Chaplain of the Year

By Prof. Henry E. Schoon ’15

Major David M. Reardon ’32 was named by the Army as its outstanding chaplain of the year, in ceremonies held in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City, on the anniversary of the sinking of the S. S. Dorchester. This troop transport was torpedoed on February 3, 1943. Four never-to-be-forgotten chaplains gave their livesbelts to troops who were on board, and their heroic sacrifices have been acclaimed as the noblest deeds of World War II.

Each year a chaplain who best exemplifies the spirit of these brave men is selected from the Army, the Navy and the Air Force, is given a special commendation and presented with a cash award of $500 given by the B’nai B’rith.

In presenting the award, Major General Roy H. Parker, Chief Chaplain of the Army, said in part: “We are pleased to know that your service in the past year was of such a nature that it has merited this special recognition, and we rejoice with you knowing that the love of God has always motivated your activities in the interest of your fellowmen. You have reason to feel deep satisfaction in your accomplishments and we believe your past record will be an incentive to ever greater service to God and country . . . .”

Chaplain Reardon, a native of Buffalo Center, Iowa, received his education in schools of the Reformed Church: The Pleasant Prairie Academy, Hope College and New Brunswick Theological Seminary. At the outbreak of World War II he was minister of the Washington Reformed Church at Ackley, Iowa. When one after another of the young men of his church was called into the service, Rev. Reardon felt that he, too, must go to minister to young men away from home, even though it meant leaving his family and his beloved parish.

During World War II he served in the Asiatic Pacific Theatre, as well as in the Aleutians. After his return to the United States he was sent to Europe where he spent three years with the Armed Cavalry in Bavaria. His knowledge of the German language enabled him to be an ambassador of good will while contacting the ministers and people of that war-torn country.

When Korea burst into the flames of war, he was at Fort Benning. The 15th Infantry of which he was a chaplain was sent to the Orient. His regiment was landed at the Port of Wonson, Korea, north of the 38th parallel. He accompanied his troops in the successful rescue mission which drove through heavy Red attacks to link with the marines retreating from the Changjin Reservoir. The troops, under heavy pressure by the Chinese hordes that swept down from the Yalu, fought their way to the historic Hungnam beachhead, where the complicated evacuation took place. Chaplain Reardon was among the last group of men to leave the beachhead.

Later he went with his men as they fought their way from a southern port back to Seoul, enduring with them all the hardships of a cold winter and battle conditions. He held services in first-aid stations or wherever he could get his men together. He was not a back area chaplain, but was always found where he could give comfort and inspiration to the frontline soldier. While helping lift a wounded soldier upon a stretcher, he himself was wounded by an enemy sniper. It was typical of him to scorn personal danger if he could be of comfort and help to his men.

The Fort Devens Dispatch proudly claims him as one of the most decorated clerics of the Army, but with characteristic modesty he says that he did only what any other chaplain under similar circumstances would have done.

At present Chaplain (Major) Reardon is stationed at Fort Devens, Massachusetts. He lives with his wife Hermina, and children—Patricia, age 13; David, age 11, and Michael, age 9, in quarters on the post.

Editor’s note: The significance of this award is two-fold for Hope College alumni and former students. One of the chaplains who went down in heroic manner on the S.S. Dorchester was Clark Poling who was a student on our campus from 1929 to 1931.

HOPE POET PUBLISHES NEW VOLUME

APRIL FAITH is the name of the most recent collection of verse by Phillip Engel ’31 (see Alumni Magazine, July, 1951). The poems in this collection, recently published, deal with a variety of scenes, personalities and moods. The title is taken from the first poem in it, in which Phillip strives to show the rebirth of another life after the rigors of winter. The poem concludes as follows:

April faith. That is ours,
A faith that shines like crystal sky
Like dew-flakes on Aprilian flowers
Here is faith to journey by.

Hope Man Translates Dutch Trilogy

During the summer of 1950 my wife and I made a trip to Europe and spent several weeks in the Netherlands. At the request of Willard Wichers, of the Netherlands Information Bureau, I called on P. J. Risseeuw, noted Dutch novelist. In 1947 he had completed and published two books, "Vrijheid en Brood" (Freedom and Bread) and "De Huilende Wildernis" (The Howling Wilderness), historical novels which describe the religious and economic backgrounds in the Netherlands that culminated in the emigration of thousands of Dutch people to America. These two books deal with the years 1834-1852 and the establishment of Dutch colonies in Michigan, Iowa and Wisconsin. His latest book, "Ik Worstel en Ontkomen" (The Fight for Victory) appeared in the fall of 1951 and deals with the experiences of the Dutch immigrants during the years 1852-1876, the year of Van Raalte's death. This completes the trilogy.

During the course of our conversation Mr. Risseeuw mentioned that he was anxious to have the books published in English but hadn't found anyone who was willing to tackle the translation. I hadn't even read the books but did so as soon as I got home. They were interesting to me as a second generation Hollander and I agreed to attempt the translation. Using all of my spare time for several months, the manuscripts were completed. During the past winter I translated the latest book. The books are rich in historical data and reflect a tremendous amount of research, both in the Netherlands and from American sources, on the part of the author. The real-life characters are vividly portrayed, especially Van Raalte, Van der Meulen and Scholte. Van Raalte was a man of vision. The battle to fill the material needs of the colonists; his realization that schools were absolutely essential; his fight to establish an academy for higher education; his campaigns to raise money for that purpose; the early history of the Academy which in 1862 became known as Hope College; his troubles because of religious dissension—all make interesting reading.

The majority of the second, third, fourth and fifth generation of descendents of these Dutch pioneers are unfamiliar with this early history. However, we must realize that we, as Americans, are today enjoying the fruits of their vision and efforts. Hope College stands as a monument to Van Raalte's unflagging zeal, and as one of his crowning achievements.

Before the books are published in English, some revisions and condensations may have to be made to speed up the tempo of the books, thus adapting them to American reading habits. It is our hope they may be read by many. My motive in making the translations was, primarily, to give the present generation some interesting reading material and an appreciation of the rich heritage they have.

C. L. Jalving

PIETER JOHANNES RISSEEUW
Pinksterbloemplein 43
The Hague, Netherlands
Author of the Dutch Emigration Trilogy translated into English by C. L. Jalving.

Mr. Risseeuw, employed in a banking institution in The Hague, began his writing career at the age of 15, in 1916. In 1918 he founded the Dutch periodical "Opgang," and was one of the founders of the literary magazines "Opwaartsche Wegen" in 1922 and "Ontmoeting" in 1945.

This author was not in a position to publish his works during the war years because he refused to join the German "Kultur Kammer" in 1941. He devoted these years to the study of the Emigration of 1847, leaders of which were Van Raalte, Scholte and Van der Meulen. From 1941 to 1951 he wrote his three novels on the subject of these Dutch settlements in Michigan and Iowa.

"Vrijheid en Brood," the first volume, deals with the motives for emigration, the voyage and the arrival in America.

In the second volume "De Huilende Wildernis," the initial difficult years of the settlement are described.

Hope Men in Science

Martin E. Cupery '24, the man "Who Calls the Signals" in Du Pont's campaign to discover "better things for better living—through chemistry."

Martin E. Cupery, who has so many patents and joint inventions to his credit that he has lost count of them, is a senior chemist with Du Pont Chemical Company. He is described in the February issue of "Industrial and Engineering Chemistry" (page 11A) a publication of the American Chemical Society, as the senior chemist who "calls the signals while the whole team makes the touchdowns."

Dr. Cupery's modest comment on this epithet is: "For nearly 21 years it has been my privilege to 'call the signals,' but without the loyal cooperation of my fellow workers most of the results would not have been possible."

Here are a few of the high spots of Dr. Cupery's career with Du Pont since 1931:

1. Assisted in the development of Neoprene, the first synthetic rubber produced commercially—by Du Pont.
2. Discovered the process now used commercially for the manufacture of Sulfamic Acid and its derivatives. These products are now being produced on a large commercial scale. This chemical goes into Du Pont's "Amanate" weed-killer and is also the basic ingredient in "Fire-Retardant C." This latter commodity was used during World War II to flame-proof cellophane capes, carried by every soldier to be used as a shelter in case of a gas attack. It is also used to flameproof workmen's clothing in munitions factories—has saved a number of lives. There are also numerous other uses of Sulfamic Acid.
3. Made the first experimental nylon bristles and assisted in the early phases of this development.
4. Discovered a new type of rapid-drying finish which proved very useful in World War II for high-speed painting of tanks, trucks and army equipment. This product went into well over $10 million worth of finishes for the government.
5. Recent developments are still in the experimental stage. At least one of these appears headed for commercialization but it will take from three to five years to reach commercial scale volume.

