Contributions Hiked by BPW

A change in determining contributions of the Board of Public Works to the general fund and an increase in expenditures for the police department highlight the proposed budget for the City of Holland for the coming fiscal year.

City Manager William L. Bopf said Council and the BPW have agreed on a new formula for providing contributions to the city which would result in an additional $196,000 for fiscal 1972-73.

Most of the additional funds from the BPW would be allocated to the Capital improvement fund designed for use in purchase of property for municipal improvements or construction of municipal buildings.

The higher police budget includes funds to pay for the new police building, to equip a shooting range and to equip the new building.

The proposed general fund budget calls for $3,209,253 in expenditures of which $1,728,296.22 is to be raised through property taxes. A public hearing on the budget was held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Council Chambers of City Hall. The budget was approved.

Bopf said the city charter provides for up to 50 per cent of the profits or excess in net revenues of the electric generating utility to be contributed to the city's general fund.

Council and the BPW agreed to try for four years a revision which provides that 5 1/2 per cent of the retail sales of the generating plant be contributed to the city. Bopf said the agreement could be modified or terminated by mutual agreement during the four years.

The regular 50 per cent of profits will be contributed to the city after the current fiscal year which ends June 30. The 5 1/2 per cent of sales will be contributed to the city in a lump sum after the start of the new fiscal year July 1.

Beginning in fiscal 1973-74 the 5 1/2 per cent contribution is to be paid on a monthly installment basis.

Turning to the police budget, Bopf said $53,000 of the $117,000 increase for public safety will pay for bonds used to finance construction of the police building, $28,000 will equip the building with furniture and $14,000 will equip a shooting range under the plaza separating the police and court buildings.

Other expenditures include a quantity of service revolvers, lights and sirens for police cruisers and an additional $6,000 for police overtime.

Bopf said the total proposed budget does not allow for additional full time municipal employees other than replacements. Referring to those individuals hired under the Emergency Employment Act, Bopf said their salaries are being paid through federal funds with the city providing "in kind" services such as desks, office space and use of cars, amounting to ten per cent of the federal funds.

Thirty persons hired under the program are employed in various departments of the city with the exception of the Board of Public Works and the hospital.

Bopf said some of the EEA hired employees have since filled regular positions or vacancies created by normal attrition. Retention of others beyond the life of the program will have to be justified in recommendations to council, he added.

Funds for library uses through property taxes increased by $20,000 this year because of a reduction in the penal fines received from local courts and a decline in the per capita amount of fines distributed.

Salaries of municipal employees, other than those negotiated by the BPW, were raised five per cent, Bopf said. There were 14 exceptions where jobs were evaluated and upgraded, allowing for the employees to be raised another step in the salary range.

A new position of Deputy Fire Chief was created but the functions include those of the present fire inspector. No new personnel was hired.

The general pay hike amounted to $82,000.

The city offered reimbursements for educational advancement of employees and will pay one half of the tuition costs, not exceeding $400 annually, for employees completing college course work related to their city functions. Bopf estimated the program could cost $1,000 annually.

Salary ranges for full time municipal employees, excluding those salaries negotiated through contracts, range from a low of $2,246 to a high of $18,740 for classified employees and from $15,300 to a high of $26,408 for non classified employees.

Explaining increases in property valuation, Bopf said about half of the nearly $14 million increase in valuations in the city was due to new construction. The remainder was spread over existing property. Bopf said about half the property owners experienced an increase in valuation and said those whose valuations went up about ten per cent probably would experience a tax increase if the rates for school and municipal taxes are dropped 1.1 and 1.08 mills respectively as recommended.

Van Eden Retires As Fire Chief

ZEELAND — Council Monday named Louis Vis, assistant fire chief, to succeed John Van Eden as fire chief. Van Eden is retiring after 31 years with the department. He served 23 years as chief.

Vis was named chief effective May 1.

Council adopted a budget for the fiscal year 1972-73 following a public hearing. No objections or questions were raised. The budget calls for a tax levy of 12 mills on a state equalized valuation of $25,835,264. The rate is one mill higher than the previous year.

