Bishop, Nienhuis, Holwerda Elected In Council Races

Visscher, Van Eerden Win Aldermen Posts Without Opposition

The first women alderman, an incumbent and a former alderman were named to Holland's Common Council by voters at Monday's city election.

Miss Bernice Bishop will become Holland's first female alderman, having been elected from the city at large.

Anthony Nienhuis, present first ward alderman, was returned to his post, defeating former alderman John Emmick.

Raymond Holwerda, former alderman, will return to council as alderman at large.

Rein Visscher in the third ward and incumbent John Van Eerden in the fifth ward, both were unopposed for the election.

Monday's election was the first under the new city charter, in which all city voters balloted for all candidates regardless of ward residence.

The closest battle of the ballots was in the at-large race, where two of three candidates were elected. Miss Bishop defeated Robert S. Greenhoe by 75 votes. Holwerda ran ahead of the field in this designation.

Total city vote was 2,819.

Voters also overwhelmingly okayed an amendment to the new city charter to retain the name "Board of Public Works" instead of changing the name to "Board of Public Service." The vote was 1,940 for and 786 against the BPW name.

On the state ticket, Holland city showed about a 3-1 Republican majority, with scattered votes for minor party candidates.

Incumbent Nienhuis enjoyed a majority over Emmick in each of the six wards. Totals were Nienhuis 1,399; Emmick, 1,084.

Visscher and Van Eerden ran almost parallel throughout the city, with each rolling up a sizeable complimentary vote. Visscher polled 2,244 and Van Eerden 2,238.

The alderman-at-large race was close throughout. Holwerda ended with 1,612; Miss Bishop had 1,500; and Greenhoe polled 1,425.

Greenhoe carried the first ward, and Miss Bishop carried the second. Holwerda ended in front in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth wards.

The charter amendment proposal carried heavily in each of the six wards.

The five aldermen will take office effective April 9. They will be sworn in at the next following council meeting on April 18, under provisions of the new charter.

Visscher will replace Bertal Slagh in the third ward, and Miss Bishop and Holwerda will take the places of retiring aldermen Bert Huizenga, John Beltman and Clarence Kemmeraad.

Individual totals by wards: Nienhuis—First 184, second 271, third 203, fourth 252, fifth 236, sixth 253. Total 1,399.

Draft Deferment Tests to Be Given

Hope college will be one of the Michigan centers where draft eligible students may take aptitude tests to determine eligibility for an educational deferment.

The tests will be given on May 26, June 16 and June 30, with Garrett Vander Borg of the Hope faculty in charge.

Centers throughout the state were chosen on basis of population, college and school location and nearness to other centers. In the state, 33 centers were designated, including Hope college, University of Michigan and Western Michigan colleges, Albion college, Battle Creek Central high school, and Calvin college in Grand Rapids.

The three-hour test is designed by the Educational Testing service of Princeton university, according to Vander Borg, and is similar to aptitude tests already used at Hope and other colleges. Under its new usage, it will be known as the Selective Service Qualification test.

Hope's testing facilities will be designed to give 500 tests to 500 students at one time if such a need exists, Vander Borg said. Hope will serve students in this vicinity only.

Scores on the test, as well as educational performance, may be used by local draft boards to consider deferments.

According to an announcement by draft director Lewis B. Hershey, present plans decree that only draft registrants who already have started college may take the examination. The same bulletin said anyone who wants to try for scholastic deferment must apply to his local draft board—the sooner the better.

Building Work Begins On Road Widening Plan

Tanker, Cement Boat in Harbor

Two more boats entered the harbor today, and a third was scheduled to come to Holland early this afternoon.

The tanker Michigan made her third trip of the week, arriving about midnight, with 33,000 barrels of gas for the Texas company. She was due to leave about 1 p.m.

The cement boat John L. Galster entered at 2:40 a.m. today, with 14,000 barrels of cement for the Medusa company. She was expected to leave about 4 p.m.

And the tanker Maine was due to enter the harbor at about 2 p.m., with the usual load for the Texas company.

The Galster is the first cement boat to make the trip to Holland this season. The boat has a new name this year. It was known formerly as the J.B. Johns.

The title of "J.B. Johns" has been transferred to another frequent visitor to Holland, the old Daniel McCool. The name of McCool has gone out of existence, according to Medusa company officials.

GAR Room to Be Used for Offices, Council Decides

Veteran Organizations Granted Use of Newly Decorated Band Room

The GAR room of the city hall will be used as offices for the city treasurer and city auditor, and veteran groups using the room for their meetings will have the facilities of the band room on the third floor, Common Council decided Wednesday night.

The decision was unanimous, despite protests from a roomful of some 40 representatives of organizations who objected to the move. Their spokesman, Ed Oudman, mentioned petitions bearing 1,238 signatures asking council to rescind its previous action effecting the change. Women's Relief Corps members appeared in uniform.

