of Michigan State University addressed the Exchange Club of Holland at a regular noon luncheon Monday.

Dr. Hansford, consultant working with the local school board and school boards of the greater Holland area, explained why a study of the local area is being carried on.

The number of courses offered by high schools today is double the number offered 30 years ago. Boys and girls are being trained for a more complicated pattern of living and a much greater percentage of youth is in school, he said. The training is being attempted under a school district organization that was set up over 100 years ago.

Out of the present 3,800 school districts in Michigan, 24 percent allocate only five mills for school purposes, 50 percent allocate five to 10 mills, and 26 percent above 10 mills. Districts are not, then, carrying an equal load, and those maintaining high schools pay a larger amount.

School population is increasing rapidly. Rural Holland areas account for approximately 56 percent of the high school enrollment. These areas pay all that the law allows them to, but a new way to build and finance new schools is needed.

Four new members, Dr. J. L. Strikwerda, Gerald M. A. N. Russell, Fredrick and William De Haan, were introduced by Dr. William Westrate.

Music was furnished by four Holland High School students. Norma Houtman presented a violin solo accompanied by Barbara Emmick, and Marcia Bouws was soloist, accompanied by Eleanor Ver Burg.

At the beginning of the program, President John Van Dyke, Jr., presented a $1,755 check to the Goodfellow Foundation. The money, taken in at the first auto show in Holland, sponsored by the Exchange Club, will be used by the Goodfellows to continue furnishing milk and paying for tonsillectomies for needy families.

Dr. Seth Nibbelink Dies at Hospital

Dr. Seth Nibbelink, 83, retired physician and surgeon who was born in Holland, died Monday evening at Blodgett Memorial Hospital in Grand Rapids following a four months illness.

He was born July 30, 1872 and attended local schools and Hope College. He received his doctors degree at Wayne University, Detroit, in 1908 and for 16 years practiced in Allendale, after which he practiced in Grand Rapids until his retirement 10 years ago. His home address was 15 Highland St., S. E., Grand Rapids, but for the last few years he had made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Leon Hoerner, in Cadillac.

Besides the daughter, survivors include two sons, Henry J. and Frank W. of Grand Rapids, a grandson, Henry, Jr., of Grand Rapids; two sisters, Mrs. Benjamin Dykhuizen and Mrs. Elizabeth Medemar of Grand Rapids; three brothers, John of Bauer, Fred of Coopersville and Gerrit of Phoenix, Ariz.

Driver of the car, her husband, Louis Beron, 35, was not injured nor was the other motorist, James Langejans, 49, of 380 West 16th St., Ottawa County. Provide psychological testing methods for teachers to use to help their pupils; 3. Provide some specialized assistance as a visiting teacher or referral aid; 4. Brothers Given Terms in Prison By Circuit Judge

Pair Confessed Many Burglaries Following Arrest on March 6

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Two brothers were sentenced to serve three to 15 years in Southern Michigan Prison when they appeared before Judge Raymond L. Smith Monday afternoon on a nighttime breaking and entering charge.

The two men, Charles Price, 26, Muskegon, and Herbert Price, 21, Muskegon Heights, were arrested by sheriff's deputies March 6 following three break-ins in Allendale area the night before. Upon questioning, they admitted the three break-ins plus another on Feb. 28 and eight break-ins in 1953 in Allendale area, as well as many others in and out of Michigan.

Judge Smith gave no recommendation for any minimum in pronouncing sentence. The brothers are currently both on parole from Arkansas.

A third person whom the brothers implicated in the 1953 break-ins, Robert Smith, 21, Muskegon, was put on probation for two years and fined $100.

Antonio Guerra, 28, of 58 West First St., Holland, who pleaded guilty March 9 to an assault charge, was fined $100 and ordered to make restitution of $15 or serve 60 days in jail. The alleged offense occurred Feb. 17 involving a fracas in which a woman's eyes were blackened and her nose broken.

