Foundation Studies Needs Of Holland

The board of trustees of the Greater Holland Community Foundation is studying a priority list of Holland needs in promoting a program for more revenue for the foundation, as the result of a meeting Wednesday night in Municipal Court in City Hall.

Marvin Lindeman projected the question, "Suppose we have a million dollars. What are you going to do with it? What are Holland's real needs?" The study into Holland's needs will follow this reasoning. On suggestion of Ab Martin, the distribution committee was empowered to prepare such a list and consider the priority position of each project.

Judge Cornelius Vander Meulen felt the youth problem should have a place on the priority, suggesting program and personnel. Russell Welch thought a program in the schools for children under 17 was of proven value and Lindeman asked about a project for senior citizens.

Attending Wednesday's meeting were Judge Vander Meulen, Russell Welch, W. A. Butler, Lindeman, A. C. Joldersma, Clarence Klaasen, Ab Martin, C. B. McCormick, Dr. O. Vander Velde, Lawrence Wade, E. C. Brooks, George Tinhoft and Mrs. C. K. Van Duren.

Rev. Pelon Guest At Exchange Club

The Rev. John Pelon, member of the County Board of Education and Christian Counselor for this area, addressed the Holland Exchange Club at its regular noon luncheon Monday.

Many of the problems concerning marriage never would have occurred if the parents of the troubled men and women had stressed some of the higher ideals of marriage when the children were young, the speaker said. They should be told that marriage is something to be anticipated; it is a period of growth which isn't ended as long as they live. They should know their intended mate so that there would be no lack of understanding, Rev. Pelon said.

Youth Badly Hurt as Car, Bicycle Hit

A 13-year-old Holland boy is in critical condition at Butterworth Hospital in Grand Rapids after he was struck by a car while riding a bicycle near his home on 32nd St. Monday at 8:25 p.m.

The injured youth is Gary Alan Mansfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Mansfield of 1116 West 32nd St.

The driver of the car, 32-year-old Guadalupe Herrera Calvo of 1541 Harding St., was charged with felonious driving.

Holland police said the car and the youth's bicycle collided headon. They said Calvo was headed west on 32nd St., and Mansfield was riding east.

The youth underwent surgery early Tuesday at Butterworth Hospital. Brain damage is severe, and he is paralyzed from the waist down.

Gary has been fighting for his life for most of his 13 years. Born with a congenital heart ailment considered virtually incurable, he was near death on several occasions before his third birthday.

When he was seven years old, a Battle Creek heart specialist operated on Gary at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit where the use of a miraculous invention called a "heart pump" was being pioneered.

Authorities had said that the chances of surviving such an operation at that time were one out of three. But Gary's parents decided to give him his chance for life.

The surgery Aug. 27, 1957 was successful. A large hole in Gary's heart, called a septal ventricular defect, was closed.

Gary still had a heart murmur, but was able to do nearly every sports, both winter and summer.

84 'Sick' Boy Scouts Treated After 'Disaster'

Eighty-four boy scouts were treated for injuries they received in a "chemical explosion" Monday afternoon by Holland Hospital doctors and staff at the hospital and Civic Center.

That's how the news could be splashed on page one of your newspaper some morning. And that's how it did happen Monday—theoretically.

With the cooperation of Civil Defense workers, Holland Hospital personnel went through a two-hour theoretical emergency disaster Monday.

Both Frederick S. Burd, director of the Hospital, and Hans Sze-naar, Civil Defense director, called the trial disaster "successful."

Loopholes were detected in how to meet an emergency more efficiently; bottlenecks along the filtration process of separating minor from major injuries were found; and other mistakes — an insufficient number of medical personnel at the first aid station in the Civic Center and the need for additional medicine there — were found.

Hospital personnel were given a sample of the complications that might arise with a sudden onslaught of injured persons on the hospital. They were also confronted with the necessity of separating minor bruises from those persons in need of immediate hospitalization care.

Several doctors were given the job of designating the division of the Hospital where the 59 victims taken there were to go where they could best be treated — to surgery, the X-ray room, recovery and the maternity ward.

That's right, the maternity ward. Two of the victims of the "chemical explosion" Monday were carted to the maternity ward where they were supposedly to have given birth to a boy, and then twins.

Of course, it all never happened — the pregnancies, the fractures, burns, lacerations, shock, coronaries, deaths and "dying during surgery," but the hospital staff and Civil Defense volunteers went about their work as if it were happening, and as it could happen.

