Propose Federal Revenue Fund Uses

County Studies Huizenga Park

GRAND HAVEN - A recommendation to develop Huizenga Park near Zeeland was tabled by Ottawa County Commissioners Tuesday who also set preliminary figures for federal revenue sharing uses including $50,000 for park development.

Ottawa County Road Commission manager Ronald Baker explained the Huizenga Park proposal to commissioners. The 25 acre park is south of M-21 in Holland township south of Zeeland.

Bakker said Zeeland residents had voted against development of the park by the city and the city is willing to deed the land to the county provided the park is developed according to Zeeland's plans over the next ten years.

If assumed by the county the park would become the tenth county park. Bakker said "the only other county parks in the immediate area were Tunnel Park along Lake Michigan in Park township and Pigeon Creek park in Olive township."

Commissioners apparently recognized the need for additional parks in the southern region of the county but pointed to a decreased park budget in each of the past three years and indicated higher maintenance costs for the parks.

The matter was tabled until the June meeting to allow commissioners a chance to inspect the park and its facilities.

Commissioners spent about two hours discussing proposed uses of general revenue sharing funds through December and beat back repeated attempts to include funds for an independent audit of all county funds.

Commissioners apparently yielded to requests from citizens for more local benefit in townships and proposed the bulk of the funds or $460,000 for road projects in the townships and cities and villages. Roger Rycenga, supervisor of Allendale township, told commissioners "people who are paying the bills want services" and added that the biggest complaint from citizens is the road conditions.

"When are you going to do something for us," said Rycenga. "What do we have to do?"

Bakker proposed $340,000 in revenue funds for a road improvement program in the townships who would provide matching revenue funds themselves. Also proposed was use of Motor Vehicle Highway Funds.

But some commissioners felt cities and villages were being shortchanged and proposed an equal amount or $20,000 for each city and village as well as the townships.

In recommending the township and village and city road funds commissioners trimmed a proposed $553,219 jail expansion program to $78,219 and added $50,000 to a park improvement program.

Commissioners also recommended $100,000 to complete a bridge replacement program, $16,000 for aerial mapping, $4,398 for Hager Park and $20,000 for an equipment fund. The total revenue funds available amounted to $748,617.

Commissioner Marilyn Sherwood continued her fight for a county audit to the end of the meeting but was beaten back on a five to four vote against. Other commissioners felt if an audit was done on the books of such departments as Social Services and Mental Health then the state should pay for the audit since the departments operate with state funds.

The proposed revenue fund uses are to be acted upon by commissioners at the June meeting.

$5.3 Million Addition

Ground Is Broken For Zeeland School

ZEELAND - Ground was broken and construction started Monday on the first phase of a $5.3 million addition to Zeeland High School.

When completed in September, 1978, the additions to the west and east sides of the present high school will include shop areas, swimming pool, auditorium, media center, vocal music facilities and rooms for English, social studies and math studies.

Funds for the addition were in a federal grant designed to create jobs in areas of high unemployment.

The first phase of construction which began today was footings for the foundation of which will house shop areas and classrooms.

Taking part in the brief ceremonies this morning were representatives of the Zeeland Board of Education, Mayor Dick Timmer and students from the high school.

At Commencement Exercises Sunday

Hope Graduates 391

Hope College conferred degrees on 391 graduating seniors Sunday afternoon during the college's 112th commencement exercises in Civic Center.

Receiving honorary doctoral degrees were Marion deVelder, General Secretary of the Reformed Church in America; Wilbur K. Pierpont, professor of accounting and former vice president and chief fiscal officer of the University of Michigan; and Howard R. Sluyter, a 1928 Hope graduate who is an investments executive in Dallas, Tex.

Dr. D. Ivan Dykstra, professor of philosophy and a member of the Hope faculty for 30 years, was chosen by the seniors to deliver the commencement address.

Dr. Dykstra likened his address, titled "Sicre, Acre, Esse," to a final test for the graduates.

