HUMILITY, PRAYER, FORGIVENESS — Overflow crowds put several dozen people into the choir loft at Tuesday night's local observance of the National Day of Humil-

At Holland and Zeeland Services

Overflow Crowds Gather for Prayer

An overflow crowd taxed facilities of Dimnent Memorial Chapel on Hope campus Tuesday night for the local observance of the National Day of Humility, Fasting and Prayer, keyed to a message by Dr. Lester De Koster, editor of The Banner, on "And If You Forget."

Beside standees, people filled several rows on the platform behind the Chapel Choir.

In Zeeland crowds were so great that after 1,200 crowded into First Reformed Church, 500 went to First Christian Reformed Church for another service. Dr. William Brownson of Western Theological Seminary spoke at the Reformed Church and the Rev. Calvin Bolt spoke for the overflow crowd in the other church.

In his message, Dr. De Koster, formerly of Zeeland, called attention to action President Abraham Lincoln took 111 years ago when he called for a Day of Prayer, Humility and Fasting April 30, 1863, at a time the U.S. was "paying for the sins of slavery through the agony of Civil War."

Then he referred to Sen. Mark Hatfield's current request for the same observance, pointing out that the patience of God has finite limits.

Certainly, this is the time to return to God, Dr. De Koster said, pointing to the loss of 50,000 lives in an unresolved Vietnam war, the rise of a Cold War in the Mediterranean despite U.S. military power, the decline of the dollar in the world's richest nation, the accelerated spending on U.S. education, etc.

We seem to be courting totalitarian dictatorship where freedom is given to license, freedom of speech to obscenity, and the freedom of self expression to half truths and whole lies which could lead to state censorship," he said.

He urged citizens today to gather as a penitent people seeking divine forgiveness, aware that a confession of sin is a confession of faith. He said God forgave His people 111 years ago and that He may yet again, pointing out that 1976 looms as the bicentennial year, "a time when God will hear us, pardon us and bless us and our children and our children's children in a spirit of liberty, justice and peace in His holy name."

Both Holland and Zeeland ser-of Prospect Park Christian Reformed Church gave the offertory prayer. Roger Davis was organist and Roger J. Rietberg led the choir.

Tulip Time Attractions Reviewed

Plans for attractions for the 1974 Tulip Time festival May 15-18 were reviewed at a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday afternoon. Work in all festival areas seems to be progressing well.

The board is holding a luncheon on the Tuesday before Tulip Time in Phelps Hall honoring Miss Lavina Cappon, longtime supervisor of Dutch costumes for klompen dancers. Miss Cappon will be the marshal at Wednesday's folk parade. Dr. Zachary Veldhuis, 104-year-old retired veterinarian living in Hamilton, will be marshal of the Saturday Parade of Bands.

Tickets for the Shrine band program Thursday night are a sellout and for the Barbershop parade of quartets Friday night a near sellout.

The board again is arranging for portable toilets in various areas of the city.

Costume exchange carried on by the Newcomers Club will be held in the Civic Center exhibition room May 6-10 from 1 to 4 p.m., and open May 9 from 1 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Costume distribution for street scrubbing is scheduled May 6-9 in the Civic Center Green Room from 3 to 5 p.m. This service also will be available May 13 from 5 to 9 p.m.

Attending Tuesday's meeting were Mike Gorno, James Vande Pol, Don Rohlick, Betty Dick, Nelson Bosman, Jacob De Graaf, Dwight Ferris, Pauline Vander Kooi, Burton Bort, Andy Van Slot, Mrs. Ralph Lescohier, Mrs. Rose Albers, Henry Vande Linde, Mrs. David Conklin and Mrs. Lois Matchinsky.

Local Girl Scores High in Spanish

A student of Trinidad Perez at West Ottawa, Miss Mascorro won the prize for outside experience in Spanish and was awarded a $200 scholarship to Hope College.

Other winners were from Grand Rapids, Allegan and Fremont.

The contest was for students enrolled in Spanish classes and 120 students took the examination at Hope College, according to Orestes G. Pino, assistant professor of Spanish and coordinator of the Hope testing center.

May Declared National Guard Recruiting Month

Mayor Lou Hallacy II has proclaimed May as Holland National Guard Recruiting Month in recognition of the local unit's efforts to increase its membership.

