$1 million donation centers on community

JULIE GREEN

Hope College is making a commitment to the Holland community.

On Sept. 1, the college made a pledge at $1 million, to be given over a three year period, to the Holland Area Joint Building Authority for a proposed area center.

"We felt that it was a good investment for the needs the college had, and we also wanted to be a good corporate citizen," said President James Bultman.

The proposed area center, which will be on the Nov. 2 ballot, is a $28 million dollar project, with $8 million in private donations. It will be a 5,000 seat multipurpose arena, with an outdoor ice rink, and will be located at the corner of Sixth Street and Central Avenue.

"We're really excited about the [donation]," said Jim Brooks, spokesperson for the Citizens Initiative Group. The Citizens Initiative Group began about two years ago, and is an organization of citizens who are promoting the development of the area center.

The idea for an area center has been around for more than 10 years. The initial proposal was for a $50 million center, but it was rejected in a 4-3 vote by Holland Township trustees in May of 1998. Holland Township trustees approved a reformed plan of a $28 million center in August with a 5-2 vote to put it on the ballot.

If the proposal passes, Hope will have a lot to gain from a new area center.

"When you look at the other options, they're not very good," Bultman said.

Hope's men's basketball games, which are currently held at the deteriorating Civic Center, may be among the first to be moved to the area center.

Other possible Hope uses are Convocation, musical events, sports games, and other large gatherings.

"Hope understands the value and the importance of an area center like this," Brooks said. "The community realizes that Hope is a major part of the fabric of the community."

Hope's donation for the amount of $1 million was suggested to the college by a group of citizens.

House of Cards

SARA E LAMERS

The recent addition of Derek Emerson to the Arts and Humanities Department has left Student Development holding a "Help Wanted" sign.

The absence of Emerson, former Director of Housing and Judicial Affairs, along with the resignation of Residential Life Director Julie Griebel last spring, has left Student Development staff scrambling to see that student's housing needs are met.

"Currently Emerson's former position has been posted and we will begin the hiring process," said Richard Frost, Vice President of Student Development. "This will be a temporary position until the switch can be completed at a national level."

Frost explained that the current posting is only for the academic year and whoever is hired will not necessarily be in the position permanently. The national search involves listing the position in a series of publications.

Letters of nomination for the position will also be accepted.

Frost will also attend two national conferences and then begin interviewing candidates in January. Final candidates will be invited to campus in April. The same process will be used to hire a new Residential Life Director.

Currently the Housing Department is being taken care of by Froo Joel Jonetrois Zuidema of the Counseling Center, and Kristen Gray, Assistant Dean of Students.

Frost feels that the recent turn of events means more HOUSING on 10

Alcohol policy changes

CARRIE ARNOLD

This fall, Hope College's policy on alcohol and drug use, as well as other similar violations, has a new amendment.

In response to federal legislation adopted by the 105th Congress last fall, Hope College is now able to contact the parents of a student who is found in violation of college policies, specifically those regarding alcohol.

"This change was from the number of deaths from alcohol poisoning," said Richard Frost, Dean of Students.

Last year alone, students from the University of Iowa, Michigan State University, the University of Michigan, and Radford College were all killed in alcohol-related accidents.

Spearheaded by Senator John Warner of Virginia, the Federal Parental Notification Act was passed last October. This allows colleges and universities to notify the parents of students who have been found in violation of any local, state, and Federal laws, and campus policies regarding alcohol and drug possession and use.

"The real change will be to permit me, to say in certain circumstances, to say I think we need to talk to your folks about this," Frost said. "We want students to realize that their behavior on campus in terms of drugs and alcohol that when that behavior is severe, we can talk to their parents."

Frost emphasized that this was not a decision made just by Hope College. Congress passed this bill "more in response to a national trend."

Intermission

SARA E LAMERS

Emerson to the Arts and Humanities Department holding a "Help Wanted" sign last spring, has left Student Development, along with the resignation of the Director of Housing and Judicial Affairs.

See that student's housing needs are met by Student Development staff. "This will be a temporary position until the switch can be completed at a national level."

The national search involves listing the position in a series of publications.

Letters of nomination for the position will also be accepted.

Frost will also attend two national conferences and then begin interviewing candidates in January. Final candidates will be invited to campus in April. The same process will be used to hire a new Residential Life Director.

Currently the Housing Department is being taken care of by Froo Joel Jonetrois Zuidema of the Counseling Center, and Kristen Gray, Assistant Dean of Students.

Frost feels that the recent turn of events means more HOUSING on 10

Alcohol policy changes

CARRIE ARNOLD

This fall, Hope College's policy on alcohol and drug use, as well as other similar violations, has a new amendment.

In response to federal legislation adopted by the 105th Congress last fall, Hope College is now able to contact the parents of a student who is found in violation of college policies, specifically those regarding alcohol.

"This change was from the number of deaths from alcohol poisoning," said Richard Frost, Dean of Students.

Last year alone, students from the University of Iowa, Michigan State University, the University of Michigan, and Radford College were all killed in alcohol-related accidents.

Spearheaded by Senator John Warner of Virginia, the Federal Parental Notification Act was passed last October. This allows colleges and universities to notify the parents of students who have been found in violation of any local, state, and Federal laws, and campus policies regarding alcohol and drug possession and use.

"The real change will be to permit me, to say in certain circumstances, to say I think we need to talk to your folks about this," Frost said. "We want students to realize that their behavior on campus in terms of drugs and alcohol that when that behavior is severe, we can talk to their parents."

Frost emphasized that this was not a decision made just by Hope College. Congress passed this bill "more in response to a national trend."

more DONATION on 9
CIT changes e-mail addresses for freshmen

Members of the incoming freshman class will be the first students on Hope’s campus to use the new e-mail addresses designed by CIT. Instead of the old number and letter system currently in use by the returning students, the Class of ’03 will have an address using only their first and last names. A typical address looks like: jdoe@hope.edu

Carl Heideman, director of CIT, said that the addresses were changed for several reasons.