Highlight of the issue which occupied council more than a half hour was a dramatic plea from Arthur I. Hazzard who called attention to the sacrifices of those who fought in battle, of those on the home front, the Red Cross, the Gray Ladies, ending up with a surprise twist of abolishing Tulip Time and presenting bouquets of tulips to all men in veteran hospitals.

After 15 minutes, his plea was interrupted by Mayor Pro Tem John Beltman, who said visitors usually were allowed only five minutes and gave him an extra 30 seconds to complete his talk. Hazzard complied.

Alderman Tony Peerbolt, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee who has been working with the veteran groups to solve the office space problem, asked if the group had any other suggestions. He said the band room has been redecorated and the floor is about to be refinished, adding it offers as much floor space as the room downstairs.

John Hofstead, representing the Spanish War vets, said only three members would be able to climb to the third floor and spoke feelingly of the elderly members in the Women's Relief Corps and the DAV whose members come on crutches and wheelchairs.

"If it wasn't for these boys who went across to fight, you wouldn't be here. You'd be working for IT!" he said. Applause followed.

Peerbolt responded that he had had two sons in service and pointed to several members of council who were war veterans. "We're all in sympathy with your work and are just trying to solve a problem," he said.

Alderman Bertal Slagh pointed to the fact that some 4,000 persons climb steps every month to pay power bills, and that there has been agitation for years to get the treasurer's office moved downstairs. The present treasurer's office would be used for the city manager.

Peter Lugten, a veteran, said the city has never done anything for the veterans, except maybe giving them a banquet in the school after the first World War, and organizing a Legion band. He suggested remodeling the city hall and using part of the city engineer's office space.

In summing up the situation, Peerbolt said, "Council appreciates beyond words the sacrifices made by veterans in the various wars and council has indicated to some extent its feelings by giving the use of the GAR room to the organizations without any charge for heat, light and janitor services for many years. Council also is deeply concerned over a meeting place, as is evidenced by the amount of time spent through committees and official meetings of council to arrive at a solution."

He added the council also is concerned with providing office space for offices created by charter and feels that the city hall was primarily built and intended for use of city functions and departments. He expressed concern for the many elderly persons and women with small children who find it difficult to climb to the second floor to pay light, water and tax bills.

He pointed to improvements made in the band room, and presented a resolution that council request sincerely the co-operation of the organizations in arrangements which provide a meeting place for the groups, and which will allow the use of the necessary space for the general good of the city.

It was this resolution which was passed unanimously.

Council Approves Kansas Official As City Manager

Harold McClintock Will Assume Duties In Middle of May

Holland will have a new city manager on May 15.

The appointment of Harold C. McClintock, 48-year-old city manager of Hutchinson, Kan., was unanimously approved by Common Council at a regular meeting Wednesday night.

The recommendation came from a five-man committee after more than three months of work and study. The committee, consisting of Henry S. Maentz, W. A. Butler and Aldermen Robert Notter, John Beltman and Arnold Hertel, screened some 30 applications and studied the qualifications of 10 applicants closely, and interviewed a smaller number.

The committee also sought the aid of the International City Managers' association of Chicago

Geerlings Sweeps Into Senate Seat By Wide Majority

Local Man Piles Up One-Sided Lead In Two-County Vote

Ottawa county went Republican by a better than 3 to 1 majority in Monday's spring election which attracted a little more than 8,900 voters throughout the county—a light vote for a spring election. In some cases, the margin was better than 4 to 1.

In the special senate race, Clyde Geerlings, Holland Republican, was swept into office by a 2 to 1 majority, winning comfortable margins in both Muskegon and Ottawa counties. These two counties comprise the 23rd district.

In the 87 precincts in the district, Geerlings polled 12,084 votes while his Democratic opponent, Jan B. Vanderploeg of North Muskegon, polled 6,446 votes.

Geerlings shared the better than 3 to 1 majority in Ottawa county, piling up 6,870 votes in 35 precincts. In Muskegon, he ran ahead of his Democratic opponent by a smaller margin, polling 5,224 votes, to 4,403 for Vanderploeg.

Geerlings polled the largest number of votes of any candidate in Ottawa county. He will await the official state canvass before being sworn into his new position. He will fill a vacancy created by the death of Frank E. McKee last Feb. 13.

Ottawa county also maintained its 3 to 1 margin for the non-partisan candidates, giving incumbents Neil E. Reid and Emerson R. Boyles the same comfortable majorities.

Ottawa favored annual session of the legislature in a 2 to 1 vote, the death benefit bonus by a slightly narrower margin, and voted down the justices salary raise by 600 votes.