Dutch Family Sought As Tenants in Virginia

The Chamber of Commerce has received a communication from the Rev. John A. Wood, pastor of Jamestown Presbyterian Church at Williamsburg, Va., seeking a family of Hollanders as tenants at their farm near Leesburg, Va., an hour's drive from Washington, D.C.

The Woods will be retiring from fulltime pastorate and ministry the latter part of June and will be moving from Williamsburg to their farm "Evergreen" at Lincoln, Va. The five-room tenant home is near the main house. In addition to a financial arrangement, the tenants would have an opportunity to establish a profitable nursery and bulb farm.

The 125-acre "Evergreen" farm has been purchased for the Woods by their daughter, Mrs. Catherine Marshall, author of "A Man Called Peter" and other books. Mrs. Marshall will do all interviewing. Additional information may be obtained from the Holland Chamber of Commerce.

Telgenhof-Dokter Rites Performed

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Telgenhof

Miss Marilyn Dokter and Henry Telgenhof were married in Bethany Christian Reformed Church March 2 with the Rev. William P. Brink performing the double ring ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dokter, 11 East 28th St., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Telgenhof, Sr., of Drenthe.

The church was decorated with palms, candelabra and arrangements of white double stock and white gladioli.

John Van Maertricht sang "O Promise Me," "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. M. Potter.

For her marriage the bride chose a gown of antique silk taffeta with appliques of chintilly lace outlining the scalloped neckline of the molded long sleeved bodice. The full skirt ended in a brush train, also trimmed with the lace motifs which were embroidered with pearls and iridescent sequins. Her fingertip veil of imported English illusion was secured by a tiara of flowers fashioned with a seed pearl and iridescent sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, centered with a white orchid, and white satin streamers.

Her sister, Mrs. Hazel Volkers, matron of honor, wore a cotillion blue gown of nylon lace, fashioned with empire midriff and flared skirt and net pleats over taffeta. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and pink feathered carnations. She wore a blue floral headband.

Misses Nancy and Patsy Dokter, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. They wore gowns similar to that of the maid of honor and carried cascade bouquets of pink roses and pink feathered carnations. They wore matching headbands.

Jerene Yonker, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a blue nylon net dress over white taffeta and carried a basket of mixed flowers. Stevie Volkers, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

Best man was Gerald De Vries and ushers were Vernon Dokter and Ralph Dokter, Jr., brothers of the bride.

Serving as master and mistress of ceremonies at a reception held in the basement of the church were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dokter, uncle and aunt of the bride.

At the punch bowl were Mr. and Mrs. Bug Newhouse. The Misses Marilyn and Muriel Hansen were in the gift room and Miss Audrey De Vries had charge of the guest book. Waitresses were the Mesdames Robert Pluiter and Lee Meadows and the Misses Sandra Jilison, Donna Lamberts, Esther Timmer, Carolyn Helder, Marilyn Menken and Marjorie Garvelink.

The bride was graduated from Holland High School and formerly was secretary to the plant manager at General Electric. The groom is a graduate of Holland Christian High School and is attending National College of Chiropractic at Chicago. The couple will make their home at Trailer Ranch, 573 South Milwaukee, Wheeling, Ill.

A HISTORY OF MODERN CRITICISM by Rene Welleck. (1750-1950. Volume 1—The Later Eighteenth Century; Volume 2—The Romantic Age. Welleck is Sterling Professor of Comparative Literature at Yale University.)

It is a long time since any one has undertaken to write a History of Modern Criticism. This excellent work by Professor Welleck will therefore be enthusiastically welcomed by all readers who have more than a superficial interest in the literature of the modern era. The lot of the literary critic has not always been an easy one. The public has been prone to look with raised eyebrow at the critic as a frustrated artist, on the general theory that those who are not able to do something themselves, generally teach others how to do it. Moreover, there is a general feeling that reading books about books is something like eating twice-cooked cabbage.

Such foolish notions about the role of literary criticism are thoroughly exploded by a careful reading of these volumes. Literary criticism is not a parasite living upon the work of genius, but is itself in many instances a work of genius. Indeed, literary criticism is itself a recognized form of literature and such has its own right of existence. It is in that spirit that the author deals with his subject.

