Additional Local.

WE call the attention of ladies to the advertisement in this paper of "Dr. Mar-chisi's Uterine Catholicon." We have in our possession indisputable evidence of its worth, and we recommend the afflicted to try it. This remedy differs from quack nostrums in the following respects: 1st.
It is prepared by a regular physician; 2d.
It is not recommended for all diseases, but only for a particular class, peculiar to females; 3d. It is recommended and used in practice by many physicians, one of whom at least is well known to the people of New Bedford. 47-ly.

Lippincott's Magazine.

Lippincott's Magazine for May opens with an article on the "Ranches and Rancheros of the far west," by George Rex Buckman, which is beautifully illustrated, and, besides giving a lively description of pastoral life in Wyoming Territory and other parts of the Northwest, offers much information in regard to the resources and attractiveness of the country and the extent to which it is being peopled by a superior class of settlers—men of education and refinement—from England and from the Eastern States. "The Land of Cotton," by William L. Murfree, Sr., is a still more instructive paper, and one which will be read with particular interest at a time when public attention has been drawn to some of the risks attending the production of the great staple of the South west. In an article on "Sea-Serpents" C.
F. Holder, of the American Museum of Natural History, revives the testimony of observers in regard to the actual existence of such creatures in connection with recent discoveries of fossil remains and in the light of scientific analogies. William H. Rideing writes with knowledge and impartiality of "Things in Which We Differ" from the English, showing the points in which each nation has the advantage.
Edward C. Bruce has an excellent and suggestive paper on "Our Flower-Gardens," and Miss P. D. Natt gives an entertaining sketch of "A May Day on the Simplon." In the way of fiction, besides the serial, "Stephen Guthrie," which loses nothing of its interest as it approaches the conclusion, there are three short stories.
The poetry, by Frances L. Mace, Howard Clydon, and Charlotte Fiske Bates, is appropriate to the season, and the "Gossip" and literary notices should not be overlooked.

St. Nicholas for May is a phenomenal issue in regard to both the quality and the number of its illustrations. There are, in all, sixty-eight pictures, eleven of them full-page engravings.

The most fully illustrated article is that
by Mr. C. L. Brace, Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, New York, on "Wolfrened Children," the waifs and strays of humanity. One of its twenty pictures is a full-page engraving of a New York boot-black, from a painting by W. M. Chase.
And full-page reproductions of three of Correggio's masterpieces accompany Mrs.
Clement's "Art and Artists" story.

The electric light forms the subject of a timely descriptive paper, with many pictures, showing the appearance of the lamps by day and night, and under various circumstances of weather.

Sophie Swett opens the number with a very amusing story, "Why the Clock Struck One;" "Donald and Dorothy" and
"The Northern Myths" are continued in instalment of unusual interest.

"Play day at Mentor" is a pleasant reminiscence of a day's visit, at their Ohio home, with the younger sons of President Garfield during the latter's fatal illness
last summer.

Then there are the charmingly illustrated poems by H. H. Celia Thaxter, and Kate Kellogg; and the historical legend of "The Origin of Dantzic," with its three spirited pictures; another children's comedy, by E. S. Brooks; and as many more stories sketches, verses, and pictures (a page full of the latter devoted to the baby elephant), which combine to make a number brimming over with entertainment for thousands of readers.

MR. F. G. Delancy, of Norfolk, Va.,
writes: "It gives me great pleasure to experience once more that gloriously good feeling of perfect health. I was buried in despair, my back constantly pained me,
and from head to foot I felt thoroughly ill.
I could not walk across the yard without fatigue. Nothing I ate agreed with me.
Doctors could do me no good. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters. They have given me perfect health and strength."

THE May Century presents the third of the five covers designed by Mr. Vedder:
the chief items of which are the figure of a young girl (Spring) with sunlight, flying bird, and a frame of blossoms, the three appropriate signs of the zodiac being combined as before in a medallion at the left,
and the blossoms are carried up into the borders of the title. The general effect is animated, and the composition of the page is well arranged.

The emphasis thus laid upon the outside has its counterpart in the table of contents. Here, and also accompanying their several contributions (an innovation which despite its drawbacks, seems to be called for, and is to be permanent) we find the names of Thomas Carlyle, James Russell

Lowell, John G. Saxe, E. C. Stedman, W.
D. Howells, Mrs. F. H. Burnett, Miss
Constance F. Woolson, "Uncle Remus"
Richard Grant White, Emma Lazarus,
Arnold Forbes, H. C. Bunner, Edward Everett Hale, Lang and Gosse, the English poets, and Tooker and Saxton, two promising writers among the younger poets of this country.

THE new Sunday-Closing law of Ohio went into effect on Sunday, April 23, and, with the exception of Cincinnati, was quite generally observed in the large cities. It is estimated that in Cincinnati about 1,000 saloons were kept open as usual for the sale of beer. No arrests were made, but the police were instructed by the Mayor to take the names of all persons violating the law, with the understanding that warrants would be issued for their arrest. In Toledo the saloonkeepers have fished up an old, forgotten statute, which has for years been a dead letter, forbidding numerous kinds of labor and business on Sunday, and will bring it to the notice of the Police Commissioners and demand that the violators of this law be prosecuted. Under its provisions warrants may be sworn out against drivers of street cars, of omnibuses, of horses and carriages in funeral processions, of carriages in which the wealthier among church-goers ride to and from divine service, and so on....A large district in the southern part of St. Louis was flooded by the bursting of the main city sewer. The flames destroyed five solid squares of business buildings, leaving only three rows of buildings standing in the business portion of the town. The loss is roughly put at $400,000, and the insurance at $150,000. The fire started at a little before 2 o'clock, and in less than an hour the worst had been done. The flames leaped from building to building, across streets and over open lots, like the water pours over Niagara.

GENERAL.

A NEW YORK telegram of the 19th inst. says: "Seven ocean steamships landed 6,338 immigrants at Castle Garden yesterday. This makes a total of over 41,000 landed this month. Officers at Castle Garden believe that the entire number of immigrants during April will reach 70,000, and that next month it will be fully 100,000. Those who arrived yesterday are principally Germans, Hollanders, Russians, Swedes and Irish. KANSAS has been unusually blessed with favorable conditions for a bountiful crop this year. The mild winter and heavy spring rains have been of incalculable advantage to the farmers, and, from reports obtained from twenty-one counties in the State, it is evident that the outlook for winter and spring wheat, corn and grass, and the prospect for the farmer and stock-raiser generally, was never so flattering as now. In Wisconsin there is a fine prospect for winter wheat. There is a large area of it, and with few exceptions the fields are looking in prime condition. In Arkansas, a recent telegram from Little Rock reports, the outlook is favorable to the largest and best crop in the history of the State.

Mrs. Hurlbut declined a public funeral at the hands of the Government of Chili, but caused the remains to be placed in the vault of Henry Meigs, at Valparaiso. Wild rumors as to the cause of the Minister's death forced the authorities to insist upon a post-mortem examination, which developed aneurism of the heart. In the case of Hallet Kilbourne against John G. Thompson, to recover damages for imprisonment ordered by the House of Representatives while Thompson was Sergeant-at-Arms of that body, the jury returned a verdict for $100,000 in favor of the plaintiff. The case rested upon the decision of the Supreme Court that Congress has no right to imprison a witness for refusal to answer a question. Thompson under the ruling had no defense. Upon him devolved the duty of executing the decree of the House, and in suing him Kilbourne virtually made the House a defendant to the action. The jury were instructed to bring in a verdict for the plaintiff and to regulate the amount of damages in due proportion to the suffering sustained by his feelings, person and property on account of the imprisonment.

Charges are made that the jury were prejudiced in Kilbourne's favor.

JESSE JAMES.

His Exploits as an Outlaw and Night-Hider Related by His Widow—A Courtship Carried on Amid Great Difficulties—The Wandering and Precarious Existence of the Pair After Their Marriage.

[Kansas City Telegram to the Chicago Times.]

Mrs. Jesse James relates the following story of her husband's career as a bandit. She is the daughter of highly respected parents, who have lived in or near Kansas City for over thirty years, and, as she remarked, she had lived here "ever since she could remember, until she married Jesse." Their courtship was a highly romantic one. They were first cousins, and their betrothal was bitterly opposed by her parents. She was sentimental, however, and expressed her determination to follow Jesse's fortunes wherever they might lead, and to prevent an elopement the old people consented to the engagement. This was in 1869, just after Jesse had been made an outlaw under the civil code and a price set upon his person. Their courtship lasted five years, during which time Jesse frequently visited his inamorata at the residence of her parents in this city, and several times went to his mother's, Mrs. Samuels, at Kearney, to see him by appointment. During one of these visits the two were together in the yard at the Samuels residence when a party of five men, led by one of Pinkerton's detectives, went to the house, and all the time they were searching the place Jesse lay on the ground within twenty feet of the door under the shadow of a rose-bush, while his affianced was secreted in a fence corner. Mrs. James says that Jesse has frequently said since that if he had killed a couple of those men it might have saved his step-brother's life and his mother's arm, but he refrained because he was afraid his sweetheart might be injured in the melee. They were married April 24, 1874, at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. B. Browder, of Kearney, the Rev. William James, a cousin, officiating, and the following month they went to Sherman, Tex., where a sister of Jesse lives. There Mrs. James passed as a cousin of Jesse's sister, without giving any particular name, and he was in and out of the city constantly, because he was fearful of being followed by the officers for the Hot Springs robbery, which was committed in January of that year, and the Gad's Hill robbery, which occurred in the same month. The first of these he was not in, so Mrs. James says, but admits he was in the latter, and as both were charged to him he deemed it wise to act as though he really had been there. At this point Mrs. James took occasion to denounce the reported estimate of Jesse's stealings, which, it true, would have made him a rich man at his death. She declares that, so far from having had at any one time $600,000, he never had that sum in all his life, putting every cent into the calculation.

