Police, administration promise crackdown

by Scott Kaukonen & Jim Monnett

The Holland Police, with the cooperation of the Hope College administration, has taken a no-tolerance approach for cracking down on off-campus parties which are uncontrolled. The action is in response to increasing complaints and petitions from neighborhood residents requesting more stringent enforcement of the law. Neighbors have cited noise, trespassing, vandalism, and urinating on lawns as well as broken windows resulting from thrown bottles.

Holland Chief of Police Charles Lindstrom stated that they felt it was "in the best interest of the students to know the laws." He later said the police will be conducting "undercover monitoring of parties to determine violations of the law such as underage drinking and illegal sales of intoxicants (selling cups or charging admission is a felony if intoxicating beverages are served)."

The letter also said "authorities will photograph party scenes for court evidence and the college's information, to identify persons participating illegally for follow-up prosecution." It noted that additional police officers will be on duty in the neighborhoods around the college.

Illegal parking and reckless drug driving offenses will be dealt with immediately. According to the letter, "those in attendance or frequenting a place of illegal activities or illegal sales are also subject to prosecution."

Not only are Hope students who violate the law liable for prosecution from the city attorney, but they may also expect action from the college.

Frost said, "Hope will be informed (by the police). I will meet with the students. Hope has jurisdiction. From the student handbook, Hope has the right to impose sanctions up and above local laws."

Vice President of Student Life and Admissions, James Bekkering explained Hope's position, "We want to be as consistent as possible and still take into account individual circumstances."

The new policy is the result of a series of meetings between Chief Lindstrom, Bekkering and Frost in an attempt to act in the best interest of the student body and the Holland community.

A letter Chief Lindstrom sent to all off-campus student residents said, "The past policy of the Holland Police Department has been to provide a warning and attempt to quiet things down...These policies have not worked."

Chief Lindstrom said, "If a party is going on and there are more people in the building than it is made to hold or if it (the party) is spreading around the neighborhood," the police will take action to break it up. The police's aim is to prevent the "ya'U come" practises which are of the nature which leads to problems versus the smaller, invited list parties.

According to Bekkering, "Last year was a time of trying to assess the problem. The crux of the matter is to be sensitive to the rights of privacy, quiet and order for all members of a given neighborhood."

Five hundred and ninety-five students lived off-campus last year and Bekkering believes that no more than twenty were the causes of the problems.

"It's disappointing," Bekkering said, "that so few students stain the reputation of the rest of the student body in the eyes of the community."

Frost, commenting on Hope's position said, "Partying and interaction socially are important, but doing it legally and responsibly is equally important...They (Hope students) must be held responsible for irresponsible actions."

Van Zoeren renovation nears completion

by Carrie Maples
News Editor

In recent months, as the dust settled on the west side of campus, a new, unique set of buildings emerged.

In 1984 work began on the Van Wylen Library building. In the summer of 1988 the facility on Van Zoeren Hall and VanderWerf Hall was started. Along with the renovation, plans were made by Design Plus of Grand Rapids to link the three buildings for easier access. Much care was taken in the design to preserve the avant-garde style of the buildings, designed in the early 1960s by Ralph R. Calder of Detroit, and yet lend continuity of line and unity to the style of the three buildings.

The renovations were also practical, providing increased office, classroom and laboratory space as well as computer facilities and storage space. Currently, the first floor of Van Zoeren houses the offices of the economics and business administration department and computer science department until they can return to VanderWerf in January 1990. There are also several labs, including a computer-aided engineering lab, which is according to Peter Jolivette, chairperson of the physics department, the first lab space devoted to engineering.

On Van Zoeren's second floor are the new offices of the education department and the temporary offices of the math and physics departments, which will be moving to VanderWerf in January. The sociology and social work departments and the Academic Support Center will at that time move to Van Zoeren from their respective offices in the basements of Graves Hall and the Chapel.

The upper level also includes a large workroom, an experimental classroom with adjoining observation rooms and classrooms. Lamont Dirks, chairperson of the education department, said, "We're excited about having some classrooms in the same building as our offices. No longer do we need little shopping carts for carrying our teaching materials."

The education staff moved in June from the brick house on Van Raalte Commons, their home since Van Raalte Hall burned in 1987.

The second floor also has the access to Van Wylen Library, which makes things more convenient for everyone. The construction wasn't completely without problems, though. Sophomore Rebekah O'Shensky, a research assistant in the Van Wylen Library continued on page 3.
NSF awards bio, chem departments grant

by Kristin Michel
Staff Writer

The biology and chemistry departments have been jointly awarded a $20,000 grant from the National Science Foundation (NSF). The purpose of this grant is to create a new integrated laboratory program in biochemistry and molecular biology.