The first question was "Can you now move on past mere words and go on to be wise?"

Words can be used to cover up a lack of wisdom, he said, and conversely "wisdom often goes sadly stillborn, entangled in the words we use."

The second question he posed was "Can you pass from knowing to doing the things you know?"

Truth, Dykstra said, "longs for incarnation and its incarnation is deeds."

The final question was "Can you get past mere acting and to on beyond to being?"

"It isn't what we say or do, but that we are that counts," he said. "A talent can define what can take place; what's in side of us will determine if it will....

"Don't let music dangle from your fingertips, let it come from your soul...Don't merely do the things a doctor does, but be a doctor in your heart."

Dykstra concluded that these three questions comprised a test which the graduates should take with them every day of their lives. The test was one which would be self-graded, he said, by asking oneself not how much you know, but: "Do you feel so good about your life that you can die with grace?"

The traditional baccalaureate service was held in Hope's Diment Chapel Sunday morning, with the Rev. John Stewart, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in Grand Rapids delivering the sermon, "The Last Word...Almost."

Rev. Stewart was a member of the Hope faculty from 1967-1974, serving the last five years as associate dean for academic affairs.

Recalling that he had once heard a baccalaureate speaker advised to "say the best thing that he knows," Rev. Stewart said that he would speak to the graduates about Jesus Christ, "for He is the best thing that I know...the beginning and end of the mind's adventure."

Rev. Stewart based his sermon on John 13:34. He said that Christ's knowing that he had come from God was "the fountainhead of His magnificent sense of identity." He said that the assurance that all have come from God is "the key to the invaluable worth of us all...We are to view our lives with a holy awe."

He said that this perspective is not easy to maintain in "a secular age which has intentions to reduce us to something we are not."

Rev. Stewart said that implicit in the verses from John is also a statement of destiny, that Christ knew he would be returning to God.

"We will be held responsible for the gift of human life we have all been given. None of us have diplomas that graduate us beyond responsibilities."

Finally, Rev. Stewart said that the passage teaches that "if we rightly understand from whom we come and where we're headed, then in Jesus' way, we must do something."

The speaker described a revolution that is occurring in the world which he called "The Brotherhood and Sisterhood of the Towel," men and women seeking to love and serve others as Christ did while on earth.

Rev. Stewart concluded that while his sermon was one of the last official messages Hope College would deliver to the graduates, the final words they would receive from the institution would be their own names called out to receive their degrees.

He challenged the graduates: "See your name in the world with such a spirit of courage, love and service, that some, in years to come when they say your name, will whisper it as like a prayer."

At 'Eggs and Issues' Breakfast in Zeeland

Taxes, Prison Dominate

ZEELAND—Taxation and prison facilities were among a variety of subjects covered by three state legislators at the annual Eggs and Issues breakfast of the Chamber of Commerce Monday in Bosch Restaurant.

"Nothing has decimated our office so much as the prison issue at St. Augustine Seminary in Laketown township, and the governor is not listening," State Sen. Gary Byker of Hudsonville said.

Applause greeted a suggestion of Atty. Randall Dekker that the seminary be used as a medical school to boost the number of dwindling M.D.s in Michigan. This suggestion came after Byker said it would cost $500,000 per student to develop a new medical teaching facility or $25 million for a class of 50 students.

Rep. Edgar Fredricks of Holland said a questionnaire he had conducted in his district revealed a vote of 1,335 to 128 opposing use of the Laketown site in Allegan county as a prison facility. He also commented on land use and how the government "meets itself" in having to comply with its own high standards.

Rep. Melvin De Stigter of Hudsonville-Allendale explained the product liability bill, and some aspects of the state budget in which it appears the legislature is adding $200 million to Gov. Milliken's recommended total budget of $3.65 billion.

De Stigter also talked about the budget stabilizing fund which the governor wants established at $128 million but probably will settle for $60 million. He said such a fund would control the level of expenditures in the state "just a little bit." As for the minimum wage bill, he felt certain the UAW would propose a $3 minimum.