The Gad's Hill affair netted about $2,000, of which he received one-fifth, and upon that they went to Texas for their honeymoon. Things grew hot in Sherman, and they moved to Dallas in September, where they remained until the winter of 1874 and 1875, when Mrs. James returned to Kansas City and visited her sister, Mrs. McBride, and other relatives for several months, while Jesse went on a scout. It was about this time that the Corinth, Miss., and Muncie, Kan., robberies were committed, in both of which Jesse participated, but the amount secured his wife says she does not know. When he returned, however, he had plenty of money, and they then moved to Edgefield, Tenn., a small village near Nashville, and remained there until the fall, when they removed to Baltimore. It was in Edgefield that the boy who now begins to look so much like his father was born, and Mrs. James declares the child was but 9 days' old when the Huntingdon (W. Va.) robbery took place, and that, instead of being there, Jesse was with her and the baby in Nashville at that time, living under the name of J. D. Howard. They removed to Baltimore in November, 1875, and remained there one year, or at least she did; but Jesse was away a good deal of the time, and she says she does not know where, except that he was at the Centennial one week, where he saw a great many people from Missouri whom he knew very well, but who did not know him. It was about this time that the Baxter Springs, Kan., and Ottumwa, Mo., robberies were perpetrated, but she disclaims all knowledge of Jesse's complicity in them. In speaking of the Huntingdon affair, Mrs. James backs up the assertion that Jesse was at Edgefield at that time, on the statement, which she says can be verified, that about that time he bought two car-loads of flour from a Nashville miller named O. F. O'Neil on speculation, and took it to Savannah, Ga., where he sold it under the assumed name of Howard. From Baltimore they again returned to Davidson county, Tenn., near Nashville, where they rented a small farm, and Jesse went into the fast-horse business. There they, or rather she, continued to live until March last. Among the horses which he owned during that time, and which have since made a record for themselves, were the colts Jim Skott and Jim Malone, the latter of which he sold to John Greenough, a druggist of Nashville, for $2,000, and which won two valuable purses in St. Louis the year after, under the name of Jim Greenough. During this time the noted bandit was also a delegate from this district to the Nashville Democratic Convention which nominated Gov. Porter and a State ticket. Mrs. James remained on the farm in Davis county during the first Glendale and Burlington raids (the Northfield one was made during their residence in Baltimore), and her girl was born during her husband's absence on one of these. She says that Jesse always came straight home after an affair of that kind and remained there until the hue and cry was over, and that, so far as they knew, he was never suspected, as he was known as a horse-trader and speculator, whose absence from home was not worthy of comment. They concluded in March of last year that, as the search for Jesse was getting more thorough, the safest place for them would be at home, and they accordingly returned to Kansas City, where they rented a house and lived from June 1 to Sept. 1 under the name of J. F. Jackson. It was in this house that the Blue Cut robbery was planned, and to which most of the men returned after the affair. There they remained hidden for more than a week, while the officers were scouring the eastern end of the county. Sept. 1 they removed, for fear that too long a residence in one place might result in discovery. The house was not in good repair, however, and they left in a month, fearing that it would blow over, as it almost did during a severe storm. They then removed to the street where they first lived, where they remained a month and two days. At the end of that time, something having occurred to arouse suspicion on Jesse's part, they removed to St. Joseph, where they lived under their former alias of Howard. There they moved but once until the final tragedy ended the robber chief's life. She did not attempt to defend her husband's crimes, but declared that he was charged with a thousand offenses he never committed, among which were the Kansas City exposition robbery, and various stage robberies in Colorado and Texas.

Garrett, who was taken from the jail at Greensburg, Ind., by a mob of masked men and hanged to the limb of a shade tree at the edge of the sidewalk near the jail. Garrett's neighbors concluded that justice had not been done in his case. He was known to have paid a poor, ignorant old negro $700 to murder John M. Walton, the husband of his paramour, but he obtained a change of venue to an adjoining county through the efforts of a "successful criminal lawyer," and was acquitted and sent forth a free man by an "unprejudiced" jury....A bundle of straw at Eau Claire, Wis., was ignited by sparks from a steamboat. ### The Care of Lace.

Valenciennes is the cheapest lace, in the end, for many reasons. It is made with a round, whole thread. Worn carefully, not daily, it can hardly be worn out. It can be washed any number of times; and, not so peculiar as the point or applique laces, the Mechlins, etc., all of which are much more fragile, it gives the soft effect of lace without attracting too much attention, so as to be recognized easily again. It is a very great mistake to keep laces (particularly Valenciennes, which is not at all injured by being washed) for years without washing. Many women believe that all lace is ruined by washing, and will keep some cherished bit of lace for years, turning yellow with age, and rotting with the dust it has accumulated till it really drops to pieces.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

Mr. Garland, from the Judiciary Committee, reported to the Senate, on the 13th, in answer to a resolution of inquiry, that a retired army officer can lawfully hold civil positions. The chair submitted a message from the President recommending an appropriation of $2,020,000 for closing the gaps in the levees of the Mississippi. A resolution was adopted calling for copies of correspondence between the American Minister in Madrid and the Spanish Secretary of State in regard to citizens of the United States condemned to death in Cuba. A bill was passed ratifying the agreement with the Crow Indians for the sale of a portion of their reservation in Montana for the Northern Pacific road. On the Mississippi and Missouri River Improvement bill Messrs. Frye and Harrison made adverse arguments. The Agricultural Appropriation bill was passed, setting aside $414,780. Mr. Plumb reported that the conference on the Postoffice Appropriation bill was unable to agree as to the amount for fast mails, and the subject was referred to the Appropriations Committee. In the House, Mr. O'Neill introduced a bill providing that all uncompleted railroad bridges across the Ohio river shall be union bridges. Mr. Hiseock reported a resolution appropriating $465,000 to supply the deficiency for printing and binding. Mr. Oalkins secured the taking up of the Utah contested-election case, on which there was some talk but no action. Mr. Kasson announced that debate on the Tariff bill will not be closed this week. Mr. Guenther secured the passage of a bill to regulate the carriage of passengers by sea. A communication from the Secretary of the Interior urged the establishment of an Indian training school on the Fort Ripley reservation in Minnesota. The President sent to both houses a special message showing his right to call a congress of nations, and asked to be informed of the sentiment of legislators in regard to convening an international gathering.

When the Mississippi River Improvement bill came up in the Senate, April 19, speeches were made by Messrs. Jonas, Garland and Frye. Mr. Miller reported the Chinese bill as passed by the House. Mr. Allison reported favorably the bill to permit the investment of the funds of the Iowa Agricultural College. There was considerable discussion on the bill providing for the sale of part of the reservation of the Omaha tribe. Mr. Sherman presented a petition by the Governor and Legislators of Ohio for liberal appropriations for the education of freedmen. Mr. Taylor, Chairman of the committee to audit the expenses, illness and death of President Garfield, submitted a bill and report. Among the claims passed and allowances made are the following: Mrs. Garfield, $50,000 (less the amount paid the late President on account of his salary); Dr. Bida, $25,000; Dr. Agnew, $15,000; Dr. Hamilton, $15,000; Dr. Keyburn, $10,000; Dr. Boynton, $10,000; Dr. Susan Edson, $10,000; William J. Crump, steward, $3,000; R. S. Jennings, for cooling apparatus, $1,000; Navy Department, expenses of fitting up cooling apparatus and expenses of the Marine Band, $2,782; William R. Speare, undertaker, $1,835; C. A. Benedict, coffin, etc., $887; Independent Ice Company, $1,516; H. L. Crawford, street sprinkling, $270; C. J. Jones, board, carriages, etc., Elberon, $1,092; C. T. Schmidt, 50 cents; H. W. Atwood, 75 cents. The employees of the Executive Mansion during the illness of President Garfield (thirty-nine in number) are allowed additional pay ranging from $875 to $120 each. Commendable mention is also made of Gen. Swann, Col. Rockwell, Stanley Brown and C. O. Rockwell, who, the report says, devoted their whole time during the President's illness to his comfort and service. The committee concludes by urging the passage of the bill agreed upon by the majority. Messrs. Blackburn, Springer and Lefevre submitted a minority report, in which they state that they oppose the bill on the ground that the allowances to physicians and others are excessive. Debate on the Utah contested-election case ensued, when the previous question was ordered. An hour was accorded to George Q. Cannon, who charged that Gov. Murray had defrauded him of his rights, and proceeded to defend the institution of polygamy. A resolution that neither Cannon nor Campbell is entitled to the seat was adopted without a division.