The work as it now stands is still incomplete. The author has planned four volumes. The present two volumes carry the story of modern criticism from, roughly, 1750 to 1850. Volume three will treat the criticism of the late 18th century, and volume four will consider the criticism of the 20th century.

In the first volume, Welleck discusses the literary criticism of the so-called "Neo-Classical" period as it is found in the French critics Voltaire and Diderot; the English critics, especially Dr. Johnson; the Italian critics, and then the emergence of Romantic ideas in Germany under such brilliant critics as Lessing, Herder, Goethe, Kant, and Schiller. By treating this subject in this way, the author is able to focus attention on the broader aspect of his work, a history of ideas, rather than upon merely local development in a single country. The comparative study of literary criticism is not only modern, but does much to clarify many points, which otherwise seem obscure. Professor Welleck is careful to demonstrate that the seeds of Romanticism lie buried deeply in the thinking of the Neo-Classics. New ideas now are seen to be old ideas which seem new because of the greater emphasis which is placed upon them in certain eras of history.

Volume two traces the history of criticism in the Romantic Age. Since much of the inspiration of the Romantic movement came from Germany, naturally the author devotes much attention in this volume to German critics. Of more immediate interest to Americans is the interesting discussion of the great English author-critics, such as Shelley, Wordsworth, Coleridge, Hazlitt, Lamb and Keats. In these men there is a deliberate attempt to state the theory of beauty which they sought to embody in their artistic productions. The French and Italian critics also receive some attention.

All this may sound quite learned and intellectual. The fact of the matter is that these volumes are scholarly. They are thoroughly documented, but the author does not interfere with the reader's enjoyment by intruding his notes into the body of the text. Certainly, college students and professors will find these volumes useful. They will appreciate the fact that individual sections of the book can be read by themselves without undue loss of meaning. High school literature teachers will find them illuminating and stimulating. The common reader, gifted with curiosity and some patience, will find in these volumes much to help him understand the times in which he lives. —H.B.

Maroon Giants Upset Harborites By 54-50 Score

Kalamazoo Central's basketball team advanced into the Class A quarter-finals here Saturday night following a 54-50 upset win over Benton Harbor in the regional finals before 2,900 fans, the largest crowd ever to watch a basketball game in Civic Center.

The Maroon Giants, defeated twice by Benton Harbor in the regular season, now run into Ann Arbor, also twice conquerors of Kalamazoo this season.

Featuring a racing-pressing game, the Maroon Giants found their stride about midway in the first period and raced to a 13-7 margin. The Giants were missing a lot of dog shots, but managed to sink six out of 19 while the Tigers, after making the first basket of the game in the opening eight seconds, couldn't buy a bucket the rest of the quarter, ending with one out of eight chances.

Kalamazoo continued to press in the second quarter and the movement had the Tigers sort of buffaloed. With four minutes gone, although the Giants were still missing a lot of shots, they pushed the score to 20-10, the biggest margin of the game.

But a minute later Bob Brown, an improved center, picked up his fourth personal and was benched. This was the Tigers' cue. Quickly they started getting more of the rebounds and worked the ball in for buckets.

The Tigers outscored the winners 14-10 in the second quarter and had their best shooting, making five out of 11, while the Giants could sink only three out of 16, and pulled to within two points, 23-21 at halftime. The final three Tigers points were made in the last two minutes on foul shots as Kalamazoo tried to get the ball.

Benton Harbor, following the pattern of a strong third quarter, rang up seven points in the first two and a half minutes to take a 28-23 lead before the Giants scored.

The Tigers held the upper hand for the next few minutes, keeping four points up until the half-minute mark. Here Kalamazoo broke through for two buckets and tied the score at the period horn.

Benton Harbor tried somewhat of a stall late in the period that was pierced by the pressing Giants. From the floor both teams did about equally well in the third quarter with the winners hitting on seven for 20 and the Tigers doing slightly better with eight out of 20.

