Ex-Minister Birney's Tribute to Holland and Its People.

Mr. James Birney of Michigan, who for six years past has been American Minister to the court of Holland, and whose resignation has been recently accepted by the President, arrived in this city from The Hague yesterday.

Mr. Birney speaks warmly in praise of the people of Holland, whom he regards as among the happiest, freest and most contented in Europe, and of the Government which, while being firm, is exceptionally mild and liberal. America and the Americans, he said, stood high both with the Royal family and among the people, and the indications were that the friendly relations would grow firmer and stronger as the trade relations, which already are important, increased. He attributed much of Holland's good will to America to the recent abolition by Congress of discriminating duties upon the countries east of the Cape of Good Hope, which now enables American merchants to purchase coffee and sugar from Java at Amsterdam without the expense of sending ships to that far off island, as heretofore, and to bring the same to the United States without the payment here of ten per cent custom dues heretofore exacted.

"The abrogation of this tax," said Mr.
Birney, "is of great importance in two ways. First, it saves American importers large expense, and second, it makes Amsterdam the grand depot of American supplies of Java coffee and sugar, and ensures the best quality of these products of Holland's colonies for the American market. The Holland Government regards the action of Congress as a friendly concession in acknowledgment of her abolition of certain duties in 1874, and will not soon forget the courtesy and spirit of fair dealing which prompted it."

Mr. Birney said the people of Holland idolized the name of the late James L. Motley, on account of his eminent literary services in behalf of the country, as was exemplified in his "History of the Dutch Republic."

"Mr. Motley's book," he said, "is the standard authority historically throughout the Kingdom. The late Queen Sophia was Mr. Motley's firm friend and admirer, and the portrait of the distinguished American historian occupies to-day a post of honor in the royal palace."

The American trade in petroleum with Holland, he said, was growing more important yearly, and would, it was his impression, in time equal in value the importations of Java coffee and sugar into this country.

There has been some talk at The Hague concerning the aggressive policy of the German government, but no fears were entertained there that Prince Bismarck would dare to attempt to carry out his scheme of amalgamating Holland with the German empire. The attempt, if ever made, he said, would be resisted to the bitter end by the people of Holland, who were opposed to being denationalized.

"The people of Holland," he added,
"are intensely patriotic; they love their king, their government and their country, and I believe to-day that they are the happiest, freest and most contented among all the peoples of Europe. Their civil service is carried out to perfection, and a change of rulers and of ministry has no effect upon the public servant who has faithfully performed his duties. The politics of the country is singularly free from corruption, the laws are just and great crimes are rare. In Holland, if a nominee for the National Parliament should canvass his district as in England and the United States he would be looked upon with disgust, and would stand no possible show of success, and if a candidate should expend a florin toward his election he would be regarded as little better than a knave. By adhering to this strict standard of honor the Dutch members of Parliament stand exceptionally high and are above suspicion and reproach."

The postal system of Holland, Mr.
Birney said, was equal if not superior to that of any other country on the continent.
Letters were forwarded under this system to all parts of the realm for two cents, and the new plan of sending parcels of merchandise through the mails at an extremely low tariff gave great satisfaction.
Both, he said, not only paid expenses, but netted a handsome revenue for the Government.

Mr. Birney while in London attended the sitting of Parliament on April 26, and was greatly impressed with the spirit of conciliation that there prevailed in relation to the Irish troubles. The Dublin tragedy, following so closely on the heels of the change, left the impression upon him that greater troubles were now in store for Ireland.—New York Graphic.

Stop and Consider.

Are you troubled with a weakness in any part of the body? have you weak lungs, or your heart's action enfeebled and irregular? Are you suffering from ill-health, caused by a weakness of the urinary or digestive organs? Remember, Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you and fully restore both mind and body to their normal condition. It quickly strengthens the parts affected.

Stopped His Paper.

Nowadays, when a subscriber gets so mad because an editor differs with him on a trivial question that he discontinues his subscription and "stops his paper" we remind him of a good anecdote of the late Horace Greeley, the well-known editor of the New York Tribune. Passing down Newspaper Row in New York City one morning, he met one of his readers who exclaimed: "Mr. Greeley, after the article you published this morning, I intend to stop your paper!" "Oh, no," said Mr.
Greeley, "don't do that." "Yes sir, my mind is made up, and I shall stop the paper." But the angry subscriber was not to be appeased and they separated.
Late in the afternoon, the two met again,
when Mr. Greeley remarked: "Mr.
Thompson, I am very glad you did not carry out your threat this morning."
"What do you mean?" "Why, you said you were going to stop my paper." "And so I did; I went to the office and had your paper stopped." "You are surely mistaken; I have just come from there, and the press was running and business booming." "Sir," said Thompson, very pomp-ously, "I meant I intended to stop my subscription to your paper." "Oh!
thunder!" rejoined Greeley, "I thought you were going to stop the running of my paper and knock me out of business.
My friend, let me tell you something.
One man is just a drop of water in the ocean. You didn't set the machinery of this world in motion, and you can't stop it; and when you are underneath the ground, things upon the surface will wag on just the same as ever."—Yonkers Gazette.

Rev. M. P. Remington, Ithaca, N. Y.,

writes: "From too close application to my calling, my health underwent a severe strain. I felt a weakness in every part of my body. My digestion especially failed me and my nerves became all unstrung.
Recreation did not do me proper benefit.
Finally, on the recommendation of a brother minister, I tried Brown's Iron Bitters. It has made me feel better and stronger than I ever before felt since I was a young man."

Lippincott's Magazine.

Lippincott's Magazine for June opens with an interesting and well-illustrated article on "Toledo" by S. P. Scott. Dr.
Felix L. Oswald has an entertaining paper on "Traps," which is also illustrated.
William H. Rideing gives an account, enlivened with anecdotes, of "English Lawyers and Law-Courts," and Lucy H.
Hooper summarizes the recently published recollections of a French comedian, Samson, who was a pupil of Talma and the teacher of Rachel. "Art and Art-Life in New York," by an anonymous writer, is not a critical paper, but a lively sketch giving all the information in regard to art-societies, studios, exhibitions and receptions. "On the wheel" by "Kol Kron," treats of "travelling by bicycle," and, besides indicating the best routes for tours of this kind. The fiction in this number merits particular notice. The conclusion of "Stephen Guthrie," is extremely well managed, and has novelty as well as charm. "An Absent-Minded Hero," by Celia P. Woolley, is an unusually well-written story, true to life, and as pleasant as it is interesting. "The Romance of a Coffin," by Jane G. Austin, embodies in a spirited manner and with strong local coloring a family tradition of Old Nantucket, and "A Strange Night's Lodging," by Hart Ayrault, deals with incidents which, if not very probable, are vividly told. There are several poems, by Phillip Bourke Marston and others, and the usual complement and variety of papers in the editorial department. A new serial, entitled "Fairy Gold" will commence in the July number and run through the rest of the year.

affections of the Lungs, take Ayer's Cherry

Holland City News.

HOLLAND CITY, MICHIGAN.

WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

The Internal Revenue Collector at Erie, Pa., unearthed an illicit still at Union City, on the farm of Ezra and Richard Sterrod. The liquor had been sent into the oil regions.

MAYOR GRACE presided over a meeting of Irishmen in New York, held to denounce the murder of Cavendish and Burke. One hundred policemen were stationed about the doors, and O'Donovan Rossa, who occupied a central seat, was closely watched by officers. Mrs. Parnell was loudly greeted. Richard O'Gorman was interrupted by a call for three cheers for the assassins. At the sale of the Oxford Park herd of Jersey cattle, in New York, cows sold for $3,700 and $3,550 each.

THE WEST.

In a tenement block on Warren street, in Boston, Mrs. Martha Konig seized a knife and assaulted her four children. August, aged 10, was killed by a cut across the throat; the left arms of two other boys were nearly severed, the girl escaping from the room; after her throat had been slashed. The woman then cut her own limbs and wrists in a frightful manner. It seems that her husband had left her, but contributed $10 per week to the support of the family, and she was rendered almost insane by her situation.

A CYCLONE struck a school-house near Lakefield, Minn., lifted it up and scattered it over the prairie. It was occupied by the teacher and eleven pupils, who were all more or less bruised, three of them sustaining terrible injuries. The storm came in a funnel-shaped cloud, which bounded along the prairie and passed into Heron lake, sucking up water to a height of 100 feet. The people of Northfield, Minn., are excited over an attempt to blow up buildings by means of infernal machines.

The reunion of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee at St. Louis was called to order by Gen. Sherman, after which a floral tribute sent by Chicago was uncovered, Bishop Fallows delivering an address, and ex-Gov. Fletcher responding. The Secretary reported $9,000 on hand. Letters were read from President Arthur, Gen. Grant, Gen. McClellan and Samuel J. Tilden. The veterans were then escorted to the Merchants' and Cotton Exchanges and to Shaw's Garden.

The Chicago Board of Trade, by a majority of four out of 1,114 votes, defeated a proposed rule to permit the delivery of winter wheat on spring-wheat contracts.

Mrs. SCOVILLE, in an interview with a reporter, announced her intention of lecturing till she had secured 100,000 signatures to a petition for the commutation of Guiteau's sentence from hanging to imprisonment. She alleges that Moody and Sankey's revival made her brother insane. Next year's reunion of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee will be held at Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 3 and 4, which is the anniversary of the battle of Corinth. Bishop Fallows, of Chicago, will be the orator. The Illinois Board of Agriculture reports an improvement in the condition of winter wheat in all sections of the State. No damage has resulted from chinch bugs. The yield promises to be 3 to 5 per cent. better than the average. Northern Wisconsin was visited with quite a snow-storm on the 10th of May.

