Local Harbor Once Filled With Sailing Vessels; Forest of Masts Near Landing Places

"WINDJAMMERS" PLAYED IMPORTANT PART IN INDUSTRIAL LIFE OF CITY

Steamboats Supplanted Schooners 45 Years Ago; Soo City Was Most Popular Craft

While Holland has its direct rail connection through the Pere Marquette railroad with splendid service, and the Michigan R'y with dispatch freight and rapid freight service to Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Detroit, and the truck line services, recently inaugurated, shipping by water has also played an important part in Holland commercial and industrial life.

In the early days this harbor was filled with schooners, and at the landing places so many of them were docked that there was a veritable forest of masts in the inner harbor.

These sailing vessels carried lumber, bark, merchandise for domestic purposes, some specialize in the butter and egg trade, however, most of them loaded up with the products from the forests of this vicinity destined for Chicago and Milwaukee, returning with flour, meat, stoves and such other merchandise as are necessary in a community of this kind.

Gerrit Van Schoelven and Chief Frank Van Ry being in a reminiscent mood, jotted down the

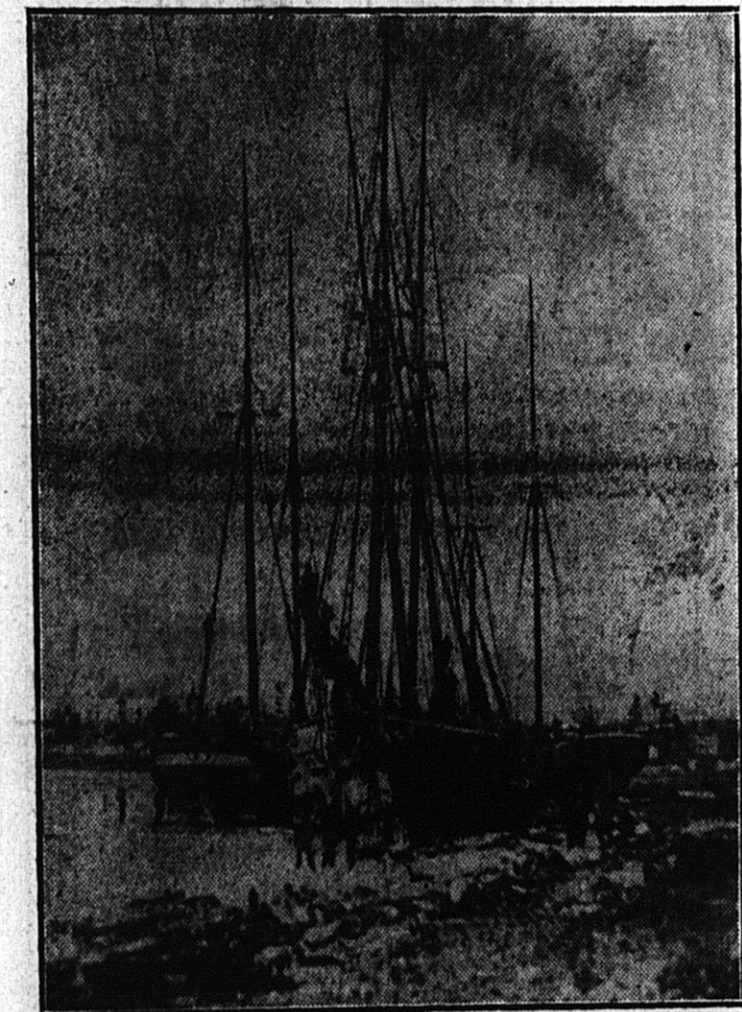

"Our Son." Both vessels have been in this port within the last few years, and their arrival was a matter of great curiosity to the citizens at the present time.

Steamboating started at this port about 45 years ago, but only in a small way. The first steamer to enter this port was the Allen, owned by A. C. Van Raalte, captained by Arie Walton, carrying passengers between Holland, Grand Rapids and St. Joe. Then there was the "side-wheeler," Huron, her hull being somewhere at the bottom of Black Lake, near the Ottawa Furniture Company. The Comet was also a side-wheeler.

The following other steamers too made this port headquarters during Holland's steamboat period: Croton, Capt. M. Hopkins; Fannie Schriver, Capt. Upham; Twilight, Capt. Frank Brouwer; Watson, Capt. Austin Harrington; Post Boy, Capt. P. De Feyter; Music, Capt. Mitchell; D. P. Perry, Capt. Frank Van Ry; Ottawa, Capt. Frank Van Ry.

Then there was the Grace Barker, captained by Frank Brouwer who later left Holland for Ashland on Lake Superior.

The Queen of the Lakes, a side wheeler and pleasure steamer plying between Holland and the resorts, with Captain Rice in command.

This hunched-up lot of schooners were beached in the late fall of '73 shortly after they had anchored for the winter. A severe storm made those masted vessels drag their anchors and they were driven ashore near where the Donnelly-Kelley Glass Factory is now located. Among them are the Four Brothers, Arrow, Jones, Plugger, and Tri-Color.

number of sailing vessels that harbored here, making this port headquarters.

The list as given by them are as follows: Schooner, Marguerite, Captain John Pauels. 'Mad is the first sailing vessel to enter this port. Schooner Three Sisters, Captain Harry Smith; Schooner Henrietta, Captain Mass; Schooner Union, Captain Mass; William Tell, Captain Klausen; Schooner Pioneer, Captain Thompson; Hook Swallow, Sapt. A. Van Ry; (butter and egg trade) Schooner William Smith, Capt. William Smith; Schooner Planet, Captain Hull; Schooner Commencement, Captain Charles Pfaff Plugger; Schooner Dutton, Captain B. Van Ry; Schooner Tricolor, Captain John Klaus; Schooner Wollin, Captain John Borgman and Captain Nautia; Schooner Kate Howard, Captain John Warren; Schooner Jones, Captain K. Schaddelee; Schooner Four Bros, Captain Isaac Thompson; Schooner Wonder, Captain A. Bolhuis; Schooner Hope, Capt. Henry Van Ry; Schooner A. Plugger, Capt. B. Van Ry; Schooner Mary Ludwig, Captain Harry Raffenaud; Schooner Seov Spray, Captain Chas. Storing; Schooner Kanters, Capt. B. Van Ry; Schooner Alert, Capt. Harry Raffenaud; Schooner, Hattie Fischer, Capt. Thompson; Schooner Banner, Capt. Chas. Brandt; Schooner Dr. Hult, Capt. Paul Vanden Berg.

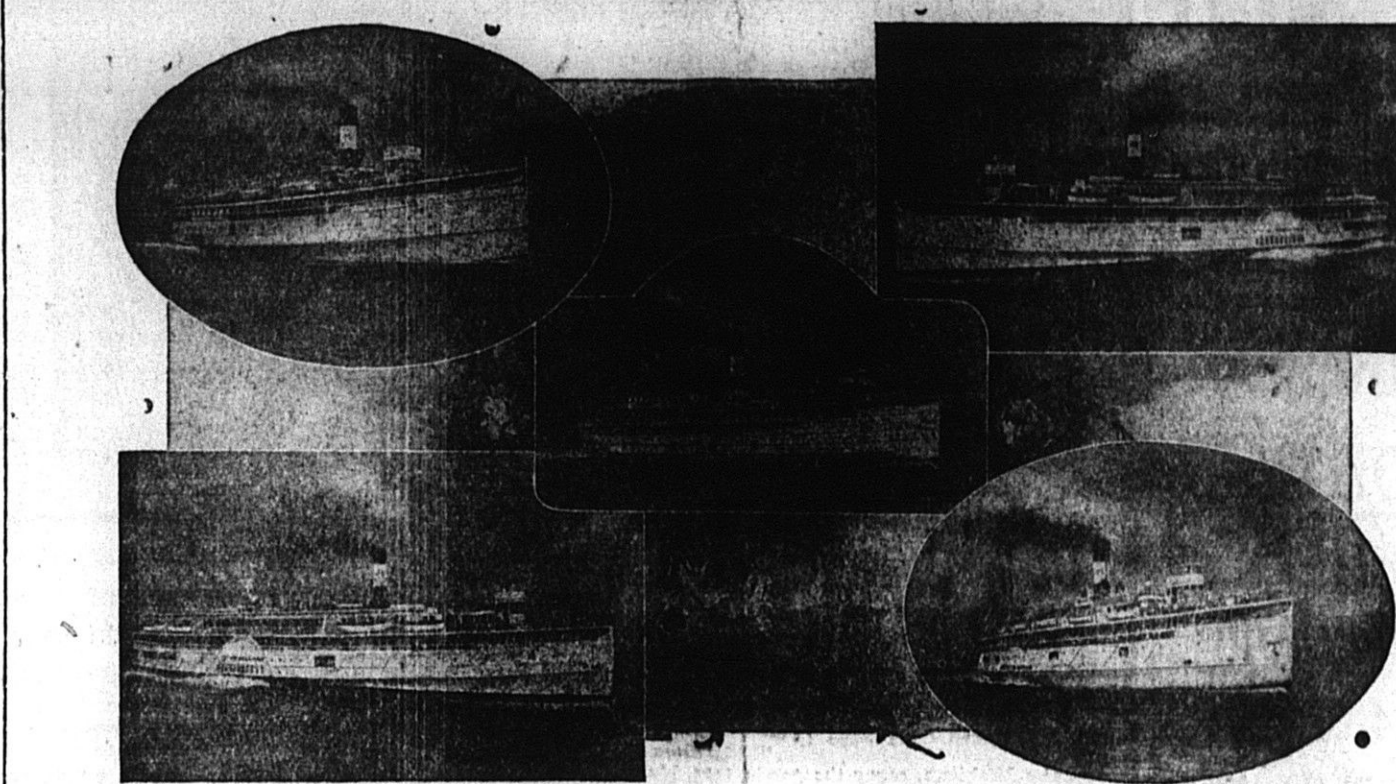

This list of sailing vessels comprise only a small portion of all those that plied from port to port in the early fifties and sixties. Mr. Van Ry stated that the hull of Dr. Hult, captained by Paul Vanden Berg, was for years seen on the beach near where the West Michigan now stands. It gradually rotted away, and no doubt part of its hull is now in the mud at that point. In a gale the vessel beached there and was never taken off.

This has been the fate of all the "windjammers," hundreds and hundreds of them, until at the present time there are only two left on Lake Michigan. One is the "Grand Haven" and the other is

GRAND HAVEN WANTS SUITABLE HIGHWAY MARKERS

Grand Haven Tribune—Suitable identification signs should be a part of every town on the main highway, because tourists have to stop far too often to ask the name of the town they are in to get their bearings. Of course this can be avoided when one happens to pass the postoffice of a town, but, while a few wide-awake towns have advertised their community and at the same time advised motorists here they were by means of an appropriate sign on the main road at either end of the town limits.

DUG HOLLAND'S FIRST HARBOR WITH SHOVELS

GOVERNMENT HAD FAILED THIS CITY WHEN HARBOR AID WAS PROMISED

Vessels Landed off "De Mond" and Goods Were Dragged Thru Sand To Boats in Black Lake

Nearly fifteen years ago a representative of the Holland newspapers called upon the late E. Vander Veen, one of Holland's early pioneers, and interviewed him about early Holland and particularly as this relates to Holland's harbor. It was Mr. Vander Veen's birthday anniversary and he was in a mood to speak about "old times." Mr. Vander Veen gave enough interesting matter at that time to fill four columns of the paper. However the portion of the article having to do with early Holland harbor history is especially timely and intensely interesting now, and was taken from an old file copy of the Holland City News.

The News said in part as follows: "Mr. Vander Veen also told the News representative about Holland's shipping, how its harbor was started and what difficulties he had in getting his stoves and other hardware to his little frame hardware store on River St. and Eighth street in Holland.

"He tells a very interesting experience that he had in coming from Chicago with a sailing vessel. This was in 1852. He said that after buying his supplies in Chicago and loading them on the schooner Marguerite, captained by John Pauels (father of Otto Pauels) they set sail for the shores of what is now Macatawa Park. They had just reached within hailing distance of the land when a north-west wind came up. There was no harbor to run into here, because this was before Holland had an entrance to Black Lake, and not wishing to be beached at the shore, Captain Pauels made for Saugatuck. By the time the Marguerite reached the mouth of the Kalamazoo river the waves were so high that the captain feared to enter so he went by the harbor thinking to make St. Joe. But early in the morning they were driving straight for the beach and in order to save themselves the heavy anchor fastened to a long chain was lowered and the Marguerite for four days rode at anchor until finally the sea went down enough so that the schooner could make the harbor which they found was Chicago and the place where they had started from. Mr. Vander Veen says that he never was so thankful in all his life as when he put his foot upon the pier on that Thursday morning and he did not wait for the schooner to go back, but took the train from Chicago to Kalamazoo, took the stage from Kalamazoo to Allegan and walked from Allegan to Holland, reaching Holland early Sunday morning, lucky to be alive. Neither Holland nor Allegan were connected by a railroad in those days.

"Speaking of a community that pulled together, our citizens of today could be taught from our pioneers of yesterday. If we Hollanders of today showed the thrift, the push, the energy, and the pull-together spirit that was displayed by our Hollanders of the fifties this city, would outstrip any other community in Western Michigan. Today it is child's play to do business compared with the methods of yesterday. But think of digging a harbor with shovel and pick, and no steam shovel or sand-sucker to aid in the arduous task. But then we leave it to Mr. Vander Veen to tell his story which will give more graphically the difficulties that beset the early pioneers and the trying situations that were to be overcome in order to shape and establish Holland's commerce, and the reasons why Holland citizens put their shoulder to the wheel in order to make it possible to get merchandise to Holland so that it would enable the merchants to do business.

"In the first place," said Mr. Vander Veen, "a number of merchants would go to Chicago to buy goods, they would charter a schooner, load the goods upon the schooner, take a chance upon the weather. If the weather was favorable they would sail from Chicago and anchor off the shores of what is now Macatawa Park. They would load the goods in small boats or yawls landing on the beach

PORTLAND TURTLE FISHING VENTURE PROVES SUCCESS

TWO MEN CAPTURE SEVERAL THROUGH ICE WITH HOOKS ON POLES

Fishing for turtles never has been classified as a winter sport in Michigan, but the secret of doing it has been discovered by two Portland, Michigan men and it may now become popular. Turtles never are seen on the they secrete themselves while hi-river in this vicinity in winter, and it was not generally known where hibernating. However, an observer had noticed them entering creeks tributary to the river late in the fall, and noted that they dug down into the muddy bottom, presumably to spend the winter.

This theory was tested by Robert Scadden and Dennis Guilford a few days ago, according to the Portland Review. The men rigged up special hooks and attached them to long poles. With these they visited a creek at a point not far from where it empties into the river, and began prodding along the bottom. Occasionally there would be a hollow sound indicating that they had struck the shell of a snapping turtle. With the hook it was an easy matter to bring the reptile to shore. The men were successful in securing several turtles in this manner, one of which weighed 16 pounds.

The merchants and citizens shouldered pick and shovel and started to dig a channel where it is now located. They did not select this course because it was the best but because it was the quickest way to get to the big lake. A large shack was built where the citizens could stay at night. All donated their services free and one of our pioneers, Mr. Plugger saw to it that the hard working men had enough to eat during their stay at "de mont." The provisions were donated by Mr. Plugger from his grocery store and were prepared for the hungry denizens by a certain Mr. Schilleman, who acted as cook. Mr. Vander Veen also said that two men boss-government the citizens got together to dig a harbor. The original outlet of Black Lake to Lake Michigan was between the hills on the Ottawa Beach side, and was said Mr. Vander Veen, "but we kept nothing more than a creek at most. on digging until we had a channel deep enough to admit a flat boat to go through so that the merchandise could be loaded from the schooner to the scow and then towed to Holland."

"A greswome-part of Mr. Vander Veen's story, and one upon which he did not dwell long, was the fact that the very earliest settlers who landed at the mouth of Black lake were attacked with an epidemic of small pox and died off that was begun at that time. But the citizens were doomed to disappointment because the harbor appropriation for Holland was revoked by President Pierce who was a democratic president and the democrats at that time were curtailing all around to make ends meet and save enough funds to run the government. Holland was one among many other lake cities that suffered on account of the economy practiced during President Pierce's administration. "But the citizens said we must have a harbor and they held a meeting and called for volunteers by scores. There was no Formaldehyde or other disinfectants at that time and the dead were buried as quickly as possible and not any too deep. Scores were buried on the Ottawa Beach side and Mr. Vander Veen said that while resting from their labors, sitting on the side of the hill running their fingers through the sifting sands he had on more than one occasion run his fingers through bunches of human hair, showing where a woman had been hastily buried in order to prevent the spread of the disease."

Old Harrington's dock at the foot of Fifth street taken in 1889 when vessels were still the principal means of transportation. This part of the bay was navigable at that time and besides the water was clear and the young men of those days used the docks to dive from.

HOLLAND—THE GATEWAY OF WESTERN MICHIGAN FOR CHICAGO AND THE GREAT WEST; STEAMSHIP SERVICE

By A. J. Johnson, Local Agent

Holland has become a very important factor as a seaport and an outlet for inland cities. I think it has been just recently that Holland people have awakened and come to realize the importance of its harbor. It is the biggest asset Holland possesses. Inland cities have realized it for years. The same applies to our Lake Michigan frontage. Now we find to our sorrow that we should have more fully realized its importance, and saved spots of the beautiful shore for our children and future generations.

You hear this remark so often, "The automobile has changed the world." Well, it has, and it has of course affected all transportation lines very materially. It has affected our steamship line to a great extent. In some instances it has of course decreased our revenue but it has also enabled us to branch out into territories not heretofore blessed with overnight service to Chicago. For instance, during the past two or three years we have truck line connections bringing to us celery, lettuce and all kinds of perishable fruit and produce, from Hudsonville, Byron Center, Vriesland, Dorr, Ross, Hamilton, Saugatuck, Douglas, Fennville, Glenn, Ganges, Pullman, Bravo and South Haven. We are in hopes of branching out farther this spring.

The Michigan Railway, with its up-to-date equipment of steel cars and double track, is our great connection, very instrumental in holding the Grand Rapids business.

The management of my company has the greatest confidence in Holland and vicinity. If they had not they would not have battled with eighteen inches of blue ice, to open up Holland's front yard. The management is composed of wide awake men with many years of steamboat experience. They like our town, repeatedly remark about its beauty, nicely kept homes and sound industries with a steady growth. They are watching you, and stand ready at all times to grow with you.

Our steamers are all fitted out with the latest equipment in order to make them seaworthy and perfectly safe. They all have a full complement of able-bodied seamen and experienced sailors. Our steamers always get the highest rating from the Government Steamboat Inspection Bureau and Underwriters.

We love you one and all. We wish all the Industries, Mercantile Establishments and Resorts Prosperity. This city and vicinity cannot help but grow. It has a foundation which cannot be improved upon.

Remember, we are with you at all times.
Sincerely,
Goodrich Transit Co.
A. J. Johnson,
General Agent.

TABLE SHOWS HOW PICKEREL GROWS

TEMPERATURE OF WATER HAS MUCH BEARING ON SIZE

The rate of growth of the pickerel, like that of any fish, depends much upon the available food supply and to some extent upon the temperature of the water.

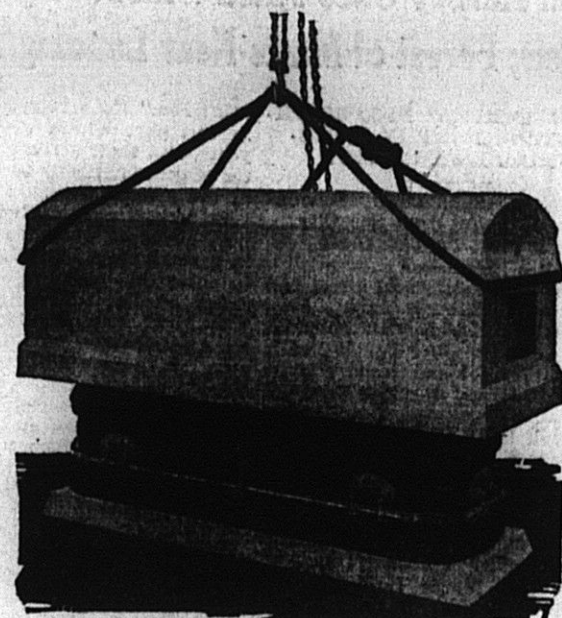

Tomlin (1892) said that as soon as they are able to take care of themselves they show the family likeness and begin their bold predaceous attacks upon the fry of the silver chub and shiner family.

