Milliken Speaker for Graduation

Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken will be the speaker at the Holland High School commencement June 8, the Board of Education was informed at its monthly meeting Monday night in the high school library.

High School Principal Fred Bertsch announced that the lieutenant governor had accepted the invitation to address the high school graduates. Milliken was elected lieutenant governor in 1964 and reelected in 1966 after he served four years in the state senate. He is a graduate of Yale University and president of J. W. Milliken, Inc., which operates department stores in Traverse City, Cadillac and Manistee.

The 45-year-old lieutenant governor has served as trustee of Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City for three years. During World War II, he flew 50 combat missions as a waist gunner on a B-24 and was wounded over Vienna, Austria. He is married and has two children, 20 and 18.

In other business, the board appointed Robert De Nooyer as a member of the swimming pool advisory committee succeeding Jerry Jonker who asked to be replaced after establishing a new business in Grand Rapids.

The board was asked to appropriate $4,000 a year for three years matching similar funds from Hope College in hiring a coordinator for setting up a curriculum for nature study and to develop a plan for the Nature Center on Graafschap Rd. in the vicinity of 26th St.

Marvin Vander Ploeg, principal of Montello Park school and a member of the nature center advisory committee, explained the program which started three years ago, aided by schools, the park department, the Garden Club and interested persons. Slides were shown and were explained by Mrs. Harold Thornhill, taken while she was chairman of the advisory committee.

The nature center covers 11 acres of varying terrain which includes woods, a sand hill, creek, bog, pond, plus plentiful plants and wildlife.

The board expressed interest with the proposal but was reluctant to commit itself for three years in view of uncertain revenues, and referred the program to the superintendent for study and later recommendation.

Board President James O. Lamb reported that personnel negotiations are continuing and there was no report at present.

Contracts were approved for two new teachers for next fall. Miss Sandra Lahman, a 1966 graduate of Goshen College, and Miss Sandra Schaper, who will be graduating from Hope College in 1967, both will teach in elementary schools. Miss Lahman has had a year's experience in Ontario, Calif.

High School Principal Fred Bertsch and Junior High Principal John Noe reviewed plans for class schedules next term. Bertsch reviewed a more flexible schedule of the block set-up, extending the day to eight 55-minute modules, allowing some two, three and four-hour blocks, but allowing greater flexibility in elective subjects for co-op students and other considerations.

The junior high program calls for seven 50-minute periods. The high school presentation was tabled for later vote. President Lamb presided at the meeting which lasted two hours and 45 minutes. All members were present except John Keuning who is recuperating following surgery. John Weeber gave the invocation.

Pleads Guilty to Manslaughter

GRAND HAVEN — The trial of Mrs. Doris Hunzinger, 26, of Muskegon, formerly of Nunica, on charges of murdering her three-year-old daughter last June, ended abruptly Tuesday afternoon when she pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of manslaughter.

In a dramatic confession, Mrs. Hunzinger told the jury of eight men and four women how she strangled three-year-old Helen Marie in a fit of anger when the child had been naughty in her bed.

Showing little emotion, Mrs. Hunzinger said, "I reached for her, fell on my wheelchair and this made me mad. I grabbed the first thing I saw and wrapped it around her neck."

She admitted it was a piece of bed sheet and that she tied it around the child's neck and pulled it tight. Then, she said, she placed the body in a footlocker under her bed and sat on it.

Mrs. Hunzinger uses a wheelchair and crutches since losing a leg in an auto accident.

Her bond of $1,000 was continued and she will return for sentence April 24.

A jury had been picked, opening statements made, and one witness had been questioned by noon recess. The witness was Det. Steve Cloonan of the state police who led the investigation. Prosecutor James W. Bussard had won a small point when he was permitted to submit color photos of the child, dead in a footlocker, into evidence.

The trial was scheduled to resume at 1:30 p.m. but there was a delay. When Judge Raymond L. Smith finally entered the court room, Atty. Harry Liefers, the court-appointed attorney for the defendant, told the court he had obtained new information during the noon hour and asked for a reduction of the charge to manslaughter. If the charge were reduced, he said, his client would plead guilty.

Mrs. Hunzinger was called to the bench and was told the court would have to hear her confession to determine whether the plea could be accepted.

Mrs. Hunzinger related how the strangling had taken place in the home of her boy friend, Richard Traxler, 33, in Nunica. She said Traxler knew nothing of the incident. She explained how on the following Monday, June 27, she and Traxler reported the "murder" to state police in Grand Haven, and how she told police her former husband, Harry, took the child away and killed her. The husband was located and exonerated.

Prosecutor Bussard said manslaughter was a proper charge since there was no apparent premeditation.

Mrs. Hunzinger had claimed she was innocent up to noon Tuesday.

She had been arrested following the child's funeral July 1, and on July 14 was bound over to Circuit Court where she pleaded innocent. The trial was delayed due to her pregnancy and she was released on bond in October. A baby was born in December but died soon after birth.

Selected for the jury were Stanley Schrotenboer and Gerald Timmer of Zeeland, Don Rypma, Julia Kaper and Dorothy Stetee of Holland, Mrs. Henry Shifflet of Grand Haven, William Baldwin of Tallmadge township, Mrs. Erma Van Weelde of Polkton, Jay Breuker of Olive, Gerrit Feyen of Jamestown, C. B. Pringle of Crookery and Earl Meeuwse of Allendale.

