SCHELVEN AND JACOB VAN
PUTTEN "SNAPPED" BE-FORE CIVIL WAR

A real find is shown in this column, picturing two Holland men who played an important part in this city's early history. To the left is Jacob Van Putten, better known as "Jap," Holland's second private banker, spoken of elsewhere in another article in relation to the death of Mr. "Java" Verschure. He was the second banker conducting a private bank in this city shortly after the first bank had burned down in what was known as Kenyon's Hall, a three-story building and an opera house located on the site of the present McBride block and built by Nathan Kenyon. Mr. Van Putten was also a lumbering man. He at one time owned much of the land which embraces Waukazoo.

and early deeds describing parcels of land in that neighborhood will contain his name.

It wasn't known as Waukazoo then, but was called Point Superior, and many a Holland immigrant who "klomped" over from the Netherlands in wooden shoes via a sailing vessel received his first day's work there. For short the Hollanders called it Siberia, not having Russia in mind either. Many of the logs were rafted to Pluiger's Mill, then located on the site of the West Michigan Furniture company, which was a combination saw and flour mill. Much of the lumber was taken to Chicago in sailing vessels, and a great deal of it was used in Chicago directly after the fire in 1871, when Mrs. O'Leary's cow, according to legends, kicked over a lantern in a Chicago stable. For many years, Mr. Van Putten lived on the corner of Pine Avenue and 10th St. He was one of those sturdy business men who constituted the backbone of a pioneering city.

The membership list of the Dutch Hospitality club has passed the 300 mark. A lot of handshaking, symbol of Dutch hospitality, will be one of the results.

Mr. Van Putten became so annoyed with some of these procedures that he put a stop to it in a most unusual manner. He got two "young bloods" by the collar, marched them to the front of the church below the pulpit and put them to shame before an entire congregation, and then he "booted" them out. It is said that there were never any more disturbances at or near the church after that while Mr. Van Putten was marshal, which was mostly a labor of love in those days.

The slender gentleman to the right is Gerrit Van Schelven, still well remembered by the present generation. Mr. Van Schelven was a veteran of the Civil War, was a writer of historic articles, was at one time editor of the Holland City News and had been City Clerk and Justice of the Peace for a long period. He served on Charter commissions and finally became Postmaster of Holland, serving longer than any other postmaster before or since. He was repeatedly made commander of the A. C. Van Raalte post G. A. R., and was generally found to be a most active man in Memorial Day preparations. For years he was called upon to read the roll of the absent dead, for it seemed that no one could do that better than Mr. Van Schelven. The writer remembers the first reading of the roll at a wooden slab, which represented a soldier's monument. It was largely through the efforts of Mr. Van Schelven that many years ago the present imposing soldiers' monument was built in soldiers' plot in Pilgrim Home cemetery. He also was secretary of the board of parks and cemeteries for a long period of time.

Mr. Van Schelven helped to organize the different committees and for nearly a year worked to perfect the semi-centennial celebration program held in 1897, still considered by many the most gigantic demonstration ever held in Holland.

During the fire of '71, Mr. Van Schelven helped to organize a relief corps, since Holland citizens were simply burned out and destitute. It must be remembered that Holland wasn't the only city burned in Michigan at that time, and besides, the big Chicago fire occurred a few days before.

You can note from this tintype that Mr. Van Schelven, even in his younger days, was a fastidious dresser. He remained that way all through life. No man was more particular about his dress than was our "Van". The writer having worked beside Mr. Van Schelven for nearly 15 years, held him in the deepest regard, and feels that a great deal of historic knowledge which your editor has acquired can be attributed to our early association with Mr. Van Schelven, for he, in reality, was Holland's historian. We are indebted to Mr. Adrian Van Putten, grandson of Jacob Van Putten, for this tintype.

Son Of Pioneer Family Dies At Ann Arbor

"JAVA" VERSCHURE BELONGED TO EARLY ATHLETIC AND BASEBALL PERIOD

The death of Jacob "Java" Verschure at Ann Arbor came as a shock to his many friends in Holland who had known him in his boyhood days.

During the past ten years he had made his residence at Grand Haven, he having married Miss Reka Manting, a lady from that city some years ago. However, he came to Holland almost weekly since that time.

Mr. Verschure was especially considerate of his two sisters, Mrs. A. L. Cappon, and Miss Jennie Verschure living on West 12th Street. Not a week passed by without his making a trip from Grand Haven to see them and to look after their interests. This has been a trait with "Java" way back from his boyhood days, when the two sisters were always uppermost in his mind.

Mr. Verschure was taken to Ann Arbor nearly a month ago where he passed away at the age of 61 years.

The writer was a "next door" neighbor of the Verschure family and "Java" was one of the neighborhood playmates and was of an athletic turn of mind. There were few men in Holland who had a finer physique than did "Java" Verschure.

Mr. Verschure was one of the pioneers in baseball in Holland. He was one of the organizers of the early clubs that played in this city and in neighboring cities, and in his day was considered an expert in the pitcher's box. One of the clubs that gained considerable prominence was the O.C.T., as did other early baseball clubs that were formed from time to time in Holland.

Whether a "scrub" or a regular club, the two Verschure boys, "Java" and "Tards" were always thought of first as forming part of the aggregation. The writer remembers the boys when they started to play in the sand lot back of our home in a game of "one old cat." That was when there weren't enough players to go around. "Java" was the greatest baseball enthusiast when Holland had its big team when Neal Ball was the star performer, and even then he was drafted into a position on the team at different times. Holland's baseball history is a story in itself, in fact, it is outstanding, and it was men like "Java" Verschure who created this athletic interest.

Mr. Verschure was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornell Verschure who in the early days lived on West 10th Street. The father was the cashier of the second private bank in Holland, called the Van Putten bank, located on the site of the Fris Book Store. The proprietor "Jap" Van Putten was the father-in-law of Mr. Cornell Verschure. The bank was later merged with the Holland City State bank and Mr. Verschure continued to be the cashier and manager of the institution up to the time of his death many years ago. For a time "Java" also held a position in that bank. The father, too, was treasurer of Holland for a number of years and a member of the school board.

This issue of the Holland City News is replete with "Tulip" information, Tulip Time pictures, the official program and considerable historic data. Dr. A. J. Brower, the world traveler, gives a special article on The Netherlands with pictures, in which he describes Staphorst, Vollenham, and other provinces where our Tulip Time costumes are every-day wearing apparel.

On section 3, page one, will be found a reproduction of a Holland souvenir showing many old buildings and interesting scenes. Many pictures still show the oil lamps before Edison's electric "glim" came and the hitching post at which horses were compelled to park. No parking tickets in those days.

In another part of this issue is found a story of "Poppe" and Engel Kole and their silver skates. But what's the use of telling more. There are a great many interesting features, and even the advertising "ooze" Tulip news.

"Java" had a great many intimate friends; in fact, he had a faculty to make friends, being of a jovial and pleasing disposition. The remains of Mr. Verschure were taken from Ann Arbor by Nibbelink and Notier, morticians, and friends were given the privilege to pay their respects while the body lay in state.

The funeral rites are being held this afternoon at two o'clock from the home of Mrs. A. L. Cappon, 156 West 12th St., Rev. Wm. Van't Hoff, pastor of Third Reformed church officiating. Interment is taking place in the Verschure family plot in Pilgrim Home cemetery.

Pallbearers were Isaac Kowert, John Bosman, G. W. Van Vleet, Jack Bontekoe, J. J. Riemersma, and Charles McBride.

The floral tributes are many and beautiful from home and abroad, indicative of the esteem with which Mr. Verschure was held by many.

The survivors are the widow, of Grand Haven, two sisters, Mrs. A. L. Cappon, and Miss Jennie Verschure of Holland, and one brother, Andrew of Joliet, Ill.

instic flower lover is a role in which he is not often cast. But that will be the picture of Holland's mayor in "Tulip Tales." The mayor will ride in state, too, entering in a real carriage imported for the occasion.

The industrial fair's success is assured according to Ray Krone-meyer, in charge of the exhibition sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce. All space has been sold, and the local armory is busy with activity in preparation.

The picture of the lowlands of Holland taken from an artist painting and which is authentic, was loaned to the Holland City

News by the Reigel Paper Corporation, 342 Madison Avenue, New York City. They are makers of turfwire paper used by many printers throughout the country. We are surely indebted to this enterprise for the courtesy extended this publication. The picture is truly typical of the lowlands of The Netherlands, with a windmill background.

Street scrubbers will be greater in number this year than on any previous Tulip Week. Even the dignified Rotarians will be present 100 percent. Anyone wishing to participate in this part of the program

CITIZENS—ATTENTION, PLEASE:

On next Monday night at 7 o'clock sharp, Mayor Henry Geerlings has called a meeting of all patriotic citizens to help arrange for Memorial Sunday, May 28, and Memorial Day, May 30, exercises. The meeting will be held in the City Hall in the G.A.R. rooms where meetings have always been held. The meeting is called for 7 o'clock sharp for the reason that many are compelled to leave early for Tulip Time activities.

May we expect your cooperation?

Sincerely Yours,
Henry Geerlings, Mayor;
Ben Mulder, Secretary.

Mystery Of Skeleton Has Been Solved

SON SAYS FATHER BURIED OLD SKELETON IN DR. KREMER'S YARD

A few weeks ago there was quite a stir about town because a bundle of human bones had been dug up in the old hospital plot where "Little Netherlands," one of our outstanding Tulip Time features was being built and has been surrounded by a brick wall. Digging for the foundation of this stone enclosure brought to light several parts of a skeleton, supposedly that of a woman. The bones had been in the ground for many years and the complete skeleton was not intact. It was considered by some of the older residents who knew that it was one of the skeletons owned by the late Dr. H. Kremers who had several of them for study as most of the early period doctors had. The doctor also had one in his office on East 8th street and the story then set forth was that after the doctor's death, one of the un assembled skeletons was buried in a remote part of the yard.

The writer happened to stumble onto what seems to be the solution of this skeleton. Herman Koster, custodian at the courthouse at Grand Haven stated that he had read the article telling about the finding of the skeleton, and that his father, Bernard Koster, who died June, 1938, had buried that skeleton many years before, when the custodian was a youngster. The skeleton had been hanging back of the house, according to Mr. Koster, and it was rather an antiquated and incomplete skeleton, so Mr. Koster's father was ordered to bury the bones near a grape arbor in the garden to the south end of the yard. The father was at that time the "handyman" at the Kremers residence, working in the garden and in the stable and often drove for the doctor. When the father came home he told mother and the children, "I heb net een menschen begraaven, (I have just buried a person)" and then he told the family that he had buried the old skeleton.

Herman Koster, the present custodian at the county court house never thought of the matter again until the story of the discovery of the bones received wide publicity. Then he remembered what his father had said. There is nothing extraordinary about the skeleton. Everyone knew the doctor had many skeletons used for observation and study, the only thing different about the original story is that the man who really buried the skeleton, has been found according to Herman Koster, his son. The burying must have taken place a very long time ago, according to the Grand Haven man, who was formerly a resident of Holland.

Herman Koster, the father, lived on 6th St. for several years.

Mrs. Frank G. Aman was called to Moline by the death of her father, Mrs. W. D. Huff. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 10 a. m. from the St. Joseph Holland Women Do Lion's Share of Cleaning on Monroe Ave.

The Grand Rapids Herald pictured several Holland women doing the street scrubbing stunt in front of the Pantlind hotel Monday night, while crowds looked on. The men from Holland carried the water in buckets on yokes and slopped it about so the ladies could do some scrubbing—a scrubbing which Monroe Ave. hasn't had since the new brick pavement was laid.

The Lions from this city went to the large convention and at the same time publicized the Tulip Festival for next week.

Tampering with the Clock

(Detroit Free Press)

Approximately 30,000,000 people in the United States put their clocks ahead an hour before they went to bed Sunday night.

And of these, about 10,000,000 were in New York.

Another 100,000,000 Americans, among them 1,700,000 Detroiters, were unaffected by the change to daylight saving time.

The daylight saving "reform" was adopted by ordinance in New York City in 1918 and soon spread to New England and other parts of the country. Statewide use of daylight saving time has been established in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware, New Jersey, Maine and Rhode Island. And in several other states it is observed in large cities and industrial centers.

The primary object of daylight saving is to save an hour of daylight for men and women, who work by the clock or whistle, after their day's work is done.

Standard time is still good enough for small communities and farms, where hours of work are governed by other considerations, and in cities like Detroit, which are so located with respect to the dividing lines between time zones that it is not necessary.

