Winged mammals found in campus residences

Bats removed by Public Safety officers
Matt Cook
CAMPUS BEAT EDITOR

For some people, there would be few things more terrifying than waking up to find a bat flying around their bedroom. Such a thing happened to residents of Steffens Cottage last week.

Bats were also found in several other residences on Hope’s campus including Shriver Cottage, Welmers Cottage, Voorhees Hall, and Kollen Hall.

No bites were reported. According to Mike Lafata, Public Safety patrol sergeant, bats are often found on campus during this time of year. Usually they will be in cottages or older buildings. Even the president’s house has been immune.

"It’s a common problem in late August and early September," Lafata said.

Lafata remembers personally removing about half a dozen bats from campus buildings last year.

Bats are not a serious threat to students, Lafata said, unless they bite. If a bat is suspected to have bitten someone, the bat will be captured by public safety, and sent in for rabies testing.

Lafata advises that if you spot a bat, it is best not to touch it. Not only is there a danger of being bitten, but they are small and quick and hard to catch without the proper equipment. Contact Public Safety immediately.

"We can take care of them in a safer manner," Lafata said. "We have gloves, and we have a net, so we can catch them.”
Congress president, Louis Canfield, for 2001 school year, for students offering two rate plans in the 2000-2001 school year, for students upstairs and things over the summer," Canfield said. "The [Dewitt] lounges are going to be refinished — upstairs and downstairs."

The plans for the Dewitt lounges.

Student Congress makes plans for new year

Poll results help suggest changes

Julie Green

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

Student Congress makes plans for new year

Poll results help suggest changes

Julie Green

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

POLICY from 1

Phone service changes rate plan

CIT has announced that it will be offering two rate plans in the 2000-2001 school year, for students using the PhoneHope long distance service.

The Standard Plan, which has no monthly fee, is now 15 cents per minute for daytime calling, 12 cents in the evening, and nine cents for nights, weekends and holidays.

The new Value Plan, which costs $4.95 per month, is 10 cents per minute in the daytime, eight cents at night, and five cents per minute anytime to a "Favorite Number," their most frequently dialed number in the United States.

International rates have lowered — in some cases as much as 90 percent.

Students can now be e-mailed their bill, and can check their account online at the PhoneHope website (www.phonehope.com). Changes in calling plan can also be made there.

CIS from 1

Community Day mixes locals with students

Raquelle Commons. Live music will be provided by the Holland American Legion Band.

There will be a football game at 6:30, which will include the Holland High School Marching Band, fireworks, and a proclamation from Holland's mayor praising the college-community relationship.

Other speakers include former Hope students who have made millions on the Internet with Snap.com and people's music files, and the copyright issues that have come up as a result.

For example, the Napster program, will be Marshall VanAlstyne, of the Legion Band.

Holland's mayor praising the college-community relationship.

Other speakers include former Hope students who have made millions on the Internet with Snap.com and people's music files, and the copyright issues that have come up as a result.

For example, the Napster program, according to Gonzales, although the framework is in place, the CIS committee is still busy getting speakers and adjusting schedules.

There is still work to be done, Gonzales said.

There will be no classes on Oct. 4, so students and faculty can attend the Symposium.

“All of us in the Hope community can take advantage of this unique opportunity,” Gonzales said. "My hope would be for Hope College students to use this day to understand how technology is going to shape their life and their future.”

TOMMY THE MAGICAL CAMPY"SAYS

"Hey kids, I have a whole new set of friends: Vanderpo! And they have a new website at:

http://vanderprofun.tono-

Please go and visit them, and have lots of magical fun!"

We sincerely hope you check out the website, because if you don't, Tommy will dis...

Tommy the Magical Campy

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

Campus Beat

Student Congress makes plans for new year

POLICY from 1

Phone service changes rate plan

CIT has announced that it will be offering two rate plans in the 2000-2001 school year, for students using the PhoneHope long distance service.

The Standard Plan, which has no monthly fee, is now 15 cents per minute for daytime calling, 12 cents in the evening, and nine cents for nights, weekends and holidays.

The new Value Plan, which costs $4.95 per month, is 10 cents per minute in the daytime, eight cents at night, and five cents per minute anytime to a “Favorite Number,” their most frequently dialed number in the United States.