Although Monday's balloting was light, vote compilation took a long time and the Sentinel closed shop at 3:30 a.m., listing 34 out of the 35 precincts. Port Sheldon, the last township, reported this morning. Its votes are not included in The Sentinel chart.

Correct Scoring Shows Three-Way City Tie
Corrected totals of scoring in the City Basketball league for the 1950-51 season show a three-way tie actually resulted instead of a winner and a second place tie.

Fire Inspector John Otting points out a defectively hung electric cord in the basement of one of Holland's business places. Faulty electric cords present the number one fire hazard in Holland's homes and business houses, according to a report issued by Otting and Joseph P. Shashaguy. Other frequent hazards include rubbish accumulation, faulty chimneys and ashes in paper or wooden boxes. (Sentinel photo)

Fire Inspector Points To Hazards in Home

Defective electric cords, rubbish accumulation, defective chimneys and improperly boxed ashes are the four chief fire hazards in Holland.

This partial list was revealed today by Fire Inspectors Joseph P. Shashaguy and John Otting, in a report on fire hazard conditions in Holland.

Further details, along with recommendations about hazards: Inspectors show that the greatest number of warnings are issued for defective or improperly hung electric cords. A defective cord hung over a nail is a fine place for a fire to start. Use an insulated material for cords in your home, and don't overload connections with double or triple sockets where one is intended.

The next most frequent hazard is that of rubbish accumulation in the basement. Is your basement clean, the inspectors ask, or will a spark from a furnace or cigarette ignite that pile of paper or junk which has been in the corner for months?

Then follows the hazard of defective smokepipes and chimneys. Go down into your basement, the inspectors urge, and take a look at your chimney; don't wait for the inspector to tell you that it's a wonder your house hasn't burned up before this.

Fourth place in hazards is claimed by the large number of people who put ashes in paper cartons or wooden boxes. A metal container lasts much longer and is fireproof, the inspectors suggest. They add that those ashes you think are dead might have the spark left in them to set your house afire.

During the past four months, a total of 1,710 fire inspections were made, with 378 warnings issued to home owners and commercial places. That means that nearly one out of every four places visited had some type of hazard.

Inspections are made regularly by Otting, who was hired to assist Shashaguy in this department. Shashaguy devotes most of his time to two other parts of this three-pronged job—inspecting new construction and new heating equipment installation. This latter item has increased lately due to the number of gas units installed.

When Common Council decided that not enough time was being given to fire inspections, firemen Otting was delegated to devote his full time to fire inspections, except for when he was needed to fill in time for other firemen on vacations, sick leave or other times off.

Has the inspection work paid off? No serious fires have occurred in Holland in some time—a fact that Chief Andrew Klomparsen credits to rigid inspections and quick work on small fires.

The opinion denied request for a new trial. The case was heard before Judge Smith without a jury. On March 10 he rendered a verdict of no cause for action.

Clerk Howard Bargwell, Republican, was re-elected by an eight-vote margin.

In Cheshire township, Howard Busfield, Republican, won over Glenn Meyer for supervisor.

Nick Wagner (left) points to area in Korea where he was wounded, while brother, Ben, looks on. Both are home on furloughs and it was the first time they had seen each other in almost two years. All are sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wagner, 197 East Eighth St. (Sentinel photo)

Furloughs in Holland Unite Fighting Brothers

Two brothers, who were separated by just a few miles while fighting the North Koreans, had to wait until they returned home to Holland recently to see each other for the first time in almost two years.

They are Nick and Ben Wagner, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wagner, 197 East Eighth St. They both are enjoying 30-day furloughs.

Nick, who was wounded in action while fighting with the First Cavalry division, is home on a convalescent leave while Ben, gunners mate on the heavy cruiser USS Rochester, is home for his annual 30-day leave.

Nick was wounded just north of Taegu last Sept. 12. He was struck by 20 mm mortar shell fragments that landed in his machine gun nest. The action came during an American daytime attack. Two other men with him at the time were killed.

The lean Holland man was awarded a bronze star earlier this year for courage in face of the enemy.

Although he was in the front lines for just two weeks, Nick describes the conditions as "rough." He said the North Koreans put up stiff resistance and they had lots of "heavy artillery stuff."

He says Korea is a hilly country with bamboo shacks for houses in most small towns and modern cement buildings in larger towns. Nick believes most of the towns are "pretty well shot up by now." He said roads as a rule are lousy, with the main ones paved and the secondary routes muddy and bumpy.

It was the second taste of war action for Nick, who fought two and a half years in the Pacific theater with the 32nd National Guard division in World War II.

Upon completion of his furlough, Nick will report to Brooks General hospital in San Antonio, Tex., for an operation. He has been in and out of hospitals since being wounded.