The authorized strength of Co. B is 154 and the unit now has 132 men and is engaged in a recruiting effort to bring the unit to its authorized strength.

Annual salaries paid to members of Co. B in Holland are more than $165,000.

Rezoning Ordinances Are Studied

Three ordinances were accepted for first reading at a regular meeting of City Council Wednesday night.

One involves a request from Woodland Partners to rezone about 1.35 acres located on the east side of Washington Ave. between 28th and 29th Sts. from C-1 neighborhood commercial ad A-2 residential to B-1 apartment to allow construction of a retirement condominium.

Another dealt with a Planning Commission recommendation that the request of P. Nienhuis for industrially zoned property along Eighth St. from Lincoln Ave. east to Western Foundry be rezoned C-2 Highway commercial.

Public hearings on both zoning issues are scheduled May 22.

The third involves revisions to the sign ordinance, defining temporary signs and relaxing certain restrictions on detached signs in large business and industrial areas, and allowing such operations as a temporary yard sale sign on residential premises.

A city manager recommendation on utilities at the Meadowlakes Complex was approved accepting streets and rights of way.

A question regarding a magic square at Washington School brought information that completion is expected this summer.

Council approved a Board of Public Works agreement turning over 5 1/2 per cent of electric utility sales for the next current fiscal year to the general fund.

Petitions objecting to noise at 131 West 32nd St. bearing 28 signatures were referred to the city manager and police department. The city manager said the police chief also had been informed of the nuisance and was taking action.

Regarding the proposed increase of 25 cents a month for refuse collection, Hillis Timmer of Jacobus's Refuse Co. said the boost was necessary because of overall increased costs of operation, particularly in fuel and equipment. He said a similar increase last year had been accompanied by an alternative to pick up trash at the curb, but the city was not at all desirous of such a change.

Fred Wise, 663 Lugers Rd., March of Dimes chairman, invited Councilmen to participate in the second annual Walkathon Saturday, May 4, starting at 9 a.m. He said several city officials participated last year.

Council acknowledged several gifts for Herrick Library including memorial books and $350 from the Junior Welfare League for two films. Also acknowledged were several gifts for Holland Hospital including six hand operated resuscitators from the Tuesday Service Guild, a $390 respirator from Mr. and Mrs. Val Young, $700 in cash and a $1,000 fetal monitor from the Christian Reformed Guild, $500 from R. S. De Witt, and 100 Gideon Bibles.

Council okayed a contract for the Hospital Board to purchase a home in the area adjoining hospital-owned homes.

Bilingual Booklet Explains Rights Of Tenants, Owners

A booklet explaining federal, state and city rental housing laws and codes has been published in English and Spanish by the Holland Human Relations Commission.

"Tenant - Landlord Rights and Responsibilities" is a bilingual pamphlet outlining the rights and responsibilities of both tenant and landlord. The booklet places equal emphasis on specific tenant rights which must be respected by landlords and clear cut landlords rights which must be recognized by tenants.

The pamphlet points to the legal right a landlord has to protect his property, to collect his rent, and to ask the city housing inspector to inspect and write out a housekeeping order for a tenant who keeps the dwelling in unhealthy or unsanitary conditions.

Attention is given to the city housing requirements a landlord must meet to maintain a safe, fit and decent rental unit.

Free copies of the booklet are available at Community Action House, Good Samaritan Center and the Human Relations Commission office on the third floor of City Hall.

Cycle Crash Kills Muskegon Man

GRAND HAVEN — Frank George Diepen, 37, of Muskegon, was killed at 1:55 a.m. Saturday when the motorcycle he was operating went out of control on an exit ramp of the US-31 expressway and struck a guard rail.

Diepen was pronounced dead on arrival at North Ottawa Community Hospital. He was the sixth traffic fatality in Ottawa County this year compared with 15 deaths a year ago.

Ottawa County deputies said Diepen was northbound on an exit ramp at Ferrysburg when he lost control, hit the guard rail and skidded 200 feet before coming to a stop. Deputies said the motorcycle remained on top of Diepen.

Tax Rate Remains Unchanged

No Objections On City Budget

With no objections from the audience at a public hearing, City Council Wednesday night adopted the 1974-75 city budget which calls for a city tax levy of $2.278,530 and a tax rate of $15.62 per thousand state equalization, no increase over last year's rate.