"Reward For Work" Comment: "Several years ago, while I was visiting a research laboratory connected with a plant manufacturing special explosives for the government, I was told about a serious powder flash which had occurred at this plant the previous day. The workers involved in the process escaped injury because they wore asbestos gloves, protective head-gear and clothing flame-proofed with Du Pont "Fire-Retardant C." Those describing the accident did not know the story behind the "Fire-Retardant C" development, and I did not bother to inform them, but it certainly gave me a sense of deep satisfaction that our discovery made a few years earlier had protected these workers from severe pain, and possibly, fatal injury. These are the intangible rewards that come to persistent scientists!"

DUTCH TRILOGY

Volume three “Ik Worstel en Ontkom” relates the happenings in the years between 1851 and 1876. The principal concerns are the separation in 1857, the civil war, the fire of Holland and the death of Van Raalte in 1876.

Naturally the founding of Hope College occupies a prominent place in these novels.

A radio play of the story in the first two volumes was broadcast in the Netherlands in 1947.

The author is very grateful to Mr. Jalving for his interest and his work in the tremendous task of translating these volumes. Each volume is about 300 pages in length and Mr. Jalving estimates that it took him one-half hour to a page to make the translation. He is now doing a certain amount of revision to make the stories a bit more anglicized.

Mr. Risseeuw takes justifiable pride in a sizable bibliography of Dutch novels covering the years from 1930 to 1951.

1934. Rev. John Pott has accepted the appointment as head of the Bible department at Chicago Christian High School. He has just completed a four and one half year service at Vriesland Reformed Church. A graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary his first charge was in the Deerfield, N.J. DID YOU KNOW

That the current enrollment of Hope College is 838? That Hope College ranks 8th in our nation in the percentage of successful candidates for the Ph.D. degree?

That, in spite of its relatively small size, Hope College stands 153th among 1700 colleges and universities in this country in the number of its alumni listed in Who's Who?

That Hope College currently has thirty-two foreign students although the national average is only two per college or university?

Here They Are — Robbie and Gramp!

Robbie arrived December 24. His formal name is Robert David, and his parents are Irwin J. Jr. and Jean Snow '49 Lubbers. And our president has another title to add to his long list. From the picture one would discern that he enjoys this role best.

His team, the Bellevue Broncos, ended the seasons champions in their league in 1950 and 1951. During 1951 the Broncos scored a total of 176 points, and had a total of 14 points scored against them. Mrs. Korstange is the former Fruea Douwstra '37.

Heads Chemistry Department

Calvin A. Vander Werf '37 has been named acting head of the department of chemistry at the University of Kansas. The appointment was occasioned by the leave-of-absence of Dr. Ray Q. Brewster, department chairman, who has accepted a Fulbright lectureship on the chemistry of dyes at Farouk 1 University in Egypt.

The Lawrence (Kansas) Daily Journal described Calvin with these words: "He has earned a reputation as one of the most brilliant young organic chemists in the nation and is now directing a research project sponsored by the Army Ordnance Department."

Dr. Vander Werf's brilliant career in chemistry includes being valedictorian of his Hope College class, further study at Ohio State University from which he received the Ph.D. in 1941. He has been affiliated with the chemistry department at the University of Kansas since 1941. He joined the staff as an instructor and climbed steadily to the rank of full professor two years ago.

He was written-up in the January 1950 Alumni Magazine as a chemistry textbook co-author.

His association with the Carboloy organization began in 1951 with his assignment to employee relations duties in the Detroit plant. He held this post until his recent appointment to the Edmore plant.

Family: Janet Shuptrine '42N, wife, married in 1941; Melinda, age 1, daughter.

*1950. Jacob De Young, who received his M.S. in Chemistry from Wayne University early this year, has taken a research position with Merck Chemical Company, Rahway, New Jersey.

Richard Fairchild received his M.S. in Chemistry from Ohio University on February 2. He has accepted a position with Sterling Winthrop Research Institute as of March 3.

ELECTED VICE PRESIDENT

Willard G. De Groot '39 was elected Vice President of Bateman, Eichler & Co. in January. This organization is one of the leading investment security firms in Los Angeles, California. Willard has been associated with this firm since 1946. He started in the New Financing Department transferring to the Sales Department in December 1950.

After Hope, Willard, a Holland native, attended graduate school at Northwestern University for two years. He received his M.B.A. in 1940 and stayed on an additional year taking other courses and teaching.

Early in 1941 he joined the United States Navy and was on active duty until 1946, a Lieutenant Commander at the time of his discharge.

In the picture we see the family "at home." It includes Barbara (Stanford '40), Wendy, 10, and John, 4½. Extracurricular activity so far has been the building of their home at 1101 Singing Wood Drive, Arcadia, California in 1950.

WARNING

A copy of a business promotion letter has been called to our attention which reads partly as follows: "at the suggestion of Hope College Alumni Members already financially interested." The letter is addressed to alumni of Hope College and makes reference to the Alumni Association. Anyone receiving any communication of this kind is conclusively informed that the Hope College Alumni Association has had no part in it and such reference is a conspicuous misuse of the name of the Association.

PROMOTED

Edward H. Heneveld '39 has just been promoted to the position of Branch Manager of the American Seating Company Branch at Syracuse, New York, according to an announcement of James W. VerMeulen '26, Vice President and General Sales Manager of the Company.

Ed was born and educated in Holland. While at Hope he majored in Business Administration. He joined the American Seating Company in 1942, starting in the Industrial Relations Division.

During World War II he saw service in the Philippines as a Naval officer. After discharge from the service, he filled various assignments with American Seating Company. Following extensive sales training, he was assigned to the Central New York territory, out of Syracuse, in 1947. Two years ago he was promoted to the position of Office Manager at Syracuse. The Henevelds have two children.

HINKAMP COMPLETES OAK RIDGE COURSE

James Hinkamp '40, research supervisor on Petroleum Chemicals at Ethyl Corporation, Detroit, has recently completed a four-week course at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Radioisotopes—atoms which emit radiation—are proving valuable research tools in many fields of industrial research, as well as in bacteriology and medicine. They are widely used for tracing complicated chemical processes. Jim, Ph.D. in Chemistry, plans to use the results of his study of radioisotopes in chemical projects at the Ethyl laboratories.

Jim received his Ph.D. from Ohio State in 1943. He is a member of Phi Lambda Upsilon, Gamma Alpha and Sigma Xi (scientific fraternities), the American Chemical Society and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Mrs. Hinkamp is "Teddy" Meulendyke '40. Jim and Teddy have two children, Jimmy, 6, and Joanny, 3. They live at 1444 South Bates Street, Birmingham.
Quinquennial Reunions Being Held
June 7, 1952

The QUARTER CENTURY is becoming quite a big and competitive event. The Class of '27 comes up this year for the 25th reunion and the slogan seems to be “beat '26 or bust.” Their plans are so inclusive and the committee is putting on such a big “push” that it is doubtful if they “bust.” The committee is headed by Mel Lubbers and is ably abetted by Mable Coburn Knit, Marie De Cook Saunders, Matthew Peelen, Clyde and Ardeen Geertlings. Besides the actual committee there are three chairmen who are assigned the pleasure of fostering the spirit to reunite (with direction to coerce if need be in some cases) in their respective areas. These area chairmen are: William Bonnema, Chicago; Rutherford Huisenga, New York City; Hazel Lokker Ferguson, Benton Harbor and Southern Michigan; William G. Maat, out-state-New York; LeRoy Nattress, the Far West; Neil Gan; William G. Maat, out-state-New York City; Hazel Lokker Ferguson, Benton Harbor and Southern Michigan; Garrett and Billie Winter, Grand Rapids and central Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Van Zoeren have invited the Class of 1912, with wives or husbands, to luncheon at their home, 70 West 9th Street, Holland, on Saturday, June 7.