International rates have lowered — in some cases as much as 90 percent.

Students can now be e-mailed their bill, and can check their account online at the PhoneHope website (www.phonehope.com). Changes in calling plan can also be made there.

Community Day mixes locals with students

Raquelle Commons. Live music will be provided by the Holland American Legion Band.

There will be a football game at 6:30, which will include the Holland High School Marching Band, fireworks, and a proclamation from Holland's mayor praising the college-community relationship.

Other speakers include former Hope students who have made millions on the Internet with Snap.com and people's music files, and the copyright issues that have come up as a result.

For example, the Napster program, according to Gonzales, although the framework is in place, the CIS committee is still busy getting speakers and adjusting schedules.

There is still work to be done, Gonzales said.

There will be no classes on Oct. 4, so students and faculty can attend the Symposium.

“All of us in the Hope community can take advantage of this unique opportunity,” Gonzales said. "My hope would be for Hope College students to use this day to understand how technology is going to shape their life and their future.”

TOMMY THE MAGICAL CAMPY"SAYS

"Hey kids, I have a whole new set of friends: Vanderpo! And they have a new website at:

http://vanderprofun.tono-

Please go and visit them, and have lots of magical fun!"

We sincerely hope you check out the website, because if you don't, Tommy will dis...

Tommy the Magical Campy

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

Campus Beat

Student Congress makes plans for new year

Poll results help suggest changes

Julie Green

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

POLICY from 1

Phone service changes rate plan

CIT has announced that it will be offering two rate plans in the 2000-2001 school year, for students using the PhoneHope long distance service.

The Standard Plan, which has no monthly fee, is now 15 cents per minute for daytime calling, 12 cents in the evening, and nine cents for nights, weekends and holidays.

The new Value Plan, which costs $4.95 per month, is 10 cents per minute in the daytime, eight cents at night, and five cents per minute anytime to a “Favorite Number,” their most frequently dialed number in the United States.

International rates have lowered — in some cases as much as 90 percent.

Students can now be e-mailed their bill, and can check their account online at the PhoneHope website (www.phonehope.com). Changes in calling plan can also be made there.

Community Day mixes locals with students

Raquelle Commons. Live music will be provided by the Holland American Legion Band.

There will be a football game at 6:30, which will include the Holland High School Marching Band, fireworks, and a proclamation from Holland's mayor praising the college-community relationship.

Other speakers include former Hope students who have made millions on the Internet with Snap.com and people's music files, and the copyright issues that have come up as a result.

For example, the Napster program, according to Gonzales, although the framework is in place, the CIS committee is still busy getting speakers and adjusting schedules.

There is still work to be done, Gonzales said.

There will be no classes on Oct. 4, so students and faculty can attend the Symposium.

“All of us in the Hope community can take advantage of this unique opportunity,” Gonzales said. "My hope would be for Hope College students to use this day to understand how technology is going to shape their life and their future.”

TOMMY THE MAGICAL CAMPY"SAYS

"Hey kids, I have a whole new set of friends: Vanderpo! And they have a new website at:

http://vanderprofun.tono-

Please go and visit them, and have lots of magical fun!"

We sincerely hope you check out the website, because if you don't, Tommy will dis...

Tommy the Magical Campy

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

Campus Beat

Student Congress makes plans for new year

Poll results help suggest changes

Julie Green

September 6, 2000

The Anchor

POLICY from 1

Phone service changes rate plan

CIT has announced that it will be offering two rate plans in the 2000-2001 school year, for students using the PhoneHope long distance service.

The Standard Plan, which has no monthly fee, is now 15 cents per minute for daytime calling, 12 cents in the evening, and nine cents for nights, weekends and holidays.

The new Value Plan, which costs $4.95 per month, is 10 cents per minute in the daytime, eight cents at night, and five cents per minute anytime to a “Favorite Number,” their most frequently dialed number in the United States.

International rates have lowered — in some cases as much as 90 percent.

Students can now be e-mailed their bill, and can check their account online at the PhoneHope website (www.phonehope.com). Changes in calling plan can also be made there.

Community Day mixes locals with students

Raquelle Commons. Live music will be provided by the Holland American Legion Band.

There will be a football game at 6:30, which will include the Holland High School Marching Band, fireworks, and a proclamation from Holland's mayor praising the college-community relationship.

