Parties attract police attention

DANA LAMERS
infocus editor

The Holland Police Department and Hope students are raising concerns due to the rise in off-campus party "busts" so far this fall.

Although Hope's campus is dry, students are attempting to get around campus regulations by holding parties in off-campus housing. But as these students are finding out they are not always able to get around city, state, and federal regulations.

The party houses these events are held at are located close enough to be in walking distance from campus, yet "off-campus" enough that the residents, if over 21, are legally allowed to possess and consume alcohol. But at these houses, as some underage drinkers have encountered first hand already, students are not as safe from the authorities as they might like to believe.

The Holland Police have been handing out more Minor In Possession (MIP) alcohol violations so far this semester than they have in recent years.

"We are running ahead (with the number of police-reported student violations and parties)," said Dean of Students, Richard Frost. "But numbers vary from year to year depending on the level of noise and variety of people, not because the Holland Police Department (HPD) is cracking down."

The HPD has noticed the rise in minor alcohol violations, but they are not tracking the number of MIPs they receive. They believe the number of violations has been much higher.

Matt Frey ('98) serves as the Hope College student representative to the Police Community Relations Commission. His responsibility in this position is to be a liaison between students and the Holland Police Department.

Student alarm to appear on broadway

Intermission, page 5.

Students share highlights of Vinnie Summer School

Spotlight, page 6.

Students look for league titles

Sports, page 12.

Heartbreak for Hope football

PAUL LOODEEN
sports editor

Hope football had one of its worst injuries before the season had even started. During a standard, precareason physical for all Hope athletes, pre-season All-American Tony Petkus ('99) was diagnosed with a heart condition.

Petkus saw three different doctors and all listened and they all heard the same thing, an irregular heart beat.

That was not the case. After undergoing a battery of tests a cardiologist confirmed Petkus was having fluttering heart.

"His heart muscles are not contracting in unison," said Rich Ray head athletic trainer. "Some athletes do not take these physically serious but if it wasn't for the physical we wouldn't have picked up on his condition."

Hope has athletes take a physical every season where the Nation Collegiate Athletic Association only requires one per four years.

"If we followed the NCAA rules Tony might be playing and having a rough time" said Ray.

This physical was Petkus's third this summer. He also had physicals in June and July to monitor another condition in which doctors did not detect his current heart condition.

"This is probably a pretty recent condition" said Ray. more PETKUS on 8

Women's careers highlighted

SARA E LAMERS
campusbeat editor

Although the death of former Hope professor and librarian Dr. Carol Juth-Gavasso occurred in 1994, the impact she made upon the Hope community is still evident today.

In honor of Juth-Gavasso, Van Wylen Library will host a lecture series titled "Women and Their Work" on Tuesday, Sept. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the Mass Auditorium. The lecture will feature Susan Jonas, Stih District Court Judge of Ottawa County.

"We chose Jonas because Carol was very interested in women's rights and the law," said Gloria Slaughter of Van Wylen Library.

Jonas will discuss a variety of topics, including how she chose her career, the challenges and benefits of it, and her views on the changing status of working women.

She began her career at Hope in 1970. She was promoted to assistant professor in 1973 and began teaching part-time in the Political Science Department during the 1993-94 academic year.

Throughout her career at Hope, Jonas taught many popular courses including "Criminal Justice," "Women and the Law," and a senior seminar titled "Issues in White Collar Crime."

"I knew Carol as a co-worker and in a friend," Slaughter said. "She was really interested in stu more WOMEN on 7

Center of attention

Plans underway to determine uses of the potential area center.

SARA E LAMERS
campusbeat editor

For several years the Hope and Holland communities have waited for a decision to be made about the establishment of an area center.

Hope College was asked to conduct a study of needs that the campus has in order to determine the best possible use of the future facility. Originally the area was to include a sports arena, a performing arts building, and an ice rink.

"As of right now the Frost Research Center has been chosen to do a study to assess the potential uses of the facility and to look at some of the original ideas involved in the study," said William Anderson, Vice-President for Business and Finance.

Along with Anderson, a group of Hope College faculty consisting of Professors Jacob Nyrop, Chad Green of the Frost Center, Public Relations Director Tom Renner, and Greg Maybury of the Physical Plant will serve on the assessment committee.

After determining the best possible uses of the center, the committee will submit a report, which is scheduled to be released in November.

President John Jacobson emphasized the progress of the project during his annual State of the College Address.

"As I look back on this long process, I see a lot of starting and stopping and a lot of frustration for the participants," said Jacobson. "But I also see progressive clarification and improvement in thinking about the center. If the center is built, it will be much more valuable to the area than it would have been had the first or second plan been adopted."

Originally it was proposed that the center be built between the main campus and the athletic fields near the Western Foundry site. Funding for the center was to come from a bond issue voted by the City of Holland, Holland

more CENTER on 7

September 1998
The party's over
Green appointed to CASA program

Fonda Green was appointed executive director of the CASA program. Green fills the position vacated by Conni Brummel, who had been the CASA director since 1994. She will be assisted by program director Rob Boerner, who has been involved with CASA since 1995.