1941
As for the younger classes, it now appears that the Class of 1941 is out to establish a record for the 10 year reunion. A committee headed by Beth Marcus is planning luncheon for at least 100 in the Juliana Room of Durfee Hall, on June 7 at 1:30. Must be that’s a class of food connoisseurs for they seem to be working as hard on an acceptable menu as they are on getting great numbers of members to attend. That committee consists of, besides Beth: John Visser; Donald and Lileen Van Ark; Bill and Peg Hakken, Jack and Jets Baas.

1937
The committee as you’ve seen published many times is: Ek Buys, Jane Eldridge Breen and Bill Poppink.

1922
With the QUARTER CENTURY in the background, the Class of 1922, is planning a peaceful, mellow, pleasant (sans fanfare) gathering with Harvey Kleinheksel and Lilian Van Dyke in charge.

1902
Dr. Henry De Pree started gathering data about the members of his class when he returned to the campus in 1948. So the Class of 1902 will have “all kinds of time” on its side for the June 7 Festival.

1937
As we go to press, word is received that the Class of 1937 will hold a reunion luncheon in the Marine Room of the Warm Friend Tavern at 1:30 P.M. on Saturday, June 7.

It’s still time—members of the classes of '07, '17, '32, '47. Any good “live-wire” will see the potential in concentration of effort in a small amount of time. We, in the Alumni Office, will help anyone who wants to enter his class in this big once-a-year competition.

COMMUNITY HOBBYIST
When the town of Traverse City launched the gigantic, the real project of creating Northwestern Michigan College so its young people who could not afford a downtown college could enjoy advanced education, everyone, even the children, started working to contribute means.

Fifteen little girls, under the direction of Lois Keppel Samuelson '32 produced "Peter Pan." It was successfully presented for two nights and enabled those 15 Girl Scouts to add $400 to the college fund.

And this is how these "veterans" of the "Little" theatre did it, according to the director: "It started four years ago in Girl Scouts with a musical comedy "Christmas Eve in a Toyshop," which proved so successful everyone wanted more. The next year we did "Cinderella," and we had people standing out in the halls with children sitting on the floor overflowing the theatre. So this past summer we started a Little Theatre group and we gave 'Peter Pan.'

"'Oh be careful, Peter, watch out.' When Peter called for the audience to believe in fairies or Tink would die, the roof nearly fell in with applause. Instead of the old fashioned dances that the professional cast used, we used modern tunes and dances. Imagine the kids doing, 'Ballin' the Jack' and 'Huckle-Buck' in Barrie's masterpiece. We were asked to take it on the road, but school was starting and we didn't attempt it."

Lois enthusiastically gives all the credit to Peter and Wendy. When our dark-skinned and dimpled Peter was dancing unconcernedly on the stage and Captain Hook entered to poison the medicine, a child in the audience yelled out, "Oh be careful, Peter, watch out." When Peter called for the audience to believe in fairies or Tink would die, the roof nearly fell in with applause. Instead of the old fashioned dances that the professional cast used, we used modern tunes and dances. Imagine the kids doing, "Ballin' the Jack" and "Huckle-Buck" in Barrie's masterpiece. We were asked to take it on the road, but school was starting and we didn't attempt it."

Of course this Little Theatre is not the only project of these wonderful children. They design floats in their spare time. Their next theatre adventure will be with "Little Women."

And naturally Lois has to have a real hobby. That's politics. Right now she is trying to elect a President—a Republican, I'm told. And she and Clarence are building their third home. But that's part of their business.
THE JOHN H. RUMP SCHOLARSHIP
A Bequest

Maude Colton Rumph, who died October 15, 1951, bequeathed to Hope College ten thousand dollars to establish the JOHN H. RUMP SCHOLARSHIP for senior students at Hope College.

Mrs. Rumph's sister, Mrs. Frederick Wheat of Hollis, New York, attested to the character which prompted this gift in the following words, "Both my sister and her husband loved young people. Having no children of their own, they were always helping boys and girls. Mrs. Rumph was a devoted Christian, never losing faith even in her long sickness—a beautiful character. Her hobby was music. She both taught and played the piano."

Mrs. Rumph was a member of the ‘Old Dutch' Reformed Church in Jamaica, New York, for 45 years. She was a member of the Board of Domestic Missions of the Reformed Church in America.

The Rev. Robert A. Watson of the First Reformed Church in Jamaica, Mrs. Rumph's last pastor, wrote: "I am very happy that Mrs. Rumph left a substantial amount to sustain the splendid work being done at Hope College. It will be, I am sure, a great help in educating and developing many who will give themselves with equal devotion to the work of Christ whom she loved so truly and served so faithfully."

We at Hope College are grateful to the Rumphs for this gift which will further the cause which they and we hold dear.

HOPE MEN CONTRIBUTE TO GREAT WORK

Hope College theologians have contributed to The Interpreter's Bible—"the greatest publishing event of this generation" for preachers, teachers, and Bible students. It is a completely new, twelve-volume, comprehensive commentary on the whole Bible.

Of the 146 most able scholars, editors and pulpits masters who have worked on this project, four are Hope college graduates. The first volume has been published after 7 years of work and 6 more years will be required to complete this—The Interpreter's Bible.

The four Hope College men who are contributing to this great work are Joseph R. Sizoo '07, President of New Brunswick Theological Seminary whose contribution is an Exposition on Joshua; James Mulinenburg '20, Professor of Hebrew and Cognate Languages, Union Theological Seminary, New York, who is contributing a General Article on the History of the Religion of Israel and an Introduction and Exegesis of Isaiah 40-66; and J. Coert Rylaarsdam '31, Associate Professor of Old Testament Theology, Chicago Theological Seminary and Federated Theological Faculty of the University of Chicago, contributing an Introduction and Exegesis of the Book of Exodus.

John W. Beardslee, Jr. '98, of New Brunswick Theological Seminary, is one of the 36 Consulting Editors. James Mulinenburg is also contributing to these volumes in this capacity.

Abingdon-Cokesbury Press is publishing this "Christendom's most comprehensive commentary" in 12 volumes.

1945. Marcia Hubers Zwief is now living at 1017 W. Mulberry, Fort Collins, Colorado. Her husband, Donald, is teaching engineering at Colorado A & M College. They have a new home and their third daughter.

1947. Robert Resch, now living at 5 Maplewood Road, Shrewsbury, Mass., is employed at Ciba Pharmaceutical Products Co. as a professional service representative. He is married to Margery Moore, a graduate of Colby Junior College and the Museum of Fine Arts School, Boston.

A. H. MEYER—A FRIEND OF HOPE

In the evening of February 29, Mr. A. H. Meyer, a very generous friend of Hope College, died at the age of 93.

Having had very little education himself, Mr. Meyer was always an education enthusiast. Six of the seven Meyer children attended Hope College, two of them graduating from the college, the others going on to other institutions for specialized training. Two of his children are presently on the faculty of Hope College: Marguerite Meyer Prins '17, head of the Department of French; and Nella Meyer '21N, associate professor of French.

Mr. Meyer was born in Grand Haven November 23, 1858. He first became interested in local business in 1872 while working for his father in the Meyer and Brouwer furniture store and undertaking business. In 1877, he joined the firm of Meyer and Brouwer, and when it was enlarged into separate units in 1899, Mr. Meyer took the piano and sewing machine business.

Mr. Meyer was active in his business establishment, now known as Meyer Music House, as late as 1949 when he received the Chamber of Commerce award for outstanding contribution and service in the advancement of civic betterment. He still reported for work at the store each day.

He had been a member of First and Third Reformed churches and served both churches for a total of 12 years as consistory member. He was always active in church, education and civic affairs.

Surviving are Mrs. Meyer; five daughters, Marguerite Prins '17, Mrs. R. J. Nichols, Wilma Meyer Reed '23N, Nella Meyer '21N, all of Holland, and Helene Mills '20N of Los Angeles, California; two sons, Harris '16 of Kalamazoo and Frederick '26N of Holland; 12 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren.
4TH ANNUAL MID-YEAR COMMENCEMENT INDUCS 15 MEMBERS INTO ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Rev. John M. Hains '42 delivered the commencement address to Hope's 15 newest alumni. Speaking on "Some Things That Cannot Be Shaken" by communism or crime, he challenged the class to preserve in their lives these things which cannot be shaken — truth, righteousness and Christian love, which have eternal values.