Mayor Lou Hallacy said the current budget has by far been the most difficult to resolve in any of the six years he has served on City Council. Throughout the long thorough study, Council became very knowledgeable with the city's finances, he said, and was willing to hear any questions or discussions from citizens. The lack of response almost seemed a let-down.

Councilman Robert Dykstra pointed to an editorial in the Sentinel April 27 titled "One Small Joy," expressing gratitude for small blessings in that there would be no increase in the tax rate. He read: "We would be more grateful could the rate be decreased, but we have been conditioned not to expect miracles. This little bit of good news, insignificant as it is in relation to the overwhelming bad news we constantly get, will perhaps serve to remind us that there is still hope."

The resolution adopting the budget pointed to partial implementation of the Civil Service study conducted on behalf of the city of Holland. Funds for implementation are included in respective departmental budgets and there are no changes in fringe benefits.

For the Hospital, an increase of 7 per cent is allowed employees with the exception of five positions, and all potential merit increases under the compensation plan placed in effect a year ago are temporarily suspended.

For the Board of Public Works, compensation rates and salaries for managerial positions were approved, but with no changes in fringe benefits. An 8 per cent increase is approved for clerical personnel. Union employees come under a collective bargaining contract.

The budget resolution included a renewal employment agreement for a one-year period with City Manager William L. Bopf. It also authorizes the city manager or assistant city manager to make adjustments within each departmental account of the general fund without prior council approval, provided adjustments are in the nature of revised estimate involving no change in program.

The entire budget transaction took less than 15 minutes.

Three Townships to Appeal

County Approves Equalization Plan

GRAND HAVEN — Ottawa County Commissioners Thursday adopted the 1974 equalization report and at least three townships said they would file appeals with the state tax commission.

The report lists the equalized value of the county at $722,935,130 up $88,388,065 from the 1973 value for a nearly 14 per cent increase.

Commission chairman William Winstrom of Holland said a meeting was scheduled May 23 with state tax commission officials, the county commissioners and representatives from the townships, villages and cities to discuss the equalization methods.

Port Sheldon township supervisor Lloyd Bakker said his township planned to join Wright and Tallmadge townships in filing an appeal with the state concerning the county's method of equalization.

Port Sheldon township was given an equalizing factor of 1.351, Tallmadge a 1.282 factor and Wright a 1.261 factor.

In presenting his report, finance committee chairman James K. Dressel of Holland said the equalization method was a mechanical function to bring the equalized valuation up to 50 per cent of the valuation by use of factors.

Bakker objected to the "mechanical methods" and believed Port Sheldon township was up to the 50 per cent valuation before the factor was added.

"Now we're up to 70 per cent," claimed Bakker. He said his township was assessed at a "much higher rate than other townships" in the county.

Zeeland city assessor Arthur Grimes wondered whether Zeeland "was a fool" in raising its assessments this year before the county made a study and placed on a factor.

"You followed the law," replied Dressel.

Grimes said he could not understand how some governmental units continue to get no factors when valuation of property goes up and no studies of the property are made by the county.

Grimes said maybe Zeeland should have waited until the county studied property values and hiked the assessments "and take the clobbering every three years or so."

Winstrom suggested governmental units work with the county equalization board in property assessments to avoid problems and difficulties.

"In the future we need mutual understanding of the problems to settle difficulties in assessments," he explained.

But Blendon township supervisor Melvin Van Heukelum suggested a problem might be lack of public knowledge and suggested township supervisors hold meetings to explain the assessment procedures.

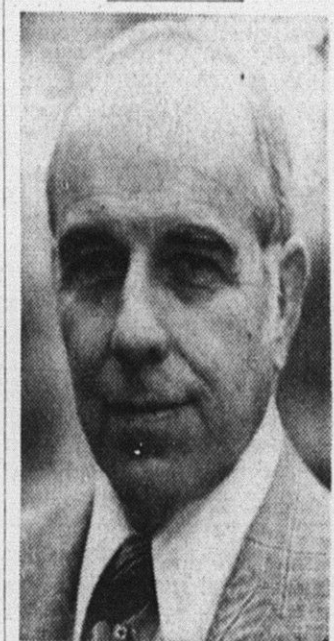

He said about 400 persons attended such a meeting he set up and "it cut my telephone calls and questions about assessments by 90 per cent. It's a lack of communication and education."