More Funds Are Sought In County

GRAND HAVEN — The Ottawa County Board of Supervisors Wednesday again struggled with financial problems, as it received requests for additional funds from the road commission and the sheriff's department.

Manager William Osner of the road commission presented the commission's annual budget totaling $3,075,000, and urged that the county board appropriate $300,000 for road improvements in its 1968 budget. The commission has asked for $200,000 for the past three years but has been turned down.

During the past 10 years, Osner said, cost of equipment and wages have increased but counties still receive the same rate of revenue from state sources.

The board voted to submit a resolution to the state legislature, urging the passage of bills now being considered that would increase the gasoline tax, commercial weight tax and passenger car weight tax.

Osner listed 13 projects proposed for 1968 in the primary road construction program in the county, with a total cost of almost $800,000.

Sheriff Bud Gysen reported the urgent need for a second detective in his department, which would cost $7,118 for the rest of 1967. There were 83 breaks unsolved since Jan. 1.

Supervisor Lawrence Wade, Holland, urged that the state police post at Grand Haven, with more than 40 officers, be called on for help, if needed. "They are swamped just like we are," the sheriff reported.

City Atty. Gordon Cunningham, Holland, also urged that help be sought from state troopers. He again urged that a county-wide survey of police protection be made by experts.

"I'm not sniping at the sheriff," Cunningham said, "but I believe we have to know what we are doing if we're going to spend more money." City Manager R. V. Terrill, Grand Haven, said that the board is getting into "money trouble" if it keeps on appropriating more money and Supervisor Gerrit Bottema of Spring Lake feared the board will be getting into a habit of deficit spending.

Supervisor Stuart Poel, Grand Haven, said he made a survey of police costs in the county and his tabulation shows the five cities and Spring Lake village paid $660,173 in 1966 for police protection and the 17 townships paid $790,501. Township officials claimed, however, that townships paid out money for constables, which was not included in Poel's figures. The sheriff's request was tabled until the next meeting of the April session on April 17.

The board adopted a resolution submitted by the new county community mental health services board. The state of Michigan will pay three quarters of the annual budget to operate the new department in 1968. Chairman Raymond Vander Laan of the services board reported. The county annually appropriates $6,000 to the department and other funds are received from community chests and other sources. The budget set for 1968 is $78,000, with $20,000 to $30,000 designated for the salary of a director, yet to be appointed. The resolution included 11 sections and mainly designates the board as the direct administrative agency for mental health activity in the county. The budget for the new department will be submitted to the supervisors in October.

Larry Hildore, new county director of the Department of Social Welfare, reported that relief cost the county $1,764,606 in 1966, slightly more than the 1965 total. Major costs were $458,500 for medical aid to the aged, $324,000 to dependent children and $327,000 to hospitalization, direct relief and infirmary upkeep.

Fennville Man Who Offered Farm To MSU Is Dead

FENNVILLE — A local fruit grower who offered his 80-acre farm to Michigan State University to be used for research and experimentation died Wednesday.

Trevor Nichols, 75, who lived on his fruit farm three miles west of the village on M-89, had left Fennville last November to enter a nursing home in Quarryville, Pa., near Lancaster. He died there at 5:40 p.m. Wednesday.

He had come to Fennville with his wife from Chicago nearly 50 years ago. Mrs. Nichols died in 1964 and was buried in Chicago. He is survived by three sisters and two brothers in Norway; a nephew and a niece, one living in Quarryville.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday from the Pedersen funeral home in Chicago at 4300 West Fullerton Ave. Burial will be in Chicago.

The nephew, Dr. Franklin Dyrness, in Quarryville, said his uncle after spending most of his life in Fennville had a profound love and deep appreciation for the area and the advantages it afforded over the years.

Although his farm was a modest size, he developed a successful business by keeping an open mind on experimentation and by utilizing scientific methods. He knew the history of every tree, when it was planted, how it was pruned and how many unexpected frosts it weathered.

The university is in the process of looking over the property valued at $75,000 and a decision will be made soon by the board of trustees.

The farm has approximately 50 acres of pears, 20 of apples, and some cherry, plums and prunes. The farm house was modernized last year.

Non-Graded Program Set In 2 Schools

The Board of Education Monday night approved an experiment on a non-graded program for the first three grades in Washington and Lincoln schools starting with the fall season.

As outlined by School Psychologist Eugene Scholten, the new concept will group children to meet better their educational needs in a flexible program on a less structured setting. He said Washington and Lincoln schools lend particularly well to such a program in that there are large numbers of children at both ends of the academic and achievement scales.

The recommendation followed several months of study by the entire teaching staff of both schools. Although the proposed program affects only the first three grades, it may be extended to the upper grades if evaluation proves this desirable. For that reason, all teachers were included in the study to be well aware of the program aims.

The program calls for teaching pupils in small groups and in individual instruction. This is particularly designed to meet the needs of the children in situations where there is a high turnover each year, sometimes as high as 50 per cent in some rooms.

The new program works well with the team teaching concept which has been common in the two schools. Lincoln school has a pre-first grade and Washington school has an upper elementary program for grouping students in arithmetic.

The study included visits to Grand Rapids, Grand Haven, Muskegon and Kalamazoo which operate non-graded programs.

One of the purposes of the non-graded program is to remove the stigma of failure.