The Rev. George L. Robertson, pastor of First Reformed Church, Long Island City, gave the invocation and Anthony C. Droppers of Oostburg, Wisconsin read scripture. Both of these participants had sons in the graduating class. The Chapel Choir under the direction of Robert W. Cavanaugh, sang "Built on a Rock." by Christiansen.

Dr. Lubbers presided at the services and Mrs. W. Curtis Snow '41 played the organ prelude, postlude and accompaniments.

Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp '07 presented the following candidates for the bachel or of arts degree to Dr. Lubbers who presented the degrees: Louis U. Brooks, Holland; James P. de Spelder, Grand Haven; Joseph I. Dolk, Holland; Neil A. Droppers, Oostburg, Wisconsin; Robert M. Harper, Holland; Donald J. Hondorp, Grand Rapids; Kenneth Leestma, Holland; Fred L. Martin, Holland; Johannes Menkir, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; Gene Nyenhuis, Grand Rapids; George J. Priest, Freeport, N.Y.; George I. Robertson, Jr., Holland; John C. Sloan, Jr., Scotia, N.Y.; Arthur Torng, Grand Rapids and Robert B. Welton, Holland.

Robert Welton has reported his occupation at present to be teaching biology and English at Hudsonville High School.

"OUR PLACE IN WHO'S WHO"

By Dr. E. E. Brand
Associate Professor of English

An article entitled "The Colleges in 'Who's Who in America" which appeared in the School and Society for October 21, 1951, is of interest to all those concerned with higher education and particularly with the prestige of Hope College.

Kunkel and Prentice, the co-authors, present an enlightening analysis of the picture of the American colleges and universities with regard to their recognition by 'Who's Who. The inclusion of names of faculty, students, and alumni of various institutions of advanced learning assists in a significant way to increase interest in the higher segment of American education.

It is interesting in studying the article to note the place of Hope College in comparison to other colleges and universities. A 100 per cent increase in the number of biographies of Hope College alumni between the years 1938-1950 is observed.

Hope College is represented by 40 entries in the 1950 edition. The individuals actively engaged in educational work number 23. Of the remaining 17, there are 10 in the ministry, and 3 in the field of medicine. A business man, a biologist, and a senator are also included in Hope's contribution to this publication. In addition to the 40 alumni listed, 4 faculty members who are not alumni are included.

1950. Chester Van Wieren has been assigned to the Crystal Falls district in the Upper Peninsula after completing one year's service at Higgins Lake training center. Mrs. Van Wieren is the former Adele MacAllister of Holland. They have one son, Bruce Allen. 4.

DR. JACOB PRINS NEW IN HOPE'S ADMINISTRATION

Rev. Jacob Prins, DD, '24 took office as vice president in charge of church relations at Hope College on February 1.

Dr. Prins, Minister of Evangelism RCA for the past seven years, accepted the appointment of the Hope Board of Trustees late last year.

Besides establishing an impressive record as the first Minister of Evangelism in the history of the denomination, he has held pastorates in Jamestown, Michigan; Pella, Iowa; and Calvary and Immanuel churches in Grand Rapids.

A native of Fulton, Illinois, Dr. Prins was graduated from Hope Preparatory school in 1920, from the college in 1924, and from Western Seminary in 1927.

In 1943 he served the General Synod of the Reformed Church as president. He has been a member of the boards of trustees of Central and Hope colleges.

Mrs. Prins is the former Marie Vanden Brink '18N. They have two children. Daughter Doris '50N is Mrs. Paul '50 Alderink of Grand Rapids; son "Bud," a Hope sophomore, is the boy with the "educated toe" on Hope's football team. During the past season he kicked 21 out of 25 extra points and 1 field goal.

On the Campus
There is wide-spread interest both in industrial and higher education in reading improvement programs. Hope College recognized the need for such a program and established a Reading Center in 1949. The Center is not a part of any department of the college, but the director of it is responsible to the Dean of the college. Each semester 30 to 40 students take advantage of its facilities.

The objectives of the program in the Center are:

1. To acquaint the participant with the fundamentals and mechanics of reading skill.

Sometimes students do poor work in their freshman year even though they are of average or superior intelligence. One of the causes for poor work in many cases is the inability of the student to use reading and study skills effectively. These students can be helped with training.

2. To enable each one to reach his reading potential.

Often some superior students in the upper classes come in for this purpose. Since they intend to go to graduate school, they want to reach their top level of speed and comprehension in reading.

3. To stimulate good reading habits and a greater interest in reading.

With an increase in speed and comprehension, students are motivated to do more and wider reading.

There are two mechanical devices used in the Center:

1. The Reading Accelerator or pacer is a simple device designed to force the reader to read more quickly by preventing regression. Regression is the act of rereading a sentence necessitated by the reader's lack of concentration or his lack of confidence in his ability to grasp the meaning. It causes serious loss of speed and does not aid comprehension. The accelerator has two parts—a rack to hold the reading material, and a mechanical arm run by electricity, which lowers a shutter over the reading material. The speed with which the shutter moves down the page may be adjusted by the reader.

2. The Tachistoscope, or flash meter, is an over-head projector with a controlled shutter attachment. It is used to flash material—numbers, phrases, and sentences—on a screen at 1/100 of a second. Use of this machine makes it possible for the reader to develop coordination of eyes with brains to the point where he is able to repeat numbers of 7, 8, or 9 digits or sentences of 4 or 5 words which appear on the screen for 1/100 of a second. The reader begins with 3 digits and short phrases, gradually progressing until he is able to see and comprehend two or three times as much. The carry-over of this skill to the normal reading situation makes it possible for the reader to include more at a glance, cutting down the number of eye movements necessary for the comprehension of the material read.

The classes meet three days a week. Ten minutes of the 50 minute sessions are spent working with the Tachistoscope, 20 minutes in discussion or in the development of some special reading or study skill, and twenty minutes in reading an exercise at the highest possible speed and taking a test for comprehension of the material read. Most students begin reading with a speed of 200 to 300 words per minute. When the course is completed, they read at the rate of 600 to 1,000 words per minute. Comprehension increases from about 65% to approximately 95% over the same period of time.

Other skills developed in these class hours are skimming, visualizing, organizing while reading, making a summary, selecting the best general statement, finding main ideas and supporting statements and developing vocabulary.

From Faraway Lands
They Come to Hope

Students of 24 Foreign Countries Made to Feel at Home on Holland Campus

By CLAYE E. GIESEKING

HOLLAND—The United States has been a leader in foreign educational exchanges for years, and Michigan colleges and universities were among those that took part. This is the statement of Dr. Ellis Hawkinson, head of the History and Political Science Departments at Hope College and president of the Michigan Council for UNESCO.

Dr. Hawkinson estimated that there are more than 2,500 foreign students studying in the 1,000 American colleges and universities today and that more than 2,000 are attending Michigan institutions of higher learning.

About half of the nation's student citizens are receiving their advanced training in New York, California, Illinois, Massachusetts and one or more states.

Trend of Michigan's educational institutions toward the training of young men and women for the world's needs and opportunities is indicative of the country's interest in foreign education. It is part of the end of World War II, Iowa has had 360 foreign registrants from better than 100 per per cent countries.

At present, there are 120 young men and women who have come to the nation from another country, and of this group, a never-before-contacted with this country and are foreign in every sense of the word, while the other half are American citizens brought up abroad by parents who are not Americans.

Because of Hope's close affiliation with the Reformed Church in America and its traditional reputation for scholarly training, it is not surprising that such a great percentage of foreign-born American students should be enrolled at this college.

In the past year, 24 foreign countries have sent their people to the Hope campus for a year or two, and of 22 per cent they include: Iraq, the Netherlands, China, Mexico, India, Denmark, Peru, France, Venezuela, Korea, Mexico, Pakistan, Russia, and the Philippines.

The student is maintained in such U. S. cities as Boston, and there are from the Virginia Islands. The latter are maintained in the United States and some of its states, such as Virginia, Maryland, and New York. Howard Land was a student at the University of Michigan and one of the first to return, while John Hawkinson, a native of Michigan, is a native American.