Clocks and watches in such places do not have to be put ahead an hour on the last Sunday in April and put back an hour on the last Sunday in September.

Pay as You Go

(Detroit News)

The Methodist Church, shaping new policies at its Uniting Conference in Kansas City, sets an excellent example for all organizations. It rules that no Methodist congregation shall erect a building until the ground for it shall have been paid for at least 50 percent of the estimated cost is on hand in cash and tangible assets.

Detroit has a number of reminders of the over-enthusiasm that prevailed in flush times. Defaulted bonds and reorganizations effected by heavy losses to trusting investors, are bad enough in secular affairs. The church should keep free from dubious transactions.

Henry G. Vredevelde of Lugers Crossing, R.R. 1, Holland, passed away at his home Monday evening. He was 65 years. He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Donald Romney of Route No. 2, and Miss Jeanette Aletha at home; two sisters, Mrs. Paul Van Vulpem and Mrs. Richard Wiegman. Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p. m. from the Nibbelink-Notier chapel, with the Rev. C. M. Beerthuis of Immanuel church, officiating. Burial will be in Graafschap cemetery.

A Mother-Daughter banquet will be given at the Methodist church Saturday by the women of the church. The Ganges Methodist Ladies Aid is sponsoring a mother-daughter banquet Tuesday evening at the church.

Holland's police force will be doing duty during Tulip week, but not in the new uniforms which they hoped to don by that time. The uniforms arrived, but the color as well as the fit was not as ordered. Consequently they were returned, and Holland's force will wear the old suits. However, the service as usual will be par excellence, for all that.

Mrs. Bessie Schaeffer, of 34 East 21st St., passed away at Holland hospital Monday morning at the age of 51 years. She had been taken to the hospital after suffering a paralytic stroke at her home Saturday. Her husband, Benjamin Schaeffer, passed away March 29, 1933. Schaeffer was born Oct. 30, 1887, in Eyrat to Mr. and Mrs. C. Williamson. Survivors are five sons, Bernard of Allegan, Basil, Roy, Barney and Donald, all of Holland; five daughters, Mrs. Arnold Hart of Elmira, Mich., Mrs. William Borgman, Misses Bertina, Betty, and Vivian, all of Holland; two brothers, Floyd Williamson of Big Rapids and George Williamson of Flint; four sisters, Mrs. Florence Postell, Mrs. Nina Schinberger, Mrs. Nettie Walters, all of Flint, and Mrs. Carls Dekker of Marne. Funeral services were held Wednesday at 3 p. m. from the Langland funeral home, with the Rev. John Lansing officiating. Burial was in Pilgrim Home cemetery.

Western Theological seminary students for 1939-40 will include at least five of Central College, Pella, Iowa graduates. The group was here over the weekend to look over the local school and environments, and enrolled before they left for home, well pleased with the outlook. They are: John Benes, Henry Ten Clay, Veron Koory, Francis Dykstra, and Cornelius Reyner.

Holland Man Speaks to New Hope Alumni

(Muskegon Chronicle)

Dr. Marvin B. Meengs was elected president of Greater Muskegon chapter of Hope college alumni, succeeding Herman A. Kruijenga, at a dinner meeting last night in Unity Reformed church, attended by 40 persons including five high school seniors who will enroll at Hope next September.

William A. Vanderwerp is the new vice-president. Re-elected were Mrs. James TenBrink, secretary, and Christian A. Broek, treasurer.

Dr. Bruce M. Raymond, head of the political science department, spoke on "American Neutrality." Pupils in one of his classes, recently questioned, said they did not think the United States would keep from a general war, but none were willing to go to any other country to fight. However, if this nation were to be invaded, then they would fight, he said.

Other program numbers, for which Rev. James A. Stegeman was toastmaster, included a toast to Hope college, by Mr. Broek, and music, Mrs. Gordon F. Van Eenennaam, formerly of Zeeland, accompanied by Miss Bertha Leenstra, sang several selections, including Cadman's "The Heart of Her." Harold Gilman led the group singing, with Mrs. Bert Brower accompanying at the piano.

Arrangements committee included Dr. Meengs, program chairman; James TenBrink, reservations; and Mrs. Brower, dinner.

Jacob Schipper, who had been ill for about three years with heart trouble, passed away early Tuesday morning at his home, 137 West 15th Street. Born in Coopersville Jan. 24, 1871, he was 68 years of age. Prior to his illness he was employed at the Bay View Furniture Co. Mr. Schipper was a member of the Prospect Park Chr. Ref. Church, and of the Men's society, and served as elder for some time. Survivors are the widow, a son, Gerrit Schipper of Northfield, Minn., a grand daughter, also one brother, Wybe Schipper of East Saugatuck. Funeral services at the home Friday afternoon at 1:30 will be private, with services at the church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Van Laar, pastor of the church, will officiate. Interment will be at Pilgrim Home Cemetery.

The Holland Exchange club members were entertained at their Monday noon luncheon by Trooper L. N. Coykendall of the safety division of the Michigan state police. He exhibited pistol marksmanship, and shot the flame from the work of a candle and split a playing card edgewise, talking while exhibiting these feats.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wilson are occupying their new home at 201 West 15th street.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS DEAD SHINERS IN BLACK RIVER

A serious loss of white bass in Lake Macatawa is being threatened by the death of millions of shiner minnows which provide food for the bass while they are spawning in Black river here. At one point along the river, it is estimated that nearly a million shiners are lying in a section of the shore eight feet wide and 30 feet long.

The large numbers of dead minnows were first noticed by attorney Charles Van Duren, Jr., Sunday who lives in that vicinity, and Conservation Officer Forrest Lavooy was called. With Police Chief Ira A. Antles of Holland, a former conservation officer, a preliminary investigation was made. An oily waste on the water was taken as one of the likely causes of the death of the shiners.

Further investigation is being made by the conservation department. Although white bass are not the foremost game fish of this area, they are highly regarded by fishermen, and provide many a day's sport during the season. Whether pollution or some other cause is responsible, the conservation commission is making a thorough investigation.

Trinity Reformed church will be scene of the Western Social conference on Monday, May 15, with sessions at 10 a. m. and 1:45 p. m. Members are ministers and elders of the Reformed classis of Holland, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, and Kalamazoo. Dr. Wynand Wichers, president of Hope College, and president of the state board of education of Michigan, will speak in the morning on the subject, "The Present Opportunity of the Church in a Democracy." and in the afternoon the Rev. Henry D. Terkeurst, pastor of Trinity church, will speak on "A Candid Look at Our Seminaries."

WE WISH to extend a cordial welcome to all Holland and its many visitors to wander through the tulips at the NELIS TULIP FARM. Although our display was considered by many to be the most complete exhibition in the country, we have tried to make this exhibit still more interesting, we have scoured the world for those unusual types, colors, and shapes never displayed on our farm, and we consider it the finest display we have ever been able to present.

A Beautiful Box of Fresh Cut Tulips Mailed Anywhere—The Ideal Tulip-Time Gift

Last year we filled orders for several hundred boxes of cut tulips, which were shipped from New York to California, and from Maine to Florida. This note of appreciation from Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Washington, D. C., is typical of the many received:

"Do let me thank you for the lovely tulips that arrived today, just as fresh as if they had only been picked. . ."

Our Standard Box—

This year we have planted enough tulips so that we can cut a quantity for boxes without disturbing our main tulip display, and we are offering our standard box, which will contain a gorgeous assortment of not less than 25 choice blooms, in at least 12 various colors and types, fresh cut, carefully packed and attractively wrapped for satisfactory delivery to any point within 300 miles, at $1.00 a box, postpaid, slightly higher to more distant points to defray the extra postage.

Our De Luxe Box—

This box will contain an assortment of colors and varieties that cannot be surpassed, also choicest of latest novelties we have never before cared to cut. Only a few of these boxes remain still unsold, at $2.00 a box, slightly higher for points beyond 300 miles.

Your Card Enclosed With Each Box

Select Your Tulip Bulbs Now for Fall Delivery

The best time to order your tulips is now when they are all in bloom, and you can see the actual colors, shapes and sizes of 400 varieties. Many of these varieties are listed and described in our new tulip catalog, many of them are illustrated in color, but neither words nor illustrations can begin to do justice to the tulips that are now arrayed in gorgeous display for you to see at our farm. There is more pleasure in ordering your tulips from the field, and you will be better pleased with the results next spring. Besides the better selection, your order will be filled in the fall with the largest and finest of bulbs.

EXTRA DISCOUNTS FOR EARLY ORDERING
You can save money by ordering now. Special extra discounts are given on orders placed this month. Take advantage of your opportunity to order direct from the largest and finest tulip display in America, at money-saving prices. Shipment will be made in time for early fall planting.

should call or get in touch with Mrs. Lloyd Heasley, chairman of this event.

Because of the fact that schools will be dismissed at noon on Thursday and Friday, May 18 and 19, only students of junior high, East junior high, and senior high will report for classes at 7:30 those days, but students of elementary schools will report at the regular time, 8:45.

The State House and Senate club, composed of wives and daughters of legislators, are planning a trip to Holland on Wednesday of Tulip week, which is Educational Day.

Holland downtown merchants are entering into the window display contest with a zest that betokens windows that will be works of art. This contest which was discontinued during last year's festival is again meeting with a big response by local merchants and doubtless store windows will be an added attraction during Tulip week. Cash prizes and a silver loving cup to the winners are being offered. Harold Yonker is chairman of the committee in charge.

Prof. Kenneth Osborne will present a 15-minute carillon program from Hope Memorial chapel at 9 a. m. Saturday and a 15-minute program on each of the Sundays from 3:45 to 4 o'clock.

Official invitations to Holland's Tulip festival are being passed out by Holland's Tulip Time committee in a most unique manner. The invitations to the members of the state legislature and state officials were extended Wednesday by two little tots all dressed up for the occasion in Dutch regalia. They were Sandra Kay Decker and Herbert Wybenga Jr. The tots were accompanied by their mothers with state police escorting them all to Lansing. Two other little tots, Judith Ann Ryppa and Bobby Krommeyer, together with Mrs. Don Ryppa and Mr. Ray Krommeyer, chairman of the Hospitality club, extended invitations to Grand Rapids officials.

Guests in Holland during Tulip Time and throughout the year will in the future be asked to register at the Chamber of Commerce office. Secretary Stephan states that registration will be made by states so that guests can meet others from their state if they wish. This will enable the Chamber to send future publicity to the signers also.

William H. Lundie, RFD No. 5, Holland, Michigan, 80, while visiting the New York World's Fair last Saturday night, May 6, was interviewed on the NBC Vox Pop program by Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth. Mr. Lundie, who has been a Vox Pop radio fan for years, discussed with Johnson and Butterworth the large tulip display at the World's Fair, which is a gift of the Netherlands Government, and called attention to the fact that Holland, Michigan, is

Dr. Van Raalte's Cradle 100 Years Ago

The cradle seen in this picture is over 100 years old. The children of Dr. Van Raalte, the founder of Holland as babies were cradled in this cradle. In fact, the cradle was used when Dr. and Mrs. Van Raalte came to America and was used on shipboard when the late Mrs. A. C. Van Raalte Gilmore was then a mere child. The young lady rocking the cradle is Miss Dorothy Wichers, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Wynand Wichers.

The crib can be seen at the Netherlands Museum at the Masonic Temple, where it is on exhibition.

Pamahasika's Pets

PAMAHASIKAS PETS AT THE NORTH SHORE COMMUNITY CLUB

The committee in charge of the North Shore Community Hall activities has engaged the world famous small animal and bird show circus—Pamahasika's Pets—to appear at this popular community center on Saturday, May 13th, and on Friday, May 19th, the day of the Air Show.

This circus includes spectacular performances by BOZO, the Comic Monkey. Gorgeously plumed Brazilian macaws, sulphur created Australian Cockatoos, trained canaries and a company of trick dogs which has performed in every large city in this country. It is especially interesting to know that this is the same company, headed by Raymond V. Roberts, that was featured on the Enchanted Island at a Century of Progress for both years of the Fair. Incidentally it was the only show bought and paid for by the Fair itself.

Performances will be given Saturday and the following Friday at hours which will not conflict with any of the Tulip Time activities in the city.

Many Holland folk will remember seeing this great circus when it was brought here four years ago under the auspices of Hope College.