The Massachusetts fish commission reported (1870) that its rate of growth seems to vary with the temperature in a pond fed by a large spring brook. When there was enough food but cold water their growth seemed slow. In support of the statement the following was given:

One year	4.5	0.5
Two years	7	1.5
Three years	10	2-12
Four years	13.5-14.5	2-12
Five years	17.5	34
Six years	20	40

On the other hand, it was stated that in a large warm pond, covered with lily pads and full of young ale-wives, pickerel have reached 4 and 5 pounds in three years.

There are 200,000 kinds of bugs preying on the trees of this country. They cause an annual loss of millions and but for the song birds must not be overlooked.

would more than double the cost of their depredations. Certain experts say that the loss due to the ravages of the insects is far greater than losses due to forest fires. In a single section of Oregon these pests destroyed enough trees to build 8,000 homes, costing $10,000 each. Pine beetles, borers, timber worms and various kinds of moths and flies that leave eggs on the leaves are to be eradicated if man is to win in his unequal fight. Bark beetles have killed many spruce in the Adirondacks. The larch has become a victim of the sawfly. The pine beetle has laid waste the lodge poles of the beautiful Yosemite national forest and many other sections of the Rocky mountains and western forests. Protection of our birds is a phase of forest protection that must not be overlooked.

Lane, Holland Chair, Bay View, Holland Maid and the Ottawa are putting in outstanding displays of furniture, pianos and washing machines. These features are all new and high in fact. It is one long booth with compartments for each and every industry.

There are many more manufacturers displaying their wares; in fact, there are fifty in number and more will be named from time to time as the week advances.

The exhibition hall is as crowded as it can be, leaving just enough room for allies in order that the public may pass through, and the only corner decorated for the occasion, the glee clubs, the quartettes, the ukulele orchestras that will be there during the week.

While the armory will be open tonight the official opening will not be until Tuesday night, for the reason that it takes some time to get all the displays in, and workmen and decorators will still be busy this afternoon and tonight, and it is advisable to wait until Tuesday evening, when the entire show is completed.

The exhibition building will be open from 2 P. M. until 10 P. M. every day after today for the entire week. At night the building will be open of course as long as the show comes. There is nothing to worry, the admission to the show is free, and Made-in-Holland week is a week of education, and pupils of the rural schools and the schools in the surrounding cities, as well as the students in the local schools and college, are given a cordial invitation by the city of Holland and its manufacturers to attend this exhibition.

A great musical treat is in store for those who hear Jack Wood's male quartet and bell ringers, who are scheduled to appear at the Christian high school Thursday evening. This company presents a unique program with a dash and verve which instantly makes a tremendous impression on the audience. Bell ringers, and male quartet, feature of this company's offerings. Male quartet numbers are a notable part of the program and frequently the singers accompany themselves on the bells with an effect which will be long remembered. In addition to the music of the bells and the vocal selections, humorous readings and instrumental numbers employing violin, cello, banjo and piano are splendidly presented. This is the last number of Young Men's Alliance and it is to be staged on Thursday night. A jammed hall is expected, as nearly all the tickets are sold.

W. A. Conrad, who for the past five years has been superintendent of schools at Coopersville has been named for another term. Since coming to Coopersville in 1921 he has seen the school grow until at the present time there is hardly room to accommodate the students, and some sort of a building program is a necessity. He is also a member of the board of county school examiners.

George H. Mennenga of German Valley, Ill., has been named as the annual commencement of Western Theological seminary, scheduled for May 12. Mennenga was graduated from Central college in 1920. The other commencement address will be delivered by a member of the board of superintendents.

The class of 1926 numbers 11. Nine will enter the ministry. Luke A. Brunsting of Holland is the first prospective graduate to accept the promise of a call to the Reformed church at Sully, Ia.

Practically all the members of the class have received promises of calls upon graduation, but with the exception of Brunsting no decisions have been made.

A warning light relative to the nearness of the waterfront has been installed to replace the old red painted sign at the intersection of Washington street, Grand Haven. This new light is of the intermittent flashing variety, showing a brilliant red light at night in place of the constant red globe of the old one. A sign informing oncoming traffic that Grand river is nearby is illuminated during the night and readily discernible in daytime.

This is the street where the bodies of two men were found on the river bottom, together with the automobile in which they ran off the dock. The heirs of these men of Muskegon are suing the city of Grand Haven for $60,000 each.

Because of the illness of a Doctor by Divinity who was the "first-together" meeting of Hope church men's Bible class, taught by G. J. Diekema, the program had to be rearranged hurriedly, shortly before the event was to take place at the church parlors Thursday evening.

Dr. John E. Kulsenga, D. D., could not appear, he being slightly indisposed. However, as it turned out there were plenty of D. D.'s to fill out the program. It is quite a coincidence that each and every participant in the program possessed a name in which the first letter was a D. This unusual circumstance did not occur to anyone present until someone began to check up toward the close of the program when it was found that "D's" predominated in both the speaking and musical offerings.

The president of "Diek's" class, whose name should have been "Dolliver," instead of Olive, first called upon C. J. Dregman for a talk. Next came Con De Free, who in turn was followed by Dr. Davidson, D. D. The speaking program closing with a speech by G. J. Diekema.

The musical numbers were given by such artists as Willis Diekema, Martin Dykema and George Dok. Had the naming insurance man only been named after fighting Dolliver rather than after the emblem of peace, the arrangement of the program might have run something like this: Speakers, Dregman, De Free, Davidson and Diek; musical numbers, Dykema, Dolliver, and Dok. Anyway, it was a "dang" fine program.

CAMPBELL TO BE SENTENCED NEXT WEEK

Kenneth Campbell, 18, high school athlete and member of one of Grand Haven's most prominent and wealthy families, was convicted Saturday by a jury in circuit court at Grand Haven on a charge of negligent homicide growing out of the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Braak, newlyweds of Spring Lake. The Braaks died as a result of being run down by a car driven by young Campbell the night of last Jan. 31.

The jury deliberated less than 20 minutes, announcement of the verdict climaxing a two-day trial which attracted considerable interest. The conviction of the youth was something of a surprise, a coroner's inquest held shortly after the tragedy having resulted in young Campbell being exonerated of all blame. However, more evidence than was submitted at the inquest later came into the hands of officials and the case was reopened.

The morning session of court was largely taken up with the pleas of Attorney Louis H. Osterhouse, for the defense, and Prosecutor Fred T. Miles. Mr. Miles stressed the fact that for three years past young Campbell had been arrested several times for speeding, and added he did not have the reputation of a careful driver. Mr. Osterhouse dwelt on testimony that had been offered, to the effect the youth was not driving fast when the tragedy occurred. He also expected the jury to show mercy to the youth and his family, saying they already had suffered much because of the unfortunate incident.

Judge Orlan S. Cross, in his charge to the jury, took about 40 minutes in reviewing the case. He cited laws giving the pedestrian equal rights with motorists on the highways.

Young Campbell and his father hear the jury's verdict without show of emotion. Mr. Osterhouse asserted it was probable a new trial would be asked.

The youth is scheduled to receive sentence next week. The maximum penalty for his offense is five years imprisonment.

Standardized sandwiches and other food products, served at uniform prices, in roadside stands built and painted exactly alike, from Miami to Seattle and from New York to San Francisco, is the latest development of the chain store idea. And it already has quite a start. Promoted by a Chicago corporation, about 500 of these stands are now doing business in Florida and Wisconsin, the two states where the plan was first put into operation.

It is said that Michigan is the next state in which the promoters will work, and that a contract already has been made for the erection of at least one of these stands on M-11 near Saugatuck early in the spring.

The promoting company does not own or manage the stands, which are conducted by local people. But to secure the co-operation of the company the owners must buy their uniform buildings and equipment from them, and maintain their establishments according to a set standard of service to the public. The owners of stands are expected to benefit from the co-operation brought about, and through public knowledge and confidence in the uniform standard of all stands belonging to the chain.

NEW DEPOT DEDICATED TO THE SERVICE OF THE PUBLIC ON SATURDAY AFTERNOON

Before a crowd of several hundred standing on the depot platform in a raw wind Saturday afternoon, Mayor Kammeraad, G. J. Diekema, A. H. Landwehr, E. B. Rich and other Pere Marquette officials, welcomed the people of Holland to inspect the new depot and congratulated the city and the Pere Marquette on the achievement. At the conclusion of the speaking program Mr. Rich, for the Pere Marquette, handed the keys of the depot to Mayor Kammeraad as a token of formal dedication of the new building to the service of the community and Mr. Kammeraad accepted them in the name of the city.

The activities of the day were inaugurated with a parade headed by the American Legion band. In the parade were the members of the council, other city officials, members of the chamber of commerce, the speakers, and citizens both on foot and in automobiles. A depot is the front door to a city, said Mayor Kammeraad in his address of welcome. "A depot makes the first impression on the stranger which is often a lasting impression. It is often the only contact between the stranger and the city. It is the city's house by the side of the road and the pass-world. "Then the time came when the railroad thought they owned the country and they did about what they pleased. So the government stepped in and curbed them in many ways, interfering often with their legitimate business. The government took the railroads by the throat and squeezed too hard. Both went too far and the people have seen that they went too far so that now there is a reaction and the people are willing to give the railroads a chance as was shown by the government's refusal last week to pass the Gooding bill. A few years ago Congress would not have dared to do this, but a sense of fair play for the railroads has come back to the people. All are beginning to realize that the railroads and the people need each other.

"Holland has never had a depot that really represented the city. The trouble was the Pere Marquette was in the hands of a receiver. And then the greatest railroad genius that the Pere Marquette has ever had, the present head of the road, pulled it out of its difficulties, and as one of the results of that we have a new depot. The old depot came on a flat we extend to all the road's officials the hand of fellowship." A. H. Landwehr spoke on behalf of the chamber of commerce of which he is president. "We congratulate not only the railroad but ourselves also," said Mr. Landwehr. "A new depot means much to us as a city because every new building erected in a town adds its own value to the value of the community, so that every property owner in Holland is enriched by the erection of the new building."

"Moreover, the new depot is a prophecy of the future. We believe that Holland is going to grow and that the new depot is only one of many indications that Holland is on the edge of great things, as is the whole of western Michigan. I believe that in the very near future Holland will not only be much larger but will have many more visitors. The time will soon be here when ten visitors will come to Holland for everyone that is coming now. It is our part to make them welcome, and one of the ways of doing that is the welcome that the new depot will extend.

"We hope that the railroad will continue its good work and extend its road to Ludington so that we can ferry across the lake, or else I hope that we'll get a ferry from Holland to Milwaukee. Holland is located in a strategic position. We are within a day's journey of 40,000,000 of the nation's people. The center of America's population is destined to be about the foot of Lake Michigan. Moreover, we have the best of Florida because most people take their vacations in sum-

"This depot was in part built in faith of what Holland will be and we must continue to build in faith. Michigan is keeping ahead of the states of its population in every line and Holland must keep up with Michigan. And that is what Holland is doing. It is a city that can well be proud of its public buildings, its stores and factories, and now it can add one more reason of pride, namely pride in a fine new passenger depot."

Mayor Kammeraad next introduced a number of Pere Marquette officials. George E. Hunt, formerly of Holland and now of Grand Rapids, expressed his pleasure and spoke of the good will of the company toward Holland. Mr. James Coopers expressed similar sentiments and asked for the patronage of the people for the new depot. Mr. M. M. Cronk, conveyed the regrets of the officials of the road for not being able to present and he also asked for continued co-operation between the community and the railroad.

After the program the crowd filed through the new depot and inspected it.

A pretty wedding took place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schaefenaar when their daughter Cora became the bride of Mr. Lucas E. Brink. The bride wore a pretty gown of Du Bois rose crepe and carried a bouquet of roses and swansons. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Gertrude Schaefenaar, who wore a pink flat crepe gown and carried roses and sweet peas. The groom was attended by his brother John Brink. The wedding march was played by Mr. Fred Olt. The rooms were beautifully decorated in pink and white. The wedding ceremony was performed by Rev. L. Veltkamp in the presence of relatives and friends and at 7:30 a reception was given for their friends. Many beautiful gifts were received.

Students preaching appointments for Sunday, March 28, are the following: Brower, Carr Mission; De Bruin, Falmouth; Brunsting, Fremont; Flikkema, Corinth; Lubbers, South Blenden; Meens, Garfield Park, Grand Rapids; Menninger, Grant; Mulder, Moorland; Rozendaal, Summit, Ill.; Scherpenisse, Sp. Lake, Presbyterian.

The business formerly owned by Henry Oosting, 17 West 13th St., and John H. Oosting, 111 East 22nd street, is now owned by Henry Oosting of 13th St., Dick Oosting, 146 East 15th St., and G. Mool, 364 Pine Ave., the latter two having bought out ohn H. Oosting. They have moved the manufacturing part of it back to 17 West 13th St. where this vault has been made since 1914. They were the originators of the burial vault business in Holland.

Three different kinds of vaults are manufactured, the latest being a vacuum vault which is claimed by leading undertakers to be the best on the market today. The vault allows the moisture of the body to drain out, but being vacuum will keep all moisture on the outside from coming in, leaving both casket and body dry.

Vaults will be on display at the armory during Made-in-Holland week. All are invited to come and see them.

The Allegan county road commission closed M-89 out of Allegan to Martin for much needed repairs.

ARENDSHORST BUYS LAKE MICHIGAN PROPERTY

John Arendshorst and the men associated with him are now in possession of a mile of Lake Michigan front property. Mr. Arendshorst has bought four-sixths of the stock in what is known as the Ottawa Resort and Development company, which includes Idlewood beach. The stock purchased by Arendshorst was from George Schuurman, Frank Bolhuis, William Vander Ven and Frank Esenberger. The two old stockholders remaining in this company are Louis Vandenberg and George Albers.

Mr. Arendshorst believes that he owns the largest single stretch of resort property owned by anyone between Gr. Haven and Holland. Not that alone but in a very desirable tract, now extending from George Getz Lakewood farm south boundary line, nearly reaching to the property purchased by the Campfire Girls of Grand Rapids who will make extensive improvements there.

The tract included Eagle Crest Park, Idlewood beach and also a stretch of unplatted ground between the two which is to be platted soon. All this is still in its natural state and a big building program of improvements is in prospect, including electric lights, paving, and other conveniences that go hand in hand in developing resort property.

The new golf grounds to be made at Ottawa Beach are to be within short walking distance of Eagle Crest and Idlewood beach and the property is only a short way from Holland's new state park.

One of Holland's bird lovers Saturday morning made a special plea to other bird lovers to feed the little songsters today and tomorrow or as long as the snow makes it hard for the birds to find their food. She asks that people throw out crumbs or grain and give the birds a chance to get food. If there should be a frost after the fall of snow it would be particularly difficult for the birds to find food and all the more necessary for people to help them.

The young married women's class of the Trinity church Sunday school, John Oonk, teacher, gave a supper Friday night in the basement of the church to the young married women of the church, about 75 being present. The supper was prepared and served by the Ladies Aid society.

Mrs. G. H. Koolker, president of the class, was chairman and toastmistress. Rev. C. P. Dame responded to a toast. The rest of the program was: solo, Miss Tanis; remarks, Mr. Oonk; reading, Evelyn Van Dyke; reading, Miss White; piano solo, Mrs. Susanne Hamelink; Brower, trio, Mrs. F. Douma, Mrs. C. Lokker, and Mrs. A. De Fouw. After the program a social time was enjoyed. A campaign for new members was begun.

J. T. Rich, governor of Michigan from 1893 to 1897, died in Florida at the age of 85 years. Mr. Rich was known as the farmer governor and spoke in Holland at two different times at the Holland fairsgrounds.

FORMER HOLLAND LADY DIES IN GRAND RAPIDS

Mrs. Ellen De Jonge, one of the early citizens of this community, died suddenly at her home, 2126 Horton Ave., Grand Rapids. Mrs. De Jonge's maiden name was Miss Vandenberg, better known to the young men and young women who lived in this community forty years ago as "Leuntje" or Ellen Vandenberg. She taught the large Sunday school primary class in the old Van Ralte church for many years, and in the religious activity the youth of Holland at that time knew her best.

Her father, Mr. James Vandenberg, was an elder in the "big pillar" church and was prominent in the counsels of the church during the secession fight, in which many entered. This was some 45 years ago.

Late in life Miss Vandenberg married Mr. De Jonge and they resided on West 12th street across from the Diekema home. Mr. De Jonge was a gardener, and his garden on West 12th was a show place in the early days.

Mrs. De Jonge established the first real millinery store in this city, more than a half century ago. She built what was known as the Vandenberg block on the northwest corner of 8th street and College ave., where the millinery business was located for many years. Later the millinery shop was purchased by the late Mrs. M. Bertsch, mother of Frank Bertsch living on the northside. The store is still occupied by a millinery shop conducted by the Huyser sisters and the Rose Cloak store occupies the west half of the building.

The large granite slab is the most conspicuous object in these burial grounds.

Holland's New Pere Marquette Depot

ing strangers judge the city by it. Hence we are glad to have the new depot which will give a good impression upon us the duty of hospitality to the stranger and it should make us more friendly to all who come here or who pass through. As a people we should try to make the impression on the visitors a good one."

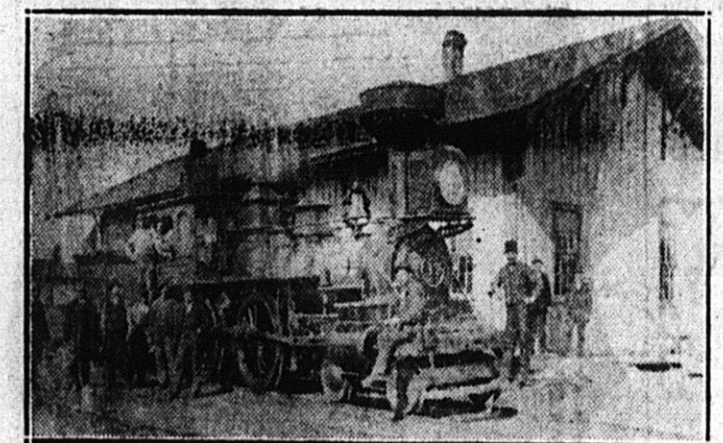

G. J. Diekema spoke on behalf of the people of Holland. "There are four great pillars in the temple of American industry," he said. "These are the pillars of transportation, agriculture, commerce and manufacturing. And of these one of the greatest is transportation. Holland is unusually fortunate in its transportation facilities. We have the interurban, water transportation, and the main line of the biggest and best steam railroad in Michigan, namely the Pere Marquette."

"I remember the time when there was no railroad in Holland. I remember the first train that came here from Allegan and then there was a celebration a good deal like this one. I recall also the time when the freight yards were located where the new depot is now. We induced the railroad to move them to Waverley and then an attempt was made to move the city of Holland along with the yards to Waverley but that attempt was blocked."

"I remember many station agents at Holland but the best and most efficient of them all you all will agree, is E. B. Rich, the present incumbent. We all hope he will remain until his present grey hair is completely white. "It is only a little over a hundred years ago when the governor of New York advised against investing in railroad bonds, declaring that railroads could never carry passengers and that they would never be anything else than playthings. But see what has come to pass. Today civilization would be almost unthinkable without the railroads. They serve us in a thousand different ways and represent one of the greatest industries in the car and it aroused the contempt of the stranger. They could not imagine a fine, beautiful, clean, busy city back of such a shack of a depot. But now we have a depot that fairly represents the city and the stranger will be able to believe in Holland as a modern city in every way. We are happy in the growth of the city's prosperity and the railroad's prosperity and mer and not in winter and we are ready to receive the summer visitors while Florida is ready only for the winter visitors. Chicago is destined in the very near future to be the steel center of America and that will make it the center of many other industries. And Holland and all other cities in this part of America will benefit from that.

Holland's First Depot Taken On September 10, 1876

The above picture was taken by B. P. Higgins, Holland's first photographer, in 1876. This depot was located between Ninth and Tenth streets, where Huieng's coal yard is now located. The depot could be reached from either one of the streets. Three engines in front of the depot is one of the old wood burner type with spark arrester. This was in the days when wood was plentiful and engineers would stop along the roadside anywhere to pick up a load if they ran short. The railroad at that time was called Chicago and Michigan Lake-shore railroad and there were three trains daily going to and from Chicago and Grand Rapids, and two to Muskegon.

The late Mr. Matrau, at one time alderman of Holland, was the station master and the late John Ver Schure of Holland was the baggage man. The switch yards were at that time located in Holland, extending from 8th street south to what is now 4th street. Later the yards were moved to Waverley when a congestion in the Holland yards compelled the officials of the railroad to move these to Waverley, 35 years ago.