Commissioners voted eight to one to adopt the equalization report. Commissioner Fred C. Fritz of Conklin voted against the motion. Commissioners William Kieft and Kenneth Northouse were absent.

Commissioners adopted a report on revenue sharing expenditures provided items for the sheriff's department and the Civil Defense cut from the third entitlement period were given priority consideration in the fifth entitlement period.

Commissioners adopted a recommendation of the administration committee to increase fees charged other counties for use of the county youth home. The daily fee per person was increased from the current $19 to $25 and a $12 fee was added for physical examinations. The new rates are effective May 1.

Players' Audience Are Caught in 'Red Magic'

By Helen Wright
"Red Magic" surrounded the audience in the Studio Theatre in De Witt Cultural Center, Thursday, physically and in spirit.

It is hard to classify this work by Michel de Ghelderode. It is comedy in the satirical tradition of Moliere with slapstick, bawdy touches. It is a precursor, we are told in program notes, to the Comedy of the Absurd.

Certainly the well-directed, capable cast played the comedy to the hilt, both the dialogue and the grotesque byplay.

The entire cast is strong enough to capture one's imagination, no small feat in this story of incredible gullibility and greed, and the settings and costumes aid them in the feat. While the time of the play is not certain, there is a feeling of the beleaguered Holy Roman Empire at the time of the Thirty Years War about it. And the grimy dwelling of the miser, Hieronymous and the tacky bedraggled finery of the principals add to the air of times gone madly awry.

George Ralph as Hieronymous performs prodigiously in a role that has him on stage almost constantly, and in a fever of greed, fear or lust most of the time. He is great in soliloquy, but particularly good with the other characters as they play on his avariciousness and feed his willing gullibility.

Joanne Bach as Sybilla, his unfaithful wife lustfully obsessed with the Cavalier exudes an icy excitement that is as fascinating to watch as her lissome physical presence. Richard Hoehler has the most truly comic role and plays it right up to his final olfactory offense to the miser, in death. His costume and makeup are pure Breughel, without Breughel's rosy jollity.

Harry Carmanos is also excellent as the beggar, nearly as miserly as Hieronymous, and a great deal more treacherous and clever. His fanning of the miser's credibility and greed provide some high spots in the play.

Last of the principals to appear, William TeWinkle as Armador, soldier of fortune and con-man par excellence, has his own aura of glittering evil. Better bred than those he is dealing with, he too is caught in his own kind of greed and his lust for Sybilla.

Ghelderode's view of life is cynical but highly moral, and at the denouement, only three of the unsavory characters remain alive. Hieronymous is in the custody of the magistrate and his menacing men-at-arms, briefly but effectively portrayed by Michael Menken, Paul De Weese, Russ Kupfrian and Steve Saling, is being hustled to his doom. Since the author's premise is that we are all self-deluding and eager to believe what will enforce our deepest wishes, it is a foregone conclusion that Sybilla and Armador will also fall prey to their own fatal flaws.

"Red Magic" is an interesting play and entertaining in its presentation of disturbing truths. The Hope College Theatre year is fittingly climaxed in the production.

BREEDING ANOTHER CRISIS

Science magazine, published weekly by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, has earned a well deserved reputation for soundness and probity. That lends weight to a forecast by the editor of this publication that a couple of years hence we probably will be caught up in an energy crisis worse than at the time of the recent oil embargo.

The editor, Dr. Philip H. Abelson, is not alone in holding this view. Other expert observers outside the government balance the chances for rigorous public gasoline conservation against the limited prospects for big supply boosts, and conclude that there is more trouble ahead.

Among these is Dr. James R. Murray of the National Opinion Research Center. He is pessimistic about the public's tenacity in conserving gas to make it go further. This is not an unsupported opinion; it rests on surveys showing that, as the expectation of trouble subsides thanks to increased allocations and the embargo's end, interest in conservation also is on the decline.