The Senate, at its session on April 20, passed bills for the sale of property belonging to the Soldiers' Home at Harrodsburg, Ky., of the post reservation of the Omaha Indians in Nebraska and of the Kickapoo lands in Kansas. The Senate also passed the joint resolution appropriating $180,000 to make up the deficiency in the funds available for carrying on the Government Printing Office. In response to an inquiry by Mr. Beck as to the cause of this large deficiency—$400,000 having previously been appropriated for the same purpose—Mr. Anthony made an explanation which disclosed the enormous extravagance committed by Congress in its orders for the printing of public documents, a large portion of which and their way to the junk-shops and dealers in paper stock. The President nominated Alphonso Taft, of Ohio, to be Minister to Austria; William L. Dayton, of New Jersey, to the Netherlands; and Nicholas Fish, of New York, to Belgium. John M. Francis, of New York, was named for Charge d'Affaires to Portugal, and Adam Badeau to be Consul General to Havana. The House passed the bill appropriating $100,000 for a public building at Frankfort, Ky. The Mississippi contested-election case was taken up, and, after debate, a resolution was adopted, deferring action until the return of Mr. Atherton, who represents the minority. On the Tariff Commission bill speeches were made by Messrs. Turner, Townsend and McKenzie. Mr. King introduced a bill appropriating $6,000,000 for the improvement or construction of Mississippi levees. The President transmitted to Congress a letter from the Mexican Minister, proposing the definition of the boundary line of the Rio Grande to the Pacific by the erection of durable monuments. The chief magistrate suggests that, in accepting the proposal, suitable provision be made for an adequate military force on the frontier to protect surveying parties.

Mr. Garland made a favorable report to the Senate, April 21, on the bill to permit retired army officers to hold civil positions in the Territories. Mr. Beck offered a resolution of inquiry into the character and cost of publication of the Census Bureau. A bill was passed for the manufacture of salt in Indian Territory. When the Mississippi River Improvement bill came up, arguments were made by Messrs. Vest, Harrison and Morgan. The consistency of Mr. Hoar caused Chairman Davis (Ill.) to call him to order in a decided manner. A resolution was adopted for the appointment of three Senators to investigate the charges against the internal-revenue officers in the Sixth district of North Carolina. Mr. Blair reported back the bill to aid in the establishment and temporary support of common schools. Mr. Butler reported a substitute for the Alaska bill, providing for government for that purchase. The House passed a bill firing the second Tuesday in October for the election of Congressmen West Virginia. For the bill to afford relief Congress and the executive department in investigation of claims against the Government. Mr. House offered a substitute by which claimants may file petitions in the Court of Claims, and that tribunal shall report the facts to either house. An evening session was held to consider pension bills, twenty of which were passed. Measures were adopted to give thirty condemned cannon for a monument to Gen. John Fulton Reynolds, twelve to commemorate the services of Oliver P. Morton, at Indianapolis, and to give to the Saratoga Association eight guns captured from Gen. Burgoyne.

A resolution was adopted by the House, at its session on April 22, requesting the Commissioner of Agriculture to report whether any portion of the country is adapted to the growth of the cinchona tree. On the bill for the judicial ascertainment of private claims, speeches were made by Messrs. Springer, Bragg and Stephens, and several amendments were defeated. A vote on the proposition to recommit the bill showed that no quorum was present. There was no session of the Senate.

A bill was passed by the Senate, at its session on April 24, to allot lands in severalty to Indians on various reservations, and extend the protection of the laws of States and Territories. Mr. Cockrell introduced a bill to facilitate the negotiation of bills of lading and to punish fraud therein. Mr. Morgan presented a measure to encourage closer commercial relations with South America, including a railway to Chili. The bill for a public building at Quincy, Ill., was favorably reported. Mr. George introduced a measure for distributing among the cotton States, to support common schools, the proceeds of the cotton tax now in the treasury. Mr. Cockrell presented a resolution for the appointment of a special commission to promote commercial intercourse with Central and South America. The House passed a bill appropriating $50,000 for the removal of obstructions from Hell Gate, New York. Mr. Buckner presented a resolution calling for information in regard to the Monetary Conference, and Mr. Cox a similar inquiry respecting the Congress of American Nations. Mr. Deschamps introduced a bill appropriating $1,000,000 to erect a Presidential mansion. Mr. Ford, by request, presented a scheme to issue $75,000,000 in treasury notes and expend it in improving the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers. A bill for a uniform system of bankruptcy was reported by Mr. Humphrey. A hot debate occurred on the measure to appoint 100 additional policemen for the District of Columbia, but the bill passed by 117 to 66.

TRAIN ROBBERY.

A Train of the Texas Pacific Road Attacked by Outlaws—Four Rangers Open Fire on the Robbers, Who Take to the Woods with Their Plunder.

DALLAS, TEXAS, April 22.

The Texas train-robbers have scored another signal victory. They came out of their rendezvous in the canyons and mountain fastnesses of the Upper Brazos country last night, proceeded west a few miles, and when the train from San Francisco, on the Texas and Pacific road, pulled up at Ranger station, just west of what is known as Canyon spur, they took possession. There were five robbers, four of them beardless youths, dressed like cowboys, and the fifth, the leader, a stalwart man, with the appearance of a desperado, wearing a heavy red shirt and a large black slouch hat. None were masked. All were armed to the teeth with Winchester rifles and Colt's improved revolvers. Four of the gang corralled the conductor, Geo. Hara, the fireman, engineer and brakeman, alongside the engine, while the red-shirt leader bounded into the express car, commanding the messenger to throw up his hands, which was complied with as the muzzle of a pistol was presented to his face. The colored porter took in the situation and made a dash for the passenger coach, and roused three Texas rangers who had been traveling on the trains several weeks, as guards, in anticipation of a robbery. When they reached the outside the robbers opened fire on them, keeping the captive train men as breastworks. Of course the rangers returned the fire, but without effect, as to do so would have killed the train men. Consequently none of the combatants was hit, but a stray bullet struck the telegraph operator, who was retreating to his office, making a slight wound on the back of his hands. After the leader had robbed the express car the gang retired in single file, making the trainmen follow between them and the rangers until they were out of danger. It was nearly one hour before the trainmen got back to the cars. The robbers did not molest the United States mails or the passengers, the unexpected presence of the rangers foiling a part of the plot. The express car was riddled with bullets.

The messenger states that the robbers secured less than $500. It is generally believed, however, that a very large haul was made, but the railroad and express people do not propose letting the loss be made public. The rangers accompanied the train to Weatherford, where a pursuing party was sent out, but up to this evening no arrests are reported. The railroad officials profess to know who the robbers are, and predict their capture.

New Mexico Train Robbers Foiled.

A passenger arriving at Kansas City a few days ago, over the Santa Fe road, says a train was ditched near Rincon, New Mexico, and that five armed men attempted to rob the express car, containing $200,000 in silver from the Arizona mines, but were frightened away by the train-men and passengers. When the cars were thrown from the track the fireman was killed and the engineer and express messenger wounded.

A SOUTHERN CYCLONE.

A Town in Mississippi Swept Away by a Tornado, and Eleven Persons Killed.

Monticello, Miss., twenty miles east of Brookhaven, was completely destroyed by a cyclone, only three houses in the entire place being left. They were dwelling-houses on the edge of the storm. Nothing like it was ever seen in that section. Eleven persons were killed instantly, five whites and six colored. Out of a population of about 150 very few escaped without some injury. Between fifteen and twenty were seriously injured, some fatally. The store of Cohn, after being blown down, was struck by lightning and burned. There was not a tree left. The track of the cyclone was estimated to be half a mile wide. One lady was blown away and no trace of her can be found. S. W. Dale, proprietor of the Monticello Advocate office, which is a wreck, was killed. The old Planter's Bank, a relic of flush times, and the Court House, a very substantial building, were leveled to the ground. The Court-house was one of the oldest landmarks. The Legislature met there when Mississippi was a Territory. The houses of Mr. Carlele and William Butler were caught up and dropped in the center of the river.

Tourist: "Wee, we're from London." Donald: "Weel, the reason why I keep my hands in my pockets is that hereabouts we haven't learnt to put our hands in other folks' pockets."

According to estimates, 6 per cent. of the acreage sown last fall has been winter-killed. The crop in the southern tier of counties promises 47 per cent. better, and in the entire State 38 per cent. better, than on the 1st of April, 1881. The condition of clover is not so promising. Twenty-nine per cent. of the entire acreage in clover meadows and pastures is reported winter-killed, and the condition of that portion not winter-killed is 4 per cent. below the condition one year ago. The prospects for apples and peaches are favorable.

Sanitarists in Council.

At the recent session of the State Sanitary Convention, at Greenville, the following proceedings were had:

OVERFLOWED LANDS.