Nick took a brief furlough at civilian life after World War II but re-enlisted and now has 10 years of service under his belt. He plans to continue in the Army for another 10 years and then retire.

Ben has seen considerable naval action in waters around Korea. His ship was in Luzon a month before the outbreak of the Korean war and immediately was dispatched to Korea. His ship was in on the landings at Inchon and helped evacuate the Marines from Hungnam.

The Rochester has done considerable shelling of enemy positions. Although the ship stayed out about three to four miles from shore, Ben could see outlines of the rugged mountains.

Ben also was in World War II. He saw action with the 33rd Infantry division in the Pacific for three years. He returned to civilian life for two years, then re-enlisted. He expects to stay in for the full 20 years needed for retirement.

Another brother, Ralph, also is (or was) aboard a destroyer in Korea.

Ben met Ralph for the first time in three years and four months. The reunion took place in Wonsan, Korea, last Thanksgiving Day. The two enlisted together but were separated soon afterwards.

Local Methodist Minister Ready for Haiti 'Crusade'

The Rev. George B. Hilson, pastor of Wesleyan Methodist church, and five other ministers of the denomination left Holland Monday on a six-week evangelistic crusade to Haiti. The six men will "rough it" in the mountains of Haiti, where they will take first steps in establishing mission stations.

Few white people go into the mountains, according to Rev. Hilson. He said that most go only as far as Port-au-Prince, the capital, and to other cities on the island.

The Wesleyan Methodist church already has a mission field in Haiti, and the six "crusaders" will conduct services at established stations in and near the cities besides doing pioneer work in the mountains.

The six-man team will be divided at times to six pairs or threes for some work. At any rate, a minimum of six and a maximum of 12 services will be conducted each day by the team, Rev. Hilson said.

The men, who are sent by the youth department of their denomination, plan to take all their supplies from the United States. They'll sleep in sleeping bags with air mattresses and plan to do all their own cooking, probably over camp fires. They plan to drive to Miami, Fla., on Monday, and will take a plane to Haiti.

Included in Rev. Hilson's equipment will be an ample supply of film—he hopes to return with a large collection of 16 mm. movies and 35 mm. slides. He has been appointed photographer for the department. Along with pictures of the mission work, he plans to photograph the beautiful scenery on the island.

The Rev. Henry Ortlip, who is superintendent of the Haiti field, is directing the crusade.

Although Rev. Hilson prepared for mission work more than 20 years ago, this will be his first experience in missionary work. He said that after educational preparation for the African mission field, he was turned down for physical reasons. Now, after almost 21 years as a church pastor, Rev. Hilson will have opportunity to put his training into practice.

During Rev. Hilson's absence, the local Wesleyan Methodist church will have guest ministers. On April 8 the Bob Zuhl Gospel team from Marion college will be in charge; April 15, the Rev. Floyd Bailey of Battle Creek; April 22, the Rev. Royal S. Woodhead, pastor of Marion college church; April 29, the Rev. J. R. Christell of Hastings, who is a native of Holland, and May 6, the Rev. Clyde W. Meredith, president of Taylor university and former pastor of the local church.

Although Rev. Hilson prepared for mission work more than 20 years ago, this will be his first experience in missionary work. He said that after educational preparation for the African mission field, he was turned down for physical reasons. Now, after almost 21 years as a church pastor, Rev. Hilson will have opportunity to put his training into practice.

During Rev. Hilson's absence, the local Wesleyan Methodist church will have guest ministers. On April 8 the Bob Zuhl Gospel team from Marion college will be in charge; April 15, the Rev. Floyd Bailey of Battle Creek; April 22, the Rev. Royal S. Woodhead, pastor of Marion college church; April 29, the Rev. J. R. Christell of Hastings, who is a native of Holland, and May 6, the Rev. Clyde W. Meredith, president of Taylor university and former pastor of the local church.

The men, who are sent by the youth department of their denomination, plan to take all their supplies from the United States. They'll sleep in sleeping bags with air mattresses and plan to do all their own cooking, probably over camp fires. They plan to drive to Miami, Fla., on Monday, and will take a plane to Haiti.

Included in Rev. Hilson's equipment will be an ample supply of film—he hopes to return with a large collection of 16 mm. movies and 35 mm. slides. He has been appointed photographer for the department. Along with pictures of the mission work, he plans to photograph the beautiful scenery on the island.

CHOOSING A NEW SCHOOL

The resignation of Superintendent C. C. Crawford presents the board of education with as serious a responsibility as that group has faced in years. It is no small matter to pick the man—or the woman—who will steer the local school system through the coming difficult years. (That phrase, "or the woman," may seem irrelevant to the local situation; doubtless it is, but women superintendents have done very well in some places.)