Neither Abelson nor Murray thinks much of the Federal Energy Office assumption that rising gasoline prices will cut demand enough to avert shortages. Murray's survey findings make this seem questionable, since they show "no relationship between the price paid for gas and cutting down on driving." A similar conclusion is reached by Hans H. Landsberg, who is associated with a private research group called Resources for the Future. He notes that the cost of rising gas prices "comes in dribbles" and thus has relatively little impact, and points out that in any case fuel represents only a small fraction of the cost of car ownership and operation.

It is evident that Americans' interest in fuel conservation is waning. Unless it can be re-stimulated, we are going to bring on another energy crisis.

Varied Responses
To the Gospel
Acts 17: 1b-5, 8-18
By C. P. Dame

The gospel has been preached for centuries and it has been accepted by millions and rejected by multitudes and today many are indifferent to it. What happened in the first century is taking place again today. It is the task of the church to preach the gospel.

I. The gospel is preached today, in many ways. "They came to Thessalonica," the preachers, Paul and Silas and Timothy, and in the synagogue of that city Paul preached for three Sabbaths, proving from the scriptures that Jesus is the promised Messiah and that His suffering and death and resurrection are foretold in Scripture.

This truth shocked the Jewish hearers. Some of the devout Greeks, proselytes and some of the leading women, believed. The unbelieving Jews gathered together some rowdies and they attacked the house of Jason where they thought the missionaries were lodging. The trouble was reported to the authorities, called politarchs, who were told that the missionaries were turning the world upside down.

The gospel still disturbs people as it did in the first century. When the believers realized that it was best for Paul and Silas to leave they escorted them to Beroea by night and there the missionaries preached and got the hearers so much interested that they studied the Old Testament and both men and women believed.

II. Preaching arouses opposition—then and now. When the unbelieving Jews of Thessalonica heard that some had accepted the gospel in Beroea they came there for the purpose of making trouble which they did by arousing a crowd. Believers felt it was best for Paul to leave the city and so they brought him to Athens.

Paul gave orders to the brethren to tell Silas and Timothy to come to him as soon as possible. Paul did his best work when he was supported by friends. Note that the missionaries were not quitters when they met with opposition but kept right on in spite of it.

III The gospel is also for the intellectuals. Paul was shocked by the many idols he saw in Athens and it stirred him to action. He preached in the synagogue and in the market place daily and to the intellectuals who were always eager to hear something new.

Paul always considered his hearers and so in this instance he spoke about the unknown god whose altar he had seen and asserted that he was proclaiming Him and then described Him as the Creator and Sustainer and Judge of all. The judging will be done by a man whom God raised from the dead.