"Effect on Public Health of Overflowed Lands Adjacent to Maple River." This topic was ably discussed by Dr. S. E. Gillam, Health Officer of St. Johns. According to his theory Maple river was by nature a healthy stream; it had a good inclination and people along its banks were ordinarily healthful. Thus it was until 1840, when people began to dam the stream. Flats were overflowed on either side to a great distance, the Maple Rapids dam caused the overflow of bottom lands to the extent of 2,000 acres or more on low water, the water backing up for a distance of ten miles, making a wreck of a belt of land on either side from one-fourth to a mile in width through the townships of Fulton and Washington, and the overflow extends into Elba and Duplain. The river bed, because the current was stopped, became filled with filth and debris from above. Vegetation was entirely destroyed, the surface of the ground, because of its saturated condition, being of the consistency of thick mush. When fall rains set in lands more distant became overflowed, in which condition they remain until the next spring. The high water level is estimated at from 6,000 to 8,000 acres of valuable land, rendered for several months of each year unfit for use. This might be drained, as a competent survey shows that the fall in Maple river, between Maple Rapids and Bridgeville, is 7.66 feet. Bad river, running into the Saginaw valley, also has its banks overflowed by the dams in Maple river. From observations made by reputable physicians, the overflowed lands have been and are a fruitful source of disease. The miasma emitted therefrom during the summer and fall months causes a large percentage of the sickness of the region. Fever and ague, dysentery, typho-malarial and remittent fevers, pneumonia, rheumatism and neuralgia, as a rule, have always been greater in per cent. and more malignant in type in regions overflowed by this standing water than on higher lands with natural drainage. Diagrams were used to show the relative healthfulness of overflowed lands with the lands not overflowed, the percentage of sickness and death being the test. Numerous reports of health officers read to the convention greatly sustained the position of Dr. Gillam. The paper was of much interest, because of its enunciation of principles which may apply equally to all overflowed lands.

VACCINATION.

"Vaccination, Jenner vs. Bergh," by Dr. C. M. Martin, of Greenville. This excellent paper reviewed the article of Bergh in the North American Review for February, in which Bergh takes issue with the experience of mankind and the observations of distinguished physicians since the introduction of vaccination into use in 1776. Bergh characterizes vaccination as a "hideous monstrosity," and says all sorts of bad things about it. Dr. Martin gave copious statistics to prove his ably-sustained position that vaccination is one of the greatest preventives to disease ever discovered.

SCHOOLS AND STUDIES.

"High Pressure vs. Hygiene in Our Public Schools," by Rev. M. W. Fairfield, of Muskegon, was a strong argument, ably supported by cited facts as illustration, that the number of studies each student is required to carry at a time is too large, the number of hours of study, in school and out, in order to commit and recite such lessons is too great; illy-ventilated school houses and school houses with numerous stairs are destructive of human life. These and other evils call for sanitary reform in the construction of school buildings and in schedules of study.

FOOD ADULTERATIONS.

"Food Adulations," by Prof. A. B. Prescott, of Ann Arbor, was a paper which showed that much of food is not what we think it to be. He instanced glucose sugar and grape sugar, oleomargarine, P. D. spices, coffee, terra alba in cream of tartar, etc. He thinks legislation should demand that these things should appear in the markets under their real names or should be prohibited from sale. Dr. Avery related that a package of sugar labeled "pure Michigan maple sirup," sold by a Chicago firm wholesale and retailed in Greenville, analyzed by a competent chemist, was found to be one-eighth maple sugar to seven-eighths corn glucose. Rev. M. W. Fairfield, of Muskegon, made a test of some coffee which he purchased of his grocer, who was positive it was pure coffee, for his wholesale dealer would not, could not, for he was so honorable, sell an adulterated article. Yet Mr. Fairfield showed that grocer, one of the best of his class, that his unadulterated coffee was one-half chicory!

PURE AIR.

"Pure Air: Why We Should Have It and How We Should Get It," was an interesting and instructive lecture by the Rev. D. C. Jacques, of Pontiac, of the State Board of Health. His advice was how to secure good ventilation in all buildings and to keep clean the environments of our dwellings.

SEWERAGE.

"Sewerage of the City of Greenville," by O. G. Fox, was a paper of great value in suggestions. Every city needing sewerage should devise and plan for it a long time, and not construct at great expense something which it would soon discover was not what it should have.

SCHOOL HYGIENE.

"School Hygiene," by Prof. E. P. Church, of Greenville, attracted close attention, especially his allusion to the culpable general neglect of the necessity of having a water-closet in the best position and in the best condition to secure the freest possible use thereof by school children. On many school premises one may see a mean, dilapidated dwelling, bearing all possible marks of disrespect and execration, remote from the school-house, difficult of approach to sensitive pupils at all seasons of the year on account of its publicity. In the winter the snow sits in at numerous crevices; the northern blasts make it a veritable cave of the winds; in winter it is as comfortless as an iceberg; in summer as a tophet. This description applies chiefly to country school districts. But large towns and cities are also culpable in neglecting to supply such water-closets and privies as the necessities of health demand, to say nothing of decency. People are doing their children, especially their daughters, great harm in a system of unwise economy. Health is cheap, untidiness and filth are never economical. Our schools should each have a refectory, neat, retired and comfortable.

DECOMPOSITION.

"The Destruction of Decomposing Organic Matter," was a paper read by Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of the Battle Creek sanitarium. He illustrated by a lantern on a screen many forms of bacteria and other animalcules.

DUTY OF THE CHURCH.

"The Relation of the Church to Sanitary Reform," by Lemuel Clute, of Ionia; on this topic Mr. Clute gave valuable suggestions to the clergy as to topics and how to treat them. Especially should the pulpit teach sanitary science, and proclaim the gospel of good health. Even the marriage relation should be discussed from a physiological standpoint. Knowing the law which regulates the transmission of disease, the church should do what it can to teach the law and instruct and warn people against violating it. We build pest-houses, and exact strict sanitary measures to shield the living, but we give no pre-natal protection; unborn infants are left to chance and the unrestrained lust of an undeveloped race. Ought there not be as much care to have healthy children as stout, well-built coits?

SANITARY STATUTES.

"The Enforcement of Sanitary Regulations," by the Hon. H. Holt, of Muskegon. Mr. Holt says the difficulty of enforcement may be greatly overcome by enlightening public opinion—public opinion is law, not the printed statute.

For the week ending April 15, 1882, the reports indicate that remittent fever, dysentery, cholera morbus, membranous croup and puerperal fever increased in area of prevalence.

At the State Capitol, the prevailing winds were north; the average temperature, average absolute and relative humidity were less; the average day and night ozone were greater during the week ending April 15, than during the preceding week.

Including reports by regular observers and by others, diphtheria was reported present during the week ending April 15, and since, at 7 places, scarlet fever at 6 places, measles at 6 places and small-pox at 3 places, as follows: At Flint (1 case), Manistee (4 cases among the Poles), and at Plainwell, Allegan county (1 case), April 15, 1882.

LANSING, April 20, 1882.

OBITUARY.

Charles B. Darwin, Author of the Theory of the Descent of Man.

Charles R. Darwin, the well-known scientist died at London on the 20th of April, aged 73 years. He was born at Shrewsbury, Feb. 12, 1809, son of Dr. R. W. Darwin, F. R. S., of the same place, and grandson of Dr. Erasmus Darwin, F. R. S., author of the "Botanic Gardens," "Zoonomia," etc., and was educated at the grammar school at Shrewsbury. In 1822 he went to Edinburgh, attended the lectures at the university for two years, entered Christ's College, Cambridge, 1827, and took his degree in 1831. Capt. Fitzroy, R. N., having offered to give up part of his own cabin to any one who would volunteer to accompany H. M. S. Beagle as naturalist, Mr. Darwin tendered his services, and sailed Dec. 27, 1831, in that vessel, for the survey of South America and the circumnavigation of the globe, returning to England Oct. 2, 1836. Mr. Darwin published "Journal of Researches into the Geology and Natural History of the Various Countries, etc.," which appeared with a general account of the voyage by Capt. Fitzroy, but has since been published separately. In 1839 Mr. Darwin married the granddaughter of Josiah Wedgwood, F. R. S., the well-known improver and manufacturer of earthenware. In addition to numerous papers on various scientific subjects, Mr. Darwin edited the "Zoology of the Voyage of the Beagle," and wrote three separate volumes on geology—viz: "The Structure and Distribution of Coral Reefs," published in 1842; "Geological Observations on Volcanic Islands," in 1844; and "Geological Observations on South America," in 1846. The most important of Mr. Darwin's subsequent works are a "Monograph of the Family Cirripedia," published by the Ray Society in 1851-'53, and on the "Fossil Species," by the Paleontographical Society. His "Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection," published in 1859, which has gone through several editions at home and abroad, has given rise to much controversy. It was followed by "Fertilization of Orchids," in 1862, and "Domesticated Animals and Cultivated Plants; or, the Principles of Variation, Inheritance, Reversion, Crossing, Interbreeding and Selection, under Domestication," in 1867. In 1871 he published the "Descent of Man and Selection in Relation to Sex," two volumes. In this work the author inferred that "man is descended from a hairy quadruped, furnished with a tail and pointed ears, probably arboreal in its habits." Mr. Darwin was elected a member of various foreign and English scientific bodies, received from the Royal Society the Royal and Copley medals for his various scientific works, and from the Geological Society the Wollaston Palaeontological medal. He was created a Knight of the Order Pour le Merite by the Prussian Government; and in June, 1871, he was elected a corresponding member of the Academy of Vienna.

HOLLAND CITY NEWS.

WILLIAM H. ROGERS, Editor.

SAURDAY, APRIL 29, 1882.

A FUND FOR MRS. JAMES.