“There was a lot of demand for easier to understand e-mail addresses,” he said. “The previous system took into account the year of graduation, which often became inaccurate.”

One of CIT’s main concerns, however, was to protect the privacy of the students, since a portion of the numbers used in the old system were also contained in the students’ Social Security number.

Heideman said that he hopes all of Hope’s students will be switched over to the new system sometime this fall.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.

Quick Reminder

The first meeting of the Women’s Issues Organization is today at 5:30 p.m. in Phelps Lounge East.

If you are on meal plan, then grab your grub and head to the meeting.

Campus Briefs

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“With the new system, students could keep their old addresses if they desired. Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.”

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Mailroom announces new delivery system

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.

Quick Reminder

The first meeting of the Women’s Issues Organization is today at 5:30 p.m. in Phelps Lounge East.

If you are on meal plan, then grab your grub and head to the meeting.

Campus Briefs

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.

Quick Reminder

The first meeting of the Women’s Issues Organization is today at 5:30 p.m. in Phelps Lounge East.

If you are on meal plan, then grab your grub and head to the meeting.

Campus Briefs

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.

Quick Reminder

The first meeting of the Women’s Issues Organization is today at 5:30 p.m. in Phelps Lounge East.

If you are on meal plan, then grab your grub and head to the meeting.

Campus Briefs

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.

Quick Reminder

The first meeting of the Women’s Issues Organization is today at 5:30 p.m. in Phelps Lounge East.

If you are on meal plan, then grab your grub and head to the meeting.

Campus Briefs

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.

Quick Reminder

The first meeting of the Women’s Issues Organization is today at 5:30 p.m. in Phelps Lounge East.

If you are on meal plan, then grab your grub and head to the meeting.

Campus Briefs

The Hope College mail room has changed their mail delivery system in order to facilitate delivery to student residences.

Before the U.S. Postal Service delivered mail to each of the individual dorms and larger apartment buildings in large bags.

Now, a new Haussman, head of the mail room, said that there had been problems with the student delivery of the mail, especially considering the speed at which they had to work.

Heideman said that the system was developed to make it easier to understand e-mail addresses designed by CIT.

“We will give the students the option to change their addresses if they desire.” Heideman added, although he also emphasized that students could keep their old addresses if they desired.

Faculty and staff e-mail addresses will remain the same.

More details of the new e-mail system can be found on CIT’s homepage at http://www.hope.edu/cit.

Photo courtesy of the Hope College Communications Office.
Lecture series teaches students how to heal

CARRIE ARNOLD
Campus Beat Editor

The 1999-2000 school year marks the third year that the athletic training department will host the Distinguished Lecture Series in Sports Medicine.

Each year, the college hosts five different speakers in many areas of sports medicine. The lectures not only give a speech, they also bring in speakers in such areas as psychology, nutrition, athletic training, and rehabilitation.

Our goal going into the series was to provide opportunities for students at Hope and health professionals in the community to interact in a significant way with professionals that make up the sports medicine community.

This year’s series will bring in speakers in such areas as psychology, nutrition, athletic training, and rehabilitation.

The first speaker of the series, Dr. Ken Knight, has been a certified athletic trainer for more than 25 years. He spent the majority of his career as a professor at Indiana University, and two years ago, he transferred to Brigham Young University.

"He is the world’s foremost researcher in the use of cryotherapy in athletic injuries," Ray said.

Ray calls Knight’s book “Cryotherapy, the definitive treatment of the subject.”

Knight will present his speech, entitled “Cryotherapy: A New look at an Old Modality” on Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Maas Center.

Karen Fischer (’02), a participant in the athletic training program, went to the series last year and is looking forward to this year’s events.

“This is what I want to be studying for the rest of my life,” Fischer said. “As a freshman it was really easy to understand. I could still get something out of it, even not knowing much about the field.”

Knight will be followed by Dr. Julie Fritz (’90), of the University of Pittsburgh, who will be speaking on a “research-based approach to the treatment of low back pain” on Thursday, Oct. 12. The spring semester of lectures will begin with Dr. Chris Ingersoll of Indiana State University on "The puzzle of patellar-femoral pain" on Thursday, Jan. 20. The lecture series will conclude with Dr. Robert Murray of the Gatorade Sports Science Institute and "Sports nutrition: Fact and fiction" on Thursday, April 14.

All of the lectures will be held in the Maas Center at 7 p.m. Admission is free.

The series is cosponsored by Hope College, the Holland Community Hospital, and GNS Rehabilitation Professionals.

Congress to hold Fall elections

JULIE GREEN
Campus Beat Editor

Student Congress President Louis Canfield (’00) is developing Student Congress’ new goals with Vice President Matt Scogin (’02) as they want to find out who the 26 new members will be.

Dividing the school into chunks based on area, Congress will hold elections for the new representatives Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 21 and 22.

Any student can run, on-campus or off-campus.

Because of the amount of commuter students, there are three seats available to off-campus students.

“My main goal,” said Scogin, who is running the election, “is to recruit candidates. I want to have two to every seat.”

All that is needed to be on the ballot is 25 signatures on a petition that is to be turned in Sept. 14. These forms can be picked up and dropped off at the Student Union Desk.

In the packet with the petition is a page of rules, which is new this year.

“There was so much confusion last year,” Canfield said.

Most of the confusion came from the policy regarding campaigning. Candidates weren’t sure when they could begin to put up their signs.

“The rule last year was that publicity was not supposed to start until the petition was turned in,” Canfield said.

Before, candidates were able to start campaigning a lot earlier than others because they would turn in their petitions earlier and were able to immediately put up signs.

To make things more equal, everyone will start campaigning at the same time this year.

“We want to eliminate the confusion this year, so signs will start at 5 p.m., Sept. 14 after all the petitions are turned in,” Canfield said.

The rule was changed because Congress received complaints that the rules weren’t clear.

“We felt it would be best to layout some ground rules so everyone could be on the same level when they begin,” Canfield said.

The goals Canfield and Scogin are working for are the incoming Congress are only as clear, but they begin to take Congress in the direction they want to go.