The co-principal investigators for this grant, Dr. Rodney Boyer, professor of chemistry, and Dr. Anthony Nieuwkoop, assistant professor of biology are currently seeking approval to begin a course in the spring semester which would concentrate on this integrated laboratory program.

Such a course will enable students to be trained in the latest techniques of biochemistry and molecular biology by learning such skills as protein purification, enzyme kinetics, DNA analysis and mutagenesis. Because of the high level of advanced chemistry and molecular biology coursework involved with these procedures, this course will be open primarily to junior or senior chemistry or biology majors who plan to go on to graduate school for the study of molecular biology or biochemistry.

The $20,000 NSF grant is being equally matched by Hope College, so the total amount of money set up for this program is $40,000. This money will be used to purchase such equipment as a high-speed refrigerated centrifuge, gel electrophoresis equipment, a bacteriological incubator and a protein detection system.

Hope has in the past had a strong biochemistry program. This grant enables the science departments to build upon the biochemistry program with molecular biology and show how the two relate.

"Biology and chemistry are just becoming so close together and so integrated that a course like this is an obvious kind of connection to make," said Dr. Boyer.

This grant contributes to a great deal of advancement in the areas of biochemistry and molecular biology and puts the programs at Hope more on the level of a large state school.

One of the future goals of this program is to someday convert the former science library on the second floor of Peale Science Center into an area of laboratories among which would be one specifically designed for molecular biology and biochemistry.

Science departments receive over $600,000

by Pamela Lundberg
Staff Writer

Thanks to grants from the government and many private institutions, Hope College's science departments have received over $600,000 for equipment and research projects. During last year Dr. Rodney F. Boyer of the Chemistry Department, Dr. Anthony J. Nieuwkoop of the Biology Department and other faculty members applied for and received approximately fifteen grants. These grants will be used to fund many research programs.

One research project involves the purchasing of a $325,000 piece of equipment called a nuclear magnetic resonance spectrometer (NMR). Boyer said students and faculty would be trained to use this piece of equipment so that they can identify the structures of chemical compounds.

The rest of the grant monies would be used to purchase chemicals, other instruments, fund student stipends and generally cover the costs of many small individual projects of the faculty.

Nieuwkoop stated that although department chairpersons organize the application process for these grants, much of the faculty participates. Usually agencies offering money for scientific purposes will send information to Hope College. Faculty members then send those agencies grant proposals. This is not a guarantee of acceptance, however, agreed Boyer and Nieuwkoop. Only about twenty-five percent of all grants applied for are received by Hope College. If there is a special need for a particular piece of equipment or money for research, the faculty sends grant proposals to the government and many other private institutions.

Boyer said that one problem is that grants do not last forever. A grant for an instrument is good only for that particular piece of equipment, lasts only as long as the equipment lasts. Most other grants are reapplied for every two or three years.

Frost: 'I'm doing a lot of learning'

by Jim Monnett
co-editor

The new dean for Student Development Services and Admissions, Richard Frost, joined Hope College's administration in late July.

Frost came to Hope from the University of California - Santa Barbara where he had served as Associate Director of Housing. At Hope Frost is responsible for four general areas including residential life, student activities, health services and multicultural life.

Overall, Frost describes his responsibilities as "any general concern that the institution feels will impact the students."

"I'm here to serve students as a group of people," Frost said.

Since arriving Frost said he has been trying to familiarize himself with Hope's system. He has spent most of the time learning and meeting students.

"This initial period of time, I'm doing a lot of learning," Frost said.

During last week's orientation, he said he spent a lot of time talking to the freshmen and their parents. He also has been meeting with the student leaders like Student Congress President Jonathon Hoffman.

Frost said one of his hopes is that students would come speak to him about a policy or decision that he might make.

"I'm always open to sitting down and talking about it," Frost said. "Some (decisions) may change and some won't."

About his goals at Hope, Frost said it was too early to speculate. He thought he needed to get better acquainted with Hope before he should develop long range goals.

Commenting on the selection process, Frost said there were three questions that addressed what a Christian liberal arts institution should be and how that would affect his methods if he worked at one.

"Being a strong Christian, my life is guided by my Christian conviction and beliefs," Frost said.

He said he looked forward to "being able to bring together (his) personal and professional convictions, beliefs and commitments" at a Christian liberal arts college like Hope.

Overall Frost said, "My sense is Hope's a good place to be."

Frost has a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science and Business from Luther College, and a Masters in Student Personnel from Michigan State University. He is presently finishing his doctorate from MSU in Higher Education with a concentration in Individual Psychology and Management.

Administration adds new staff

(HPF) - Several staff adjustments and changes have occurred while students were away on summer break.