In a dense pine forest, ten miles northeast of Sparta, Wis., wild pigeons have established a roost half a mile wide and ten miles long, every tree containing twenty or more nests. The excursion train carrying several hundred members of the Missouri Press Association with their wives from St. Louis to Galveston, Texas, was run into by a freight engine near Owego, Kan. The editors escaped with a severe shaking up. Patsy Devine, who three years ago murdered Aaron Goodfellow, in Bloomington, Ill., was hanged in the jail at Clinton, dying like a "game" man, and denying his guilt in a speech from the scaffold. He stated that his real name was Thomas Coyne; that he was born in Cincinnati, and had served a term of sixty days in the Bridewell at Chicago. After the tragedy he was captured at Port Jervis, N. Y., and was twice convicted and sentenced to death, the Supreme Court setting aside the first trial.

SMALL-POX is raging among the Indians on the Montana boundary and spreading on the Canadian side, and the Commissioner at Winnipeg has sent out a large supply of vaccine virus. Officers of the Burlington road are said to have formed a company to lay a track from St. Joseph, Mo., to Table Rock, Neb., to join the Denver extension, making a saving of eighty miles.

THE SOUTH.

A MOST appalling storm disaster occurred at the coal mines, three miles from McAllister station, on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway, in the Indian Territory. Two storms came from the southwest and the southeast in triangular shape, and appeared to meet and center near McAllister. The buildings at the mines were completely demolished, and eight persons killed outright and about forty wounded. The storm was a most terrific one, and extended generally through Texas, Arkansas and Indian Territory.

A REMARKABLE and fatal termination of the burglaries exploits of three desperadoes is reported from Wilkes county, N. C. The three men had effected an entrance to the smoke-house of a farmer by prying up the logs, and, being discovered, one was shot dead, while the other two, in attempting to escape, knocked out the lever, which caused the opening they had made to close just as they were about half way out, crushing both to death in about half an hour. The conference of the Methodist Church South, in session at Nashville, reported that during the past four years there had been an increase of 78,000 Sunday-school pupils, making the present total 462,821.

EX-GOV. CADWALLADER C. WAREBURN died at Eureka Springs, Ark., of paralysis and Bright's disease, aged 65 years. His brother, Hon. E. B. Washburn, of Chicago, was with him in his last hours. Mr. Washburn was one of four brothers, two of whom have been Governors of different States, and four of whom have represented four different States in Congress—Israel Washburn, Jr., from Maine; Elhu B., from Illinois; Cadwallader C., from Wisconsin, and William D., from Minnesota.

CONTINUOUS rains in Arkansas caused the most disastrous overflow in White river. The whole river valley, from its source to its mouth, was inundated, and houses, mills, fences and crops were swept away. The damage is estimated at nearly $1,000,000. The Ouachita and its tributaries also overflowed their banks, inflicting great damage. Montgomery county, Ark., was visited by a terrible cyclone, which leveled everything in its path, killed eight people and wounded upward of a hundred. The storm came unheralded, and was of but a few minutes' duration. Over fifty buildings were destroyed. The families occupying residences were nearly all maimed or killed. Hundreds of sheep, hogs, horses and cattle were lost or killed, and $5,000 in currency and silver scattered to the winds and lost. One hundred families were rendered homeless and without shelter. John Brizzaloro, of Baltimore, who recently murdered his wife and wounded himself, made a fatal leap from the upper tier of cells in the jail to the concrete pavement, a distance of ninety-five feet.

WASHINGTON.

CHARLES H. REED closed his argument in the Guiteau case on the 10th inst., by objecting to the evidence of Dr. Fordyce Barker and Mrs. Dunmore. He appealed to the court to save the judiciary from the disgrace of sending an insane man to the gallows. The proposal for a new Arctic expedition finds little favor in Washington, chief among its opponents being Secretary Chandler.

SECRETARY TELLER proposes to disarm the Indians on all the reservations, and then use the troops to take the weapons from roving bands. He insists that the wards of the nation shall be treated pretty nearly the same as the whites, and be punished in the civil courts for misdeeds. Maj. G. J. Lydecker, who has charge of improvements in the harbor of Chicago, has been appointed by President Arthur one of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, to succeed Maj. Twining, deceased. Mrs. "Betty" Mason made a strong appeal to the President on behalf of her husband. He promised to lay the matter of the pardon before the Cabinet.

ACCORDING to the report for May by the Statistician of the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, the average condition of winter wheat for April was higher than for many years past, and the average throughout the country is 100.

The people who believe in woman suffrage will be cheered by the fact that Mr. Lapham, of the Woman Suffrage Committee of the United States Senate, has been authorized to report an amendment to the constitution as follows: "Art. XVI.—Section 1. The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any State on account of sex. Sec. 2. Congress shall have power, by appropriate legislation, to enforce the provisions of this article." The vote stood 3 to 2. The Senators who voted for the measure are Lapham, Blair and Jackson. Those who voted against it are George and Fair. Senators Anthony and Ferry are absent. Had they been present, the relative proportion of the vote would not have been changed, as Anthony is against the amendment and Ferry is for it. James Q. Smith, a contestant for the seat of Representative Charles M. Shelly, Fourth Alabama district, died at the capital, of pneumonia, after an illness of less than forty-eight hours.

POLITICAL.

It is asserted by a Washington friend that Gen. Chalmers, late the Representative of the "Shoestring" district of Mississippi, will head the Independent movement in that State, and that he has promise of backing by the administration.

GEN. JAMES A. BEAVER was nominated by acclamation for Governor of Pennsylvania by the State Republican Convention at Harrisburg. William Henry Rawie, of Philadelphia, was nominated for Judge of the Supreme Court. The convention favored civil-service reform, fair treatment of the Indians, and the inviolability of their lands. They heartily indorsed the administrations of President Arthur and Gov. Hoyt, and deprecated the untimely death of Gen. Garfield. At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee of Indiana, Aug. 9 was fixed as the date of the State Convention. Ex-Secretary Kirkwood declines to be a candidate for Congress in Iowa.

The Republican State Committee of Illinois held a session at Chicago, and decided to hold the convention in Springfield June 28. They determined as the basis of representation one delegate for each 400 votes and fraction above 200 cast for Garfield and Arthur.

JAMES R. CHALMERS, who was recently compelled to vacate his seat in Congress for John R. Lynch, Republican, has announced himself as an independent candidate for Congress from the Second district of Mississippi, now represented by Van H. Manning. He says in his address to the public: "But believing that the Lamar Democrats, who controlled the last Legislature and who control the organization of the party in Mississippi, have departed from the true Democratic faith, and believing further that they have attempted to throw me overboard as a Jonah to the Republican whale, I shall oppose them in the next election." Georgia politicians in Washington assert that in the event of the death or resignation of Senator Ben Hill—now hopelessly ill of cancer—Gov. Colquitt will undoubtedly succeed him in the Senate, and that Alexander H. Stephens will run for Governor.

GENERAL.

It is stated from Washington that the State Department and the Government of Mexico are in correspondence looking to an arrangement to prevent successful Indian outbreaks on the border. The Government of Mexico seems disposed to grant the privilege of crossing into Mexican territory in pursuit of the hostiles practically as was done under the famous "Ord order," but they want the right asked for through diplomatic channels, and granted in due form if at all, and not taken by force.

The twenty-second annual convention of the United States Brewers' Association met in Washington. There were 100 delegates present. The President's address showed by analytical tables that there was a remarkable increase in the growth of the beer traffic and of the revenue derived therefrom. The Watchmakers and Retail Jewelers' Guild of the United States held their annual meeting at Dubuque, Iowa.

In obedience to public sentiment, Mr. James Gordon Bennett will abandon his proposed Arctic expedition, which was to have been on a much grander scale than that of the ill-fated Jeannette.

BUSINESS failures reported to New York from various parts of the country for the week, 117, distributed as follows: Eastern States, 17; Western, 40; Southern, 35; Middle, 10; Pacific coast and Territories, 9, and New York city and Brooklyn, 5. The failure system of electric light and force seems to be a successful application of the new light for house illumination. On her voyage from France the steamship Labrador, which used six electric lights continuously, only used one-fifth of the electricity stored in the accumulators. The New York Spirit of the Times, speaking of the entries for the July races at Chicago, says it is "the largest number of entries ever made for any trotting meeting in the world."

ENVOY TRESCOTT has gone into the interior of Peru in search of Admiral Montero. The dangers of the journey will be appreciated when it is known that for a considerable distance he will be borne on men's shoulders along narrow trails on the mountain sides. Senator Sherman has received the following letter from Mrs. Lucetta R. Garfield: "I have received your note with inclosed notice of pension granted me, for my husband's sake. I am truly mindful of the generous kindness shown the family of Gen. Garfield, not only by friends, but by the national legislature, and may I ask that you make acknowledgment of this in whatever way and by whatever expression of my gratitude seems to you appropriate." Whitefish Lake, an Indian chief in the British possessions, was promised by Gov. Morris a reserve so large that the authorities have resolved not to grant it. The brave is at the head of the strongest band in the Northwest, and declares that he will prevent a survey being made.

FOREIGN.

A St. PETERSBURG dispatch says the Senate as a Court of Appeal has decided the decree banishing the Jewish apothecaries illegal. The false prophet who appeared in Soudan has been killed and his followers dispersed.

THE Irish Republican Brotherhood have issued a proclamation in Dublin justifying the Cavendish-Burke murder on the ground that "the monster Burke had preyed upon the lives and liberties of his countrymen for many years," and that Lord Cavendish was one of a family who, as landlords, had been guilty of wholesale evictions. Parnell is accused of injuring the cause of Irish freedom. The situation in Egypt is again of a threatening character, and the active intervention of England and France, very likely backed by an army, will be at once necessary. The antagonism long existing between the Khedive on the one side and the Ministry and the Chamber of Notables on the other, has developed into an open rupture of relations and a defiance of the Khedive's authority by the Ministry. At the funeral of the late Lord Cavendish, at Chatsworth, 5,000 tenants of the Duke of Devonshire, father of the deceased, were present in a body, and the attendance was estimated at 30,000. Among the chief mourners were the Duke of Devonshire, the Marquis of Hartington, Lord Edward Cavendish, Mr. Gladstone and Lord Granville. The Emperor William of Germany is the great-grandfather, and Queen Victoria the great-grandmother, of a new Prince recently born to the son of the Crown Prince Frederick William. Michael Davitt sends a telegram to friends in New York, stating that he has private information that he is to be sacrificed to satisfy the vengeance of Irish landlordism. The Spanish Government is discussing the propriety of conceding oral and public procedure in law courts, a step preliminary to the institution of trial by jury. It is understood Parnell has applied for and received protection, owing to rumors current and to threatening letters he has received to the effect that he is a marked man. A terrible coal-mine explosion is reported from Bochum, in Westphalia, Prussia, with great loss of life.