Old Joe Fixter's Stave Factory

Sitting on a wheelbarrow: Bert Kolvoort (part owner). Above Mr. Kolvoort: Mr. Andre; Art Vanden Brink; Mr. Baas; Joe Saluski; Levi Bailey, killed in the mill a year later; James Clark; Dick Ver Schure; Arie Boot, Mr. Annis; the last we do not know.

Standing high are "Keekus" Baas and Alt Vander Nagel.

Others who worked there, not in the picture, are Guy Schaftenaar, to whom we are indebted for this photograph; Frank Dyke, late contractor; Bram Kramer; George Kramer; Isaac Ver Schure; Volkert De Vries; Ed Ver Schure, and Sam Schaftenaar.

This old-time mill was still there in 1893, when this picture was taken. It was owned largely by Joe Fixter, a stout, ruddy German from Milwaukee, who had a handle-bar mustache. He made barrel staves, many of them going to Milwaukee to be used for that "stuff that made Milwaukee famous." Anyway, there was quite a market for stave bolts taken in by team by local farmers from their woodlots.

There was also a cooper shop. There were staves made. Joe Saluski was an expert stave cutter. He raised quite a family here. John Hoffman, former local restaurant man, married one of the daughters.

Staves were taken to different ports by sailing vessels, which then could dock at the foot of Fifth St. The factory was located on the site of the Scott-Lugers Lumber Co., and the mill was about where the lumber yards are. In connection with the shop, there were long roofed sheds without sides, under which surplus staves were neatly piled for drying and storage. When there were still some forests, the Joe Fixter factory was a real thriving industry here, and the hearty German was a most congenial man as the writer can remember. The factory has been dismantled years ago. The steam kiln in the picture is seen in the foreground.

Four Combined City Bands To Present Concert

WILL BE GIVEN AT HOLLAND
HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM
UNDER DIRECTION OF EU-GENE HEETER

Tulip Time in Holland brings out so many worthwhile features that it is difficult to give each of them the publicity they deserve. Citizens, adults as well as children in colorful costumes, together with the beautiful blooms of millions of tulips make the scene one most pleasant to the eyes as do numerous other features such as Little Netherlands, the Netherlands Museum, the Dutch folk dances, the pageant, etc. But there will also be more than one treat for the ears of Holland citizens and the many thousands of visitors from abroad. The parades on Saturday of each week of course, are featured by the many bands from abroad as well as from home, and since Holland has always been a music loving town, these bands in parade are much enjoyed.

However, a feature of Tulip week which has not been given other years is a band concert to be given not by one, but by four local bands combined into one for the occasion. The concert is to be given at Holland high school auditorium on Tuesday evening of Tulip week by 150 musicians, members of the following bands: the American Legion band and part of the Holland high school band, the Christian high school band, and the Hope College band. The combined organization has been practicing together for the past few weeks, and according to those who know, the program will be an excellent one.

The concert is to be given under the direction of Eugene Heeter, the program to include band and solo numbers. The public is cordially invited to attend this unique program, no admission being charged. However, a silver collection is to be taken up at the concert.

The program as it is to be rendered follows below:

March of Youth, Olivadotti; Dublin Holiday, Overture, Buehler; Merry Widow, Lehar-Alford; Selections from Robert, Kern. Debutante, Clarke; Trees, Killmer. Soloist, Don Mars, Euphonium. Manhattan Beach March, Sousa; Simonetta, Curzon; Procession of Nobles, Rimsky-Korsakov. Dr. Frank Simon, conductor. Maria, Mari, di Capua-Alford; Midnight Sun Overture, Yoder; Starlight, Lemare-Alford. Reminiscing, Cherven; In Sombre Mood, Summerfelt; Moderne, Cherven. Brass Quartet. Tulip Festival March, Senob; Dutch Patrol, Restorff; It's Tulip Time in Holland; The Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa. The University of Michigan Brass Quartet is composed of the following: Leslie Grimord, first cornet; Victor Cherven, second cornet; John Robins, trombone; Kenneth Summerfelt, baritone.

Washington school, which won the loving cup this year of the A. A. club, has sent its representative, Paul Boerigter, to Washington, D. C., where he will attend a three-day convention of the Junior AAA safety convention. About 12,000 representatives of 20 states will be led by two girl drum majors and four drummers. Young Boerigter will return Sunday.

Ray J. Kronmeyer, first vice-president of the Holland Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Harold Nienhuis, were delegates for the local organization at the state convention held Friday and Saturday at Pontiac. They state that the 1940 Junior C. of C. convention is to be held in Grand Rapids. Mr. Kronmeyer was appointed vice-chairman of the state extension committee and will have charge of all organization work in Western Michigan.

Building applications filed with city clerk Oscar Peterson are as follows: James H. Klomparsen, to erect a new home at 32 East 26th st., at a cost of $2,800, the dimensions to be 24 by 30 feet, with frame construction and asphalt roofing; Eugene Groters and John Kolean, to construct a temporary stand on the southwest corner of River ave. and First st., to sell novelties, 10 by 16 feet, costing $20; William Selles and Anthony Schermer, 128 East 16th st., repair fire damage, including roof, $200; John De Gloppe, 219 West 10th st., remodel porch and extend three feet towards street, $160; Zion Evangelical church, 12th st. and Maple ave., inside remodeling, $200.

The Women's Literary club rooms were the scene of the celebration of the 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meurer. The Rev. Peter Jonker opened with prayer and read a portion from Scripture. Dutch psalms were sung, and the Hosanna chorus gave several numbers. A. Plantinga, H. Vande Veen, and Peter Meurer, W. De Vries, and J. Lemmen gave readings. A dialogue was given by Mrs. Plantinga and Mrs. Vande Veen. An accordion solo was given by A. Berkompas, and also by Peter Meurer, who was accompanied by Evelyn Meurer. Short talks were given by Rev. Arnolds of Grand Rapids and the Rev. C. Schoolland of Harderwyk, to which Mr. Meurer responded. Several beautiful gifts were given Mr. and Mrs. Meurer. Their children are Mrs. Herman Postmus, Marinus Meurer, Peter Meurer, Ever Meurer, Jack Meurer, and Evelyn. They also have eight grandchildren. A three-course luncheon was served, and the Rev. Arnolds closed with prayer, and Rev. Jonker was in charge of the program. Mr. and Mrs. Meurer were master and mistress of ceremonies.

A Corner of The New Little Netherlands

Above is a glimpse of the newly built "Little Netherlands" completely enclosed in a sort of brick garden wall. Last year this exhibition was in the Holland armory; however, this year the "city fathers" allowed "Sipp" Houtman and his Tulip committee the use of part of the "old hospital" lot on Central Ave. and Thirteenth St. The exhibition is bigger and better than ever, and is practically completed, awaiting the guests and Holland folk. See other page for description of Little Netherlands given by Mr. Houtman together with a large picture collectively showing the many features within this wall. The building of this "Little Netherlands" permitted more room, patrons will be able to see the exhibit more clearly, and the enclosure has many exits permitting the handling of a large crowd more easily.

As the prologue of the production begins, the audience will see a little girl entering a clearing in a beautiful forest. Here and there among the slim young trees spectators will discern a gnarled old trunk. Not until the child has fallen asleep and the old trunks come to life, will they realize that this is no ordinary forest. Then they will know that this is an enchanting forest of facts and that the gnarled old trees are gobblins of half-truth, gossip, superstition, and kindred enemies, who are lurking among the trees to keep the child from knowing the truth.

Just as she is about to be overcome by the gobblins, however, the child will be rescued by jolly, tumbling Elves of Truth, who will enlist the aid of Father Knowledge to give her true facts. The venerable old man will oblige by showing the child how nature brings the tulip to life and how history has been affected by the flower's popularity.

If truth goes even deeper it will discover that eight boys hide behind the dark green masks and costumes shown in the picture. They are Robert Ridenour, James Den Herder, Joe Ten Brink, Joe Rutman, Robert Prell, Calvin Nordhof, Harold Karsten, and Earl De Weert. They have been trained for their part in the pageant by Miss Emily Shoup. Their costumes have been designed and made by Miss Lavina Cappon and her committee.

The gobblins are but one of many groups of interesting fanciful and historic characters which will make the production one of the city's most memorable enterprises. In one spectacular sequence after another the clearing, which will serve as a stage, will be peopled by fairies in glistening white tulle, the main in costumes of crystal glassine, warm and cold winds, the brilliant sun and her golden sunbeams; by Belgian peasants, Dutch scholars, Dutch peasants, Dutch men of wealth, French courtiers, London men and school boys, and nearly 200 American "klompen" dancers.

Each of the characters will be a part of a rhythmic pattern which has been planned by Miss Mabel Appel. Throughout, the action will be accompanied by music arranged and played by Mrs. W. Curtis Snow. The pageant will be one of the most entertaining and instructive ever presented here.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

OUTDOOR rhubarb gently cooked with sugar to sweeten is a treat at the moment. It can be made into a number of delicious desserts alone or combined with strawberries, pineapple, bananas or grated orange rind according to taste.

Eggs are not being enjoyed as fully by most people as their current price and quality would justify. An excellent food and one of the cook's most important allies, they should be used freely while such an excellent value. Cabbage prices are again nearly normal, lettuce is cheaper but spinach is somewhat higher. Green peas, beans and asparagus are reasonable in price. Most poultry, pork and beef, fish, butter and cheese are reasonable in price.

Pictures from an Old Souvenir Printed More Than a Half Century Ago.

Holland In Retrospect - An Old Print Brings Memories

The above grouping of pictures is from an old relic, dust laden, representing a printed souvenir produced by my father, Leendert Mulder, more than 50 years ago. All but a few of these enterprises pictured are out of existence; however, they played an important part in Holland's early development. It is evident from the picture complex that these were the so-called "horse and buggy" days, for an automobile hadn't even been thought of, and in several of the scenes the old hitching post for horses is still evident.

Picture No. 1 represents the James A. Brouwer Furniture store, one time Meyer and Brouwer. It stood on the same site which is today adorned by the large brick block. The writer remembers the delivery horse standing so proudly, backed up to the wooden sidewalk to receive a load of furniture for a prospective customer. The Meyer-Brouwer partnership was dissolved many years ago, and the father of Al Meyer, together with the son, took over the musical instrument department of the firm and moved across the street into the building now occupied by John Y. Huizenga Coal Co. That firm today is the Meyer's Music House on West 8th Street.

The store to the left is Steketee and Bos, grocers, well known business firm of the old school. Later the firm was conducted by William Van Dyke who afterward went into the hardware business. The James A. Brouwer brick block was later augmented by the former Van Dyke and Spritsma Hardware store located on the corner of River and 9th, and that today constitutes the James A. Brouwer Furniture store.

block, built by Henry D. Post, Holland's first postmaster. It is today the Model Drug store. The corner has always been a drug store as long as the writer can remember, but during the taking of this picture it was conducted by Peter Kane, one of these versatile and happy individuals. It later became the firm of Yates and Kane, Dr. O. E. Yates being the senior partner. Dr. Yates was at one time mayor of Holland and his home was on the site of the present city hall, where Dr. Ledebor, one of Holland's early mayors had also lived. It was an old fashioned house with a sunken garden effect.

The store to the right was conducted by Bastian Steketee, a pioneer grocery and dry goods man. Mr. Steketee was in business for many years, and took a deep interest in Sunday School work and education. He was a member of the board of education for a long time. It is evident from this picture that Holland was still small, since there were no buildings to the east for some distance. The little vestibule also pictured was a stairway that led to the Post law office, and I believe, the Masonic Temple which was occupied by that building were Martin and Huizenga, who also sold books. That was in the days when the drug store was still a place where only prescriptions were filled, and not also a department store. Later it was purchased by Gilbert Haan, and I believe at that time was called the Model. Today it is still the Model. However, the B. Steketee store was eventually discontinued and that, too, was converted into a drug store, the building enlarged and entirely rebuilt.

ten Tub shop, located on the site of the Donnelly-Kelley Glass Co. This was at a period when butter tubs were still in use, instead of package butter and rolls as is the case today. Farmers found a market for stave bolts cut from forests that existed at that time in this vicinity. In this shop James De Young, our present chairman of the Board of Public Works, and one of our first citizens and often mayor of the city, started his industrial career, after he resigned as a patrolman from the Grand Rapids police force. Jake and John Van Putten of the well known Van Putten family, conducted the shop which was considered quite an enterprise in those days.