About 20 doctors and 40 hospital department heads and nurses returned to work Monday to help in the "emergency." This was in addition to the hospital staff on duty who aided the boy scouts "recovery" in time for doughnuts and pop.

An additional 50 Civil Defense volunteers helped to direct traffic at the Hospital, Civic Center and the Ottawa County branch building on North River Ave., where the "explosion" presumably happened. Some Civil Defense workers aided an ambulance in taking victims to the Hospital and a first aid station at the Civic Center with trucks and station wagons.

All victims of the assimilated disaster were filtered through a first aid station at the Civic Center where one doctor and nurse were on duty. Normally, about five doctors and staff would be on duty there to give first aid or treat persons in need of immediate care. Remaining victims were taken to Holland Hospital.

All boys arriving at Holland

Hospital were met by several doctors who determined to what part of the hospital they should be sent for treatment, or whether a boy should be sent back to the first aid station — as was one scout who was sent back twice — and still returned.

Some boy scouts were sent to the recovery room for shock; others to surgery, the X-ray room — and the maternity ward.

Hospital officials had previously made up tags with the victim's ailments on it. There were attached to the boy scouts by Civil Defense workers at the Ottawa County Branch building.

And the scouts played their injuries to the hilt. Some were overcome with smoke, in "dire need of hospital aid;" others showed no signs of life — a little hard for boys to do, perhaps, but they did it when they received a free ride on a stretcher. Another writhed with abdominal pain every three minutes.

Life, however, went on as usual around the little dramatic "disaster" Monday. Traffic signals still turned red, pedestrians still maintained their right of way crossing streets, and the motor vehicles with "emergency" signs taped on front windows, waited. Traffic was directed only at the destination points by Civil Defense workers.

And life at the hospital went on as usual. Expectant mothers looked through open doorways at the two young lads being rolled down the corridor on a bed. Several ambulances pulled up to the emergency entrance of the hospital and unloaded real medical emergencies at the same time the boy scouts were carried in another door for their "injuries."

"I'm glad this isn't for real," one boy said, overcome with smoke.

St. Augustine Seminary Open To Tours for Interested Groups

Group tours may be made through the St. Augustine Seminary campus, according to the Rev. Thomas J. O'Neill, rector of postulants. Holland area residents should, however, make a written request in advance, he said, so tours can be fit into the Seminary schedule.

Father O'Neill made the announcement recently after he received many inquiries about group visits to the Seminary located near Lake Michigan on 138th Ave. Residents interest in the Seminary increased after the announcement was made recently of the construction of a new $1.3 million building on the campus. The St. Augustinian Fathers plan an open house in September when the building is completed.

Residents, who were familiar with the Seminary campus when it was the Felt estate, have returned for a nostalgic visit to the locale, Father O'Neill said. Many people have driven out to the campus on Sundays since the building announcement was made in March, injuring if they could still drive down to the beach.

The road leading through the old Felt estate was opened periodically, when Felt still owned it, to visitors who wished to drive to the Lake Michigan shore.

Local People Win Awards

YPSILANTI — Hope College and Holland people figured prominently in the results of competition among college newspapers and yearbooks, conducted by the Michigan Collegiate Press Association.

The Hope College Anchor won an honorable mention in the college newspaper division, and James Michmerhuizen of Hope won an honorable mention in the competition for the best column in a college paper.

Michmerhuizen's honor was in connection with a column dealing with changes in Graves Hall, a campus landmark at Hope.

Douglas Gilbert of Holland, a Michigan State student, won two honorable mentions for photography in college newspapers. He was cited in the "news photo" division for a picture of Governor George Romney, and also in the "best sports photo" division.

The Michigan State News was named the best daily newspaper, Central Michigan Life the best weekly and the Northwest Institute Times the best bi-weekly. The University of Detroit Tower was judged the best yearbook. Newspapers and yearbooks also were judged on specific facets, such as layout, cover design, and human interest, and separate awards were made on these bases.

Dave Jaehnig, of Midland, Mich., won first place in the contest for "best news story" in a college paper. Jaehnig wrote a story, "Police Check on Ticket Forging," for the Michigan State News. He is a cousin of Sentinel reporter-photographer Bob Jaehnig.

Past Matrons Club Meets At Home of Mrs. E. Dick

Mrs. Eldon Dick entertained the Past Matrons Club of Holland Chapter No. 429 O.E.S. at her home at 1:30 p.m. dessert Thursday. She was assisted by Mrs. Herman Vanden Brink.

Mrs. Jud Hohl, president, conducted the business meeting at which time communications were read from Mrs. Belle Knight of California and from Mrs. Harold Veldheer.