On property taxes, Byker appealed for a view of the forest, not the trees. He said increased assessments do not benefit the state since no property tax money goes to the state, and that the state is allocating more funds to education than ever before.

As for money not coming to the local area but going to Detroit, De Stigter explained a bill calling for $28 million for Detroit which in part would aid the art museum, etc., where 70 per cent of its visitors come from outside Detroit. "My biggest problem with Detroit is that it keeps spending in the belief that the state or Washington will bail it out," De Stigter said. It was pointed out that Detroit levies 97 mills to 48 for Zeeland.

As for gas tax going into funds other than for which it was intended, De Stigter said that the governor has removed a $31 million allocation from that fund for state police patrol and put it into the general fund.

Gary Walker presided and Leonard Vanden Bosch gave the invocation.

Dispute Settled By Board

At a 24-minute meeting late Monday afternoon, the Holland Board of Education unanimously approved an agreement for a settlement in the Holland High School athletic field litigation which has been in negotiation for some six months.

The seven-page document sets forth the dispute arising out of a storm sewer facility in which the Board of Education sought an adjustment of $90,394 plus expenses of $3,475.88 paid T. Michael Doyle of Doyle, Whitmer, Carruthers & Hess, P.C., a Lansing law firm. The local district had retained the services of Doyle in March of 1974 which became the subject of litigation which terminated in September of 1976.

The document set forth terms of a $65,000 settlement offered by Doyle and his firm in which $20,000 would be paid on execution of the agreement and $12,500 within 60 days, and if payments of $2,000 each to commence in May, 1977, until paid in full, the last such payment to be $2,500.

The document also provides for a promissory note, accompanied by a written guarantee in which Doyle, Richard E. Whitmer and Bruce Carruthers personally guaranty payment of the note according to its terms.

The document further states that the law firm is agreeing to the settlement for the reason of its belief that it is an attorney's obligation to reach amicable agreements with clients when questions concerning attorney's fees are raised and of its desire to resolve present misunderstandings and or fee dispute without further incident or acrimony.

In turn, the board, recognizing responsibilities to the district and its obligation to be fair to the firm, agrees that no opinion will be expressed concerning the litigation which would tend to demean or lower in the public's eyes the stature or reputation of the law firm.

Holland Board Attorney John Marquis explained that the latter agreement is not intended to muzzle public meetings, but in other conversation it should be a matter of facts and not opinions that could lead to further allegations.

In the audience was William Coupe, Holland attorney who spurred the investigation into the Doyle fees last December, and who currently is an uncontested candidate for membership to the Holland Board of Education at its June 13 election.

Each of the local board's seven members signed the agreement. President Charles Bradford presided at the meeting.

Department Head Status Under Study

GRAND HAVEN - Questions concerning department head status surfaced Tuesday as Ottawa County Commissioners for the second time rejected a proposal to elevate the director of the Comprehensive Training and Employment Act to department head status.

County affairs committee chairman Donald Williams of Holland recommended a salary level of $17,928 to $19,299 for CETA director Gary Scholten. The range is the same paid department heads such as the sheriff, county treasurer and clerk.

Williams said Scholten directs a department that operated with a 1976 budget of $3,398,410 and served 1,919 residents.

Salary ranges for three other staff positions were recommended including that of a program coordinator. The position was filled in January but a classification and salary range never adopted.

Commissioner Eunice Bareham reminded commissioners that other department heads were not receiving department head pay and cited the Friend of the Court with a law degree who was earning about $15,000 a year.

Williams conceded his committee was looking into salary levels of other so-called department heads.

Commissioner Raymond Vander Laan said attempts to raise the level of the CETA director was the first step to bring other department heads into line.

"We are sitting on something we have not been able to handle," said Vander Laan. "This is one step in treating other county department heads fairly. We exact a great deal from the employees and they should be compensated."

He cited the sheriff who is on call 24 hours a day.

"If you want to equate the salaries then there are inequities," Vander Laan maintained.