Picture No. 4 represents the Cappon-Bertsch Leather Co., Holland's main industry in the pioneer days which had considerable to do with the development of Holland. Along Isaac Cappon and John Bertsch started this tannery in a small, roughly made, shed-like building. The only means of power was a white horse treading in a circle to grind the bark. The enterprise developed into large proportions as the picture shows, and even later, what is called the Northside Tannery, founded by Mr. Metz, was acquired and used to manufacture sole leather. The buildings you see in the picture were dismantled and a few of the old abutments are evidences of where a fine plant once stood. Holland's prosperity depended largely upon the local tannery, since it was by far the main enterprise. Today the site is known as the "tannery property" which Alderman "Casey" Kalkman each year brings up for another election proposal with the possibility that the city of Holland may acquire it sometime as a civic site. Today, the tannery is unified mostly on the north side and is a fine going concern.

Picture No. 5 is what is known as the old Central school. There is where the writer received his fundamental education. The old picket fence of yesteryear is still in evidence. The writer remembers that when the corner stone of this building was laid, the pupils of the fourth ward school, taught by Miss Allen, marched to the school grounds for the exercises. The school took part in the exercises. The fourth ward school which your editor entered at five years, was on the site of the Washington school. Anyway, all was set, the basement floor was up, the corner stone was to be laid, and is still there, the organ was moved up on the improvised platform, for there was no piano at that time, and the board of education was pompously marching up the stairs when the platform built for the purpose over the basement story, caved in, and several of the higher grade pupils, together with the organ, were precipitated into the basement below. You can imagine the consternation that filled the hearts of the townsfolk and the younger pupils, who crowded around the building, but after the excitement was over they found that there was but one injury—a pupil by the name of Miss Kate Slooter, who had her leg broken. That was the only casualty that the writer remembers, but he vividly remembers the cave-in. For years after that accident, the public mind felt that the building was unsafe, although it was simply an improvised platform that had given way. The structure later finished has been standing for nearly 60 years, the first story being built of "hardheads," field stone from the farms in this vicinity. There is no stronger building in Holland. The price of the building was in the neighborhood of $12,000.00. The writer later went to that school, spending many years there, and there are surely numerous fond memories associated with that old building.

Picture No. 6 is the old Waverly Stone Co. pit. This stone company quarried the stone used to construct many of the buildings in Holland, including the old Holland City State bank under the clock, the Waverly building just east of the Model Drug store, Graves Hall and Winants Chapel, the building in which the Holland City News is located, and several others in this city and adjoining cities in this vicinity. Today the old quarry is a lake filled with pure spring water and has been for many years. Attorney Charles Van Duren built his home there and he has a swimming pool that is unsurpassed right off his front porch.

Picture No. 7 represents the First Reformed church shortly after it was organized after the secession. The church has been remodeled considerably, but it is evident from the fence and the oil lamp post on the corner that this picture is of early date when cows were still kept out of yards and Edison's electric "glims" had not yet reached the city.

Picture No. 8 is the C. L. King Machine shop. It was the leading machine shop in this city, conducted by a jovial individual, brother to James Huntley, mentioned in the preceding paragraph. This building was located on West 7th St., on the site now occupied by the Bowmaster store. Mr. Huntley was the rebuilder of engines, and a millwright. The historic part of this building was the fact that it contained the first electric light plant in Holland, called the Wolverine. The company place two arc lights, one on River and 8th streets and the other on Market, now Central Ave., and 8th St., and did commercial lighting. Holland was rather

For many years after the death of Mr. Huntley, the building was used for other purposes. At one time it was a seed store and John Y. Huizenga and company had their coal offices there. Vaudie-Ribs combination Co. had their sign painting shop upstairs, and it was put to other uses. That's where Vaudie Vandenberg received the "Christening" of that name instead of "John," selected by "Pa" and "Ma" Vandenberg at his birth. The writer remembers that the large smokestack in the rear when not smoking was the nesting place for chimney swallows. Clouds of them went in and out of that old chimney. Today the building has been converted into what is known as the beautiful Colonial Theatre managed by Henry Carley. The house on the corner is the old Heald residence, a pioneer implement dealer. That, too, had the sunken garden effect because when River street was built, the lots there were low, and below the street. The Huntleys still living in Holland whose father conducted that shop are George on West 15th Street, and Cecil on West 14th Street. Mrs. Fred Boone on East 6th Street, and Mrs. Ben Van Raalte on Central Avenue.

Picture No. 10 is the Al Huntley Machine shop. It was the leading machine shop in this city, conducted by a jovial individual, brother to James Huntley, mentioned in the preceding paragraph. This building was located on West 7th St., on the site now occupied by the Bowmaster store. Mr. Huntley was the rebuilder of engines, and a millwright. The historic part of this building was the fact that it contained the first electric light plant in Holland, called the Wolverine. The company place two arc lights, one on River and 8th streets and the other on Market, now Central Ave., and 8th St., and did commercial lighting. Holland was rather

Picture No. 11 is the old Grondwet building still on the corner of River avenue and 7th streets, not much changed since that time. The small person of 115 pounds in the doorway, scarcely visible, is your modest writer, who 51 years ago was the bookkeeper and typesetter there for his father, Leendert Mulder. The days of oil lamps and the lamp lighter which is a story in itself, still existed. There is a real story connected with the Grondwet that would cover several columns, which will make a very interesting historic article possibly at a later date.

The 12th and last picture is the old City Mills. It was located on the elevation, the site where later the Weurding Mills were built, now occupied by the Holland Co-op. In the early days it was conducted by C. P. Becker, father of the well-known Becker family of this vicinity. It was one of those old-fashioned mills supplied largely with grain from local farmers. The mill yards were busy places, especially on a Saturday. It was the same style mill as many of those of the early days, built entirely of wood. One of this type of mill is still at Jensen on M-21 going to Grand Rapids. More than 30 years ago the mill was destroyed by fire, and on the same site the Weurding Mill was built and is still there as mentioned above.

That in short is a "thumb nail" historic review of an interesting Holland relic. There is a

A Glimpse of the Netherlands Museum in the Masonic Temple all set for the Tulip Festival

A hum of activity in every part of the huge Masonic Temple building is indication that exhibits at the Netherlands Museum are rapidly taking on new form for the pleasure of the 1939 Tulip Festival guests. Museum staff members are engaged in taking remote objects and patterning them into the gripping story of pioneer life in the Holland colony. It is intended that each visitor will take with him some clear-cut impression of the background of these people who each year play host to so many thousands of flower lovers.

Each department is working at top speed against an opening day deadline. In the carpenter shop we find William Scheerhorn rebuilding a display case, stopping occasionally to inspect an old wooden clock which is ticking merrily. Nearby the art staff is busily at work on the pictorial screens which will be a featured exhibit. Peter Kolean steps back to catch the proper perspective for the boatload of Dutchmen which he is painting. Ernest Wanrooy is modeling an Indian who watches intently as the colonists make their way up Black Lake to the little settlement of Holland. These screens will portray the dramatic highlights in the colonization and subsequent growth of Holland.

On the stage Edward Borst is completing the exterior of a rough cabin before which is stretched the skin of a huge black bear. A plow stands in a stump-dotted field. The oxen have been turned loose to graze, and the heavy yoke is left lying on the ground. Morning will find them at work again, straining at huge stumps, until they finally come free to be severed with the wide broad ax of the woodsman. A dog tread which furnished power for churning butter stands outside the cabin door and is one of the ingenious articles employed by the pioneer families to make use of every available source to lighten burdens.

To delight the feminine visitor a series of special displays of glassware, china, and household aids are being arranged in attractive exhibits by Mrs. Ruth Maddern. Famous Delft blue, the prize of every Dutch housewife, old world pewter, and copper utensils are a few of the distinctly different groups. On another side we see the whole process of spinning wool into yarn and weaving many strands into the beautiful homespun so prized today.

The authentically reproduced Zeeland province room has many additions to commend it to each visitor looking for the quaintness of The Netherlands homelife. Each article is the basis for its own fascinating story: candle moulds, candelabra, bed-warmer, coal-burning flat iron, cradle, spinning wheel, chest and dishes, all have special significance.

Into the pictorial story of Holland's history we find P. T. Moerdyk gathering the articles which will make up a special display of the father of the colony, Rev. A. C. Van Raalte. There is a special sentiment attached to each—Mrs. Van Raalte's garnets, the dominee's top hat, his personal psalm book, gold watch, the family cradle, record books of the colony kept with meticulous care, personal correspondence—these and many more help us to understand something of the lives of these remarkable men who provided vision and leadership for weary pilgrims.

Glancing into a corner we catch sight of an unusual collection, and walking over we find John Golds putting the finishing touches onto a carpenter's bench. Here are the tools of the early craftsman and alongside are examples of his skill which we envy today. We leave this unit with greater appreciation for these mechanics who are so largely responsible for the progress of the furniture industry in Western Michigan.

Walking into another room we find several camp fire girls and their sponsors exhibiting articles prepared for the national project "Americana" and especially designed to be used by the museum in connection with the visual education program conducted for the school children of Western Michigan. This cooperation is an outstanding example of the service which Camp Fire is rendering the community through the medium of the museum.

And now a final stop in the second floor auditorium where rehearsals are underway for the museum's marionette play, "Tulips". Under the direction of George Cook several young people from Hope College are producing this play for the enjoyment of Museum guests. Strictly an amateur production, the play nevertheless is backed by the experience gained in preparing numerous "acts" for the special teaching needs of the schools of the community. "Tulips" will rug several times each day to allow for showing to the majority of our guests.

The museum board is providing space for a special exhibit contributed by the "Arts and Crafts Guild." Their members are planning a diversified show which will suit the tastes of all the visitors. Through this public exhibition they hope to find inspiration for their members to produce even a greater show next year.

We have only seen a few of the exhibits. Hundreds of accessions are going into the unit exhibits on Dutch hospitality, time, the story of light, Dutch pipes, recreation, and hand-craft. The world room will alone justify a visit, for here are strange idols, masks, tom-toms, helmets and curiosities from strange and distant lands. Relics of the great wars in which the Dutch participated, Indian exhibits, and a host of others will weave a pattern of appeal for young and old. The Getz trophies from his East African expeditions and mounted specimens once caged at the famous Lakewood Zoo are available for casual observation or minute study.

The Festival Committee, museum trustees and staff eagerly await opening day when local citizens and visitors may grasp something of the sacrifice, faith, and idealistic spirit which motivated the people from The Netherlands to make this memorable pilgrimage.

Just a few glimpses of what the 'Little Netherlands' will look like during Tulip week

New Village For Tulip Time Is Described

HOUTMAN TELLS WHAT LITTLE NETHERLANDS ON CENTRAL AVE. AND 13TH ST. WILL LOOK LIKE

By S. H. Houtman

It is believed by the Tulip Time Committee that the Little Netherlands Exhibit, in its new outdoor garden setting, will prove a far greater attraction this year than it was in 1938 when it was the feature of that year's festival. Many new features are being included by the same staff of workmen who worked so hard and long in preparing the original units. Mr. Ernest Wanroy, sculptor, and Peter J. Kolean, artist, are putting the miniature figures into shape for outdoor exposure. The exhibit will cover considerable more area than previously and will include a new planting of between 300 and 400 shrubs and as many flowering plants. Entirely new sections of Dutch life are being added. One of these is a reproduction of Alsemeer, an exceedingly quaint town in the bulb-growing district. Here there are canals between the street and the houses. Each house is reached by a small foot bridge that is so pivoted that when a canal boat chooses to pass it merely noses each one out of its way.

At this exhibit we notice that water is as conspicuous in Holland as mountains in Switzerland. The simile is particularly significant when we see that from the deck of the canal boat we look DOWN upon the red-tiled housetops! No wonder the Dutchman has become obstinate when he has had to maintain his farm and family against the ever-threatening water, which, in some cases, rises as high as forty feet above his land! To hold back this water it has been necessary to construct hundreds of miles of dykes and canals. Many of these works date back to the Roman occupation.

There is some compensation in the fact that this sea which Holland must continually battle provides a living for some 20,000 of its families in the fishing industry. The fishing boats in the Little Netherlands are clever examples of craftsmanship. The old sailor who designed them tells of sailing out of Stavoren and seeing, many fathoms below, the ruins of a city inundated years before. When the water was unusually clear they searched the church spire and could see the bleached skeletons in the church yard.

The canal boats shown are interesting in the extreme. Evidently the owner and his family live aboard as there is a little cabin with smoke pouring out of its chimney, and children playing on deck. Another glance reveals the mother hanging the family wash on a line strung from the halcyards. The captain is in the stern dropping a few coppers in a wooden shoe suspended from a string on a stick. This stick is held by a man standing near a drawbridge overhead. The man is the bridge-tender and uses this traditional method to collect toll for his services in allowing the boat to pass. To save these pennies many a captain has his boat's mast hinged so it may drop to the deck.