Anita Baker-Gras, formerly in residential life at Hope, has taken the position of Director of Student Activities. This position was vacated by Bruce King, who took a job in minority affairs at Lake Forest College.

Taking over the residential life (housing) position is Derek Emerson, a former resident director at Kollen Hall.

Also joining the Student Development staff are Administrative Assistant Laurie Brock, formerly of the Administration's Office, and Secretary Barbara Kilbry.

Other staff members have taken new responsibilities and thus new titles over the summer. James Bekkering is now Vice-President for Admissions and Student Life. Elton Bruns, previously serving as Dean for Arts and Humanities, is acting provost while Jacob Nyenhuis is on sabbatical. Also, Jon Huiskes is now Registrar and Dean of Academic Services.

National fraternity drops pledging

(CPS) - The 90 Zeta Beta Tau fraternity chapters around the country will junk their pledging programs this fall, marking the first official adoption of radical National Interfraternity Council (NIC) proposal that all frats find new ways to bring in new members.

ZBT's Supreme Council ordered its member chapters in August not to hold their traditional "pledge weeks" this school year, and to replace them with less physical programs stressing brotherhood and service.

"We've been trying for at least 25 years to stop hazing, and all of our efforts have failed. The only way to stop it is to stop hazing," said Ronald Taylor, ZBT's national vice president.

Taylor said no single hazing incident prompted the move, although ZBT chapters have been involved in controversial parties at the universities of Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, and in incidents involving strippers in recent years. Both incidents drew disciplinary action from officials.

"We've had, as have other organizations, a continuation of hazing incidents. None life-threatening or severe, but we worry about it," said fraternity Executive Director James E. Greer, Jr.

A tragic, seemingly unstoppable series of deaths, injuries, fights and racial incidents involving pledges to various fraternities at Rutgers University and at the universities of Lowell, Tennessee, Texas and California at Santa Barbara, among many others, led a growing number of states and campuses to restrict or outlaw hazing.

Dozens of states, including Texas, Missouri and Pennsylvania, have made hazing a crime in recent years.

Colby, Amherst, Gettysburg, Middlebury and Castleton State colleges all have banned fraternities and sororities.

In part to keep more schools from abolishing fraternities, the NIC convention in Burlingame, Calif., last December suggested all Greek groups find "alternatives to the pledging process."

ZBT was the first to adopt one.

Although initial reaction among fraternity members was negative, many of them say they're willing to try.

"My first reaction was a sense of betrayal from the national (ZBT council). It didn't seem fair," said Danny Parde, a ZBT from San Diego State University.

"Now after reading the program, I'm all for it," added Danny Seigal, president of Syracuse University's ZBT chapter, "Eventually all national fraternities will go this way."

"In a few years no one will know what pledging is because it will have ended. That's the only way fraternities will survive in to the 21st Century," he said.

Under the program, pledges will become brothers 72 hours after receiving a bid from the fraternity. Then they enter an ongoing educational program. In addition, there will be a semi-annual brotherhood review to make sure members are living up to requirements.

"You can't just pay your dues and be a brother," Seigal said.

Brothers generally don't think dropping pledge will keep prospective members away. "A lot of high-quality young men will be interested (in joining) that previously were not because of all the malarkey of pledge week," Taylor said.

Fun-seekers gathered in Maas Auditorium for the Emersonian and SIB-sponsored dance last Friday night. This dance was the first in a series of greek dances for this semester.

Van Zoeren renovations

Archives, said, "It caused a lot of problems. We had water leaks on the ceilings, holes in the ceiling and lots of dust, none of which were good for the collections."

Most of the work to be done on Van Zoeren has been completed.

Tom Remer, director of Public Relations, commented, "They've done an amazing job of staying on schedule."

Work is continuing inside the building.

As a whole, the "new" Van Zoeren will provide the space for the following: computer labs and a lounge, giving students more rooms.

The parking lot behind Van Zoeren and VanderWerf will probably be paved sometime this week; but the outdoor landscaping may have to wait until spring.

There was a need for more than one elevator for moving lab equipment.

"The air conditioning is a nice touch. I like it," said Junior Todd Adams, also a physics major, commented on the new classrooms and said, "the air conditioning is a real plus."

Sophomore Tricia Dangel, 392-6248, a pre-med major, said, "It's very modern and soothing. The air conditioning is a nice touch. I like it."

Hope parties need focus

Once again we are welcomed back to Hope College with news of new policies. This year the Holland Police in conjunction with the Hope Administration and Public Safety will be cracking down on illegal activity at off-campus parties. One's first response might be anger about restrictions on one's freedom. A second response, though, might be to look past the policies at the possible causes.