Other speakers include former Hope students who have made millions on the Internet with Snap.com and people's music files, and the copyright issues that have come up as a result.

For example, the Napster program, according to Gonzales, although the framework is in place, the CIS committee is still busy getting speakers and adjusting schedules.

There is still work to be done, Gonzales said.

There will be no classes on Oct. 4, so students and faculty can attend the Symposium.

“All of us in the Hope community can take advantage of this unique opportunity,” Gonzales said. "My hope would be for Hope College students to use this day to understand how technology is going to shape their life and their future.”

TOMMY THE MAGICAL CAMPY"SAYS

"Hey kids, I have a whole new set of friends: Vanderpo! And they have a new website at:

http://vanderprofun.tono-

Please go and visit them, and have lots of magical fun!"

We sincerely hope you check out the website, because if you don't, Tommy will dis...
Quite a kick-off!

Hope announces its lineup for its 31st annual Performance Series

Beth Lomasney
Staff Reporter

One of the many benefits of attending Hope College is the opportunity to become a patron of the arts. Now that the 31st season of Great Performance Series has been announced, Derek Emerson, Arts Coordinator at Hope College and coordinator of Great Performance Series, urges students to take advantage and enjoy.

"The performances, most of the artists who come to campus spend their time here doing master classes in their areas, speaking with students in the Arts courses, or even having dinner with them," Emerson said. "The artists are considered experts in their areas, with many of them having won major awards during years of experience."
The season kicks off Sept. 25 with a rhapsodic flight of words and images. The "New York Times" calls "a rhapsodic flight of words and imagings and技术创新s".
The season will also give a gallery talk on Saturday, October 21, at the Scriptorium, and exhibition in conjunction with the exhibition on this Friday, September 8, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Emerson suggests that students take advantage of the S2 subscription fee, which gets them into all seven shows. Individually, those groups will cost $15-$25. With a subscription, students pay just $3 a show, and their seats are guaranteed.

A Maisner exhibition open in DePree

Emily Moellman
Arts Editor

The art department at Hope College is starting off the year with an exciting new exhibition that combines modern writing with medieval techniques and imagery.
The exhibition "Bernard Maisner: Entrance to the Scriptorium" opened at the gallery of DePree Art Center of Hope College on last Sunday, August 29.
There will be an opening reception in conjunction with the exhibition on this Friday, September 8, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Emerson will present the address "The Theory of the Spirit in Contemporary Art" for the opening reception on Friday, September 8, from 5 p.m. in Cook Auditorium of the DePree Art Center. Maisner himself will also give a gallery talk on Saturday at 11 a.m. The college as well as the public are invited to this event. Admission is free.

Maisner also will conduct a manuscript illumination workshop in the DePree Design Studio, room 129, on Saturday, September 10, from 2 p.m. The workshop is limited to 20 and the fee is $20. Anyone interested should call the DePree Art Center at (616) 995-7900.

Maisner's images, combined with his use of medieval techniques, combined with his use of medieval techniques, will combine to create an art that brings to life the artistry of monk-scribes from the medieval ages. His paintings and illuminated manuscripts incorporate elements of calligraphy, gold leafing and mosaic.

Maisner's work is much more than simply a homage of ancient forms and symbols. According to Jack Wilson, Professor Emeritus of art at Hope, Maisner is a painter well-read in art history and modern literature, which is apparent when one looks at his work. The artist unites images with the written word, drawing from contemporary writers such as Akais Nia, Franz Kafka and John Cage as well as writers Herodotus and Marcus Aurelius from earlier cultures.

Wilson finds this combination of ancient techniques and contemporary ideas intriguing and appealing. "It's a modern twist that brings his art up to date in contemporary terms," said Wilson.

The Maisner exhibition also has directly involved Hope College students. Art history major Lauren Hermes ('02) created a supplementary publication for the exhibit. The informative booklet is a brief history of manuscript illumination, telling about the monks who originated the art form. "I'm really amazed by his work, of what I've seen of it. He uses the medieval techniques to convey contemporary ideas," said Hermes. "I would really like to meet him and see what he has to say about his own work."