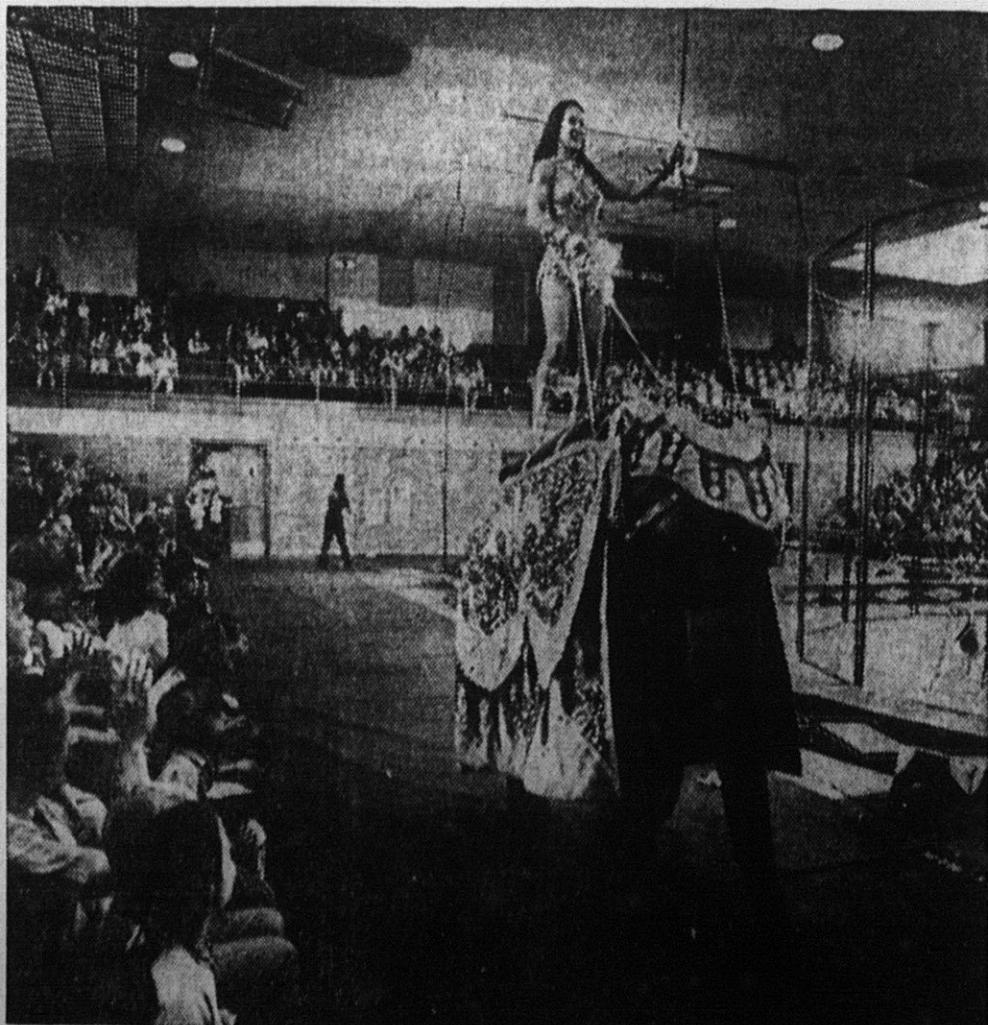

Some mocked at the idea of the resurrection from the dead, some postponed the matter, but several responded to the call of repentance "among them Dionysius, the Areopagite and a woman named Damaris and others with them."

Ella Jenkins a Hit With Young Authors

By Gary Coffey

Last Saturday, at the Young Author's Conference, held at Hope College, Miss Ella Jenkins, internationally known for her work in children's music, led 225 enthusiastic children and 40 not very restrained teachers in a sing along.

The children who attended were selected by other children in schools on the basis of a piece of creative writing they had done. In addition to the sing-along the children participated in a sharing period where each child read his own work to members of a small group, and a small group creative experience session.

Miss Jenkins was born in St. Louis and grew up on the South Side of Chicago. Her music career began by singing in coffee houses in San Francisco where her music was mostly African, accompanying herself on the congo. From there she became involved in children's music and abandoned her congo in favor of a baritone ukelele. With the change to the ukelele her music became more melodious and she began to develop her well-known "call and response" technique.

The "call and response" technique calls for the children to participate in the songs, first by supplying a missing word, then an entire line, until they are ultimately doing the entire song. It is with this method that the children are to learn about rhythm, sound, and body movement.

The sing-along began with Miss Jenkins asking questions of the children which first required only the raising of hands, then short verbal answers, then longer ones until the children relaxed.

Miss Jenkins displayed a great deal of awareness to the children's responses and with this to her advantage knew when to expect more from them. The children began by filling in the last word in a line sung by Miss Jenkins and then she asked that they echo the entire line. In surprisingly short time (much less time than it took this reporter to master words) she requested that the children do the entire song, which they under took eagerly (and flawlessly).

The children were then given a series of body motions to accompany a song. With this as a springboard, and Miss Jenkins as a guide, the children were taken on a tour of creative rhythms they could produce with their bodies.

The children's participation was climaxed by several of them meeting on stage and accompanying Miss Jenkins with various rhythm instruments. This was followed by the highlight of the session which consisted of all the male teachers taking the stage with Miss Jenkins. They did solos or duets with rhythm instruments accompanied by Miss Jenkins playing (surprisingly) a blues ukelele.

Perhaps the best description knowingly by Miss Jenkins of Miss Jenkins was given, understood in one of her songs directed to the children, "no one else is quite like you, that's because you're someone very special."

Enthusiastic Response Given Oratorio 'Elijah'

By Dr. Anthony Kooliker

A large enthusiastic audience was present Thursday night for the final major production of the Hope College Music Department, one of the most important oratorios of the romantic period, Mendelssohn's "Elijah," presented in Diment Chapel by the Hope College Oratorio Chorus (a chorus composed of the College Chorus and selected members of the Chapel Choir) the college orchestra and soloists.