The budget calls for remodeling of a portion of the city hall auditorium for offices for mayor and city assessor; possible addition of a police clerk to issue drivers licenses and help in police office work; construction of flashing lights and gates at the Elm St. railroad crossing and extension of Centennial St. north of Riley.

Council adopted a rate increase for sewage services, doubling the minimum rate from the previous $4 a quarter to $8 and hiking the rate from 24 cents per 100 cubic feet of water consumption to 54 cents per 100 cubic feet of water. First billings under the new rates will be in July.

Council set May 17 for a meeting with property owners in the northwest section of the city concerning special assessments on a sewage main project. Engineers estimated the cost to each property owner would be $16.50 per foot with a flat rate of $325 to bring the sewer line to the edge of the owner's property.

Asks Clean Cut Decision on War

A clean cut decision of the United States either to declare war officially in Vietnam or completely withdraw was advocated by Tran Van Dinh, former South Vietnamese ambassador to the United States, in an address before 200 students, faculty members and townspeople Wednesday night in Graves Hall on Hope College campus.

Speaking of American commitment in Vietnam, how it was arrived at and future decisions to be made, the former ambassador said his fundamental opposition to the war is a moral matter. This has resulted in deep personal involvement since two members of his family have been killed in the B-52 bombings.

He said the context of the war must be seen in terms of the revolution of the Vietnamese people, and that any intervention, be it Japanese, French, American or totalitarian Communism is unacceptable to the Vietnamese people. He talked of Vietnam as a total country, emphasizing that the division between north and south is primarily a military distinction adopted at the Geneva Conference in 1954.

He voiced suspicions of the kind of information American people are receiving through the press and official government agencies about the nature and extent of the war in Vietnam.

Asked by a student on a threatened blood bath if North Vietnamese forces overrun the south, he answered, "How do you know there will be a blood bath? I prefer having to live with an unseen blood bath than the current blood bath that is being poured on the Vietnamese people by B-52 bombings."

The Vietnamese diplomat served two years as acting ambassador under the Diem regime and he was relieved of his post in Washington when Thieu was installed. His father was the former president of the University of Hue where the family still resides.

teaching aids, copies of hand-made materials displayed by Mrs. Marion Styles of Eau Claire, which will be used by all the elementary schools in the West Ottawa system.

Teaching Aids Made At Two-Day Workshop

West Ottawa Public Schools sponsored a two-day workshop this week on the making of teaching aids for its elementary program.

Mrs. Marion Styles, a resource teacher from Eau Claire, conducted the Monday and Tuesday workshops, with the assistance of three of West Ottawa's staff members: Mrs. June Reimink, director of elementary instruction, and the Misses Susan Mooy, teacher of perceptual development at Jerum Elementary and Joy Muehlenbeck, reading consultant.

At the Beechwood School gym teachers worked until after 9 p.m. on Monday copying ideas from the many displays of hand-made materials which

Mrs. Styles, her husband Duane and their daughter Sherry had spent the afternoon setting up. The Styles family have spent over a year collecting ideas and making the classroom aids. "My hardest job," explained Mrs. Styles, "was deciding which displays to bring and which to leave at home. I think the next step is getting a bus."

Miss Mooy, Mrs. Reimink and Miss Muehlenbeck visited Mrs. Styles at her resource center in Eau Claire Elementary School. Plans were quickly made to bring Mrs. Styles and her family workers to West Ottawa.

On Tuesday nearly 50 West Ottawa mothers and about a dozen aides in the elementary program took over the gym to make samples of all materials on display. These colorful, laminated teaching aids will be boxed into kits and circulated among the eight buildings for further duplication and possible adaptations.

Parents wanted to know when they could work again; if Fun Night profits could be used to purchase a laminating machine; if they should keep saving the coffee cans and cereal boxes and why such a good project hasn't been started before now. When teachers learned that Mrs. Styles couldn't stay another night, they began thinking about next year's inservice days.