A large roundhouse and water tank occupied the present site of the large Holland Gas company holder. This roundhouse was burned 37 years ago when two engines were also destroyed. Later the name of the road was changed to the Chicago and West Michigan and Detroit, Lansing and Northern, now all in the Pere Marquette system.

Holland's Depot No. 2, on the Site Where the New One Is Built

The photo from which this cut was made was, much faded, and it was difficult to get all the details. The second floor was used as a dispatcher's office, and for that reason the late Frank Carr, the large man thumbholing his vest, is so conspicuous in the picture. Tatsey Grimes, the "dudish" telegraph operator of his day, is also perched up there. The man with the silk hat, leaning against the pillar, to the right of the picture, cian, well known here 30 years ago. The big man with the white hat is George Nichols. The man playing the banjo might be "Dugan", but it isn't. The old engine is one that amputated the arm of Sam Miller, when Sam was still a railroad man. The picture was loaned to this paper by Mr. Miller.

Other men connected with the depot at that time were A. Mc Nabb, George Hunt, Charley Warren, Brown, Frank C. Nye, Mr. Churchill, Mrs. Rose and later John Holcomb. The late Theron Metcalf and his wife conducted the restaurant. The depot that followed this one is too well known to need any description, for it had been the eyesore of this city for more than 25 years, and was removed in order that the new depot might be built. This depot was moved to Holland from Oakdale Park, Grand Rapids, on flat cars.

INSANE MAN TERROR TO COUNTRYSIDE

Oliver Center, North Holland, and other places in that section of the county have been terrorized for several days by a man who, it was found later, had escaped from the state hospital in Kalamazoo. He was captured near, Saturday afternoon by a group of farmers that had gone after him in automobiles. The man was directed by Deputy Sheriff E. Beckman and a large number of farmers were advised by telephone to be on the lookout for the fugitive. He had been seen in many places and the telephone signals finally worked and resulted in his capture.

He gave his name to the deputy as Norio Pretty and said that his home was in Lansing. He said he was 36 years old and that he had a wife and five children. It was assumed immediately that he had escaped from the Kalamazoo hospital and a telephone message to Kalamazoo substantiated this. He had escaped about six days ago, most of which time he spent in the Oliver Center section.

Most of the time, it is supposed, he slept out of doors and he lived on corn and raw beans taken from granaries of the farmers of that section. Occasionally he would milk a cow during the night and drink the milk. One night the outcrops became too cold for him and he crawled into a barn near Oliver Center but was captured before he could be captured.

He was taken to Holland when captured and was given food here. Then he was taken to Grand Haven and lodged in the county jail. He was the first inmate of the jail.

When asked Saturday night in Holland whether he had had any food he answered, "Yes, I had something to eat, but I could eat some more if they'd force me to do so." When food was placed before him he ate heartily.

Forty-five new members were received at the First Reformed church on Sunday and impressive ceremonies were held in connection with the reception of the members into the church. The church was crowded to the doors. The constitory of the First Reformed church will report to the next meeting of the classis the reception of a total of 98 new members during the past classis year. The meeting of the classis is to be held at the First Reformed church next week Tuesday, April 6th.

A proposition to bond school district No. 2 at Saugatuck for $87,500 for building and equipping a new school house will be submitted to a vote of the taxpayers of the district on Tuesday, March 30. The polls will be open for three hours, from 9:30 a. m. to 12:30. The polls will be at the village hall, and not at the high school building as was the case last fall when a similar proposition was voted on. Only taxpayers (real estate or personal) may vote on this question; women have no vote in this election. The polls will be held in the member of the family in whose name the property is held.

Arthur Welling, a celery grower near Grand Haven, had a narrow escape from death Sunday night when his car, a Star sedan, ran off the bridge just north of Grand Haven on M-11. The car was in the water and Welling lost control of the car, however, before the water engulfed it and to crawl to the bank in safety. The sedan was later rescued by a garage crew.

Because of the fact that Friday will be Good Friday, the H. O. H. will not meet on the evening of that day. The meeting has been set one day ahead and will be held on Thursday evening at the Women's Literary club hall. The regular meeting would have been on Friday night and because of the change the members are asked to make a special effort to be present on Thursday night. A good program is promised by those in charge.

Deputy Sheriff C. Dornbos arrested Wm. Hamelink and Ben Weller Saturday night on the charge of possessing and transferring liquor. The men were in Hamelink's car on M-11 west of the city and ran into the car of Paul Coster. Weller was driving the car. They were arraigned before Justice Den Herder Monday morning. Hamelink waived examination and was bound over to circuit court, being placed under $500 bail. Weller pleaded not guilty on the charge of driving a car while intoxicated and demanded a trial.

The double and the double Mrs. Henry A. and the double Mrs. Henry A. were killed in an auto wreck near Agnew Sunday, was held in the large 9th street Christian Reformed church, with Rev. J. De Haan and Rev. Koe officiating.

The church could not begin to accommodate the throng, for not alone was Holland represented but hundreds of friends and relatives came from the rural districts, where Mr. and Mrs. Assink were well known.

Mr. and Mrs. Assink were buried side by side in the Holy Trinity cemetery. Many floral tributes were placed upon the two caskets and the graves were filled with flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Assink are survived by three sons, 12, 11 and 8 years old. The two eldest, Fred and Elmer, still are in rather serious condition in Elizabeth Hutton hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Yunker and family left Tuesday morning for Chicago to attend the funeral of Mrs. Yunker's mother.

Le Corey returned from a week's business trip to Detroit.

GERRIT VAN SCHELVEN OLDEST JUSTICE IN HOLLAND

Gerrit Van Schelven, 84, is one of the oldest justices of the peace in the state. He was elected to that office soon after the big fire in 1871 and has served nearly 40 years. He was forced to quit the office for 17 years while postmaster, but when he turned over the keys of the federal building to his successor the office of justice was waiting for him and he was elected without opposition.

HOPE MEN'S BIBLE CLASS MEETING IS ATTENDED BY 100

At least 100 members and guests of the Hope Church Men's Bible class gathered in the parlors of the church Thursday evening for their annual get-together meeting. William J. Olive, the president, stated he regretted he had to report that Dr. John E. Kuizenga, who was scheduled as the principal speaker of the evening, was indisposed and was forced to cancel his speaking date.

The program was hurriedly rearranged and Mr. Olive first called upon Mr. Dregman, chairman of the membership committee. He stated that while the roster contained 125 names, the names did not always represent the class. The real class was somewhat reduced, Mr. Dregman stated, for it was only the men who attended classes regularly who could be called bona fide members of Hope church Bible class.

He advised the members to sell their religion to their friends. Urge their friends to attend regularly and in so doing there would soon be 125 actual members rather than that number of roster members.

Con De Prete told of men who sacrifice constantly for others. They live their lives for the good of others. He stated that there are many men who go through life taking all and giving nothing. He also said that there are many men who must help pay these shortcomings of others by sacrificing everything. He pointed out the great good that Hope college is doing, as well as the seminary. He named men like Dr. Dimment, Dr. Nykerk, Dr. Kuizenga, Dr. Van Ess and others as men who are sacrificing a great deal for these institutions of learning. It is their ideal way of doing their share. He then asked the question if Holland was doing its share to help them. Mr. De Prete thought not. He then pointed out the efforts and sacrifices made by Nellie Churchford and her mission. "Are you shouldering your part of the burden?" asked Mr. De Prete. "If not, then you are not sharing. Put the question to yourselves and then act," said Mr. De Prete.

He also brought into his discourse the Boy Scout movement and how through this movement we are rearing men, upon whose shoulders the burden of the world's future will fall later. Are we playing fair with these boys, are we doing our best to help them? Said Mr. De Prete, "Why is religious progress so slow? Because we do not get back of it, you and I and all of us. If our efforts were directed as strongly toward religion as they are in material things, the progress made by religion would be tremendous."

Dr. Davidson spoke briefly on the subject, "The Challenge of the Church." He said that church has the right to challenge man, because church is the organized passion of God. If you destroy the church you destroy the greatest organization for good in the entire world. The church is here to represent Christ and therefore it has the right to challenge man.

The church challenges man for what she is and what she has. The church offers salvation to all mankind, it also offers leadership. The church has a right to challenge man for what she offers.

G. J. Diekema, president of the class, was then called upon for a talk in place of Dr. Kuizenga who could not be present. Mr. Diekema spoke of Bible reading and lack of Bible reading. He stated that he remembered his mother's and father's Bibles. There were thumb marks, were pencil notations and many references in these Bibles. The covers were worn, the Bibles had been in use and not in disuse.

He stated that there are many such Bibles in the city of Holland today that are religiously read, that receive a thorough study. He says further that sometimes, however, he enters a home where the Bible is conspicuously placed, but decorated with ribbons with a beautiful book mark hanging over the pages are unrolled, there are no notations or pencil marks showing that this great book is receiving attention by the members of the family.

Mr. Diekema then pointed out how millions upon millions of books are being published. Some find a speedy death, and it is well that they die speedily. Others survive a little longer, but the book of all books, that stands like a rock towering above the others, is the "Word of God," the Bible.

"There must be something in that book that is worthwhile, for its readers and its followers faced persecution, the stake and the flame axe."

Said Mr. Diekema: "I ask of you men to study your Bibles, it is the most interesting study, the most satisfying study, the most necessary study that mankind can be engaged in."

The musical numbers were given by Willis Diekema, who sang a bass solo, "King Charles," a cavaliere song; he was accompanied on the piano by John Lloyd Kollen. As an encore he sang the "Smugglers Song" and the smugglers were vividly pictured in this number by Mr. Diekema. Later on in the program Martin Dykema and Willis Diekema sang "The Huntsmen," and as an encore sang the "Alabama Cradle Song." The men were accompanied by Mr. George Dok, organist of Hope church. The ladies of the church served unusually fine refreshments after the program was completed.

Attorney Thomas N. Robinson was called to White Cloud, Michigan, because of the death of an uncle.

AT WORK ON PLANS FOR NEW SCHOOL

Architects are at work on plans for Holland's newest proposed schoolhouse to be erected on the site of the old Washington school which has served the city for several generations and which has outlived its usefulness. The board of education some months ago decided to erect a new school on the site during the coming year and also to eliminate danger to the pupils by having the playgrounds on the same side of the street as the school. To that end property was bought east of the present school house which will be used as a playground, while the old schoolhouse to be erected on the site of the old Washington school which has served the city for several generations and which has outlived its usefulness.

The board of education has been working on the general plans for the new building for some months and they are now getting to a stage where definite plans can be presented to the people of the city. The main aim of the board in all its work has been to keep within a reasonable cost as possible. While desiring to erect a substantial building that will serve the needs of the pupils of that section of the city, the board in all its plans has been leaning to the side of a modest expenditure as is compatible with a good building that will take care of the situation.

The idea is to rush the plans to completion as soon as possible and then to present the issue to the people for their approval. The present Washington school is very old and worn and while it is still doing service it is a building that is crumbling. The walls are crumbling, the floors are very poor, the ventilation system is practically non-existent because the building was erected before the science of ventilation was understood, the heating plant is worn out and inadequate, and moreover more room is needed in that section of the city to accommodate the pupils.

Announcement as to the time when the people will pass on the question is expected to be made soon.

The teachers and officers of the 4th Ref. church held their quarterly meeting Friday evening, Mr. Klaver, superintendent, presiding. Miss Nettie D. Groot gave an Easement reading. Mr. A. Sherman, seminary student, gave a vocal solo, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. F. Zigtman. There was a talk by Helme Nyboer. Mrs. J. Koopman gave an interesting talk on "Our Primary Department." A business meeting was held after the program and the following were present: Mrs. Zigtman and Mrs. Van Zoeren.

John K. Meyering, who was arrested a week or two ago on the charge of driving 35 miles an hour on 17th street and 25 miles on River avenue, was brought to Justice Den Herder's court by Deputy Sheriff Egbert Beckman. He had failed to make his appearance when ordered. He was fined $18.70. Meyering was told to appear in court when the arrest was made but he failed to do so and the deputy sheriff had to get him. This made the fine heavier.

An enterprise that was started in Saugatuck two years ago as an experiment to test out a new idea has this short time grown into a real business. The idea was a cherry cider, prepared under a special process developed by Edwin H. House. His customers at "The House by the Side of the Road" declared it to be the best drink they had ever tasted, and the Saugatuck and outside demand became so great that last season he not only made up his own large crop of cherries but purchased from others, placing enough in cold storage to supply the fall and winter demand.

His old plant having been entirely outgrown, Mr. House has just completed a large modern cider mill, built of cement blocks, and conveniently arranged for manufacturing and shipping this product, as well as his apple cider, in large quantities.

To start the spring's business he has just received a carload (11,500) of glass cups, and has purchased two tons of sugar.

The industrial committee of the chamber of commerce gives the following in the News Letter: The industrial committee has been very active recently in investigating industrial prospects which have signified their intentions of moving to Holland. In the majority of cases these industrial prospects are pure gambles with chances of success very, very small. Very few of them have even warranted an investigation.

One prospect, however, which the committee has worked with for the past two weeks has received more attention than usual. This prospect, like all the others, desires to sell stock. The committee decided that although the chances of the success of this industry are better than the average, the proposition they first submitted was not at all acceptable, and none of the members of the committee were willing to buy stock, as individuals, that this prospect offered.

However, we have received information that their representative will return to this city in the near future with an entirely new proposition, so far as the disposal of their stock is concerned. Although we cannot and will not endorse any stock selling scheme, whether good or bad, we will be pleased to turn over to our members any information which we may have concerning this particular industry.

The boys of First Reformed church will go on a hike Thursday. All boys meet at the church at 11 o'clock carrying their own lunch.

FARM MEETINGS TO BE HELD AT NEW RICHMOND AND FENNVILLE

The township chairman of the Jersey breeders ass'n will meet in the farm bureau office at Alligan at 1:30 Saturday, April 3, to discuss Jersey projects for 1926 and report progress. Pruning demonstration will be held at orchard of Sid Thomas near New Richmond at 10 A. M., April 6. Those not able to be at the pruning school at Fennville should attend this.

NEW ZEELAND- HOLLAND ROAD IS NEEDED

Zeeland Record—After what we may call a not severe winter, considering the season, when the snow is again gone and the ground begins to thaw up, we are impressed with the havoc the traffic has wrought on the main highway between Zeeland and Holland during the winter season when the weather alternated between freezing and thawing. It has become perfectly plain that this road will not stand up under another wet season, if it at all stands up until next fall. Much repaving is now necessary and unless quickly done the road will become practically useless, especially that part beginning at New Groningen and ending beyond the bridge.

The question then arises, should a new road way be constructed following the line of the old one? We doubt the wisdom of his very much. It might be very well to maintain the old road in good shape as a secondary highway, but as for a main trunk line to carry the enormously heavy traffic passing over M-51 the line between Zeeland and Holland should be re-laid in a more direct line, eliminating the rail line crossings and turns possible. We have the feeling that two or three surveys have been made, but we do not know that any has yet been accepted by the state highway department.

Much talk has been heard concerning this route and its location over Main street, while the business men are bound to the fact that over Main street while others insist that it is best laid over Washington street, and it was probably with this purpose in view that the city council last year decided to open up that street between Elm and State streets by the extraordinary method of spreading the tax over the city at large.

We should like to maintain M-51 over Main street, but the disadvantages to our business institutions are not so great as some imagine, were the road laid on Washington street. Then the advantage to the business community would be considerably discounted. The mishap at the new brass works plant might certainly have been averted. And there are several large advantages.

Whichever line the new highway is to follow in Zeeland city, we believe the outlet to the interurban along the north side until it reaches Holland city. There are several difficulties to overcome but none that would baffle the engineers. Our choice would be to go underneath the interurban line crossing it at the "brickyard" street, then parallel the line into Holland city. Just one drive over the old road will convince anyone that some such program is in order right now.

Miss Mattie Dekker was the speaker for the W. C. T. U. at their meeting on Friday afternoon. Her talk on "Problems with Children" was very interesting to mothers and deserved a large attendance. Her experience with backward children and her teacher's training gave weight to her opinions on causes for delinquency and its prevention. To teach obedience, self-control and to keep children off the street after dark was her advice to mothers.

Mrs. A. Pieters was elected as president for the coming year. Mrs. F. T. Miles led devotionals.

Cornelius De Vos, for 32 years owner of the Cooperaville Observer, and one of western Michigan's best known weekly editors, has sold his business to B. A. Verduin, of Zeeland, who will take possession April 1.

Verduin is a Cooperaville product, not was formerly an employee of Mr. Vos. He will be assisted in the office by L. W. Shears, who for five years was editor of the paper; and by Gerald Van Doorn, who has been employed in the office for the past four years. Mr. De Vos, who now plans to retire, began work as a printer in Iowa 53 years ago, and before coming to Cooperaville in January, 1894, was foreman in Gage and Sons' Printing company, at Battle Creek. He published his first issue of the Observer in February, 1894, and since that time has met with varying fortunes. His plant was entirely destroyed by fire at one time, but in spite of this fact, the paper was printed as usual. He continued as editor and publisher until six years ago, when he leased the business to Messrs. Verduin and Shears for three years and later to Mr. Shears alone for two years, resuming his active work on July 1 of last year.

Mr. De Vos for many years has been one of the most prominent rural publishers and editors in this part of the state, and he will be missed among the printing fraternity. He does not intend, however, to cease his work with the pen, but intends to devote his entire time to the study and teaching of Bible biology, a science concerning which he has written several books, and which he claims "will revolutionize the field of thought."

During the year 1924, $28,000.00 worth of business was done by the manufacturers in Holland. This is a very conservative estimate and it is expected that the total figures for 1925 will be much higher.—C. of C. News Letter.

REVIEWS WORK OF TEACHERS PAST YEAR

Superintendent E. E. Fell of Holland Monday night delivered his farewell address as president of the Michigan state teachers' association at the meeting of the representative assembly in Detroit. The assembly is being held for several days this week and other speakers from Holland will be Mrs. G. E. Kollen and Dr. J. E. Kuizenga. Mr. Fell's successor will be named at the present meeting.

The state teachers' association has enjoyed a healthy growth during President Fell's regime the past year, a gain of 1894 members being made during that time, making the total membership 26,762. Many of these were school board members, one of Mr. Fell's policies being to make the association one not exclusively of teachers but of board members and others directly or indirectly engaged in the educational program. In line with this idea an amendment has been introduced to change the name to the "Michigan Educational Association."

Among the outstanding recommendations made by Mr. Fell in his closing address was that the association erect a building of its own in Lansing where the office of the organization can be housed. He suggested that this building be in the form of a memorial to Michigan's great educational pioneer, Henry R. Pattengill and that it be named for him. Mr. Fell reviewed the work of the past year in the various departments of the association and he made a plea for placing greater emphasis on the spiritual values of education. On this point he said:

"I believe that the greatest need in education today is a decided increase in the emphasis placed upon the spiritual values in the life of the individual, the community and the state. The attention of the youth is constantly being directed to the commercial value of education, and probably always should be. Vocational training is an attempt to help prepare the boys and girls for occupation; and is responsive, perhaps too responsive, to the demands of industry. We rejoice in the great progress that has been made in recent years in the science of education, and rightly so. I trust that there may be no abatement in the improvement in the science and art of child training and in the secondary and higher education of our youth; but I would plead for a more scientific procedure, which will place the greatest emphasis where the greatest emphasis belongs. I believe that no one here will disagree with the statement that the greatest values in life are the spiritual values; that the greatest elements in the training of childhood and youth are moral and religious. In the tendency of society is to stress commercial and industrial values, the problem of educational leadership is to cause a still greater emphasis to be placed on the higher values in education and in society. The Michigan State Teachers' association has a very large share in the responsibility for right leadership in education in Michigan."

FENNVILLE PAPER KNOCKS ITS VILLAGE HIGHWAY

Fennville Herald—We have heard the question frequently asked during the past week as to who had jurisdiction over M-89 for a few blocks south of Baptist church. Densons of cars have been stuck in the mud within the village limits on this road since last Sunday. W. G. Billings and boys have helped out the most of them. Some drivers have said "thank you," some have tipped the boys but the most of those driving big cars have forgotten to express themselves in any way after getting out. In driving over the state it is noticeable that very often the roads in the village limits are worse than any country roads. Fennville has a piece from Baptist church, east that any village or country should be ashamed to own.

BANDITS MADE PLATE CHANGE IN OTTAWA CO.

Ottawa county sheriff's officers learned Saturday that the four young men who were taken at Stanton on a charge of robbing the Fenwick bank, were the party who discarded the Michigan license plates from the car stolen from James Hamilton of Detroit and substituted a pair of Indiana plates thereon.