Basketball Glory
By Randall Vands Water '52

Under Coach John Visser '42 the Hope college basketball team finished one of the most successful seasons in the history of the school. Visser, in his initial year as varsity coach produced a team that won 14 games, while losing only three. These victories included wins over Washington and Lee University, Calvin and Detroit Tech.

The Dutchmen also annexed the MIAA championship for the fourth time, winning nine games and losing one in conference play. The Dutch went through the last nine games of the season without tasting defeat.

This year's style of play was run and shoot, and in every contest, Hope managed to run up big scores.

The personnel on this year's Dutch team was made up of experienced basketball players. Junior Bremer, senior guard, completed his fourth year of competition on the Hope varsity. The Holland star was elected captain by his teammates and was also named the most valuable player on the team. Bremer, according to Coach John Visser, was the best defensive rebounder in the MIAA, and probably the best Hope college has ever had.

Bremer is married to the former Kathryn De Vette '53N, sister of former Hope college basketball coach Russ De Vette '46. Ron Bos '52, another senior, finished the season in a blaze of glory, scoring 36 points in the Calvin game. Bos, a guard was the highest scorer on the team this season. Bob Visser, brother of Coach Visser, also was a high scorer. Bob is a sophomore and played forward. The other forward position was handled by Jerry Jacobson, a junior and all-M.I.A.A., last year. Bob Hendrickson, was the starting center. The tall 6’9” center, as a freshman, added much to the team. Others on the championship team included Bob Bolema, Don Piersma, Ken Van Regenmorter, Dave Kemker, Al Nelson, Willard Rink, and Norm Schuiling.

Assisting Coach Visser was Nick Yonker '50 while Milton L. (Bud) Hinga served in an advisory capacity.

Take a look back at the achievements this 1951-52 team accomplished, besides the MIAA championship: The team, for the first time in history scored 100 points. They hit the even century mark against Ferris Institute. Also, Ron Bos broke the individual scoring mark, when he hit 36 against Calvin. This year's team scored more points than any team in history, totaling 1370 points. This total places Hope 5th in the nation in scoring points among Small Colleges.

"A WORLD GLIMPSE"

By Dr. Frank Hospers '10.

"Give us in 300 words a few of your impressions and some of the high spots of a Freighter Trip around the World." Can't be done! However let us eliminate the flowers and get down to brass tacks as quickly as possible. Let us pass up Panama, Cristobal-Colon, Houston and Port Arthur, Texas, New Orleans and Port of Spain, Trinidad, and finally arrive after six weeks at Capetown, South Africa.

Capetown is beautiful. Not too modern perhaps, especially as regards plumbing which is still essentially British, but the setting is grand and the Cape of Good Hope is superb as is all the Indian Ocean Coast of S. Africa. A 3500 mile, three-weeks' journey by bus, rail and car served to give me a few impressions. The first one of which is that the Dutch and the British in South Africa, are in their hearts, still fighting the Boer War. The two languages, Afrikaanse and English, both being Official and required on all Government stationery and in all Government business, make it confusing for the average tourist. However, I, being an American and able to understand a few words of Dutch, fitted into the picture beautifully.

The Native problem is the vital issue. Being well disposed towards the backward races, the Dutch and the English are educating and trying to civilize the natives, but they are still making it impossible for them to enjoy the fruits of their new enlightenment. If they continue to do so it can mean only one thing and that is "Machine Guns." And consequently for their preservation it is essential that the Europeans (The Whites) forget their religious and racial animosities and seek a common ground. For they are outnumbered perhaps four to one.

Another impression, is that South Africa is largely unspoiled by the many so-called necessities of modern civilization. The tempo of life is still rather leisurely and lackadaisical. Food and drink are still exceptionally cheap. My hotel in Capetown cost me the enormous sum of $3 a day for excellent food and lodging. As good a dinner as I ever hope to eat cost me 70 cents in the dining car of the Durbin to Johannesburg, De Luxe Train.

In Colombo, Ceylon, an ardent devotee of Buddha did his best to convert me to his idea of the path to earthly peace and happiness and perhaps a happy future of contemplation. My visit to the Temple of the Sacred Tooth at Kandy did little to aid his cause. Being a Dentist, I have enjoyed seeing the tooth. I am told that according to its size, Buddha must have been an enormous individual.

Ceylotta was impressive because of its filth and poverty. My Moslem friend and classmate entertained me royally but I could not fail to be impressed by the fact that the native Hindu has nothing and must live on it. There again is a potential Hotspot. The Hindus, believing that their spirits return, after death to inhabit the form of some animal, refrain from destroying animal life. The sacred cattle are a nuisance. I was told that the more enlightened Hindus are becoming more practical and are not above enjoying a toothsome goat stew. Of course cold blooded, doesn't it? But the most convincing impression I received was that happiness for the masses requires only a sense of well being and a full belly.

Calcutta, Darjeeling in the Himalayas, Penang, Singapore, Djakarta and Manila followed in the sequence of my itinerary and finally after five months a welcome home to Los Angeles and the U.S.A. and the final conviction that --- Thank God I am an American.

SOUTH AFRICA

By Milton Hoffman '09

The requested 300 word article allows me about one word for every 250 miles travelled, or about one word for every 2750 square miles of South African territory. Four provinces, Cape of Good Hope, Natal, Orange Free State and Transvaal comprise the Union of South Africa, which together with Southwest Africa over which the Union exercises a United Nations Mandate, is as large as all the states east of the Mississippi combined, excepting Illinois and Wisconsin. It has a great variety of climate, scenic beauty, land use, agricultural products and industry.

People make a country. In the Union (exclusive of Southwest Africa) live over 10,000,000 people. The native or non-white population numbers 7,300,000. The white population numbers 2,500,000 of whom one and a half million trace their ancestry to the Netherlands, and the rest to the United Kingdom.

This is the year of the Jan van Riebeeck Festival, for it will be three hundred years ago this April that he led the first Dutch colony to where Cape Town now stands. Later, especially during the 19th century, English people came over by the thousands. While outwardly both groups seem to get along well together, there is no little tension between them. The native people, so far outnumbering the white element, create a problem of fearful proportions. By all means read Allan Paton's, "Cry, the Beloved Country."

In our minds diamonds and gold are almost synonymous with South Africa, and well they may be, for even today the value of gold production alone, which is ten times that of diamonds, is larger than... the dollar value of all agricultural products combined. The richest province is the Transvaal, which is twice the size of Michigan. In the northern section are citrus groves as fine as any in Florida. The rest is largely agricultural reminding one of Indiana or Iowa. Corn is the largest grain crop. Few dairy and beef herds dot the hillsides. Pretoria, a lovely city, is the capital of the province as also of the Union. Johannesburg is the largest city. Just 66 years ago the first miners’ shacks were built where today is a city of 800,000, modern in every respect. The Orange Free State is much like the Transvaal, though with less rainfall crop failures are more frequent. In the Cape Province is the famous Karroo country, thousands of semi-arid square miles where grape some 38,000,000 sheep. Vineyards cover the southern tip right up to the city of Cape Town, one of the most beautiful cities in the world. In its spacious harbor it welcomes ships from the seven seas.

Few countries prize education more highly. From grade schools to universities and technical schools it has few equals. Race lines are rigidly drawn in schools as elsewhere. Education for the natives rarely goes beyond the third grade. There is only one college for natives in the entire Union.

Church life among the white people is very much like our own. The Reformed (Die Nederduitse Gereformeerde Kerk) with its two sister denominations is by all odds the largest numerically. In their churches, schools and theological seminaries the only language used is Afrikaans. English people took all the varieties of Protestantism with them. A good deal of missionary work is done among the natives, though most of them still adhere to ancient tribal ways.

The trip, made via Royal Dutch Airlines K.L.M., was altogether delightful. When one recalls that this company had to start from scratch in 1945, for no Dutch industry had been more ruthlessly destroyed, and realizes that it today stands at the top in its field, one cannot but salute the courage, vision and work that went into the remaking of this fine Dutch enterprise.

South Africa is a country whose problems and prospects are equally great. It is a young country with boundless optimism, so problems will be solved, and a larger future realized.