The CASA, or Children’s After School Achievement, Program is geared toward kindergarten through fifth grade students. It encourages them to strengthen their academic skills and also educates them on issues such as substance abuse and cultural awareness.

Campus safety responds to complaints

On Thursday, Sept. 10, a public safety officer answered a call to Belt Cottage (168 E. 15th) on report of a fire in the front yard. The campus safety report recorded that upon arrival the officer “found a pair of underwear had been set on fire by some residents of the cottage.”

“We were just messing around, having fights with flaming underwear,” said Belt Cottage resident Steve Robison (‘01). “The R.A. next door and our R.A. were both pretty upset, but we could tell the public safety officer wanted to laugh.”

Robison said the cottage was given a “walk-through check” by Cottage Resident Director Mary Ann Pernasung to ensure that everything was under control, and no further concerns arose.

Community activities that Green has participated in include Bread for the World, Habitat for Humanity, and the Crop Walk.

Higher horizons rises above obstacles

SARA E LAMERS

This is a prime time for recruitment of Hope students,” Pleune said.

Currently there are 25 boys and 25 girls on the waiting list to be matched with a Hope student. There are 468-30 boys that are interested in being put on the list.

“This program is all about being a good role model,” Pleune said. “These kids are really in need of mentoring and caring because much of their lives lacks structure.”

Pleune stressed that much of the success of the program can be attributed to the 30-40 students who volunteer.

“All of our volunteers seem to enjoy it,” she said. “It’s amazing how well they get along with the kids.”

Many student organizations have also participated in the program, including the Delta Phi sorority and the Black Coalition.

“I got involved because I saw this as a good opportunity to work with kids,” said Kim Howey (’01). “I do it because it’s just really fun. I was matched with an eight-year-old girl and I help her with self-esteem and general issues that kids of that age deal with.”

Students who wish to become involved must be 18 and have access to a car. Informational meetings will be held on Monday, Sept. 21 and Wednesday, Sept. 22 from 6 to 7 p.m.

The Higher Horizons office is located at 171 E. 15th Street, behind College East apartments.

“This year over $275 was raised for the MS Foundation,” Richardson said. "Richardson felt that a lot of the students who attended the event appreciated the fact that it was for a good cause.

"My aunt and my neighbor both have the disease and it makes me feel good to know that I’m helping out a good cause."

Lecture series’ begin

Kennedy presents Dutch History lecture

ALLYSON BOGGESS

The students in Dr. James Kennedy’s Dutch History class are not the only ones intrigued by the historical roots of the Dutch. Members of the surrounding Holland community also turned out for the first of a thirteen week lecture series held on Monday, Sept. 7 in Luberth Hall.

Nearly fifty people attended that night, according to Kennedy, who is giving the lectures.

"I was amazed by the response we had," she said. "I was very gratified and appreciative of those who turned our.

Monday’s topic was the Dutch struggle with the water and their intent on making Holland a habitable place.

Likely the first lecture, each lecture will have a different focus. Future topics will include “Dutch Religion, Calvinism and other beliefs in the 17th Century,” “The German Occupation, 1940-1945,” and “What made Dutch society unique in the Age of Rembrandt.”

The lecture series incorporates more HISTORY on 7

Sports Medicine series showcases Draper

CARRIE ARNOLD

It was presented by Dr. David Draper, director of the graduate program in sports medicine and athletic training at Brigham Young University, Utah.

This series, co-sponsored by Hope College and the Holland Community Hospital, is geared toward health care professionals, students, athletes, clinicians, or anyone who is physically active.

Dr. Rich Ray, head of the Kinesiology Department, said that the lectures are “an opportunity for us to expose students at Hope to the best and brightest minds in sports medicine.”

Not only will they allow students to learn more about the particular topic, the series will expose them to people in the field of sports medicine and athletic training.

The first topic, presented by Dr. Draper, focused on the use of Ultrasound in treating minor and chronic athletic injuries. In 1995, Draper created an “intelligent” Ultrasound machine that would help regulate the dosage of medicines used to treat such injuries.

Draper also discussed many abuses of Ultrasound technology in treating sports injuries, and how health care professionals can correct this.

Ray hoped that students would “be challenged to learn more about the topic.”
PARTIES FROM 1 AM THE POLICE DEPARTMENT.

"From what I've heard from students anywhere from 125 to 75 MIPs have been given out there were 60 given out at a party in one night," Ferret said. "And there has been at least 3 people who have spent the night in jail for more serious violations."

Walking up the Neighbors

Police have been alerted to parties for primarily two reasons.

"Our largest concerns are loud music and reports of potential illegal sale of alcohol," DeVries said. DeVries expresses that the HPD is willing to work with fraternities, sororities, and other off-campus housing toward methods of avoidance of problems, but the two things that continue to concern officers are illegal age and the sale of alcohol to minors.