The young men were evidently passing through this county en route to Belding to keep the date which resulted in their apprehension and arrest. An attempt is being made to link the youths with the murder of Mrs. Louise Lehrke of Manistee and the attempted robbery of her home. The aged woman was 96 years of age, and was reported to have kept a large sum of money about her home.

A few cigarette butts, the finger print on the emphy oil on the surface of a lamp and a garage-man's memory, may serve to bring the youths from their Montclair county bank robbery charge to Manistee to face a charge of murder.

The four boys are "sheik" types of bandits but have plenty of nerve and left a trail of crime behind them on a four day tour of western Michigan. The boys are Bert W. Letson, 19; Leon Wilcox, 17; Hugo Comfort, 19 and Michael Kilmarney, 23. All are from Pontiac, according to officers. The boys kept a move rapidly during the foray and visited many towns and cities in western Michigan. They had a big collection of loot with them.

What do You Desire Most in a Furnace?

When you know that one make of Furnace is giving a great number of people, including friends of yours, a full measure of satisfaction, it is not likely that you are interested in knowing why one casting is shaped one way and one another.

After all, what you pay for, is convenience and economy in the operation of the furnace, and you want, above all, abundant warmth throughout your home.

It is the result you are paying for, and it is the result that is offered you by the Holland Guarantee Bond.

Now is the maple syrup season. The forestry department of M. S. C. is sending out vials containing maple syrup samples of the different grades for 25c a set. These may be ordered through County Agent Gregg of Allegan or County Agent Milham of Ottawa.

Standard syrup must contain 11 lbs to the gallon; when the syrup boils at a temperature of 119° this density has been reached. Quality counts in all lines of work, but applies specially to syrup making.

Mr and Mrs W. E. Zietlow and family, George Witt and Henry Witt were called to Reed City on account of the death there Monday night of Beatrice Hawkins. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the home.

Holland and particularly the Warm Friend Tavern received some valuable advertising over the radio Sunday when Luke Rader told of the stay of the company of evangelists in this city last week. The broadcasting was done from the gospel tabernacle in Chicago. Rader told his large unseen audience about the meetings in Holland in Carnegie hall and he invited all who live within driving distance of Holland to come to the meetings the present week. He said that Holland had taken the evangelists to its heart and that they never had met with a more cordial reception. He described the meetings and told his listeners "on the air" that the gymnasium would without doubt be crowded to the doors the coming week.

And then the evangelist had some good things to say for the Warm Friend Tavern. He told of staying at that hotel and he described in some detail the picturesque Dutch costumes of the bell hops. He paid a fine tribute to the hotel management, to the accommodations there and to the friendliness of everybody connected with the hotel. He spoke so enthusiastically about the Warm Friend Tavern that the thousands who were listening in all over the country could hardly help but remember the hotel.

Mr Rader told about Holland more than once in the course of the day's activities at the gospel tabernacle and it is likely that hundreds of thousands all over the United States heard about this city and about the city's fine new hotel. It is known that the tabernacle broadcasting station usually has a very large invisible audience, as shown by the thousands of messages that are received every week, and Holland and the Tavern could not have received a better advertisement if they had spent much money for it. And it was all the more valuable because it was free and came from the heart.

One of the Ottawa county schools is a pennant winner in the first tournament of the Modern Health Crusade for the year 1925-26. The tournament consists of a twelve weeks wrestling with health chores on the part of small youngsters. The health chores comprise both things to be done and things to refrain from doing; one chore consists of abstaining from soda and coffee while another consists of drinking milk three times daily. Children in localities where there is a large foreign population find the tea and coffee chore hard to perform. For American children the sleep chore, ten hours of sleep each night with windows open, is sometimes hard.

The pennants are awarded by the Michigan Tuberculosis association to those schools in which every pupil in the entire school does every week 54 or more health chores. Nine Ottawa county schools were enrolled in the tournament but up to March 15 when the returns were checked up at the Lansing office of the Michigan Tuberculosis Ass'n, only one had won a pennant. A new tournament for the new semester is already under way so that it is highly probable that some who failed to win last semester will succeed this time. The school winning the pennant was Maplewood school taught by Miss Esther L. Streeter.

Mr and Mrs A. L. Cappon of Holland entertained at dinner Sunday in honor of their mother, Mrs. C. Verschure, west 12th St., who celebrated her 74th birthday. The following besides the host and hostess were present in observance of the event, Mr and Mrs Java Verchure, Grand Haven; Mr and Mrs Andrew Verchure, Chicago; Miss Jennie Verchure, of Holland, having been born here in 1852. She is the daughter of the late Jacob Van Putten who first organized the Holland City bank which later became the Holland City State bank.

Charles Scott and Marie Knutson were united in marriage Thursday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride on West Tenth street. The ring ceremony was used and the wedding was solemnized by Rev. J. C. De Vinney, pastor of the Methodist church, in the presence of the immediate relatives. Miss Henrietta Knutson and Donald De Vinney attended the couple. The wedding was followed by a wedding supper.

The Bungalow Sweet Shop, owned by Harley Ottman, on Spring Lake and closed during the winter season, was broken into Wednesday night and candy and some cameras were taken. Sheriff's officers investigated the case and found clues.

The officers then conducted their search which led to some Spring Lake youngsters who upon apprehension returned the cameras and what candy was uneaten. The youngsters are all of immature age and their names are not disclosed, year.

The opening of the second week of the evangelistic services showed that the momentum of the series is now so great nothing can stop the meetings from being big ones the rest of the time. Monday night's meeting was the largest so far and it seems likely that soon people will have to be turned away for want of room.

"The Secret of Christianity" was the subject of the address by Mr. Rader Monday night. The speaker said the secret of Christianity was a supernatural birth, a divine act of God. As in human life it is essential to be born, so in spiritual life it is essential to be born of God, said the speaker. This spiritual birth does not consist in education, in church membership, in formal knowledge of religion, in creed, in conduct, in rites or observances. It consists in regeneration, without which everything else is only hollow form.

Then after regeneration has taken place, the speaker went on, we must come out into the open, put off all camouflage, and come clean on the sin question. We must call things by their right names, calling sin sin.

There must be a surrender of the will to God, said the speaker, with the world and a loosening from everything in the world. This is the only thing that will bring men into a right relationship with God, the speaker asserted.

The subject of Mr. Rader's address was "The Four Kinds of Christians." At the meeting Monday night Mr Johnson sang a solo, "Why Do I Sing About Jesus." There was also a duet by Mrs Rader and Mr Johnson, and a solo by Mrs Rader, "The Face of Jesus." Mr Johnson sang, "The Ninety and Nine."

Mr and Mrs Henry Deters were pleasantly surprised at the home of their son Bernard Deters last evening, the occasion being their 30th wedding anniversary. Mr and Mrs Deters were presented with a beautiful set of silver. Games were played and a three course luncheon was served. Those present were: Mr and Mrs Jasper Stykstra, Mr and Mrs Clarence Zuidewind, Mr and Mrs Andrew Stoner, Mr and Mrs Harold Deters and Miss Harriet and Georgianna Deters. So that they could investigate the affair as fugitives often use this means to escape tracing by police and also use different plates in order to effect the commission of a contemplated crime.

The plates were numbered 236-187 and the sheriff immediately wired Lansing for the name and address of the owner. This was found to be James Hamilton of Detroit and a wire was sent him immediately.

No reply was at hand Friday. Meanwhile police notes were asked to watch for a car bearing a pair of Indiana license plates and it is hoped that the matter may be soon settled. The car was reported as going north.

The H. O. H. meeting is to be held Thursday evening, April 1st, at the Woman's Literary club rooms. On account of Good Friday this meeting has been set ahead one day. Members are urged to be present. This is the annual Ladies' night and a good program has been prepared. Mr. Stahl and his staff from Zeeland will give a play, "How to Become a Citizen."

Rev. John Van Pusem, former pastor of Trinity church, this city, will give a talk. Mr. Peet, sales manager for the Chevrolet Motor Co., will sing several selections. The members of the entertainment committee, Mr. P. F. Koopman and Alex Van Zanten, have been very fortunate in procuring the high school band and they will furnish music for the evening. This will be the last meeting night until September and many important questions are to be brought up. The annual picnic is to be held during the summer and arrangements for it will be made at this meeting.

In one of the most closely contested contests of recent years, Mr. Russell Damstra of Holland, a junior at Hope, won the first place in the Haven oratorical contest, last night. With the first place goes an award of $30 and the privilege of representing Hope in the M. O. L. Second prize, carrying with it twenty-five dollars in cash, was awarded to Mr. Neil Van Oostenburg, of Grand Rapids.

Both orators were well written and they were given in an excellent manner. Choosing between them was a really difficult task. Mr. Damstra's oration was entitled "East Versus West" and he made excellent comparisons between the orient and occident. He asked for a broad-minded treatment of the misunderstood easterner. Mr. Van Oostenburg spoke on the subject, "Thy Neighbor," and he based his oration on the pauperism and misery of the poorer classes in our larger cities.

The other contestants all presented orations of a high calibre and gave much promise for the oratorical contests of coming years. The other entries in the contest were: "No Weapons Shall Prosper," Jacob Pelton; "The New Spirit in Diplomacy," Lester Bosward; "The Constitution," Glenn Severance; "Peace," Henry Burghoff; and an oration on law obedience by George Cluquenoel.

The judges were: Mr. Irwin Labbers, Miss Martha Jane Gibson, Miss Laura Boyd, Mr. Albert Timmer, and Mr. Garrett Vander Borgh.

HOLLAND "What We Say We Do, We Do Do" MICHIGAN

MAYOR APPROVES "MADE-IN-HOL- LAND" WEEK

I notice with great pleasure a step recently taken by the chamber of commerce of this city, recommending a Made-in-Holland week, and to celebrate that week with an exhibition in this city.

A display of what is made by the men and women in our shops and factories will not only stimulate interest in industry but will fill us with pride, because in these displays the workmanship is reflected showing that Holland has artists in all lines of trade.

It also cannot help but bring about a spirit of competition among these men and women to do better. It will create a friendly rivalry to excel, and this being the case, the exhibition from year to year cannot help but prove materially beneficial for the artisans will want to show their very best and therefore will do their very best.

I also wish to congratulate the local newspapers on their industrial issue. It shows new newspaper enterprise. However, it is a policy that the local press has always followed, as long as I can remember. The local newspapers have never failed to back any meritorious project wholeheartedly, and Made-in-Holland week was no exception to the rule.

Locals

Miss Ethel West, formerly of Grand Haven, has again been chosen a member of the Women's Glee club of Alma College. In addition to this she has also been selected for the sextette and as a soloist. Shortly after the spring vacation, the Glee club plans to make its annual tour. The itinerary includes Traverse City, Hart, Grand Rapids, Grand Haven, Charlotte, and other cities of southern Michigan.

Grand Haven reported 70 deaths and 203 births in 1925. Holland in the same period reported 111 deaths and 321 births.

Isaac Scherpenisse, a senior at the local seminary, is wanted by an Eastern church as its pastor. He has received the promise of a call from the Reformed church at Tyre, New York.

Mrs. John Van Dragt, formerly of Holland, now of Pennville who was operated upon at Elmhurst hospital, Grand Rapids, returned home Friday. Her friends are glad to know she is much better.

Miss Inez M. Prince who is attending the Western State Normal at Kalamazoo, returned home on Thursday. Her parents, Dr. and Mrs. N. K. Prince, 100 East 9th St.

"Holland, Michigan, has a credit bureau membership of 265 with a population of 15,000. This gives them one Bureau member for each 57 inhabitants. Can anyone beat this?"—March Bulletin, National Ret. Cr. Association.

Ex-Senator Delbert Fortney of Ottawa county was a visitor in Grand Haven Tuesday and stated that he had finished his winter term of business training at Ferris Institute in Big Rapids and that he would have a position this summer as a salesman for a Grand Rapids lake development company, selling Lake Michigan frontage. Mr. Fortney stated however that he would go back to Ferris next fall for another term of work in business training.

The musicians of the Colonial Theatre orchestra, with the exception of Miss Hazel Allen, are in Chicago for the remainder of the week attending the convention of orchestra leaders. While there Mr. Emmons will purchase special music for the April month of big pictures at the Colonial. Miss Allen will furnish piano music during their absence.

Franklin Cappon, now assistant coach at Michigan and next fall head football coach at the University of Kansas, will help condition two teams during spring practice sessions. It was announced today. On April 6, he will start the Kansas workouts, returning to Ann Arbor in time for Michigan's spring grid sessions which start on April 20. Cappon goes on the Kansas payroll, 9, and will teach football during the Kansas summer session.

A delegation of 35 people from the Gibson Sunday school conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Rander Muller and Mr. and Mrs. Jay De Konig and under the auspices of the 3rd Reformed church were present at the gospel services in Carnegie hall Tuesday night. Special seats had been reserved for them. The school is in a prosperous condition, an average attendance of about 95 being present every Sunday. After the meeting the delegation was taken to the church parlors of the Third Reformed church where refreshments were served. A large city bus was hired to get the people from Gibson. This school was started last October.

The engagement was announced Tuesday afternoon at a bridge luncheon of Miss Buena Vista Speers, daughter of Mrs. R. M. Bosworth, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth, East 12th street. Miss Speers is to be married to Mr. Harold C. Henshaw son of Mr. L. M. Henshaw and the late Walter G. Henshaw of Kalamazoo.

Sixteen friends of Miss Speers were present at the delightful luncheon. The bride was revealed by means of place cards in the form of messenger boys who held a telegram announcing the engagement. The decorations were in pastel shades, yellow and white predominating.

Mrs. Henry Vredevel, aged 44, died Tuesday night at her home at Central Park. She is survived by her husband and two children, the Misses Ruth and Janet. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at one o'clock at the home and at two o'clock at the Central Park Reformed church. Rev. F. J. Van Dyk officiating. Before her marriage Mrs. Vredevel was Miss Rita Van Luit of Cleveland.

Secretary John Arendshorst of the Holland fair, at a meeting of the directors, made it plain that he would stand for no more kicks on his special attractions and side shows. He stated that many of these objections were unwarranted and Holland fairs have always had attractions and side shows, and if objections came from all sources, he refused to make any arrangements for the coming year, and would endeavor to run the fair without these attractions having only "cows and chickens," as it were.

The directors, however, saw Secretary Arendshorst's viewpoint, and they as well as the secretary knew that certain attractions had to be contracted for, and that being the case the secretary asked that a censor board be appointed to pass upon these shows and concessions. This was concurred in by the directors and it so happened that Martin Ver Hage of Zeeland and Marinus Van Zoeren of Vriesland were picked to look after this work.

It so happens that some of the church organizations that made repeated objections are located where these men live, and no doubt they will have plenty of advisors in this matter.

Anyway, John Arendshorst is now going out to get concessions and demands that before these are acted upon they be placed in the hands of the two censors for final O. K.

There are to be fireworks at least. That contract was made some time ago and since these displays will be of a patriotic nature since it is the 150th anniversary of America's independence, so there could be no possible objections to this.

Mr. Arendshorst has also made a contract with a company having a herd of trick elephants. It is an expensive attraction, but it is a winner for these beasts of the jungles draw big crowds wherever they go.

Mr. Arendshorst states that he has always done his best to keep fair attractions clean and he spent a great deal of time on this fair proposition, he has asked repeatedly to be relieved of these duties, but those interested in the fair saw to it for him to stay in the office of the secretary repeatedly, and this as in other years he will endeavor to give the best and get the best, but he stands absolutely firm on one thing, and that is that all attractions shall be approved before final arrangements are made.

Miss Kate Pfanstiel of Holland, who is spending some months in Florida, was a guest at a reception given by the city of Ft. Lauderdale in honor of the Countess of Lauderdale who came to Florida from England to visit the city named after her family. The countess' ancestor, Sir John Matland, named the city a hundred years ago after his ancestral home in Scotland. Lauderdale Port, when the English government sent him down to Florida to quell a Seminole Indian rebellion.

The daylight saving time question will soon be up again in Holland. No formal action has yet been taken but it is expected that the common council will take up the matter at the next meeting of the council. It seems likely that the matter will again be decided by council action and that no referendum will be taken. Whenever a referendum has been taken the sentiment has been for daylight saving so overwhelmingly that the aldermen during the past year were two to feel the necessity of opinion by the people was not needed to guide them. There is no reason to believe that public sentiment has changed on this subject and so it is likely that the matter will be disposed of by a vote of the aldermen.

Grand Rapids will go on daylight saving time for the summer months, midnight April 10, the same date as the change will be made in Muskegon.

The Holland high quintet lost a hard fought game to Detroit South Eastern at Ann Arbor 24-18 last evening. The game was close throughout and the final quarter spelled defeat for Hinga's tossers. In the second period Holland uncorled several long shots, three of the fellows getting neat shots, while Van Lente got one from center court. Southeastern was attempting short shots under the iron but were failing to count. Daniels and Springer brought up the Detroit score, but the locals led 15-13 at the half.

In the third session the short pass of Detroit got to working smoothly and three baskets and a foul topped the three points. Nettinga tipped in, giving Detroit a 20-13 lead at the beginning of the final quarter.

Holland could not score in the final session while Detroit got a basket and two free throws. The final score was 24-14.

Charles Douglas and Louis Klompars each paid $2.70 in Justice Den Heyder's court Monday when they pleaded guilty to the charge of mashing on the streets of Holland Saturday. Officer Steketee noticed them soliciting at the curb where they had parked their automobile and he immediately gathered them in.

Mr. Van Ry states that the girls are worse than the boys. He states that they encourage young men and act mobbish and sore when officers appear. He states that a lovers' lane has been established on Central Ave. and River Ave., between 13th street and 17th street, and here the girls congregate, awaiting the auto masher. It does not take long to strike up a slight acquaintance and in a few moments the girl or girls are whisked away in a machine, Mr. Van Ry states.

One of the officers who arrested a masher a few days ago was given a tongue lashing by a young girl, who said, "How are we going to meet a young fellow, unless we meet them in an automobile? It surely is none of your business whom we go with."

Mr. Van Ry states further that some mothers should keep better tabs on their daughters, especially at night, for auto mashing today seems to be an epidemic. He says that he has the entire force out rounding them up and lovers' lane is not overlooked by the minions of the law.

Two summer cottages, at Cole Park, on Spring lake, owned by Grand Rapids families, burned to the ground Monday night with a loss estimated at $10,000. At the regular weekly meeting of the Woman's Literary club held Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. E. Telling entertained the members and held them spellbound with a delightful review of Major Percival C. Wier's absorbing mystery of the Saham, "Beau Geste," a book which has already had 21 printings and will probably go through several more. It is a tale of the French Foreign Legion and is especially intriguing because of its authenticity. It deals with real people and actual events. The author is an Englishman, traveler, sportsman and a soldier, an interesting feature of Mrs. Telling's splendid portrayal was the reading of a personal letter which she had received from him.

MAYOR APPROVES "MADE-IN-HOL- LAND" WEEK

I notice with great pleasure a step recently taken by the chamber of commerce of this city, recommending a "Made-in-Holland week," and to celebrate that week with an exhibition in this city.

A display of what is made by the men and women in our shops and factories will not only stimulate interest in industry but will fill us with pride, because in these displays fine workmanship is reflected showing that Holland has artists in all lines of trade.

It also cannot help but bring about a spirit of competition among these men and women to do better. It will create a friendly rivalry to excel, and this being the case, the exhibition from year to year cannot help but prove materially beneficial to the artisans who will want to show their very best and therefore will do their very best.

I also wish to congratulate the local newspapers on their industrial issue and shows rare newspaper enterprise. However, it is a policy that the local press has always followed, as long as I can remember. The local newspapers have never failed to back any meritorious project wholeheartedly, and "Made-in-Holland week" was no exception to the rule.

Locals

Miss Ethel West, formerly of Grand Haven, has again been chosen a member of the Women's Glee club of Alma College. In addition to this she has also been selected for the sextette and as a soloist. Shortly after the spring vacation, the Glee club plans to make its annual tour. The itinerary includes Traverse City, Hart, Grand Rapids, Grand Haven, Charlotte, and other cities of southern Michigan.

Grand Haven reported 70 deaths and 203 births in 1925. Holland in the same period reported 111 deaths and 321 births.

Isaac Scherpenisse, a senior at the local seminary, is wanted by an Eastern church as its pastor. He has received the promise of a call from the Reformed church at Tyre, New York.

Mrs. John Van Dragt, formerly of Holland, now of Fennville where she was operated upon at Blodgett hospital, Grand Rapids, returned home Friday. Her friends are glad to know she is much better.