Spending precious time and money on his dykes, the Dutchman means to utilize them fully. He lays his roads on them and in the towns like Utrecht, he cuts storage and living space out of their sides. Visitors are puzzled by the beams projecting from the gable of most buildings. As cellars are damp and stairways narrow, goods are hoisted up into the attics with block and tackle for storage. In the down-town area shown, the arrangement of canal at the rear, and street at the front of buildings is typical. There is one peculiar building, one half of which is brick and the other plaster! It is explained that two men, each owning a half interest and not being able to agree on construction material, decided to let each have his own way and so live in peace regardless of what the rest of the world thought!

At the street marketplace one must expect to find a variety of costumes as it is the gathering place of the entire countryside. But the variety of merchandise is too great to describe! On the briel pavement and in the stalls may be found everything from pigs to pot

We Welcome You!

WHEN WARM FRIEND TAVERN was dedicated fifteen years ago, it already was Dutch and Tulip Minded. The Tavern's Dutch complex includes the dress of the bell boys; and the signs over the entrance give a Holland smack to this popular hostelry.

A Small Nook in the Large Commodious Lobby.

A Corner of the Large Dining Room. There is also a Dutch Grill Adjoining.

Over the main entrance you will find "Welkom Vreemdelingen" meaning "Welcome Strangers". When the guests depart they have become friends of the place and in leaving this sign meets their eye: "Vaarwel Vrienden", meaning "Farewell Friends".

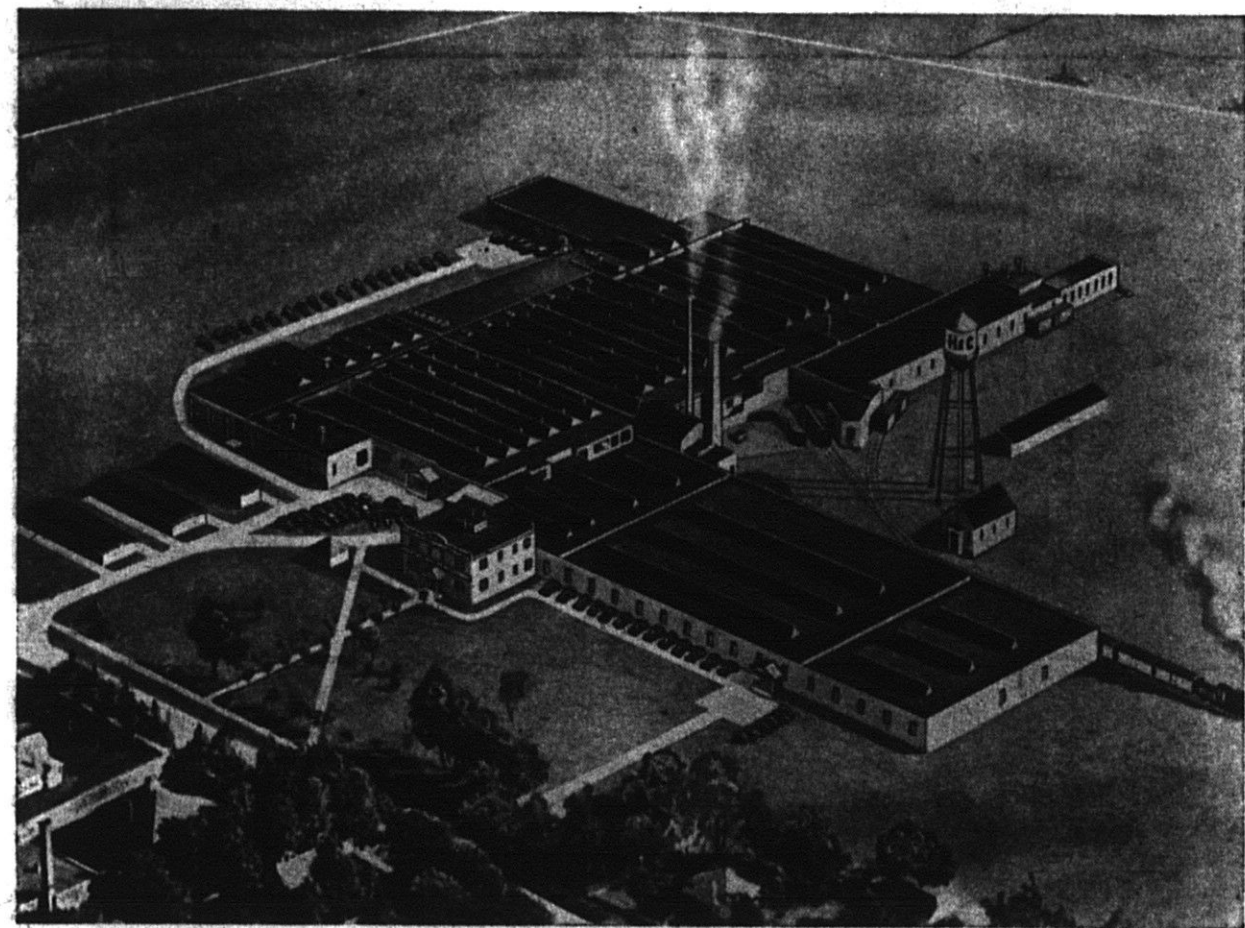

Well, Warm Friend Tavern was all prepared to meet friend and stranger and we know that this colorful Tulip Time will make all who come, friends of Holland and friends, we hope, of this fine fireproof hotel with its beautiful surroundings, with its pleasing, comfortable sleeping accommodations and its cuisine possibilities unexcelled. Judging from the large influx of guests thus far, our efforts have not fallen short.

We Welcome You All!

tery and butter to bouquets. Next we find the locks of which Holland has the world's largest. Back of the sand dunes which form a natural dike, against the North Sea, we see the bulb-growing section which reaches from Haarlem to Leyden.

In the Zuider Zee are the islands of Marken and Urk. Costumes and cottages are equally quaint; many of the latter being built on stilts to clear the high water. Vollandam homes are much the same as Marken's. Vollandam differs in that here the men let their voluminous trousers reach almost to the ankles; at Marken they buckle them at the knees! Next we see the peat fields. The Hollander works magic with his soil! He grows the world's best bulbs in barren sand; on the other hand he cuts his muck land into bricks, stacks it up to dry and then uses it for fuel!

Here is a typical Netherlands Farm. That the house and barn are built in one unit does not mean that the housewife sacrifices any of her reputation for cleanliness! Quite the contrary is true. That barn is as clean as most of the world's homes! Notice that those little white curtains at each cow stall are kept immaculate! Over the chimney is a stork's nest. As the ibis is in Egypt, so the stork is here, an omen of good luck. Along the country roads are found occasional wayside shrines one of which is shown here. Not because of its beauty in this replica of the Delftshaven church included in the Little Netherlands. Its significance is historical. Here it was, back in July of 1620, that the American bound pilgrims gathered for a last service before embarking on the voyage that brought them finally to Plymouth Rock and the Promised Land!

Fire partly destroyed the home of Robert Neshaver of Laketown township Saturday morning when an oil heater exploded. He carried insurance on the home. Local firemen were notified that there was a fire in Jenison Park, but on arriving there, found that it was over the border, in Laketown township. The township board of that township had not signed an agreement with the Holland fire department, however, but the department was maintained as to the location of the fire.

Local Holland Skater and His Sister Won Many Prizes in The Netherlands Some Given by the Queen

Holland has a man who finds ice skating still a great pastime. He is 75 years old, came here when he was 27 years, and during all those 50 years he has never failed to go to Black Lake, or rather Macatawa Bay, for a good old skate on the Dutch skates he took with him from The Netherlands.

This man's name is Popke Koe. His sister, Engel Koe, is still living in The Netherlands, and although 75 years old, won prizes this year, where ice skating is not yet a lost art. Both brother and sister were born in the province of Friesland, and were considered the best skaters in their city. They had to their credit 69 prizes in either double or single feats won at the skating carnivals put on every winter. Many of these prizes were donated by Queen Wilhelmina, who was especially interested in these ice sports.

Mr. Koe says that his sister Engel and himself were the best skaters when they were 14 and 17 years old, respectively. Both Miss Koe and Mr. Koe went from city to city where ice feasts were held, and entered in all contests during the meet. Mr. Koe's first prize was won on salt water on a pond in the Zuider Zee.

When Mr. Koe came to America he took with him a set of silver skates, which he received from Queen Wilhelmina in prize winning, and these skates he uses from year to year on the ice on Macatawa Bay. He states that he could skate when he was three years old and never failed to enjoy at least two or three hours skating on the canals found in every small town along the seacoast. The ice on these canals is always fine, since there is very little wind during freezing time to ripple up the water.

Miss Engel Koe was married some years ago to an instructor in one of the institutions of learning in The Netherlands, but he passed away several years ago, and the daughters of that union are now in the employ in the palace at De Hague. Mr. Koe has never been back to The Netherlands, but is in constant touch with his sister by letter.

Mr. Koe recently received a letter from his sister stating that at 75 she had won prizes in skating this year and was very elated over the fact that she was a good skater at her advanced age.

Holland made an attempt at an ice carnival in 1930. It was kept up for a few years, then it simply passed out. At that time Mr. Koe won some prizes, winning a pair of mittens and a five-dollar bill. The skating fest went under the name, "The Holland City Ice Carnival," and Mr. John De Bly, Mr. John Van Dyke were sponsors at that time. A very pretentious course was made, there were many events, and it was estimated that at least 4,000 people visited the races. Prizes were donated by various merchants and by the banks of the city. Races were in charge of John Van Dyke and R. Sybma and many willing helpers. The course was 160 feet long, was well marked off, and prizes amounting to $20, $10 and $5, respectively, were hung up to the contestants. The awards were made at that time to the winners in 22 entries. In the men's race, Jacob Dekker of Grand Rapids won, whose time over the course was 14:23 seconds, with Gerrit Hoving and Don Te Roller, both of Holland coming in second and third, respectively. The men and women racing over the same course were Don Te Roller and Miss Irene Overbeek of this city. They were followed by Heinie Van der Hill, Mrs. Don Zwemer, Bert Oosting, and Mrs. Elsie Hettenga.

Coming back to Popke Koe—despite the fact that we have had no ice carnivals, he goes to Macatawa Bay anyway with his silver skates, and at 78 can skate with any of them. He is also a figure skater, which calls for graceful execution in the art of skating.

Mr. Koe says there is no reason at all for not having a skating course each year on Black Lake. The writer remembers when a lad that the boys in the neighborhood made their own pond between what is now the West Michigan Furniture Co. and Fifth St., and thousands came to enjoy the sport. Plenty of box wood and old barrels were gathered up during the day-

Tulip Week Preparations All Complete

COMMITTEE MEMBERS ARE APPOINTED; PROVISIONS MADE FOR EMERGENCY HOSPITAL

Movie Stars to Visit City; Will Portray History of Tulip in Broadcast

S. H. Houtman, general manager of the Tulip Festival, has been for some months, and still is, a very busy man. His position as manager of so large a project as Tulip Time is proving to be each year a responsible one. However, Mr. Houtman states that preparations are almost completed and that with a few days of warm, sunshiny weather, he expects that the tulips, too, will be in full bloom at the appointed time. The dates as has been published oftentimes before, are May 13 to May 20, inclusive.

Holland is again to be host to some of Hollywood's movie and radio stars, and these are to be broadcast from a special studio which is being installed in the north wing of the Holland Furnace company's administration building and arrangements are being made for between 400 and 500 persons to time for the illumination at night. There have been occasions when sailing vessels were anchored at the head of the bay several hundred feet apart, and often the course was made between two vessels, and the genial captains, who spent considerable time on their boats during the winter, invited the youngsters into the cabin to get warm. The two captains who were especially considerate of the boys were Captain Jan Borgman of the sailing vessel Wollen and Captain Baas Van Rij of the R. Kanters.

Mr. Koe insists that there is no reason at all why we couldn't have a fine skating course every winter near the shore with plenty of water available to flood the ponds and some strings of electric lights such as are found on the streets at Christmastide extending over the center of the entire course for night skating.

Even during this mild winter the ice was thick enough to hold automobiles and fish shanties, and surely Macatawa Bay is close enough by and large enough for plenty of skating ponds well safeguarded.

witness the broadcast. Mr. Boersma of the local company states admission will be by invitation and complimentary tickets.