Mrs. Styles plans to conduct a similar workshop in Eau Claire. Representatives of the two school systems are also considering a joint workshop and will meet this month to discuss it.

Positive Interest Shown at Seminar

"Bridging the communication gap" was the major goal and accomplishment of the youth seminar Thursday, April 27.

This idea was stressed by Mayor L. W. Lamb in his welcoming remarks, the Rev. Ron Beyer of Christ Memorial Church in his keynote presentation, and in the eight discussion groups.

Interesting resource personnel guided these eight workshops and provided helpful insights into each area's problems. Acting as informants in the discussion fields were William L. Bopf, city manager, city government; Melvin De Stigter, state representative, state government; Fred Bertsch, principal of Holland High and Doug Murdoch, assistant principal of West Ottawa High School, school administration; Charles Lindstrom, chief of police, police department; Robert Faulman, director of Focus Drug Center and Larry Spitzley, assistant director of Ottawa County Mental Health clinic, mental health; Dr. James Cook and Rick Veenstra of Western Theological Seminary, religion; Dr. Donald Williams of Hope College, ecology and George Hillis, Dick Hufford and Art Abbott of AAA, insurance.

About 200 students initially attended the workshops. The following issues were included in the discussions: parking meters, one-way streets, the need for a vocational school in the Holland area, Spanish - American courses in the schools, the need for schools to teach social values and operational problems in education.

Also, justification of behavior, the advantages and disadvantages of churches, youth by the church "turns off" whether by established beliefs and resistance to change, the problem of high accident rates among youth and thus high insurance rates, no-fault insurance, how to help people with drug, family and legal problems, dealing with possible suicides, and handling problems before they become crises.

The Youth Commission felt the seminar's success cannot be measured by the number of answers the students produced nor the number of problems solved.

This kind of success could hardly be expected of a one-day program, covering a broad range of subjects but questions were raised and several viewpoints were presented. Through the discussions, students were able to see problems they never realized before.

New Cattle Building Set For '72 Fair

The Ottawa County Fair board has approved the construction of a new cattle exhibit building, to be completed and ready for this year's fair, scheduled July 24 through 29.

The new structure will be identical to the new horse exhibit building now nearing completion. Both are 52 x 184 feet clear span structures, and will be able to house all the horses entered for exhibit under one roof, and also all the cattle in one building.

When the Fair started 14 years ago all the poultry and livestock exhibits were housed in tents with temporary pens and stalls, but as the fair has grown and the exhibits have mushroomed it has become increasingly difficult. With the fine open class animals and the fine 4-H animals entered at the Fair, the board moved ahead on their planning for the future with construction of these new buildings.

The Ottawa County Fair has gained the reputation throughout the state as one of the cleanest and fastest-growing fairs, and with the completion of these new facilities for exhibiting livestock in all new red and white metal matching buildings, the fair will be able to present livestock exhibits under the finest possible conditions.

Fair manager Cliff Steketee reports that practically all available inside and outdoor exhibit space has been booked, and with the most outstanding shows and programs ever presented, plus the big Michigan State Department of Agriculture colt stakes featuring this year's popular harness races, record-breaking crowds are anticipated.

KEEPING OUR CITY CLEAN

When we reach this time of the year in our area, one wonders just where all the trash and junk comes from. In most cases we seem to want to keep our yards and home clean and neat.

In Holland, with the help of the city, persons have taken care of a good deal of the winter accumulation.

We also have noticed that the county and state have workmen cleaning up the tons and tons of refuse of all kinds that have been discarded along our streets and highways.

All of this cleaning up costs money. We wonder why so many people continue to throw away tons and tons of paper, metal, glass, food and in fact anything they think they do not want. They should take the time to dispose of their garbage, trash and other rubbish in the proper manner. Think about this problem.

It is about two weeks until we will be celebrating our 43rd annual Tulip Time. We are expecting thousands of people from responses received each day at our Tulip Time office in Civic Center and we should strive to greet visitors with a clean city.