Their biggest concerns are building a strong relationship with President James Bultman and increasing the communication between the student body and Congress.

Canfield also hopes to restore credibility to Congress.

“There’s an atmosphere on campus that’s different than last year,” Canfield said.
A new alcohol responsibility

The administration of Hope College is hoping that by adjusting the campus’ alcohol policy, they will also adjust the attitudes of the students.

The new policy will give the college the right to notify the student’s parents in extreme cases, such as alcohol poisoning or heavy abuse. While the college most likely won’t contact parents for minor issues, it does give officials more power and control in potentially abusive situations.

Hope remains a “dry” campus. Alcohol is not allowed anywhere on campus, and it probably never will be. And while officials realize that alcohol won’t disappear from the college scene completely, there is one clear benefit the new policy holds.

Colleges are always quick to place responsibility in student’s hands, but now Hope is also taking a measure of responsibility. If the school sees a student in trouble, we will be forced to live with these situations. These situations can influence a campus, even if it involves one or two students.

Many students won’t be influenced by this change. But with the change, the college has taken a large step in insuring the safety of all students. Eventually a parent will be notified that their student has a problem with drugs or alcohol. This policy won’t be the solution to that student’s problems, but it will provide a step forward.

Alcohol use should always be up to the individual. Students should realize that while they have always had that choice, they now have to pay the price as well.

A WORD FROM THE EDITOR...

The road Hope traveled

I walked onto the Hope campus a little over four years ago as a naive, clueless freshman. As the year went on, I had no idea that what was happening at Hope was significant. I had no idea that everything that happened in the subsequent year was going to have a profound effect on the campus community.

I figured it was all natural.

But as I enter my senior year, I can tell that the contours, the events, the experiences that occurred when I was a freshmen 18-year old, are making waves as Hope prepares for the new millennium.

I can already see some over-zealous math wizards getting ready to show their prowess, and point out that the new millennium begins in 2001. Whatever.

It’s plain to see that the changes that have happened while I have been a student at Hope alone are preparing the college for a new era. Orientation even used the slogan “A New Beginning” for this fall’s new students.

The changes and buzz from last year’s topics are still hanging around. The religious conflicts and homosexuality controversy have already had a profound influence on Hope’s mission and direction. President James Bultman has been busy trying to lead Hope into the next century. Technology, campus buildings, and students continue to change every year. Which all leads to the question of where does Hope go from here?

The Anchor will attempt to examine this question throughout the school year in the “Year 2000” series.

This series will look to examine Hope’s past, present and future as the college enters a new era. The campus community has changed a great deal from the small school that was founded in the 19th century, and the change will continue forward into the 21st century.

The Anchor hopes to look at what all of these changes mean for Hope College and how it will become and what it will become.

Your voice.

Students issues challenge to college officials

To the Editor:

While a first glance it appears encouraging that President James Bultman chose to open this school year with ideas of reconciliation and healing, I remain skeptical of his message. History has taught us that words from Hope College officials mean nothing unless accompanied by actions. We can not have peace on this campus without significant change. Since last spring, nothing has been altered within the college’s structure to ease the tensions that existed on religious life staff and those students who disagreed with their actions. The dynamic energy that created the same life program that has consistently targeted the homosexual community at Hope, and we will have gay Hope College students.

I will repeat nothing that has been done to alter the structure that created the initial tension. How can anyone realistically expect the conflict to subside when no significant actions have been taken to alter the situation responsible for creating these conflicts? It is highly unlikely that the present religious life staff will alter either its views concerning homosexual quality or its approach to dealing with the gay community at Hope. Likewise, there will always be gay Hope College students. This school belongs to us and means as much to us as it does to anyone. We are not about to retreat and surrender to those who neither understand nor respect us. The semester has changed from spring to fall, but the situation remains the same.

College officials such as Bultman can forever speak about creating respect and love for all members of the Hope College Community, but this amounts to nothing unless such powerful individuals choose to put their proclaimed attitudes and beliefs into practice. The students deserve genuine change and progress in the form of actions taken by college officials who genuinely wish to create such transformations. I am weary of the constant drone of the Hope College bureaucracy with its insistence upon a desire to create an environment in which all students, faculty, and other college officials are treated with respect. If this is actually a realistic goal of the college administration, then the events of last spring clearly demonstrate that it has failed miserably at producing an atmosphere in which gay students feel as if they are equal and respected members of the campus community.

This is my challenge to Bultman and other college officials. If you truly desire healing on campus, you must do more than simply whitewash the ‘gay’ issue under a coat of too familiar propaganda. Rather, you must take deliberate actions that work to eliminate the source of the pain and suffering that is experienced by gay students at Hope. Have the courage and desire to give us the action we deserve, rather than the empty promises of respect this college has fed us for years.

Joel D. Murr ('99)

Letter to the Editor Guidelines

The mission of the Anchor opinion page is to provide a forum for members of the college community to engage in intelligent dialogue. The page is open to students, faculty, staff and other members of the related community.

The Anchor reserves the right to edit letters to save space constraints, but the editor will take care to retain the tone and intent of the letter. The Anchor will not publish letters that are personal attacks, in poor taste, potentially libelous. Letters will be selected for publication in one of two ways: first come, first serve, or as a representative sample when too many letters come in to fit into an issue.

The Editor-in-Chief has discretion regarding the publication of anonymous letters. Letters will be published without the writer’s identity being known to the Editor-in-Chief, who will discuss with the writer whether or not there is a reason for anonymity. Letters may be rejected if those who feel their letter may result in loss of position or other forms of discrimination, or in cases where anonymity is guaranteed.

The Anchor reserves the right to edit letters in a manner necessary to protect the identity of the writer to prevent falsification of any letter writer’s identity on the opinion page.