Commissioner Marilyn Sherwood said there should be different levels for department head salaries.

"The responsibilities are not the same," she added.

Commissioners voted six to four against raising Scholten's salary and approving the three other salary levels and later rejected a motion to reconsider the action but still later did refer to the county affairs committee the pay scale for the program coordinator already hired.

Voting against the original motion to upgrade the CETA director's salary were commissioners Wybenga, Stoltz, Langeland, Bareham, Sherwood and Raak. Commissioner Northouse was absent.

Commissioner William Kennedy of the Social Services committee said an additional $3,972,785 for CETA programs was expected in Ottawa County for the 18 months that begin April 1.

The funds would maintain the current level of CETA hiring at 260 and allow an additional 150 jobs. Kennedy said projects that would use $434,588 are ready as soon as the additional funding is approved.

Commissioners approved a high bid of $463 for furniture and other items in the Community Mental Health Services residential treatment facility in Holland which was closed last year. The lease on the former school building along Cleveland Ave. ran out May 1 and the building has been rented.

A request for oil and gas leases on the Community Haven property at Eastmanville was referred to the Social Services committee.

Culture, Heritage Live At Netherlands Museum

By Holly Ernst

Remember the day Rev. Van Raalte came to the Indian village near the Lake Michigan shore and began the settlement of Holland?

If not, the Netherlands Museum takes visitors back to that historical event—and back in time to the culture that is the heritage of the Dutch community.

The Museum located at 12th St. and Central Ave., houses items that were used by the settlers. Fascinating antiques from Dutch displays at world fairs and donations from the Netherlands' government can also be seen.

Mrs. Paul Fallis, keeper of the museum, has been "burning the midnight oil" reading exhibits for the tulip festival visitors. Mrs. Fallis expects 6,000 Tulip Time guests.

Members of the Questers, an organization concerned with preserving heritage and collecting antiques, have also been working on museum exhibits. Questers is displaying all types of domestic items—from 11th century mouse traps to handmade bloomers.

One of the museum's newer acquisitions is a 300-year-old ebony linen closet—weighing 1500 pounds. The original lamp, made in 1824, that burned in the light house on Lake Michigan has also been added to the collection.

Particularly enjoyable are the 19th century Volendam and Zeeland "cottages." The two rooms, representative of typical residences in the Dutch villages, look as though their owners just stepped out for a walk—dishes, linens, everything down to the chamber pot is in its place.

The possessions of the first Hollanders inspire a phantasmagoria of colonial and pioneer settings. Some of the articles are very crude—others are uniquely elegant.

One book, owned by one of the original Hope College faculty, is of particular interest. Its pages endured so much use that the volume resembles a piece of drift wood—worn into a smooth lump—testimony to the value and scarcity of books during the period.

A colossal doll house, intricately detailed, a traditional delftware collection and an ornate carriage, gift of the Netherlands government, are just a few examples of the treasures waiting to be explored by guests.

18 Mills or 15 Mills

County Millage Rate Questioned

GRAND HAVEN - Millage rates used by the tax allocation board for school districts in Ottawa County may be challenged, it was revealed during a meeting of the Ottawa County Commissioners Tuesday.

State statutes limit the allocation board county levy to 15 mills which is split by the board among various governmental and school units in the county.

But an interpretation in 1964 by then Ottawa County prosecutor James Bussard indicated school districts in more than one county could levy something higher than 15 mills based on millage levied by governmental units within the district.

Finance committee chairman Eunice Bareham said county prosecutor Wesley Nykamp has a differed interpretation of the statute that could bring all school districts to the 15 mill limit.

Roger Troupe, superintendent of the Ottawa Area Intermediate School District and a long-time member of the allocation board, said today that the townships of Olive, Blendon, Chester, Jamestown, Polkton, Robinson and Wright levy more than the 15 mills and if the opinion reverses the 18 mill interpretation the result could be a massive juggling of allocation figures and cuts in funds allocated to governments and school districts.