ASWA Is Told About Insurance

Dale Van-Lente, Chartered Property and Casualty Underwriter and currently president of Holland Agency Inc., was the speaker at the monthly dinner meeting of the Holland Chapter of the American Society of Women Accountants held Tuesday evening in the Festival Room of the Hotel Warm Friend.

Speaking on the topic "Workmen's Compensation," Van Lente stated that workmen's compensation is a 20th century development dealing with a social problem, namely job related insurance. Different types of social insurance are the unemployment taxes and social security. Large segments of the population must be subject to them although generally premiums are not paid by the people insured. It is the only type of insurance that is underwritten by commercial insurance agencies. The law is compulsory in the State of Michigan and began in 1912 "to promote the welfare of the people of the State of Michigan."

Miss Ruth Kronmeyer, president, conducted the business meeting. Announcement was made that a tour of the Grand Rapids Post Office will be May 9.

Mrs. Eva Neumann, program chairman, was in charge of the meeting and Esther Bareman introduced the speaker. Miss Cecelia Ver Hafe gave the invocation.

The Church Responds to Human Need
Luke 22:24-27; Hebrews 13:1-3;
James 1:27 2:14-17
By C. P. Dame

"And there was also a strife among them, which of them should be accounted the greatest"—these are the first words of the lesson text and they are not complimentary to the disciples who were quarreling at the Lord's table. This lesson tells the church to respond to human need.

I. Service is the duty of the church. Jesus had been teaching the disciples for about three years and yet they quarreled about a place. This quarrel about a position was the result of months of thinking about getting first place—not about serving, but about getting service.

Gentle rulers thought themselves to be benefactors although they looked out for themselves only. In contrast to the pagan world, Jesus told His disciples that the really great served. In life the customer is more important than the waiter. Jesus however said, "But I am among you as he that serveth."

Today in the church, in politics, in labor, in industry, in social life, in the educational world there is a scramble for positions and places of power. Is it wrong to want to succeed? In the eyes of Jesus, the truly great serve.

II. "Let brotherly love continue."

Spasmodic love will not do. True love continues to inspire action. The New Testament stresses hospitality "for there by some have entertained angels unaware." Look up Genesis 18:1-15; Judges 6:11-24 and II Kings 17:24-24.

In these days of motels and hotels, Christians still have opportunities to entertain people in their homes—students, new members, visitors, delegates to church conventions and the lonely. Many opportunities to serve along this line are overlooked, sometimes because they involve work and inconvenience.

III. Faith expresses itself by ministering. The two passages from James are fitting. James says that religion—by that term he means Christianity—when it is approved of God, shows concern for the fatherless and widows in their affliction and to keep the self "unspotted from the world." Talk is cheap but deeds often cost discipline, effort and sacrifice.

Today there is a controversy going on between people who believe in the social and those who believe in the personal gospel. The many problems—poverty, drugs, hunger, alcoholism, injustice, ghettos and others—concern all consecrated Christians. Some fix their attention upon these timely problems and forget the basic problem—that of sin. And Christ came into the world to save us from our sins.

Early Birds Hear Drug Executive

A tendency to dwell on what's wrong with America is producing growing challenges for business, Chamber of Commerce Early Birds were told at breakfast Tuesday by Stanley G. Tangelakis of Detroit, manager of public relations for Parke-Davis, a subsidiary of Warner-Lambert Co.

In a changing world where many people discount the many good things society is doing, the pharmaceutical industry has been among the leaders so far as change is concerned, the speaker said.

"And business must not shrink from the responsibility of meeting the varied challenges of environmentalism, advertising and marketing practices, consumerism and many other isms," he added.

The scourges of the past such as diphtheria, scarlet fever and polio are seldom found today, thanks to the development of antibiotics and vaccines, and improved health care.

Trial - by - headlines capture the attention of the people, who often do not think beyond that point in a country whose history is so brief and its accomplishments so great. Consequently, controls are sought in a system which offers the best in leisure time, health, education and housing.