Vol. 113, Issue 2

September 8, 1999
Exhibit gives abstract painting a Mexican twist

DAWN DODGE
staff reporter

A collection of unique works by abstract painter Jordi Boldo is currently on display in the DePree Art Gallery until Friday, Oct. 8. DePree, professor of art, said that after looking through several catalogs of artists he was particularly struck by Boldo’s work and decided his art work would be an interesting and unique exhibit. Boldo will also be talking to Michel’s painting class and starting them on a project, which he will later be sure to continue.

Michel recently traveled to Boldo’s studio in Mexico to select which pieces of art would be shown. “When I spent the day with Jordi looking through his work in his studio,” said Michel, “we were able to talk with a mutual understanding about his paintings, even though neither of us understood the other’s language.” Michel stated, “We seemed to communicate through gestures, facial expressions, and eye contact, as well as through a shared sensitivity about our art.”

Michel hopes his painting class has a similarly rewarding experience in communicating with Boldo in ways other than a spoken language.

The work of Boldo is described as being abstract expressionism, an art form that started in the 1940s. Passionate about this field, he does not necessarily resemble a specific object or idea, but an expression from the artist’s imagination. Michel, in an effort to get across to the viewer, explains to Boldo that his piece of art is about itself, and that sometimes a certain project will affect the way he approaches his next piece. This is evident when looking through his collection as there are many series of paintings in which a common characteristic, such as a certain style of shape is present in two or three different pieces.

According to Michel, Boldo’s work is particularly distinctive in that it partakes in an intimate, personal and sensual use of strong, vivid color and texture. Another interesting aspect of his art is that he does not limit his materials to just paint, but incorporates various objects, such as popsicle sticks and buttons, into several of his works.

Boldo was born in Barcelona, Spain in 1949, then came to Mexico as a child. Now a citizen of Mexico, Boldo teaches at the Autonomous University of Queretaro, Holland’s sister city. He is coming to Hope as a participant in the Presidential Lecturer Series.

The event is sponsored by the Holland Area Arts Council and the Hope College DePree Art Center. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Dayton dance company reaches across cultures

JANE BAST
staff reporter

The Great Performance Series will leap onto the DeWitt Theatre stage for its 30th season on Monday, Sept. 20 and Tuesday Sept. 21 with the Dayton Dance Company before the auction at the Arts Council before the auction for the public to see,” Morawski said.

Featured at the event will be Rick Gardner, a quadruple amputee from Lansing who paints landscapes and seascapes by holding a paintbrush in his mouth. Gardner noted that this will be the fifth time such an auction has been held.

“We took a year off last year, but then decided that it would be a good fund raiser that could help both the Arts Council and the Center for Independent Living (CLI), which co-sponsors the event,” Morawski said. “The focus on the disabled relates to both the exhibit and the efforts of the center.”

The auction will be followed by a dinner at the Hayworth Center, with the event featuring a special performance by the contemporary dance group, “The Hope College Dance Troupe.” The event will be held at the DePree Art Gallery, open Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The work of Boldo is described as being abstract expressionism, an art form that started in the 1940’s. Passionate about this field, Boldo does not necessarily resemble a specific object or idea, but an expression from the artist’s imagination. Michel, in an effort to get across to the viewer, explains to Boldo that his piece of art is about itself, and that sometimes a certain project will affect the way he approaches his next piece. This is evident when looking through his collection as there are many series of paintings in which a common characteristic, such as a certain style of shape is present in two or three different pieces.

According to Michel, Boldo’s work is particularly distinctive in that it partakes in an intimate, personal and sensual use of strong, vivid color and texture. Another interesting aspect of his art is that he does not limit his materials to just paint, but incorporates various objects, such as popsicle sticks and buttons, into several of his works.

Boldo was born in Barcelona, Spain in 1949, then came to Mexico as a child. Now a citizen of Mexico, Boldo teaches at the Autonomous University of Queretaro, Holland’s sister city. He is coming to Hope as a participant in the Presidential Lecturer Series.

The event is sponsored by the Holland Area Arts Council and the Hope College DePree Art Center. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Auction helps the disabled

SARA E LAMERS
interim editor

Everything from pottery to hand-made paper will be available at an auction of local art sponsored by the Holland Area Arts Council (HAAC) on Saturday, Sept. 11.

“This is a great way to get the community involved,” said Kathy Morawski, development coordinator for the Holland Area Arts Council. “This is a very affordable fund raiser that could help both the Arts Council and the Center for Independent Living (CLI), which co-sponsors the event,” Morawski said. “The focus on the disabled relates to both the exhibit and the efforts of the center.”

The auction will be followed by a dinner at the Hayworth Center, with the event featuring a special performance by the contemporary dance group, “The Hope College Dance Troupe.” The event will be held at the DePree Art Gallery, open Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Tickets for the auction will be available to students on Monday, Sept. 13 in the DeWitt Theatre box office. Student tickets are $6.50.

The works of Boldo have been described as abstract expressionism. Boldo was born in Barcelona, Spain in 1949, then came to Mexico as a child. Now a citizen of Mexico, Boldo teaches at the Autonomous University of Queretaro, Holland’s sister city. He is coming to Hope as a participant in the Presidential Lecturer Series.

The event is sponsored by The Holland Area Arts Council and the Hope College DePree Art Center. Gallery hours are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

The Great Performance Series will leap onto the DeWitt Theatre stage for its 30th season on Monday, Sept. 20 and Tuesday Sept. 21 with the Dayton Dance Company before the auction at the Arts Council before the auction for the public to see,” Morawski said.

Featured at the event will be Rick Gardner, a quadruple amputee from Lansing who paints landscapes and seascapes by holding a paintbrush in his mouth. Gardner noted that this will be the fifth time such an auction has been held.

“We took a year off last year, but then decided that it would be a good fund raiser that could help both the Arts Council and the Center for Independent Living (CLI), which co-sponsors the event,” Morawski said. “The focus on the disabled relates to both the exhibit and the efforts of the center.”

The auction will be followed by a dinner at the Hayworth Center, with the event featuring a special performance by the contemporary dance group, “The Hope College Dance Troupe.” The event will be held at the DePree Art Gallery, open Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Tickets for the auction will be available to students on Monday, Sept. 13 in the DeWitt Theatre box office. Student tickets are $6.50.