"We can't turn away from this," DeVries said. Some students are questioning how necessary police involvement is at parties.

"I understand that they have to enforce the law but it seems like the police are focusing only on the problem of under aged drinking," said Kelly Buwalda ('01) who was in attendance at a backyard barbeque that police "brushed off." "There wasn't any cause for police at the barbecue," she said.

"The majority of the people who were drinking, all but 4, were 21. A group of friends should be able to have a barbecue without the harassment of the cops."

According to witnesses, upon arrival at the small party, police in street clothes came unnoticed into the backyard, and soon identified themselves. The officers said they were alerted due to the sight of someone drinking who appeared under 21 and a noise complaint from a neighbor.

"They gave out about 30 breakners and 4 MIPs," said Matt Holmes ('01)."

RESPECT

Hope administration understands that students will participate in off-campus gatherings but expect that students will represent the college well and on-off campuses.

"We have a recognition that students will participate and attend off-campus parties," Dept. Frost said. "But we would hope they would be responsible and respectful, and also accept responsibility for the problems they may get into."

"It stresses the idea of getting to know your neighbors and having small parties," said Baraek, who says she is interested in having open forums with students to discuss concerns.

When the "big guys" get turned

Frost becomes involved in off-campus party situations only when the HPD makes the Dean of Students aware of citations issued to students or calls Hope's Public Safety officers for assistance during an actual party "mess.

We do not respond or report to off-campus parties unless we are asked by the Holland Police Department for assistance," said Dean Terpstra, Director of Public Safety.

"At one of the parties we were called for help with identification because of the sheer number of people there," Terpstra said. If police choose to send records of written citations to the college the reports go directly to Dean Frost, who then passes the information on to Derek Emerson, Director of Housing and Judicial Affairs.

Paying the Consequences

"Students often ask, 'We're off-campu, why is this the college's business?' Emerson said. "But it is a reflection on Hope College and it interferes with the community, and the community expects Hope to take responsibility for its students. And secondly, Hope has high expectations for its students."

Emerson explains that like an alcohol write-up on campus, receiving a MIP oft-campus usually results in a semester of probation and 15 hours of community service, but the college also takes an interest in what happens to the students involved.

Emerson attempts to meet with students before their court date in order to let them know of their options to plead guilty or not guilty, and to ensure that they are aware of what is going to happen and how they can meet with the judge.

"If a student does get in trouble he or she should talk to Derek or a resident assistant," said Dean Frost. "One must go in unprepared or unaware of their options."

On the record

Both DeVries and Emerson spoke of the consequences students have to deal with when they have misdeemeanors on their permanent records once they enter the competitive job market.

"Getting misdemeanor records can hurt a former student, especially those that don't affect the community more." Melissa Baute, who is over 21, was present at another party where many MIPs were handed out.

"I think it's stupid that the cops wasted their time," and "our time. We're not drinking up harm- less fun, when a lot worse crimes were most likely being committed two streets over," she said.

Different officers handle situations differently, said Baraek, and not all students think police have been cracking down on parties enough.

"From what I've seen, and I don't go to parties, the cop's attention has been minimal and well hidden," said Chrisina Stavres ('01). "To me the school is taking an interest, but they're not being tough enough."

Something different should be done, next to a structured education for the R.A.'s when people come to dorms drunk at night. The partying here is very excessive for a Christian school."

Bringing it to the table

Fretz will bring up two main concerns when meeting with the Holland Police in the future.

He believes some students are concerned about the "way police are functioning during partying and other events to the school to ensure that people know that there may be issues of a lack of respect."

Fretz also will bring up safety issues. He reports the example that if an individual has too much to drink and needs to take a cab to the hospital, students should be allowed to drink off the premises and MIPs keep them from being charged an ambulance.

Safe and sound

Alcohol issues Matter, or AIM, continues to make the college aware of student concerns.

"Getting people to be non-judgmental organizations on campus exists, but it is something the college should be looking into," said Chas Moore ('01). The college is working with the police on the problem of drinking students.

"But I also hope that some people will choose to drink and we encourage them to drink responsibly and be safe and healthy choices," she said. "We feel we exist to educate, not to preach."

One of AIM's missions is to educate students about binge drinking, alcohol poisoning, and the dangers of driving under the influence.

"We want students to understand the consequences of what can happen when you drink," Douglas said.

Officer Baraek advises students not to be afraid to call the police if they feel a "party is getting out of control."

If a student calls the police, and explains to them that they feel that the dangers of driving under the influence are present, the officer will probably need help getting students to leave their house, the officers would be willing to work in cooperation with the student and advising the identity of the caller.

College Drinking

News & Opinion: Studies show:

- 43% of students admit to binge drinking (defined as the consumption of five drinks in a row for men and four for women). These numbers have remained virtually the same since 1994; when 44% of students admitted the same.
- 50% of student drinkers said they "drink to get drunk."
- 21% of those surveyed said they binge drink at least three times every two weeks.
- more than 1/3 of students reported driving after drinking (a 13% increase from 1993).
- 19% of students abstain from alcohol (a rise from 15.6% in 1993).