A candidate for school superintendent in Holland has to have qualifications over and above those that are required from such an official in some communities.
Holland sets a high value on ethical standards and points of view that are the fruit of a century of local life and history. A rather more homogeneous population than is found in many communities, the people here take some standards for granted that are not subscribed to in other places or that are at least not given the emphasis they receive here as a matter of course.

That fact makes the choice of a school head difficult, to put it mildly. But the situation is complicated by the fact that during the past quarter of a century Holland has been changing, and the standards and points of view of the people have been changing also. This duality of sentiment in the community makes it necessary for the head of Holland's school system to have a richness of tact and understanding that is not demanded from such an official in many communities.

In addition he must of course
have the qualities that are demanded in other places. Holland has never been satisfied with less than the best in scholarship from its school heads, and it is safe to predict that the board of education will look for a man who has the highest educational credentials. And it is also true that a modern school superintendent is not exclusively an educator; he has to be a businessman as well.
Education has become big business, and no introvert recluse would serve the purpose, no matter how great a scholar he might be.

If it will be no easy job to pick the right man for Holland, especially in view of the program of expansion that is in progress in the public schools right now. The local public can help by forming a sympathetic understanding of the problem, and by remembering that the new superintendent will have to be the representative of all the people, not of any one clique or group.

The Beginnings of Sin
Genesis 3:1-6, 9-15

By Henry Geerlings

We hear so much about wickedness and sin that we wonder where it all began. Our morning papers tell of one crime after another. These bad acts are of many kinds. We conclude that back of every one of these there must be an evil desire of some kind. Then we make a contrast with the hundreds of thousands of people whose names never get into the papers for some wrong they have been caught doing and decide that not everybody is willing to do wrong. But we are sure that everybody has a chance to do wrong and that it is only because they refuse to yield to temptation that they escape some evil course. But where did all this evil get its start? What was the beginning of sin?

Our first parents dwelt in the garden of Eden and were privileged to enjoy everything in it except the fruit of one tree. This is the way the Bible puts it. Satan wanted to defeat the purpose of God of having His beautiful earth ruled over by the human family. He laid his tricky plot to deceive the people God had put in control. Satan was sly enough to know that he would have to win by fraud. He took the form of a serpent and came to the woman and asked her a simple question about their use of the trees in the garden.

Not suspecting anything and never thinking that God had deprived them of anything, she told the serpent that God was very good to them and allowed them
everything in the garden but one.
She frankly told the serpent that God had refused them the one tree under penalty of death. The serpent told the woman that God's words were not altogether true.
He told her that God knew that as soon as they would eat of the forbidden tree a strange result would follow for they would suddenly come to know the difference between good and wrong and in that degree become like God.

All this was true and Satan's scheme was to get the woman to feel that God was not quite fair with them in denying them the one tree. Also the desire to experience something new grew strong in the woman's heart. This was the tricky temptation Satan
put before the woman.

The fruit of the forbidden tree
became more attractive as soon as it was seen in the light of what Satan had said. The woman could not take her eyes off of it. She longed to try some of it, just to see what would happen. If what Satan was true, it would be a great experience to eat that fruit.
The desire led to the act and the forbidden fruit was taken and eaten. Eve passed some of it to Adam and he ate it.

What Satan said did take place.
As soon as they had eaten the fruit they realized that they had done wrong. It was a new feeling, to be afraid of God. They had always found God gracious and kind and loving. They could not fear Him, but what a change came over them. They dared not meet God face to face. They looked at their unclothed bodies and wondered about covering them so as to hide from God. They were ashamed of themselves. They did not want to be seen after they had disobeyed God.

Clothing was not enough. They felt the need of running into some secluded spot where God could not find them. They had come to know what wrong is and were driven by their shame to hide themselves.

God has given us laws which insure and promote our well-being.
To do otherwise than these laws command is sin. It is introducing disorder into His creation. It is missing the mark. It is writing failure over our lives. It is defeating the purpose for which we have been created. Sin is lawlessness, and the life that disre-gards the law of God and sets out to gratify its own whims is headed toward disappointment and disaster.

The harmony between God and man was broken when Adam and Eve doubted His goodness and disobeyed Him. He had planned all things wisely for them and they would have realized their nobler selves had they repelled every insinuation that He was not dealing fairly with them.
Sin is both doubt and disobedience to what He enjoins. And the first sin had in it the element of all sins.

Sin brings consequences in its train. We see that every day. For the time being there may be pleasure in doing wrong. Sin to some folks seems to be sweet. It removes restraint and gives a kind of freedom they enjoy. But let us be assured of this, that now or later sin is going to demand its price. When it is finished it brings death.