"It can scarcely be hoped that after the recent heavy drains upon the public purse to defend Mr. George Hendrix against prosecution for defacing the Andre monument to give ex-Sergeant Mason a fortune in reward for 'cowardice, insubordination and treachery,' and to build a monument to one of the most selfish and cowardly butchers and robbers the world was ever cursed with, the charitable who are content to let children die by the hundreds in tenement houses in summer will have enough left to provide a competency for Mrs. Jesse James. That estimable widow—who, if she has not with her own charming hand provided weeds and crapes for many others of her own sex, has aided and abetted in many a robbery and murder—is now dependent upon her sister. It seems that the fortune accumulated by the murderous industry of her heroic spouse is nearly all gone. The hat is being passed round with great industry by her admirers and those of the late lamented outlaw.

The enterprise of the Chicago merchant who has offered the noble Mason a salary has been imitated, it seems, by others. The dead criminal's horses have been purchased by a circus manager, and Mrs. James has been offered a position to travel in the same interesting exhibition. Guiteau's body will be ready for the midsummer season, and should not be omitted from this amazing catalogue of relics of crime.

However that may be, Mrs. James certainly has a most emphatic claim to be supported by a pension. It appears from her statement that the governor of Missouri has wilfully robbed the country of one of its brightest ornaments. Jesse was tired of a bandit's life, poor fellow, and wanted to settle down on a farm, but they never could live long in one place, as the officers were always after them. A more infamous persecution of a human being was never known. Jesse was tired of being hunted, and the state might at least have passed a special act relieving him of the consequences of the forty odd murders laid to his charge, let alone the hundreds of thousands of dollars stolen by him. Then the legislature might have appropriated say $250,000 to establish him in a prosperous business. As Mrs. James continues to justly observe, 'If the officers had just left Jesse alone we would have lived all right and he would have been an honor to his country.' Just so. He might have become a bishop or represented his district in congress. He was just preparing to be a saint when the impatience of the governor made him an angel. This being the case, however, he is better off where he is, for there is no telling what will happen in this world. Had he been a bishop he might have been sued for libel, or as a congressman he might have been investigated, or as a bank cashier and Sunday school superintendent he might have been found out. Where he is now he cannot fall from grace and relapse into his old habits, and his family ought to be grateful.

There is one little point in the present proceedings for the benefit of Mrs. James that the admirers of her late husband seem to have overlooked, and if the sheriff is really anxious to do her a kindness he would do well to hold his soul in patience. It is not quite clear that Mrs. Jesse James cannot be indicted and executed as an accomplice of the late Jesse in some of his two score murders.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The sister of a wealthy St. Louis merchant was dying in a poorhouse. She sent a message begging him to overlook their estrangement, after she was dead, and give her remains a respectable burial. He refused, and she was interred in the Potter's Field.

When Senator Brown was Governor of Georgia he found among some mouldy papers in the basement of the State House vouchers for a $22,000 claim against the general Government for defending the frontiers against Indians from 1795 to 1818, and Congress is likely to direct payment.

GROWING OLD.
BY FATHER KNOWS.
At six—I well remember when—
I fancied all folks old as ten.
But when I turned my first decade,
Fifteen appeared more truly said.
But when the fifteenth round I'd run,
I thought none old till twenty-one.
Then oddly, when I'd reached that age,
I found that thirty made folks sage.
But when my thirtieth year was told,
I said: "At two-score men grow old!"
Yet two-score came and found me thrifty,
And so I drew the line at fifty.
But when I reached that age I swore
None could be old until three-score.
And here I am at sixty now,
As young as when at six, I trow!
'Tis true, the rogues about my knee
Say "Grandpa!" when they speak to me;
But, bless your soul, I'm young as when
I said: "At two-score men grow old!"
Perhaps a little wiser grown—
Perhaps some old illusions flown;
But would 't'ing still, while years have rolled,
When it is that a man grows old?

BETWEEN TWO HORNS.

"I tell you, Susan Swing," said Capt. Rose, "there ain't a man that lives between the Two Horns as would let his boy not bigger than your'n go out in a boat to-day. Don't you do it. 'Tain't no kind of weather for that slip of a lad to go foolin' with them big billows as sweeps around old Dull Head. Why, look yourself, woman. You can see them more'n four miles away dashing and lashing the shore."

As Capt. Rose spoke he pointed with his right hand in the direction of one of the two headlands between which Dell Haven lay.

"And no dory in the harbor," he continued, "could weather Bright Head (pointing toward the headland at the left), not if Cap'n Hezekiah himself was a row'n of it. You'd better take them row-locks out and hide the oars if he won't mind without you doin' it."

"I can't bear to do it," said Mrs. Swing. "Richard will be so disappointed. He set his lobster-pots yesterday, and he hasn't slept any night in his eagerness to go out early and haul them in. Don't you see, Capt. Rose, it's Saturday, and two whole coaches full of the summer boarders came last night to the Bright Head House, and he can get a big price for his lobsters to-day. My poor Dick has worked so hard making the lobster-pots himself, and it seems like cutting off the boy's reward to say 'you shan't go' to him."

"S'pose you do feel weakish 'bout it, Susan; but you don't want that ere boat to be picked up adrift and no boy in it, do you?"

"You know I don't, Capt. Rose," she said. "If I hadn't loved him, do you think I'd get up before daylight to come down here to see the lad off?"

"Hui!" said the Captain. "Here he comes, and he's fastening his straw hat to his buttons. He sees there is wind enough ahead."

It was a morning in June, and the sun was not yet risen, but the glory of his coming was in the east and on the sea.

As he came down the pier, the oars on his shoulder, and securing his straw hat by a string to his jacket, the old Captain said: "He's a fine lad, Dick is, and well worth the saving."

"He's all the world to me," thought Mrs. Swing, although her lips uttered no word.

"Good-morning, Capt. Rose," called out Richard. "Good for lobsters, do you think?"

"Better for lobsters than 'tis for boys," ejaculated the Captain, removing his broad brown hands from his pockets and laying one of them on the lad's shoulder as soon as the latter came within touching distance. "I say, Dick Swing, that you are not going out in that cockle-shell of your'n this morning," he announced.

"I certainly am, Capt. Rose," returned the boy. "It's a little rough, but like as not the wind will come right around before I get half way to the ledge, and I should think you would know better than to scare my little mother here half to death. See, mother," he said gayly, "I have an extra oar and one thirle-pin, yes, two of them, in case a row-look gives way, and I've got a lot of extra courage about me that I can't exactly show you unless you come with me."

"This he said looking out to sea, for he did not feel like looking either at his mother or Capt. Rose.

"Dick," said Mrs. Swing, approaching the pier's edge as the owner of the little boat proceeded to bestow his lunch-basket and extras under the bow. "Well, mother," returned Richard, looking up.

"I wish you would not go," she said, her tones full of beseeching.

"Why, mother! Do you want my seven new lobster pots to be carried off to sea?" he asked. "How could you have the heart to ask me? If this wind keeps on blowing I shall lose them every one."

"That's true," ejaculated Capt. Rose. "I never thought of that. It's just right, this wind is, to drag them off, but you never can haul them in alone. You'll be sure to be dragged overboard."

"No, I shan't. Come along with me if you want to help," laughed Richard.

"Humph! I should sink that craft before we got out of harbor," said the Captain. "though if I wasn't so heavy I would go." Capt. Rose weighed a trifle less than three hundred pounds, and had left the sea after fifty years of faithful service.

Not another person was in sight.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the Captain. "If you insist on going, I'll stop on my way up and ask Capt. Danforth to look out for you, and if he thinks you're getting into trouble to sail after you."

"Thank you, Captain."

"Dick," said his mother, "can't you let the lobster-pots go?"

"Couldn't possibly," smiled the boy.

"Could you have the heart to ask me? Will you cast me off, mother?" he called a second later.

"Wait a minute," exclaimed Mrs. Swing. "Fetch your boat close up. I want to speak to you, Dick."

The boat received the necessary impetus, and touched the side of the pier. Mrs. Swing had seated herself on the topmost layer of logs forming the wharf and leaned over as though to speak confidentially to her son.

"Dick," said his mother, "hold fast! I'm coming," and into the boat she dropped before either Capt. Rose on the dock or Capt. Richard in the boat had knowledge of her intention.

"What under the sun, mother," cried the boy, "do you mean?"

"I am going with you, Dick, to keep you from tumbling overboard when you haul in," and she seated herself in the stern, calling back as the tide floated the boat out, "We depend on you, Capt. Rose, to send after us if we—if it gets too rough," she gasped, with a dash of spray in her face.

"Ay, ay!" cried the Captain, and he took off his hat and swung it, he scarcely knew why.

Of all the women in Dell Haven, from the eldest to the youngest, Mrs. Swing most feared the sea. To live beside it, watch its every mood delighted her, but to venture on it for pleasure she was never known to do.

A moment's peace she never knew when Richard, her only son, was exposed to the treachery of the waters, but rather than mar his wild delight in wind and waves this unselfish mother concealed as much as possible her anxiety for him.

Richard was not selfish, and, had he imagined what his mother was at that moment suffering, would have put the boat about and tied it forever at the stake rather than cause her this agony.

Just as the boat got well into the toil of the waves the sun arose, shedding such brilliance on the waters that Mrs. Swing who sat facing it, was dazzled and well nigh failed to see in time a gill net into which the boat was running.

"See any boat ahead, mother?" questioned Richard. "You must keep a good lookout for me. I've got my ranges right, and can fetch the lobster grounds every time."

"Is it far?" questioned his mother, shudderingly.

"Not very; just outside Dull Head. I reckon we'll fetch it," said the lad, dipping his oars for a full stroke and letting the boat slide up to the summit of a rolling wave, a trick he had caught from Capt. Hezekiah Danforth, the master boatman of Dell Haven.