School districts in Ottawa County that spill into other counties include Holland Public, Zeeland Public, Hudsonville Public and Coopersville Public.

Mrs. Bareham said that should a request be made to the state attorney general for an opinion on the millage levy it should be timed so as not to interfere with current tax collecting procedures.

One solution to the 15 or 18 mill levy was to call a fixed millage vote by residents of Ottawa County.

But commissioner William Kennedy cautioned by saying "if you go ahead with the fixed millage you will be encased in cement" and recommended a millage levy that you "can live with for ever and ever."

The millage question evolved from a report on the tax allocation board which is studying budgets of schools, townships, cities and the county before splitting the 15 mill county tax pie.

A proposed organization chart for the Community Mental Health Services was approved by the commissioners.

It calls for 58 1-2 county employees, three fewer than the number the county had originally agreed to fund.

The reorganization deleted 7 1/2 positions but added 8 and upgraded some positions which called for an additional $87,207 in salaries.

But Commissioner Raymond Vander Laan said revenues would be increased by $116,000 this year.

A proposal to relocate a stretch of Lake Shore Dr. near consumers Power Co., in Port Sheldon township was approved by commissioners.

Consumers proposed moving Lake Shore Dr. east of the present route from about Croswell St. south to about Polk St. and curving Croswell St. west to the new location of Lake Shore south of the railroad tracks.

Lake Shore would be elevated over the railroad tracks to avoid increased rail traffic proposed for the new addition to the Consumers generating plant.

A hearing on the matter is scheduled at the county Road Commission offices May 26. Commissioners said they had no objections to changing Lake Shore Dr. as a scenic route.

Fairy Tale Ends Happily for Local Woman

Mother-Daughter Are Reunited

By Holly Ernst
It's a Mother's Day fairy tale about finding family "roots."

Once upon a time, (50 years ago), there was a young lass of seven named Margaret whose mother and father could not afford to keep her.

The court decided that a distant relative, Minnie, should take "temporary" custody of the child.

Minnie turned out to be the "troll" in Margaret's real-life fairy tale, as "temporary custody" turned permanent.

She changed the girl's last name and shuffled her in and out of boarding schools and towns, attempting to keep her mother and daughter separated.

Margaret's story, like all good fairy tales, does have a happy ending. After 50 years of mystery, gossip and dead-ends, Margaret and her mother finally met, in a flourish of tears and smiles.

The happy reunion took place Thursday at the residence of Blanche and Lester Wheaton, Margaret's new-found aunt and uncle, in Grand Rapids.

Currently living at 244 College, Margaret Devoid came to Holland from Florida when her son found a job here. The fact that son Douglas, 20, came to Holland to find work is just the first coincidence of many that made the reunion possible. A daughter, Tammi, also decided to come north.

So many "coincidences" brought mother and daughter together, that Margaret is convinced that the whole event is the work of "someone with a greater power than mine....It's supernatural."

Margaret Devoid's mother is Gladys Bosse Hartzler, now 76 years old, a former Grand Rapids resident and employee of Michigan Bulb Company for 19 years. After separation from Margaret's father, she had remarried and moved to Florida. Though she had tried to find her daughter, with the aid of brothers and sisters, years slipped by and she assumed Margaret was lost for good.

"Minnie had painted my mother so black," explained Margaret, "that I'd never tried to find her. She said that my mother and father didn't want me."

But miracles happened one day when Margaret and her sons, Doug and 16 year old Dale, went to the Grand Rapids library on a sudden inspirational search for family.

Margaret knew her mother's and father's family had come from Grand Rapids—but her birth certificate claimed that her mother's maiden name was Boss and no clues could be found linking her to relatives of her father.

Searching through the 1913 city directory for a Gladys Bosse proved futile.

Out of the depths of childhood memories, however, (or perhaps out of coincidence) Margaret suddenly recalled the name 'Floyd.'