Non-grading is described as a method of vertical organization in which children may progress at individual rates, covering as much of an appropriate curriculum as they can. At the beginning of the new term, the child picks up where he left off and again works at his own speed. No grade level is attached to the work at any point and there are no promotions and no re-tentions. A slow learner may take four years to cover the work the average pupil does in three, but he does not repeat work as he would if he were held back a year under the graded system.

The academically talented pupil may complete the curriculum faster than he would in a graded school, but he does not "skip" any material or mark time waiting for less able pupils to catch up with him.

In other business, the board passed a resolution extending sincere congratulations to Fred T. Miles on reaching his 90th birthday and recognizing his two decades of valuable and faithful service as a member of the Board of Education in the 1920's and 1930's.

A progress report on new construction revealed that work is on schedule or ahead of schedule at the three elementary schools, Van Raalte, Longfellow and Maplewood, and at the community swimming pool. Demolition of the old Van Raalte school is 40 per cent complete, and new construction on the site of the old school will proceed as soon as the demolition is completed. This area which will include library and offices will be completed in time for the fall term.

ACTIVE AT 90—Judge Fred T. Miles, 90 years old Saturday, still goes to his office almost every day; usually walking the short distance from his home but occasionally driving his car. He has spent his lifetime in public service, teaching school, serving as county prosecutor 10 years, as Ottawa-Allegan circuit judge for 18 years, as school board member for 21 years, and as a life-long member of First Methodist Church. ## Fred T. Miles Observes 90th Birthday Anniversary

Judge Fred T. Miles was 90 years old Saturday.

Moreover, he is still active, although not so active as he was in the old days. But he manages to get to his office in the Enterprise Building on East 10th St. nearly every day, usually walking the short distance from his home at 28 West 12th St.

Judge Miles, who served as judge of the Ottawa-Allegan circuit for 18 years, and previously as Ottawa County prosecutor for 10 years, well remembers his early days.

He was born April 8, 1877, on a farm in Olive (now Park) township of pioneer parents who chopped their existence out of the forests. He was taken out of school at age 12 and began the life of a woodsman with his father and his brother Lester who was two years older. Lester Miles later became a prominent Methodist minister in Western Michigan.

His most memorable birthday was his 14th. His father had left early that morning with his ox-drawn wagon and a load of bark for a tanning company in Holland 7 1/2 miles away. Young Miles smelled smoke shortly after noon while chopping trees in the woods and saw the family cabin burning. His mother who was almost totally deaf had not noticed the flames and 14-year-old Fred rushed into the cabin, grabbed his mother and snatched an old quilt on the way out. Then they both stood at a distance watching all their possessions go up in smoke.

When his father returned from Holland that evening with his tired oxen, they cleaned up an old abandoned cabin nearby and made that their home. There was no welfare. Neighbors were wonderful, but so poor that they could contribute little.

When Miles was seven years old, he sustained an eye injury when a piece of brass entered his left eye. After several days his father took him to Holland in an ox-drawn wagon to a doctor. The doctor sent the father out to buy some morphine (.50) and then operated on the eye. Miles was carried back home that same evening in the wagon and was forbidden to see for two weeks. There was no follow-up treatment and no hospitalization.

Everybody assumed he had been blinded for life. His left eye has had only partial vision, but he spent a lifetime in study. When he opened his law office in Holland with a correspondence school law diploma, he paid $1 a week office rent. There was little law work in Holland and even less money. It was the day of earning $.75 to $1.20 a day for 10 hours' work. Even when clients came, they were so poor the legal charge was little or nothing.

In those days, the leading law firm in Holland was Diekema and Kollen, and George Kollen was particularly gracious to the fledgling attorney and made his law library available to him. Today, Miles remembers Kollen as the most brilliant and able trial attorney in Western Michigan.

Besides studying law books constantly, Miles had a few jobs in account collections, but never enjoyed it. He set up a night school in his office teaching English to newly arrived Dutch people. Payment was 10 cents a night . . . and it was a long session.

Miles has always been indebted to Miss Kate O'Connell, a teacher in Olive township who convinced him back in 1897 he could through sheer self-discipline and study become educated.

Another great inspiration was Luke Lugers, former mayor, state legislator and realtor who was an early partner of Miles. Lugers' daughter, Georgiana, survives him and is now a next door neighbor of Miles.

Miles also is indebted to the late Dr. John B. Nykerk of Hope College who spent countless hours in teaching him English, logic, American literature and public speaking.

Before going into law, Miles worked in a local furniture factory for 50 cents a day, taught country school with over 70 pupils for $40 a month, and raised strawberries to sell in the Holland area.

In 1906 he was elected justice of the peace in Holland and in 1916 was elected prosecuting attorney for Ottawa County, a post he held 10 years. He practiced law in Holland until elected circuit judge in 1929, serving until 1948.

He did not seed office in 1947 so that he could enter the practice of law with his son Wendell who was returning from military duty in Europe. In 1948 they opened an office for Miles and Miles, operating it for five years until Wendell was appointed U.S. attorney for Western Michigan by President Eisenhower.

Judge Miles receives no pension for his service. The pension plan went into effect two years after he left office at the age of 70. His office in the Enterprise building also serves as a home base for his son who is associated with a Grand Rapids law firm.

Full House Attends CHS Senior Play

A full house greeted the opening of "Pride and Prejudice," a three-act seven-scene play based on the Jane Austen novel, Thursday night in Holland High School auditorium produced by the senior class of Christian High School.