We are told that the soul that sinneth shall die. But Christ has made possible the reversal of that decree. We read that whatsoever
a man soweth he shall also reap.
But Christ is able to bring fruit out of our lives that is not the result of our sowing. Divine grace and mercy can pardon the sin we have done and overcome the evil tendencies that reside in our members. The weary world waits for One who can cause that it need not sin. It longs for a power that can make holiness supreme.

We may see our sins, but if we do not see them in a way that makes us confess them and turn from them we shall go on in the beaten paths. We may be sorry for our evil deeds and yet not be sorry enough to quit them. There is hope when we honestly acknowl-ledge our sin. The temper of our age is not such as to lead us to extremes in this direction.

Supt. Bert P. Bos Considers Offer For New Position

Eastern School Society Will Merge Five Units Under One Leader

Dr. Bert P. Bos, superintendent of the Holland Christian schools, today announced that he has been offered an administrative position by the Eastern Christian school society of Paterson, N. J. Bos made the announcement following his return from Paterson Wednesday night.

According to Bos, the position offered him is a new one, created by the recent merger of four Christian elementary schools and one high school in the Paterson area. Formerly governed by five different boards of trustees, the five schools have merged into one system under one society. Bos said if he accepted the post, he would serve as superintendent of the entire system.

Comprising the Eastern society are Midland Park, North Fourth Street, Riverside and Passaic. These include grades through eight. The fifth school is Eastern Academy which has grades nine through 12.

Under the new plan, the present grade schools will be converted into schools of six grades. Eastern Academy would include only grades seven through nine, and a new high school would be built. The new school society recently approved a $600,000 bond issue for construction of a new high school on a 27-acre plot in suburban Paterson.

Bos said the total number of pupils under the superintendent's jurisdiction would be slightly less than the local Christian schools although the faculty would be larger. A total of 16 Christian Reformed and Reformed churches in the Paterson area support the schools, he reported.

Bos is completing his fifth year as superintendent of the Holland Christian schools. He came to Holland from New Jersey where he served in school administrative capacities.

"This consolidation in the Paterson area will be watched closely by Christian school supporters in the United States. I feel that whoever accepts this position faces a tremendous challenge in this pioneer movement," Bos said. He said he would announce his decision within three weeks. The new position becomes effective Sept. 1.

Dagen Warns Of Shortage

One of the great questions confronting everyone today is, "How long will it last?" Some phrase it, "When is the break coming?" Both questions amount to the same thing, in the sense that their expression is an admission of an inflation or a false foundation in our economy.

S. A. Dagen, president of S. A. Dagen, Inc., says, "There should be no doubt of this danger, surely the unprecedented demand for almost every conceivable type of goods remains colossal."

The automobile industry may look for shortage of materials to build automobiles and trucks. A shortage of parts necessary to maintain the operation of cars and trucks is already pronounced.

In order to utilize every means to maintain our transportation system owners of cars and trucks needing repairs should at once take steps to recondition them for the long grind that appears to be ahead. At S. A. Dagen, Inc., these needed parts are available. Complete modern equipment has been added so as to give you only the highest standard of repair work.

Here, under the supervision of Frank Camp and Ed Teske, you will find specially trained service men who know cars and trucks and who realize their obligation to render a more economical and intelligent service.

At S. A. Dagen, Inc., you will find on their used car lot, located at 21 West 7th St., a fine selection of local owned reconditioned used cars at attractive prices. For convenience of workers their sales department is open each evening except Sunday, until 9 p.m. Emergency wrecking and tow service is available 24 hours a day.

Holland Parents Sent To Eastmanville Home

A Holland couple is at the county home at Eastmanville and their 17-day old child is in Holland hospital following police action during the week-end.

Police first received complaints Saturday that the couple was showing the baby to patrons in a Holland drug store and suggesting they buy gifts for the infant.

The child was taken to Holland hospital to be under a doctor's care, although no physical defects were reported by attendants. The couple was taken to Eastmanville, and will be turned over to Allegan county authorities in the near future, Chief Jacob Van Hoff said. Both husband and wife are wards of Allegan county social agencies, Van Hoff said.

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

There are not a great many homely, human touches in Winston Churchill's latest volume in his World War II series, "The Hinge of Fate," but there are some that serve to relieve the acres of semi-official print. For the most part the 831 page volume, like its predecessors, is taken up with contemporary official documents, cemented together by Churchill comment and explanation. But now and then the former British prime minister lets his hair down.

One of the more interesting of these bits of artistic relief is concerned with Churchill's second visit to Washington. The year was 1942, the background was that of almost unrelieved disaster for both England and America over a period of many months. Singapore had fallen, the British navy had been given one of the greatest poundings in its history, Tobruk was on the point of falling, the Philippines had been all but lost to America, Rommel was romping at will over North Africa, and the Japanese army and navy were doing about what they pleased in the Pacific.