All shows begin at 8 p.m. and last approximately 95 minutes.
Good Intentions

I woke up last Sunday morning and glanced at my alarm clock like I do every morning. But a certain guilt came over me. It was Sunday morning, and the glaring red told me I should have been in church, or at least getting up to put on a dress. Instead I lay in bed and tossed and turned over my decision—whether or not to go.

I went through the pros and cons. I don’t really have a “home church” in Holland, where would I go? And I didn’t have a car nearby. Would I have to walk? “Church” in Holland, where would I go? And I didn’t have a car nearby. Would I have to walk?

“I don’t think it’s important, because once you’re married, you might be able to convert them.” —Myra Stein (’03)

“I think it’s important because maybe you can raise your kids without confusion and they will have similar views.” —Julie Wood (’03)

“Religion is VERY important, but denomination is absolutely not. If you marry outside your religion, what do you teach your kids or explain to your parents?” —Ryan Bass (’01)

How important is it to you to marry someone from the same religion or denomination?

For many years if someone had asked me how my spiritual life was going my first thought would be how I was doing at having quiet time—praying and reading the Bible each day.

Each academic year Hope’s Chaplain staff devises a theme for the chapel services in order to present God’s word in a way that students can learn valuable information and relate it to their own lives. This theme this year is Under Construction and the main topic is Jesus and his relationships with people.

“Religion is important to marry into a different religion would bring up a lot of problems.” —Andrew Otto (’00)

“I don’t think that it is very important. Religions clash, but love is love. Go for it.” —Ben Freeborn (’03)

“I don’t think it’s important, because once you’re married, you might be able to convert them.” —Myra Stein (’03)

“I think it’s important because maybe you can raise your kids without confusion and they will have similar views.” —Julie Wood (’03)

“Myer and I are both agnostics, and we are both comfortable with each other’s beliefs. I don’t think it’s something to try to force on someone.” —Amy Johnson (’03)

Each academic year Hope’s Chaplain staff devises a theme for the chapel services in order to present God’s word in a way that students can learn valuable information and relate it to their own lives. This theme this year is Under Construction and the main topic is Jesus and his relationships with people.

Campus Ministers

Each academic year Hope’s Chaplain staff devises a theme for the chapel services in order to present God’s word in a way that students can learn valuable information and relate it to their own lives. This theme this year is Under Construction and the main topic is Jesus and his relationships with people.

Campus Ministers

Each academic year Hope’s Chaplain staff devises a theme for the chapel services in order to present God’s word in a way that students can learn valuable information and relate it to their own lives. This theme this year is Under Construction and the main topic is Jesus and his relationships with people.

Fellowship of the Christian Students

Fellowship of the Christian Students, which meets every Monday between 9-10 p.m., with Wednesday prayer meetings from 10:30 to 11 p.m. It is a student run organization whose meetings consist of singing, activities, and discussions led by professors, seminary students, and local pastors. Every semester a retreat is held and members participate in various service projects. FCS is focusing on Christian Living this semester.

“Most of the speakers we’ll have will be focusing on that, on different ways of living out faith,” said Kristen DeYoung (’01), FCS co-president.

“FCS is a great way to make good friends.” DeYoung said. “I made most of my closest friends at Hope through FCS. We welcome those who want to learn more about faith and also those who aren’t professing the Christian faith, but want to come see it.”

Refuge in Spiritual Expression

RISE or Refuge In Spiritual Expression, Hope’s newest student organization, is a group that explores faith and learning through discussion with students, faculty, and staff at Hope.

“Speakers come from both the Hope community and surrounding areas whom facilitate stimulating and respectful discussion about religious issues,” said RISE president Laura Goel (’01). The topic for September will be "What does it mean to be a Christian college?" Speakers this semester include Prof. Don Luidens, Prof. Marc Baer, and President James Bultman. RISE meets from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in

Union of Catholic Students

UCS President Todd Dye (’01) said that Hope students can look forward to many new things this year.

"For example, he wants to have Catholic services on Hope’s campus once a week, to engage in activities with another Catholic organization from another school, to co-sponsor some activities with groups such as F.C.S., as well as hold new discussion topics at weekly meetings.

In the past, Catholic students have met on Wednesday evenings and discussed the Virgin Mary, the Pope, Purgatory, and other relevant subjects.

This year the topics will be traditions of the Catholic church, and the churches view on marriage, divorce, and remarriage.

Each year UCS has groupings that are voluntary such as a Fall Retreat, a mission to help people in need, and a spaghetti dinner for fundraising.

* Profiles collected by staff writers Jamie Lademan, Tim Lepek and religion editor Dana Lammers.
A Home away from Home: Searching for a New Church

Dana Lamers

Editor’s Note: Leaving home for the school year can also mean looking for a new church for the school year. The Holland Area, known for its many churches and congregations of many options for its residents. Mentioned here you will find just a sprinkling of the options of religious opportunities in the lakeshore area.

Christ Memorial Church

Christ Memorial Church is a congregation of the Reformed Church in America. It is located at 959 Graafschap Road and also has a bus that stops in front of Gilmore Hall at 10 a.m. to pick up Hope students for the church’s 10:30 a.m. service. A Sunday morning service is also held at 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. Christian education and support ministries are also offered throughout the week.

“I enjoy it because it is upbeat yet pretty traditional. Also you can make what you want of it,” said Libby Folkert (’00). Folkert attends Christ Memorial every Sunday morning.

“I look to it as a place to worship on Sundays because I am involved in so many other things, being really involved at Christ Memorial, or any church, would put a strain on things for me. But, there are many opportunities for a Hope student to get involved if you look for them. The people are all very nice, but it is not a small church family if that’s what you’re looking for.”

Douglas United Church of Christ

A bit of a further drive away is the Douglas United Church of Christ, located on Wall Street in Douglas.

The Douglas UCC church is an official open and affirming church, meaning that all people, all races and sexual orientations are truly welcome,” said Jane Dickie, director of Women’s Studies and professor of Psychology.