Tangelakis spoke of air samples taken in over 70 places all over the world which revealed the same content of oxygen in the air (29.5 per cent) as in 1910, although the quality of air was different.

Along with the beneficial effects of pharmaceutical products is the ever present risk potential, and the chances are that penicillin never would have been approved 30 years ago if the controls were as rigid as they are today. The speaker likened this risk to the fire bell at midnight which may interfere with sleep but it keeps one from being burned to death in bed.

Part of the criticism of modern medicine today is a prevailing philosophy that medicine has become a science, but Tangelakis said such a classification is impossible because there is still a tremendous element of art and experience, of personalized professionalism, and of individual variance that characterizes the biological from physical science.

He said Parke - Davis will be spending some $700 million in 1972 on research and development, and pinpointed some areas where medical research currently is making promising progress. Among these are heart and circulatory diseases, viral diseases (possibly including cancer), transplants of organs, aging, mental retardation, and hormonal changes.

'Chain of Jade' Closes West Ottawa's Season

The final production of the West Ottawa Theatre for the season, "Chain of Jade," opened this morning before the students at Waukazoo Elementary School. The one-act children's musical was also presented at Glerum and Pine Creek schools today.

The adaptation of "The Stolen Prince" by Dan Totherow was presented in the round, this morning with minimal props and lots of imagination.

"Chain of Jade" is set in the Middle Flower Kingdom 1,001 years ago when twins, a girl and a boy, who wears a chain of jade around his neck, are born to the old emperor Lang Moo.

It is the custom to kill all girl babies, so Long Fo and Wing Lee, son and daughter of the emperor's cook, decide to save the girl's life by stealing her and putting her into a tub to float down the river Chang Hi.

They hope she will be found by some honest family and be brought up to live a happy, normal life.

However, the children mistakenly steal the prince and the story evolves from there with an eventually happy ending.

Members of the cast are Phil Plomp and Mary Jo Coughenour as Long Fo and Wing Lee, Vicki Wood as the royal nurse, Geoffrey Mulder as Hi Tee, Cindi Vanders as Li Mo, Daniel Dekker as the prince after he is grown, Mark Ten Brink as the executioner and Eugene La-Combe as the property man who spends much of his time as a duck.

Clark Van Hekken is the chorus and the happily terrible orchestra is comprised of Debra Barrow, Patti Jonker and Barb Van De Vusse. Vern Le Quire and Dennis Nienhuis are the soldiers.

Jodi Hansen is pianist for the production with Miss Barrow in charge of costumes, Carolyn Van Lente in charge of properties; Tom Wiersma, lighting, and Paul Vander Kooi, set construction.

Phillip Sturdevant is director. "Chain of Jade" is a good source of entertainment for families with young children and it will be presented in the West Ottawa cafeteria tonight at 7:30 and Saturday at 2 p.m. Students in North Holland, Sheldon Woods and Woodside schools will see the play next week.

Speaking on "Work — Are You Kidding?" Frederic M. Bennetts, director of public relations for Oldsmobile Division, spoke of his admiration of students today in their real concern for the social ills of pollution, war and safety that threaten the American way of life.

With each generation seeking its own identity whether it be beat, acid, rock, frenzy or hippie, the speaker was of the opinion that the world is no more a mess today than at any other time, but that people are stirred up more because of the rapid transmission of information through mass media.

With the world assailed by forces of all kinds, underneath is the glimmer of hope and faith in the youth who aided by education and its proper application through teamwork and tolerance must resolve growing problems.

"It no longer is enough just to do your work and get by, but it how well you work and how much you accomplish is important," the speaker said. "Give your employer just a bit more than he asks and you will never regret it. Think clearly, independently and creatively. These qualities produce the leaders."

Karen Petroelje, a co-op in the Sentinel newsroom, served as chairman and introduced guests. William Heydens served as program chairman and presented prizes and awards.