The story of all this takes up the bulk of the middle section of the volume, but Churchill is at least human enough to devote a few pages to what some writers might have considered trivial. But the very triviality adds to the sense of humanness of the figures involved.

The prime minister's plane landed at Hyde Park, where the president was staying for a few days to get away from the tension of Washington. The president himself met Churchill at the local airfield in his own car, driving the car himself, as Churchill tells the story. Not only that, the president hospitably offered to show his guest about the grounds.

As a matter of politeness Churchill was forced to comply, although he had many misgivings. "Mr. Roosevelt's infirmity prevented him from using his feet on the brake, clutch, or accelerator," the prime minister remarks. "An ingenious arrangement enabled him to do everything with his arms, which were amazingly strong and muscular."

But Churchill confesses that his heart was in his mouth much of the time during the ride. Especially when Roosevelt took him to the bluffs overlooking the Hudson. Churchill writes: "I confess that when on several occasions the car poised and backed on the grass verges of the precipices over the Hudson I hoped the mechanical devices and brakes would show no defects."

There is in the same scene an incidental little picture of Roosevelt in a small-boy mood that may not be familiar to the American people. The president was proud of his arms, all the more so because of his paralyzed legs. Again quoting the Churchill account: "He invited me to feel his biceps, saying that a famous prize-fighter had envied them."

The picture of the head of the most powerful republic on earth inviting the prime minister of the far-flung British Empire to "feel his muscle," the way a spindly-armed small boy does when he is getting ready for his first fight in the school yard, has a charm that even the Roosevelt enemies can hardly deny.

"The Hinge of Fate" has a number of such patches, but not nearly enough. On the whole it is not a very human book. It comes nearer to being an official document than a warm human story.

Vacations Cut Team Attendance At Annual Fete

The Lions club annual basketball banquet was held Thursday night, honoring members of the cage teams from Holland high school, Holland Christian and Hope college.

However, since the banquet was held during spring vacation at the three schools, the basketball players did not turn out in full force.

Coach Fred Weiss of Holland high school introduced 10 players and the team manager.

With Hope coach Russ De Vette attending a coach's meeting in Minneapolis, athletic director Milton Hinga introduced three players and two managers of the college team. The rest of the boys, Hinga explained, took advantage of spring vacation and could not be present.

Coach Arthur Tuls of Holland Christian sent a message to the club explaining that most of his players were on a senior trip to Chicago and could not be present. He expressed appreciation for the invitation and sorrow at the team's non-attendance.

Highlight of the program was showing of two films furnished by the University of Michigan. Subjects were the Rose Bowl game in which Michigan defeated California, 14-6, and the university's marching band. The latter film was in color and sound, and showed the marching band between halves at one of last fall's games in Ann Arbor.

Club president E. Ray Dangremond presided at the dinner, and turned the program over to Robert S. Greenhoe, banquet chairman. Members of the banquet committee were Rollie De Weerd and Don Lieveense.

Community singing was led by Gerrit Wiegink, and Dr. William Gouloze gave the invocation.

Accumulates Trophies
When Tom Van Putten, seventh grade student at Harrington school, read a list of instructions in a sportsman's magazine on how to stuff animals, he decided to give the game of taxidermy a whirl.

His uncle, Gene Teusink, had just returned from a deer hunting trip with a spike horn, and Tom claimed the head and mounted it.

Noting his success, he sent for a correspondence course in taxidermy, and started in the hobby in a big way. His trophies include the first deer head, an owl, muskrat and several squirrels.

Tom is the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Van Putten, route 1.

"He always has been interested in wildlife," his father explains, "and after reading that article about mounting deer heads, he decided he could do it."

Tom began his hobby in November and does all his work around the house.

Twelve-year-old Thomas Van Putten shows off some of the examples of taxidermy he has completed in recent months. Tom became interested in taxidermy after reading instructions in a sport magazine. So he decided to try it with the results shown above. Tom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Van Putten, route 1.

Drivers, Bicyclists, Kite Flyers Reminded of Spring Safety Rules

Civic leaders in Holland today were re-emphasizing the common-sense safety rules for people of all ages for the spring season.

"Warm weather brings more people out into the open," Police Chief Jacob Van Hoff reminded residents. "Everyone needs to exercise a little special caution and care now that spring is here."

Van Hoff pointed out that many children will be playing in the streets—a practice that in itself is ill advised—and that motorists should be especially careful.

The annual spring brake check-up by city police is in action already. The familiar "brake stickers" have been distributed to 63 garages and gas stations in the Holland area, to be placed on windshields of cars after all mechanical equipment is checked by repairmen.

In a week or so, Van Hoff said, city police will set up road blocks and check cars without brake stickers. Officer Peter Van Langevelde will be in charge of the brake program.