The wind grew stronger and stronger, and the waves every moment increased in size. Even Richard glanced sideways more than once with ill-concealed anxiety as the long billows came tumbling on, and just then getting a glimpse of his mother's face beheld it so blanched with terror of the sea that it seemed to him his mother was no longer in the boat with him.

"Dick," she gasped as his oar missed stroke and sent the spray over the boat, "Dick, I'm afraid to go on."

Dick glanced backward. He had pulled about a mile from shore and was midway between the two headlands familiarly spoken of the Horns. Dull Head was surrounded by an ever accumulating mass of breakers, and Bright Head caught the sea on its precipitous sides, sending it backward in foam, and all the four miles that lay between the two points were rolling miles of billows.

Sitting with his face landward Richard had not fully felt the danger.

Now the lad could not repress a shudder as he said: "I don't believe I could find the buoys in such a sea, and nobody could haul in the pots. I believe I'll put about."

"Oh, do! Oh, Richard there comes an awful one!" and Mrs. Swing slipped down from her seat into the bottom of the boat and hid her face from the oncoming wave.

Richard gave a mighty pull at the oars to keep the boat head on, and it rode that wave in safety only to meet new ones, into whose depths the tiny shell rolled, to be completely hidden from the sight of two men who were standing out on the Dell Haven pier.

One was Hezekiah Danforth, the other was Capt. Rose.

"If there was only a tug in sight to help them," groaned Capt. Rose.

"Why didn't you dun a little common sense into the woman if she didn't take any naturally," scolded Capt. Danforth, "or shut her and the boy up somewhere?"

"I told her, but I declare when I was young I could have brought down them oars in half the time it takes Jim to fetch 'em. I say, 'Kiah Danforth, ain't that boat trying to put about?"

"It acts like it, John, but it will get swamped just as sure as guns if—no, it's going on. There's nothing else to do. I never in all my life saw a time when there wasn't a sail in sight."

The boat's gone! No! There it comes up again!

Suddenly a cry for a helping hand was raised among the bystanders, and willing hearts went forth from the land.

"Every second tells. It's a race for life!" called out Capt. Danforth. "Jim, you'd better get in. You're strong; if one of us tuckers out you can take hold."

All ready lay the boat, a dark green surf boat, a boat that could stand heavy seas, and the two men and boy who had nobly volunteered were not long in starting off.

"Success to you. Fetch 'em back alive!" called out Capt. Rose.

All at once the pier at Dell Haven seemed thronged with people. The news was spread that Mrs. Swing and Richard were out alone on the sea.

As they watched the dim, dark speck now rising upon the swelling waters and as quickly vanishing from sight, not one of the little throng but knew the danger of the tiny boat. With breathless eagerness they watched the surf boat as its two rowers stood at the oar urging it onward.

"It's down the harbor now. They're catching it. It's an awful wind for June. Do you think they're gaining on 'em? That mite of a boat will never live till they get there," were some of the remarks heard as they passed on.

As for Capt. Rose he went panting up the hill into the town, climbed into the belfry of Dell Haven Church, as far up as he could go, and watched with a spy-glass the progress of the mere speck in the distance and the toiling helpers so far behind.

After a few minutes, he realized that Capt. Danforth, although doing his utmost, could not reach the periled ones in time to save them and he said to himself:

"The boy is doing well, but he can't hold out. I must do it." Capt. Rose's little daughter had followed her father into the church and climbed the belfry stairs.

"See here, Dolly," he said, "can you look through here and keep sharp watch? No, you run—you can go quicker'n I can," and the Captain scribbled a message on the back of an envelope, and, giving it her, bade her make haste to the telegraph office. "You tell Johnny Blake it's to save life, and it must go ahead of everything."

Dolly Rose did not need to be told twice. She ran every step of the way, and rushing into the telegraph office flushed and eager cried out:

"Mr. Blake, here, send this quick, Richard Swing and his mother are going to drown, and it's to save them!"

The operator took the envelope and read:

Capt. True, steam-tug Good Heart, Cromwell Harbor.
Steam out at once in search of small boat—woman and boy in it—off Dell Haven three miles; going against the wind; can't last long.
JOHN BLOK.

"All right," said the operator, clicking away at his machine for a minute or two, and then exclaiming, "It's done. Wait a minute, sis, and I'll tell you whether or not he gets it; wire runs right down the wharf."

The minutes went by. Ten had passed when the answer came back:

Steam's up; start at once; go myself.

TIMOTHY TRUE.

The operator did not stay to write it. "Run quick and tell your father Capt. True is gone already," he said.

Dolly ran, saying to every one she met, "They'll be saved! They'll be saved!" The child got up the belfry stair, and couldn't utter a word. She could only smile and bow her head and try to get out the message, which she did at last.

Capt. Rose's eye was on the speck. He dated not take it off lest never to find it again. Meanwhile the news got abroad that Capt. Rose had telegraphed to Cornwall for a tug, and the burden of fear grew lighter.

In the little boat again and again had Richard tried to turn its head toward the land, but with each trial it took in so much water that he was forced to give up the attempt. Nothing could be done but keep off and face the boiling sea. Very few words were spoken. Mrs. Swing kept bailing as fast as possible, with only the shell of a horse-shoe crab to work with.

At length came a wave like a small hill, up which the boat rode gallantly, and then suddenly Richard shouted:

"They're coming for us, mother. I see a boat just outside the harbor."

Then the tears sprang to Mrs. Swing's eyes. She stopped bailing for a moment to look toward the shore. All she could see was a wall of water shutting out the land.

"Courage, mother," Dick said.

Every rise and fall of the oar was a prayer; every dip of the poor old crab shell was a petition for life.

Out from Cromwell Harbor, seven miles to the eastward, and hidden from sight by Bright Head, steamed the tug Good Heart. Never had its Captain stood watching the sea with more earnest gaze. Never was steam applied with more generous hand. 'Twas the woman and the boy in the boat out at sea that lived in the gaze, in the steam and in the fuel, and Good Heart bore away with cordial speed till Bright Head was won and weathered.

"I see it!" shouted the Captain, "though how in thunder it's lived to get there's more'n I know," and he gave directions to steam outside.

Richard's attention was so divided between the billows and the land and the friendly boat, and Mrs. Swing was so intent on bailing, that neither of them saw the tug until it was upon them, and a hailing voice shouted:

"Hold on till we pick you up."

It seemed as a voice from heaven had spoken. Even bluff old Capt. Rose, up in the belfry of the church, ejaculated, "Thank God!" as he saw the tug come to.

The shock of the call, the sight of the black, throbbing tug, friendly as they seemed, yet came near swamping the boat, for Richard led it, turn, and the last strength he had was put forth in holding it up to the wind until a line was cast off, and even then he had no power to make it fast. It was Mrs. Swing that tried to obey the commands that came but could not.

Finally the tug's boat was lowered. It was no easy task to get to leeward and board the Good Heart, which held its breath, bracing itself against the waves almost as a thing of life to do its kindly office. Richard and his mother had been saved.

"Give 'em a signal! Give 'em three!" and the steam-whistle blew three shrieks that went over the bay and up the harbor and over against the meeting-house steeple, until old Capt. Rose fell down on his knees to utter the first prayer of thankfulness his little Dolly had ever heard her father offer.—Sarah P. Prichard, in Our Continent.

A Cyclone Sweeps Over the Town of Brownsville, Mo., Leveling Buildings and Killing and Wounding Many Persons.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., April 19.

A terrible cyclone swept over the town of Brownsville, Saline county, Mo., at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The entire business portion of the town was demolished and seven persons killed and between twenty and thirty others badly injured. The storm came from the southwest and was very similar to the one which destroyed the town of Richmond four years ago. The storm came up so suddenly that the first intimation the people had was a sudden roaring sound, which was immediately followed by the appearance of a large black funnel-shaped cloud coming from the southwest at the rate of at least 100 miles per hour. When the cloud was first noticed it was apparently about two miles distant, and hung perhaps fifty yards above the earth. When it reached the western part of town it dropped down almost to the ground, and seemed to draw everything within a radius of several hundred yards up into the mouth of the funnel. It swept through the town, laying everything waste in its path. Two-story brick business houses were picked up like straws and whirled and twisted into shapeless ruins. Frame dwellings were carried some distance and dropped, smashing houses into fine kindling wood. Heavy timbers were carried several hundred yards through the air, and, falling end downward, stuck several feet into the ground. Occasionally the funnel seemed to strike the earth, and would rebound some distance into the air, only to fall again and continue its work of destruction. The storm lasted less than two minutes, but during that short space of time about twenty business houses and dwellings were leveled to the ground. The storm came up so suddenly that the people had no time for preparation, and in fact scarcely any one knew what was coming until the storm was upon them. The people in the streets were picked up and carried various distances and hurled to the ground dead or bruised almost beyond recognition, while those in the buildings were buried by the falling walls and debris.

For some time after the storm passed the people who were uninjured were so terribly excited that nothing could be done. When they at last recovered from their consternation search for the dead and wounded was commenced. It was at first supposed that at least fifty persons had been killed, but a thorough search revealed that only seven were killed outright, fourteen mortally wounded, and sixteen seriously injured. Those killed were:

J. S. Scruggs, a farmer.
Clairde Meyers, dry-goods merchant.
T. K. Arthur, clerk.
W. M. Williams, clerk.
Con White, City Marshal.
J. S. Payne, minister.
James Miller, clerk.