A CABLE dispatch from London says that "disappointment is generally expressed at the failure of the police to discover anything important concerning the identity of the assassins, and the feeling is growing that they have escaped. Many arrests have been made, but no clew has been found. Parnell, O'Kelly and Davitt have gone to Paris to see Egan, Treasurer of the League. This gives color to the statement that a break is in progress between the Parnell and Rossa factions of the Irish sympathizers. Fears are entertained among the League members lest Parnell's and Davitt's conciliatory course should alienate the sympathy and cash of the Irish in America. They have gone to Paris to look over the situation with Egan. The rumor that Parnell sought the protection of the police is wholly unfounded. Mr. Barrett, a farmer in Bellinlet, County Mayo, was mortally shot by some unknown person. He had his land under a Land League warning.

THE New York World's London correspondent telegraphs as follows: "The alliance of the Liberals with the Parnellites, scarcely a fortnight old, has come to a sudden end. The tragedy in Phoenix Park has shown the Government that, although Mr. Parnell and other men regarded as 'leaders' may come to terms, they can only speak for themselves, and the movement for complete separation will go on unchecked. Last Saturday night Mr. Gladstone and the people of England saw for the first time that Mr. Parnell was not the supreme arbiter of events in Ireland, but that its ruler is the mysterious organization even more powerful than the Land League. Mr. Parnell has been obliged to invoke the protection of the police, or, at least, his friends have done so for him, against this enemy that is entirely beyond the reach of ministerial blandishments and cannot be nobbled like a 'patriot.' Its next heavy blow will probably be struck here in the heart of London, in order to inspire fresh terror in the Cabinet. The Premier long ago avowed the doctrine that violence would lead to concession, and the unknown leaders of the Irish National movement are determined to take him at his word." A Cairo dispatch says that Sultan Pasha informed Arabi Bey that if the army insists on deposing the Khedive the Bedouins will enter Cairo. The Khedive evidently has the Bedouins at his back, and seems to be master of the position. It is rumored that large bodies of Bedouins are gathered in Lower Egypt. That French scheme to flood the desert will probably be choked in the cradle, so to speak. President Grevy has appointed a commission consisting of forty-eight members to inquire into the matter. It is now believed that at least twelve men were associated in the murder of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke, and that in addition to the four who did the deed eight others were near by in readiness to rush to the rescue if their assistance should be needed. The Dublin car drivers, in mass meeting, pledged themselves to aid in discovering the assassins.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

The House Tariff Commission bill was passed by the Senate, on the 9th inst., by a vote of 35 to 19. The Committee on the District of Columbia was instructed to inquire into the management of the jail, it being alleged that a notorious prisoner holds daily levees. The bill to establish a Court of Appeals was discussed, without action. The Superintendent of the Census petitioned for a further appropriation of $80,000 to defray expenses. A batch of House bills were passed donating condemned cannon for monumental purposes. Mr. McMill introduced a bill for a wagon bridge between Council Bluffs and Omaha. The President nominated H. C. Miller, of Minnesota, Consul at Guayaquil; F. W. Oakley, Marshal for the Western district of Wisconsin, and P. R. Corbett, Marshal for Nevada. In the House of Representatives, on the bill to enlarge the powers of the Department of Agriculture, after half a dozen speeches, Mr. Townsend offered an amendment, which was adopted, that the Secretary of Agriculture shall be an experienced agriculturist. Mr. Dunnell offered an amendment providing for a division of forestry, which was adopted. A substitute for the original bill, offered by Mr. McKenna, was rejected. The previous question was ordered, and an adjournment was taken.

The bill for intermediate Appellate Courts was taken up in the Senate on the 10th inst. Mr. Jones, of Florida, opposed the section limiting the appellate jurisdiction of Circuit Courts. Mr. Davis urged its retention as necessary. A joint resolution was passed appropriating $50,000 to supply the deficiency for fuel and lights in buildings under the control of the Treasury Department. A bill was passed to establish an assay office at Deadwood, Dakota. The House, by a vote of 172 to 7, passed the bill creating an Executive Department of Agriculture. The conference report on the Indian Appropriation bill was agreed to. By a vote of 184 to 13, the District of Columbia Appropriation bill was passed. Some debate on the Geneva Award bill followed.

The United States Senate passed a bill on the 11th inst. for the relief of L. M. Day, of New Orleans, who purchased mortgaged land under the Confiscation act, when the Government officers represented that it was free from incumbrance. When the bill for intermediate Appellate Courts came up, Mr. Morgan said it had been hinted that the President would appoint a number of Democrats to the new Judgeships, and he expressed the opinion that such appointments deserved to be impeached. Mr. Davis proposed an amendment, which was adopted, that the jurisdiction of Circuit Courts shall remain unchanged. The Indian Appropriation bill, as reduced by the conference committee to $455,200, was passed. In the House, Mr. Sherwin reported a bill for the annual appropriation of $10,000,000 for the next five years, to aid in the support of free schools, the amount to be apportioned on the basis of illiteracy. Mr. Rice made an adverse report on the bill to shorten to two years the period required in homesteading. Mr. Steele reported favorably a bill for a retired list for non-commissioned officers who have served for thirty years. The Speaker presented a communication from the Secretary of War, stating the expenditures of the Signal Service Bureau for the past seven years.

The Intermediate Appellate Court bill was passed in the Senate, on the 12th inst., by a vote of 82 to 18. It creates nine intermediate courts, or one in each existing circuit, and eighteen new Circuit Judges, who are to be appointed by the President. The first term will begin in November of this year. A bill was also passed to authorize the St. Louis and San Francisco Railroad Company to bridge the Arkansas river at Van Buren. Reports of conference committees on the agricultural and fortification appropriations were adopted. The House passed a bill to provide for the removal of the remains of Minister Kilpatrick from Chili to the United States. The Geneva Award bill was passed by 132 to 66. Conference reports on the Agricultural and Fortification bills were agreed to. Mr. Crapo endeavored to call up the act to extend the charters of national banks, but the Democrats refused to vote.

The House of Representatives, at its session on the 13th inst., ordered the River and Harbor Appropriation bill printed and recommitted. Objection was made to calling up the bill to suspend the issue of silver certificates and limit the coinage of silver dollars. Mr. Crapo called up the act to extend the charters of the national banks, on which three speeches were made, when it went over. A joint resolution was introduced to make Lieut. Danenhower a Lieutenant Commander for his services in the Jeannette expedition. Mr. Davis, of Illinois, laid before the House a petition signed by more than 3,000 citizens of Chicago and vicinity, asking for legislation to prevent the adulteration of butter and cheese with foreign fats. The petition was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means. The Senate was not in session.

Favorable reports were made in the Senate, on the 15th inst., upon bills for public buildings at Louisville, Hannibal, Detroit, Council Bluffs and Jackson, Tenn., and an act was presented for a postoffice at LaCrosse. A bill was introduced to aid in the establishment of a school of forestry at St. Paul. Bills were passed to refund the taxes on incomes collected without authority from citizens of Tennessee and to bring home from Chili the remains of Minister Kilpatrick. Mr. Morrill offered a substitute for the House bill on bonded spirits, and Mr. Beck addressed the Senate in favor of the original measure. Mr. Windom announced his intention to proceed with the investigation into the purpose of the distillers in raising $600,000. The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: James A. McKee, of Texas, Marshal for the Northern district of Texas; H. L. Goslin, of Texas, Marshal for the Western district of Texas; J. C. Bigger, of Texas, Attorney for the Northern district of Texas; M. F. Williamson, of Tennessee, Marshal for the Western district of Tennessee; William A. Maury, of the District of Columbia, Assistant Attorney General of the United States; Robert R. Hays, of Kansas, Receiver of Public Money at Kirwin, Kas.; William M. Redpath, of Indiana, Agent for the Indians of the Yankton Agency, Dakota. Despite the efforts of Senators Hoar and Dawes, Mr. Worthington was confirmed as Collector of the Port of Boston by 38 to 14. Mr. Burrows' bill for the protection of Western farmers who purchase patented implements, etc., against claimants passed the House. Mr. Robinson offered a resolution of inquiry whether official papers respecting the imprisonment of American citizens in Great Britain had been received by the State Department, and what answer had been made. Mr. Lynch introduced a bill to reimburse depositors in the Freedman's Bank. A resolution was adopted directing the Secretary of War to inquire into the propriety of purchasing the house in which President Lincoln died. An attempt to pass a bill revising the militia laws was defeated by 61 to 138. Mr. Lynch introduced a bill in regard to the duties of supervisors of elections. The Commissioner of Pensions asked the House to make the deficiency appropriation of $16,000,000 available by May 25.

TARIFF COMMISSION.

Text of the Act Passed by Congress. Be it enacted, etc., That a commission is hereby created to be called the "Tariff Commission," to consist of nine members.

Sec. 2. That the President of the United States shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint nine Commissioners from civil life, one of whom, the first named, shall be President of the commission. The Commissioners shall receive as compensation for their services each at the rate of $10 a day when engaged in active duty, and actual traveling and other necessary expenses. The commission shall have power to employ a stenographer and a messenger, and the foregoing compensation and expenses shall be audited and paid by the Secretary of the Treasury out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sec. 3. That it shall be the duty of said commission to take into consideration and to thoroughly investigate all the various questions relating to the agricultural, commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, mining and industrial interests of the United States, so far as the same may be necessary to the establishment of a judicious tariff or a revision of the existing tariff upon a scale of justice to all interests; and for the purpose of fully examining the matters which may come before it, said commission, in the prosecution of its inquiries, is empowered to visit such different portions and sections of the country as it may deem advisable.