-Restaurants released by the College Alcohol Studies at Harvard University (Sep. 10) study conducted on 14,500 college students.

The life of the mind

At this party there'll be beer, maybe some drugs, possibly a fight, and most probably a number of drunk girls looking for someone to spend the night with.

Good thing we're wearing our shirt with 'Jesus do Bracelets' on it.

by ANDREW L. ZOLLER

September 16, 1998
A Not-So Hidden Issue

Hope College students looking for a good time over the weekend will have to step quietly this semester.

According to Hope College officials and the Holland Police Department, the number of drinking related incidents has increased from last year’s pace. The number of off-campus parties that have been “hustled” has risen, as has the number of Minors In Possession misdemeanors.

While the consumption of alcohol is nothing new at any college campus, the issue has come to a head in Holland in recent weeks. Even more so, the Holland police and officers were called to several college parties.

Hope College has long promoted itself as a “Dry Campus.” Article 1.1 of the Student Behavior Policies in the Hope College Handbook of Selected College Policies states that “the possession and/or consumption of alcoholic beverages on College property, in College housing units, or College vehicles is prohibited.”

The handbook also states that money shall not be used to purchase alcohol, alcohol may not be used to promote an event, and the possession of alcoholic containers (empty or full) will not be allowed.

Last anyone knew, 21 was still the legal age of possession and consumption in the State of Michigan. It is also still against the law to purchase liquor for minors. Despite this, students, underage and over, will continue to party, continue to drink, and continue to get caught by police.

Last year, a student was assaulted while returning home from a late-night party. Students still trek several blocks to parties in the dead of winter where alcohol is present. Students and administration know the danger in this, but for now it has been an issue that is generally swept under the table.

It is about time that the campus and students meet and discuss the alcohol policy at Hope. While any policy for now it has been an issue that is generally swept under the table.

The consumption of alcohol is ultimately up to the individual in any case. Alcohol poisoning, violence, and police intervention are already creeping into Hope. The individual in any case. Alcohol poisoning, violence, and police intervention are already creeping into Hope.

Despite this, students, underage and over, will continue to party, continue to drink, and continue to get caught by police.

It is about time that the campus and students meet and discuss the alcohol policy at Hope. While any policy for now it has been an issue that is generally swept under the table.

Ladies and Gentlemen, boys and girls, children of all ages, the anchor is proud to present the best dink column that you have ever read. Just as Sammy Sosa is rocking the baseball world, I am bringing the flow to the editorial page this week with the first edition of the column that discusses not only Greek Life, but life in general. I know what you are thinking: a Greek Life column? Just hold on to your horses and keep reading, you might be surprised. I promise right now that there will be absolutely no propaganda, complaining about the administration, and I will never push my opinion down your throat.

The one thing that this column will always advocate about Greek Life is an educated decision. Don’t listen to nasty rumors and stereotypes, instead talk to both Greeks and non-Greeks about their different experiences.

Hope College isn’t Animal House or Revenge of the Nerds. While there are unique local organizations that are totally unique to this campus. Yes, we have a great deal of fun, but we also participate in service projects and school leadership.

I am not going to lie to you. Greek Life has its advantages and disadvantages. Being an Independent for two and a half years before joining the Knockerbocker Fraternity, I have traveled on both sides of the fence. I understand arguments of both Independents and Greeks alike, and I plan on presenting both throughout this year by means of this wonderful column.

You will hear a great deal of things about being Greek over the course of the semester, some will actually be true, but most are not. Going Greek changed my life, but going Greek is not for everybody. Make sure you get the facts, then you will know if Greek Life is for you.

A decision is certainly not permanent. Hey, next semester is a long way off, it hasn’t even started to snow yet (knock on wood). You have time to make a good decision, and when the time comes, I hope this column helps you.

Thanks for reading and please e-mail me with comments, questions, love letters, hate mail, marriage proposals or whatever at mm35299@hope.edu. That’s it for this edition.

This semester the Anchor will feature guest columns from different student organizations. Any student organizations that wishes to run a guest column should contact the Anchor at 395-7877 or ANCHOR@hope.edu.

Congress cabinet member urges students to vote

To the Editor:

By the time you are reading this letter, you are one of two types of people. Either you have voted in the elections for Student Congress or you have not. If you have voted then I can say you know and care about how important this year is for Congress and the student body. If you haven’t, then there are some reasons you should seek out a voting booth and vote before the polls close for good at 6:30 p.m., Thursday night.

If you don’t vote, when the administration looks at a proposal submitted by Congress, they will take it less seriously. If you don’t vote, you aren’t voting for who you want to be in Congress, you are voting for what you believe in. You are voting for who you want to represent you.

Parking situation still a problem, senior says

To the Editor:

I would like to express my concerns about the current parking situation here at Hope.

I realize that this has been a problem for my four years here, yet I see it worsening.