He also announced that the manufacturers of Noxema have accepted the company's invitation to broadcast their weekly Saturday evening show over the Columbia system from this same studio. Featuring Professor Quiz, this broadcast will be from 8:30 to 9 p. m. for eastern stations and a re-broadcast for the west coast stations from midnight until 12:20 a. m. As Professor Quiz questions persons from the audience, this program will offer Holland residents an opportunity to appear on the radio.

A feature of the Holland Furnace company's broadcast will be a dramatizing of the history of the tulip from its origin up to the present festival. The movie and radio stars will enact the several roles. Street scrubbing and the Dutch folk dances will also be described while in progress by Announcer Trout. Music will consist of a special orchestra brought here for the occasion with Mr. Trender conducting.

Mr. Boersma announces that the visitors from Hollywood will travel to Chicago in a chartered American Airlines plane, and from there will come on to Holland in special motor cars furnished through the courtesy of the Dodge division of the Chrysler Motor company, stopping along the route at several cities where Holland Furnace company branches are located. Special motorcycle police escorts are also being arranged for.

The celebrated guests will stay at the Warm Friend Tavern during their stay in the city.

Mr. Houtman also announces that an emergency hospital is to be provided, arrangements being under the supervision of Mrs. John Good and Mrs. Robert L. Schlect of the civic health committee of the Woman's Literary club, and the Dutch Hospitality club. The hospital will be located in the club's clinic building at the rear of the old hospital building on 12th St. and Central Ave. A registered nurse will be on hand on the two Saturdays and Sundays and also on Wednesday of Tulip Week.

Cash prizes will be awarded the winners of the window display contest among local merchants. Members of the committee in charge are Harold Yonker, chairman; Philip Brooks, Jacob Fris, and Henry Wilson. Merchants are asked to sign pledge cards, showing that they will decorate their windows during the Tulip Festival.

The first prize will be $25; second prize, $15; third and fourth prizes, $10 each; fifth and sixth prizes, $5 each; seventh and eighth prizes, $2.50 each. The B. H. Williams Jewelry store will also award a silver loving cup to the winner of the first prize.

One-half of the individual prize money will be given to the person who suggested the idea for the particular type of display. The window must be decorated by Saturday, May 13, and remain that way until the end of the festival.

The judges appointed by the committee will judge on the attractiveness and originality of the display, though a Dutch theme need not necessarily be carried out. The purpose of this contest is to get more merchants to decorate their display windows during the festival.

Ruth Ella Newnam of Saugatuck will be valedictorian of the 1939 graduating class of Saugatuck high school, having had 3.58 out of a possible 4 points. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Newnam, and her grandfather is Judge Stephen L. Newnam. She has been active in extra-curricular affairs, and also in church and Sunday School work. She expects to attend college in the fall. Miss Olive Reeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reeks, is salutatorian, and Betty Davis, Jane Bird, and Joyce Force are other honor students. Commencement exercises will be June 1.

Netherlands Is Unique Show Place of Europe

MANY PROVINCES CLING TO OLD CUSTOMS AND COSTUMES

The Old Country as Level as a Plate; Much Land Below Sea Level

By Dr. A. J. Brower

NETHERLANDS

The Netherlands, also called the "Land of Water" is to a tourist full of surprises from end to end. No point is more than 120 miles distant from the sea, and many spots are from 16 to 20 feet below sea level, but that is not bad considering Jericho and the rich Jordan valley of Palestine which is 1,300 feet below the level of the sea, where vast mountains and highlands protect it from devastating floods, whereas in The Netherlands they depend on man-made dykes as there are no natural barriers such as hills, mountains or high plateaus. The whole territory of The Netherlands is too low for natural drainage. The cities of The Hague, Amsterdam, Haarlem, Leyden, Rotterdam, and Middelburg, all are far below sea level, all originally built much like our new electric power plants built in our cities today. Even the ancient Zuider Zee is now fast becoming a lake.

man-made, rich, dry land due to the determination, perseverance, and ingenuity of the Dutch. All reclaimed land from the sea possesses a high degree of fertility. After the peat has been cut away and the moss and heather removed from bog or moor. The land itself has been dredged from the bottom of the sea. Almost half of the country lies below sea level. Surely the Hollanders are watchful, courageous and enduring of purpose. All the country-side is at once proof of that. To make the country and to keep it the Dutchman had a long fight with the waters and also an 80-year struggle with Spain, then the mightiest power on earth. These old-country folk would just laugh at us, and ridicule us if they could see that we are not taking advantage of building a "Little Netherlands" in Holland, Michigan, where we have the name, the location, the people, the swamp, and the water, and make that a real all year around resort or show place for tourists like Isle of Marken or Volendam. If we had all that for our Tulip Festivals, we perhaps could produce new artists like Rembrandt, Nicholas Maas, Vermeer or Jan Steen. Who knows but what we have plenty of Dutch talent right here in Holland.

The Rembrandts and the Steens did not make the quaint costumes of Marken, Middelburg, Volendam, or Staphorst, but these places made the artists. The world-renowned Rembrandt, second to none. The Netherlands offers the greatest contrasts in sights and scenes, customs and costumes, and modes of living like I have seen nowhere else in any other country. One can take a peep into the next century, for the Dutch are wide awake and strictly up to date and ahead of many a country with new ideas and advancements. Also see the present century, and equally look back at the last century. Yes, even several centuries very much like

LARGE BALD EAGLE CAUGHT IN FISH NET

Game Warden Frank Oper, of Essex County, Ont., was wondering Friday what to do with a live bald eagle with a wingspread of seven feet, four inches, taken to him by Harold Julian, a Kingsville fisherman.

Julian and two companions, examining their nets in Lake Erie, found the eagle caught in the nets about two miles offshore. For half an hour the fishermen battled with the bird, eventually throwing another net over it. It was believed to have become entangled while diving for ducks or fish.

A hospital for fish is to be established at Seattle, Wash., by the Department of Commerce where "ailing" fish will be studied with the idea of obtaining cures for various diseases.

Chicks as Playthings

The owner of a pet shop in New York was fined $2 this week for selling two live chicks for playthings.

And he was also required to take back the chicks and return the money he had received for them.

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals filed a charge of cruelty against him. The judge did the rest.

A Michigan statute also provides penalties for cruelty to animals and appears to be broad enough to cover the sale or purchase of live chicks, as playthings for children, who innocently and unintentionally torture them to death.

Writer Tells How To Photo Wild Flowers

No Expensive Equipment Necessary

By Clayton H. Smith (Detroit News)

Wildflowers are among the most delightful subjects of the nature photographer. And, as they grow fewer in the woods, there is the satisfaction they will live a very long time on photographic paper. We will not, however, digress on the beauties of wildflowers or advanced photographic technique, but will assume one interested in wildflower photography would know something of the flowers and of simple photography.

We have found a postcard size, film pack or plate camera, with ground-glass focusing to be the most useful. Other requirements are double-extension bellows and a lens of about f8 or f6.3 working aperture. The shutter should be of a type that may be released by bulb or cable release. Other cameras may be used in flower photography, of course, but the above type of equipment has served us so well we would rather advise its use. We consider any type of focusing other than upon ground-glass as being too awkward, and less certain of giving good results.

A pale yellow filter should be used over the lens in all flower photography. Panchromatic film is the only type acceptable for this work, as we must secure proper rendition of the colors in monochrome. We use film packs because they are lighter in weight than glass plates. One becomes very tired tugging too much equipment, and every method of reducing the burden should be used. A black focusing cloth should be part of the equipment, as it is a great aid in securing sharp focus.

A sturdy tripod, with tilting head, is the final piece of equipment that is imperative. It is not absolutely necessary to have the tilting head, but it will prove most useful. We prefer a tripod that is about 14 inches at its least height and about 30 inches when fully extended.

A photo-cell exposure meter is an excellent accessory but not a necessity. We should state, though, that it soon pays for itself in the film saved from improper exposure.

Having brought together your equipment you wish to know when and where to photograph your subjects. An inexpensive wildflower guide will be an aid here. The best times of the day to make your exposures are early morning and late afternoon. The better flower photographs will be found to have been made in subdued light, not in bright sunlight. Too intense light loses the texture and color gradations of your delicate subject.

Make it a point to seek the most nearly perfect plant in the best possible situation. Others will not please you in the finished prints. Do not uproot plants to fetch them into possibly better situations. We have learned it is best to make our exposures where the flower has chosen to grow.

More pleasing pictures will result if only one or two flowers make up the subject, rather than a group. When focusing be sure to have the camera close enough to the subject that a good size image is seen on the ground glass. Focus sharply upon a central portion of the subject with the lens at full aperture. (If any twigs, leaves or grasses interfere with the subject carefully remove them. We carry a small scissors to aid in such purpose.)

Having computed the exposure, taking into consideration the filter factor, set the lens aperture (we close down to f16), and shutter speed, you are ready to release the shutter by bulb or cable. Now, if only the spring breeze will cease to set the flowers trembling. But here you must wait, and sometimes quite a few minutes before you may safely make an exposure.

When a lull comes you must release the shutter at once for oftentimes the exposure will necessarily be one or two seconds and in the springtime that is a long, long time for breezes not to blow. There is one more point to remember: do not over-develop the films. This will result in loss of gradation and clogging of the highlights.

Among the wildflowers of Michigan that excellently lend themselves to photography are skunk cabbage, adder's tongue, white trillium, jack-in-the-pulpit, and bloodroot. There are many others but these would do for the beginner at wildflower photography. The simple method outlined above will prove equally valuable in the photography of flowers of the garden.

the conditions in the Bible lands of Palestine, Asia Minor and Egypt. This country though small is a good rest-cure for an overtaxed mind. It is a very busy country, where we see weedless fields, flat, green fields, where black and white cows graze, in long meadows as though it were one vast field, but fenceless and each farm or pasture separated from the other by straight ditches at almost regular intervals or by canals and dykes.

The low, white farm houses of brick or tile with stiff clumps of trees round about, and spotless door steps are indeed picturesque sights as are the canals and canal barges, and the great, brown sailing boats, bringing produce to market and the wife hanging out her wash on deck and children at play. The immense windmills, as thickly placed as derrick in an oil field, the grinding wheel, the engine's clang and roar, beat out a chorus. Wind and water do nine-tenths of the Dutchman's haulage. We see scores and scores of bridges, large and small, of various designs, lakes dotted with sails, and miles of rushes along the streams. Then we see the massive church towers scattered over the country, very artistically built; and tolling of bells and chimes are heard constantly. Then the red-roofed villages, every foot of land being under cultivation or in pasture or in parks with not an inch of wasteland.

I traveled through this country from end to end and to all four corners, visited all of the 11 provinces and that is what one sees through the rural districts in Holland. At this time I entered the country at Nieuweschans coming from Germany and toured through the province of Groningen, certainly the richest soil of all Holland. The crops were superabundant. Wheat could not be bound—it had to be done with the cradle and likewise were all other crops. The like I

Magazine Story Tells of Work of Desert Doctor

DOCTOR HARRISON SPOKEN OF HERE; HAS TWO SONS BEING REARED HERE.

Dr. Paul Harrison, Well Known in Holland, Leads an Interesting Life.

The Reader's Digest of recent date gives an interesting story on Dr. Paul W. Harrison, missionary to Arabia, who is well known in Holland. Dr. Harrison has been in Arabia for 30 years, and when on his furlough every seven years, has made Holland headquarters and often lead the student body at Hope College during the Week of Prayer.

The missionary has two sons, who are being reared here. Paul and Clinton Harrison. They have been in the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Riemersma on River Avenue for the last nine years. Paul is now 18, and is studying at Hope College; and Clinton is 16, and is a senior at Holland high school. Paul was born in Arabia, and Clinton in the United States while the family was here on furlough.

Dr. Harrison is coming back from Arabia during the coming year, after seven years of absence.

Although the story "The Desert Doctor" is interesting in itself, it is considerably more so because the doctor is well known here, as are his children. The story, appearing in the Reader's Digest, is condensed from the American Magazine, and the author is Jerome Beatty, who made a trip around the world to discover little-known Americans engaged in outstanding work, and in this instance Dr. Paul W. Harrison was selected, and the story as given in this magazine follows below:

One of the world's most successful surgeons is Dr. Paul W. Harrison. He has practiced 28 years, and the most he ever asked for a major operation was $15. For a cataract operation that might bring a bill of $1000 from a New York specialist, Dr. Harrison usually asks $1.85. If he is lucky, he gets 37 cents.