This work, perhaps the most admired of all Mendelssohn's compositions, was finished in 1846. The work, written originally with English text, was first performed in England in the same year, and received with great enthusiasm.

The local performance, though surely different from the original, was also received with great enthusiasm. The text of the oratorio, compiled mainly from the first book of Kings, was eloquently set forth by chorus and soloists with the college orchestra providing the colorful and dramatic background.

The tenor, David Aiken, guest soloist, provided the impetus for the other soloists who were heard at their best. Joyce Morrison, soprano, and Margaret Sherman, contralto, and Carroll Lehman, baritone — all members of the Hope College voice faculty — maintained the high professional standard set by

Though the night had many activities for Holland residents, it was a pity that the few remaining seats were not filled. To borrow again from the first review of this work in 1846—"...enthusiasm would be checked by no rules. One Alternate For Disposal Of Dredgings Deleted

At least one alternate for land disposal of polluted dredgings from Lake Macatawa shipping channel has been rejected following public meetings Wednesday and Thursday.

One of the sites proposed for dredgings was Hyma Island in the Black River west of Windmill Island but the Corps of Engineers agreed to delete that area as an alternate, it was reported today.

Environmentalists and conservationists had objected because the island as well as other marsh areas were habitats for wildlife and water fowl.

Assistant City Manager Terry L. Hofmeyer said the city prefers use of the former landfill off Sixth St. and Windmill Island for the disposal but added that other marsh areas on the north and south side of the river east of the River Ave. bridge were still considered alternatives by the Corps.

State codes now prohibit disposal of the polluted lake dredgings in the Great lakes or connecting waters. The land disposal method must provide that the polluted materials not find their way back into the waters.

NOSE Tips

by Leo Martonosi

The Big Ten's basketball Coach of the Year Johnny Orr of the University of Michigan entertained a large gathering at the Elks Stag Thursday evening.

"So many wonderful things happened to me this year compared to so many bad things last year," laughed Orr.

"Last year I was very depressed and actually thought of quitting but naturally I'm glad I stayed on because this was the finest group of players we ever had.

"They always gave me 100 percent and you can't ask for more than that," Orr continued.

"The fellows are very unselfish. They get along very well and play as a team."

The crowd roared as Orr cracked, "Last year I had a one way ticket to Europe but this year they were going to get me a round trip ticket."

He added, "Jerry Ford helped me recruit when he was minority leader but his boss isn't so popular now and Kennedy has outdone him on a couple of guys."

"Recruiting is a vicious business," Orr told the enthusiastic audience. "Michigan is one of the few universities in the country that is making money through sports. Basketball and football are the bread winners."

Asked if the great Campy Russell would be back at Michigan next year, Orr commented, "I don't think so."

The talented Russell has applied for the hardship case and

Red Cross Blood Clinic Held at Hope

The Red Cross Blood Clinic held Thursday at the Hope College gym sponsored by A Phi O fraternity with Peter Ringel as the fraternity chairman and Janet Cuperus as the Red Cross Blood Chairman. Hope College students worked as volunteers as well as the Red Cross for this clinic.

164 students came through with 142 actual donors. Local special blood type donors were also called for this clinic due to the increase of open heart surgery and operations with special type blood needed.

Mrs. Donald De Witt contacted the following nurses to work at the program, Mrs. Donald Hann, Mrs. William Boph, Miss Tina Van Zelt, Mrs. Calvin Hulst, Mrs. James Van Putten, Mrs. George Schroyenwever, Mrs. Muriel Cook and Mrs. Mary Ann Kalman. Mrs. Ernest Phillips was able to get volunteers to take pulse and temperatures, including Miss Gertrude Lievensen, Mrs. Gwen Van Eyck, Mrs. Newman and Mrs. L. J. Geuder.

Mrs. John Vander Vliet recruited Red Cross Volunteers to work at the following stations and at the registration desk were Florence Hall, Lois Purcell, Ellie Vander Werf, Hilda Frego, Lena Brummel and Mrs. Vander Vliet.

Labeling and at the juice table were Delma Simpson, Lenore Leach, Trudy Kasmirsky and Linda Van Vuren along with Tommie Lou Mooi and Lillian Mc Nitt. Serving as typists were Mrs. Donald Fetting and Mrs. Peter Schieringa.