A worship service is held at 11 a.m. on Sunday morning, which always includes communion and follows the ecumenical liturgy familiar to Catholics, Episcopalians, and RCA, among a few.

Hope Church

Hope Church, located just a few blocks from the college at 77 W. 11th St., is a church of the Reformed Church in America, known in the community as a pioneering church on a number of social activist agendas.

“It has taken the lead on the involvement of women in all aspects of the church’s life,” said Don Luidtse, Hope Church member and professor of sociology.

“The church of Hope Church as a large, welcoming family of Christians, which is broadly representative of the community and which nurtures a wide diversity of theological and political perspectives with a great deal of openness and tolerance." Hope Church offers two options for Sunday morning worship.

An informal and participatory service is held at 8:30 a.m. in the commons instead of the sanctuary.

“Learned many lessons there,” said Dickie, who also attends Hope Church. “Often Hope students enjoy this especially. (I know it’s early, but you can go home happy and take a nap.)”

At 11:00 a.m. a more traditional, liturgical service is held in the sanctuary.

“There is an interesting mix of music and a lot of congregational participation, but not in a threatening way,” said Lynn Japinga, professor of religion and ordained minister.

“Hope is very open and accepting a place. I like to preach here because people seem to like think through hard questions,” she said.

Every last Sunday of the month a “Pizza Sunday” is offered.

“Hope students are invited as our guests,” Japinga said.

Lakeland Community Church

Lakeland Community Church, which meets in the Zelond High School auditorium at 10 a.m. on Sundays, is an inter-denominational Christian church.

The service offers a contemporary worship style, yet also contains a traditional message.

The growing congregation aims to welcome new-comers with open arms, and the church is ready and willing to share the gospel with anyone who desires a deeper relationship with the Lord.

“At Lakeland, it’s our prayer that people fully know and follow God, and to make them fully known to others,” said Rev. Timothy Evans.

Part of Lakeland’s mission is “to be a safe place for seeking people to meet Jesus Christ, magnify His name (and) mature in His love…”

Lakeshore Vineyard Christian Fellowship

Lakeshore Vineyard Christian Fellowship

Lakeshore Vineyard Christian Fellowship (710 Central Ave.) offers a contemporary alternative to many students at Hope College.

This non-denominational church has services at 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. every Sunday. A shuttle van is available for students at 8:40 a.m. and 10:40 a.m. Sunday mornings at the DeVitt Circle for anyone interested in attending.

Katie Gipson (’02) calls Vineyard her home church during the school year.

“(The atmosphere is) not threatening to people who have never been in a non-denominational church,” she said.

She describes the services as some-thing “in between really charismatic and really traditional.”

Society of Friends, Quaker Meeting

An alternative form of worship open to Hope Students is the Society of Friends, Quaker Meeting which takes place in Psychology professor Lorna Hernandez Jarvis’ living room on Sunday mornings at 10:30 a.m.

Quakers believe that every moment is sacred and that God is in each of us. The traditional service is a time to meet in silence and pray and listen to the still, small voice that worshippers believe is God within.

Students are encouraged to talk to faculty members Kathy and/or Greg Wittenmurray, Jane Dickie, Priscilla Atkins or Lorna Jarvis before attending to understand more fully the beliefs and practices of the Quaker faith.

St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church

St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church, located at 95 W. 13th St., is led by Stephen Dudev, Pastor, and Jose Luis Quanana, Associate Pastor. Regular mass is offered on Saturdays at 5 p.m., and Sundays at 8:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.

A service offered in Spanish at 12:30 p.m. every Sunday and a Vietnamese service is conducted at 3 p.m. the third Sunday of each month.

Some of the local Catholic churches within walking distance, some Hope Catholic students find St. Francis helps to meet their spiritual needs.

“It’s extremely diverse. There are Hispanics, Vietnamese, Caucau-sians… We all just come together and worship together,” said Teresa Jank (’02).

Jank also points out that “everyone there is so welcoming. It’s nice to have a family away from home.”

Call Kate MacDaniels today at Ext. 7141, or stop in the DeVitt Center or e-mail: stdvolunteer

Why volunteer?
• Make a valuable difference in the lives of others.
• Gain valuable experiences.
• Contribute to community well-being.
• Explore career interests.
• Set a positive example and serve as a role model.
• Develop leadership skills and be an active participant.
• Share your unique passion, talent, and enthusiasm.
• Meet new people and make new friends.
• Enrich your own life by learning from others.
Sociopathic Leanings

Andrew Lotz

Beaver Hunt '99

Perhaps you haven’t heard about the incident that almost evapilved with a crisis, the week. Washington D.C. was paralyzed for a week. The nation was paralyzed for a week. Washington D.C. was paralyzed for a week. The, purportedly never been experienced in our capital.

Beavers had descended upon the city.

It was a family of beavers; three to be exact. The proverbial Moneta, Papa, and Baby Beaver. And they decided to chew down as many of the District’s cherry trees as they possibly could during the height of cherry blossom season.

Maybe the taste of cherry dulls the pain of wearing away your teeth. Maybe Papa Beaver thought that cherrywood paneling would really set off the dam’s rec room. In any case, the family destroyed or damaged a number of cherry trees before the National Park Service put out an all-points bulletin for our furry, flat-tailed friends.

Handsome enough, I suppose. The sort of anecdote that your grandmother would read from a guide book. But not for the residents of Washington.

The news literally brought the city to its knees. You couldn’t ride the subway or read the papers without hearing about thealenic reign of terror. One local news station dubbed the quake “Beaver Hunt’99.” It dominated the airwaves and coffee-break rooms.

Rumors flew and mistaken sightings poured in. Stations carried news helicopter footage of one of the beavers swimming upstream in the Potomac. There was even talk of emergency appropriations in Congress to “stop the menace that threatens a part of our nation’s heritage.”

“Hey, did you hear about the beavers?” people would ask me. “Something about war in Europe. I think. But dogdarn it, man. Our tax dollars at work.”