Another probing of the directory yielded a Floyd Bosse and wife Agnes who had once lived in the area. Records showed Floyd's father had a daughter named Gladys.

Excitement peaked as speculations were made about the relationship between the two similar names, the possibility that Floyd and Gladys were siblings.

Margaret and sons went to the place where Floyd Bosse's house stood—or had stood. They were disappointed to find the house had been destroyed and its inhabitants long since moved away.

Margaret's heart sunk and dreams of new family faded.

Her sons were not so easily discouraged, however. They canvassed the phone book for the Bosse name and dialed numbers at random.

One of their first calls just happened to be to Norman

MOTHER'S DAY DELIGHT — A touch of fantasy surrounded the reunion of Margaret Devoid, (second from right), 244 College, when after 50 years of separation she was reunited with her mother Gladys Bosse

Bosse—who just happened to be hosting a family reunion that day.

When the caller asked if he was related to someone by the name of Gladys, Norman became suspicious—and then realized—"Is this Margaret calling?"

Norman's announcement that "the missing Peg is back" shocked the gathered family. "We've been looking for that girl for 50 years," crowed Blanche, ecstatic about an additional niece.

That night Margaret met the aunts, uncles, and cousins she had wished for for years.

Her husband died 14 years ago, Minnie 20 years ago, and Margaret felt alone—raising her children with no other family members to lean on. "All these years I've been so lonely, and there was no need of it at all."

Suddenly her family was so large that she couldn't begin to remember all their names.

Her mother, Gladys, was in Florida at the time of the reunion—unaware that her "long lost daughter" had been "born again."

Margaret had no idea whether her parents were still living—or if they were even interested in seeing her.

To her delight, the "instant" relatives helped Margaret make arrangements for her widowed mother to come to Grand Rapids.

They also knew of relatives from her father's family residing in California—although her father had died in 1963, reportedly after many years of trying to locate his daughter.

Both mother and daughter sobbed with delight when they finally met. Hugs and smiles abounded.

"Oh, mamma!" cried Margaret. Gladys just squeezed tighter.

Out of the whole, now huge, family, however, no one showed as much glee as Dale.

"This is the best mother's day present my mom could ever have," he said, ready to burst with excitement. "Now I have a grandmother who'll care for me and love me."

Margaret Devoid brought her mother back to Holland where the united family will spend a very special Mother's Day.

Holland is busy these days getting ready for Tulip Time which opens next Wednesday. Tulips bloomed early this year, but a critical look at tulip time and other plantings reveals many tulips still in bud, and city and festival officials have been assured there will be plenty of Tulips for the four-day festival.

Early springs are always nice, but this one has caused some troubles for the Tulip Time office in Civic Center. Two weeks ago, Paul Harvey in his Chicago broadcast said Holland tulips were in full bloom and there wouldn't be any left for Tulip Time.

He clarified his statement almost immediately to say there would be tulips for Tulip Time, but like bad news, the clarification never quite caught up with the initial story.

Television, radio and newspaper services helped spread the bad news, and Tulip Time President Mike Gorno spent what seemed to be hours on the phone remonstrating with a lot of people who were reluctant to believe him, and this hesitancy resulted in some cancellations.

This can be serious when it affects say 400 persons in motels and taking meals in local churches.

Actually, this isn't the first time that tulips bloomed early. On one festival in the early 50s, tulips were at their peak on May 1, but cold weather set in and there was still plenty of color by festival time. Some people will recall damaging stories in some newspapers.

Holland is fortunate this year in that the festival takes place on the earliest possible dates May 11-14. Latest dates are May 17-20 after which the cycle returns to May 11-14.

Earlier in the year, a representative of the Michigan Tourist Council suggested at a Chamber of Commerce Early Bird breakfast that Tulip Time should include two weekends. Tulip Time President Gorno appointed a committee to study such a plan. So far, there has not been a great deal of enthusiasm, he says.

Holland will observe its 50th Tulip Time festival two years hence. No changes in festival arrangements are anticipated for the 49th festival next year.