I live on 15th Street and Columbia Avenue and have to drive to class Monday and Wednesday in order to get to tennis on time. Normally I allow myself ten to fifteen minutes to find a parking spot.

This morning I drove around and could not find a spot. I then decided to try the lot next to Dykstra Hall, but it is now for Hopeworth guests only. I then was going to try the lot behind Eighth Street, but student parking is prohibited. I even went to “Siberia” and could not find a spot.

I understand the need to reserve parking around campus, but it is hard to understand when students are struggling to find space and there are open spots in the reserved lots.

Sarah the Squirrel says:

The Anchor needs photographers! The paper likes to take it’s own photos, but we can’t be everywhere at once. We are looking for volunteers with or without experience to attend events. Heck, we’ll even let you take a photo of Sarah. Just call x7877 or e-mail ANCHOR@hope.edu.
Broadway production features Hope grad

JOSLIN FEINAUER
intermission editor

More than once, the Andrews Sisters and Fred Astaire played the roles of aspiring performers. Imagining this one: Hope grad Cynthia Kortman ('93) left Holland for New York City with $500 and 2 suitcases to find work as a pianist after graduation.

Kortman waited tables for 6 months before finding work on the production of Tommy. "I was a child wrangler, which meant I busied the performers’ kids. These were real 'actors' kids; I had kids out to see me when I got too distracted, Korlman said.

The musicians in New York could play many different styles of music. Kortman had a classical piano background from Hope. She knew she needed to be able to play different kinds of piano. "I got the conductor of Tommy to teach me rock-n-roll piano which worked out well because he was also a classical pianist. He didn't tell me just to 'feel the music.' He taught me specifics," Korlman said.

Kortman's first performance job was playing in a church basement on a piano missing black keys. She also accompanied a number of voice auditions. Eventually Kortman found a position with the American Symphony Orchestra that led to work on Miss Saigon and at NYU. "I was working under a conductor who was involved with the upcoming production of the Lion King. I auditioned for the show and got the keyboardist position," Kortman said. "I also conduct two or so of the eight shows each week. It's true that so much depends on being in the right place at the right time and knowing the eight people. During college Kortman worked under Linda Strauss in the Hope Summer Repertory Theatre. "The Summer Rep is such a terrible theater now. It's a good place to start," Kortman said.

For hopeful amateur musicians, Kortman said that good sight reading is imperative. "I also had to learn how to transpose quickly at the voice auditions I played for," Korlman said. "If anyone is trying to break into a professional career in music or performance, it's a necessity that you know your piece perfectly. You should remember that the people judging you want you to be the right person."

I've sat through 400 auditions a day where no one was chosen, but we hoped each new candidate would be the one," she said. "So when you audition, choose a piece you're comfortable with and that makes you sound the best no matter how predictable it may seem. Making it on Broadway can certainly be done."

“Nature film” to be featured at the Knickerbocker

MEREDITH CARE
staff reporter

Fifteen years of research. Two years of equipment design. Three years of shooting. Fifteen years of research. Two years of shooting.

The film is the French documentary Microcosmos, and will be playing at the Knickerbocker Theatre, the first film in the annual Fall Film Series. Before dismissing the film because of its classification as a documentary, realize that Microcosmos is not by any means a typical “nature film.”

Little narration or explanation is included. Instead, much of the film’s artistic power as achieved through music and sound effects. "It's such an unusual film. When you think of a documentary, you think of something cut and dry," said Valerie McCoy, Arts Coordinator for Hope College. "This film is quite the opposite in that respect. You get lost in the artistic images of the film. I love it."

Critics also enjoyed the film. Andy Seiler, movie critic for USA Today, wrote, "...this is not some nature film you channel surfed past on TV last night. For one thing, there's no narration. This enables you to lose yourself in a world wider than any of Hollywood's sci-fi creations."

Roger Ebert of the Chicago Sun-Times said, "If the movies allow us to see places we have visited and people we do not know, then Microcosmos dramatically extends our range of vision, allowing us to see the world of the creatures who most completely and enduringly inhabit the earth."

Besides earning the reputation as a unique documentary, Microcosmos has also received several awards. At the 1996 Cannes Festival, it won the Technical Grand Prize. Microcosmos also received the 1997 Cesar Award for Best Cinematography, Best Editor, Best Music Written for a Film, Best Producer, Best Sound, and Best Foreign Film.

The German film Beyond Silence will be showing Oct. 2 through 17. Show times are at 7 and 9 p.m. each evening at the Knickerbocker Theatre. Tickets are $3.50 for students and senior citizens, and $5.50 for adults. McCoy hopes that the Fall Film Series will be thought-provoking, but most of all, entertaining.