Dr. Harrison—a graduate of Johns Hopkins, fellow in the American College of Surgeons, a top authority on hernia and spinal anesthesia—is a medical missionary in Muscat, Arabia, a seaport 1000 miles northwest of Bombay, India. Muscat, lying on sand, hedged in by stone hills which block all breezes, is the hottest city in the world, and—its main industry being the drying of fish—probably the most evil-smelling. Most of the 15,000 Arabs and Dr. and Mrs. Harrison move out in midsummer, when temperatures reach 108 in the day and 115 at night.

Dr. Harrison grew up in Scribner, Nebraska. Graduated with honors from the University of Nebraska, he decided to become a medical missionary, and he sought the worst place, medically, in the world, a place where doctors were reluctant to go, but where they were needed most.

It took Dr. Harrison two months to get to his first station, two years to learn to speak Arabic well. Since then he has worked in most of the hell holes in the Persian Gulf region and for the last 10 years he has been in Muscat. When he is home on sabbatical leave, medical friends urge him to give up missionary work, start practice in America, make money, and live comfortably.

But practice in America seems to Dr. Harrison a bit on the sissy side. He likes the tough jobs in Muscat. A medical missionary who had practiced for years in Arabia recently accepted a profitable job as doctor for a big oil company. "I was sick and tired of being poor," he said. Such an attitude was totally beyond Dr. Harrison's comprehension. He told me, shaking his head, "But he won't have fun any more."

Though Arabia has worn him and he looks older than his 55 years, there is a twinkle in his eye and his tall, thin, wiry frame has the ability to withstand the terrific heat.

Dr. Harrison's stone and concrete hospital cost but $14,000. Nearby are tiny, flat-topped mosques and low, white plastered houses, and open faced stores the size of a bathroom, in which you can buy daggers and coffeepots and opium. Around the hospital compound are huts on narrow, dusty streets filled with donkeys, camels, cadaverous hounds, and poverty-stricken Mohammedans.

Close to the hospital is a space as public as the street in front of your post office. This is the neighborhood comfort station. In front of the hospital are 12 depressions like shallow graves, each covered with a robe to keep the depression a little less hot. That is where the town's 12 lepers sleep. It is the best Dr. Harrison can do for them. He has no funds for the treatment of lepers, but under these conditions there is no danger of transmitting the disease.

On an average, Dr. Harrison treats 125 patients a day and performs 15 or 20 operations a week—usually in his hospital but sometimes on a rug under a date palm in the blistering desert. Most of the patients are given free treatment. Some may pay a few rupees.

Dr. Harrison's work is with the ragged, hungry poor; with sore-eyed Bedouins who never bathe; with overburdened laborers who carry heavy bags of dried fish all day long for 10 cents; with wounded bandits; with men whose hands have been cut off because they were caught stealing; with girls whose throats have been cut by their brothers because they committed adultery; with pearl divers with burst eardrums; with children, hundreds of children, who in Arabia die like flies. Few women come for operations, as an orthodox Arab woman is considered actually unfaithful to her husband if she exposes any part of her face or body to another man. For eye operations Dr. Harrison often is not allowed to raise the veil, but has to cut holes in it to get at the eyes.

The average American doctor would be about as willing to practice in a farm tool shed, with the instruments at hand, as he would with the facilities that are Dr. Harrison's. One day a week, with Mrs. Harrison and a native helper, he drives out into the desert to treat the natives. Hundreds of thousands of them never have enough to eat. Some have starved so long that a mere scratch causes death.

Six days a week Dr. Harrison works in the hospital, which contains 30 bare, concrete rooms for patients who can pay small sums, and a general ward on a porch. A few rooms have beds, but Arabs don't like them. Most patients bring rugs, a charcoal stove, food, and friends to care for them and to do their cooking.

It is a one-doctor and no-trained-nurse hospital. Dr. Harrison is helped by Mrs. Harrison—one of three white women in Muscat—who, with no medical training, gritted her teeth and learned. He also has four native assistants—of mixed Persian, African and Arab blood. One was a slave who fled in shackles to the British consulate in Muscat, gaining his freedom from a sheik 50 miles out on the desert. The other three are brothers, sons of a pearl diver.

Dr. Harrison runs the hospital on $1800 a year—of which he pays his four assistants a total of $900—all of it collected a few rupees at a time from the "rich" patients. The women of the Dutch Reformed Church in America send him gauze, bandages and gloves. His salary is $185 a month, and a house.

There is no X-ray machine and few facilities for diagnosis. If he had time and money he believes he might find what causes appendicitis. He practiced for 25 years in Arabia without seeing a case of it. Recently four or five have turned up among the Arabs who have adopted the customs and food of the West.

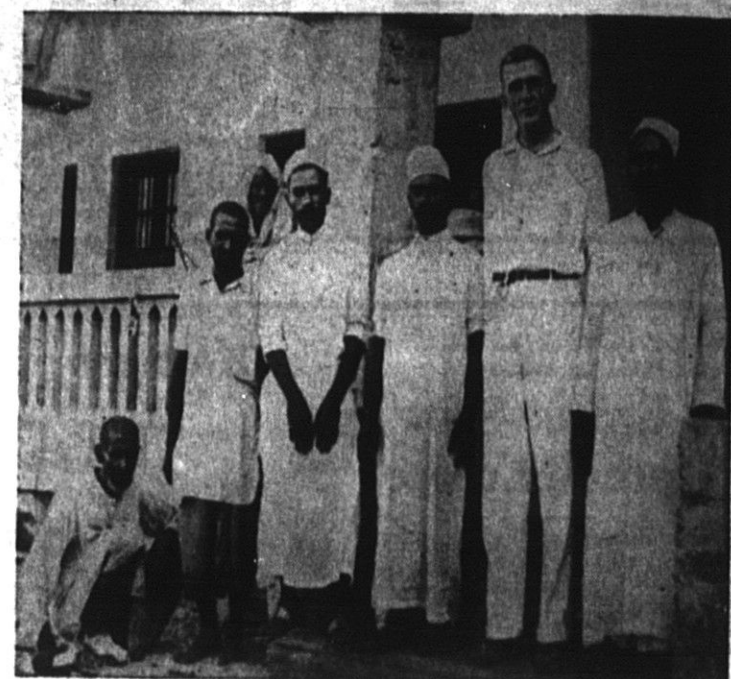

Dr. Harrison's operating room is without glittering display of nickel and enamel. The lights over the operating table were put together by a local carpenter and cost $6. The sterilizer is a steam-pressure cooker such as is found in many a kitchen, and it works perfectly.

One day I saw a native boy bring a blowtorch to the operating room. "What's that for?" I asked the doctor. "We have no electric cauterizer," he replied. "We use that to heat a soldering iron." It works just as well.

After an operation Dr. Harrison usually takes the patient in his arms—most Arabs are under-nourished and small—and carries him upstairs to his rug on the floor. The native attendants might be too rough.

Once, on a camel trip, Dr. Harrison had to perform a rush operation. A mat on the ground was the operating table, a sterile towel the instrument table. Instruments, sponges and towels were boiled for ten minutes in a pressure cooker over a fire of camel dung. Fifty dirty Arabs crowded around to look, dust filled the air and a million flies walked through the wound and covered instruments and sponges the moment they were laid down. Yet the wound healed perfectly.

Dr. Harrison and His Desert Staff

Forced to work under such conditions, Dr. Harrison has learned that the danger of infection lies mostly in foreign bodies—ligatures and sutures. If you keep these clean you're fairly safe, for the tissues of the body will usually resist the flies and dust. He might never have discovered that in a modern hospital.

Perhaps no other surgeon in the world has advanced so far in spinal anesthesia. Dr. Harrison had to—he couldn't use ether because he had neither apparatus nor helper to handle it properly. Most American doctors don't know yet that all the bad points of spinal anesthesia have been eliminated by this surgeon practicing with inadequate equipment in a dirty town in Arabia. But Dr. Harrison is working now on a report for surgical journals, supplementing articles which have already won him recognition as an authority. The report will tell why his patients suffer no headaches after spinal anesthesia; how the anesthetic can be used for operations above the waist without affecting the lungs; how he has solved every problem that has stumped American surgeons.

Dr. Harrison has performed more than 3000 hernia operations. American surgeons as a rule are not interested in hernia. It is considered a simple operation—and usually the patients are workmen who cannot pay big fees. Yet hernia recurs in 5 to 10 out of every 100 operations.

Dr. Harrison has a new sort of operation which, he is sure, will stop nearly all recurrences. He puts in a "blowout patch," a piece of tough ox tissue about two inches square, reinforcing the weak spot in the abdomen. In his last 52 hernia operations he has not had a single recurrence, although in each case the patient went right back to his heavy work from the hospital.

The Arabs themselves have no doctors. A sick Arab gets advice from all his friends and tries all their remedies, ranging from a portion of senna leaves, or a verse from the Koran tied to the body, to the use of a branding iron. When an Arab breaks an arm or leg his friends lay him on the sand and bind the fractured member to stakes so it cannot move—making no effort to set the bones. Then they erect a tent over him and care for him there for weeks. This treatment nearly always leaves a terribly bent arm or leg.

No wonder the Arabs have come to look upon Dr. Harrison as a miracle man—without knowing how truly right they are.

Ridicules Curbing of Night Fishing

(Detroit News)

Earl C. Watkins, 18508 Cardoni ave., Detroit, thinks that the recommendation of the State Conservation Commission to ban night fishing for bluegills and sunfish is unnecessary. "Some one strained their brain to think that up," he says. "While I realize that we must have laws to control fishing what we need most is the enforcement of the laws we now have. If conservation officers cannot stop the taking of undersized fish how can we expect them to enforce the bluegill and sunfish ban? If this keeps up the time will come when we won't be able to use a hook and line to fish at any time," Watkins concluded.

What Holland Clinic Reveals Relative to T. B.

THE X-RAY METHOD IS POSITIVE METHOD OF DETECTION AND ARREST OF DISEASE

The results of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association's county X-ray clinic in Holland have just been received by Dr. Ralph Ten Have, local sponsor of the clinic. There were 11 childhood, 2 suspect childhood, 1 non-active, 1 active, and 2 suspect adult cases of tuberculosis revealed by the X-rays. This clinic was made up of about 90 individuals who reacted positively to a tuberculin test. There were 821 who were tuberculin tested, most of them juniors and seniors in the Holland, Zeeland, and Hudsonville high schools, and also included a few individuals who had recent contacts with a tuberculosis case.

According to Dr. Ten Have, of the Ottawa County Health unit, the adult type, if active, generally requires complete bed rest under medical supervision, preferably in a sanatorium. Any suspect cases, on advice of their physicians, all should be given physical check-ups and X-rays to make sure no trouble is brewing. If the childhood type of tuberculosis is present usually only a little more careful healthful living as the doctor orders is necessary as a precaution against becoming sick.

If the test is positive the X-ray ascertains whether the damage has been done in the body by the germs. The result of an X-ray should not alarm one. Disaster follows only when the danger signals of the X-ray films are ignored. Immediate and careful attention as ordered by the doctor will offset the harmful effects of the disease.

Proving the real value of early discovery of tuberculosis through X-ray examination provided Michigan people by Michigan Tuberculosis Association are recent reports covering Christmas seal tuberculosis clinics from September 1938 to March 1939, Theodore J. Werle, executive secretary of the Association, declared this week. In these six months, Mr. Werle said, more than two hundred cases of the primary tuberculosis infection have been revealed on X-ray films taken with the portable X-ray equipment of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association.

Reaching forty counties the Association, with the cooperation of various county health departments, has X-rayed 1,726 residents of the state in the past six months. Mr. Werle reported, "Of the 1,726 films which have already been interpreted by tuberculosis specialists, 204 revealed the childhood type of the disease, a primary infection of tuberculosis germs. This stage can be kept from further development with a few health precautions."

A WOMAN OF 70 SWIMS A MILE TO RESCUE FRIENDS

A 70-year-old woman was acclaimed heroine today of a boating misadventure on the Gulf of Mexico, in Florida. Her efforts, however, were needless.

Miss Louise Remington, a member of a fishing party of four helplessly adrift on the Gulf overnight after their craft developed motor trouble, gamely plunged overboard and swam a mile to shore to summon aid.

As she reached land nearly exhausted, she learned that the party had been sighted by another boat and was being rescued.

The beaver in primitive times occupied suitable habitats throughout almost the entire extent of North America, excepting the region north of the tree limit and the arid western deserts.