Holland Students Experience Outdoor Living

New Camping Skills Gained From Class

Photographed by Bob Steenwyk
Written by George Tatum

At 5:45 Friday afternoon 47 students and teachers of Holland High School arrived at Ludington State Park Camping Grounds to begin their unique two-day camping excursion.

After finding the desired location the students proceeded to erect their tents and build campfires.

Each student was required to cook his own meal. While some enjoyed steak and hot chocolate, others suffered through their cold beans and watered-down soup.

Some of the amateur outdoorsmen went to the nearby river to do some fishing before dark. Afterwards everyone sat around the campfire sharing jokes and stories before observing the 11 p.m. curfew.

Saturday's schedule included early morning fishing, hiking and visits to historical areas around Ludington.

Holland High School is keeping up with innovative trends in the educational system.

In this case, Holland High is concentrating on the appeal of physical education classes which have long been another requirement for graduation in the minds of some students.

However, Holland is trying to alleviate this through the experimental introduction of the outdoor education class.

The stated goal of the class is to "...deal directly with the natural resources and life situations that are found in an outdoor setting." Therefore, emphasis is placed on direct experience in an activity rather than merely a lecture.

Rifles were fired on a shooting range, students undertook a clean-up project of the Holland High campus, and the entire class culminated in this weekend's camping trip to Ludington State Park.

Students were transported to the park by school bus with equipment following by truck. The trip is coeducational and three women and four men served as instructors, each being in charge of eight to ten students.

The excursion was an exercise in survival camping and tents, campfires, and sleeping bags will be utilized. There was no special funding and students and teachers provided their own necessities.

The class in outdoor education receives its basis from the current emphasis in what are known as "carry-over" sports, according to Don Piersma, Director of Physical Education and basketball coach.

Carry-over sports are those activities in which students can participate after graduation to achieve healthy, creative lives. They include such activities as bowling, golf, softball and tennis.

Students become members of the class through selecting the six-week long segment in outdoor education from other class choices. Currently there are 85 student enrolled in six classes of outdoor education in grades 10, 11 and 12 and the two instructors for the classes are Kenneth Bauman and Piersma. Additional instructors for the camping trip are Dirk Bloemendaal, Clyde Line, Jan Sebens, Julie Keefer and Debbie Laug.

Great utilization of outside resources has been made, noted Piersma. Consultations with Hope College regarding the environment, area sports stores regarding camping equipment, Herrick Public Library for films and audio-visual aids were a few of the sources mentioned. Also, much help has come

Allegan GOP Women Hear Mrs. D. Borg

DOUGLAS — Dorothy Borg, president of the Michigan Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, says that over 90 per cent of the American people have never been asked to work for or to join a political party and that this should be changed.

Mrs. Borg, a Grand Rapids business woman, spoke at the spring luncheon meeting of the Allegan County Republican Women at Tara here April 25.

She added that young people are responsive to specific issues and will work for causes but are reluctant to affiliate with party organizations at a time when personal involvement is more necessary than ever. Since many people form opinions about a candidate from her tv exposure, it is necessary to depend on volunteers to present the facts, Mrs. Borg said, adding that about two-thirds of a candidate's campaign funds are spent on tv with expenses for a senatorial candidate now running about $4 million.

Allegan county president Eleanor Olsson announced that the county convention is set for May 31 with the state convention June 16 and 17 in Cobo Hall. She also announced the sale of tickets for a fund-raising luncheon which will feature Mrs. William Milliken, Mrs. Robert Griffin and Mrs. John Mitchell as special guests.

Members were asked to study Senate Bill 1036, the Home Rule Bill, which recommends that all county elected officials be appointed by a special board, and to be aware of the implications of such legislation.

Meanwhile, at a meeting of the Allegan County Republican Committee in the county building Thursday, Mrs. Olsson was elected chairman of the county organization to replace Charles Yeates who resigned under pressure of hospital business. Mrs. Olsson, who lives in Holland, is the first woman in the history of the county to hold this post.