James Bekkering, the Vice President for Admissions and Student Life, said the policies are in response to complaints from those permanent residents of Holland who live near these off-campus parties. It seems that some intoxicated Hope students use their neighbors' lawns and bushes for urinating, vomiting and the discarding of empty beer bottles. There have even been complaints of beer bottles being thrown at windows.

It's hard to think of any way such behavior enhances one's property. Why abuse someone's property? Most people would think twice about vomiting in the front bushes of one's own home. But some Hope students are doing it to their neighbors here. And speaking as other Hope students, the anchor is appalled.

There is nothing funny about throwing beer bottles at windows or vomiting on someone's property. Why this behavior? Is it because the line at the bar is too long? No, maybe the problem lies in the parties themselves. Hope parties are known for their beer consumption. They have no other purpose. At other schools there is dancing or relaxing bull sessions occurring. Getting drunk is not the focus. At many of Hope's off-campus parties there is nothing else to do but get drunk. A few weeks of this and even getting drunk loses its appeal. It's then that people start looking for other forms of amusement. If, of course, throwing up on a lawn can be considered amusement.

It's hard to drink as much beer while urinating as just standing around chugging. The crowd at Parrot's has a good time. Afterward you don't see the dance floor. Of course, there is a lot of drinking, but it is not the only activity.

Next to impossible that is, if the neighbors do not have to call the police for abuse of their property or loud noise.

One look at Parrot's (the old Arthur's) on College Night shows a packed dance floor. Of course, there is a lot of drinking, but it is not the only activity. SLIP OF THE MIND

Being bugged

On my return to Hope, I was looking forward to spending my third year with my friends...the squirrels. During the summer I dreamed of lounging under in the Pinegrove with my old furry friends. Hope's squirrels seem to personify the love and joy that is Hope College. Unfortunately, my plans were sumbarined by the scourge of creation.

Black flies.

They are everywhere. I love squirrels, but what's to love about flies? Squirrels are furry, fun and friendly. Flies are ugly, irksome and irritating. There is nothing redeeming about flies. I'm sure they serve some important function, like food for frogs, but at Hope all they do is live up to their namesake: bugs. They bug me (grrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrr

Student Congress needs you

Dear Editor,

We, as the Student Congress Cabinet, would like to take this opportunity to inform your readers about the exciting year ahead for Student Congress. With the elections less than two weeks away, we are hopeful this letter will encourage many good candidates to run for the 1989-1990 Student Congress.

Student Congress is the governing body of the students. It serves as a unifying voice of the students of Hope College. Student Congress consists of three officers and twenty-four representatives. The officers, known as the Cabinet, are elected each spring to serve the following year. Serving in this year's Cabinet, are Jonathan Hoffman as President, Brad Votava as Vice President and Andrew Stewart as Comptroller.

The 24 representatives are elected every September for a term of one school year and each member represents their residence hall or type of living arrangement. The number of districts is in proportion to the number of residents in various types of housing both on- and off-campus. For example, Kollen Hall has three representatives and four people will represent students living in cottages. Lichty Hall and Van Vleck Hall share one seat on Congress. Check the advertisement in the back of this paper to see what district you are residing in and how many seats are available in your district.

Last year's Student Congress had one of their most successful years of governing. Some of their major accomplishments included a revised constitution, an increase in the activity fee and an all-new appropriations committee charter to guide the budgeting process.

Being a member of Student Congress does take time. There are weekly meetings that usually contain lively debate on such topics as campus safety to lighter topics as a VCR rental outlet for students. Also, each representative will sit on two or three standing boards and committees of the college. These official Hope College committees are made up of administration, faculty and Student Congress representatives. Depending on the committee or board (there are 16), it could be possible to debate and vote on such issues as a revised core curriculum, housing issues or who will be next year's General Manager of WTHS.

The procedure of running for Student Congress office is simple. First, file for office, pick up a petition in front of the Student Congress office across from WTHS. Second, get 25 signatures from your constituents and turn (file) your petition back to the Student Congress office by Mon-

Forensics Association organizes

Dear Editor,

On August 31, the Hope College Forensics Association held its introductory organizational meeting. All persons interested in joining the association were invited to attend and gain more information about the structure and nature of forensics at Hope College.

The meeting served to introduce potential members to the various types of events which forensics covers including debate, speech and interpretation. Also discussed was Pi Kappa Delta, a national collegiate speech fraternity, which all Hope College Forensics Association members may become eligible for. The remaining portion of the meeting served as an open forum for any questions which potential members might have. All present were given a schedule of possible debate and event meets. Anyone who may have an interest in forensics is asked to contact Professor Sandra Alpeach with the Communications Department (Lubbers 336, 7894).

Because Little Vera is a Russian film, I suppose that Vera must be analyzed as a political statement, a startling indication of just how open Gorbachev's new Russian society actually is.