Also in the line of spring activity, Deputy Sheriff Clayton Forry reports numerous complaints about bicyclists riding at night without lights or adequate reflectors. He cited examples of near-collisions between cars and bicycles caused by the cyclists being nearly invisible.

Forry urged all riders to be sure their vehicles are illuminated properly to avoid any serious accidents. Van Hoff concurred in the suggestion.

Sharing responsibility with motorists and bicyclists in the unofficial spring safety program are kite enthusiasts. Board of Public Works officials have three concrete suggestions about kite flying:

Don't fly kites near high tension wires. Never use wire to fly kites instead of string. And don't climb poles to retrieve kites caught in wires.

The word "reverend" occurs only once in the Bible—in the ninth verse of the 111th Psalm.

In wildlife," his father explains, "and after reading that article about mounting deer heads, he decided he could do it."

Tom began his hobby in November and does all his work around the house.

Representative Gerald R. Ford, who is a usual guest at the annual banquet, has been invited but won't be able to be here because of consideration of legislation in Washington, De Vries said.

Cornelius De Waard is banquet chairman. Hine Vander Heuvel is club president and Les Pool club secretary.

3 Boats Enter Holland Harbor

The commercial shipping season at Holland harbor swung into full force Tuesday, with the arrival of an Army dredge and two tankers.

The dredge Haines is scraping the bottom of the channel and working around the arrowhead outside the channel. Coast Guard officials report. She expects to be in Holland about 10 days.

The tanker Michigan, which was the first commercial boat to enter the harbor this year with a trip on Sunday, entered again at 6:10 a.m. Tuesday. She is unloading about 33,000 barrels of gas at the Texas company.

Agent Advises Farmers to Buy Oats Seed Soon

With oat planting time just around the corner, now is a good time to buy your seed oats if you need them, L. R. Arnold, county agricultural agent, advised this week.

Some of the common varieties for Michigan are Eaton, Clinton and Kent. From Kenneth Frey of the Michigan State college farm crops department, the agent has received a brief summary of the various oats.

Eaton has a white grain and stiff straw. It is adapted to the whole of the lower peninsula and is invariably among the better yielding varieties. Date of maturity is medium. It has medium to light test weight and certified seed is available.

Clinton has yellow grain and stiff straw. Adaptability is the same as Eaton but it is most popular in the southern part of the lower peninsula. Farmers growing this variety should use an improved Clinton strain such as Clinton 59 or Clinton reselect because they are more uniform in growing habit than the original Clinton. It has a medium test weight and has given very good yields in recent tests. Medium in maturity.

Kent has white grain and heavy test weight. It is midseason in maturity and is adapted to soils of medium to low fertility. Kent variety is quite susceptible to Septoria or "black stem." Septoria disease reduced the yield of Kent in 1950. Certified seed is available.

Agent Arnold says Eaton has proven a good yielder in Ottawa county.

Weather Limits Drills; Batteries Work Inside

Coach Robert Hoover, handling the baseball chores at Zeeland this year, has announced a good turnout for the team. So far, the weather and condition of the field have limited drills for the more than 30 boys out for the spring sport.

The pitchers and catchers have been working in the school gym, but other practice has been limited to a round of batting practice, short fielding drills, and a practice game with Hudsonville last week.

Hoover was pleased with the showing of the team at Hudsonville, however, and is optimistic about the season, although short of experienced men. Back from last year's team are Ray Wagner, who handled the catching, Ward Ver Hage, a pitcher, second baseman Howard Geerlings, and Terry Kraai, junior shortstop.

Faced with rebuilding an outfield, Coach Hoover has come up with several prospects. Among them are John Walters, Roger Van Ommen, Junior Raterink, Vern Machiele, and Roger Snow.

Other candidates will also be fighting for these positions. At third base, Hoover has Glenn Schroteboer, who may also pitch. When Schroteboer is hurling, Bob Berens and Roger Brouwer have inside track on the job.

John Vanden Bosch, a freshman, is being groomed for the initial sack. Terry Kraai, who played shortstop last year, is also expected to pitch this year.

Rounding out the pitching staff is Delwyn Komejan, who played the same spot last year.

The team is scheduled to go to Hudsonville for another practice game Wednesday, weather permitting. Scrimmage will probably help Coach Hoover determine the Chix opening day lineup, when they play Wyoming Park at home on April 10.

Zeeland baseball schedule: April 10 Wyoming Park, Home; April 13 Holland Christian There; April 17 Paw Paw, Home; April 19 Grandville, Home; April 24 Allegan There (night); April 26 Bangor There; May 1 Plainville Home; May 3 Paw Paw There; May 8 Bangor Home; May 10 Allegan Home (night); May 14 Otsego There; May 22 Plainville There; May 24 Otsego Home (night).