Sec. 4. That the commission shall make Congress a final report of the results of its investigations and the testimony taken in the course of the same not later than the first Monday of December, 1892, and it shall cause the testimony taken to be printed from time to time and distributed to members of Congress by the Public Printer, and shall also cause to be printed for the use of Congress 2,000 copies of its final report, together with the testimony.

It is said that Sitting Bull has become a thoroughbred loafer, being too lazy to do any hard work except eating. It breaks the back of the noble red man to keep him in out of the weather.

ADDITIONAL NEWS.

GLADSTONE introduced the Arrears bill in the House of Commons on the 15th inst. He explained that the bill was limited to tenancies up to $30, Griffith's valuation. The bill will be administered by the Land Commission, which will be assisted by the County Court Judge, before whom the tenant will be obliged to prove inability to pay the arrears. Either the landlord or the tenant may apply to the commission. The bill only deals with two years' arrears, and requires the tenant to pay one year's arrears from November, 1880, to November, 1881. When that is paid the whole remaining arrears will be canceled. The Government will contribute the remaining rent from the residue of the Irish church surplus fund, the estimated amount of which is £1,500,000. There is no reason to believe that the claims on the Government's contribution will exceed £2,000,000. The remaining £500,000, therefore, would be made up from the consolidated fund.

C. D. W. YOUNG, Auditor of the Chicago, St. Paul and Omaha railroad, and one of the newly-elected Directors of the Minneapolis and St. Louis railroad; Stewart Moore, chief clerk in the freight office of the Northern Pacific railroad, both of St. Paul, and C. C. Gosick, of Shakopee, Minn., went out for a sail on White Bear lake, in Minnesota. Their boat was capsized, and all three found a watery grave. A party of twelve residents of Pullman, near Chicago, went out on Calumet lake in a small yacht, which soon upset in a squall, and all on board were drowned. The accident was witnessed by several persons on shore, and three boats went out to rescue the drowning. Among those lost were Napoleon Bucklin, a sea Captain from Maine, and his two sons. The steamship Onoko left Chicago with a cargo of 100,000 bushels of corn, the largest ever carried by a vessel on the lake.

The Central Vermont road is running an express train between Boston and Montreal, 334 miles, in ten hours. Mitchell Lehmier, of Rochester, N. Y., has become noted for the destruction of illustrated police papers, nude figures, etc., wherever he found them. His latest freak was to walk into an art gallery and slash a $400 Venetian painting in which the breast of a female figure was exposed. He is now reflecting in jail, and may go to the insane asylum.

The northern section of Georgia experienced a heavy fall of snow on the 15th of May. A Fort Smith (Ark.) dispatch says that the total of the killed and wounded by the recent cyclone at McAllister, Indian Territory, foots up 120. Of these fifteen are already dead and others cannot recover. Many will be maimed for life.

SEVEN THOUSAND immigrants arrived at New York in one day. A Dallas (Texas) dispatch says that thirty carloads of wheat passed through there en route to New Orleans, to be transhipped to Liverpool. This is the first shipment on a contract for 5,000 tons, to be delivered at New Orleans. Two schooners were wrecked and their crews lost on the coast of Newfoundland.

A LARGE number of fraudulent United States certificates of deposit purporting to have been issued by the Assistant Treasurer at Santa Fe, New Mexico, have been discovered.

AFTER an angry debate, the Young Men's Democratic Club, of New York, tabled a resolution favoring the nomination of S. J. Tilden for Governor.

THE Porte telegraphed the Egyptian Ministry that the convocation of the Chamber of Notables without the sanction of the Khedive is contrary to the provisions of the constitution. The commandant of the citadel at Cairo and several of the officers have declared for the Khedive. The French and British squadrons will join at Crete, and the Turkish Admiralty is getting ready twelve ironclads and several transports. In the British House of Lords Granville announced that the policy of the Government is the maintenance of the sovereignty of the Sultan and liberty for the Christian population. The Captain's first officer and fifty-five of the crew of a Turkish transport ashore in the Bosphorus perished.

PROF. MEHAN has advanced the theory that the absence of trees upon the American prairies is due to annual fires, it being known that such fires were caused by the Indians during a long period. Herbaceous plants and annuals may increase their area yearly, while trees were never able to get beyond the line to which the annual fires extended.

MRS. GARFIELD and children will pass the summer at Mentor, receiving only intimate friends. She has made improvements in the old home.

SENATOR BEN HILL illustrates how that terrible disease, cancer, is inherited. He has already lost a brother, a sister and two aunts from the disease.

The highest price paid for a piece of land in the world is supposed to have been the $168,000 which J. H. Glover has just paid for a lot thirty by sixteen, with building thereon, at the southwest corner of Wall and Broad streets, New York.

LONGFELLOW'S ear was so keen and his memory of sounds so true that on his visit to France in 1869 he observed how not only the French language, but the manner of pronouncing it, had undergone a marked change since his former visit in 1829.

SENATOR BEN HILL is a much greater philosopher than statesman. Knowing that he cannot recover from the terrible disease that is afflicting him, he says: "I cannot complain. I have lived fifty-eight years, and I suppose no man ever lived fifty-eight happier years. It may be best that they be all."

MR. EMERSON is said to have left an estate valued at about $200,000. Much of this was accumulated and preserved through the thrift of his admirable wife. More than one visitor to Concord remembers a vision of the gentle lady busy among the clothes-lines of the philosopher's back yard on a Monday morning.

One of the anomalies of the present abnormal position of our foreign trade is the reshipment from Hamburg of a considerable quantity of American bacon, which had been lying some months awaiting examination by French Government Inspectors, on suspicion that it might be infected with trichiniasis. The bacon has now been resold in New York at a clear advance of 1 1/2 cents per pound compared with the price at which it was originally shipped.

AMONG all the English tributes to Emerson there is none finer than that contained in these words from Tyndall's recent address to the students of London University: "The works of two men, neither of them imbued with the spirit of modern science, have placed me here to-day. These men are the English Carlyle and the American Emerson. They told me what to do in a way that caused me to do it, and all my consequent intellectual action is to be traced to this purely moral source."

A NEWSPAPER correspondent, who sat by Lieut. De Long's side at the hotel table during the last few weeks of preparation for the Jeannette expedition, said one day to that ill-fated officer that the little family he was about to leave was worth more to his life than all the glory he could hope to gain. "Would you, then, let the bachelors have all the glory?" asked De Long, pleasantly; and his wife, who, with their little daughter, sat by his side, added: "I want him to go; I am as enthusiastic for him as he is."

THE theory that the fate of DeLong and his party will discourage other explorers and cool the enthusiasm of those inclined to adventure in the frozen seas, will not bear the test. The fate of Franklin and the suffering of scores of others did not deter DeLong, and the fate of DeLong will not deter others. As a matter of fact, there have been more satisfactory results from Arctic explorations of the last four or five years than for any preceding period. Nordenfjeld has opened up Siberian trade to Northern Europe, and some discoveries of practical benefit have been made off our own Alaskan coast.

HANNIBAL Journal: "R. W. Gay, a farmer living at Stone's Prairie, Adams county, Ill., came over to Hannibal with a load of corn. After disposing of the commodity he went to the Central Hotel for dinner. Soon after taking a seat at the table he was noticed to turn deathly pale, after which he bobbed up in the chair and yelled out 'Ouch!' together with other most expressive phrases. He then began to squirm in his seat, and his face underwent numerous contortions. The guests at the festive board grew alarmed, and had they not known him to be a man of temperate habits, would have supposed him to be attacked with a first-class case of

'jim-jams.' The matter was brought to a focus, however, by the man placing his hands at a point a short distance below the small of his back, and breaking like a quarter-horse to the hall. Here he quickly divested himself of his unmentionables, when out ran a mouse, more frightened than hurt. It seems that, while unloading the corn, the mouse had taken refuge in his pants, but his presence was not noticed until it had been uncomfortably squeezed by the farmer in taking a seat at the table."

THOMAS KONGMACHER, of Yardleyville, Pa., left a will directing that his body be drawn to the graveyard by the two young stallions that had, by running away, caused him injuries resulting in his death, and that a friend should follow the hearse on horseback carrying a banner "representing the four races in the faces of Henry W. Longfellow, of Boston, E. G. Brown, of Richmond, Spotted Dog, of the Cheyenne tribe, and Loo Choo, of California." He also ordered that, in lieu of any ordinary funeral service, a Government bond for $100 should be burned over his coffin. As the will has just been found, two years after his death, it is too late to carry out all of these provisions.

SOME years ago, remarks the Indianapolis Sentinel, a very foolish woman, the wife of the Bonanza King, Mackey—a name that smacks precious little of blue blood—concluded that the American continent was not big enough to hold her and her daughter, and therefore she set sail for Europe, located in Paris, built, hired or purchased a sort of palace, fitted it up with servants, got the title of "Bonanza Queen," hung out her shingle as the richest woman in the gay capital, gave big dinners, called around her all the aristocratic, titled snobs she could catch with that sort of bait, and was happy to see her name and glowing reports of her nauseating nonsense in Parisian cheap prints, which were from time to time reproduced in American journals. While the Bonanza Queen was slinging money away by thousands, the old Bonanza King remained in America to see that the "balance of trade" didn't get on the wrong side of his ledger and compel him to stop shipping gold to France. To make this whole disgusting business as distasteful and as repugnant as possible, the old "Bonanza Queen" has managed to make it appear that her daughter is in demand, and that all the broken-down heirs of the defunct dynasties of Europe are besieging her palace asking for the hand of the daughter in marriage—the last one of the suitors named being Prince Philippe de Bourbon, an obscure dead-beat of Spanish stock. It seems that the representative of a semi-royal bull-fighting family, being flat broke, had it published that he was affianced to the daughter of the Bonanza Queen, Mlle. Mackey; whereupon the Mackey mamma gets into a royal rage, and declares that Prince Philippe de Bourbon authorized the report and permitted it to be published to save himself from arrest on account of debts. It is now reported that the Bonanza Queen will have a post erected near the front gate, upon which notice will be given in all European languages that the Princess Clotilda Margueretta Antoinetta Peggi-etta Bridgejetitia Mackeyronia will have no dowry until her Bonanza parents are dead. But the average aristocratic titled dead-beat is not likely to heed the Queen's notice, and Mlle. Mackeyronia will continue to receive offers until she at last capitulates, and then the King and Queen will have to shell out. When an American woman goes to Europe to act the fool, she is not deserving of sympathy if her schemes do not pan out according to expectations.