But Little Vera is so funny, so abrasive and so true that it transcends newsworthiness. It stands on its own.

Vera, played with remarkable comic authority by Natalya Negoda, is not doomy enough to be classified as seriously alienated. Underneath the punk hair style that her parents have learned not to criticize, she's bright, quick & commonsensical, adrift in a world where everyone else appears to be traveling a set course. Vera is just out of school about to take a job with the telephone company.

In the meantime, she waits around. She shares a cramped, working-class apartment with her father, who is a decent sort until he drinks (when he turns into a slob), & her mother, a once pretty woman who works too hard at her job & spends her exhausted hours off fretting.

Her parents panic when Vera acknowledges she's having an affair with a young student named Sergei.

Sergei represents sophistication to Vera. He is laid back & completely sure of himself. When Sergei casually suggests that maybe he and Vera should marry, her parents immediately insist that he move in with them, which is when the trouble really starts.

Little Vera is less critical & daring than honest & frank. More important, it doesn't simplify or attempt to explain the contradictory natures of the characters. They're not exactly Chekovian, but they are complex, sometimes self-deluding & almost always, at some point, engagingly comic.

Little Vera is not rated but contains nudity, sex, mature themes, & language. It is in Russian with subtitles.

Little Vera will be playing September 8th through the 14th with shows nightly at 7:00 & 9:20. Saturday matinees will be at 1:00 & 3:20.

Set partly in picturesque turn-of-the-century Florence and partly in the gorgeous English countryside, A Room with a View is a witty and strikingly faithful adaption of the novel by E.M. Forster ("A Passage to India"). Exquisitely photographed, intelligent, romantic, and satirical, accompanied by some of Puccini's most beautiful music, and acted to perfection, A Room with a View can only be described as a very special treat. The film is the story of Lucy Honeychurch, a young Englishwoman who travels to Italy in 1907, falls in love, and is eventually liberated from the mores and conventions of Victorian England. The characters include Miss Honeychurch, who spends most of the movie lying to herself about her love for George Emerson; her spinster cousin and chaperone, the martyred Charlotte Bartlett; and her insufferably snobbish suitor Cecil Vyse.

A Room with a View is not rated but contains nudity. It will be playing September 15-21 with shows nightly at 7:00 and 9:25. In his nightmares, really. Along with the flaming torches he sends lurching into a mine, he is haunted by the repeated sight of a man falling off the scaffolding of a pristine white church. An eerie silence marks the first black and white shots of dark, hooded figures on the icebound landscape of an isolated Cornish village in England's northwest. The rumors have spread about the perilous killing off the people of Europe. When a sailboat with pathetic, infected refugees tries to pull into their cove, the terrified villagers beat them off and turn to the boy for guidance. They grasp at his hallucinations as a last straw for salvation. As the boy, his brother, and four other miners begin to dig their way to the opposite end of the world, the film takes on a copperish hue and then turns to color. Burrowing up out of the earth, the travelers are mesmerized by the sight of a thousand pinpricks of color lighting up the night sky of Aukland which the boy recognizes as the city in his dreams. The film is set out to complete their quest by dawn. Meanwhile, in an apocalyptic race against time, the film establishes the contrast between the sexual experience of modern times and uprooting images. The English speed of Puccini's music is symbolized by the way a miner is plowed into the front of a motive rushing through the night. The faces and performances of each are bringing a strong sense of reality into fantasy. It is a feat of imagination that shames the usual run of predictable science-fiction movie. The Celtic music and track adds an inspirational resonance to this powerful film. The Navigator: An Odyssey Across Time is rated PG due to sheer intensity. The film will be playing October 20th through the 26th with shows nightly at 7:00 & 9:25. Saturday matinees will be at 1, 3, & 5. Same no passes can be used for this film.

HANUSSEN

Klaus Schneider is an Austrian sergeant and clairvoyant whose gifts first attract moderate acclaim during his recuperation from fighting in WW I. In the hospital he forms friendships with two people who will help to shape his future: Jewish psychologist Bettelheim and Nowotny, an ambitious army buddy who decides to expose Schneider's talents for a tidy sum. Nowotny accompanies Schneider (now dubbed with the stage name Hanussen) on a tour of Vienna and Berlin, where the seer's phenomenal predictions bring him into contact with the decadent post-war elite. Despite his apolitical stance, Hanussen's prophesies of Hitler's rise to power implicate him with the Nazis and threaten his friendships and precarious sense of stability. As Hanussen, Klaus Maria Brandauer's (continued on last page)

Chocolat recalls the last years of French West African colonialism through the memory of a young white woman, who, in the late 1950s, grew up as the daughter of a district officer in Cameroon. Its view of black Africa is limited, but the entire film is of such clarity and authenticity of feeling that it doesn’t deny the existence of other truths.