The play which spanned about three months in the Victorian period in England is the story of three sisters and their mother's sharp concern for getting husbands for them.

Despite an overlong production (over three hours) the audience was loyal and responsive. Action was probably slowed in the transition of the practice stage to the large auditorium stage, plus insistence on proper diction which is part and parcel of the Victorian period. Costumes, sets and props were well selected for the large cast of 25.

Diane Kiekintveld as the second daughter was the central figure in a plot of pride and prejudice, playing opposite David Vande Vusse, both snobbish and noble.

Diane De Mots as the mother obsessed with seeing that her three daughters did not end up old maids provided a good share of the humor of the play, and had some of the best lines, to wit: "If it were left to the men, all women would be old maids." Her constant concern over the estate going to a relative since she had no sons brought a wry humor in frequent allusions to "after you are dead" not fully appreciated by the husband, Karl Bratt.

The other sisters were played by Kathy Prins and Vondale Visser, and their respective heart interests by William Bulthuis and Roger Boyd.

Miss Gayle Bruggink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bruggink, will represent the local Christian Reformed Church on the SWIM program at Chester, N. J. this summer.

Mrs. Russel Hirdes is a patient at Holland Hospital. She submitted to tests and observations during the past week.

David P. Hensley returned to his home here following a two week stay in Chicago. During his absence, Mrs. Hensley suffered severe burns to her hands. She was taken to Zeeland Hospital, treated and released.

NO ISSUE, NO SOLUTION

Governor Romney has at long last made an unequivocal statement about the Vietnam war. He had been under some fire to make his position on this all-important problem clear. Now that he had ample time to give the matter deeper consideration he takes a stand substantially like that of the administration. In a way we are glad about this because it means that the Vietnam debacle should not become an issue in the 1968 presidential campaign.

But even if the governor has kept the problem out of the realm of partisan politics, he has not been able to propose any startling solution to the difficulty, either. What he really suggests is that we do everything necessary to win the war and in the meantime look for ways of bringing about a peaceful conclusion. Perhaps this is the only practical attitude to take. And yet we are somewhat disappointed that neither Governor Romney nor any other of our political leaders has been able to suggest anything more effective.

We stand now about where we did before the Governor made his speech except that now we know that the war should not become a political football. At the same time, we are no nearer to a solution of our most pressing problem.

Sunday School Lesson

Sunday, April 16
Peter's Sermon at Pentecost
Acts 2:22-24, 32-39
By C. P. Dame

Very likely we can all remember listening to or reading a great sermon. Most of us forget the sermons we hear but if we are regular churchgoers we will recall a sermon that made a deep impression on us. This lesson tells us about a sermon that got results—conversions, not a few but three thousand! The theme of this sermon is — Jesus is the Messiah.

I. The Old Testament tells about the death and resurrection of Jesus. "Ye men of Israel, hear these words"—Peter, a fisherman, an apostle who once denied Jesus and forsook Jesus when he should have stood by Him, spoke these words to a crowd of people, amazed by what they were seeing. The Holy Spirit had come upon the disciples. Their conduct made the people wonder. Some said that they were full of new wine. Peter refuted that by saying that on festive days Jews did not taste anything until after the morning service which was held at nine. Then Peter gave the explanation. The Old Testament prophecies, in Joel 2:28-32a, in Psalms 16:8-11 and 110:1 were being fulfilled before their eyes. The Holy Spirit had come upon the disciples!

Peter preached Christ to the puzzled people. First he told them about His death—they had killed Jesus. But God's hand was also in the death of Jesus for He was "delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God." Peter speaks of the deeds of men and the sovereign will of God and both played a part in the death of Jesus.

"This Jesus hath God raised up, whereof we are all witnesses," Peter pointed out that the Old Testament in Psalm 16:8-11, foretold the resurrection of Jesus—Him they had crucified but God raised up and made both Lord and Christ. During the forty days after the resurrection Jesus taught the disciples the Scriptures which tell about Him. And the Holy Spirit now enlightened the minds of the apostles so that they saw the Scriptures in a new way.

The call to repentance is ever timely. "Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their hearts." It is not enough to reach the minds, hearts must also be moved. These troubled hearers asked, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" It is encouraging when this question is asked.

Peter had an answer to this important question. "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Peter told them to change their minds about sin, God and Christ. Many accepted the words of Peter and repented.

Many people hope and pray for a revival. Look at the way a revival took place in Jerusalem. First there was much prayer by the disciples. In addition there was the exposition of the Scriptures and the preaching of Christ and courageous witnessing. The results—conversions! Let us follow the pattern set, for we desperately need a revival in the church—not church mergers which have never led to a revival.

HOLLAND MOTOR EXPRESS, INC. General Offices, Holland, Michigan

THANK YOU, MRS. BEQUETTE—More than 80 fifth and sixth graders of Thomas Jefferson School, armed with rakes, swarmed over Huldah Bequette's huge yard Friday afternoon in a cleanup program in the form of a thank-you for coasting down her hill in wintertime for many years.

Youngsters Say 'Thank You'

"They did a fine job, and I even picked up a yard boy to work this summer!"

Huldah Bequette, who lives in the big house at 577 Michigan Ave., was more than a little touched when 83 fifth and sixth graders of Thomas Jefferson School, marched to her home Friday afternoon to rake her lawn as a gesture of appreciation for coasting down her hill for many years.