"I tried to pick films that were different from each other. We also want to show movies that people don’t normally have an opportunity to see," she said.
The Flying Dutchman

Not much right? Just one simple letter. This way we don’t offend alumni who have grown up with us. The Anchor is not just the name of the paper, but also “the anchor of hope.” It only fits to have a dual sense of the anchor, both athletic and the symbolic of a fishing ship. Not only does the ghost ship appear as a beautiful logo, with its tattered sails and eerie blue glow, but it also fits Hope. The anchor is nothing is the name of the paper, but also “the anchor of hope.” It only fits to have a dual sense of the anchor, both athletic and the symbolic of a fishing ship.

What is more fearsome than ghost stories? Haunting tales of blue lightning, dark and stormy seas, and chance encounters with a ship of mystery and myth. We sailed through the night waves of the Atlantic Ocean. Do mascots like Calvin’s Knights or Kalamazoo’s Hornets hold a candle to the terror and awe-inspiring spirit of the Flying Dutchman? Her sails rippled to stretch from the elements, yet slipping wildly, filled with wind.

So I say that we change our image at Hope College. Hope isn’t a haven for Dutch children. Nobody here wears wooden shoes to class. We can update ourselves, take on a superior mascots that fits the image of our college, and not be regarded as one big stereotype, all by changing one little letter.

The Vienna Summer Term

Updated and printed image improvement happened around us all the time. That clunky old Apple Mac we used in elementary school has been replaced with the transparent, cutting-edge Mac. The campy 70’s show “Barman,” featuring Adam West in tights, has evolved into the noir “Barman: the Animated Series.” Taco Bell has gone from a poorly advertised, nasty restaurant where no one without a metal colon would eat to a well-hyped, nasty restaurant where no one without a metal colon would eat. Projects, corporations, and people are always changing themselves in a continual pursuit of modernity. Even Hope College has been updating itself. Residence halls have gone from a dark, gloomy, cookie-cutter dormitory into a new and improved dormitory, the residence hall. Corporations and people are always changing themselves in a continual pursuit of modernity.

The Vienna summer term is a one-year college education. Any body of any age is welcome on the trip. There are often adults who audit the course. “One of the things that makes it a little different than other programs is that it is run out of the city pre-dominantly,” Hemmenway said. The students stay with families in Vienna and leave only for weekend trips. The students can decide where they want to live for the summer. There are 23 districts in Vienna, and students are usually placed in 17 of them. Hemenway said the semester ends with an overnight hiking trip in the Alps. The program was started in 1956 by Dr. Paul G. Fried, and is currently headed by Hemmenway, who has just finished his 23rd year as director of the program. Fried was originally an Austrian citizen who came to school at Hope College. He became an American citizen and enlisted in the army. He left when World War II began, and after the war he returned to Hope to finish college. Fried was a translator at the Nuremberg trials, and later taught at Hope. In 1955, Austria was liberated from its communist hold, and the next year Fried began his trips to Austria. Hemmenway, who doesn’t speak any German, accidentally found his way into the group, and eventually became its director.

The basic program was the dying in the seventies. I was asked to do it for one year, the last year,” said Hemmenway. But the program turned around and Hemmenway soon found himself at its head. Overall, the program is all about learning.

“I learned two languages. I learned about history from being in the spots that history happened. I learned that communism didn’t die in 1989,” Bull said. The Vienna summer term offers unique learning to Hope students and other interested parties each year. Information regarding the Vienna summer term can be obtained from Dr. Hemmenway in the English Department.

The Anchor's First Annual Loft Competition Entry blanks are due in to the Anchor office or the Student Union Desk by next Wednesday, September 23rd. Don't miss out on this opportunity to make your loft the envy of the school. Enter Now! There's only 7 days left.

Hey Hope students: Is walking to class just too easy? Well, to enhance your college experience and bring some zest into your life, we bring you the thrill of STAVING DRY.

A new fashion statement; a new way of looking at the world, a new trend. Staving dry is the only way to go! Several areas of campus have been sprayed with powdered sugar, and a new dress code has been created for those who choose to abstain.

The new dress code is as follows: No students may be seen wearing any clothing that has alcohol related references. Any student caught at Hope. In 1955, Austria was liberated from its communist hold, and the next year Fried began his trips to Austria. Hemmenway, who doesn’t speak any German, accidentally found his way into the group, and eventually became its director. Basic program was the dying in the seventies. I was asked to do it for one year, the last year,” said Hemmenway. But the program turned around and Hemmenway soon found himself at its head. Overall, the program is all about learning.

“I learned two languages. I learned about history from being in the spots that history happened. I learned that communism didn’t die in 1989,” Bull said. The Vienna summer term offers unique learning to Hope students and other interested parties each year. Information regarding the Vienna summer term can be obtained from Dr. Hemmenway in the English Department.

Hey Hope students: Is walking to class just too easy? Well, to enhance your college experience and bring some zest into your life, we bring you the thrill of STAVING DRY.

A new fashion statement; a new way of looking at the world, a new trend. Staving dry is the only way to go! Several areas of campus have been sprayed with powdered sugar, and a new dress code has been created for those who choose to abstain.