France (the name of the young, inquisitive girl which the film revolves around) lives with her parents in a large plain bungalow in the parched bush country, surrounded by black servants who are faceless except for the boy Protee. Because France has no friends, Protee becomes, by default, her closest companion, ally, and friend.

Chocolat is about the inevitable end of that friendship. It’s also about France’s parents, their friends, and the curious people who pass through their lives and become, because of the isolation, their intimates, at least for a little while.

I liked Chocolat very much when I first saw it at last year’s Cannes Film Festival. Now I think it is some kind of miniature classic. The film is rated PG-13 due to nudity. It is in French with subtitles. Chocolat will be playing September 22nd through the 28th with shows at 7:00 and 9:15 nightly.

The Indigo Girls album blends past, present, future

by Geoffrey L. Penrose
Staff Writer

Through the depths of the lethargic bowels of today's music, a new duo has risen to bring us some intellectually, musically and seemingly honest tunes.

Sharp and slightly bitter, the Indigo Girls have quietly come forward with a new album on the Epic label which is distinctly traditional.

It is traditional because with acoustic guitars and sweetly soaring voices, Emily Saliers and Amy Ray quickly remind one of Joni Mitchell, and their harmonies, especially in their countermelodies, remind one of Simon and Garfunkel or Crosby, Stills and Nash.

Although they are smart students of the older school, the similarities end with the techniques and sounds, for these women pick guitar better than Joni Mitchell ever did, and their harmonies are never overdone, as Crosby, Stills and Nash's sometimes were and are. Further, although they know the past, they also have ties with the present and future. They have gleaned the best progressive to offer also. Their instrumentation and attitude are traditional, but their chord progressions and playing styles definitely have the ring of today.

One song in particular, "Kid Fears," is reminiscent of some of The Smith's work in that it is a powerful ballad with just enough dissonance, both lyrically and musically, to give it a sinister and troubling edge.

Therefore, The Indigo Girls, though a synthesis of the best of two generations of acoustic guitar, offer rich and pleasing sound with just enough snap and verve to make it exciting.

Lyrical content, The Indigo Girls are also fresh. Through their words, it becomes clear that these women have seen some uncertain times of personal wonderment and severe doubts concerning things in general. Their current hit, "Closer To Fine," is an expression of those doubts and a brief history of their search for answers.

They state their belief that "There's more than one answer to the questions pointing me; In a crooked line." Also, they express a certain distaste for the college experience in the line: "I spent four years prostrate to the higher mind, got my paper; And I was free."

Their last song, "History of Us," appears to be a resolution of some of their questions. It is a poem and song in a carpe diem vein which asserts that the answers to the questions may appear if we "Love while these moments are still called today; Take part in the pain of this passion play."

It also should be mentioned that The Indigo Girls have found some of their needed answers in religion. In their song "Secure Yourself" they tell us "Secure yourself to heaven; Hold on tight, the night has come; Fasten up your earthly burdens; you have just begun." In the voices of such angels, those lines almost seem plausible.

The one flaw in this album is quite easily identifiable. It is the song "Tried to be True." On this song, which could have been good, that band from Georgia which insists upon running its meddling hands all over any new band from Georgia, R.E.M., plays mundane back up while The Indigo Girls try to rise above it. They almost succeed, but not enough to avoid having the song seem sadly out of place.

"Tried to be True" aside, this is a solidly satisfying album. It wants to be heard; it should be heard. On a four star scale, it gets a Neptune.

Our Town' pleases audience

Hope summer repertory theater closes

by A.C. Vanderkolk
Staff Writer

Friday night's performance of "Our Town" by the Hope Summer Repertory Theatre proved once again that good theater is not exclusive to big cities and bigger budgets.

The stage and props were simple, enabling the audience to concentrate on the performers and the characters they portrayed. The costumes show sincere attention to detail and helped establish the setting, turn of the century Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, population 1000+.

The play itself, written by Thornton Wilder, centers on two families, the Gibbs and the Webb, and follows them through two generations, testifying to their loves, lives and deaths.

It is performed in three acts. The first shows an average day when the children were still children. The second covers George Gibbs' and Emily Webb's wedding. The third and final act is the most, about meeting, but makes the play the classic it is.

Emily dies in childbirth. In this act we experience the juxtaposition of life, death and life after death. And, as in most good drama, the play ends with questions hopefully causing the audience to reflect on what they've seen, heard and felt.

Robert O. Berdahl and Elizabeth Mestnik playing George and Emily, really brought the scene at the soda counter to life. Noshie Blaisdell was great as the stage manager, frequently providing the audience with a chuckle or two. And deserving special notice was Hope College Math Professor Frank Sherburne as his portrayal of Professor Willard was very convincing.