Plans were made regarding the club's rug project. The May 23 meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Emily Beattie, 184 West 12th St. for a 1:30 p.m. dessert.

The estate still includes the many sights Felt constructed when he owned the property. A "perpetual motion" machine he attempted to build still stands atop a hill, etched against the sky; animal dens still exist along the hillside; and the many plants and trees still bear fruit.

But many changes have been made since the St. Augustinian fathers bought the estate 14 years ago. The stone-slabbed roof mansion has become the dormitory and eating place for the Augustinian Fathers and Seminary students. A dance hall on the third floor has been transformed into a dormitory room for the boys and the garage has become a classroom.

The newest change will be the $1.3 million building under construction just west of the mansion. The building when completed Sept. 15 will include classrooms, dormitory space, eating and kitchen facilities, a temporary chapel, a recreation room, library and gymnasium.

The Felt mansion will be turned over to St. Augustinian brothers for use.

The Felt estate now serves as a campus for the Augustinian Preparatory Seminary which prepares high school boys for the priesthood.

Jesse Owens Speaks to Athletes

Jesse Owens thrilled a crowd of 300 West Ottawa athletes and their parents Monday night at the West Ottawa all-sports banquet in the school cafeteria.

Winner of four gold medals in the 1936 Olympic games and working in public relations in Chicago, Owens pointed to the benefits of athletics noting that they taught a "code of ethics, responsibility and how to live with fellow men."

He challenged the athletes with the "responsibilities" of athletics and told them they should "walk tall and straight and with honor" for they were "idols to the younger boys."

Owens pushed the values of teamwork and the importance of "setting a good example." He encouraged the boys to attend college and emphasized the importance of attending an institution where the student's capabilities can best be used.

He warned that some college athletes hide behind "rose-colored glasses and refuse to see the world as it is and then of the difficulty they have when the glasses are removed at graduation."

This was Owens fourth visit to Holland and he plans to spend a week at a resort on Lake Macatawa this summer. His vacation schedule includes daily golf rounds at the American Legion course.

He was introduced by athletic director Herbert Maatman, who read Owens track accomplishments including being named "track champion of the century."

Consider City As Locale For Movie

Mayor Nelson Bosman has received a letter from a Hollywood studio on the possibility of using Holland, Mich., as a locale for a forthcoming film based on the destruction of an American community by a maverick nuclear missile.

Jules Maitland, producer for Urbana Productions, said two years has been spent in preliminary preparation of the film titled "Benson City 1300."

The film is in search of a city to portray its own death. The picture would be filmed in the streets, stores, public buildings, schools, churches and homes. Citizens of the city chosen would be an integral part in the filming of the production along with professional actors brought to location for key roles.

Van Den Bosch-Helmus Vows Read

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Van Den Bosch (Pohler photo)

Holland Heights Christian Reformed Church was the scene of a wedding on April 19 when Miss Carole Dawn Helmus became the bride of Kenneth Van Den Bosch.

The Rev. Rodney Westveer performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of palms and ferns and an arch of candles, seven branch candelabra and kissing candles. In the center was a lava bowl filled with white carnations, blue snapdragons and trailing greens. Pews were marked with bows, greens and candles.

QUIET PASSING

What with the beginning of another baseball season, the announcement of fabulous salaries of upper-bracket executives and Grace Kelly's visit to her home town, certain less glamorous but nonetheless important events tend to be eclipsed in the news.

One of these important, though sombre, events is the recent death of Alfred Whitney Griswold, sixteenth president of Yale University.
His passing left vacant the president's chair which he had occupied since 1950.

Griswold was a sound historian,
and as such took the long view, militantly championing during his tenure, the importance of freedom of ideas. In pursuit of this freedom he resolutely opposed the virulent attempts of the late Senator McCarthy, whose anti-Communist campaigns threatened academic freedom on the campuses of American colleges and universities. In 1953 he headed a committee of university presidents which asserted the right of faculty members to express themselves freely. Recently President Griswold became a leading advocate for the repeal of the disclaimer affidavit in the National Defense Education Act, a clause which required students to take a loyalty oath when applying for federal assistance.

Griswold's lasting contribution to his fellow citizens is that he clar-ified the values of traditional liberal education and humane learning in an era which clamors for quick and easy solutions to its problems. For all his quiet passing Whitney Griswold's voice will speak loudly and with clarity to many generations of Americans.