The new dress code is as follows: No students may be seen wearing any clothing that has alcohol related references. Any student caught at Hope. In 1955, Austria was liberated from its communist hold, and the next year Fried began his trips to Austria. Hemmenway, who doesn’t speak any German, accidentally found his way into the group, and eventually became its director. Basic program was the dying in the seventies. I was asked to do it for one year, the last year,” said Hemmenway. But the program turned around and Hemmenway soon found himself at its head. Overall, the program is all about learning.

“I learned two languages. I learned about history from being in the spots that history happened. I learned that communism didn’t die in 1989,” Bull said. The Vienna summer term offers unique learning to Hope students and other interested parties each year. Information regarding the Vienna summer term can be obtained from Dr. Hemmenway in the English Department.
Help Wanted: Need a student to tutor a high school student in Saginaw. 3 times a week and pay is negotiable. Contact Nancy 837-7245.

Help Wanted:
Envelope stuffing—$600-$800 every two weeks. Free Details—SASE to International, 1375 Cony Island Ave, Brooklyn, New York 11209.

Sammler: I actually think it is O.K. that Stacey pukes in our bathroom. We get cookies and next time she claims the toilet. I just go as a bonus—Burner of midnight oil.

Big Ete: Fess up, you know that philtre is not a color. The dude abuses.

Mother Squared: I know you smile as you pass by and talk. Just remember that when you sit you should smile because you're happy. Z.

Big Ete: Fess up, you know that philtre is not a color. The dude abuses.

Mother Squared: I know you smile as you pass by and talk. Just remember that when you sit you should smile because you're happy. Z.

Tanny and Brian: Where's the love? You're hostilities should not be directed at me. I am not responsible for your sexual frustrations. I love you guys. I would do nothing to hurt you. Discard hostility.

Housemate: I actually think it is O.K. that Stacey pukes in our bathroom. We get cookies and next time she claims the toilet. I just go as a bonus—Burner of midnight oil.

Big Ete: Fess up, you know that philtre is not a color. The dude abuses.

Mother Squared: I know you smile as you pass by and talk. Just remember that when you sit you should smile because you're happy. Z.

Tanny and Brian: Where's the love? You're hostilities should not be directed at me. I am not responsible for your sexual frustrations. I love you guys. I would do nothing to hurt you. Discard hostility. Z.

WOMEN from I said. She was really interested in students and gave support to female students by advocating feminist issues.

Like Judge Jonas, Judith Gavasso also contributed much time to her community.

She was affiliated with the American Sociological Association, the American Association of University Professors, the National Women's Studies Association, and the American Society of Criminology.

Wednesday's lecture marks the opening of the series, which was coordinated by the library staff.

We are excited about this and hope to make it an annual event," Slaughter said. "Each fall we hope to feature more speakers from the greater Holland area.

Women's Studies Association, and the American Society of Criminology.

Wednesday's lecture marks the opening of the series, which was coordinated by the library staff.

"We are excited about this and hope to make it an annual event," Slaughter said. "Each fall we hope to feature more speakers from the greater Holland area.

"As of right now the location of the Area Center is still up in the air and has yet to be decided upon," said Anderson. "The study that will be done will emphasize on the uses of the center, rather than location.

"Members of the committee expressed their enthusiasm for the center.

"I think having additional space for performance will be a big asset to Hope," Maybury said. "It will give Hope more flexibility in scheduling and will enhance the culture of the downtown area.

The series has been moved from 7 to 8 p.m. Monday nights. The series has been moved from 7 to 8 p.m. Monday nights.

The sports lecture series continues on Wednesday, Oct. 21, when Dr. Craig Fisher of Ithaca College presents "The Athlete's Dilemma: Adherence to Fitness and Rehabilitation Programs." Also coming up are Guelph University's Dr. Lawrence Spriel's presentation, titled 'Why Athletes Get Tired: The Metabolic Basis of Fatigue' on Monday, Jan. 18, and Gary Gray's lecture 'Functional Exercise in Athlete Rehabilitation' on Feb. 10. The series will conclude on Wednesday, April 14, with "Advances in Rehabilitation for the Throwing Athlete," by Ted Blackburn of Berkshire Institute.

"I hope that many people on campus will feel a desire to come, more than just people thinking about their general health and sports medicine," Ray said.

All of the presentations will be held in Mass Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free, and the general public is invited.

Volunteers Needed: No previous experience required. Comprehensive training provided. College credits available.

Training begins September 21 in Holland.

For more information, call the Helpline at 396-4357.
Soccer teams look to continue past success

MIKE ZUIDEMA
editor-in-chief

In an effort to build one program and maintain the level of the other, the men’s and women’s soccer teams have scheduled some tough opponents.

While the women have started 3-2, the men have had a tough beginning, starting 0-4-1. The teams have played their share of tough opposition, including Aquinas, Colorado, and perennial powerhouse Wheaton.

Over the weekend the Flying Dutch fell at Wheaton 1-0, on Friday and defeated DePauw 4-0, on Saturday. The Flying Dutchmen dropped both games, falling 3-1 to Wheaton and 1-0 to DePauw.