REPORT FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Alvin Schutmaat ’43N, Principal of the Colegio Americano of Bogota, Columbia SA, at our request made the following report of his attendance at the third international congress of Latin American Union of Evangelical Youth in Argentina, Mrs. Schutmaat. (Pauline Loew ’43) is girls’ counsellor at the Colegio Americano, an American primary and high school with 500 students, operated under the Presbyterian mission. The Schutmaats have 3 sons and a dog.

In December, 1951, I had the pleasure of attending the third international congress of ULAJE (Latin American Union of Evangelical Youth). A hundred or so delegates from thirteen Latin American republics and eight Protestant denominations met for ten days in Buenos Aires. Matters of faith, conduct and strategy were discussed in small workshops. Reports, later to be published, were presented to the general assembly.

As in all ecumenical gatherings, ideas and theologies clashed. Regionalism and individualism, the bane of Latin American politics, were also present. But unlike political groups, this group of Evangelical young people maintained a Christian spirit in the midst of their debates. The consciousness of belonging to one Church, of which Christ is the Head, furnished a powerful incentive for cooperation and mutual respect.

There was only one other Dutchman at the congress beside myself—an Argentine, led by the name of Diego Boongstra, from the Christian Reformed Church of Tres Arroyos. His brother is attending Calvin College.

Our Colombian delegation was small—a medical student, two teachers from our American School in Bogotá, and myself. Two of us reached Buenos Aires by way of Brazil. We spent one week on a small steamer between Manaus and Belén, a thousand mile trip on a most interesting port of the Amazon. On our return trip we crossed the pampas, Patagonia, and the lake region of Argentina and Chile, all by train. Everywhere, whether in remote regions or in large cities, the work of Protestant missions seemed to be flourishing. In all these countries, Protestant churches and schools enjoy almost complete liberty. Nowhere did we find the bitter Roman Catholic fanaticism that has plagued Colombia during recent years. All the same it was a great joy to be back in Bogotá and begin another year’s work in our Colegio, which is in spite of Roman Catholic opposition, has as large an enrollment as ever.

It Couldn’t Happen to a Nicer Couple!

It all started last October when Leon Becker, an aggressive Grand Rapids piano merchant, who believes in advertising, decided to give away a brand new Cable-Nelson spinet, as a special promotion project.

Two thousand people who walked past the Leon Becker Piano and Organ Studio on Fulton Street, accepted the invitation in the window to come in and drop a name in the drawing box on the chance that his free ticket might be pulled for the grand prize. Jeanne Ver Beck ’51, who passed the window two or three times daily on her way to her teaching job, finally took the time one day to drop her name in the box.

On November 24, the day specified for the drawing, Mr. John W. Davis, Jr., organist and choirmaster of Park Congregational Church, Mr. Joseph Sullivan, organist and choirmaster of St. Andrew’s Cathedral and Mr. Becker assembled for the important drawing. The “lucky” ticket had Jeanne’s name on it. Mr. Becker called her rooming address right away and was told that within that very hour Jeanne was being married to another pianist. Sensing the drama of an already exciting situation, Mr. Becker called her rooming address right away and was told that within that very hour Jeanne was being married to another pianist. Sensing the drama of an already exciting situation, Mr. Becker called Jeanne’s home in Holland to make the day even more of an “ever to be remembered” one.

Some people get everything over a period of time, but Jeanne believes in getting things (can a husband be called a thing?) in bunches. Imagine getting a husband and winning a piano all in one day! Nice coup, Mrs. Ritsema! You did all right, too, Herb!
Responsibilities of the Christian Layman

We have a little fellow of two and one-half years in our family who tries to join us in repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison at breakfast. He stumbles along until we come to the phrase "— — — for Thine is the kingdom and the power — — " and he shouts the word "power" above the sound of all other voices. Then when we have finished he grins at the rest of the family and says: "I yike power." He means that he likes the word "power" but you and I are going to say that we like power too as we consider the responsibility of the Christian layman and we will mean that we like power itself.

The consideration of our subject will include the mention of some specific responsibilities that fall upon the Christian layman. However, we will not come to the heart of this matter until we recognize that our deepest concern is to find power to meet the responsibilities that we sense. It is one thing to say that I feel that I "ought" but it is quite another thing to say: "I have the power to measure up to the 'ought' which I know." St. Paul put this idea into desperate words: " — — — for what I would, that do I not: — — — " (Romans 7:15). He was aware of his responsibilities but he was more profoundly conscious that he lacked the power to meet them. As we examine the responsibilities of the Christian layman we are certain to say — "I would like power!"

The Christian layman has a responsibility in his home. This becomes apparent when we examine what a home is — a Christian home. It is not the product of a mere friendly agreement or contract between a male and a female. Christians believe that it is a sacred institution which God brings into being. It is a social arrangement that is rooted in the commitment of a man and a woman to each other that is religious in its very nature. The parties are pledged "for better or for worse," "for richer or poorer," "in sickness and in health so long as they live." The basic nature of such promises is religious. No change of conditions is permitted to alter the mutual obligations.

Even such assertions about marriage leave it on the human level and the Christian home never stops there. The Christian home is a divine creation — "Therefore, shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife and they shall be one flesh" (Gen. 2:24). Why?

BY A. JOHN MULDER

Because that is the nature of marriage when the creative God of the Christian brings it into being.

This is only the beginning of the Christian home. The first commandment recorded in the Bible is addressed by God to a husband and wife and concerns marriage: "And God blessed them and God said unto them, 'Be fruitful and multiply and replenish the earth' — — " (Gen. 1:28). Children in the home of a Christian layman are not ultimately the product of human planning. Any temptation to regard children in that light can be avoided by listening to the daily clamor of husbands and wives to adopt children after their little plans have failed. Children are no mere attractive nuisance that one adds to the home establishment after the mortgage is paid, a flashy car is acquired, every labor saving device installed in the kitchen and the wardrobes completed with enough changes of raiment. When children enlarge the picture of the Christian Layman's home, they are gifts from God the Father and they are given to be returned to Him as His sons and daughters.

When God has joined a Christian layman in marriage to a devoted Christian wife and the two are entrusted with children, the story is not complete. The parents are given the high compliment of being trusted to provide food, clothing, a home and education for an individual of untold possibilities for blessing on mankind. Beyond that they have the amazing privilege of shaping the eternal destiny of the child. The divine intention for such destiny is that the child shall return as a son or daughter to God.

If parents take seriously their responsibility for the eternal welfare of their children they will be driven to provide Christian training for their children. This will not consist of offering only some formal statement of religious conviction. It will involve a discipline of parental attitudes toward the use of time, talents and possessions. The acts and conversations of parents soon tell children what is considered primary in life. Do those point to money, position, esteem of fellowmen or favor of the Living God as the first loyalty?

Alertness in using the experiences of life to teach Christian attitudes will provide effective lessons. In one home such opportunity grew out of a daughter's invitation to her first boy-and-girl party. A little questioning about the plans for the occasion disclosed that the sponsors of the affair were excluding a young Jewish girl even though she was a member of the group for whom the party was being given. The daughter was asked whether such plans seemed consistent with the Christian training which the home had provided. She admitted readily that they did not but blurted in desperation: "What can I do about it? I am not giving the party!" Out of the discussion that followed the daughter was urged to enlist her friends to join in telling the sponsors of the party that they would not attend unless the discrimination was dropped. With some misgivings this measure was adopted and carried through with success.

The stakes are high in this area of obligation. Jesus reminded us: "And whoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in me, it is better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he were cast into the sea." (Mark 9:42). It would be better to execute a parent than to let him or her hinder a son or daughter in giving commitment to Jesus Christ. It is my personal testimony that the arrival of the first of our children did more to open my eyes... to the responsibility of a Christian layman than any other experience. Here was a completely unique child. No other person exactly like her had ever appeared on earth! She had been given to us, her parents. For what? At her baptism, we were asked: "Do you promise to instruct your child in the principles of our holy religion as contained in the Scriptures, to pray with her and for her and to bring her up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord?" I answered: "I do" but hastened to utter the silent prayer—"God give me power!"

The responsibility of the Christian layman in the home may be summarized as consisting of putting God first in letting Him join one to a devoted Christian wife in a mysterious unity that only a creating God can produce; to welcome with reverence the gift of children from God the Father, and to train those children for their return to God as His sons and daughters. This is a first "ought." But we would like power to meet it.