Warning to Farmers.
Farmers should be careful about setting old straw stacks on fire. A New Jersey farmer burned a straw stack, and just as the flames were becoming torrid, six tramps crawled out of the stack, their hair singed, and smoke oozing out of their collars, and places where the clothing was torn. They upbraided the farmer for his carelessness, and threatened to sue him for damages. A straw stack was burned near Racine and human bones were found in the ashes. Somebody is short on tramps. The best way to do, before burning a straw stack, is to take a pitch-fork and, run it into the stack all around, and if no smothered profanity is heard, you can conclude the tramps have got into the barn or hog pen.—Peck's Sun.

In Norway, where fish are prepared with much ingenuity in many ways, they make flour of the flesh of the fish ground into powder. It is used instead of rice and potatoes, and the biscuits made from it are said to be extremely nutritious.

The desirability of connecting lighting conductors with gas and water mains has been recognized by the Saxon government which has issued instructions as to the best methods of making the connections.

BAD AXE Tribune: With one, if not two, railroads now secured to Bad Axe, and which will run trains through our village within three months, it can be no stretch of imagination to predict a treble population within the next fifteen months.

In Saginaw county, Samuel Shattuck, father of Willard Shattuck, member of the last Legislature, died suddenly of convulsions which were of a nature to cause suspicion of poisoning by strychnine, and an expert examination will be had. Mr. Shattuck was born in Canada in 1813, and had lived in Saginaw county forty years.

HURON COUNTY News: It is with great satisfaction we are able to state that the fruit on the shores of Lake Huron and Saginaw bay was not injured by the freeze. It looks as though an abundant crop of peaches, plums, apples, grapes, etc., this year in these parts would demonstrate that here is the real "fruit belt" of Michigan.

THERE was a wholesale runaway on Water street, Bay City, there being nine frightened teams on the go at the same time. Buggies were broken and smashed, horses cut and wounded, and one man received injuries which may result in his death. His skull was fractured by being struck by some part of a runaway rig. Another man was thrown through a window, but was not injured.

SHELBY Independent: The State Fish Hatchery is now located at Paris, Mecosta county. Supt. Sprigg went on Thursday to Paris, to get a supply of salmon to plant in various streams in the county.

THE first annual convention of the Michigan Inter-Collegiate Society Association was held at Albion, Calhoun county. Six societies were represented, each from different colleges. Pierce, Hillsdale; Treasurer, E. B. Rood, Adrian.

SERGEANT FINLEY has been engaged in investigating the recent tornado, for the signal service. He reports, among the curiosities of the storm, that in one place the funnel of wind passed between an elm and a hickory, forty-four feet apart, without breaking a twig from either, while an oak in the center between them, two and a half feet thick, was broken off at the roots. In another place the track of destruction was only twelve feet wide.

A DETROIT druggist named Granger and his wife indulged in a little family quarrel. The husband, becoming enraged, seized the wife and threw her out of a second-story window. The latter clung to him with such tenacity that Granger lost his balance and they fell together. Both were badly bruised.

MARY MILLER, a 14-year-old adopted daughter of Robert Irving, living near Tekonsha, Calhoun county, met with death from a singular cause. One day, nearly a week previous, she was engaged in a playful wrestle with a girl companion, and she fell, her comrade falling upon her in such a manner as to cause internal injuries, resulting in inflammation and death. Mortification had commenced, necessitating immediate burial.

THE gross number of farms in Michigan in 1870 and 1880, classified according to acreage, was as follows:

	Under 3	3 to 10	10 to 20	25 to 50	50 to 100	100 to 500	500 to 1,000	Over 1,000
1870.....	134	6,763	13,170	33,795	65	2,737	4,514	45,029
1880.....	134	6,763	13,170	33,795	65	2,737	4,514	45,029

From the foregoing it will be seen there has been a very large decrease in all farms under 20 acres, and a very great increase in farms over 20 acres, the greatest increase having been in the classes between 50 and 500 acres.

DETROIT Post and Tribune: Several of our State exchanges complain that the big red cards which the State of Michigan gives to saloon-keepers for their $300 license, and requires them to post conspicuously in their bar-rooms, are fearful ugly and a discredit to the State of Michigan. These complaining journals do not seem to catch on to the idea of these cards—they are designed to promote the cause of temperance by making the unwary drinker, as he raises his glass and catches a glimpse of the card, imagine that he has suddenly been seized with a fit of jim-jams and had better swear off before everything gets to looking like that.

THE Northern Mail has been removed from Inian Lake, Oscoda county, to Mio, the new county seat. The editor in announcing the removal says: "Upon changing its location, the Mail takes this occasion to thank most sincerely the people in the immediate vicinity of its former home for the many acts of neighborly kindness toward the paper and its publisher, and hopes that, while the change will be for the ultimate good of all concerned, the mutual interchange of neighborly courtesy will not be broken. It has been hoped that Indian Lake—better known as Union Corners—would build up into a considerable village, but natural causes are against it, and therefore it is not out of any ill-will that a number of branches of business, including the only general store, and two-thirds of its population, are leaving it, as only while it was the temporary county seat had they any reason for staying."

THE TUBERCULAR PARASITE.

The Remarkable Discovery of a German Physician.

[From the Chicago Tribune.]

That monster, consumption, which the poets have described as horsed on the east winds and shooting his fatal arrows broadcast, it would now seem has at last been brought to bay by science. The great discovery of the splenic fever-producing bacilli by the eminent French physician, Pasteur, and his cure by inoculation, which produces a mild disease instead of a severe one, has been followed by a discovery that promises to be more important in its results by Dr. Koch, of Berlin. Dr. Pasteur is saving the lives of sheep and cattle by inoculation with the bacillus after it has been modified in its character by cultivation in the bodies of bovines. Dr. Koch may yet save the lives of human beings from the results of diseases hitherto considered incurable by a very similar process.

Prof. Tyndall, who has carefully studied Dr. Koch's experiments, and who, it will be remembered, was the original discoverer of the bacteria and their insidious danger to man, has written to the London Times his impressions of Koch's discovery. In the course of his examinations he found in every case that the tubercles contained a parasite, the bacillus, and that it was this minute organism that produced the tubercle, and, transferring by inoculation the tuberculous matter from diseased to healthy animals, he never failed to produce the disease. He developed several generations of the bacilli without the intervention of disease, and these purified parasites in every case also generated the disease.

These experiments were so many times repeated with different animals and in different forms that there can remain no doubt that Dr. Koch has discovered what has never been known before—the origin of consumption and of other diseases like pneumonia and phthisis. This is a great step gained. The cause discovered, it now remains for science to find the remedy that will destroy these parasites and prevent their recurrence by inoculation or some other form of cure. Pasteur's remedy, in cases of splenic fever, as we have already said, is inoculation with the bacillus after it has been modified in character by cultivation. Dr. Koch has attempted a similar modification with the tubercle parasite, but after repeated cultivation the virulence remains. Prof. Tyndall and those competent to pronounce an opinion, however, believe that the intensity of virulence will be greatly diminished by future experiments in cultivation.

Meanwhile it is not a secret in the medical world, or at least among some of the more eminent physicians, that Dr. Pasteur himself has made experiments of a highly interesting character in the destruction of these parasites. It is well known to all surgeons that carbolic acid is very efficacious in destroying bacteria in gunshot wounds, sword-cuts or other injuries of this kind, and that the proper use of its agency has been hindered by its impurity. Dr. Pasteur found it upon analysis to contain traces of poison and foreign substances that were harmful enough to prevent its perfect operation, and succeeded in removing them and producing a perfectly pure acid, with which he has been experimenting by hypodermic injections with remarkable success in cases of consumption and its kindred diseases, as well as cancer. Where the diseases were long-seated and the patient too weak and too far gone to resist the disease, he has prolonged life, and in the incipient stages he has cured in almost every case.

Consumption is the ghastliest and most deadly foe that confronts the human race. It is almost universal. It is no respecter of persons or of nations. Dr. Koch himself says that "if the seriousness of a malady be measured by the number of victims, then the most dreaded pests which have hitherto ravaged the world—plague and cholera, included—must stand far behind the one (consumption) now under consideration; and that one-seventh of the deaths of the human race are due to tubercular disease, while fully one-third of those who die in active middle age are carried off by the same cause. Important as Dr. Koch's discovery is, the greater one remains—namely, the remedy. Having gained one vantage in the combat with the destroyer, it is to be hoped science will press on until the victory is complete.

FRIGHTFUL TORNADO.

A Town Swept Away—Twenty-One People are Killed and Over Forty Wounded.

A dispatch from Denison, Texas, says: "A terrific cyclone struck the town of McAllister, in the Indian Territory. From the meager information thus far received it seems to have destroyed the entire place, killing and wounding many people." A later dispatch from Dallas, Texas, gives additional particulars of the cyclone: "News from the McAllister cyclone says the deaths added to those killed outright increase the fatalities to twenty-one up to to-night. Forty-two more are wounded, but it is not thought fatally. Half the killed and wounded are women and children. All possible aid from physicians, nurses, etc., is being rendered the sufferers. Fifty-nine houses were totally demolished and twenty-seven partially. Settlements Nos. 5 and 7 of the Osage Mining Company were the ones visited. They had contained about 400 people. No. 5 was entirely wiped out. No. 7 received only the partial force of the storm. The mines were only slightly damaged, and will be worked again next week. Relief subscriptions are being taken up at various points. A mass-meeting to-night at Denison realized several hundred dollars.