The Flying Dutch won Saturday behind a pair of Gretchen Schoon (‘99) goals and three Tina Gill (‘99) assists.

“It’s nice, it seems like it’s been a while. We haven’t been playing particularly well so this was a big win for us,” said head coach Paul Rosenbrook. “We’ve beaten some good teams too, but we still have some tough teams up the road.”

While Hope picked up the win, the team will look to improve on last season’s school record 13 victories.

Mark Piersma (‘99) was medalist, shooting 70.

While Ebel is looking for some fresh faces to make a push for a league title, Eaton will try to do the same with several veterans.

Eaton replaces Jane Holman who directed the Flying Dutch to four league championships, and never finished lower than second.

“I’m an avid golfer, so when I knew that Jane was retiring, I thought it would be a wonderful idea to get involved with the sport,” Eaton said. “Jane was a great women’s coach, but she left me in good hands.”

Aiding Eaton will be the return of Elton Colenbrander (‘99), who directed the Flying Dutch to four league championships, and never finished lower than second.

“I’m glad they caught it when it happened,” said Wormmeester. “I just hope he gets better.”

“Yet teammates hope that Petkus just gets better.”

“Too bad, it’s different without Tony,” said Wormmeester. “He wants to play with his kids someday.”

The Flying Dutchmen will next face MacMurray, Ill., at Buys Athletic Field on September 13th at 1:30 p.m. The women will travel to Allegany, Penn. for a 4 p.m. Friday game.

Golf teams swing into seasons

The Flying Dutchmen finished second in the conference. This year both are looking to move up the league ladder and capture first place.

The two teams are a study in contrasts.

The men’s team has never won a Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association title under head coach Bob Ebels.

The women’s team is looking to win its fifth title of the 90s and first under first-year coach Donna Eaton.

Strong recruiting has given Ebels confidence that his team will have a conference title soon.

“If it wasn’t this year, it’s next year,” Ebels said. “Last year we had a good recruiting year. Now they’re one year more mature and have had their games to the next level.”

Leading the returns are Andy Niceg (‘01) and Mike Feyen (‘01). Niceg was second on the team in scoring and was medalist at the Adrian MIAA meet.

Also returning are Ben Fellows (‘00), who was fourth on the team in scoring, and those two things put us at the top of the league.

“We hope to maintain the level they’ve been at, we want to win the MIAA,” Eaton said. “We haven’t had difficulty getting not only sheer numbers, but exceptional golfers, and those two things put us at the top of the league.

Negative experiences there but we just move on.”

Without Petkus the Hope offense returns only three starters from last year’s team.

The team starts a freshman, Sam Martin (‘02), at right offensive tackle, the position vacated by Petkus. Another change is the move of Dave Uyl (‘99) from tight end to offensive guard.

With significant personnel on offense the Dutchmen struggled in their first system game turning the ball over to Augustana a total of four times in a 29-6 loss.

“We just can’t win when you turn the ball over four times,” said Dan Wegrzyn (‘00).

“We need our offense to gel and we will be fine,” said Wormmeester.

“It was frustrating watching and not being able to play,” said Petkus.

Yet teammates hope that Petkus just gets better.

“I’m glad they caught it when they did,” said Wormmeester. “I just hope he gets better.”

“It’s different without Tony,” said Wegrzyn. “I’m glad they caught it because I’d like to see my kids playing with his kids someday.”

RUN AHEAD: Flying Dutchmen forward Curtis Mejeur (‘01) looks for some space against a pair of DePauw opponents, Saturday. Hope fell to the Tigers 1-0.

PETKUS FROM I

It is a condition that is treatable by doctors but it is “rare in young people,” Ray said.

What doctors do treat the condition is to shock the heart to get it back into a normal rhythm.

“If the procedure doesn’t stick they probably will not do it again,” said Ray.

In any case Petkus’s season is over because the recovery from the treatment involves four weeks of blood thinners after the procedure.

Being an offensive lineman and one of the few low returning offensive players the loss means a lack of experience on the line.

“It was not a position that we expected to fill this year,” said Justin Wormmeester (‘99). “We lack experience there but we just move on.”

Without Petkus the Hope defense returns only three starters from last year’s team.

The team starts a freshman, Sam Martin (‘02), at right offensive tackle, the position vacated by Petkus. Another change is the move of Dave Uyl (‘99) from tight end to offensive guard.

With significant personnel on offense the Dutchmen struggled in their first system game turning the ball over to Augustana a total of four times in a 29-6 loss.

“We just can’t win when you turn the ball over four times,” said Dan Wegrzyn (‘00).

“We need our offense to gel and we will be fine,” said Wormmeester.

“It was frustrating watching and not being able to play,” said Petkus.

Yet teammates hope that Petkus just gets better.

“I’m glad they caught it when they did,” said Wormmeester. “I just hope he gets better.”

“It’s different without Tony,” said Wegrzyn. “I’m glad they caught it because I’d like to see my kids playing with his kids someday.”