"They were so cute and so earnest, I had to cry," Mrs. Bequette who is the city hostess for Holland said.

She treasures a letter signed by all the children which was solemnly delivered to her.

It reads: "Dear Mrs. Bequette: Since you have let children use your yard every winter for the last 10 years, our school is thanking you by means of raking your yard. We are also doing this because we would like to have more of helping others going on in the world today. We have around 80 fifth and sixth graders who are participating in this project. We will attempt to do a good job because of all your kindness. Sincerely," And then followed two pages of signatures.

"Some even came to me afterwards to thank me for letting them rake my yard," Mrs. Bequette said. "I couldn't hold back the tears. I'd call this a real happening. That's the newest thing going on these days." One of the youngsters was hired to do her yard work this summer.

Several lost articles including some stocking caps were found in the cleanup. Also hauled away by the youngsters were a number of weather beaten cartons youngsters used to slide down the hill.

Police provided an escort as the youngsters marched from the school to the Bequette home. The entire company was singing as the youngsters entered the big yard.

Youngsters have gravitated to the Bequette home to coast down the hill for many, many years. Longtimers refer to the property as the Ray Nies home. Nies, who died several years ago, was Mrs. Bequette's father.

Mrs. Bouman Will Head New Hope Society

The newly organized Holland Chapter of the American Recorder Society, which met Wednesday evening at Hope College, elected Mrs. John L. Bouman as its first president.

Other officers are Jon V. Anderson, chapter representative; Mrs. Paul Robinson, secretary; Claus J. Bushouse, treasurer; and Michael Meyer, librarian.

The Holland Chapter is the third such chapter in the State of Michigan. Ann Arbor had the first and Detroit the second, according to a November 1966 ARS report. A nucleus of Hope faculty members made possible the formation of the local chapter.

Last year the American Recorder Society had 55 chapters in the U. S., Canada and Mexico. In addition to Michigan, four other states have three or more chapters: California, New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

The American Recorder Society has presently some 2,300 members.

Home and School Group Has Meet At St. Francis

The St. Francis de Sales Home and School Association held the season's final meeting Thursday in the school cafeteria with the president, Gary Bartlett, conducting the session.

Bartlett announced the project for the year, acquiring uniforms for the school band, was nearing completion. The children will have them in time for the Tulip Time parade.

Schools Select Themes For Tulip Time Parade

Plans are rolling along for the big children's parade during Tulip Time.

Twenty-five local schools already have selected parade themes this year and are working on projects in school. Themes follow flowers, windmills, Delft ware, Dutch architecture, famous Dutch artists, Dutch literature, etc.

These themes are developed from the first grade through the sixth.

This year, eight West Ottawa elementary schools are working together on a new theme of heraldic designs, symbolic of family history, family business or governmental emblems.

Last year, Eastview Christian School followed a new theme of the Dutch Royal Family.

Close to 5,000 elementary school children march in this parade wearing colorful Dutch costumes and displaying handmade items. There also will be 16 bands and some tv personalities.

Water Pollution Specialist Says Cooperation Needed

Speaking before members, guests and visitors to the Holland Garden Club on Thursday afternoon, Chester Harvey of the Department of Conservation and District Engineer of the Water Resources Commission, startled his audience when he said "the largest single contributor to water pollution in the state was the city of Holland and surrounding areas."

He said the Black River Basin which incorporates 252 square miles in the southern part of Ottawa County, including the townships of Park, Holland Blendon and Jamestown, and the cities of Holland and Zeeland, was indeed in very critical state.

Harvey opened his talks by explaining the Water Pollution law which was enacted in 1945 and has been amended several times, as late as 1966. The law consists of five parts, those who make up the commission, unlawful pollution, hearing appeals, require an application for using water, and law enforcement.

He spoke on some of the amendments and how they strengthened the law. At present Michigan has one of the strongest water pollution laws in the country.

He told how industry pollutes the rivers and streams, and how raw sewage has in the past been a big contributor to pollution. Today all cities, townships and villages are held responsible for their raw sewage treatment.

In areas where a sewer disposal plant is needed, a city can issue bonds to correct their problem. Other cities will have to connect up with existing plants in nearby areas. There will be no more roadside and ditch type drainages. In 1956, 114 communities were called in because of inferior sewage system. Pollution has killed wild life, fish and game.

The state sets water quality standards, and it takes many man hours to complete surveys and analyze samples before a conclusion can be arrived at. Taken in consideration is what specific water areas are used for. If it is for agriculture, industry or recreation, varying standards are needed.

Harvey also told of the work that has been done in the Macatawa area. They did an intensive waste survey, sampled the river water and found nutrients the cause of algae and pollution. They also sampled 12 streams, several sewers, drains in the area and admitted that there is much to be done. To combat pollution it will take the cooperation of city, industry and individuals he said.

Mrs. Paul Mc Ilwain, president of the Garden Club introduced Miss Danson and Mrs. Stuart Pados introduced the speaker. Following the talk dessert-tea was served. Mrs. J.