Miss Inez M. Prince was attending the Western State Normal at Kalamazoo, returned home on Thursday with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. N. K. Prince, 100 East 9th St.

"Holland, Michigan, has a credit bureau membership of 265 with a population of 15,000. This gives them one Bureau member for each 57 inhabitants. Can anyone beat this?"—March Bulletin, National Ret. Cr. Association.

Ex-sheriff Delbert Fortney of Ottawa county was a visitor in Grand Haven Tuesday and stated that he had finished his winter term of business training at Ferris Institute in Big Rapids and that he would have a position this summer at a seasonal job for a Grand Rapids lake shore development company, selling Lake Michigan frontage. Mr. Fortney stated however that he would go back to Ferris next fall for another term of work in business training.

The musicians of the Colonial Theatre's orchestra, with the exception of Miss Hazel Allen, are in Chicago for the remainder of the week attending the convention of orchestra leaders. While there Mr. Emmons will purchase special music for the April month of big pictures at the Colonial. Miss Allen will furnish piano music during their absence.

Franklin Cappon, now assistant coach at Michigan and next fall head football coach at the University of Kansas, will help condition two teams during spring practice sessions which start on April 20. Cappon goes on the Kansas payroll, one year, and will teach football during the Kansas summer session.

A delegation of 35 people from the Gibson Sunday school conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Render Muller and Mr. and Mrs. Jay De Koning and under the auspices of the 3rd Reformed church were present at the gospel services in Carnegie hall Tuesday night. Special seats had been reserved for them. The school is in a prosperous condition, an average attendance of about 95 being present every Sunday. After the meeting the delegation was taken to the church parlors of the Third Reformed church where refreshments were served. A large city bus was hired to get the people from Gibson. This school was started last October.

The engagement was announced Tuesday afternoon at a bridge luncheon of Miss Buena Vista Speers, daughter of Mrs. R. M. Bosworth, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bosworth, East 12th street. Miss Speers is to be married to Mr. Harold C. Henshaw son of Mrs. L. M. Henshaw and the late Walter G. Henshaw of Kalamazoo.

Sixteen friends of Miss Speers were present at the delightful luncheon. The big news was revealed by means of place cards in the form of messenger boys who held a telegram announcing the engagement. The decorations were in pastel shades, yellow and white predominating.

Mrs. Henry Vredevel, aged 44, died Tuesday night at her home at Central Park. She is survived by her husband and two children, the Misses Ruth and Janet. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at one o'clock at the home and at two o'clock at the Central Park Reformed church. Rev. F. J. Van Dyk officiating. Before her marriage Mrs. Vredevel was Miss Rita Van Luit of Cleveland.

Secretary John Arendshorst of the Holland fair, at a meeting of the directors, made it plain that he would stand for no more kinks on his special attractions and side shows. He stated that many of the side shows were unwarmed and Holland fairs have always had attractions and side shows, and if objections came from all sources, he refused to make any arrangements for the coming year, and contracts with concession men, and would endeavor to run the fair without these attractions having only "cows and chickens," as it were.

The directors, however, saw Secretary Arendshorst's viewpoint, and they as well as the secretary know that certain attractions had to be contracted for, and that being the case the secretary asked that a censor board be appointed to pass upon these shows and concessions. This was concurred in by the directors and it so happened that Martin Ver Hage of Zeeland and Marinus Van Zoeren of Vriesland were picked to look after this work.

It so happens that some of the church organizations that made repeated objections are located where these men live, and no doubt they will have plenty of advisors in this matter.

Anyway, John Arendshorst is now going out to get concession and demands that before these are acted upon they be placed in the hands of the two censors for final O. K.

There are to be fireworks at least. That contract was made some time ago and since these displays will be of a patriotic nature, since it is the 150th anniversary of America's independence, so there could be no possible objections to this.

Mr. Arendshorst has also made a contract with a company having a herd of trick elephants. It is an expensive attraction, but it is a winner for these beasts of the jungles draw big crowds wherever they go.

Mr. Arendshorst states that he has always done his best to keep fair attractions clean and he spent a great deal of time on this fair proposition, he has asked repeatedly to be relieved of these duties, but those interested in the fair saw fit for him to return to the office of the secretary repeatedly, and this as in other years he will endeavor to give the best and get the best, but he stands absolutely firm on one thing, and that is that all attractions shall be approved before final arrangements are made.

A surprise shower was given on Friday evening by Miss Mary Ploeg in honor of Miss Hermine Spyker who is soon to be a bride. Those present were the Misses Jennie Kobes, Henrietta Driesenga, Josie Donia, Jeanette Kleis, Julia Kleis, Frances Heyboer, Jennie Kuyers, Hermine Spyker and Elizabeth Heyboer of Zeeland. Games were played and refreshments were served. Prizes were won by Josie Donia and Elizabeth Heyboer. The bride-elect was presented with a pretty fernery.

Miss Kate Pfannstiel of Holland, who is spending some months in Florida, was a guest at a reception given by the city of Ft. Lauderdale in honor of the Countess of Lauderdale who came to Florida from England to visit the city named after her family. The countess' ancestor, Sir John Maitland, named the city a hundred years ago after his ancestral home in Scotland. Lauderdale, Fort, when the English government sent him down to Florida to quell a Seminole Indian rebellion.

Miss Pfannstiel wrote up the reception for the Miami Herald which devotes nearly two columns to the affair in a recent issue of which a copy has been received here.

The daylight saving time question will soon be up again in Holland. No formal action has yet been taken but it is expected that the common council will take up the matter at the next meeting of the council. It seems likely that the matter will again be decided by council action and that no referendum will be taken. Whenever a referendum has been taken the sentiment has been for daylight saving so overwhelmingly that the councilmen need not be troubled with the matter or two have felt further expression of opinion by the people was not needed to guide them. There is no reason to believe that public sentiment has changed on this subject and so it is likely that the matter will be disposed of by a vote of the councilmen.

Other cities in Western Michigan have already taken action or are planning to do so.

Grand Rapids will go on daylight saving time for the summer months, midnight April 10, the same date as the change will be made in Muskegon.

The Holland high quintet lost a hard fought game to Detroit South Eastern at Ann Arbor 24-18 last evening. The game was close throughout and the final quarter spelled defeat for Hinga's tossers.

Breen and Nettinga got six points in the first quarter while the best boys from the Metropolis could score only five, caged by Ruhl and Daniels.

In the second period Holland uncorked several long shots, three of the fellows getting neat shots, while Van Lente got one from center court. Southeastern was attempting short shots under the iron but were being counted. Daniels and Springer brought up the Detroit score, but the locals led 15-13 at the half.

In the third session the short pass of Detroit got to working smoothly and three baskets and a foul topped the three points. Nettinga tipped in, giving Detroit a 20-13 lead at the beginning of the final quarter.

Holland could not score in the final session while Detroit got a basket and two free throws. The final score was 24-18.

cellent chance that it will some day develop into a large corporation. They are at present located in the old Tel-Ti-Tip factory on W. 12th street. It is interesting to note that practically all industries in the city who have enjoyed unusual success have been financed entirely by local capital.

We feel sure that the above firm will not be an exception to this rule.—C. of C. News Letter.

The Allegan county boxing championship tournament to be staged at Street's opera house, on Thursday and Friday, April 8 and 9, at Allegan, gives promise of being a good drawing card. The contests have been sanctioned by the state athletic officials and will be given under auspices of the American Legion of Allegan.

There will be eight weight classes, flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, lightweight, middleweight, light heavyweight, and heavyweight.

Entries in the various classes are coming in from Plainwell, Allegan, South Haven, Doster, Gr. Junction, Bloomingdale, Gobles, Martin and Wayland. Henry O. Algeant and Herbert Baker of Allegan will be judges. E. W. Dickerson and I. Gresham of Grand Rapids will referee and Harry Perringo of Allegan timekeeper.

Charles Douglas and Louis Klompars each paid $3.70 in Justice Den Herder's court Monday when they pleaded guilty to the charge of mashing on the streets of Holland Saturday. Officer Steketee noticed them soliciting at the curb where they had parked their automobile and he immediately gathered them in.

Mr. Van Ry states that the girls are worse than the boys. He states that they encourage young men and act smug and sore when officers appear. He states that a lover's lane has been established on Central Ave. and River Ave., between 13th street and 17th street, and here the girls congregate, awaiting the auto masher. It does not take long to strike up a slight acquaintance and in a few moments the girl or girls are whisked away in a machine, Mr. Van Ry states.

One of the officers who arrested a masher a few days ago was given a tongue lashing by a young girl, who said, "How are we going to meet a young fellow, unless we meet them in an automobile? It surely is none of your business whom we go with."

Mr. Van Ry states further that some mothers should keep better tabs on their daughters, especially at night, for auto mashing today seems to be an epidemic. He says that he has the entire force out rounding them up and lovers' lane is not overlooked by the minions of the law.

In spite of the fact that those in charge of the chamber of commerce banquet have a membership of about 500, to provide for, there has been some call by citizens who are not members to secure tickets. The committee will supply the membership first and then if there is room left seats will be sold to outsiders. The tickets are free to members.

Saturday, April 3, has been fixed upon as the time limit for members to order their tickets. Until that time no seats will be sold to outsiders but next Monday morning the sale will be opened to them if any seats are left. The hall can accommodate about 500.

James Westrate, 458 Lafayette St. N.E., Grand Rapids, aged 34, was taken to the Butterworth hospital Wednesday morning because of illness with pneumonia. His wife died Wednesday morning at 7:30, also a victim of pneumonia. Burial was Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the home. Mr. Westrate's recovery is doubtful because of his age. He is the father of M. J. Westrate of Holland.

Two summer cottages, at Cole Park, on Spring lake, owned by Grand Rapids families, burned to the ground Monday night with a loss estimated at $10,000. Fifty other cottages, danger of their destruction enhanced because they are constructed largely of wood, and also because a freeze threatened to spread the flames to all parts of the colony, were saved through the efforts of volunteer firemen from Spring Lake.

One of the cottages that burned was owned by J. Rens of Grand Rapids. The other, "Twil Do," was owned by a Grand Rapids family by the name of Parish.

Seven Grand Rapids high school youths had gone there Saturday and were spending the spring recess in the Parish cottage. They went to a theater early in the evening and when they returned their cottage and the Rens' summer home, adjoining, were in ruins.

According to a dispatch from Kalamazoo the Western State Normal has a baseball schedule of 19 games and the first one is to be played on April 10 at Kalamazoo.

The memorial windows of the M. E. church will be placed some time this week according to arrangements made some time ago.

Miss Wilma Frank of Detroit is the guest during the spring vacation of Miss Lucile Osborne of this city.

will return by way of the St. Lawrence river, arriving at Grand Haven about three weeks later.

The Arizona, which has been on the run during the winter, will then be placed in drydock for painting and will be ready shortly before the first of May for the renewal of double daily service. Daily service is to be started June 1st.

The United States went south late last fall and was operated between Tampa and Havana during the winter. She was under charter part of the time and ran under the Peninsula & Northern flag during the latter part of the season.

After having been confined to Holland Hospital for about two weeks and submitting to an operation, Robert Slowinske died there Friday evening. He was 44 years old and he is survived by his wife and two children, Mrs. John Van Weelden, Jr., of Albuquerque, N.M., and Miss Martha at home; also by one sister, Mrs. Benagel of Iowa.

Miss Cornelia Hoebeke passed away Tuesday noon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hoebeke, 516 Fulton street, Grand Haven. Miss Hoebeke has been in ill health for the last four years. Den Herder's court Monday when they pleaded guilty to the charge of mashing on the streets of Holland Saturday. Officer Steketee noticed them soliciting at the curb where they had parked their automobile and he immediately gathered them in.

Helen Eberhardt has been named valedictorian of the class of '26 of Holland high school. Her average for the four years was 97.29. Salutatory honors were awarded Alice Brunson of Ganges, whose percentage was 96.21.

The class enrollment numbers 117, one of the largest in the history of the school.

The association of Western Michigan Optometrists enjoyed a dinner Tuesday evening at the Warm Friend Tavern. A delightful meeting was held and later the guests indulged in dancing. Mr. Ernest Elmer, of Muskegon, secretary of the state association, was present and gave an address on "The Up-Its of Optometry."

Those present were: John Pieper, W. R. Stevenson and Joe Koolker of Holland, G. Smith and sister, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Smith, Henry Schmel, Charles Van Slyter, Warren Bean and sister, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Bruemer, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Pendergast, Mr. and Mrs. Gall Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dekker, Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer, Chase Thorn and Miss Souther of Grand Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Van Kersen, Miss Anna Wertz, Nick Pieper of Zeeland, Ernest Elmer and Miss Elmer, Miss Janche Olsen, Mr. A. C. Bengel of Muskegon, and Mr. Murray Smith of Ohio.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Woman's Literary club held Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. E. Telling entertained the members and held them spellbound with a delightful review of Major Percy C. Wier's absorbing mystery of the Sahara "Beau Geste," a book which has already had 21 printings and will probably go through several more. It is a tale of the French Foreign Legion and is especially intriguing because of its authenticity. It deals with real people and actual events. The author is an Englishman, traveler, sportsman and soldier and an interesting feature of Mrs. Telling's splendid portrayal was the reading of a personal letter which she had received from him.

Next Tuesday will be children's day at the club, and all mothers are urged to take their children to enjoy a program prepared by Mrs. Charles Kirchen, Mrs. Nat Robbins, Jr., Mrs. T. F. Whalen, and Mrs. James De Pree. The program will start at 4 o'clock, to allow time for the children to come from school, and will be followed by a tea party under the supervision of Mrs. J. H. Den Herder, and her committee.

Preceding this program, and beginning at 3 o'clock, the newly-formed book-review division of the club will meet and a permanent organization will be perfected. At this time Mrs. G. J. Diekenma will review "The Splendor of Asia," by L. Adams Dick.

It is the custom of the club to receive an annual offering for the Michigan Children's home. This meeting is the time set for this collection and it is hoped that all the members will be prepared to donate liberally to this fund next Tuesday afternoon.

An unusually interesting session of the Sunday school of Trinity Reformed church was held Sunday noon when John Henry Albers pronounced the oration that won him third place recently in the state oratorical contest at Ypsilanti.

The oration was given before the members of the church, all the departments being present. Miss Rita Pas, who recently returned from Palestine, gave an interesting talk on her trip to the holy land.

Frank Lieveens, representative of the Aetna Insurance company of Hartford, Conn., attended the convention at Grand Rapids Tuesday and Wednesday. The Aetna company and those companies affiliated met at the Morton House and Mr. Frank Lieveens was on the program for three speeches during the week.

The meetings were to be of an educational nature, and many officers of the organization were present.

Vice President W. L. Mooney will be the principal speaker this evening. Other officials from the east who will be there include R. I. Catlin and E. C. Higgins, secretaries; S. F. Withe, assistant advertising director; Franklin Davies, field supervisor and W. I. Morrow, accident department superintendent.

thirty people gathered for a social evening with Rev. and Mrs. Jacob T. Huizenga of his city as honored guests. A very interesting program of music and games was carried out, after which a delicious two course luncheon was served.

During the evening the real purpose of the meeting was made known to Mr. Huizenga when he was presented with a beautiful gold watch and chain as a token of friendship and esteem of his many friends in Zeeland, Holland and Jenison Park.

The festivities ended at a late hour, and as the guests departed each one expressed a sincere desire that Rev. Mr. Huizenga and his family remain in Holland permanently and that he continue his evangelistic work.

The Millhouse Bayou road was paved on Saturday at a point near the bridge, high water having undermined the grade work under the highway. Road commission.

The industrial committee has put the highway again in passable condition for traffic.

The gravel roads generally are in bad shape but where it is practicable to work on them, work is being done by road commission workers. Care is being taken to guard against a further sinking in at Millhouse Bayou.

The Travelers' Aid society of the Ottawa county Red Cross has been asked to co-operate with the Travelers' Aid societies in Florida to prevent people from going there who will get stranded.

Mrs. G. J. Van Duren is in charge of the Travelers' Aid society here. The request says:

"Those who plan to come to Florida, knowing it will be necessary to earn part or all of their living expenses, should exercise the same prudence and foresight they would use in going into strange surroundings elsewhere. It is because of many unnecessary and avoidable instances of disappointment suffered by those who would share in Florida's opportunities, that Travelers' Aid Societies and co-operating agencies of the country are asked to place in the hands of inquirers a summary of guidance for those who must earn part or all of their living expenses soon after their arrival in Florida."

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nainhuis and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vandevelde motored to Muskegon Sunday on account of the sudden death of Will Rooks of pneumonia. Mrs. Rooks died 4 months ago, also of pneumonia. Mr. Rooks leaves two children, Josie of Muskegon and John studying at the M. S. C.

A large host of friends gathered at the home of Miss Mary Labbers of East Saugatuck Wednesday evening where a miscellaneous shower was given, complimenting Miss Irene Vander Ploeg whose marriage to Ralph Meyerling will take place in April. Games were played and refreshments were served. The bride-elect received many useful and beautiful gifts.

BANKS AND INDUSTRIES

THE First State Bank is in hearty accord with the "Made in Holland" week exhibition. It wishes for it the success it deserves.

Q Holland is rich in its diversified industries.

Q We are wondering if our patrons realize what a potent factor they are in helping to turn the wheels of progress.

Q Their savings help to develop industries in this city, which also means the development of Holland and therefore is beneficial to everyone living in this community.

Q The shops and factories give employment to thousands, who in turn place their savings in our banks.

Q They buy from our merchants and they buy from our farmers.

Q Industrial progress in a community cannot help but be of mutual benefit to all who live in that community.

Q A "Made in Holland" exposition is somewhat of an inventory showing what we manufacture here.

Q The display at the New Armory this week, cannot help but fill any citizen with pride. Cannot help but make him feel that this is a city worth living in.

Plugger's Mill

land. It was located where the main building of the West Michigan Furniture Co. now is located. The mill was erected by Mr. A. Plugger, an early pioneer, father of Mrs. Geo. P. Hummer of Holland. For a time it was used as a saw mill and for many years, even after the mill was out of commission, the old log boom remained extending nearly to the Scott Lugers docks to the east. Great place for sunfish and bluegills. Note the barrels on the roof of the building placed there for fire protection. The building was also used as a flour mill. The late Jacob Van Putten and family of Holland and J. Pauels, father of Otto Pauels, were also identified with this industry. Mr. Van Putten was also the founder of the Holland City Bank, at present Holland City State Bank.

Holland Spends Three and a Quarter Mil- lion Dollars for Buildings In Five Years

City Clerk Richard Overway, at the request of the Holland press spent considerable time in compiling figures, showing Holland's building growth.

The city clerk has gone through five years of building activities of the city of Holland, and his information was gleaned from the book of licenses on file at the city hall.
Mr. Overway cut away all the dross and all other detailed information, that these license books give, and gave only the meat which is shown in a comparative statement in these columns.

It is evident that 1924 was the greatest building year in the history of Holland when the amount totaled considerably over a million dollars. However, this was the year of Warm Friend Tavern, Kraker Hotel, the Armory, and other pretentious buildings.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF HOLLAND IN 1875

OBJECT OF

"Made in Holland Week"

SOME months ago it was thought expedient to let the public know just what these busy shops and factories in the city of Holland are doing.

To let the public know what the men and women in these busy hives of industry were making.

To let the public see for themselves what artists the Holland artisans are, and to show also the efficiency and system followed in these various plants.

The past and the present supply innumerable examples of the prosperity, and the successes that have been attained in the city of Holland.

However, an exhibition such as has been planned in the New Armory is most conclusive evidence that these successes have been a fact.

While the committee has worked hard to bring about a successful exposition, their efforts would have been nil were it not for the product that has already been created.

It simply meant assembling from the different plants the goods that have been made, and the exhibition was complete.

It is the bringing into one place sufficiently large, those products that are made in Holland, that have made "Made in Holland Week" and it is a privilege to extend an invitation to the citizens of this city, to the citizens of Ottawa and Allegan Counties, in fact to everyone who wishes to come, and see the products that have been brought out through the avenues of industry located in Holland.

"Made in Holland" Com. of the Chamber of Commerce

THE above picture is taken from a painting made by a Chicago artist 4 years after the big fire of 71, and contains every house, public building and labor employing industry in Holland at that time. This painting more than any one thing shows the development of this city. Bear in mind that most of these buildings were built of wood at that time and have since been replaced by modern structures built of steel, brick and stone. Also note what a difference there is in the limits of our city then and now, in fact where at least a part of Holland's manufacturing district now is built, forests stood before. The prominent show places at that time are indicated below.