Asks Help In Locating Rabbit Nests

Mating Season Is Here For Cottontails

It is during the time of year that spring fever is affecting us most, that the breeding season of the cottontail rabbit is initiated. From past indications it appears as if the main breeding season extends from March to early September, but more information is needed to establish the definite season.

The gestation period for the cottontail rabbit is approximately four weeks. The young are born in a small bowl-like nest cavity which the female digs into the ground and lines with grasses. Before the female leaves an occupied nest she regularly covers it with a blanket which usually consists of grasses and fur from her own body.

Due to the fact that rabbit nests are so well concealed, they are nearly always found by accident. It may be expected that a few nests will probably be found any time after the first of April.

In order to practice good management of any game animal it is quite essential that we have a thorough knowledge of its reproductive powers and natural enemies. It is commonly believed that young rabbits while still in the nest are occasionally taken by predators. In order to check more closely on this, it is hoped that a large number of nests can be closely watched this spring and summer.

It will be greatly appreciated if anyone who finds a rabbit nest will drop a post card to the Swan Creek Wildlife experiment station, Allegan, and report the discovery so that Arnold O. Haugen, who is studying rabbit management at the experiment station, can keep the nest under observation.

Canned Woodchuck

A tin can bouncing erratically along the highway near the Sturgeon river attracted the attention of Emerson Vickery of Vanderbilt, Mich.

Closer observation revealed that a large and somewhat hysterical woodchuck was attached to the tin can. Its head was caught by the rough edges of the open top. Apparently it had stuck its head in, lured by the smell of food.

Vickery released the animal which, he reports, staggered off the road in a dazed condition, weakened by its exertions. He believes that it later recovered.

TEST TRAPPING PHEASANTS

Transferring of wild pheasants from areas of overabundance has been initiated successfully with the trapping of 93 birds at the A. M. Todd wildlife sanctuary in Allegan county.

The birds, after capture, were distributed elsewhere in the county in favorable habitats that are open to hunting. The work was a part of the winter program of the Swan Creek wildlife experiment station of the department of conservation.

Pheasants became so numerous in the sanctuary this winter as to constitute a nuisance and Roy M. Hunt of the state game farm was transferred to the Swan Creek area to aid in capture of the birds. The work was largely experimental but indicates that it should be possible to trap large numbers, under proper weather conditions, at a very small cost per bird.

Artificial light are Bass river, Little Bass river in Allendale township, Bass creek, Beaver creek, Black river, Black creek, Braman creek, Deer creek, Grand river (except in bayous), Grand creek in Chester township, Pine creek, Rush creek, Sand creek and Little Sand creek down from Stafford lake.

The officer reported dip netting season is from March 1 to May 15 in all non-trout streams.

LAWS GOVERNING THE OPERATION OF MOTOR DRIVEN CITED

The opening of navigation, which is not very far off, will find a great many new owners of motorboats unfamiliar with the laws and requirements as to numbering and equipping such vessels prior to their being navigated.

It is with the thought in mind of informing such owners of the requirements, and thereby reducing as much as possible the assessment of penalties for non-compliance, that the following highlights of the Motor Boat Numbering Act of 1918, as amended, and the Equipment Act of 1910, as amended, is submitted for publication in your newspaper:

1. Report of purchase of a motorboat by filing a notarized bill of sale must be made to a custom house within ten days. (Penalty for failure to so report, $10.)

2. There is no fee charged for awarding a number and issuing a certificate for a motor-propelled boat.

3. A certificate of award of number must be carried on board. (Failure to comply incurs a penalty of $10, and failure to exhibit same on demand of a Coast Guard or Customs Officer incurs a penalty of $100.)

4. Report of loss, abandonment, or destruction of a numbered boat must be made to a custom house within ten days. (Penalty for failure to so report, $10.)

5. Motor boat equipment must be carried, viz: Fire extinguisher, whistle, life preservers, pilot rules, lights after sunset, etc. (Penalty for omission of each piece of equipment, $100.) Printed regulations on this subject will be gladly furnished any person on request.

6. Sailing vessels without motor power underway after sunset are required to carry colored side lights—green to starboard and red to port. While bow and stern lights are not permitted.

7. When anchor, such vessel shall carry forward, where it can best be seen, but at a height not exceeding 20 feet above the hull, a white light visible all around the horizon at a distance of at least one mile.

100 Years of Adventure

(Chicago American)

Just 100 years ago a railroad man undertook to carry small parcels in his carpetbag for delivery at points along the line. Thus began the first express service.

The need for such service led to rapid expansion and express service spread west to the Mississippi. Then came the opening of the West and the famous pony express, which wrote adventure and drama into the story of America.

During the Civil War express service often was the only means of communication between the North and the South for long periods.

The glamorous saga could go on. When the rails that tied the East and West together were completed, the pony riders passed into history, but it was years before some of their feats were duplicated.

All express agencies now are combined in one, owned by seventy railroads and operated on contract over the lines of 447 carriers, as well as air lines, ships and electric railroads.

A carpetbag only 100 years ago, express today covers the continent and, by ship and air, serves South America, Cuba, some of the islands of the Pacific and the Orient.

It's a workaday job to the 70,000 men who deliver the goods, but while the peril of sudden death at the hands of Indians is gone, the routine hides romance. The dry records of "delivery made" teem with exciting and unusual stories.

Rare flowers, live animals, birds and reptiles, life-saving serums, costly gems and precious metals all move along as surely as commonplace freight.

In fact, a modern library of fiction is growing up around the lusty young centenarian. It is as exciting a narrative, however, as any "and another redskin bit the dust" story that ever excited the "young idea."

CONSTABLES' IN TOWNSHIPS
HELP, CAN CURB HUNTERS
TRESPASS

"Solution of the farmers' trespass troubles is so simple that we may have overlooked it," says Glenn Bradt, farm-game man for the Department of Conservation. As Glenn sees it, farmers and sportsmen could make use of the two to four constables which are elected in every township. If these constables were pledged to assist in enforcing the game laws and would quickly respond to calls regarding trespass violations, much of the hoodlum element would be taken care of before they got started.

If it were generally known that each township had officers ready to go to the assistance of farmers who were having trespass troubles with hunters, it is more than likely that many hunters would run the risk of arrest.

Guitar Bears Stradivari's Name
The only guitar known to bear the signature of Antonio Stradivari, the famous violin maker, is in the museum of the Paris Conservatory of Music.

Color Indicates Food Value
One sign of the food value of squashes, pumpkins and carrots is the color. The source of their yellow color is a pigment called carotene which in the human body develops into vitamin A.

Women Work in Zululand
Men in Zululand take care of the cattle, but almost all the rest of the work is done by women. Zulu women care for the growing crops of corn, millet and potatoes.

Parrot Repeated Lord's Prayer
Probably the longest series of consecutive words ever learned and spoken successfully by a parrot is the Lord's Prayer, which consists of 65 words, says Collier's Weekly.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY TAKES PLACE AT LOCAL HOME

Miss Ruth Nibbelink, daughter of Mrs. C. W. Nibbelink, 178 West 12th St., Holland, and James Brierley of Grand Rapids, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brierley of Edinburgh, Scotland, exchanged vows last Wednesday at 4 p. m. before an improvised altar beautifully arranged in the bay window of the living room of the Nibbelink home. Palms and ferns, shasta daisies and small vases of calla lilies were set on either side. All the rooms were decorated with bowls of spring flowers.

The Rev. William Van't Hof, pastor of Third Reformed church, officiated, using the single ring ceremony. As the bridal party assembled, Miss Ruth Keppel, violinist, accompanied by Mrs. Martha Robbins at the piano, played "Romance," by Ambrosia. During the ceremony, they played "The Swan" by Saint-Saens.

The bride was unattended. Her beautiful gown was a floor-length apricot marquisette, with matching lace. The small Bible which she carried was covered with the same material as that of her dress. She also carried a bouquet of talisman roses and forget-me-nots.

After the ceremony, about 70 relatives and intimate friends were served a wedding supper, the bride's table being covered with lace. At the center was the four-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nibbelink wore a gown of by-acinth blue lace. Her corsage was of talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hyma served as master and mistress of ceremonies, and Mrs. Hyma's gown was printed chiffon.

Following the repast, the couple left on a trip to Washington, D.C., and will also visit other places of interest on the trip. The bride wore a light weight soft blue wool suit, with accessories of Japonica. After June 1 they will reside in their summer home on Lake Michigan.

Mrs. Brierley was graduated from Hope college, and received her M.A. degree from the University of Michigan. She took graduate work at Radcliffe college. Mr. Brierley was graduated from George Herriots school at Edinburgh, Scotland. He is now employed by the Joseph Monahan Co. of Grand Rapids.

The City of Holland

"The Place Where Folks Really Live"

City Hall—Holland's Business House and the City's Governing Body

WHAT HOLLAND IS AND HAS

¶ It is the Tulip City of the Nation.

¶ It is the Center of unsurpassed Resort District.

¶ It is Within Ten Minute's Ride of Beautiful Lake Michigan with all its Recreational Facilities and miles of bathing beach.

¶ It boasts of a Holland Fish and Game Club with its fish ponds replenishing our local bodies of water with millions of fish.

¶ It borders the Michigan fruit belt and is surrounded with extraordinary farm land.

¶ It is a city with excellent hotel facilities.

¶ Holland is nearly 100% paved, and connects up with three main trunk lines.

¶ Its water system is second to none; and the quality of its water is the talk of the tourists.

¶ It is the center of the pickle industry and for sugar beets, giving gainful employment at home, and a market for the tillers of the soil.

¶ Holland's school system is of a standard as high as any in the nation. These avenues of learning are augmented by Hope college, an institution of higher learning, and the Western Theological Seminary. A Business College is also popular in this city as well as are the denominational schools.

¶ Holland has 28 churches, representing the leading denominations. All congregations are well-housed, with ample church facilities, including pipe organs.

¶ This city can show eight miles of Tulip Lanes along its streets and parks, and boasts of a boulevard lighting system second to none.

¶ Holland's police department is indeed efficient. There is no crime wave existing here, and the Board of Police and Fire Commissioners, together with the men, have kept it on a high standard—strengthening law obedience.

¶ The park board and staff are thoroughly efficient, and our parks and cemeteries and a new cemetery project in the making, are evidences of this efficiency.

¶ Holland has an athletic field for baseball and football that is the pride of the community.

¶ Its system of parks is difficult to excel. The main park—Centennial, the hub of the city, is the pride of Holland and the envy of visitors.

WHAT HOLLAND IS AND HAS

¶ Its milk supply assures fathers and mothers of growing children a healthful place in which to live. Over 2½ million quarts of milk are consumed each year.

¶ Holland is well supplied with theatres, where nothing but the latest and the best is shown in the movie field.

¶ Two golf courses and an airport are available here.

¶ Holland's postal service is highly spoken of by home folk and tourists alike.

¶ Its public service companies stand high in the estimation of the people, which includes telephone and gas service.

¶ It is the home of fine furniture, and boasts of the largest warm air heating and air conditioning industry in the world; and further it has a second plant of that nature, also a fine going concern, established more than two decades ago.

¶ It is in the heart of Michigan's poultry and "chick" industry.

¶ Holland is a city of diversified industries, some 60 in number, with no empty factory buildings.

¶ Insurance rates are low in Holland. This is largely due to its efficient fire department with modern motorized equipment, manned with a double platoon system of drivers, and supplemented with a part-time volunteer department. To its excellent equipment a $15,000 fully-equipped ladder truck has just been purchased.

¶ Holland has a municipal light and water plant that sets an example as a profit-maker to other cities in the nation, and a new plant costing $1,500,000 is now under construction at the head of beautiful Lake Macatawa. Many years ago a municipal hospital was built through that source. During the stressful period five years ago, our municipal plant kept the wolf from the door for many needy families, and tided the city over rough financial spots.

¶ Holland has a Board of Public Works working without pay, and no politics is allowed in this very successful enterprise.

¶ Holland's assessed valuation is $11,757,153.00. Its census in 1930 was 14,346. Greater Holland eight years later is nearer 18,000.

¶ Holland is almost out of debt, owing only $166,500.00. The total bonded indebtedness in 1932 was $776,504.00. Of this amount, $610,004.00 was paid during the past six years.

¶ We might go on indefinitely giving columns more of this beautiful city—a city practically out of debt. It shows able management in the past and present. Holland is a city to be proud of, and a town where folks really live.

We invite our friends from abroad and our neighbors from the countryside to visit Holland during the Tulip Festival, or at any time of the year. You will find Dutch hospitality here always!