TIME TO SPARE — James Bielby of 3438 Butternut Dr. stands surrounded by some of the more than 170 clocks he has collected during the 10 years he has been restoring and accumulating antique time pieces. The clocks in Bielby's collection range in age from about 60 or 70 years old to more than 150 years old. One of the rare collection is the 150-year-old, hand-carved shelf clock (left rear) which formerly hung in an English castle. (Sentinel photo)

Holland Teacher Collects, Restores Antique Clocks

James Bielby, of 3438 Butternut Dr., is a man with time on his hands.

For 10 years Bielby has been collecting and restoring old clocks and now has more than 170 of the time pieces ticking away on shelves at his home.

With very few exceptions, Bielby's clocks are all more than 60 or 70 years old. Many are more than 100 years old, and some are 150 years old or older.

Bielby is a school teacher by profession. He is head teacher at Lakewood School where he has taught for the last 14 years. "Everyone needs a hobby," Bielby said. "You can't sit around and watch television all the time. You have to do something constructive with your spare time."

Bielby's hobby of collecting and restoring antique clocks actually started years ago when his mother gave him a watch which his great grandfather had owned.

The watch, made in Manchester, England, more than 200 years ago, has been restored to perfect operating condition, and Bielby has the original jewelry papers with the beautiful old time piece.

Bielby turned to collecting clocks, however, when he discovered that many old watches, while interesting and beautiful, were too difficult or well nigh impossible to restore to operating condition.

Clocks, Bielby found, he could restore himself, adding to the pleasure of collecting.

"It is a big thrill," Bielby said, "to take an old clock — dirty and falling to pieces — put it together, push the pendulum and watch it run."

In most cases, when Bielby acquires an old clock, it is necessary for him to refinish the cases and to repair the works to running condition. All 170 clocks in his collection are in running order.

He studies each clock he acquires as much as possible and gains as much information as he needs to restore the clock to its original shape. Each case is refinished as closely as possible to the way it looked when it left the factory 100 or 150 years ago.

In each case, however, he attempts to leave as much of the original painting or design as possible. All the clock works are original works, and in cases where replacement parts are necessary, he acquires parts from antique clock specialists.

Bielby who "can't resist buying a clock," hopes to expand his collection to 200 clocks by the end of this year. After he reaches this goal, he said, he intends to specialize more on single types of clocks.

Of particular interest to Bielby is what he calls "one of a kind" clocks. These date back to the days of clockworkers' guilds when apprentices were required to make a single clock as a sort of examination.

These clocks were submitted to the guild for approval in an effort for the apprentice to acquire his craftsman's license. These clocks, Bielby said, were unique. No two were exactly alike.

The difficulty in collecting this type of clock is that they are very rare.

Bielby's present collection includes clocks of American, French and German make. One is a Canadian-made clock.

His oldest is an American-made Seth Thomas clock patented by Eli Terry. The clock is more than 150 years old and is driven by wooden works. It has a hand-painted dial and is in operating condition.

One of the rare clocks in his collection is a 150-year-old shelf clock, hand-carved, which came from an English castle.

His personal favorite is a 100-year-old pendulum wall clock made in France which Bielby completely refinished and restored to perfect running order. The clock, which has a built-in thermometer and barometer, hangs on the wall in Bielby's living room.

But his "prize possession," Bielby said, is a massive grandfather clock built in 1910 by the Colonial Manufacturing Co. of Zeeland. While not his oldest clock by a long way, the stately hall clock occupies a corner of the Bielby living room, chiming out the time each quarter hour with its Canterbury and Westminster chimes.

During his 10 years of collecting clocks, Bielby has acquired clocks from all over the eastern half of the nation. He said he has obtained many from the New England and other eastern states, a great number from Michigan and some from as far west as Missouri.

While most of Bielby's clocks are somewhat standard time pieces, he does have a few novelty clocks in his collection. There is a cuckoo clock that plays the "Emperor Waltz" on the hour, one of the first "Baby Ben" alarm clocks made — dating back to 1911, and a 90-year-old German lantern alarm clock that awakens a sleeper to a music box tune.

Bielby, who is a member of the National Association of Watch and Clock Collectors, has a word of advice for other people who may find themselves with time on their hands.

Whether or not they collect clocks is unimportant — the important thing is that they become actively interested in some type of hobby and put to good use the extra time they do have.

CHECK DEER — Members of the citizens advisory committee on deer conditions examine a dead deer in the Baraga district last weekend. Lewey Michmerhuizen of Holland, who took this photo and is a member of the group which toured the Baraga district, reported seven dead deer were found, but none of them died of starvation. Michmerhuizen and Vern Edwards, both directors of the Holland Fish and Game Club, are members of the advisory committee which aids the Michigan Department of Conservation.

Local Men Say Michigan Deer Had Good Winter

Vern Edwards and Lewey Michmerhuizen of Holland, who are members of the citizens advisory committee on deer conditions, have reached the conclusion that deer had a pretty good winter in the two areas of the state they are helping to check.

The two men are among more than 200 residents throughout the state who are examining deer conditions for the Michigan Department of Conservation. The advisory committees in eight areas of the state complete reports for the department. The reports are taken into consideration by the department when they determine the number of antlerless deer hunting permits for the state. Generally, if there is sufficient food for the deer over the winter then the department limits the number of antlerless permits.

Michmerhuizen is on the advisory committee checking the Baraga district in the western portion of the Upper Peninsula. The committee toured portions of the area last Saturday and found only seven dead deer none of which had died of starvation. The group saw about 200 deer.