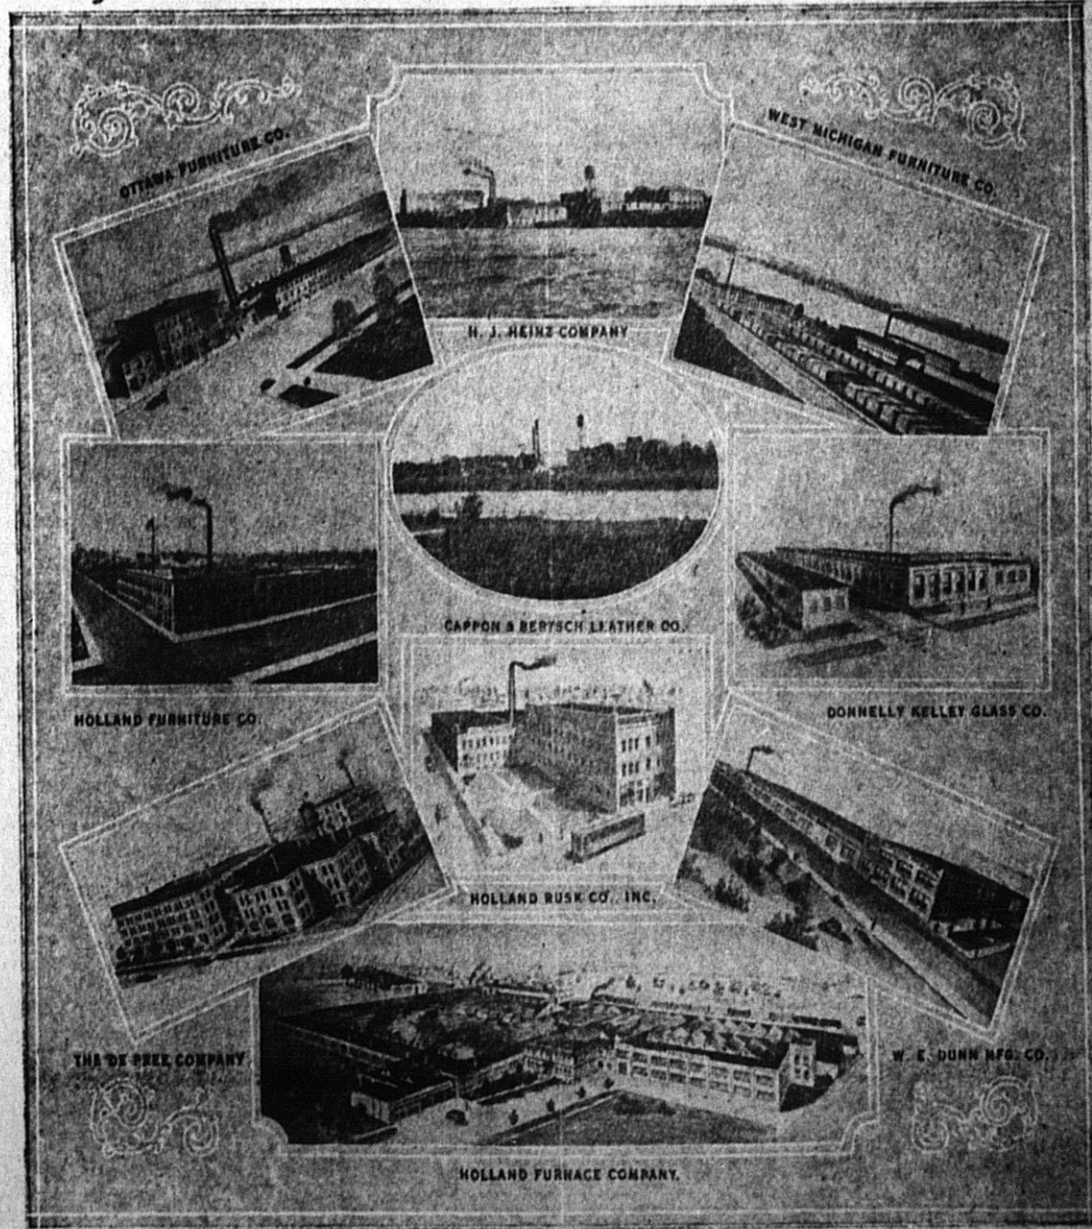

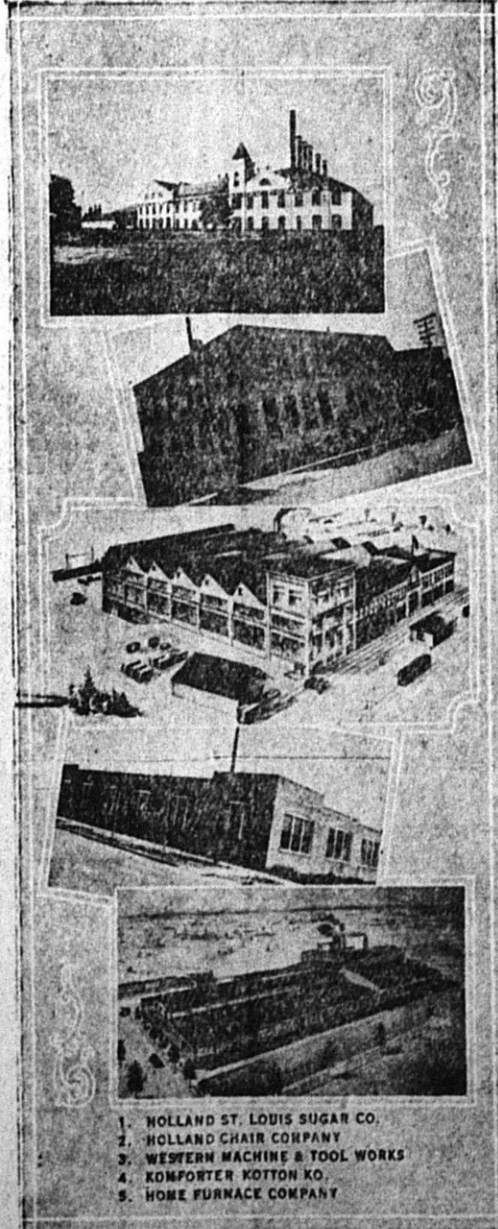

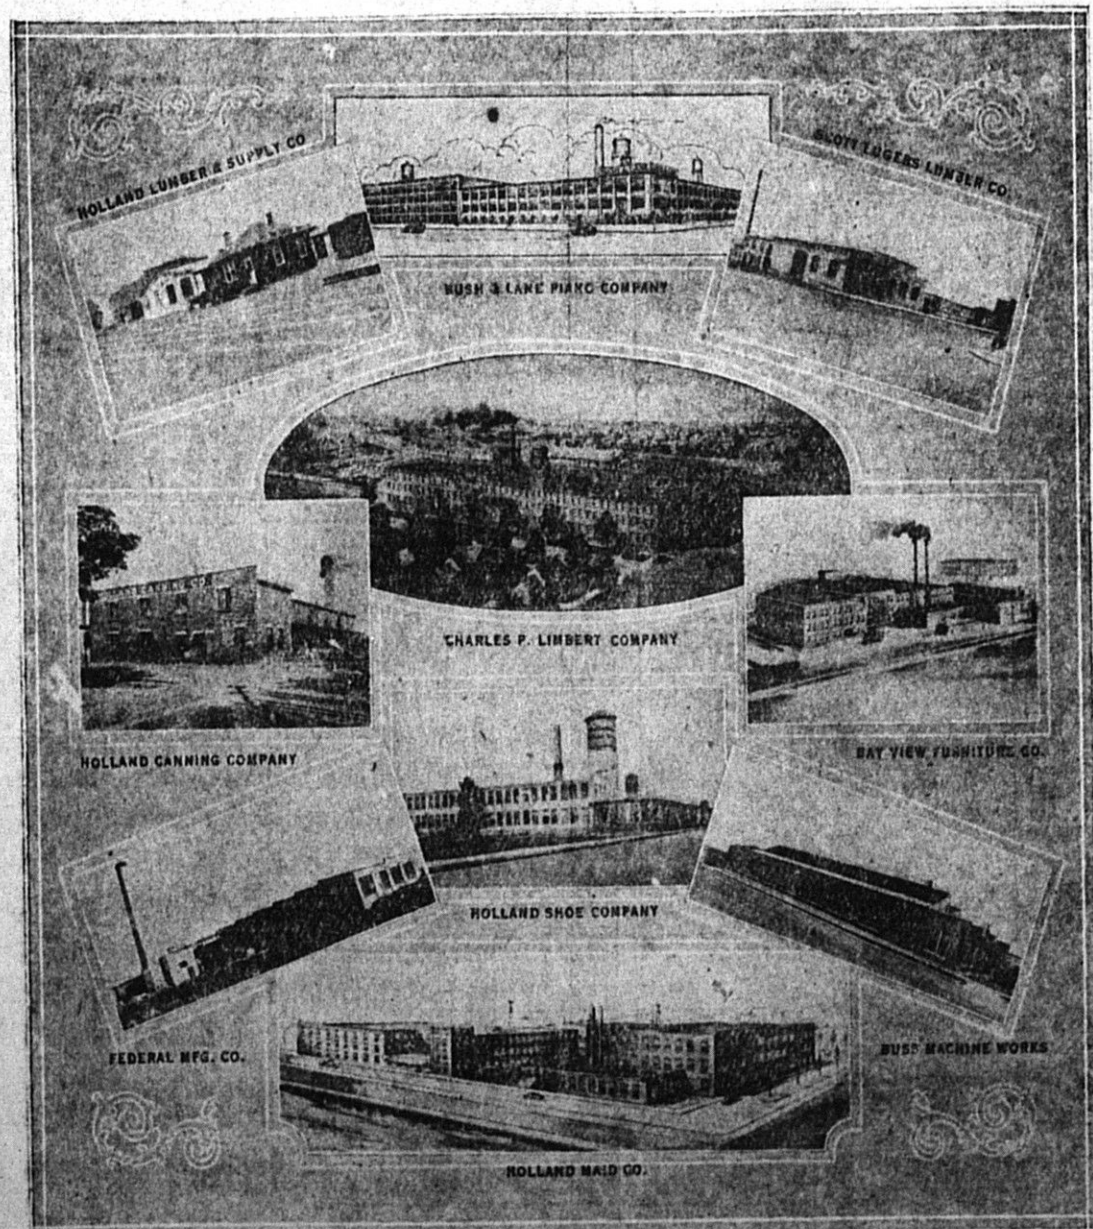

1. Public Schools, 2 Hope College, 3 First Ref. Church, 4 Second Ref. Church, 5 Third Ref. Church, 6 True Dutch Ref. Church, 7 Episcopal Church, 8 Methodist Church, 9 Pluggers Lumber &

Flour Mills, 10 City Flour Mill, 11 Stave Factory, 12 Cappon & Bertsch Leather Co., 13 Brewery, 14 Saw Mill, 15 Phoenix Mill, 16 Sash, Doors, & Agr. Shops, 17 Carriage Fy., 18 Engine Rooms, 19 Ship Yards, 20 City Hotel, 21 M.L.S. Depot, 22 C.&M.L. Depot, 23 Postoffice, 24 Soap Fy.

The picture shows that the railroad depot then was located between Ninth and Tenth Streets near Lincoln Ave., then Land street. Columbia Ave. it appears was Fish street, because Dr. Van Raalte thought Fish Market was just the thing here the same as in the Netherlands, but while the market was established near the present base ball park, there were no fish. The picture shows College Avenue as Cedar Street and Central Avenue as Market Street. Centennial Park was Market Square surrounded by a tall fence with fire house, council rooms, jail and cannon house on the northwest corner, few trees, yellow sand, tall grass, and a flag-pole in the center, occupied the balance of public square as it was later called. It is evident from the painting, that the C. & W. M. from Muskegon was still entering Holland by way of the long railroad bridge across the marsh, turning eastward from where the De Pree Co. and Holland Canning Company are now located. This was changed thirty five years ago, when Waverly became a boom town. See the Dutch wind flour mill below the Muskegon train. It never worked. The artist was great on navigation judging from the picture. Our harbor has not had as many ships in port at one time before or since. But apparently the painter, Mr. Hulbert, was drawing upon his imagination.

FURNITURE ISN'T THE ONLY THING MADE IN HOLLAND

Elsewhere in this issue we speak of the five million dollars' worth of furniture shipped out of Holland during 1925. We might have allowed you to think that the making of this furniture was the one thing that occupied all of our time, but the truth is, it represents less than one-sixth of the total value of Holland's manufactured output. And yet we Hollanders are agreed that the making of furniture is the most vital, the most important industry in our city, which would indicate that the dollar is not always the correct medium to gauge an industry's importance in its community.

The thirty-five million dollar output of Holland's manufacturers during 1925 is a most creditable showing for a city of less than 15,000 population, and we are deservedly proud of the fact. In this figure the diversity of industries is revealed which has always kept the industrial life of Holland on an even keel at all times, good and bad. Unemployment is a problem we never have encountered in Holland.

During this past year over sixteen million dollars' worth of furnaces were made in Holland, one of the factories being the largest of its kind in the world. Shoes—the world's finest for men and boys—to the amount of two million dollars' worth were produced. Drugs and chemicals—including the San-Tox remedies which are sold in your city—totaled more than a million dollars. Machinery having a million and a half dollar valuation was made and shipped; three-quarters of a million dollars of foodstuffs left our factories; a million dollars' worth of sugar was converted from beets. Add to all this the production of a dozen other industries and you come to the total of thirty-five million dollars.

It takes all these various industries to make Holland the thriving city which it is, but it is to the furniture industry that Holland looks for its stability and its prominence in the industrial realm. It is the furniture which it makes that gives the character and the "flavor" to Holland; it is in its furniture that the best of Dutch temperament and craftsmanship is expressed.

Federal Manufacturing Company Is Now Nearly Ready to Enlarge

Added Prosperity Will Make Necessary the Building of Addition

(By Thomas Olinger)

The Federal Manufacturing company was organized in January, 1923, capitalized at $250,000.00, with thirty-two stockholders, twenty-seven of whom live in Holland.

This corporation took over the ern plant constructed and equipped along the latest approved lines.

The product of this plant consists mainly of patented pressed metal warm air furnace accessories, sold principally to furnace manufacturers throughout the United States and Canada.

This company handled two hundred sixty-two carload shipments during the year 1925 and employs about one hundred people. To ac-assets and organization of the Federal Stamping Company, which had succeeded the Veterinary Specialty Company, which was purchased by Thomas Olinger in 1914.

In the spring of 1923, eighteen acres of land was acquired in what is known as the East Side Addition to the City of Holland, on which was erected the new factory as shown above. This building was completed in June, 1924, and contains 65,000 square feet of floor space under one roof. It is a modcommodate the increased demand for "Federal goods" a new addition is now under construction which will add about 20,000 square feet more of floor space.

Mr. Olinger, who is president and general manager, states that if the present general prosperity continues, further expansion will be again required in 1927.

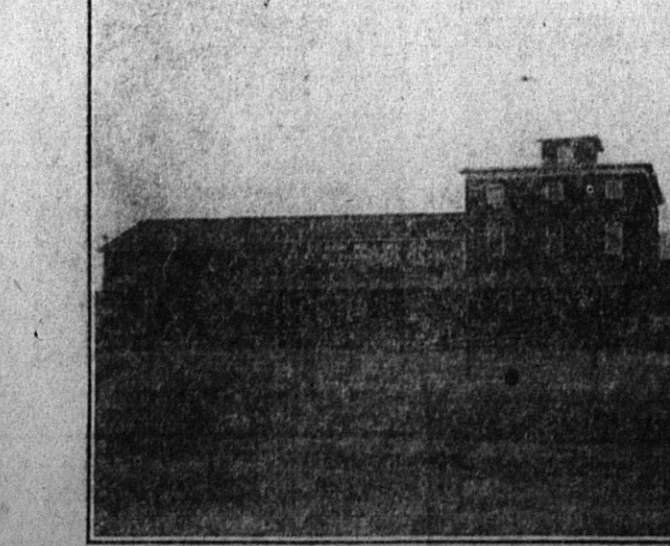

Those interested can see the products of this prosperous concern on display at the Armory during "Made in Holland Week."

AGAIN OLD STYLE LAMPS ARE BEING PUT TO USE

Large numbers of novelty lamps now are being displayed. Of these, perhaps, the most interesting are those which are constructed of lamps used back in the days before electricity for lighting was known. The lovely old candelabra or ornate gilded metal with cutglass drops, are being wired to make most effective ornamental lamps for mantels, dressing-tables and similar places.

Even the old kerosene lamp, which has long been relegated to the attic, or is brought forth only upon occasions when something goes wrong with the electric light plant, is coming into its own again, and is being wired so that it may once more take its place in "polite society!"

Most of these novelty lamps are almost purely ornamental, it is true, and care must be exercised not to overdo their use. But the price-tag probably will prevent the buyer from carrying too many home! The only one who may have any number of these are the people who are blessed with pieces handed down from past generations.

"EIGEN HAARD HOUD WAARD"

Freely translated, this Dutch saying is: A man's home is worth much gold. And at once you can see the connection between this motto and the Thompson Manufacturing Co.

When one brings to mind a picture of his home it usually centers around the "haard" (hearth), or the Living Room. And it is in the effort to make this room more livable and more appealing that the Thompson factory is engaged. That they are entirely successful in their efforts is easily borne out by the charming tables which they so skillfully produce.

"Eigen haard houd waard" may be a thoroughly Dutch expression, but it certainly does embody the universal sentiment that enables to sell furniture. And it is this high regard for one's home that is our constant inspiration to produce better and better furniture.

CHARM SOUGHT IN BEDROOM ITEMS

With so many delightful vanity dressers lying in wait to snare the buyers of bedroom suites, the old, practical dresser wonders if its life is doomed! But this is not so. The bedroom which can't accommodate a good-sized chest of drawers to take care of father's clothes should have a dresser instead of a vanity. A chest of drawers or a chiffonette, topped by a good mirror, makes a good piece of furniture for the man of the house, and then the vanity dresser can take its own place with no harm done. If the bedroom is small, however, the dresser comes into its own, for it combines both the drawer service of the chiffonette and the dressing table facilities of the vanity. The woman who fears "that dressers have gone out of style" should be guided by common sense.

A popular dresser is of walnut, with turned spindle standards supporting the mirror. A spindle ornament on the corner of the dresser repeats this charming Colonial motif and the quaint chair with the cane bottom has spindle decorations to make it harmonious.

A hooked rug, a silhouette picture and an old-time Colonial picture are little items which still further bring out the Colonial idea in this room.

YOU CAN'T BEAT THE DUTCH

Now, if that doesn't beat the Dutch! You've heard that expression, no doubt, on occasions when the seemingly impossible happened. It is rather a dramatic utterance and is an eloquent figure of speech to use when the unlooked for happens and you're properly amazed, such as if you should come home from Market and find that your wife had skipped off with another man, or if you had a bet on the Boston Red Sox to win and they actually did, or if while praising your radio set the static starts broadcasting a feline convention.

Of course, it must be something very unusual, very much out of the ordinary and altogether unexpected to call forth this expression. Otherwise it would not be at all apt—because you can't beat the Dutch except on rare occasions. So rare, indeed, is the occurrence that the fact is emphasized by the figure of speech quoted above.

You can't beat the Dutch! That goes for 99.97% fact whether you think it means "you can't trim the Dutch" or "you can't excell the Dutch." Either way, it's fact. And especially is it true in the matter of making furniture. That's somewhat of a challenge, and if, after a long search, you should perchance find a piece of furniture that beats the Holland article, then indeed will there be reason to exclaim:

Now, if that doesn't beat the Dutch!

Doctors' Heart Detective

An experimental model of the first portable electro-cardiograph, used in studying the electric currents of the heart, has recently been demonstrated.

The cardiograph itself is not a new device, but never before has there been an instrument which is portable nor one commercially developed in which vacuum tubes are used for amplifying the heart voltages.

Records of a patient's heart may be obtained now at the doctor's surgery or in the patient's home. A doctor can easily learn to operate the portable device after a few demonstrations, says a writer in English Mechanics, and it is expected that the apparatus will be producible at a cost and in quantities that will permit of its wide use throughout the medical profession.

A 'CITY OF HOMES' BUT HOLLAND ALSO IS A 'HOME CITY'

Renting of Homes Just Isn't Done in Our Town

Practically every Chamber of Commerce announces its city as a "City of Homes," but we of Holland, Michigan, prefer to have our city regarded as a "Home City." There's a big difference between the two slogans, the difference that there is between externals and the things inside.