"At Paris, Texas, great damage was done to property. Joseph Hill, a farmer, was killed by lightning. Your correspondent was given the following description to-night by a survivor of the McAllister storm: Two horribly black-looking clouds, one from the southeast and one from the southwest, came with a rush and met at camp No. 5. An appalling elemental carnival ensued there.

"The two clouds appeared to rend and to tear each other like wild beasts. A continuous flash of blinding sheet lightning made the scene brighter than day for over an hour. Above the wild roar of the wind could occasionally be heard the shrieks of dying men, women and children, and when the storm subsided no aid was at hand, and none nearer than three miles away from the railroad station. All was in a state of chaos, and no help could be got until next morning.

"The fall of rain was terrific, and it was accompanied by a great quantity of hail-stones, which fell as far north as Fort Gibson, a washout occurred on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, near Armstrong, in the Territory. A locomotive went down the embankment and the engineer was killed. Travel is generally suspended on most of the Texas roads, caused by the fury of the storm."

A CITIZEN went into a Norwich hardware store the other day, and inquired: "How much do you ask for a bath-tub for a child?" "Three dollars and seventy-five cents," was the reply. "W-h-e-v!" whistled the customer. "Guess we'll have to keep on washing the baby in the coal scuttle till prices come down."

THE hides of all the cats in America would be worth $10,000,000 to commerce. And it's a fearful shame to have so much property lying idle.

FARMERS compose one-third of the entire population of the United States.

A Show with Twenty-two Trained Elephants.

Adam Forepaugh's Great Zoological Collection which appears at Holland, June 7, contains among its ark-full of rare animals twenty-two performing elephants. Of this feature, and the show, the Detroit News remarks: "The twenty-two elephants was another feature in the evening's entertainment which everybody present will long remember. It is impossible to conceive the perfect docility and training of these intelligent animals. They actually seemed to understand the meaning of every gesture of their masters, and maneuvered with wonderful precision and steadiness. Everything went off to the satisfaction of all present. The menagerie is the best we have ever seen, comprising a very complete and varied zoological collection; and we would advise any of our readers who have not been able to be present last night, to be sure to attend this afternoon or this evening, as this is certainly one of the few opportunities they will perhaps have for a long time to come of enjoying something really instructive, amusing, and, we may add, amazing."

On reading and filing the petition of Evert Van Kampen, showing that he is the owner of the West half of the South West quarter of Section numbered sixteen, Town five North, Range fifteen West, Ottawa County, State of Michigan, and that said land is part-paid State land; and also that the certificate issued by the Commissioner of the State Land Office, being certificate number 6640, and issued to Jan Keppel for said land has been lost without the fault or connivance, either directly or indirectly of said petitioner Jan Keppel, or any one interested in said land, and praying that this Court may direct the manner of proceeding to supply the loss of said certificate, and the notices which shall be given to the parties interested in the application, and to the Commissioner of the State Land Office. Therefore it is ordered that said petitioner appear before the Circuit Court, at the city of Grand Haven, in Ottawa County, on Friday, the 18th day of August, A. D. 1882, at one o'clock in the afternoon of said day, with his witnesses to give evidence as to the matters set forth in said petition, and that the testimony of said petitioner and of such witnesses as may be produced by him, at said time be taken as to the facts in regard to the loss of said certificate, and who is the owner of said land, and entitled to a new certificate thereof. And that notice of such hearing be given to Tannis Keppel and Hendrik Meengs, both of the city of Holland, in said county, by serving on said Keppel and Meengs a copy of this order, at least ten days before said hearing. And that notice be given to Herbert Keppel and Gerrit Keppel, of Briggs Station, Butte county, California; to Frank Keppel, Cornelis Keppel, and Neeltje Meeloon, of Keokuk, Lee county, Iowa; to Elizabeth Harmsen, and John Harmsen, heirs of Bastiaanse Harmsen deceased, of Pella, Marion county, Iowa, and to Delea Steenenberg, William Steenenberg, John Steenenberg, Hulbert Steenenberg, Charlie Steenenberg, Lizzie Steenenberg, George Steenenberg, Josie Steenenberg, and Gracie Steenenberg, heirs of Cornelia Steenenberg, deceased, of Keokuk, Lee county, Iowa, by causing a notice of this order to be published, within forty days from the date hereof, in the HOLLAND CITY NEWS, a newspaper printed, published, and circulating in said county of Ottawa, and that such publication be continued therein at least once in each week, for six weeks in succession; and that notice of said hearing be served on the Commissioner of the State Land Office, by mailing to said commissioner a copy of this order, enclosed in an envelope, securely sealed, and with the full legal postage prepaid thereon, and addressed to the Commissioner of the State Land Office, Lansing, Michigan, at least ten days previous to the said day of hearing.

JOTTINGS.

4 is coming.

LAST Monday and Tuesday night Jack Frost made us a visit.

Miss H. Stevenson, of Ypsilanti, Mich., is visiting the family of Mr. J. C. Post.

LAST Thursday night a boy baby appeared at the residence of Mr. A. Vischer.

THE advance agent of the "Lee and Rix combination" has not arrived yet. Are we to have another change of date?

THE members of the "A" class of the Preparatory Department of Hope College, visited Grand Rapids last Monday.

THE hardware firm of R. Kanters & Sons, are constantly receiving and adding to their already large stock of merchandise all the latest and best novelties in their line of trade.

THE new "buss," which the enterprising proprietors of the City Hotel have been expecting for so long a time, arrived last Tuesday. It is a "daisy," and reflects great credit on the Williams Bros.

THE parties having in hand the building of the large flouring mill, to be erected in this City, are busy making the various contracts for stone, brick, machinery, etc. The site, we are informed, has not yet been definitely located.

MR. G. H. Souter, the Highway Commissioner of Holland township, advertises in another column of this paper for bids on the job of repairing the road between this city and Macatawa Park. It is intended to fix this road permanently.

DR. R. A. Schouten is building an addition to his house on the corner of Fish and Ninth streets. The building is probably the result of the success of Dr. Schouten's Family Remedies, which are to be found in almost every family in this part of the country.

NEXT week Friday, May 26, the "Acme Humpty Dumpty and Comedy Company" are booked for Lyceum Hall. This will be the first "Humpty Dumpty" Co., ever visiting this city, and if as good as represented, it will furnish plenty of amusement in pantomime for all.

THURSDAY morning last another runaway was added to the already long list of such casualties happening at the railroad track on Eighth street. We are in hopes that the farmers will soon take advantage of the Fish street improvement, thus decreasing the possibility of such accidents.

FOREPAUGH intends to visit this city June 7th; Muskegon, June 6th; and Allegan, June 8th. Grand Haven gets the "go by." Forepaugh evidently intends to visit only the large towns this year, and has very wisely put Holland down as one of the leading cities on the east shore of Lake Michigan.

THROUGH the kindness of Supervisor Schaddelee we are enabled to give our readers the following figures, taken from his tax roll and official papers: The approximate value of the Real Estate of the City of Holland is, $485,000; Personal property, $295,000. The number of births in the City during the year 1881 were 93; the number of deaths, 41.

ON Tuesday the 16th inst., the new steamer, Henry F. Brouwer, made her first appearance in our harbor, and her arrival excited considerable interest among the citizens of Holland. She was built and fitted up at Grand Haven and Ferrysburg, and is owned and managed by Messrs. Brower & Doesburg, of this city. Her dimensions are as follows: length on deck, 68 feet; breadth of beam, 15 feet; draft of water, 5 feet, and is intended to accommodate 125 passengers. Her engine is a fine one, 16x16 inches, and her boiler, made most securely of 3/8 inch iron doubly riveted, and safe with 100 lbs. of steam. The boat with its appurtenances seems to be first-class; and being designed for transportation to and from Macatawa Park is specially adapted to that purpose. On the afternoon of Wednesday, Messrs. Brower & Doesburg invited the members of the Macatawa Park Association and others of our citizens to take a trip to "the mouth" and back, in order to test the qualities of their steamer. The excursion was not only very pleasant, but highly satisfactory; and it was found that the distance of six miles could easily be made in less than half an hour, and that the boat was one in every way to be commended. On the return trip, a meeting of all present, was held and the following resolution unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we hereby tender to Messrs. Brower & Doesburg our thanks for a pleasant ride upon their steam yacht, from Holland to Lake Michigan and return. And that from such ride and a careful examination of the new boat, we express our opinion: That the steam yacht Henry F. Brower is a staunch and beautiful boat, of which our citizens may well feel proud. That she is well and strongly built, with ample accommodations for the comfort and safety of passengers; and the thanks and patronage of the entire community are due to Messrs. Brower & Doesburg for bringing to our Bay such an excellent boat.

Mrs. I. Marsilje, of this City, is visiting friends and relatives in Milwaukee, Wis.

MR. L. T. Kanters and wife arrived home from Texas, last Saturday afternoon.

MR. Jacob Cappon, son of ex-Mayor Cappon, is seriously ill with typhoid pneumonia.

NEXT week Saturday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, a meeting of the Farmers' and Fruit-grower's Association will be held at the law office of A. Visschers, Esq.

WE understand that a "Young Men's Christian Association" (?) has been formed in the First Ward. Their rooms are somewhere near the Chicago & West Mich. depot.

LIST of letters remaining in the post-office at Holland, Mich., May 18th, 1882: Miss Mary M. Aussicker, 2, John Cornell, L. Chandler, C. H. Hall, Emma Poyslen, Henry Strong, Miss Theresa Thompson, Mrs. A. D. Wood, Geo. W. Yates, WM. VERBEEK, P. M.

THE Board of Review, of the City of Holland, was in session this week, in accordance with the provisions of the city charter. Supervisor Schaddelee's tax roll was approved, with remarkably few corrections; and, in accordance with the new tax law, assessments are made at a full cash valuation.