The second area in which the responsibility of the Christian layman can be specified is that of the Christian Church. There is no such thing as a Christian apart from the Church in New Testament thought. Any contrary claim is nothing more than a present-day heresy. The Christian layman is in the Church and owes a responsibility to it. What is the Christian Church anyway?

The Church may be defined in terms of its amazing and unique past. It came into being about two thousand years ago in the City of Jerusalem on a religious holiday called Pentecost. It has come down through the centuries with varying fortunes but changing or dying cultures, economies and political systems have not destroyed the Christian Church. This makes it a peculiar organization that is rooted in twenty centuries of human history but it does not tell what the Church really is. It may be old and rich in tradition, but what is it anyway?

St. Paul shocks his readers with his answer. He wrote to the Romans: "So we (Christians) being many are one body in Christ" — (Rom. 12:5). To the Corinthian Church he proclaimed: "—we are the body of Christ" (1 Cor. 10:16, 17). And to the Church at Ephesus he asserts that the church is the body of Christ (Eph. 1:22, 23). What do these amazing expressions mean—Christian laymen the body of Christ? Is St. Paul just talking fanciful and imaginative language? Or is he dealing with a reality that the Christian laymen should sense more keenly? St. Paul is saying that what God began in Christ is extended or continued in history by the fellowship known as the Church that is rooted in Christ, not because men planned it that way, but because God did. This raises the question of what God began in Christ to be extended to all time.

In Christ God began the clear announcement of the amazing news that He loved sinful and rebellious men. He began the comforting proclamation that men are reconciled to God by God and without merit on the part of men. He offered the only demonstration in human history of what surrender and obedience to God means in the life of man. He began the disturbing message that the practice of Christian love will lead the Christian to regard all men as neighbors. He originated the sobering discipline that the way in which Christians live together can point beyond them to the character of God Himself. These beginnings are to be carried forward by the Christian Church, i.e. by Christian laymen.

Some of the practical ways in which the layman discharges this obligation are (a) a regular attendance at public worship; (b) a sharing of the Gospel message by teaching, and undergirding missionary endeavor; (c) a regarding of self as God's trustee of time, money and life itself; (d) a cultivation of Christian character which will turn eyes to God. There are others but no one of these can be neglected by the Christian layman who measures up to his responsibilities to the Church.

The responsibilities of the Christian layman to his church may be defined as including the obligation to join in corporate worship with regularity, to recognize God as first in life; to put neighbors second by supporting the Christian missionary enterprise; to regard all that one receives, be it money, health or life itself as a trust to be used for His glory; to cultivate sincere Christian conduct with the aim of drawing others to God. This is a second "ought." We need power to be like that!

The third area of responsibility for the Christian layman is his daily life. The Living and Loving God whose character and will determines our accountability in the home and in the church is not limited to those two areas of living. This God is the God in Whom we live and move and have our being. He is the God of all life at all times and He is the Author of our responsibilities in the daily pursuits of our lives. This is denied when we follow the practice of turning over healing to the physician, death to the undertaker, education to the school, work to the union and distraught minds to the psychiatrist. The Christian must tie all of these experiences together in a complete surrender to God.

Jesus pointed up this truth on one occasion when he was interviewed by a young man who was troubled about the measure of his commitment to God in daily life. This young man asked "What good thing shall I do?" He was told: "Obey the commandments." He had done that and the Master continued: "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast and give to the poor and then thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me." The close of the scene is recorded: "But when the young man heard that saying he went away sorrowful; for he had great possessions (Matt. 19:16-22).

In daily life too the Christian layman has the responsibility of keeping God first, his neighbor second, self third, and things last. Can you do what you are doing and measure up to that responsibility? It may seem like an excuse to grumble—"you should see my job." Is it really the job or the way in which you do it? Yes, we know something of the responsibility of the Christian layman in daily life. But we would like power!

The cry for power which concluded the outline of responsibilities in home, church and daily life demands an answer. If there is no power available with which to meet such responsibilities, the layman simply increases his misery by having them specified anew. Christianity does not desert men and women in this position of need.

Turn back the pages of history to a time just prior to the birth of the Christian Church. The scene is a room in Jerusalem. The cast consists of Jesus and the apostles. The intimate atmosphere of the room is broken by a question — "Lord wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" Jesus' answer was addressed to the inner circle present but also to his Church throughout the ages —to all Christian laymen—"ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you; and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and in Samaria and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1:6-8). "Ye shall receive power!" Here is a promise of Jesus, our Lord. But how can one receive power?

At this point I recommend a way of receiving divine power that has been proved by succeeding generations of Christians and has come alive for young and old at 4th Presbyterian Church in Chicago. It consists of Bible study and prayer in a cell or group of ten or twelve persons. The entire group prepares for the cell meeting by reading and studying an assigned section of Scripture. A chosen leader supervises the reading aloud and open forum discussion of the assigned Scripture during the cell meeting which continues for one and one-half hours. The meeting is completed with a fifteen or

The greatest decline in 1951 was in the departments of liberal arts, business administration, agriculture and education. Here the decrease for freshman men was 11.2% and for women 3.5%. Education suffered the worst decline, 15.3%, probably due to the fact that salaries are lower in the teaching profession than in other fields.

In the Engineering field there has been a 9.2% increase, an encouraging fact after the recent alarming decrease, due to erroneous statements that the field was overcrowded. The enrollment in engineering is still far below the technological needs of our country.

An interesting sidelight on the educational situation is that enrollment in theological seminars increased 15.5% in 1950 and 3.8% in 1951.

The responsibilities of the Christian layman in home, church and daily living are rooted in the character of the living God of the Bible. By being made aware of those obligations one faces a sharpening sense of need for power to measure up. At that point one can claim anew the promise of victory that the same God gave in Jesus Christ when He promised that His power to flow through our committed selves and to help the Christian layman in meeting his recognized responsibilities.

There is no reason to be surprised that this cell method yields new power since it comes as the fulfillment of a specific promise made by Jesus during his ministry. He called the attention of His disciples to the fact that men gave good gifts to each other and then made the a fortiori conclusion: "If ye then evil know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit (power) to them that ask Him" (Matt. 7:11). Here is an absolute promise of an affirmative answer to a prayer for God's power to flow through our committed selves and to help the Christian layman in meeting his recognized responsibilities.

THE CHRISTIAN LAYMAN

thirty minute prayer session in which everyone participates. This plan caught its first root in college age groups. It spread to the next age bracket and a group of medical students at Northwestern University organized under the plan for weekly meetings. Older adult cells have been formed and the Men's Bible Class has been reorganized to practice the plan. Study of this kind gives the participant a better understanding of the historical setting for the scriptural record and a clearer insight into the relevance of that record for present-day Christian living. It brings back an affirmative and enthusiastic attitude toward the Bible which has been sadly lacking among too many Protestant groups during the past two or three decades. This shared religious experience leads cell members to the ultimate issues of living; petty aggravations roll away; questions are faced and answered; deeper fellowship is found and new power flows into timid souls.

There is no reason to be surprised that this cell method yields new power since it comes as the fulfillment of a specific promise made by Jesus during his ministry. He called the attention of His disciples to the fact that men gave good gifts to each other and then made the a fortiori conclusion: "If ye then evil know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit (power) to them that ask Him" (Matt. 7:11). ABEL J. RENKES

Mr. A. J. Renkes '08 died on June 3, 1951, at his home in Morrison, Illinois. Born in the Netherlands, he came to America with his parents at the age of two years. WILLARD P. VANDER LAAN

Willard P. Vander Laan '05, retired Muskegon educator, died at Hackley Hospital, February 18, 1952.

His death marked the end of a career which included 32 years in the Muskegon educational system from which he retired less than a year ago. From 1919 to 1929, Mr. Vander Laan was affiliated with Muskegon Senior High School. In 1929 he was transferred to Central Junior High School as an instructor of science, mathematics, and physiology. At mid-term in the school year of 1945-46 he was named principal of Oakview School where he remained until his retirement last year.

Mr. Vander Laan was a native of Muskegon. His residence there was interrupted for a few years only when he attended Hope College, Western Seminary, and during his early teaching experience in Cordell, Oklahoma, and Cedar Grove, Wisconsin.