And everyone had that friend or half-brother or sister’s ex-boyfriend’s barmaid’s mother’s salesman who saw one of the beavers.

I’m surprised that no one said that the beavers had started growing like algae in the New York sewers and were going to chew down the Washington Monument next.

The people of Washington D.C. were focused on one issue, and no small extent because possessed with that issue and blew it way out of proportion. In recent years, Hope College has fallen into the same pitfalls. Two years ago, it was religious tolerance. Last year it was homosexuality. We focus in on one issue, an issue which in the greater scheme of things doesn’t warrant the amount of attention we pay it,—at least in my mind. Somehow my intuition tells me that the same will happen again.

To learn what will be Hope’s “Beaver Hunt ’99” Maybe before we settle on something, we should evaluate if it’s something worth talking about, or if it’s just a few beavers making a home.

Earthquake felt at Hope

KELLI BERGOETTZ & ANDREW LOTZ staff writer and spotlight editor

On August 17th, a tremendous earthquake shook Turkey, claiming the lives of an estimated 12,900 people.

People lived homeless for weeks afterward, and the Turkish government is still dealing with problems from the quake. The terror was so massive that the entire country moved two meters closer to Greece.

But the residents of Turkey were not the only ones who suffered because of the earthquake. Many people who had loved ones living in Turkey were also shaken by the quake. One such person was Banu Demiralp (’00), a Turkish Hope student who spent this past summer working in Istanbul.

Demiralp is from the city of Istanbul, the largest city in Turkey. Her home was 50 miles from the earthquake’s epicenter.

She received a call from a family friend to tell her that the quake occurred. But the friend knew no news of Demiralp’s mother and grandmother.

Demiralp spent two sleepless nights worrying about her mother and grandmother before she could get a call through to Istanbul. She called every hour to see if she could reach her family.

“I was in a coma for 36 hours,” Demiralp said. “I couldn’t do anything. I got no sleep. I had an adrenaline rush constantly by the phone.”

Finally, one of Demiralp’s hourly calls made it through to Turkey. The first thing Banu’s mother, Esin Kandemir, said was: “Is this my princess?”

They talked for hours. Esin was so overcome with joy that she was unable to speak, and Demiralp was so overjoyed to hear that her family was safe.

“Is it just such a blessing to know that no one I know was killed,” Demiralp said.

Demiralp’s home was struck with a primal quake that lasted for 45 seconds, an exceptionally long time for an earthquake. There were also a number of aftershocks. Their residence was damaged by the quake, but Demiralp’s mother and grandmother were not injured.

However, they were evacuated after the quake. The government of Turkey declared a state of emergency and evacuated a number of cities, including Istanbul, which is home to over 12 million people.

Demiralp’s family spent three days camped out next to a hospital. No one could stay in structures because of the threat of aftershocks.

Demiralp was immensely relieved to hear that her family was safe. “It changed your whole world view,” Demiralp said. “Nothing mattered but their safety.”

At Hope, Demiralp can be found working in the Depres Art Center, although her major is not in the arts. As a senior, she’s finishing her major in History and Political Science. She would like to pursue a career in the world of international charity and conflict resolution.

Turkey does not put a large emphasis on a liberal arts education. Although the decision to come to Hope was made at the last minute, Demiralp feels that it is the right place for her.

“Going to school in another country makes her contact with home difficult, and visiting a near impossibility. Demiralp has not been back to Turkey in two years, and because of the quake, it will be quite a different place than the one that she remembers as home.”
DONATION from \[\text{[Digitally inserted]}.\]

"The funding authorities came to us with a request for this amount," said Bultman, who further recommended this request to the Board of Trustees in August. "We wanted to make a large enough contribution so we would be one of the larger players."

The money will be raised from friends of the college who aren't currently financially involved with the college, Bultman said.

If the voters don't approve the .5 mill construction cost and the .2 mill operating cost of the area center, then Hope College won't be held to its promise.

Bultman is optimistic that Hope will be able to raise all of the $1 million.

"We'll raise the money. We don't have a backup plan," Bultman said.

Community support for the project is thought to be high, and so is the support of the college.

"There were faculty and staff members involved in the decision-making and there was a good consensus that this was thought to be what the college ought to do," Bultman said.

This project could have advantages for everyone involved.

"It does have the potential to be a very good facility for college and community use," Bultman said.

Brooks agreed.

"We're not building this for one single user. We're building this for the whole community," he said.

The area center is planned to open early in 2003.
around in staffing in Student Development will make the department stronger.

"I'm really excited about the new staff here," he said. "I feel our staff will be able to build on one another's skills and are anxious to see what new staff can bring to the students."

Emerson, who accepted the Director of Housing and Judicial Affairs position in 1996, is now the Campus Arts Coordinator.

"I have always been a strong supporter of the arts," he said. "I have my master's in professional writing and am working on a doctorate so when the position opened it seemed like a natural transition for me."

He stressed that the decision to leave Student Development was not an easy one.

"It wasn't that I was looking to leave Student Development," he said. "The decision to take the new position was a personal one. I felt this would be a good way to enhance my interests in the arts."

Emerson's responsibilities will be overseeing the Great Performance Series and working with the individual departments to promote their events and raise funding.

"Hope has a great arts program and I want to make sure people know this," he said.

Drive on in to the Pine Grove - for the first ever Hope, Great College Drive-In PRESENTING:

FERRIS BUELLERS DAY OFF

8:30, Friday September 10

Drive on in to the Pine Grove - for the first ever Hope, Great College Drive-In PRESENTING: FERRIS BUELLERS DAY OFF 8:30, Friday September 10
Flying Dutch defeat Wildcats 49-7

A tale of two football coaches

Michael Ricketts returns to take on Hope's defensive players he coached just one short year ago.

Peter Stuursma takes over as new defensive coordinator, brings in new system and a little fun to Holland.

The undersigned Wildcats of Queretaro had a mouss University 49-7. ball vviih Hope healing Aulono-83 yards. of lolal of-
521 yards

No re-
No receiver may have had a more impressive night or catch than Adloff who caught 4 passes for 69 yards. His most impressive catch came when he speared a high pass out of the air in the first half.