Hope Summer Repertory Theatre's season closed Saturday night. The play list this summer included "Little Shop of Horrors," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Anything Goes," to name a few.

The one flaw in this album is quite easily identifiable. It is the song "Tried to be True." On this song, which could have been good, that band from Georgia which insists upon running its meddling hands all over any new band from Georgia, R.E.M., plays mundane back up while The Indigo Girls try to rise above it. They almost succeed, but not enough to avoid having the song seem sadly out of place.

Ligia Rodri guez joins languages department

by Janet Owen
anchor staff writer

Ligia Rodriguez joined the Classical and Foreign Language Department to teach Spanish classes. She came to Hope to get away from the big city atmosphere of New York City where she had to live far from campus. Here at Hope she hopes to be able to get acquainted with individual students.

Rodriguez was born in Columbia, South America where she lived until 1975 when she came to New York to attend college at City University. She is unmarried and has no children. Most of her family is in New York or Columbia, but she says she is not lonely because she has "lots of nice friends" at Hope. She met some of her friends at the teaching workshop Hope holds every year for new faculty.

When not teaching, Rodriguez is working on her doctoral dissertation on sixteenth century Spanish literature and history for City University of New York. She enjoys reading, dancing and listening to jazz and classical music. She also likes to go the theater and to concerts and is looking forward to attending many of the Hope College theater productions and concerts.

When asked what she likes most about Hope, Rodriguez replied, "the students." She said they are eager to learn, interested and intelligent. She is especially impressed that so many students are taking Spanish because they are interested in it, and not just because it is a college requirement to take two semesters of a language.

Rodriguez emphasized that she is very happy here at Hope, despite an attack by a map in class recently, saying, "The campus is nice and the students are sweet."

Rodriguez earned her Bachelors and Masters degrees in Spanish from City University of New York, where she also did some teaching. She has also taught at Sara Lawrence College in Bronxville as well as several community colleges.

Bailey serves comedy for Labor Day picnic

"Just like your next door neighbor, only funnier," is how Michael Bailey describes himself.

On Labor Day the semi-famous comedian came to Hope College to entertain during the Student Activities Committee's picnic in the Pinegrove.

Bailey does his boisterous, stand-up routine throughout the country at many comedy clubs. He is just beginning to tour college campuses and would like to do more college shows.

Originally from Dayton, Ohio, Bailey now lives in Tempe, Arizona with his wife and daughter. He is twenty-nine years old and a graduate of Eastern Michigan University.

When not entertaining an audience, he is working on a play and a video documentary on "road commentary."

Even though Bailey has a degree in teaching, he decided to become a comedian when he was still a student at the University of Arizona. He is humorous without being offensive and is humorous without being offensive.

Football team strives for more

by Bill Meengs
Sports Editor

After a less than spectacular 1988 campaign, which saw the Hope College football team compile a 1-7-1 overall mark, the Flying Dutchmen hope for a return to the form that has made Head Coach Ray Smith one of the winningest active Division III coaches.

Hope should be helped in their efforts by a defense that returns seven starters from last year’s group. Last season, Hope’s defense gave up only 167 points; just six more than the 1987 squad which won a conference championship and advanced to postseason play. Hope’s defense allowed the team to stay close in several games, and in the process of losing seven games last year were by an average of only six points.

Anchoring the Hope defense for 1989 will be First Team, All-MIAA senior co-captain Kurt Friedrichsen of Hamilton and early season starter Jeff Brown of Muskegon are back for the ’89 season.

If Hope is to improve upon last year’s record, they will have to improve their offense, which returns just five starters.

The Dutchmen backfield will return two-year starting fullback Mike Tomorasky of Muskegon and wingback Jeff Schorfharr, a junior from Coldwater.

The quarterback race appears to be between Eric Elliott, a junior from Hudsonville, and Jeff Brown, a sophomore from Greenville.

Hope brings back two starters from the offensive line: Junior Mike Balkema of Kalamazoo and senior George Stamas of Grand Rapids.

Ken Kimes of Scottville is the only returnee for the receiving corps, but the kicking game retains its major players for 1989. Juniors Duy Dang of Tecumseh and Chris Howe of Mason will again handle kicking and punting duties respectively. Also back for 1989 are return men Mark Van Wieren, a sophomore from Holland, and Schorfharr.

Hope has been picked to finish fourth in the conference by the College Football Preview. It’s the lowest the Dutchmen have been picked in a number of years. The publication lists Albia as it’s preseason favorite, followed by Alma, Adrian, Hope, Olivet and Kalamazoo.