Mrs. James Van Iwaarden acquired the following to work at the canteen: Janet Raffenaud, Fern Honstra, Gretchen Ming, Kay Nyland and Bertha Harrington. Chris Nivision worked in the donor room along with Cheryl Geerlings and Connie Brake, students of Holland High School.

Hope College schedules three clinics a year with the next one scheduled for Oct. 17.

will be up for grabs at the upcoming NBA draft.

"High school basketball in Michigan compares very well with those around the country," insisted Orr. "If Michigan and Michigan State signed all the top players in the state every year, we both would be title contenders."

"I don't think any other city in the country other than Los Angeles plays any better basketball than the city of Detroit." Michigan was eliminated from the NCAA tourney by Marquette and Orr wasn't trying to take anything away from the Warriors when he echoed, "We just didn't play that well against those guys. We just ran out of gas."

"Sure Bo would like Steve Grote on his football team," snapped John, when that question came from the crowd. "Vince Costello, the head assistant for Don Shula at Miami, said that Grote would be a first round draft choice regardless if he never played college football."

Orr outlined three important factors in trying to recruit athletes to Michigan.

"First off, I ask them if they go to church because if they do, I believe they have a much better chance of understanding our style of play. Second, we check out their grades. They can't be a dummy to get into Michigan. Third, We're always looking for the athlete that can dribble, pass, shoot and handle the ball. Sure its nice if all players 6'10" can do that but they can't."

There has been some talk that college basketball might go to the 30-second clock like the ABA.

"I'm definitely against that," Orr said. "It ruins the game. There's hardly any coaching involved in pro ball. The rich get richer and the pro games aren't decided until the final period."

The average coach in the Big Ten lasts two and one-half years and Johnny Orr has been at Michigan for the past six years.

Last year everyone was after his scalp but now he's considered one of the top coaches in the country.

Winning does that and Orr did that better than anyone else in the rugged Big Ten in 1973-74.

Salt Cellars Displayed For Van Raalte Questers

The Christine Van Raalte Chapter of the Questers met Monday at the homes of Mrs. Harry Frissel.

The program for the evening was given by Mrs. Frissel. She displayed many salt cellars for the members and they in turn brought some of their own. Salt cellars have been made in most patterns of glass and in many other shapes throughout history. One of the interesting by-products of salt cellar collecting is the necessary study of the history of American glass which is so intricately associated with it.

Containers for table salt have existed for centuries. DaVinci shows an over turning salt container, the symbol of ill omen, in his painting of the Last Supper. European museums have some of the old tall ornate ceremonial salts. These were placed in front of the lord of the feast.

Many beautiful salt cellars are made of silver and tiny silver spoons are made for use in these salt cellars. They also come with footed bottoms, but most are individual salts with solid walls and flat bottom. Their shapes are numerous. Some resemble animals while others are round, square and oblong. Colored salts are extremely rare as are the pewter ones.

Co-hostess for the evening were Mrs. Ben Cooper and Mrs. Gil Verhoeven. Election of officers for the coming year was held. They are president, Mrs. Harry Wendt; vice president, Mrs. Ralph Saveland; secretary, Mrs. Peter Sinke; treasurer, Mrs. William DeVries; head caller, Mrs. Ben Cooper; librarian, Mrs. Glen Klopfeinstein; historian, Mrs. Lawrence McCormick.

The last event of the year will be a picnic on June 3 at the home of Mrs. Jane Lampen. The Muskegon Chapters of the Questers will host the spring luncheon at the Spring Lake Country Club on June 5. Twelve members have made reservations.

READY FOR DELIVERY — The largest yacht built locally and sold locally was ready for delivery this week to its Grand Haven area owner. The 68-foot Roamer yacht, built in Holland, sells for $300,000 and was sold through Bay Haven Marina, according to officials at Roamer. The motor yacht is equipped with twin V-12 turbo charged diesel engines that develop 655 horsepower each. The 68-footer is designed to accommodate 12 persons but the owner had it modified for fewer persons. Roamer officials said the 68-foot model is sold out through next winter and that each vessel is ordered before work is started on it. Normally it takes between eight and nine months from order to delivery.