The teams were tied for the first 30 seconds of the fourth quarter and then Benton Harbor shot ahead 44-40, in what looked like the possible turning point.

But the Giants were not napping and scored two baskets in the next minute and again knotted the score, this time 44-44.

Leroy Goff, whose only contribution to the game was made at the foul line, put the Tigers ahead 46-44 with a pair of tosses. This turned out to be the last time Benton Harbor was in front.

Seconds later Paul Chumas sank a two-hander from outcourt to tie the score again and quickly added a free shot about 20 seconds later to put Kalamazoo ahead 47-46.

Then the Giants began to stall. And for the first time this season, Benton Harbor cracked under the pressure. The Giants began stalling at 3-46 and coolly controlled the ball until an anxious Tiger fouled at 2-28.

Bill Holmes, playing an outstanding game for the Giants, sank both free shots and Kalamazoo moved ahead 49-46.

In the remaining two minutes, both teams fought desperately for control of the ball. This resulted in fouling. Chester Walker, whose fourth period mental lapses were costly, swished foul toss for the Tigers with 1:57 to go.

Center Brown came in for one shot and Holmes sank two more free tosses in the next 45 seconds of play and the Giants took a 52-47 lead and started looking out of the corner of their eyes for the regional trophy.

Benton Harbor came through with one foul toss and the final lunge came with a layup by George Peapples with nine seconds to go. Larry Brownell finished off the scoring with a pair of tosses with four seconds left.

Kalamazoo hit four out of 11 shots in the final quarter and the Tigers had three for 10.

Benton Harbor ended with the best shooting mark, heaving in 17 out of 49 for 35 percent while the Maroon Giants had 20 for 66 for slightly better than 30 percent.

At the free throw line, the winners made 14 out of 28 and Benton Harbor had 16 for 31.

Holmes led Kalamazoo with 14 points, getting eight on free shots while Del Beelick, who went out in the first minute of the fourth period on fouls, had 12.

Sophomore Walker led the Tigers with 16 and Hensley followed with 12.

High scoring Leroy Goff, carrying a 17-point tournament average into the game, was held to one basket and ended with seven points.

Benton Harbor ends the season with a 14-4 record and Kalamazoo enters the quarter-finals with a 11-7 mark.

People were jammed into the Civic Center for the contest and several were turned away. Fans were even sitting on the steps all around the balcony and against the walls on the main floor.

'Rules of Road' For Boat Safety

A good boatman must know the "rules of the road" and here are a few simple fundamental ones that apply everywhere.

1. Meeting—When two boats approach each other head-on, each steers to starboard (hears right) so as to pass port side (left) to port side. In the Great Lakes, the vessel going downstream, or down-current, has the right of way over the one which has the current going against it.

2. Overtaking—When one boat is overtaking another, the one doing the overtaking must keep clear of the one being overtaken.

3. Crossing—A motorboat which has another in its so-called "danger zone" (from dead ahead to two points aft the starboard beam—roughly coming from the right) must give way to it by altering course to go under its stern, by slowing down, or if necessary, stopping or reversing.

4. Leaving slips, wharves and piers—Boats coming out of slips into open water, or leaving berths at piers or wharves, have no rights until they are entirely clear. Therefore, they proceed with caution.

5. Sailboats—These boats always have the right of way over power boats except in the case of a sailing boat overtaking one under power. Courtesy also requires that a sailboat while racing will be given wide berth. When passing a sailboat, pass on the leeward side, the side carrying the main boom.

6. Fishing boats—These boats, whether anchored or underway with nets, lines or trawls out, have the right of way. Take it easy when passing a fishing party.

7. Tows—Although under certain circumstances power boats have the right of way over tugs with barges in tow, it is not only good manners but sound seamanship to yield the right of way because a small motorboat is a good deal more maneuverable than a string of barges.

8. Accidents—In cases of collision, capsizing, fire or other serious accident, it is the duty of boatmen to stand by and render all possible assistance.