MANY fruit growers in this locality, are yet hopeful as to the peach crop. Even the last severe frost has left sufficient peaches already formed to warrant the expectation of an average yield. By a special communication from a fruit grower at Lowell, Mich., we learn that peach buds at that place are nearly all destroyed and the crop will be very light.

MEMBERS of the First Reformed Church of this city, met in the rooms of Columbia Fire Engine Co., No. 2, last Tuesday evening, for the purpose of taking steps toward calling a minister, and agreed on the following "trio": Rev. Jacob Van der Meulen, of Muskegon; Rev. P. De Bruyn, of Rochester, N. Y.; and the Rev. E. C. Oggel, of Chicago, Ill. A meeting will be held next Monday evening, for the purpose of selecting one of the "trio" to whom the call will be extended.

WE learn that the Macatawa Park Association are building a dock at the mouth of the Bay, 36 by 72 feet in size; and that a force of men will begin work at once putting up cottages and boat and bath houses. A building, which will serve as a temporary hotel, will also be erected. The Chicago & West Mich. Railway Co., have made very liberal arrangements with the association for bringing excursionists here at reduced rates. Letters are being received from all parts of the Country from persons who propose visiting the Bay this season. Everything indicates that thousands of visitors will come here during this summer.

RELIGIOUS services for to-morrow: Hope Church—Rev. D. Van Pelt, Pastor. Morning, "The Anointed One." Evening: Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, of Rariton, Ill., will occupy the pulpit. Subject: "Crucifying Christ Afresh." After next Sabbath, services will commence in the evening at 8 o'clock.

First Ref. Church—Services at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Third Ref. Church—Rev. D. Broek, Pastor; services at 9:30, a. m. and 2 p. m. In the afternoon the services will be conducted by Rev. D. Van Pelt.

College Chapel—Services 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. In the morning the services will be conducted by Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, of Rariton, Ill.; in the afternoon by Rev. D. Broek. Sunday school 3:30.

Methodist Episcopal Church—Rev. M. D. Terwilliger, Pastor. Third Quarterly Meeting at M. E. Church. Lovefeast at 9:30. Preaching at 10:30 a. m., after which the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Subject for evening, "Sacred Song."

ZEELAND ITEMS.

Miss Lizzie Oggel, has returned to her home at Grand Haven.

Mrs. Robert De Bruin is visiting relatives and friends in Grand Rapids.

Rev. H. E. Nies and his two children, of Patterson, N. J., are visiting the family of Mr. G. Brusse.

MR. Cornelis Roozenraad, of the firm of Chris. Roozenraad & Bro., furniture dealers, was married to Miss Annie Schipper on Wednesday last, by Justice Den Herder.

LAST Saturday Arnold Barendse, a 12 year-old boy, fell from a wagon load of fruit and broke his arm at the wrist. Dr. Huizinga was called and set the fracture.

AT a meeting of the Fire Department, John D. Everhard and L. P. Van der Velde were elected as Chief and Assistant Engineers for the ensuing year. Their names will be sent to the village board for confirmation.

If you want a good dish of Ice Cream or a glass of Soda Water, go to the City Bakery.

MR. G. Rankans, our enterprising dealer in musical instruments, sold four organs this week in two days.

MR. W. H. Porter, of this city, caught last Monday two large muskellonges, one weighing 25 1/2 and the other 15 1/2 pounds.

THE new Chicago and West Michigan Railway time card seems to "hang fire." We have not seen any definite figure yet.

THE Chicago and West Michigan Railway Company are building two fine new coaches and two sixty foot baggage cars, at the Muskegon car shops.

MR. John Stoner, of this city, engineer on the Chicago & West Mich. Railway, while fishing in Macatawa Bay last Wednesday afternoon, had the good fortune to catch a muskallonge whose weight was 41 3/4 pounds. This speaks well for our "fishing grounds," and judging from the number of large fish caught this spring we shall have an unusually good fishing season.

NEXT Monday evening our citizens may expect a treat in the concert which is to be given by Bennie Gee's Juvenile Band, of this city. The entertainment will consist of Selections, Overtures, Quartettes, Duets, etc., and as the boys have been indefatigable in their endeavors to make this a success they deserve the commendation and patronage of the people of this city. Among the interesting features of the concert, will be the solos, on the B flat cornet, by a little girl of seven years of age, and one on the E flat bass by a girl of eleven. There will be no street parade as the Band desires to appear in their new uniforms, for the first time, in Lyceum Hall.

FROM a crop report received from the office of the Secretary of State, dated May 1, 1882, we gather the following facts relative to the crops in this State: Wheat was injured in all parts of the State by the cold, dry weather during the month of April. That on clay soil suffered severely. The acreage winter-killed in the southern four tiers of counties, and also in the entire State, is ten per cent of the acreage sowed. The condition of wheat not winter-killed is estimated to be 42 per cent better in the southern four tiers of counties, and 33 per cent better in the entire State, than on the first of May, 1881. The condition of clover on the first day of May was not as promising as on the first of April. Thirty-eight per cent, or nearly two-fifths of the acreage in the southern four tiers of counties, and 32 per cent, or nearly two-thirds of the total acreage in the State, is reported winter-killed. The condition of clover not winter-killed is, in the southern four tiers, 12 per cent, and in the State 9 per cent, below the condition May 1, 1881. The outlook for apples and peaches is favorable; but many express fear that the severe frost on May first had injured, and, in some localities, possibly ruined, peaches. The average for Ottawa county compared with that of last year, (May 1) is as follows: Clover, not winter-killed, 103; Apples, 122—prospects for an average crop; Peaches, 111—prospects for an average crop. Nine per cent of the acreage of wheat sown has been winter-killed.

GRAND HAVEN ITEMS.

THE "city fathers" having sold the steam or, Geo. Parks, to the Cutler & Savidge Lumber Co., have had the Rix Robinson thoroughly repaired and have placed it in the Engine house, ready for immediate service.

THE steam barge Colburn, Capt. Brittan, of Saugatuck, completed her carpenter work and machinery here last week. She is a model craft, extra fastened, and will be put in the lumber trade between Saugatuck and Chicago.

LAWYER Cook, of Muskegon, was here last Saturday making speeches and soliciting aid for the Muskegon strikers, but although it was directly after pay day, the money did not come in very fast and all he realized was about $50.00.

ON Monday evening a large number of Masons attended the Masonic Reception at Spring Lake, and returned during the small hours of the night, expressing themselves highly gratified with the reception given them by their Spring Lake brethren.

A special train of 8 coaches, arrived on Wednesday morning from Detroit, with a large party, mostly Canadians, bound for Manitoba. The "City of Milwaukee" was detained here, waiting for them, to take the party through to Milwaukee, whence they will proceed by rail to Winnipeg. The majority seemed to be farmers in good circumstances and rather intelligent, and were going there to make homes for themselves and families.

THE Barker, the new yacht built last winter at Kirby's yard for Chicago parties, made her trial trip on Sunday last, and proved to be very fast. The run from Fruitport to the foot of Washington Street was made in 33 minutes, with a low pressure of steam. She is expected to make 16 miles an hour easily, as soon as the machinery gets worked in a little. She is commanded by Capt. Napier, a son of the late Capt. Napier of the Alpena.

"THEY ARE AWAY."

He never spoke of them, as of the dead
In a soft whispered way,
That pleasantly would tell that Willie
Or Mary was "away."

Just "away," and one would fancy,
Who heard his quiet tone,
That possibly the children that he named
Were at some neighbor's home.

And so they were; the little blue-eyed Mary
That climbed upon his knee,
Had long since journeyed to the heavenly land
Beyond the crystal sea.

And Willie, too, the merry bright young lad
Coming to greet him with a cry
Of cheerful welcome, grew silent, fell asleep,
Murmuring a last good-bye.

And still they are not dead, just "away"
From the old man's sight—
Out of his tender care, God's own love,
Within His palace bright.

Away for a little time till he should go
When his day's work was o'er,
To join them there, his little boy and girl,
To be "away" no more.

"DESTINY."

BY HELEN T. CLARKE.

On a stormy March day a fresh-faced young girl was (I was tempted to say "manfully") "womanfully" making her way along the main street of a New England factory village. A bright, daring face was here—one that said, as plainly as brown eyes, red lips and piquant features could say: "Here I am. Let Fate send her worse. I shall fight the good fight." The very curls on her temples, blowing this way and that, under her simple straw turban, looked fearless, almost saucy, yet without any suggestion of that hideous, straight hanging, modern crank of fashion termed "bang." She wore a neat water-proof suit, sensible in length, and pepper-and-salt of hue, though a shrewd physiognomist might have been willing to wager that somewhere among her feminine adornings would be found a vivid dash of scarlet. She carried her cotton umbrella without endangering people's eyes, and appeared altogether business-like and self-sustained. A passing stranger, glancing at her eager face and quick gait, would think, "that girl is in dead earnest."

She looked occasionally at the pictures, vases and other pretty trifles in the shop windows, but without a twinge of envy in her healthful soul. She was wont to say that she could enjoy them four times a day (except when she carried her dinner) without the trouble of taking care of them. In short, she seemed fully equipped for "possessing" in the very best sense. She did stop, however, before a confectioner's window where some tempting oranges were displayed, counting the contents of a shabby little purse, then snapped the steel clasp with a determined shake of the head. "Nettie Randall, you're a selfish coward," was her mental comment as she walked resolutely on.

Turning into a quieter street, yet not too far from the business part of the village, she entered a small framehouse by the door of which was tacked a modest tin sign lettered, "Ladies' Trimming Store. F. & A. Randall." In the front windows hung a few ribbons, cheap laces, Hamburg edgings, etc.—a most unpretending establishment. As Nettie closed the door upon her dripping umbrella and the general discomfort of storm and fast thickening darkness outside a cheery warmth and light greeted her, and another fresh-faced brown-eyed girl, a year or two younger, looked up with a bright smile from her seat behind the counter, where she was swiftly and dexterously drawing the bristles through those indispensable aids to civilization—soot brushes.

"How's Destiny?" asked Nettie, in a matter-of-course way, as she hung up her outer waterproof and pushed her overshoes under the stove to dry.