Sometimes, Michigan springs are late and most people have concluded that early tulips are much better than late tulips. Back around 1935 when nine-day festivals were held, tulips were so slow that there was only one bed of tulips in bloom in Centennial Park. That was the year Tulip Time brought in open-air tour buses from Chicago's World Fair (A Century of Progress) and these visitors saw mostly green buds on the first day. Lots of tulips were in bloom for the second weekend.

Tulips were at their peak on Memorial Day that year.

The Chamber of Commerce has received an interesting message on Tulip Time from an elementary pupil named Jennifer.

The question: What would you do if you saw an elephant in your back yard?

Jennifer drew tulips under the elephant and wrote: "If I saw an elephant in my back yard if he was sitting on the tulips I would kill him. And he is!"

Tulips are a hardy flower and can take most anything but hail and heat. A couple of 90-degree days (and we've had them during festivals) can spell hasty doom, and no flower can stand up to a hail storm.

But snow and cold? Tulips can take cold temperatures, even some frost with no damage at all.

'Red Hot Lovers' Proves To Be Pleasant Romp

By Cornelia Van Voorst

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers," a Neil Simon comedy, proved to be a pleasant romp for a fairly large audience at the opening of Holland Community Theatre's last play of the season Thursday night in Holland High School. The comedy also is slated tonight and Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

Use of a thrust stage brought the play's action closer to the audience, always a good maneuver, and the open stage was such that most of the action was ahead of the proscenium.

Bill McAndrew did remarkably well in the demanding role of Barney Cashman, a 47-year-old chap who felt life was passing him by and he should have an extra-marital fling before it is too late.

He was on the stage continuously for the three acts, a series of two-people dramas which provided more words than action — all in his mother's New York apartment while she was doing volunteer work at a hospital. McAndrew added some 20 years in his makeup for the mature role.

A change of pace was provided by each of Barney's three candidates, providing a wide range of acting skills. Leah Fisher was convincing as the sexy eager beaver, the featured player of the first act which found the hero nonplussed and unable to cope.

Barb Wrigley, a newcomer to HCT, got plenty of laughs as the kooky young thing in a miniskirt shocking Barney into smoking pot while babbling on and on about her affairs.

gloom role as the melancholy family friend, oozing depression which was contagious to the hero.

Director G. M. Thompson's theatre notes summed up the show's theme admirably: "It is more a realization that the green grass on the other side of the fence is just as riddled with crabgrass and weeds as the side on which we are standing. The only reason the parade is passing us by is because we have stopped marching."

Burning Cigarette Listed as Cause Of Fatal Fire

Ottawa County crime technicians and fire marshalls today indicated that the fire which killed a Holland township man Thursday was believed started by a cigarette on a living room couch.

Tulip Time Flower Show Opens; Winners Named

Flower and nature lovers find much to admire in Holland Garden Club's 31st standard amateur Tulip Time Flower Show being staged in Holland Armory on Ninth St.

"Discovering Beauty" is the theme, and the inviting entrance is flanked by yellow marigolds against white picket fences. A bed of red tulips, with a white wax begonia border, against a background of evergreens with flowering crabtree catches the eye and beckons to the artfully arranged horticulture and artistic entries in many divisions.

Accredited and student judges completed judging Wednesday morning and ribbons were awarded before ribbon-cutting ceremonies at 1 p.m.

Awarded the Sweepstakes Award for the most blue ribbons in Horticulture, and also receiving the Lois E. Kuiper trophy were Dr. and Mrs. Landis Zylman. The Zylmans also received the Award of Merit and the Margaret Walsh Brooks trophy for the most outstanding tulip. (Awards of Merit are national awards, determined by national judging standards.)

The Award of Merit and the Jacob De Graaf trophy for the finest entry in House Plant, section V, went to Mrs. Wade Nykamp. Award of Horticultural Excellence and the Gertrude Skeetee Trophy to the finest entry in the Horticulture Division went to Mrs. Paul Ohneck.