Hope opens it’s season Saturday, Sept. 9, against DePauw.

The Dutchmen hope for a return to the form that has made Head Coach Ray Smith one of the winningest active Division III coaches.

A graceful exit

ON THIN ICE

BILL MEENGS

You may be wondering where my previous sports column “In the Crease” is this year. Well, it has been retired. It was fun while it lasted, but, like Chris Evert, I know when my time has come.

You see “Crease” was starting to sound the same every week, and worst of all, it was starting to sound like Joe Falls. This year I want to try some new ideas in this space, and maybe stand on the edge for awhile. Hence the name “On Thin Ice.” If nothing else, it also ties into Hockey which is a bonus.

Now I’ve said this before, but I’ll say it again, I don’t expect you to agree with everything in this column. It’s just my opinions, so if you see something that don’t agree with let me know. It’s the only way I can tell if I’m doing my job or not. I will try to make this column worthwhile - if not for reading at least for practicing waste basket basketball.

Let’s get down to business. Let’s talk U.S. Open. As an avid tennis player, I would watch the Open anyway, but I’m watching this year’s Open with added interest since Chris Evert has said it will be her last.

Chris is getting out of tennis while she is still relatively close to the top of her game. She has said she just doesn’t have the patience to stay out on a court for hours with a girl who is idol age and hits nothing but moon balls. One can’t blame her either. She’s given the best years of her life to tennis, and always been an asset to her sport.

Chris says she wants to spend more time with her husband Andy Mill and start a family. And why should we stop her? We’ve enjoyed her on the tennis courts since she burst on the scene in 1971 as a sixteen year old at the U.S. Open. It’s time we let her go on with the rest of her life.

Sure she could probably be another Jimmy Connors, who incredibly is still one of the best in tennis at age thirty-seven. She could adjust her game and play for fun, but could we really sit back and watch an uncompetitive Evert? I don’t think so.

While I don’t think Evert can win this year’s Open (Steffi Graf has a lock on this one), I can still hope. But when one looks at Evert’s career, a win at this year’s Open would simply be icing on the cake. To give you some idea of how phenomenally successful Evert has been she must be compared to Connors. Connors is far and away the all time leader in tournament victories on the men’s tour and Chris has won fifty more tournaments than he has. So does one more really matter? Sure it would be nice, but Chris deserves our respect and adoration regardless.

Chris’ competitive spirit and good sportsmanship will be sorely missed, but we’ll all remember her memories of her tense, and her great rivalry with Martina Navratilova. Steffi Graf may rule now, but women’s tennis all-time queen is Chris Evert. An athlete of this stature comes around once in many years. And we should be thankful we were able to enjoy Chris’ outstanding career.

And I’ll be here again next week skating “On Thin Ice.”
Women's soccer goes varsity

by Bill Meengs
sports editor

Hope College's women's soccer team will compete this season with varsity status for the first time.

After six years as a club sport, the team was granted varsity status last spring as women's soccer became an official Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association sport.

After posting a 3-8 mark last fall, the Flying Dutch will make their assault on the MIAA with eleven returning players.

First year coach Stain Slette said, "I can't say we're starting completely from scratch because many of the girls have been in the club for several years."

Hope will return junior Lynn Schopp of Carmel, Indiana, who scored all four of her goals in a 4-0 win over Adrian College last year. The list of freshmen includes Schopp's former teammate Julie Akin of Indianapolis who was a standout high school player.

Slette said his squad will play a team oriented style, "I hope to make it as much of a team sport as possible, which is a very European way of playing soccer. That's as opposed to South America, where often those countries will have one or two star players who, whenever they get the ball, go all the way and take a shot."

Hope opens the season Sept. 9 against Adrian at 2 p.m. at Buys Athletic Fields.

Slette prepares for season

The new women's soccer coach, Stein Slette, had only good hopes for this first season as a league sport in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Although Slette feels "it is very hard to predict" just how it will go because of the lack of information on other new teams. He does think that Calvin and Kalamazoo will be good competition.

For Slette, this is the year to start building up the women's soccer team, developing a style of their own, and improving on last year's finish. "With a couple of good players from last year," Slette said, "Plus the new freshman, I'm hoping we're going to have at least a reasonable season."

Slette recently graduated Hope College in 1987. Even before he attended Hope College he was an exchange student, coming from his home in Oslo, Norway, to Holland High School.

Last year Slette worked part-time in the Physical Education Department teaching recreation and activity classes and heading the Hope Run-Bike-Swim even. He is now also working as a soccer coach and Resident Director with his wife Jane for Scott Hall. Next year he plans to move on to graduate school at the University of Utah.
ELECTIONS FOR STUDENT CONGRESS REPRESENTATIVES