Sunday School
Lesson

Sunday, May 12
Worship and the Family
Psalm 78:5-8; Psalm 128
By C. P. Dame

It is most fitting that on Mother's Day we study a lesson in the Sunday School that deals with the worship of God and family life.
The two subjects belong together.
Christianity is a home builder and the home in which worship is carried on is blessed and becomes a blessing.

I. Fathers have a great responsibility.

Our lesson tells us that God
"established a testimony in Jacob and appointed a law in Israel." God gave a legal system to His people, Israel, which was for all time and for every generation. It had divine authority behind it.

God gave the task of teaching the law of God to the children, to their fathers. Many fathers teach their children games and sports, which is fine, but they do not tell them anything about God, and worship and the spiritual.

Today many fathers provide all manner of creature comforts and toys for their children but they fail to point them to Christ, the Saviour and Lord.

It is God's will that fathers should transmit their faith in God to their children.

Many fathers say they are too busy and they think the church and the school should do this. A few foolish fathers say that the children can choose their religion when they grow up.

God has assigned the task to the fathers, and when they neglect to do this they disobey God's command and hurt their children and the family and society.

II. Home life is meant to be beautiful. If a person does not find happiness at home, he will find it nowhere else.

The father has an important part to play in the home. He should be a man who fears God that is,
has reverence in his heart for God, and shows it by walking in God's ways. The God-fearing man works and eats the labour of his hands.
God blesses him who practices industry and frugality.

The mother plays an important role. Hebrew parents felt honored when God sent them many children for that indicated that God had confidence in them and in their ability to train them aright.

"Thy wife shall be as a fruitful vine by the sides of thine house;
thy children like olive plants round about thy table"—so the Psalmist pictures a fine family.

Some people may disagree but children are a blessing according to the Word of God.

No family lives for itself. The word "Zion" appears in the lesson text—it refers to the church. A godly family is a blessing to the church. Every family ought to make a contribution to the church.

The godly family also has an obligation to the nation. The word "Jerusalem" reminds us of the nation. Some families weaken a nation. The family in which the father works, the wife is a mother of healthy children and every one in the family serves, is a blessing and exerts a wholesome influence.

South American Returns Home

The S. S. South American, flagship of the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Lines, was back at Montello docks Sunday night after several days of adventure—a good share of it unpleasant.

The return trip to Holland was a smooth crossing, according to Capt. Harold Nelson. Painting operations will continue for several days. The ship will leave next week for Chicago and will take aboard a group of 350 persons May 16 to return to Holland for Tulip Time festivities. The tour will continue to Sturgeon Bay, Wis., for a cherry festival.

Holland Rotarians Tour Consumers Power Plant

Holland Rotarians Thursday toured the new James H. Campbell Consumers Power Plant at Port Sheldon, one of five large plants the company operates in Michigan. The local men were guests of the company at lunch. They heard a brief presentation of company operations by Gordon Karsten and William Turpin, Consumers officials, before touring the premises.

Consumers Power Co. in Michigan serves a population of 4,200,000 in 64 of 69 counties in the lower peninsula, covering an area larger than Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Jersey and Delaware combined.

The James E. Campbell plant consumes about 40 60-ton freight cars of coal or 2,400 tons each day. The coal comes in by rail and in the winter is preheated before reaching the unloading shed. Freight cars are turned over for fast unloading and the coal moves by conveyor to the storage pile or goes into the plant. Water is brought in from the south side of the plant and moves out at the west corner.

The coal is pulverized as fine as face powder. Consumers Power in Michigan used coal for 95 per cent of its operations. Only five per cent comes from small hydro plants.

Consumers Power Co. is reported to be the largest taxpayer in Kent and Ottawa counties. The company has 15 divisions and 41 plants.

During the tour, all members wore hard hats.

Most of the power generated in Michigan comes from five large coal-burning steam-electric plants: the Dan E. Karn and John C. Weadock plants near Bay City, the B. C. Cobb plant at Muskegon, the Justin R. Whiting plant at Erie and the James H. Campbell plant on Lake Michigan at Grand Rapids.

Zeeland

ZEELAND — Civil Defense authorities will stage a test alert in Zeeland, Wednesday, May 8, according to Zeeland CD director, Ted Vanden Brink.

Vanden Brink said the alert will very likely begin between 6 and 7 p.m. with the "take cover" signal, a three-minute wailing of the city fire whistle. At the signal, Vanden Brink said, everyone should take cover in the best shelter they have available, and tune in to one of the two Holland radio stations.

After a short time, the "all clear" signal will be sounded — a one-minute wail of the fire whistle. The public should remain off the streets, but the signal will send all persons taking an active part in the test to their assigned emergency positions. The radio stations will notify the public when the entire test is completed, and they may go about their usual business.