The gallery is open Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. The Maisner exhibition will continue through Sunday, Oct. 22.
Many students are surprised when they learn that any student has the ability to “write up” any other student for college policy violations. They are even more surprised that the policy has been in effect for a number of years. Some joke about how they wished they knew about the documentation system when they were freshmen, so they could have written up their roommate and not to worry about it being abused by the system, feeling that it is a “big brother” action on the college’s part, or worrying that it may be used by their significant other. Others express concern over the system, feeling that it is a “big brother” action on the college’s part, or worrying that it may be abused by students who wrongfully seek to get others in trouble.

But this program has been going on for years, and it has been used a great deal. Over 300 incident reports were filed by students last year, and none seem to have raised any major complaints about the system. The program has come into a broader light only because Student Development is stressing peer accountability on campus.

Students who worry about the system need to consider their reasoning, to be sure that it’s not just a simple, gut reaction to increased regulation on campus. The policy is designed to protect students’ health and welfare, not to hunt out people who do activities that the college may not agree with. Students who are upset by the presence of the roommate’s significant other in the bunk below them use the documentation to secure their peace of mind. Students who are concerned with alcohol violations in campus facilities have used the system to protect themselves and their friends. It is a system that puts the ability to take charge of an offensive situation in the hands of those offended, and any policies that empower others are definitely worthy of respect.

While some students feel this policy is one step away from turning their government spy: sell out your family and friends for profit,” the policy itself is helping a lot of students lead a positive and healthy life at Hope College.
Facing the Consequences

Underage students who drink can face large fines and permanent blights on their record.

Students who choose to drink know that there are consequences for their actions. But many of those same students don't realize what penalties they face.

"A lot of students, especially out-of-state students don't really know the laws here in Michigan," said Holland Police Officer Lisa Bancuk. "When they get in trouble they say, 'Well, I didn't know'...

And since the punishments can vary based on different offenses, knowing the consequences of your actions can be a confusing situation...

The familiar punishment for under age drinking is a Minor in Possession citation (MIP). What students don't know is that these minors can be charged with a felony.

The body is considered to be a container for alcohol," said Public Safety Sergeant Mike Lafata. "If alcohol is in a student’s body, it's the same thing as having a can of alcohol.

That means that any underage student found with any alcohol content in his or her blood is subject to an MIP citation, which could result in community service, fines and court fees.

"When you get a [MIP] ticket, you have to appear in court on Tuesday," Bancuk said. "If you have a class, too bad."

An MIP ticket will also appear on a student's record as a misdemeanor. One mistake as a minor could follow a student after graduation.

"When you're in the job market, a misdemeanor will be on your record," Bancuk said. "It could mean the difference between getting a job or not."

And an MIP is only one possible punishment. Students who furnish alcohol to minors, or sell alcohol at parties can face felony charges. "Don't sell alcohol," Bancuk said. "Don't be creative in covering up selling alcohol, saying you’re just selling cups."

Bancuk insisted that she and the Holland Police are not out to get Hope students. The police will only respond when called, or when they witness a violation.

"We go in because someone called," Bancuk said. "We don’t go around picking on Hope students. If we hear music coming from a residence and we’re over 50 ft. away, that’s breaking a city noise ordinance. If we see someone with a cup and are walking around, or are drinking in the back of the car we’ll stop them."

Although the law is the law, a student’s attitude can affect whether or not an officer will issue tickets, or whether the officer will break up the party.

"When we get a call, we’ll look around and check for alcohol and ask for the owner or renter of the house," Bancuk said. "If students are real cooperative, a lot of times we’ll just break up the party. It depends on which officer is there."

Students should also be aware that the same laws apply for drinking on campus. Not only will a student be punished by the city, but a guilty student will face the Hope Judicial system as well, which could mean a phone call home to the student’s parents.

"All our reports go to Student Development," Lafata said. "Public Safety will not call a parent. However, Student Development may."

Lafata stressed that students who are worried about a medical situation due to alcohol consumption should always feel free to call Public Safety.

"If [students] choose to drink, they should do it in a safe manner," Lafata said. "Typically, in medical situations, we won’t issue an appearance citation."

However, students who choose to drink, especially those who choose to drink using fake IDs, should be aware that the Holland Police Department plans to crack down on underage drinking this year. "We’re going to be out there," Bancuk said. "We’re going to set up some stings.

Sick of normal radio shows?

Here's one that's definitely weird...