She described the work of the Seeing Eye Institute at Morris-town, N. J., the only Seeing Eye school in the country, although there are other organizations training lead dogs. She said the value and training of each dog is listed at $1,200, but it costs the blind person only $150 and thereafter is replaced for only $50. Ordinarily, training takes a full month, but in the case of the second Karl it was strictly a case of love at first sight, and it took only two weeks and this allowed for an illness. Six days later, Karl II made her first appearance on the lecture platform.

Miss Clifton urged mothers to bring up their children to do their own thinking and make their own decisions. "Too many children are smothered instead of mothered," she said. "It's more important to teach the children how to think than what to think."

Library Adventures

—Arnold Mulder

Someone who is both a professional economist and a writer should do a book on the financial adventures of authors. With proper research and adequate imagination it might be made a fascinating story.

I have been reading the letterbooks of Sir Walter Scott, the volumes in which he preserved the letters written to him during his highly successful career. That adventure in reading caused me to reread Lockhart's "Life of Scott," usually described as the second greatest biography ever written, the first of course being Boswell's "Life of Johnson." If a book should ever be written about the money transactions of authors, an important chapter would have to be devoted to Scott.

The story is familiar to literary scholars and even to some extent to the general reading public. It bears repeating because of the dramatic size of the sums involved.

Scott, during the first third of the nineteenth century was the world's most popular novelist. The sums he earned with his books were so large that they made even kings and queens and millionaires gasp. His output was even larger than his royalties; he sometimes wrote a whole novel in three weeks. And in addition, to writing more novels than can usually be crowded into a lifetime, he wrote a life of Napoleon in nine volumes, a life of Swift, a commentary on the works of Dryden, more poetry than many poets ever succeed in writing, several series of political papers, and a vast mass of literary criticism. And for every scrap he was paid royally.

But he became a secret partner in the printing firm of James Ballantyne, of Edinburgh, which in turn was tangled up with the publishing house of Constable and Co., the most prosperous house of its day and Scott's publisher.