The storm's path was about 150 yards wide, and every house, tree or shrub in that path was leveled to the ground. After leaving Brownsville the funnel pursued a northeastern direction, and was next heard of near Marshall, where several farmhouses were destroyed. All the telegraph lines leading out of Brownsville were broken.

TERRIFIC EFFECTS OF THE CYCLONE BEFORE IT REACHED BROWNVILLE.

The tornado struck Montrose at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, destroying eighteen dwellings and four churches. No lives lost. A school four miles east of Montrose was blown down, and all the inmates were more or less injured, two little sons of John Farr, it is supposed, fatally. One little child was blown across a twenty-acre field and lodged in an apple-tree uninjured. Two men in an adjacent field were blown over a hedge fence ten feet high, and both seriously injured. The storm is said to have reached as far as Appleton City, and blown down houses. At Clinton a heavy hail-storm prevailed. All the windows facing the west were damaged. Hail fell as large as goose-eggs. At Holden a number of houses were blown down, and others badly damaged.

THE PERUVIAN INVESTIGATION.

Before the Peruvian investigation, on the 18th, J. R. Shipherd testified that he approached Walker Blaine as an attorney norder to learn the workings of his father's mind in regard to the company's schemes. The witness again declined to state the names of the Directors of the Peruvian Company or its stockholders. Representative Deuster, after stating that Shipherd had evaded every question of weight, moved that he be dismissed, but it was resolved to set him aside until next week.

William Henry Hurlbert, editor of the New York World, and brother of the late Minister Hurlbert, appeared before the Foreign Affairs Committee on the Peruvian matter on April 20. The clerk read from Shipherd's testimony his description of the interview between himself (Shipherd) and Hurlbert, in which the latter is accredited with saying he had seen and held in his hands a dispatch from Blaine to Minister Hurlbert, on which was written a marginal note, "Go in, Steve," or "Go it, Steve."

The witness said: "The whole narrative of this conversation with me is an absolute and profound misrepresentation of facts. He sought an interview with me and stated his case and gave me a long narrative of his relations with Blaine, and complained bitterly that he had not been well treated by the Secretary. There is no truth in the statement that I told him I had seen such a dispatch with a marginal note." Witness said his relations with Blaine were of a friendly character. He had several conversations with him. The Secretary failed to convince witness that he (the Secretary) was carrying out the policy of President Garfield. He failed to convince him because of his ways and methods. Witness continued: "The Secretary always suggested to me something in the nature of a political flirt. As a Democrat I had never much faith in his methods, though personally I liked him, and my brother seemed to have great confidence in him."

Mr. Blaine appeared before the House Foreign Affairs Committee April 24, and made a sweeping denial of the statements of Jacob R. Shipherd. "His employment is falsehood—perjury his pastime," was the words used by Mr. Blaine to characterize Shipherd. Blaine stated that their first interview lasted but fifteen minutes, and they did not meet again for three months. The reason why Shipherd was not at first kicked out of the department was that he was introduced by a Senator and had three ex-Senators and an ex-Secretary of the Treasury as counsel. Mr. Blaine produced a letter from Henry W. Blair, denying that he heard Shipherd state to the ex-Secretary that Minister Hurlbert had been offered $250,000 in the stock of the Peruvian Company. Mr. Blaine at one time expressed the opinion that Shipherd should be sent before the Grand Jury for perjury.

"Two was schoot enough, budt dree was too blendy," remarked Hans, when his best girl asked him to take her mother along with them to the dance.

Drunkenness in Germany.

For many centuries past the children of Teutons have endured with placid equanimity the scoffs and jeers of their neighbors, whether of Latin or Slavonic extraction, aimed at their beer drinking propensities; for they were hitherto comfortably convinced that the assiduous consumption of malt liquors was by no means incompatible with a high standard of national sobriety. On the other hand, among Continental critics of British manners and customs none have so persistently denounced the practices of tipping and dram drinking, as vices peculiar to the natives of these isles, than have German writers, grave as well as gay. The gin absorbing capacities of English operatives have aroused the righteous wrath of many a Teutonic journalist, in whose comments upon his own countrymen's amazing feats in the way of swallowing seven or eight gallons of ale at a sitting, his readers might in vain search for any expression of condemnation. It would appear, however, that whether or not the Germans of times past were justified by facts in laying claim to a conspicuously sober people, the Germans of to-day are unquestionably open to the same reproach that they have been accustomed to lavish in such profusion upon the Englishmen. We learn from Berlin that so enormous has been the increase of "excessive drunkenness" within the last few years that the Imperial Chancellor has just submitted to the Federal Council a bill devised by him for the repression of a habit which "has become a national scandal." Hard times and cheap spirits are terrible promoters of inebriety, and it is more than probable that the severe trials though German agriculture, commerce and industry have recently passed, and the low prices at which corn and potato brandy are purchasable throughout the Fatherland, may have brought about the deplorable prevalence of drunkenness with which Prince Bismarck proposes to grapple by exceptional legislation.—New York Herald.

A Picture Worth Beholding.

Hanging between two small windows, and catching the light from a larger one opposite, in one of the offices of Adams Express Company, at 59 Broadway, New York—the office occupied by Mr. W. H. Hall, head of the delivery department—is a plainly finished but neatly framed chromo about 2 1/2 by 3 feet in size, which is looked upon by hundreds of people daily, on many of whom it has a wonderful and salutary effect. It represents a flight of half a dozen rough stone steps leading from the sward bank of a placid lake to a little rustic temple set in the rugged side of the mountain which rises in stupendous proportions in the background all covered with a rank, luxuriant growth of foliage in brush and tree. In the open door of this little temple stands a half-concealed figure, with an arm and hand extended, holding forth a small, dimly-defined package, while seated on the sward at the foot of the steps an aged pilgrim, barefooted, lame and decrepid, bears a staff in one hand, and in the other holds before his dim eyes a small bottle, whose label he eagerly scans. This label bears the words "St. Jacobs Oil the Great German Remedy." Simple as this little chromo appears in its unostentatious position it has an influence which it would be difficult to estimate. "It is to that picture and the persuasions of Mr. Hall," said Mr. Edward J. Douglass, a gentleman connected with Mr. Hall's department, "that I owe my present ability to perform my work. Some weeks ago I was violently attacked with sciatic rheumatism, and hour by hour I grew worse, and nothing that my family or the doctor could do gave me any relief. I began to think in a few days that my case was hopeless and that I was doomed to be an invalid and helpless cripple for life. But at last I thought of that little picture which I had so often looked at with but little interest, and then Mr. Hall came to my bedside, and, telling me how St. Jacobs Oil had cured him of a worse and longer-standing case than mine, urged me to use the same remedy. I did so that very night, directing my wife not to spare it, but apply it thoroughly according to the directions; this she did with a large piece of flannel cloth saturated with the Oil, and then bound the cloth to the affected parts. The next morning I was free from pain, and, although a little sore in the hip, was able to dress myself, and the next day resumed my duties in the office as sound as a dollar. Here I am now in full health and strength, having had no touch of rheumatism or other pain since. Whenever I see one of our drivers or any other person who shows any symptoms of lameness or stiffness, I point him to the picture in Mr. Hall's office, and then direct him to go for St. Jacobs Oil at once."—N. Y. Evening Telegram.

An American Provincialism.

"Will you try," said my opposite neighbor, handing me a dish of potatoes, broken up in milk and butter, "will you try some of these fixings?" There are few words which perform such various duties as the word "fix." It is the Caledonian Quotient of the American vocabulary. You call upon a gentleman in a country town, and his help informs you that he is "fixing himself" just now, but will be down directly, by which you are to understand that he is dressing. You inquire on board a steamboat, of a fellow-passenger, whether breakfast will be ready soon, and he tells you he should think so, for when he was below they were "fixing the tables," in other words laying the cloth. You beg a porter to collect your luggage, and he entreats you not to be uneasy, he'll "fix it presently," and if you complain of indisposition, you are advised to have recourse to doctor so and so, who will "fix you" in no time. One night I ordered a bottle of mulled wine at a hotel where I was staying, and waited a long time for it. At length it was put upon the table with an apology from the landlord that he feared it wasn't "fixed properly." And I recollect once, at a stage-coach dinner, overhearing a very stern gentleman demand of a waiter who presented him with a plate of underdone roast beef, "whether he called that fixing God Almighty's vittles."—Charles Dickens.

EVERYWHERE in life the true question is, not what we gain but what we do.

Defense of Animals.

Mr. Arthur Stradling publishes the following note on the offensive and defensive habits of animals: A serpent's first instinctive impulse of self-preservation, like that of every other animal, lies in escape. If surprised suddenly, or brought to bay at close quarters, it may be too terror-stricken to attempt flight; then it bites, following a curious general rule which seems to obtain throughout nearly the whole animal world, from a passionate child downward, no matter what the natural methods of offense may be. Young Felids will keep their talons sheathed until they have exerted all possible force with their soft milk-teeth, and a lizard will seize the hand which restrains it with its insignificant little jaws when its tail or claws might inflict far more injury. The Boidae never use their constrictive powers in self-defense (unless they are gripped), and it seems probable that if a venomous snake's fangs lay in its tail it would use its teeth first when attacked before bringing them into play. Indeed, it must be remembered that very few animals are provided with exclusively defensive weapons, and that the python's enormous strength in constriction, the viper's poison apparatus and the electric discharge of the gymnotus are given them primarily for the purpose of securing their food.