Edwards' group is checking the Cadillac region which covers an area running roughly from Muskegon to Traverse City. The group will make a tour of certain areas in the region Saturday.

The tentative conclusion reached on another tour in early March was that there was plenty of food available in just about every area of the Cadillac region, Edwards said. He added this was primarily due to a lot of cedar trees being blown down in a storm in November. The toppled cedars apparently have provided a good supply of food, Edwards said.

Traffic Analysis Points To Need of Revised Plan

A traffic analysis aimed at one well-engineered street transportation system for Holland is outlined in a report of street traffic and parking as prepared by Adrian H. Koert of East Lansing, traffic and parking consultant.

The report was presented to City Council Wednesday night.

The report aims at the best possible use of traffic control devices and regulations in a carefully developed system of major traffic routes (often called major street system). It points out that Holland possesses the potential for an excellent street transportation system.

It pointed to a 1963 plan drawn by the State Highway Department calling for Pine and River Aves. as a north-south one-way pair, the development of 16th and 17th Sts. as an east-west one-way pair and the development of Seventh and Ninth Sts. as an east-west one-way pair to provide circulation around the downtown district.

"What is needed at this time is a consolidation of many ideas and plans into one system of major traffic streets. This system should provide adequate routes for both automobiles and trucks. A well-engineered network will better serve industry, business, schools and recreation areas while it helps to preserve residential neighborhoods."

Koert's summary:

1. The city should consolidate its ideas and plans for individual improvements into one well-engineered street transportation system. Various methods can be used to achieve the desired goal of safe and efficient movement consistent with the goal of maintaining a pleasant, prosperous community.

2. The city must find a better means of protecting residential streets from the hazards of through traffic. The use of stop and yield signs for this purpose is not effective and probably is self-defeating.

3. Sufficient traffic data must be collected to provide a sound basis for future improvements. Very little data exists on Holland's street traffic. The city never has had a comprehensive origin and destination study. Traffic volume counts exist for only a limited number of streets, principally state highways or streets adjacent to the state route.

The city has maintained good traffic accident records which are filed according to the location of the accident. This permits studies relating the effects of traffic control devices and the street system to the traffic accident problem in Holland. (Detailed recommendations to be submitted in separate report.)

4. When data is available, detailed plans should be developed for improvements needed on major traffic routes.

5. When a system of efficient major routes is a reality, consideration may be given to plans for diverting traffic from neighborhood streets.

The report contains little about parking, since these problems on major traffic routes will be considered in plans for the improvement of these routes. It noted that parking is not a major problem in the central business district.

"The real problem in achieving a safe and efficient street transportation system is that the residents of Holland must make choices. Some travel patterns may have to be changed. As the city grows, inaction will increase the severity of problems. Delay usually increases the cost of alleviating traffic problems. In moving ahead vigorously at this time, a good traffic system can be developed relatively easily. This will provide better conditions for drivers and pedestrians, help to promote continued prosperity in the community and make it a better place to live."

In his six-page report, Koert notes that the street system of Holland is similar to many midwestern cities in its grid of east-west and north-south streets, with most rights of way 66 feet and the majority of pavements 30 to 34 feet.

He believes Holland can obtain an improved street system more easily than many communities since the basic street system is adequate for the purpose. Improvements could include street widenings, but this is a costly undertaking and should be used sparingly. Less costly measures are parking prohibitions and the use of one-way pairs of streets.

"One-way streets are not the great bugaboo some people suppose them to be. Many traffic engineers believe them to be preferable in a well-designed system to two-way streets. They are safer since all traffic moves in one direction and are more efficient since there is no opposing traffic to conflict with left turns."

The report also noted that in the core area of Holland, bounded by Graafschap Rd., Fairbanks and Lincoln Aves., 32nd St. and Lake Macatawa, 269 of 330 intersections are controlled by either a traffic signal, a stop sign or a yield sign.

"The overuse of stop and yield signs does not accomplish the intended purpose of protecting residential areas from the hazards of through traffic. It may have the opposite effect, particularly if a system of effective traffic routes does not exist. This appears to be the case in Holland," the report reads, pointing to the need of a carefully developed system of major traffic routes.

Netherlands Assignment Given Sentinel Reporter

Two area newspaper reporters representing The Holland Evening Sentinel and The Grand Rapids Press will be among 20 American journalists attending official dedication ceremonies of Schiphol Airport at Amsterdam, the Netherlands, later this month.

Cornelia (Cornie) Van Voorst, long time reporter for the Sentinel, and Maurice De Jonge of the Grand Rapids Press will be guests of the Netherlands National Tourist Office for a week preceding the official opening April 28.

In making the announcement, Willard C. Wichers, midwest director for the Netherlands Information Service which is coordinating some of the plans, pointed out that it was appropriate that representatives of newspapers serving a large number of Americans of Dutch descent report on facilities of this huge international airport.

Wichers and his staff are assisting Onno Leebaert, director of the Netherlands National Tourist office in New York, on the United States arrangements.

Other newspapers represented in the group of 20 writers are the New York Times, Los Angeles Examiner, San Francisco Chronicle, Christian Science Monitor, Newark Evening News, Philadelphia Inquirer, Long Island Press, New York World Journal Tribune, New York Journal of Commerce, Hartford, Conn., Times, Montreal Press, Montreal Star, Southam News Service of Ottawa, Ontario, Toronto Telegram and Quebec Le Soleil (The Sun).