Vanden Brink also issued a request for station and wagon and panel truck owners whose vehicles will be volunteered for emergency ambulance service during a test alert to submit their names to him. Prior to the test alert, volunteers should notify Vanden Brink at PR 2-4671 or PR 2-4725.

Cuban Refugee Addresses Spring Banquet of MEA

Dr. Carlos Cortina, a Cuban refugee currently attending Calvin College in Grand Rapids, addressed the Holland MEA district at its annual spring banquet Monday night in Phelps Hall on Hope College campus. About 150 were present.

Dr. Cortina, who conducted his own private school in Cuba before the revolution, talked about elementary and secondary education on the island, pre-Castro and under Castro. He said education has deteriorated under Castro with changes geared to the Russian line. Textbooks have been rewritten and many other changes made, few of them if any, in the best interests of education.

The speaker, who said he was a roommate of Castro some years ago when both were attending school in Havana, was included in one of the groups of refugees arriving in Florida about a year ago. This group was sponsored by a group of Christian Reformed Churches in Grand Rapids and it was through this that Dr. Cortina came to Calvin College.

Miss Della Bowman, MEA district president, turned over the gavel to the incoming president, Mrs. Dorothy Wolbert.

Retiring this year is Mrs. Effie Kamps, a teacher at Lakeview School for 16 years. The farewell talk was given by Mrs. Katherine Van Dyke of Lakeview school. A gift was presented.

Members of the Board of Education and retired public school teachers were guests at the banquet. Steve Van Gorp served as master of ceremonies and Don Johnson gave the invocation.

14 Persons Appear Before Judge Smith

ALLEGAN — Fourteen persons appeared before Judge Raymond Smith in Allegan Circuit Court, Monday.

Marguerite Van Koeving, Grand Rapids, who had admitted her guilt in the embezzlement of money from a Wayland doctor, was placed on probation for five years and ordered to repay $2,000 within 30 days and the remainder of the sum in $10 per week installments.

Muri Calvert, 18, of Kalamazoo, was placed on probation for two years and ordered to pay costs of $50, payable in monthly installments. Previously charged with breaking and entering an Otsego home in the company of others, she was told to refrain from associating with known criminals, and use of intoxicants.

Gary A. Himmelstein, 27, Allegan, was given a probationary term of two years, the first 60 days to be spent in the Allegan jail. He was ordered to pay costs of $100 and was given credit for time already served.

John Clemens, 17, Allegan, pleaded guilty to larceny from an Allegan store. Pre-sentence investigation by the Probate Court was ordered and sentence deferred until May 29. He was released on his own recognizance.

Sentence was also deferred for James Reed, 18, of Zeeland, and Jerry Coder, 20, of Paw Paw, both of whom had pleaded guilty to separate charges of breaking and entering.

Judge Smith recommended presentence investigations for James Starback, Grand Junction, who admitted he was guilty of transporting a stolen car, and ordered that an attorney be appointed for Robert Lilly, 23, of Holland, charged with breaking and entering in the night time. Lilly was remanded to the custody of the Allegan county sheriff, and bond of $5,000 was continued. Sentence was deferred. Joe Knoll, Lilly's accomplice in the burglary of the Weller Nursery, Holland on April 18, is out on $500 bond and did not put in an appearance in court.

Don't Pick The Tulips

With a good share of Holland's prized tulip crop blooming a little early this year, visitors and residents alike are warned not to pick the tulips.

For the most part, people recognize the need for protecting the tulips so that they may be enjoyed by all. But each year one or more isolated cases appear, sometimes vandalism and sometimes picking bouquets.

On occasion, Holland's tulips have been valued at $5 a bloom with fines made accordingly.

Two South Haven youths learned this sad lesson Sunday after they were arrested by city police for picking 44 tulips on Michigan Ave. between 22nd and 23rd Sts.

Joe Tragna, 18, and Gary Kuney, 19, both of South Haven, were later released on bonds of $110 each. They are scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Thursday on charges of malicious destruction of public property.

The contest was conceived by the Women of the Moose and the Moose Lodge will join them as co-sponsors of the project. The contest is to create teenage activities and to promote and encourage the development of talent in the teenage group. More contests are planned if this first one is successful.

Mrs. Robert Van Kampen, contest chairman, is being assisted by Mrs. Jack Shoemaker, decorations; Anthony Woodwyk, host; Lindsay Miller, chaperone; Harland G. Smith, master of ceremonies.