THE MASON & HAMLIN COMPANY.—At Milan, Italy, they have recently had a Musical Industrial Exhibition and Competition, under royal patronage; at which were collected and compared, during a period of several months, the largest number and greatest variety of musical instruments, old and new, ever brought together. America was honored in the award to the Mason & Hamlin Organ Company of the highest medal, and the only one in this department. Considering that 250 awards were given, altogether, this distinction was very marked. It is a continuation of the triumphs of these famous organ-makers at every one of the World's Fairs for fourteen years; to which there has been no exception.—The Manhattan.

A Cincinnati Trick.

A Cincinnati man went to St. Louis and advertised to teach telegraphy to a lady with reference to procuring her a situation; tuition, $25, on easy terms. He had several applications from shop girls, seamstresses, etc., and for some time continued it so that each one thought she was the one favored pupil who was learning the art and would get the situation. But after meeting each other on the stairs and about the building several times they grew suspicious and began to press him for that situation. Then he slid out with their money. He had long hair and big teeth, which the St. Louis papers say is their reason for thinking he came from Cincinnati; but he was so accomplished a talker that the women forgot how ugly he was.—Free Press.

"Now, my boy, take those eggs to the store, and if you can't get a quarter a dozen, bring them back." The boy went as directed, and came back, saying: "Father, it takes me to make a trade. They all tried to get 'em for forty cents, but I screwed 'em down to twenty-five."—Philadelphia Quiz.

CONSTIPATION.

Persons suffering for any great length of time from constipation must not be surprised to find themselves afflicted, sooner or later, by such annoying symptoms as sores, blotches, pimples, impure blood, headaches, loss of memory, universal lassitude, kidney affections, bad dreams, etc. Evacuation of the bowels should become a daily habit, in fact, this is one of the first laws of nature, and its observance is essential to good health and longevity. When this function, through neglect, intemperance, gluttony or vicious indulgences, becomes deranged, Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla should be used to strengthen these parts. This excellent medicine quickly assists nature in restoring her lost equilibrium, and its use will permanently cure the severest case of constipation of the bowels and all liver and kidney complaints. It purifies the blood and strengthens every part of the body. It is as pleasant as wine to the taste.

Foolish Extravagance in Funerals.

Chicago is noted for the almost boundless extravagance of its funeral expenses. Poor people overwhelm themselves in debt in order to pay honor to the memory of the dead, whom too often they neglected or looked coldly on when living. Now, this very fact shows that the practice is not so much out of love and affection for the dead as proceeding from a selfishness which sees credit reflected on the living in paraphernalia supposed to be wholly intended to reverence the dead. Many a "fine funeral" is a mere exhibition of ostentatious selfishness, which should be "honored rather in the breach than the observance." It has been stated that laboring men are not seldom buried at an expense of from $60 to $100. In instances of persons better off in this world's goods, cape, gloves and flowers, carriages, magnificently appointed hearses, and richly-caparisoned horses, are indulged in. The extremely poor, even, dazzled by these "dumb shows," and blinded to their poverty by their grief and tears, wildly rush into the most ridiculous displays of extravagance. In some cases it is willful, in others thoughtless extravagance. In still others, the mere result of foolish and silly rivalry between families and neighbors.—Chicago Daily News.

But I was prayin' de Lord to save us from de sin ob 'toxication, an' if dat ain't an upsettin' sin I dunno what am."

J. M. MORRISON, of Monroe, Ohio, writes: "I was badly afflicted with salt rheum, scrofula, and other syphilitic symptoms of blood poisoning. I also was troubled with a bad case of piles, frequently aggravated by continued constipation. My employer recommended me to use Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It has accomplished a miraculous change, every symptom of bad blood has disappeared, and my bowels have now a regular daily habit, and the piles have not troubled me since."

"Is there anything I can do for you, darling?" he said, indiscreetly getting his mouth in close proximity to her Grecian and highly sensitive nose, and then, as she averted her head with a shrug of disgust, hastily throwing a few cardamom seeds into his mouth. "Yes," she answered without turning round, "open the window and give me a little breath of fresh air."

IRON TONIC

GENTLEMEN: I have used DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Debility, Dyspepsia, and an inveterate condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice.

DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, 314 Wash Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 20th, 1881.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

A CRABBED CREATURE.

That nature cares for and entertains her own has become an established fact to all observers. Who does not love the sound of the brightly scintillating waves leaping from the phosphorescent sea, as they break against the rocks in the summer night until Nature herself, weary of the operation, turns the sounding surf towards the opposite shore, leaving stranded some badly-mutilated snail, which wanders solemnly on, Bohemian fashion—with all its worldly stores upon its back. On the same beach may be found our crustacean edible—the crab—whose chief apology for existing at all seems to be its ability to furnish a meal to fortune tellers.

bipeds. The crab being covered with a hard, impenetrable shell, it is not easy to molest or make him afraid; therefore he wages war in his watery world unceasingly when once attacked. Although tiny, he cannot be said to be devoid of understanding, having ten legs to assist his locomotion; this, however, avails him little, for, when conquered, he never turns his back to his enemy, starting into a bold run, but, like many politicians during election time, slips off sideways. There comes a time in the life of this pugnacious fellow when the years bring him more bone and muscle than he can dispose of with comfort, and he finds himself in a very tight place; his shoes pinch him and he begins to realize the practicability of applying to Dame Nature for more room or a house in proportion to his increasing size. Nature slowly responds to the call; but in her own good time provides a new home, so that the enterprising little creature does not wander about homeless, but is provided for suitably, as was the old sailor, who dropped his rheumatism and crabbedness when he applied the Great German Remedy, ST. JACOBS OIL. This last, however, may sound rather fishy to the skeptical reader, and to such we would reply in language too plain to be misunderstood—in words illustrating facts that even the waves of time cannot wash away or scaly epithets affect. ST. JACOBS OIL to-day has rendered the lives and homes of myriads of sufferers brighter than ever the electric light can, which people pause to admire along the way. Still more happily served than the old sailor was an invalid, who wrote thus concerning his case:

"CROOKED HAERTEL."

Accept a thousand thanks for that "golden remedy." I suffered for many years with rheumatic pain in my limbs. My legs were drawn together, and people called me "Crooked HaerTEL." I used ST. JACOBS OIL and was cured, and now feel so well that I think I could dance in my young days. JOHN HAERTEL, Fremont, Ill.

He Drinks.

Tell me a young man drinks, and I know all the rest. Let him become captive of the wine-cup, and he is the victim of all other vices. No man ever runs drunkenness alone. That is one of the carrion crows that go with a flock. If that beak is ahead you may know that the other beaks follow. In other words, strong drink unbalances and dethrones, and makes him the prey of all the appetites that choose to alight upon his soul.

There is not a place of sin upon this continent but finds its chief abettor in the places of inebriety. There is a drinking place before it or behind it, or a bar over it or a bar under it. The officer said to me that night, "You see how they escape legal penalty; they are licensed to sell liquor." Then I thought within myself the court that licensed the sale of intoxicating liquors, licenses gaming houses, licenses libelism, licenses diseases, licenses death, licenses all crimes, all suffering, all disaster, all woes. It is the legislature and courts that swing wide open this grinding, roaring, stupendous gate of the lost. — T. De Witt Talmage.

A SUBSCRIBER writes as follows: "I feel at once my appetite and strength greatly improved; my expectoration less painful and less copious; my cough less troublesome; my sleep sound, refreshing and dreamless; my nervousness is all gone; my breathing less difficult; my heart's action more regular; my backache less severe; my digestion improved; my urine clear and voided without pain; my spirits more exuberant; my mind perfectly at ease; and yet I have only used half a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters."

The young women of Nevada City, Cal., amuse the town while amusing themselves. Twenty-four of them formed a company, in mockery of the young men's military organization, and paraded in a uniform of red calico, with brooms for guns. Their last parade was to escort a bride to the railroad station.

Trouble Saved.

It is a remarkable fact that Thomas Electric Oil is as good for internal as external use. For disease of the lungs and throat, and for rheumatism, neuralgia, crick in the back, wounds, and sores, it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand.

A Hive of Bees.

Burdock Blood Bitters bring back health when the body is badly disordered by impure blood. Biliousness, indigestion, constipation, dyspepsia and other bad disorders cured by Burdock Blood Bitters. Price $1.00.

Bub It In.

Jacob Loeckman, 274 Clinton Street, Buffalo, N. Y., says he has been using Thomas' Electric Oil for rheumatism. He had such a lame back that he could do nothing; but one bottle entirely cured him.

Visible Improvement.

Mr. Noah Bates, Elmira, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weakened and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdock Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work. Price $1.00."

A Word to Mothers.

Mothers should remember it is a most important duty at this season to look after the health of their families and cleanse the malaria and impurities from their systems, and that nothing will tone up the stomach and liver, regulate the bowels and purify the blood so perfectly as Parker's Ginger Tonic, advertised in our columns—Post. See other column.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brashy, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable.

The VIGOR cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible.

As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair

The VIGOR is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.