Plans call for boarding a KLM plane Friday, April 21, at Kennedy International Airport in New York and flying directly to Schiphol Airport. Miss Van Voorst will return April 29 but De Jonge will remain an extra week.

The week's events call for visiting The Hague, the seat of the Dutch government; Rotterdam with its remarkable Europoort, the world's busiest harbor; a trip through the famed bulb-fields (tulips will be in bloom) and the Keukenhof gardens, a tour along the canals of Amsterdam and visits to medieval and modern attractions.

April 27 will be devoted to a tour of the new Schiphol, followed by the official dedication the next day with royalty present. A farewell dinner that night in Amsterdam will have Prince Claus, husband of Crown Princess Beatrix, as guest of honor.

Schiphol Airport is located six miles from the center of Amsterdam and 30 miles from The Hague. It has been enlarged on a spectacular scale to serve Holland as the air gateway of Europe and is connected by a fine network of highways. Passengers that can be handled in the new terminal will reach approximately 5,000,000 in 1975, compared with 2,100,000 at present.

Four centuries ago, this area which is 13 feet below sea level was an expanse of inland water separating Amsterdam from Haarlem, a distance of 10 miles. At that time Amsterdam and Haarlem were at war against each other, Amsterdam under Spanish rule and Haarlem defended stubbornly for William the Silent.

An unusual battle in which the lake suddenly froze and the Spaniards found themselves attacked by wild Dutch soldiers on ice skates still stands as one of the most glorious chapters in Dutch history.

In the middle of the 19th century, Dutch hydraulic engineers started work draining the lake and the polder was declared dry July 1, 1852.

The present airport was born in 1917 when it became the headquarters of a military air arm. Then it gradually grew after the founder of KLM, Albert Plesman, made it the home of the world's first scheduled airline.

The blaze, which started in the kitchen, gutted the kitchen and a back room of the one-story wood frame house, according to Holland firemen. There was also extensive smoke damage in other rooms in the house.

The fire started as Bob Scholten of 130 East 21st St. was installing counter topping using contact cement. A gas water heater in the kitchen went on igniting the cement. Scholten attempted to smother the flames with a rug, but was unsuccessful.

Scholten and Maatman escaped from the house without injury.

Concert Membership Campaign in Progress

The Holland Community Concert Association started its annual membership enrollment for the coming season with a dinner in Warm Friend Hotel, Monday evening. About 100 division chairmen and campaign volunteers were present. The week-long campaign will end at 6 p.m. Saturday.

Robert Gooding, campaign chairman, presided, the invocation was given by Dr. Henry ten Hoor.

Gooding introduced member workers from Fennville, Ganges, Zeeland and Grand Haven in addition to those from Holland. He pointed out that the surrounding areas are looking increasingly to Holland as the cultural center of the area. One of the factors in this trend is the fine concerts brought to the area by the Holland Community Concert Association.

Dr. ten Hoor urged all volunteers to report daily to the Civic Center headquarters. He said that from now on it was up to the individual volunteer workers to carry the ball, and that the success of the campaign depended entirely on them. He announced that there would be a meeting in the Green room at the Civic Center Friday evening for the board of directors and all division chairmen. He commented that in almost every place, except Holland, concert membership had increased in price. With reciprocity concerts in Grand Rapids and Muskegon, Holland Community Concert members may attend 14 concerts.

Miss Catherine Lewer, New York representative of Community Concerts, gave several reasons for promoting Community Concerts: the personal pleasure in live performances that nothing else can supply, for community and civic pride in bringing fine music to our local audiences, emphasizing that members are truly members not just underwriters of the concerts. Miss Lewer showed interesting color slides of Lincoln Center in New York City.

Nyland-Wojahn Rites Read

Mr. and Mrs. Warren John Nyland

Miss Susan Ann Wojahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Wojahn, 672 Lugers Rd., became the bride of Warren John Nyland, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Nyland, 852 Lakewood Blvd., in First Presbyterian Church on March 10.

The Rev. William Burd performed the ceremony in a setting of blue and white daisies and carnations. Miss Fran Van't Hoff was organist and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Carl Daily.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sleeveless sheath gown trimmed with garlands of venice lace flowers and a front panel of sheer organza. A matching coat with chapel train had bell sleeves. A matching circlet of venice lace flowers held tiers of sheer illusion veil. Her bouquet of white and blue daisies was centered with blue carnations.

The bride's attendants were Miss Libbie Hansen, maid of honor, Miss Jan Van Aalsburg and Miss Pat Gardzinski, bridesmaids. They all wore similar gowns of blue and white sheer nylon over taffeta and lace and circlets of blue daisies. Their flowers were bouquets of blue and white daisies.

Dave Kalkman was best man. Ushers were Len Everest, Jerry Koeman and Jerry Van Oosterhout. Maurie Wernert was flower girl and Greg Johnson, ringbearer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Wojahn were master and mistress of ceremonies at the reception held in the church rooms. Mrs. James Darrow poured coffee; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Voss, punch bowl; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson, gifts; Miss Pam Johnson, guest book.

After a two-week trip to Florida, the newlyweds are in their new home at 852½ Lakewood Blvd. The new Mrs. Nyland attended Holland High School and Chic University of Cosmetology and is employed at Julie's House of Beauty. The groom attended West Ottawa High School and is employed at Tulip City Blacktop.