Holland can rightfully boast of its beautiful homes, its well kept lawns, its trim flower gardens, its shady, tree-lined avenues. We like to drive strangers up and down our thoroughfares and to hear their complimentary remarks on the freshly painted, tidy, well-kept premises. Such a tour invariably makes friends for our city. Yes, there's a heap of satisfaction in knowing that we have one of the "rettiest, cleanest cities in the whole country, but the real love for our city goes deeper than that.

We who live here know that the reason for the attractive outside appearances is because the home is the center of interest to each individual. We use our homes to live in—not merely to eat and sleep in. To us the home is an institution which merits and receives our full support. Our best times are had within its walls; it is the rendezvous for family and friends. It is the hub of our social affairs and yet it is also a haven of quiet contentment. About every home is air of permanency, the atmosphere of stability.

Renting of homes just isn't done in our city; we much prefer to own our own. Over 90 per cent of us do. This pride of ownership isn't so much an indication of thrift as it is a reflection of the high place a home has in our estimation. It's a condition—a state of mind—that you won't find in one city out of a hundred regardless of size.

We tell you this, not to boast, but because it has a direct bearing on the kind of furniture made in Holland factories. Most of our home owners are the men who make our furniture. With his own home meaning so much to him, it is the unconscious desire of each man to make Holland's furniture as good as it can be made. It's a condition a good deal like you would have in a food factory where only capable, conscientious housewives were employed. Speed in production is subordinated to thoroughness in workmanship; the full appreciation of home life puts into a man the right kind of temperament to make good furniture. It's an ideal condition, you'll admit, and it's one that we are jealous of.

So, then, whenever you visit our city we want you to carry back the thought that you have visited a Home City and not just a City of Homes. Keeping that thought in mind, Holland and its furniture will have ever so much greater significance to you. It is the way we want to be remembered.

NEW LINE OF THE HOLLAND CHAIR CO.

So, as to have more freedom to devote to their other lines the Caswell-Runyan Company of Huntington, Indiana, have turned over their complete line of costumers to the Holland Chair company. Caswell-Runyan salesmen will, however, continue to sell the line as they have before, the only difference being that now shipments are made from Holland, Michigan, instead of from Huntington.

The transfer of this twelve-year-old line to the Holland Chair company was a most logical one because of this company's enlarged manufacturing facilities, a new addition to the factory having recently been made and new equipment installed. Furthermore, the Holland Chair manager, George Vande Riet, has been for a long time closely associated with the Huntington firm as a designer, and the entire line of costumers are his original creations.—From "As Holland Makes It."

SOME INTERESTING THINGS ABOUT HOLLAND THAT MAKE IT UNUSUAL

In the current city directory the name of Jones appears five times, while names with the prefix "De" appear 250 times and names beginning with "Van" are listed 566 times. The city is overwhelmingly Dutch in its ancestry, yet in its regard for American institutions and the constitution, and its progressiveness, the city is a far better example of the American spirit than nine out of ten other cities.

There are twenty-five churches in Holland, and every one is filled on Sundays. The religious life is a marvel to the numerous visitors and to the numerous investigators who come to Holland. It is because the Church is such an important part in the city affairs that stress is laid on making Holland a better city rather than a bigger city.

The public school system of Holland is looked upon in educational circles as one of the finest systems to be found in the country. The plan of student government was pioneered in Holland, and its success has led many cities to copy the plan. The school buildings and equipment far surpass those of other cities of Holland's size.

The furniture industry in the mainstay of Holland, although here you will find the largest furnace factory in the world as well as the largest factory devoted to making high grade shoes for men and boys. Pickles, pianos, washing machines, woodworking machinery, machine tools, leather, ladders, dyes, chemicals, drugs, sugar, vinegar, canned foods, baked foods, fertilizer, stokers, engines, concrete machinery, glass, and other products are made in Holland.

A summer resort region spreads out around Holland that attracts thousands to our midst every year. The inland Black Lake and the spacious Lake Michigan, the inspiring sand dunes and the restful, wooded shores; the boating, swimming and fishing, the many places of amusement, the golf courses and tennis courts, the exhilarating air and freedom from excessive heat—all these things and many more are responsible for bringing folks to Holland every summer.

Holland has a Board of Public Works that gives the city the lowest electric light rate of any city of its size, and through efficient management is able to assume the bonded indebtedness of the city. This phase of the city government has attracted attention from cities throughout the country. The latest achievement of this Board is to give to the city a new hospital out-right, the same to be paid for out of the earnings of the Public Works.

The Parks of Holland are unequaled for beauty and variety of floral colorings. Centennial Park, in the midst of the city, is at all times a cause for exclamation on the part of visitors.

The Warm Friend Tavern, built by Holland money and with Holland hands, is one of the unique hotels in the entire country. It is the finest hostelry on the entire east coast of Lake Michigan, and in all respects it typifies the spirit and capabilities of Holland's citizens. Here visitors are made welcome, and it is here that we want you to come some time. Manager Tyson will greet you with a warm handshake, and the Dutch-uniformed bell boys will serve you happily.

The population of Holland is, in round numbers, 15,000. These fifteen thousand are all white people; Holland has no negroes, nor any Orientals or people from any Southern Latin countries. Holland is 100 per cent white.

Eighth street looking east from River street in 1884. Not a brick block outside of the City Hotel, Kanter's block, the John Van Landegend building and J. N. Bosman's clothing store. Oh, yes, there we see the Van Raalte and Baker building way down the line, where shoes were sold. It is now occupied by the American Store. Former Mayor John Van Landegend built the first three-story building in Holland now occupied by the Federal Bakery.

FURNITURE INDUSTRY IS AS OLD AS HOLLAND ITSELF

Other Lines of Trade Also Build Our Rapidly Growing City

There are many things to consider about Holland—its bounteous natural attractions, its alluring recreational facilities, its fascinating resorts, its splendid educational advantages, its strong religious life, its clean homes, clean streets, clean morals, clean men and women. But we would have you consider Holland as a furniture center, because that is really what it is.

Holland's furniture industry is as old as Holland itself. The city and the trade have grown together and neither one could do without the other. The growth of the industry has meant the growth of the city—a persistent, healthy growth. Progress has come about not through the entry of new factories, but through the natural expansion of the factories that have always been here—Lambert, West Michigan, Ottawa, Thompson, Holland, Bay View, Holland Chair, Bush & Lane.

While the city owes much to its furniture industry, the trade likewise owes much to the people of Holland. Sturdy, thorough, thrifty Hollanders with their unceasing labor have taken to the making of furniture like ducks to water. Two generations ago both the city and the industry were founded; today the offspring of the same families are still making our furniture. They know how to make furniture better than they know how to do anything else; it's a natural gift for them to work with wood.

The very traits possessed by the true Dutchman make him by nature the highest type of wood craftsman. He instinctively knows how to convert woods into the finest of furniture, and it goes without saying that he is at his best when engaged in making good furniture. He likes his work, he is thorough to a fault, he is satisfied only with the best, he despises laziness and slipshod methods. It is more than anyone else, who has made Grand Rapids furniture famous, and it is he who has made Holland furniture always respected as being the equal of the best of our neighbor city.

We make no boast that Holland is a large furniture production center; other cities lead us in the amount of furniture produced. But we do maintain that Holland is one of the leaders in the making of high grade furniture. Run through the names of the Holland manufacturers and see if you can find a single one who makes a cheap line. No, you will find only good furniture made in the Holland factories, the kind of furniture that your discriminating trade buys. Consider Holland, then, for the kind of a furniture center which it really is. Consider, too, that the making of good furniture is the major industry in Holland.

Undersea Craft Idea

Dates Back Centuries

Few and evil have been the days of the submarine, which it is hoped to banish from the fleets of the world. But experimentally the idea goes back into a very remote past. Aristotle speaks of some kind of submarine vessel used in the siege of Tyre more than 2,000 years ago, and there are occasional mentions of the idea through history.

In the Sixteenth century we come to the bishop of Upsala's claim to have invented a boat for scuttling ships from below, and in 1623 Charles I gave a Dutch inventor an order for "bontes to go under water," though they do not seem to have been used against the French. There were the rudimentary and unsuccessful "turtles" of Bushnell in the Eighteenth century. But an ill fate pursued the early inventors.

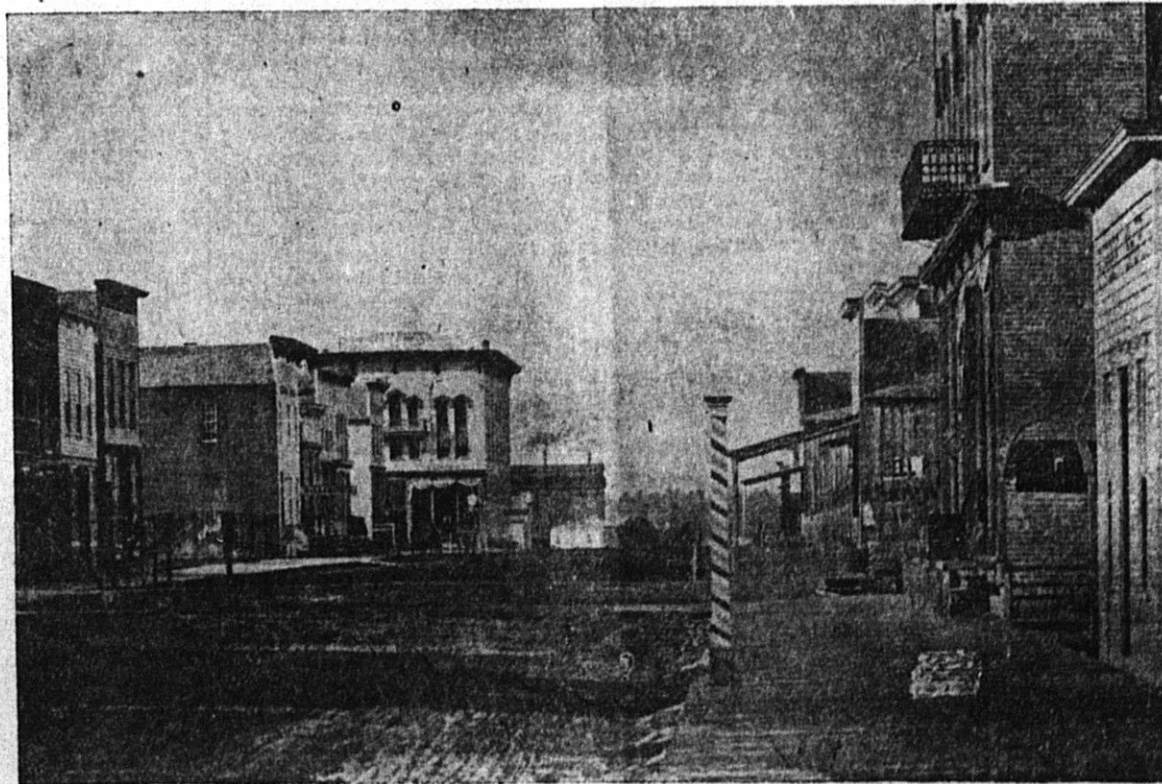

Fulton's submarine was rejected by France, England and America in turn, and he set himself to the more useful work of designing boat engines. Johnson's submersible, which was to have rescued Napoleon from St. Helena, came to nothing. Bauer, who was taken up by the prince consort, drowned the crew of his submarine, though the admiral seems to have been largely to blame. — Manchester Guardian.

It was occupied by Kenyon's bunk and the Joslin & Breyman jewelry store. The second floor was used as an opera house. This was in the days when "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" and the "Bell Ringers" held the boards.

A WORD ABOUT OLD MASTERS YOU FIND IN OUR FACTORIES

Visitors strolling through any of our Holland furniture factories invariably comment on the characteristic Old Masters who, here and there, are at work at their benches. They refer to these venerable gentlemen as "types," meaning that if they were wooden shoes that they would personify the type of Dutchman depicted on souvenir post cards which comes from the old country.

The truth is, these old men are the masters of our woodworking craft. Many of them have passed beyond the point of productive profit, but here you find them working along with the younger men, doing things much their own way. These are the men who have built Holland's furniture industry, who have lived their whole lives in the smell and dust of fine cabinet woods. They are wedded to their work, these old masters, and the kindly, contented twinkle on their faces tells you that they are far happier at their appointed tasks than they would be in any other situation.

It isn't sentiment that keeps these men on the payrolls, although we are attached to them. They are permitted to stay at their benches because they are a helpful influence which every Holland factory keenly appreciates. Our way of making furniture almost demands that they stay with us.

For we would have you know that these are the masters who tutor the younger men, show them by word and by action how to get the most and best out of wood. Being pretty much their own boss they are given the work that they like best, and it is their prerogative to set the shop standards. They don't set the production pace—that is left to speedy machines and younger hands—but they certainly do establish and maintain the precision and thoroughness and intelligent workmanship which is revealed in every bit of Holland-made furniture.

We wouldn't have you think that our factories are operated entirely by these masters of the craft, but you will find them in sufficient numbers to be impressed by their presence. Nor would we have you think that they are remnants, because they eagerly carry on an active participation in the work of each day. They earn their wage, and in addition to that they give to the apprentices their inspiration and desire to do their work "as good as the 'old' man."

These venerable craftsmen assure you of reliable furniture, properly made in all respects. They assure us that the younger men coming into our factories will be carefully and thoroughly trained in the right practices. It's a wonderful situation, for you and for us. And to the world at large it should be significant that there is an appeal to the woodworking craft that keeps these Old Masters at their work year after year, and each year finds their contentment greater.

Such a craft, especially as you find it in Holland, is indeed a pleasant one, worthy of highest reward. —From "As Holland Makes It."

THE DEAN OF OUR INDUSTRY

Many of those who pioneered Holland's furniture industry are no longer with us, having lived their allotted time. Arend Visscher, George Hummer, Charles Limbert and others have departed, but there is one of these sturdy pioneers still left to us, and judging by his untiring activity and keen interest in life and business he will be with us for a couple more decades at least.

Henry Pelgrim, Sr., started the Bay View Furniture Co. more than a quarter century ago at a time when Bay View tables were made from Michigan oak. Those were the days of hideous monstrosities in furniture, and the days when Holland's lumber supply was at its back door. You could buy a mammoth dining table at that time for as little as a dollar and a half. Snaking huge logs through Michigan forests undoubtedly gave Mr. Pelgrim his desire to make furniture. But his interest in furniture has only served to increase his interest and knowledge of lumber. For years there hasn't been a shrewder buyer of lumber than he, and in lumber circles they know that only the clearest grade will pass his inspection. This reputation of his insistence upon the best in lumber has long since insured the Bay View of getting the kind of wood that is partly responsible for the increasing demand for its furniture.

You'll find Mr. Pelgrim at the office every morning at eight, and you'll find him busy from then until five in the afternoon. Plenty of work and a big interest in life seem to be his formula for keeping young despite his years.—From "As Holland Makes It."

Odd Slavery Conditions

There is much corroborative testimony and numerous references to the facts that there were at the outbreak of the Civil war a very large number of free negroes, and that these negroes in many cases owned property and slaves. These latter, however, were usually members of their own families whom they had redeemed and whom they held as slaves technically on account of the laws of many states which prohibited the manumitted slaves from remaining in the state or territory. In many cases the slaveholder, while himself originally a slave, had received his freedom before certain laws went into effect which were not retroactive.

"Bore Waves"

A high tidal wave, or succession of two or three, rushing up a narrow estuary or tidal river, as at change of tide is called a bore wave. They occur in places where the tides rise and fall a considerable number of feet, as in the Bay of Fundy and various rivers in Europe and other parts of the world. As the tide advances the water is suddenly thrown in as if in a mass, and then pursues its course up the estuary or river and in opposition to the current, presenting a volume of water moving with great rapidity and resistless force and with a height varying from two to three feet to more than twelve feet. In the case of the Tien-Tungkang the bore is said to have a rise of twenty feet and to advance with a loud roar at the rate of ten miles an hour.

What Causes Clumsiness?

Dr. E. C. Clements, who is a British physician and aviator, says that many people are clumsy because they lack the proper balance between the muscular systems of their eyes. The physician made a thorough study of the eye disorders which make some men incapable of becoming good aviators. The clumsy man cannot land the planes successfully, even if he can operate them successfully when in the air. According to Doctor Clements, two factors are essential to proper binocular vision. The brain must interpret correctly the impulses which are received from the eyes. The muscles must respond to these stimuli efficiently. There are many cases where defects of this kind can be remedied by a course of visual training exercises.—Pathfinder Magazine.

State Constitutions

The states in existence at the time of the drafting of the Constitution of the United States had constitutions of their own and it was upon these that the federal one was patterned. The states developed their documents from colonial charters, which in turn were modeled upon the charters of mercantile companies of the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries. Massachusetts is the only state which retains the constitution framed in that period, but it has been revised and amended. All the states, however, in their modern constitutions retain many of the principles and much of the framework of the other documents.

LOCAL ICE PLANT DELIVERS MORE THAN 12,000 TONS ANNUALLY

By Superior Pure Ice & Mach. Co. A. J. Fairbanks, Pres. and Mgr. B. Naberhuis, Sec'y and Treas.

The Superior Pure Ice & Mach. Co. are pioneers in the manufacture of artificial ice. In 1909 the company started the first artificial ice plant in western Michigan, putting up a plant with a daily capacity of 10 tons. As the demand for pure ice increased the company enlarged its plant in 1916 and again in 1921, so that now the plant has a daily capacity of 25 tons of pure distilled water ice.

In 1918 the company purchased the ice houses on West Sixteenth street. These houses were entirely rebuilt in 1922, so that now the company has a modern natural ice storage plant of 5,000 tons capacity, with a modern ice harvesting equipment with which the company can fill the houses in a week's time instead of from three to four weeks by the old method.

The company has a first class delivery equipment of eight trucks and three wagons with which to handle all this ice and give this city prompt and efficient service. Naturally we take great delight in keeping people cool in summer.

But however much we delight in keeping people cool in summer we also take a just pride in keeping people warm in winter. And so in 1916 the company purchased 100 feet of frontage on Ninth street, adjoining the ice plant on the east side. This property has been converted into a modern coal and coke storage plant. The bins are 14 feet below the track so that the unloading of coal and coke is nearly all done by gravity. This of course eliminates the breakage of coal and enables us to unload the average car in much less time than by shoveling.

Just recently the company erected a 14 by 24-foot two-story office building and furnished with modern office equipment to care for its growing business. We are equipped therefore to give you pure ice to guard your health, and quality coal to keep you warm. We are at your service summer and winter.

TURN A SWITCH AND EAT IN BED

Electric Conveniences Enable Housewife to Prepare
Meals with Ease

Breakfast in the average American home has been the most unsatisfactory of meals because where there were no maids the housewife spent her time running between the dining room and the kitchen preparing and serving the food, while the family partook of it hurriedly and rushed off with scarcely a word being exchanged. Yet by all rights this meal should be the most cheerful, for it helps start off the new day right. To be sure, there were drawbacks, many of them, which made it next to impossible for the woman of the house to participate in the meal and send the others off in good humor.

But those days are gone. Today, no matter how little time the family has at breakfast, the mother spends it with them, preparing the food at the table and serving it piping hot from electrical appliances designed for that purpose. There is no doubt this new way of preparing breakfast will further enable wives and mothers better to take their proper places in the household.

Wire the Table
The modern breakfast or dining room equipment is incomplete without an electric percolator, toaster, waffle iron, egg boiler, tea kettle and grill. To use these appliances with comfort, it is necessary to have the room equipped with enough outlets so the table cooking operations may be carried on at one and the same time. These outlets can be installed in baseboard or wall, but the most convenient of all is to have the table wired, thus eliminating the inconvenience of having to rise to connect and disconnect appliances.

In a great many homes this convenience of preparing breakfast electrically has been carried even further. A switch controlling the outlets in the breakfast room is installed in the main bedroom, and merely by pressing this (the appliance having been connected the night before), the preparations of the coffee and cereal is started while the housewife is dressing.

Various Styles
There are many styles of percolators ranging in prices from as low as $5 to as high as anyone wishes to pay. As a rule the cheaper percolators are made of aluminum, while the higher priced ones are nickel-plated aluminum, copper or other metals.

The same thing applies to the waffle iron. There are several different types on the market. The round type is a practical iron for a small family, but for a large one, the square iron to which can be added additional sections is more desirable, permitting the making of a larger number of waffles at one time.

Next to the coffee percolator the toaster is probably the most important factor in preparing the morning meals, and should be chosen according to the service it must give. A family of four or five should have one of the large toasters which toast several pieces at one time. If the family is small or only one or two members eat toast, a smaller type will do very well. Some of the later designs of toasters are equipped with a small rack on top which keeps the toast warm until wanted. Others are designed to hold a small size plate where the toast may be kept warm. This style is particularly desirable where the toast is buttered immediately.