Surviving are Mrs. Vander Laan, the former Susie King of Muskegon, and two sons, both physicians and both graduates of Hope College: John E. '36 of Muskegon, and Willard P. '39, of Milton, Massachusetts.

The Muskegon Chronicle paid tribute to Mr. Vander Laan with these words, in part: "Mr. Vander Laan's passing will be felt in countless homes about Muskegon where men and women who had known the kindly instructor as a friend in their student days will experience a sense of personal loss. For that was the nature of Mr. Vander Laan.

"Content to stay out of the spotlight, he worked quietly behind the scenes, always ready, always willing, always able to talk to a student on his own level, understand his problems and advise him on a proper course."

HOPE RECEIVES ECONOMICS GRANT

Hope College is one of nine institutions to receive a Social Science Research Council grant in the amount of $5,000. The committee on Faculty Research Grants screened applications from hundreds of colleges for the Social Science Research Council of Washington, D.C. The selection of Hope College as one of the 9 institutions to receive the grant for the academic year 1952-53, is a tribute to the standing of Hope College in the field of economics.

The research will be conducted at Hope by Professor Dwight B. Yntema '26, Ph.D. head of the Economics and Business Administration department. He will be assisted by Assistant Professor Kenneth J. Weller '48 of the department of Economics and Business Administration.

1949. Timothy Harrison and George Zuidema, both third year students at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine have been appointed Henry Strong Denison Scholars for the school year 1951-52. Henry Strong Denison Scholarships stem from an endowment fund established in memory of Henry Strong Denison, M.D., 1908. The gift is made broadly for the support of medical research, and the income is used for the specific purpose of aiding "in the training for research of young people deemed by the Medical Faculty to be especially gifted for a career in medical investigation." It is of interest that two other Hope men were also appointed Henry Strong Denison Scholars while at Johns Hopkins. They are Clinton Harrison '43 and Judson Van Wyk '43.
LETTRES

Peter van Lieren '46, writing to Dr. Lubbers from 61 Kozeki-dori, Sendai, Miyagi-Ken, Japan.

Picture taken in the chapel of the North Japan College (Sendai) where I teach. It was taken on the occasion of an oratorical contest in English, some 35 high schools of North Japan participating. I was selected to be one of the three judges to listen to 35 speeches, grading for pronunciation, enunciation, delivery and contents. The student in the pulpit is the chairman. (Peter is in front row, seated at left).

As you doubt know, we have been evacuated from Korea since the outbreak of hostilities in this area. However it was not until last April that we launched into our new field of service among students in Japan here in Sendai, the educational center of North Japan. There are some five colleges in this city, including the large Imperial University. My teaching is mainly concentrated on the North Japan College of the Evangelical and Reformed Church. At this institution I am teaching 4 courses: 2 of which are English conversation, one is English Poet, and the other one is English Bible. One of my greatest opportunities, if not the greatest, is the weekly English chapel hour, which I am privileged to lead. It always presents me with an unparalleled challenge when I am faced with a thousand or more students, who eagerly listen to a Gospel message. I have found that non-professing Christians; many of them are still adherents to the Buddhist religion.

Besides my regular hours at the college, I have four English Bible classes at my home and one at the City YMCA. Two of the classes are for Japanese students of several of the schools in town, one is for Korean students, and one is for College professors and business men in town.

Over the week-ends I am engaged in evangelistic work among Koreans in this district. We are holding regular services in Sendai, the educational center of North Japan. We are holding regular services in every part of town! I think you might be interested in knowing a little about the work of one of your many alumni.

Bruno Bruns, USN Chaplain, writing to the members of the CLASS OF 1927 from USN General John Pope.

That June 7 deal really sounds hot, and I'd sure like to be there, but I'm afraid Uncle Sam will have other plans for me. I'll probably be somewhere out on the Pacific, but you can help be thinking about all you guys and dolls on that day. I'm sort of wearing a grove in this ocean these days, for I am chaplain on one of our largest troop transports in the Pacific area. We take a round trip to the Far East about every six weeks, carrying around 4,000 troops each way. Right now we are sitting in the harbor at Inchon, Korea, and the snow covered mountains look mighty cold from here.

We arrived here this morning, and after unloading we'll take aboard about 3,500 men for the return voyage. Occasionally I meet someone from Michigan who knows about Hope, but so far haven't come across any Hope alumni.

It's rather early in the season to write this note, but I happen to have a little leisure time before the troops come aboard, so I'll take the opportunity now to wish you all a most happy time and a successful reunion in June.

Evelyn Wierda '33, Monroe, writing from Pittsford, Michigan.

Dear Marian:

Enclosed is an announcement of our latest "Little Exemption." She was born at the Hillsdale Community Health Center. My mother brought it while I was in the hospital. We are holding a most happy time and a successful reunion in June.

Our oldest daughter, Barbara, is sold on the idea of attending Hope and unless her plans change will enter in the fall of '56. It has been interesting to note in the four communities we have lived that Hope has a fine reputation. The clean sportsmanship of Hope's students is invariably mentioned.

I'm happy to be able to say that Hope college is my Alma Mater.

M. B. Lubbers '27, writing to Clyde Geerlings from St. Louis Missouri, February 27th.

Dear Clyde:

We had a very fine Hope College breakfast in connection with the Regional Convention of the American Association of School Administrators. Eleven Superintendents of schools attending were: Martin Albers '15, Elorida, Iowa; Frank W. Douma '16, Ottumwa, Iowa; Walter Guniser '17, Lowell, Michigan; C. R. Lubbers '24, Michigan; C. W. Lubbers '25, Plainwell, Michigan; Derwin Eueninik '26, Cheekt, Wisconsin; Charles Veldhuis '26, Hudsonville, Michigan; M. B. Lubbers '27, Zeland, Michigan; Julius Schipp '28, Michigan; Glenn Nykvik '31, Richland, Michigan; N. P. Cupery '32, Shawano, Wisconsin. Others attending were James Ver Meulen, E. C. Jordan, A. B. Ziemer, and J. L. van Beek '26, President of Education at Hope; Sandrette Sheyt, MIA representative and teacher from Grand Haven; Willard De Jong, supervisor of public instruction, Lansing, Michigan; and Dorothy Lutendyke '37, Chesaning, Michigan.

There was no formal program. We just enjoyed a talk fest.

In the picture Chap. Hoffman is shown in the jeep unloading a very few of the many boxes of clothing sent him by friends for Koreans.

Harold Hoffman '32, writing from Korea.

Dear Friends:

I wish it were possible to write a personal letter to all who have sent parcels to Korea to help the natives against the cold of winter.

The response to the Korean needs by the American people has simply been amazing. It has revealed to me that the Americans are generous, and always have a feeling for those who are less fortunate. I only wish that you could see the clothes which we have been receiving here in Korea. I know that many a person gave the overcoat which he expected to wear this winter, and many a woman the dress which perhaps had been hung aside as a spare. Something has happened to it, for it is now in Korea, and is helping to provide those who really need it.

The Koreans are poorly clad for two main reasons. The industries where clothing is made lay in ruins; and ashes; and the clothing which they did have, especially in the Seoul area, was confiscated by the Communists. Many homes are almost without clothing save the few remnants which they are wearing. The other day I attended a celebration of the founding of the city of Seoul and many of the dignitaries were dressed in military issued clothing.

In the light of these circumstances you have every right to feel that you have made a real contribution to the welfare of the Korean people, and they do appreciate the interest of others in their behalf.

Life here reveals both tragedy and faith in a land where the dreadful effects of war stand out in stark reality. There is a resilience among the people which is surprising; and it seems that in the midst of ruin the people still look to the future with hope.

As chaplain in the Armed Forces I am happy in my work even through it is under difficult circumstances and away from those whom I long to be with. However, I feel that God has a reason for my being here, and I hope that I may be able to fulfill His expectations of me. Living here makes me realize more than ever what a wonderful heritage is ours in America, where we have practically everything we need. It is perhaps true that in many respects we are too utilitarian minded and lacking in the real advance of spiritual culture. However, let us earnestly pray that we may give more heed to the things of the spirit so that we may feel its power in our lives.

Your interest in those who are less fortunate is a good sign or indication of what your dominating motives in life really are. People with benevolent interests really are the salt of the earth.