While Kreps was happy with the offensive performance he had one larger goal in mind. “We came out of the game pretty injury free. That (injury) was probably my biggest worry,” Kreps said.

Kreps added that most of the players didn't seem to be taking to Stuursma's defense and personality well.

Queretaro's lone touchdown was scored by Matt Baumbach who danced into the end zone after getting apart the Queretaro defense, his 51 yard run in the third quarter. He would finish the day with 58 yards on 3 attempts and was the team's leading rusher. Matt Baumbach danced and sliced his way to 37 yards on five attempts and a 7.4 yards per carry average in the win.

Matt Baumbach was taking apart the Queretaro defense, his brother Josh ('03) made plays on defense and special teams. Kreps had high praise for the brother tandem and speculated the two may see playing time during the regular season. "I like them both. They like to play the game," Kreps said of the Baumbach brothers.

Queretaro's lone touchdown came on a fourth-and-three in the second quarter when Wildcats quarterback Gabriel Ponce scrambled to his right on a broken play and headed into the endzone after getting blocking from one of his receivers.

When Michael Ricketts steps on the sidelines this Saturday as Hope College takes on Augustana, he'll be on the visitor's sideline. Ricketts, Hope's former defensive coordinator, will be calling plays against a team he coached and recruited one short year ago.

"I think it's a little poetic that his first game at Augustana is at Holland Municipal Stadium," said linebacker Matt Bride ('01). Bride and other players are a little more emotional about taking on a Ricketts coached team as opposed to someone else.

"You feel a little animosity, but there's no bad blood," Bride said.

Both Kevin Kudej ('01) and Ted Patrick ('00) agree there is some extra emotion.

"I think everyone's going to be playing up about it. It hurts a lot of people. Myself and a lot of others came here because of Ricketts. We're gonna try and show him he should have stayed here," Kudej said.

"He left rather suddenly. I don't know about a hating type, but there's a lot more emotion," Patrick said.

He also said that most of the players didn't expect Ricketts to leave.

Head Coach Dean Kreps and Ricketts are both trying to keep the game in perspective.

"He's a great person and I'm sad he left, but when we step on the field for three hours we'll forget that. He wants to beat us and I want to beat him," Kreps said.

Ricketts agrees.

"Everybody is going to do the best they can. It's a game, it's not a life and death situation," Ricketts said.

Ricketts is also trying to focus on the game and not the emotion it may evoke.

"I like them both. They like to talk to, you can go do anything with," Bride said.

Kevin Kudej agrees that he's a player's coach. "He's easy to talk to, you can goof around with him." The team "goofed around" with Stuursma during two days.

When Todd Testor ('00) and Mike Balder ('00) moved into the Dowe Center pool.

"I don't think it hurts that I'm 5'8" 170 lbs. It's a little bit harder to throw (head coach) Dean Kreps into the pool since he's a little bigger than everyone else," Stuursma said.

Stuursma will be teaching health dynamics second semester.
Managing goals

In one quick moment, during her freshman year, the dream of playing college soccer must have died for Kate Berghorst ('00). It did not however die for long.

So the former midfielder was looking for other ways to become part of the team. She volunteered to be the team's manager. Instead of running sprints with the team she was setting out cones. Instead of taking shots she was getting out pennies. For an entire season Berghorst watched the game she loved to play at a distance.

"It was really tough standing on the sideline watching everyone else play when you can't," said Berghorst. According to Berghorst, watching everyone else play is one of the most painful things to do.

Berghorst used that pain. She focused on it, hopped it and used it to motivate her each day. She used it in each moment. When she walked into the weight room and each time she wanted to give up or take a day off, she focused on it. She honed it and used it to do whatever she wanted to do if she worked hard.

"I had a great coach the last few years who taught me about position work, footwork, diving and proper catching. It's largely because of what he taught me that I've been able to succeed," she said.

The modest goalie also gives credit to her parents for inspiring her to continue working towards making the team. "My parents always told me I could do whatever I wanted to if I worked at it," Berghorst said.

R.D. from 2

and went to DePaul University in Chicago.

"Helping students learn about other cultures is my way to give back to this university," Rawls said. "There's a calling for me to be at Hope at this particular time."

Rawls also emphasizes that she teaches the students in her hall that they can live in racial harmony.

"You can live and work together...[I] teach about understanding and empathy," Rawls said. Hekman, a native of Rockford, and a graduate of Taylor University, sees her role as a mentoring relationship, "like a big sister."

Wheeldreyer, originally from Illinois, went to Hope. "She gives the credit right back to them," said Berghorst. "I had a great coach the last few years who taught me about position work, footwork, diving and proper catching. It's largely because of what he taught me that I've been able to succeed," she said.

"The modest goalie also gives credit to her parents for inspiring her to continue working towards making the team. "My parents always told me I could do whatever I wanted to if I worked at it," Berghorst said."

R.D. from 2

and went to DePaul University in Chicago.

"Helping students learn about other cultures is my way to give back to this university," Rawls said. "There's a calling for me to be at Hope at this particular time."

Rawls also emphasizes that she teaches the students in her hall that they can live in racial harmony.

"You can live and work together...[I] teach about understanding and empathy," Rawls said. Hekman, a native of Rockford, and a graduate of Taylor University, sees her role as a mentoring relationship, "like a big sister."

Wheeldreyer, originally from Illinois, went to Hope. "She gives the credit right back to them," said Berghorst. "I had a great coach the last few years who taught me about position work, footwork, diving and proper catching. It's largely because of what he taught me that I've been able to succeed," she said.

"The modest goalie also gives credit to her parents for inspiring her to continue working towards making the team. "My parents always told me I could do whatever I wanted to if I worked at it," Berghorst said."

Run For Congress

"Do ing Our Best To Serve The Best Student Congress of Hope College"

Petitions available at the Student Congress Office, in the DeWitt Center across from WTHS

Petitions due by September 14th