Battle of the Bands

Andrew Lortz and Jane Bast

Monday through Friday at 9 PM

On 89.9

WTHS

We dish it out on land and sea.

Recycle the Anchor!
Beyond boundaries: education the foreign way

Daniele Koski & Julie Green
Staff writers & Spotlight Editors

Oaxa, Canberra, Buenos Aires, Krassnodar: these are just a few places Hope students can go for a semester, or even a year, to study abroad. More and more students are choosing to find their path away from Hope.

"After we graduate from college, there's really not that opportunity," said Maureen Peters ('02), who went to Freiburg, Germany for spring semester last year. Peters, a German and Language Arts composite double major, decided to go to Germany her sophomore year, although junior year is customary for most students.

"We encourage juniors to go," said Amy Otis, who advises students on international trips. "It's the best time. Typically, academically, they are ready. Peters, however, went her sophomore year because of her education major.

"We see a whole range of students and majors going," Otis said.

Currently, students are choosing to go to less traditional places. For instance, this semester, many students went to Spanish-speaking Latin American countries, but no students went to Spain.

Otis attributes this to the fact that students may be venturing out more. Through students are going to more unique locations, many still don't know the depth of choices they have.

Hope-sponsored trips abroad include Senegal, China, Vietnam, Russia and Jerusalem. Fluency in a foreign language isn't required for all international trips, Otis said. For example, the University classes in Dijon, France, are taught in English.

Money is also a concern for many students, but trips aren't as financially draining as they seem.

"In most cases, your financial aid package can apply," Otis said. The International Education Office, also offers scholarships.

"We encourage juniors to go. It's the best time."

-Amy Otis
International Advisor

"I learned more about other people and myself then classwork," Brevet said.

Students who are interested in learning more about trips abroad can attend the International Fair in Maas Auditorium, Sept. 25 from 4:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Most programs, including May and June terms will be represented.

PHOTOS COURTESY Matt Neighs

ROUGH TRAVELLING: Matt Nehs ('02) rides a mule through the Ecuadorian terrain while on a May term to the Galapagos Islands. During his trip to Galapagos, Nehs took twenty rolls of film, and then took another six in Vienna, where he spent the June term.

We'll pick YOU up! Meet at the Anchor on College Ave. at 9:10am

Worship: 9:30am
Current Topic Discussion - 11:00am
Delicious Sunday Dinner - 12:00pm
We'll pick YOU up! Meet at the Anchor on College Ave. at 9:10am

"Sharing First's love as Christ first loved us!"

For Sale: Double Bed with frame, asking $150. 12,000 BTU air conditioner $200, paid $450 brand new and has been used only one summer. Call 857-8750.

M-Okay, we’re seriously going to run again. And thanks for the flurry (oh wait, the Razzle). -A Vanderprov- To all you groupies out there, and anyone else interested, we have a website, and it is http://vanderprov.fun. Be sure that you have the sound on your computer turned on.

Jane- You’re a sweetie to put up with me for an hour every evening, even if your song isn’t as good as mine.

Van Vleck Ladies- We’re taking them down, one Chuck at a time.

ari, kt, calster and amanda- pizza Thursday? let’s keep this thing together. -j andre- don’t worry, you’ll never be a chuck.

Rob- Hope you enjoyed the pizza.

I love you Grandpa Koop. -Rand

Wanna- when are you and peggy sue gettin’ hitched?

Durfee boys- nice butts.

Matt- sorry ‘bout the house.

Top Ten Ways to Recycle the Anchor:
10. Stitch together a makeshift newsprint poncho.
9. Tear into little bits and throw at a friend. It’s surprising birthday confetti anytime!
8. Eat them. Anchor issues are a significant source of riboflavin.
7. Cut them into pretty flower shapes to decorate your room.
6. Send them to Irkutsk orphans to console their misery.
5. One word: umashankar.
4. Use them to swat at the bats attacking you (a la Hunter S. Thompson or residents of Kollen Hall).
3. Light them on fire to drive Frankenstein into the windmill.
2. Use them to wrap your collector series of Ted Nugent decorator plates.
1. Place them in the recycling bins in your apartment or residence hall.

www.gazellesports.com

HOLLAND • Downtown - 24 West 8th St
M-Th 10-9 • Sat 9-6 • Sun 12-5 • 616/392-2262
KALAMAZOO • Downtown on the Mall
GRAND RAPIDS • 321 E. 6th St

WTHS 89.9 The New Voice of Hope College

GOOD LUCK HOPE STUDENTS ... AND HAVE A GREAT YEAR!