Making Tea
Next comes the electric egg-boiler which is a wonderful convenience. For the home where tea is preferred, the electric water kettle is ideal. In many homes, now, each teacup is provided with a tiny tea bag and hot water is used from the kettle. This is really a superior and more satisfactory method of making tea because it enables each person to make it to suit the individual taste.

The electric grill is another appliance that is widely used for preparing breakfast.

A woman who has become proficient in the use of these appliances, can get breakfast with practically no trouble at all, and without leaving the table.

Household Pet Knew Purpose of Knocker

This story is vouched for by one who has been for many years captain of a sailing ship. Several times during the past few weeks he had been called to the door by a "rat-tat" on the knocker just as he was comfortably settled down with his pipe, and on each occasion at first there was apparently no reason to answer the door. One night, however, the vestibule door caught for a moment as he opened it, and left only a small gap of about six or eight inches. Through this gap squeezed the household cat, a fine black one, and he guessed the animal had on other occasions slipped past unnoticed. Fetching an electric torch, he examined the door, and found marks showing the cat had climbed up, held itself in position by a grip on the door molding while it raised the knocker, a theory which was later proved correct. After hearing the usual knock the captain crept quietly round the side entrance, and waited until the cat repeated the operation, then dropped quietly on the mat and looked expectantly at the door.—London Mail.

"Because they say they are, of course!" promptly replied old Gauntton Grimm.—Kansas City Star.

ARTHUR VISSCHER TELLS INTERESTING HISTORY OF HOLLAND'S FIRST FURNITURE FACTORY

Holland's First Furniture Plant, the Ottawa.

By Arthur Visscher
The early history of the Ottawa Furniture Company is a very interesting one. The factory site on North River Avenue is one that was originally occupied by a flour and saw mill which was built by Mr. Oswald Daniel Vander Sluis, who settled here in 1850. In the early days of the colony each new member of the community was requested by its leader, Dr. A. C. Van Raalte, to engage in some business that would be for the good of the community, as well as for their own gain.

It so happened that at that time there was no mill so Mr. Vander Sluis, having some means was asked to build one. The crude machinery for this first mill was drawn by ox cart from Detroit. Mr. Vander Sluis also built for himself a three-story house on the same location. This was the largest house in the village at that time. It was in this home that his daughter, Annie, was born. By a queer turn of circumstances this child, now Mrs. Arend Visscher, came into possession of the largest holdings in what is now the Ottawa Furniture Company. This mill was used until the time of the general fire of 1871 which destroyed almost all of the city. During that period it was owned and operated by several men. The two that owned it the longest time being Mr. Bailey and Mr. Ferris. For many years the mill was known as the Ferris Mill.

Following the fire the property was not used for many years. It was during this period that the community experienced its hardest times. Following the Civil war the village had prospered with the rest of the country, but the blow suffered by the great fire was one that apparently could scarcely be overcome, as the small fortunes of most of the inhabitants were almost all wiped out. Many of the people had religious scruples against fire insurance and others who carried fire insurance recovered but little due to the fact that the Chicago fire coming as it did at this time wiped out of existence so many of the largest fire insurance companies. With almost every inhabitant owing large amounts, borrowed for the rebuilding of their homes on which they were paying interest rates ranging from ten to fourteen per cent and with relatively little employment things were very bad for several years.

It was during the early 80's that three young men became largely instrumental in starting a new era of prosperity in the city's life. One was Mr. Mat Notter, who founded a creamery; another was Mr. C. J. DeKoo, who started the Standard Milling Co., and the third was Mr. Reindert Workman, at one time manager of the old Phenix Mill, located on the present postoffice site. It was he who in 1886 formed a company that bore his name for the manufacture of farm implements, such as fanning mills, dog churns, etc. This company was composed of some local people but was largely financed by Mr. A. H. Brink of Graafschap. They built at least two of the buildings now being occupied by the Ottawa Furniture Company. The venture was not a success, as it was started at a time when more modern types of farm machinery had just been invented. They soon started the manufacture of cheap furniture, selling three-piece bedroom suites as low as fourteen dollars. This was the first furniture manufacturing venture in Holland. Since that time six other large factories have been built by Holland outside capital.

It was in 1891 that this company was taken over by a newly organized company known as the Ottawa Furniture Company. In this company was Mr. James Huntley, who was by far the largest stockholder, as it was he who had built the buildings with the help of Mr. Hein Te Roller. Others who were associated with him at that time were: J. Huntley, Mary Huntley, Nellie Huntley, Harry Huntley, Geo. Huntley, C. Ver Schure, J. VanPutten, Jr., A. VanPutten, H. VanArk, Y. VanArk, F. VanArk, B. VanPutten, J. VanPutten, C. Blom, B. Slag.

Mr. Huntley managed the company very well for several years. In 1892 Mr. Geo. W. Browning was asked to take the management as Mr. Huntley's health failed him. He managed the affairs of the company with great success until the time of his death in 1913. From that time until 1920 the company was capably managed by Mr. W. H. Wing, who had come to Holland from Vermontville, Michigan, with Mr. Browning.

The company at present manufactures a beautiful line of Dining, Breakfast and Apartment suites. They are made in various finishes and woods. A few of the suites retail for over $1,000 each, but the majority of them are medium priced for the average buyer. The company enjoys a national distribution. Several new buildings have been erected. At present their factory has about 200,000 feet of floor space. Its sales force consists of over twenty men. One of this force, Mr. Charles H. Fawcett, has been representing the company for over thirty years in the New England territory. The company has about two hundred employees and does an annual business of nearly a million dollars.

The Ottawa Furniture Co. maintains a permanent wholesale exhibit in the Manufacturers Building, Grand Rapids.

Its present officers are: President and general manager, Mr. A. A. Visscher; sales manager, Mr. Waldo M. Ball; vice president, Mr. R. Visscher; treasurer, Mr. P. Marcusse; secretary, Mr. E. Brooks. De Vries and Dornbos Furniture Co. are the Holland, Mich., distributors of the Ottawa Furniture Co. of this city.

MODERATE RISE IN FURNITURE

Price Advance Since Pre-War
Date Far Less Than Clothing or Building

Furniture is one of the cheapest commodities offered to the buying public. If it was being produced today on the manufacturing basis of 1913 it would cost twice as much as it did then, whereas the wholesale price is now but 76 per cent above 1913, according to the United States Department of Labor. Compared with this 76 per cent increase in the price of furniture and house furnishing the same department gives an increase of 103 per cent for cloths and clothing and 78 per cent for building materials. These figures were compiled for December, 1923, but they stand substantially the same today. In 1913 furniture craftsmen were paid about one-half the scale prevailing today. For example, a large Chicago firm paid cabinetmakers 32½ cents an hour in 1913 and now they are being paid 65 cents an hour. Upholsterers, who averaged 40 cents an hour in 1913, are now receiving 80 cents an hour. Machine hands drawing 65 cents an hour now were paid 35 cents an hour in 1913, and wood finishers who earned 27½ cents an hour 10 years ago are now paid 57½ cents an hour.

Greater Increase
A still greater increase is to be noted in material prices. In 1913 a good grade of cotton tapestry could be purchased at $1.65 per yard; today this same piece of goods is sold at $3.57 per yard. Gum lumber that sold for $22.50 per thousand feet in 1913 is today $52.12 per thousand; and turpentine, which is used in the finishing of furniture, is now 95.4 cents per gallon, while in 1913 it was 42.8 cents.

Similar figures could be compiled on hundreds of other items and from various centers of the country, but the proportions would be about the same.

The accompanying chart graphically illustrates the percentage of increase in manufacturing costs, together with the percentage of increase in the selling price of furniture. The average of the cost items is 108 per cent, while furniture and furnishings have actually advanced only 76 per cent. This proves our original statement that if furniture today were being produced on the cost basis of 1913 its wholesale price would be over twice what it was in that year.

Why Prices Stay Low
There are many reasons why furniture prices have not advanced as high as items of cost, some of which are worth stating. Improved manufacturing processes have enabled furniture factories to turn out more pieces per man than was the case in 1913. Machinery has been greatly improved, material wastes have been reduced and larger cuttings have gone through the factories. There are not as many furniture factories in business today as there were in 1913, demand has actually increased, hence the volume of the various plants has also increased. This makes for a lower factory cost on the individual items, and this saving has been passed on to the consuming public.

It is not difficult to see why labor and material costs have more than doubled during the past 10 years. The craftsmen who work in furniture factories can also work in automobile plants and in building construction. Ten years ago the automobile industry was almost nothing compared with what it is today.

Rapid Growth
During these 10 years it has grown by leaps and bounds and it has obtained much of its labor from the furniture industry. It has also purchased vast quantities of materials that are used in furniture, principally hardwood lumber, plate glass, leather, mohair and finishing materials. This competition in both labor and materials has naturally greatly enhanced their prices.

What has been said for the automobile industry can also be said for building construction. The last three years have witnessed the greatest expansion in building that the country has ever known. This has meant an increased demand for skilled labor, lumber and finishing materials, hence the furniture industry has had this competition to meet. In addition to all this, railroad car building and repairing, of which little was done during the war, has greatly increased since 1920, and it, also, has put in its bid for furniture, labor and materials. The last 10 years have been highly competitive years for the furniture manufacturing industry. With three large industries bidding for its skilled men and for the materials which it uses, it is remarkable that furniture prices have been kept down to their present levels.

And when one compares the kind of furniture produced today with that of 1913 the increased value is more than apparent.

Stinging
At a dance a certain girl had made herself rather conspicuous with a young married man. At the end of their fifth fox trot together the man's wife approached the flushed and breathless girl. "I say, Miss Smartie," she began, "I've got a last year's costume that is really quite good. There's plenty of wear in it. Would you like to have it?" "How dare you?" gasped the girl. "As if I would dream of using anything belonging to you!" "I thought perhaps you might," replied the wife coldly. "You seem anxious enough to get my husband!"

BANK WILL HELP IN BUYING HOME

Ten Ways in Which Families
Can Use Its Service in Acquiring Property

"If I had realized fully, 15 years ago, that the primary purpose of a bank is to lend money, I could have been a millionaire by this time."

This statement was not made by a man who had failed in life and business, but one of the chief executives of a large corporation. He had made money, was a success.

But this man's statement strikingly illustrates the great misunderstanding in most persons' minds of the functions of a bank in a community. Not until his company had floated through banks and groups of banks did this business man clearly understand that the primary purpose of a bank is to lend money.

This fact should be grasped by every husband and wife who aspire to own their own home. The bank on one of the main corners of the town occupies that position solely because it serves the community. It will serve you. Fortunately, the old suspicion of banks and bankers is a remembrance which most of us laugh at now. What we need to think of is how we can put the bank to work for us, individually.

Serve in Ten Ways
Here are some of the services which the bank offers to those whose ambition it is to own their own homes:

1. It will not only keep their savings; it will pay for the privilege of keeping them—that is, through interest on the savings account.

2. Through its savings department officials or its officers in charge of the women's department, the bank will help the couple work out a practical budget system of saving.

3. When the savings reach a point at which the purchase of a lot or the actual building of a house is concerned, the bank will tell its clients what is the most economical way of carrying the burden, and then will help to carry it.

4. Your banker's advice as to what location to select often will prove invaluable; he is in a position to know land values, which lots are likely to become more valuable in time, and other points that should help you to determine your location.

5. He may be able to give you invaluable advice as to what contractor to select; a contractor's credit, on which he must purchase the materials to go into your home, is one of the most important items in his equipment.

Advice on Construction
6. Your banker may be able to suggest points of construction, design and landscaping which will enhance the value of your property.

7. He will safeguard you, or influence your contractor to safeguard you against impermanent, non-insulated, fire-trap construction. He will remind you that the upkeep of such property may prove too great a drain on your capacity to pay, that the cost of heating and maintenance may prove beyond your income budget, and that shoddy construction will detract from the value of the mortgage.

8. If your plan is to build a modest home now, to be exchanged later for a more commodious dwelling, your banker will be interested in finding a market for you when you are ready to sell.

9. He will assist you to readjust your budget, so as to meet interest payments, insurance premiums and maintenance charges, and still leave something besides for the building of a better home or the education of the children or in the inevitable old age.

10. By using these services of your banker, you will establish your credit with him so that, if you are staggering under the heavy load you are carrying and the rainy day comes when you aren't ready for it, he will help you meet it. The banker is not only a public servant; he often is the best of friends in private.

But if you expect the banker to help you with your home-building project, you must convince him that you are in earnest about it. That's about all there is to this seemingly complicated matter of "establishing credit." Saving is the way to convince those who can help you of your earnestness.

Assures Savings
Once the family decides—decides with the force of determination—that it will own its own home, the next step is to budget the family income. Most folks never come to the determination to possess their own four walls and plot of ground because of the seeming impossibility of "scraping up the first payment." Their fear is right; in most cases, the first payment can't be just "scraped up." It has to be accumulated, and the budget system of saving is the surest, the safest and the quickest way to accumulate.

Budgeting is sure to be a personal matter. No student of finance, no authority on home economics, can prescribe a standard for everyone. But persons who have given much attention to the problem of helping families save are agreed that this is a practical plan for an average family of four with an income of $200 a month:

Savings—including investments, payments on real estate, life insurance, etc.—$20.
Food—including all meals eaten away from home, as well as groceries—$50.
Clothes—$25.
Operating Expense Is Large
Fuel, light, water, phone, ice, barber, laundry, car fare, personal property taxes, etc.—$24.
Furniture replacement, tools, silverware, kitchen utensils and similar equipment—$3.

Recreation, vacation, medical and dental attention, books, magazines, lodge dues, automobile—everything that legitimately comes under the head of general welfare—$13.
Contributions to all institutions and causes—$20.
Rent or payments on mortgages, property taxes, insurance, upkeep and repairs—$45.

Now, on this basis of saving $20 a month, how long will it take to accumulate the first payment on a home? Figuring compound interest at only 4 per cent, $20 a month will grow to $247.24 in one year, $504.38 in two years, $755.04 in three years, and $1,304.64 in five years.

Every Room Warm IN ZERO WEATHER

Says Your Holland Home Heating Contract

EVERY HOLLAND USER MUST BE PLEASED!
A written, signed pledge to home owners applies alike in Boston, Portland, Duluth and in every other city where Holland Heating Systems are installed.

There are no loopholes or evasions in the Holland Service Bond or Heating Contract. It is true home comfort insurance, transferable when a home is sold. It assures healthful warmth for ALL the family, in EVERY room in the house in ANY weather. Be sure to get this guarantee when you buy your heating system.

How Service Built This National Organization

Holland Men, East, West, North or South all know this guarantee as a real service pledge. They know that the best way to make their business grow and prosper is to plan and install all Holland Systems in their territory to fulfill all the terms of the Bond. That's why you don't find Holland owners on zero days trying to coax heat out of a temperamental heating plant that may or may not work. Holland men know that the record of growth of their company, as shown by the circles on the map, has come entirely from willingness to deliver such guaranteed service and from willingness of the home owner to deal with a company that will do so. The Holland business growth has come very largely from the recommendations of a million or more warm friends in Holland Heated Homes. After nineteen years, Holland service reaches from coast to coast. The newer coast branches receive the same service other sections have been getting for years.

Undivided Responsibility

Holland men assume complete responsibility for the satisfactory heating of your home. They do the whole job. They analyze your needs. They make a heating plan fitted to your individual home. They install the proper size furnace and equip it correctly. By doing all these things themselves according to Holland Engineering and Holland Training they do not need any alibis. They want to do the job right and they have the training and experience to do it. This undivided responsibility is what makes the Holland Guarantee possible.

Uniform Heating Service from Over 500 Branches

Holland Heating Service Is Standard

From Boston to Portland, Oregon, and from Hancock, Michigan, to Atlanta, Georgia, in more than 500 Service Branches, Holland Heating Service is Standard.

Holland Engineers in every Branch follow carefully the same procedure which has built the Holland business in other territories. Holland Engineers put both a practical and theoretical experience at your service.

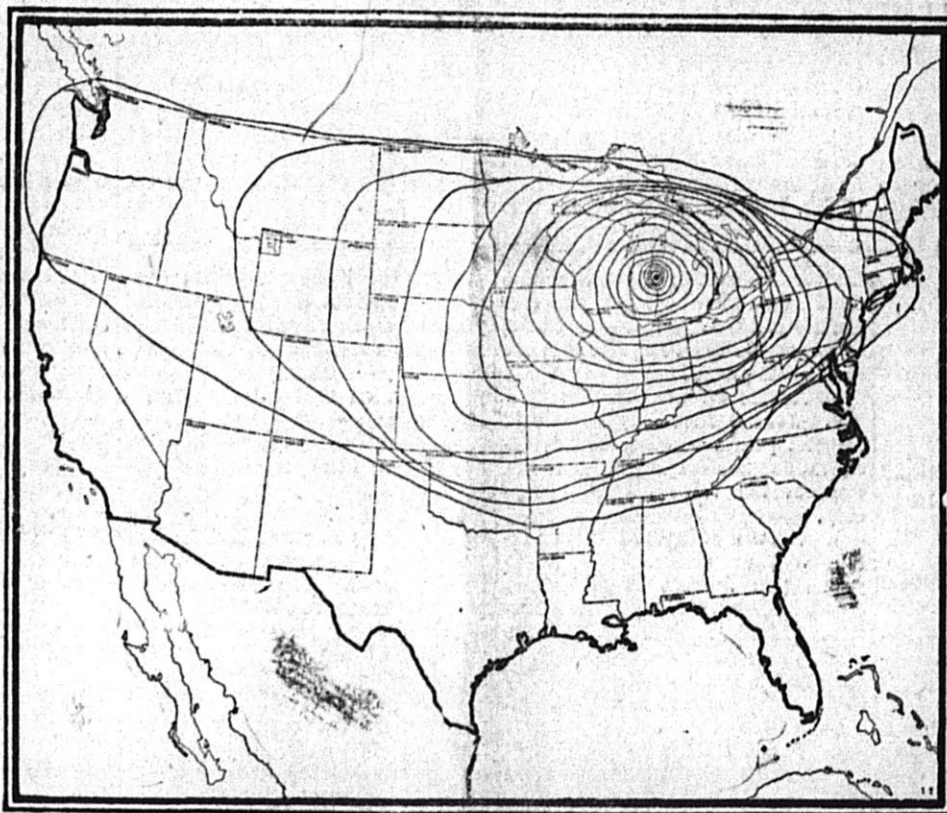

Many furnaces with slight changes can be made into good heating plants. In many cases Holland men can and do give advice and suggest changes which improve heating results 50 to 100 per cent and result in great fuel economy. Such changes in present heating equipment are often made by Holland men at fair Holland prices. Consult them if your furnace needs a little fixing or if you need a heating system for either a new or old home. Have a Holland Man—a heating expert—discuss the matter with you right in your own home without cost and without any obligation on your part.

"HOLLAND FURNACES MAKE WARM FRIENDS"

Six Points of Holland Service

1. You get Heating efficiency because proper engineering plans give you correct layout, correct size and location of furnace and the right size pipes and registers for each room according to the needs of that room.
2. Upkeep expense is low with Holland because of the patented features which make it possible to burn any fuel economically—to take the greatest possible amount of heat out of the fuel and put it right where it belongs.
3. Ease of operation. No poking through feed door to get out ashes. The roller bearing grate is easily lowered for cleaning.
4. Cleanliness is a big feature of every Holland System. Holland methods of casting eliminate make-shift, bolted together joints, so there is no escaping gas, smoke or dust to soil decorations or furnishings.
5. Durability. The Holland is guaranteed for five years but will last a natural lifetime.
6. No system provides the same means for health as is provided by the Holland System, since it moistens and cleanses and circulates the air you breathe and provides uniform warmth and air circulation without drafts or cold floors.

Health from Humidity and Circulated Air

With a Holland Heating System in your home you keep the whole family in better health. You all breathe in good health from circulated air. Not air that is so dry that furniture falls to pieces, but circulated air that is moistened and is as naturally invigorating, as air from out of doors. The air in a Holland Heated home doesn't make you feel drowsy and stupid but makes you feel active and well.

The New Holland Humidifier will evaporate from 5 to 25 gallons of water per day into the air chamber, depending on the size of the heating plant and the amount of firing done. It is, so far as we know, the only heating plant that will do this. Physicians agree that this is vital to health. Many of them enjoy Holland heat in their own homes and say they would not part with it.

Ask your own doctor for his opinion.