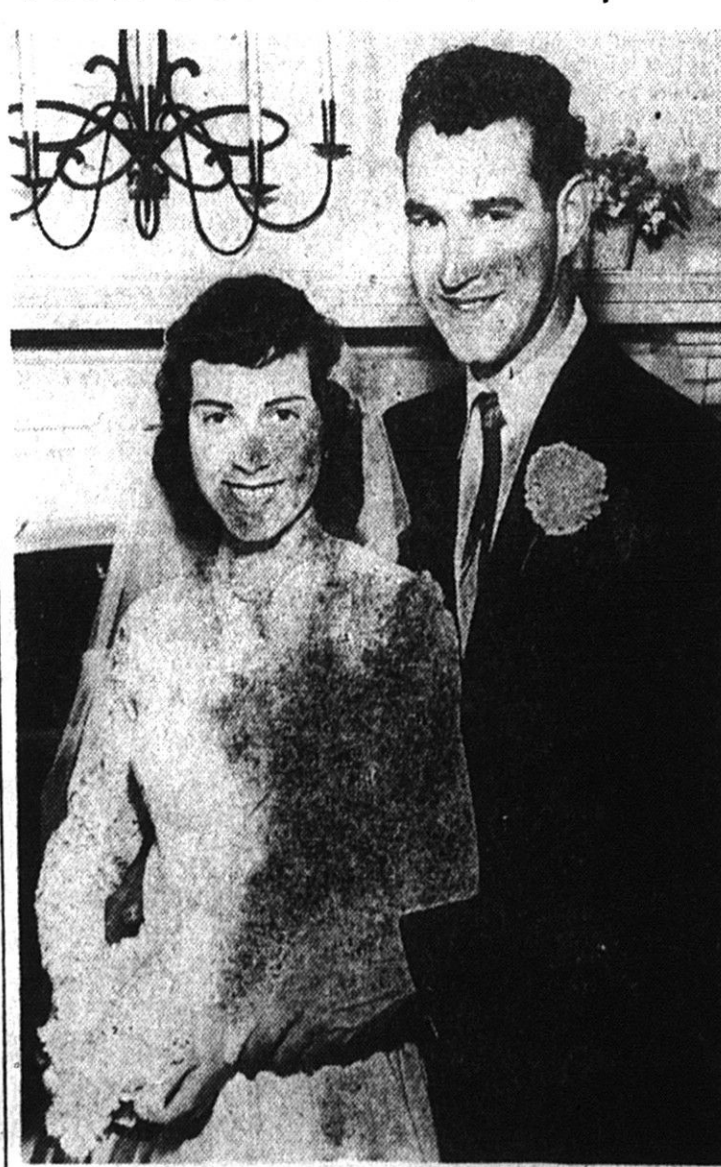

At the very height of Scott's career as a novelist Constable & Co. failed and Scott was personally saddled with a debt of 130,000 pounds — which, in American money at the time, added up to about $550,000. The Constable company went through bankruptcy and paid ten percent of its obligations. Scott could honorably have done the same thing because he was not an active partner in his firm, merely a kind of investor. But he elected to pay in full. He devoted the rest of his life to clearing up the debt and he almost literally wrote himself to death.

When he died five or six years after the crash, he had reduced the debt to 54,000 pounds, solely by writing books. His life insurance of 22,000 pounds, reduced the total to 32,000 pounds. The posthumous royalties on his books wiped out the debt completely within a decade after his death. Although he did not live to see the end, he died satisfied that he had saved his honor.

An incidental episode is even more romantic than the story of this debt of honor. As a youth in his teens Scott had been violently and hopelessly in love with a girl who rejected him and married a nobleman. Scott later married another woman and raised a family of boys and girls. At the time of the crash the girl he had been in love with was dead. Her husband, Scott's successful rival, came to his aid to the amount of 2,000 pounds ($10,000), with which he paid off a creditor who refused to wait and was threatening to force Scott into bankruptcy. It was not a gift — Scott could not have accepted that; the husband became Scott's creditor, waiting for his money like all the other creditors whom Scott paid off in annual dividends.

The story of Walter Scott's adventures in finance is as dramatic as the plot of any novel he ever wrote.

Van Wieren-Honderd Vows Spoken

Mr. and Mrs. Roger V. Van Wieren

The marriage of Miss Ilah Mae Honderd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Honderd of Byron Center, and Roger V. Dr. Hendricksen read the couple ring rites at 7 p.m. in the presence of Mrs. Arnold Weaver who was matron of honor and Mr. Weaver who served as best man.

The bride chose a gown of white chantilly lace and slipper satin. It featured a lace bodice with scalloped portrait neckline, a sheer nylon tulle yoke and long tapered lace sleeves. The full gathered skirt terminated into a long train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion was held in place by a lace crown, trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a white Bible and white carnations.

Mrs. Weaver wore a gown of lavender taffeta and carried a bouquet of yellow carnations.

Following a reception for the immediate families at American Legion Country Club, the couple left on a trip to Florida. They will make their home in Holland.

MEA Director Speaks At Teachers' Meeting

Maurice Carmany, director of public relations of the Michigan Education Association addressed members of the South Ottawa Teachers' Club Wednesday evening at Federal School.

Speaking on the earmarks of education, Mr. Carmany said that wealth alone doesn't guarantee a good school. There must be a desire for good education. He said that no region has a monopoly on good or laggard schools. Schools are better where the staff is active in community organizations.

The school is a reflection of the community and the community is a changing thing. Mr. Carmany challenged the group by saying that only the things that are beyond us are worth striving for. In conclusion he said that teaching is like chasing a butterfly—we chase the butterfly, but must be careful not to take the powder off its wings or it will die.

Earl Teague gave the opening prayer and special music was provided by three students from Federal School. Mariene Mouw played two piano selections, "Whispering, Shifting Sands" and "Moonlight Sonata." Gloria Drost and Karen Atman played two accordion duets, "The American Eagle March" and "Country Gardens."

Herbert Maatman, president, conducted the business meeting. Program arrangements were made by the Federal Teachers. A social hour followed and refreshments were served by the entertaining school.