WE HAVE JUST THE THING YOU NEED TO MAKE YOU FEEL AT HOME...

DORMROOM CARPET

AS LOW AS $20

GREAT COLORS AND PATTERNS

SO HURRY DOWN AND GET THE BEST SELECTION

Carpet Bonanza

1118 Chicago Drive at 11th between Kalamazoo & Niles
Open Daily 9-9:30, Mon. & Fri.; until 5pm, Saturday 11-6.
We have more than great carpets.

The Admissions Office is looking for Overnight Hosts for Fall Semester!

Do you have strong interpersonal, communication and time management skills? Enjoy meeting new people? Would you like to play an influential role in a prospective student’s college decision?

If you think you and your roommate might be interested, please drop by the Admissions Office (10th and College) for an application or call us at x7850 (we’ll mail one to you).

Applications are due by September 11, 2000.

NEW!

Delicious Nachos!

Don’t forget about Monday Night Fried Chicken Dinner and the many other weekly specials. And... on your way out don’t forget to grab a creamy milkshake on your way to class.

New Balance

Speedo

Birkenstock

Patagonia

Adidas

Gazelle Sports

10% OFF

Take 10% off your purchase.

*Offer expires 8/31/00

*Cannot be combined with any other sale.

*Not valid with other coupons/discounts.

The sweaty palms thing is the pizza.

Harsh, man.
Men 1st, women 4th in cross country invitational

Jane Bast

The Flying Dutchmen finished first in the third annual Hope College invitational last Saturday, despite running in a rain-drenched course that had some runners concerned for their ankles. "This is not an easy course," said Dylan Wade ("02), who was the first Hope runner to finish. Wade's time of 26:07 for the 8K race was beaten only by one runner, Caree Comer's Joel David, who ran the course in 25:32. The Dutchmen had three runners in the top ten finishers, including co-captain Joe Veldman who finished third with a time of 26:39 and Donavan Hornbeck ('04) who finished sixth at 27:17. Veldman feels that the course offers a challenge others don't. "This is one of the few real cross country courses we run on," said Veldman. "Most races are on golf courses now."

The Flying Dutch, who ran without key team members like captain Jenny Ernst ('00), took fourth place honors.

First to finish for Hope in the 3K was Jamie Grant ('01) who, with a time of 19:39, took 9th place overall. Other top finishers included Kristin Post, who finished 10th with a time of 19:40 and Anna King, who came in 14th with a time of 19:53. King, who knocked more than a minute of her personal record, felt that the course conditions added an extra challenge to her 3.1 mile run. "The hills were slippy. I was glad I wore my spikes."

The course was so muddy, said King. "I was excited about the future. We had several team members run personal bests, as well as some strong finnishes from the freshmen."

Although the course posed some extra challenges, Cross County coach Mark Northuis feels that both teams are prepared for the regional week. "Thirty-five teams will run. We'll get a chance to see some good teams that could be contenders."

Northuis feels that both teams are in for a good year, a sentiment that was echoed by Veldman. "We're looking good and running strong," Veldman said. "Good things will happen this year."

Volleyball: Today at 6:30 PM, vs. Albion, AWAY.

Women's Soccer: Friday at 2:00 PM, vs. Millikin, HOME.

Men's Soccer: Friday at 4:00 PM, vs. Millikin School of Eng., HOME.

Men and Women's Cross Country: Saturday at 10:30 AM, Hanover Invitational, AWAY.

Volleyball: Saturday at 11:00 AM, vs. Calvin, AWAY.

Football: Saturday at 6:30 PM, vs. Valparaiso, HOME.

16th Annual A.J. Muste Peace Lecture

"Speaking Truth to Power"

"The U.S. Army School of the Americas"

Father Roy Bourgeois

Maryknoll Priest

Thursday September 7, 2000

11:00 AM

Maas Auditorium

Sponsored by the A.J. Muste Memorial Committee, Women's Studies Program, Holland Powermakers, St. Francis de Sales Parish.