(In explanation, let it be here stated that these two were once singing that beautiful poem which begins:

Though the day of my destiny's over
And the star of my faith had declined;
A tiny, lisping cousin caught the melody,
And piped out: "Though the day of my destiny's 'clined," "Destiny's
'clined" became thereafter a most appropriate expression, when the "best-laid schemes" seemed obstinately bent on "ganging agley.")

The answer to Nettie's question came promptly:

"Awful! just 15 cents in the cash-drawer! I haven't sold anything to-day but a paper of needles and a yard of elastic."

"That means oatmeal for supper again, I suppose," said Nettie. "I hate it," she added savagely, her good humor cooking away at the uninviting prospect. She had been working all day for "out-down" wages in a woolen factory, and was wet, tired and most unsentimentally hungry.

"That's because you haven't got far enough in 'Epictetus,'" said her sister serenely.

Nettie glanced around at the hanging shelf of carefully selected volumes, ancient and modern, gathered for these two in years past by a studious father's loving hand and judicious brain.

"We can't eat Greek philosophy. If we had the original manuscripts, we might make papyrus soup. I'll tell you what it is, Flo," she continued decidedly, as she put up her feet to warm, "something must happen pretty soon, my pay won't amount to much this month, and the next installment to Mr. Stone falls due on the 17th, you know. Beside, the coal is nearly gone."

"Oh dear! Those payments to Mr. Stone! What do you suppose ever became of that money, Nettie?"

"We have asked ourselves that question for the last two years, Flo, and we don't come any nearer to the solution of the riddle—whatever we accomplish toward the solution of the debt."

"Is it a debt, I wonder," said Flo—"a legal one, I mean? I know it is a moral one, and I shall not give up trying to pay it, as long as I can fill a brush or mop a kitchen-floor if it comes to that.

Our literary ventures don't amount to anything. I should rather write stories and paint pictures than make brushes, I'm sure, and you would rather give dramatic readings than be tied down to a factory bell—but we are evidently not headed for the temple of fame, and may as well give up."

"Fame!" rejoined Nettie, "who cares for the empty bubble? It's the money we want. I wish we had back all we have spent in postage stamps on the miserable scribbles."

"I suppose it's true (as some editors tell us, in their polite little notes) that writers seldom accomplish anything of real literary merit till they are at least 30. We don't belong to the fortunate group of phenomenal geniuses," and Flo twitched away her finished brush from the vise, with a quick, practiced movement, and began to spread the table for their simple supper, in the back part of the store. In cold weather they lived in this room as much as possible, to save fuel.

Nettie toasted her feet luxuriously, and looked rather admiringly at her pretty hands lying idly in her lap. Her work at the factory was by no means detrimental to their shapeliness.

"If Mr. Stone had only been at home the night father brought the money for him from Ashfield, it would have been all right. Or if father hadn't had the 'stroke' before morning." Her lips quivered, and her eyes filled, at the memory.

"Nettie," said Flo solemnly, as she cut the rye loaf, "we are sure that Mr. Sackett is an honest man, and he never would have said that he sent the money if it hadn't been true."

"Why do you emphasize Mr. Sackett so strongly? Don't you suppose Mr. Stone is honest, too?"

"I don't know anything about it," said Flo. "People can't always help their suspicions. Perhaps he was at home that night."

Nettie laughed incredulously.

"Nonsense! Don't you suppose that people would have found him out before this if he was a rascal? I don't think myself he's very amiable. Father very likely put the money in such a safe place till morning that nobody will ever find it, unless the old homestead should be pulled down or struck by lightning, and then it will probably be discovered in some mysterious cranny of the floor or walls. Secrets come to light in strange ways, sometimes."

"I know one thing," said Flo resolutely, "you and I are going to pay back that money, Nettie (or the remainder, seeing that Mr. Stone took the very house from over our heads), if we have to live on dry bread and oatmeal for twenty years."

(Ah, how easy is prospective heroism at 16!)

"We shall be almost old women at that time, and cross and ugly, as like as not," said Nettie, taking a discontented bite from her butterless bread. Despite her buoyant demeanor on the street, she was more subject to ups and downs than Flo.

"We needn't be cross and ugly," answered Flo, carefully measuring out her share of milk from the tiny piteer. "I hope the lamp won't smoke again to-night. How nice it would be to have a new burner!"

A short, bobbing figure, in an immense rubber cloak, with an umbrella in one hand, and a yellow quilt bowl in the other, pressed a beaming face against the glass upper half of the door.

"Miss Mellavine!" said Flo, joyfully, and sprang up to admit her.

Their next-door neighbor, Miss Mary Lavinia Murray (who had given herself the name of "Mellavine" when a little child), was what Flo and Nettie called a "walking sunshine factory." Many a time had her kindly deeds helped to tide them over a threatened collapse in the commissary department, and her gifts were as delicately bestowed as they were timely. A simple, unlearned woman, with a heart of gold.

"You dear things! I do hope you haven't finished your tea, for I said to myself this boiled dinner is so savory this afternoon (you know my habit of two meals a day in winter, my dears) those girls must have a taste. Don't get a chair—I mustn't sit down."

She did, however, and smiled on them benevolently, while pretending not to see just how acceptable was her neighborly offering.

"Such a day, to be sure! It's a mercy my good spirits don't depend on the weather. How did you get home from the mill, Nettie, child?"

"Oh, I'm used to all sorts of days, you know, Miss Mellavine. That 5 o'clock whistle haunts me in my dreams, but I hope for something better some day. These parsnips are perfectly lovely. (I believe that is the current phrase nowadays.) And what have you done to pass away the time?"

"Oh, odds and ends, my dear—odds and ends. A little mending and my housework, a letter to my sister Celinda's son, because it's his birthday, off among strangers, dear boy, and a bit of flannel sewing for one of poor Bridget Maloney's ragged little tribe. I'm so glad you like the things. Some folks ain't any hand for boiled dinners, but I must say I like them. You get so much in a small compass. You may cut me off two yards of that 12 cent rushing, Flo, my dear. Now I really must go. (Never mind about the bowl this time.) Caleb Stone is very sick again—taken worse suddenly, they say, and Mirandy wants me to come over to-night. He's dreadful fidgety, and wants to see me about something particular, she says. Mirandy's no hand to do for sick folks, you know, though she's not to blame, never having been brought to it," and the short suburban curts, slightly silvered on each side of her round smiling face, nodded "good will" and "good night" as she disappeared in the cavernous depths of the rubber cloak and stepped out into the rain.

"Caleb Stone very sick! If he should die we may have to hurry up the payments to the lawyers or somebody," said Flo, rather apprehensively, getting her dish-pan ready.

"I shan't worry over that," answered Nettie, blithely, as she tied on a large apron preparatory to dish wiping. She had recovered her elasticity since the advent of the parsnips, etc.

"If there's an out-and-out angel on the face of this selfish earth it's Miss Mellavine. What a difference a good meal makes in one's moral barometer. I was cross before supper, Flo dear," said she, penitently giving her sister a quick dab of a kiss on the left ear; "if any one has a right to be cross it's you, shut up here all day—with no exercise except to do errands in the evenings when I'm at home to tend the store. You're twice as good and patient as your unsanctified sister Nettie."

Enough of Miss Mellavine's benevolence remained to give a flavor to the breakfast, and Nettie went to her work with a light heart in the dark of the wintry morning. Her duty in the factory was packing and labeling stockings. About the middle of the afternoon her quick eye detected something wrong in a pile of stockings that had just been brought to her for boxing.

"How's this, Richard?" said she to the messenger, "there must be a mistake. Mr. Barker has given you the wrong kind. These stockings are part cotton, and my labels say 'superfine all wool.'"

The boy gave a knowing wink. "I guess it's all right. Barker knowed what he was about. Mum's the word, Miss Nettie, if you and I want to keep our places."

With sparkling eyes and scarlet cheeks, Nettie carried the box of stockings into an inner room where sat Mr. Barker, the overseer of her department, a heavy, flabby man, with pale eyes, pale hair and a hanging under lip, and with him one or two clerks.

"These are not the right stockings for my labels, Mr. Barker. They are half cotton."

Mr. Barker fumbled the stockings with his thick fingers, looked at the labels and then at her with a beery smile.

"My dear young lady, you surprise me. The stockings are all right. Your legitimate business is simply to put on the labels which we provide."

Higher mounted the color in Nettie's cheeks. Her voice trembled, but her courage did not falter.

"Then I must decline to do it, Mr. Barker."

"Ho, ho, indeed!" said the beery Barker, with sudden energy. "Here, Simpson," to one of the dapper clerks just passing through the room, "be kind enough to step to Mr. Wiggins' desk and ask him to settle accounts with this exceedingly conscientious young woman, and provide her with a ticket of leave," and Barker turned abruptly on his heel.

Nettie's nerve and indignation carried her through the next few moments, and soon she had closed the factory door behind her.

"I know I've done right, and I shall find something to do. I hope Flo won't be very much overcome!"

Her sister looked up at her early return. "On hearing the story she gave a half-hysterical laugh.

"You match my experience, Nettie. That 'drummer' from the Worcester firm was here. Do you notice anything strange?"

Nettie looked around the room, and beheld show-case and rope-lines nearly emptied.

"We hadn't the money ready, you know," said her sister, "so the goods had to go. He was 'vevy sahwy'—disagreeable dewty—and all that sort of thing, of course. Such 'genteel' kid gloves he wore, and such a 'genteel' case he brought to pack the things in! I sat in stony silence, working away, and never lifted a finger to help. Mean of me, wasn't it?"

Nettie slowly sank into the little splint rocker and stared helplessly.

"Now," said Flo, proceeding briskly with her brushes, "the question is what to do next. I shall get two quarts of New Orleans molasses, and start a candy trade to-morrow."

"I suppose I might take a flat basket, and peddle the sticks, after you make them," said Nettie, half bitterly. "I might possibly strike a gold mine, in the shape of a rich old lady or gentleman, who is fond of taffy, and would like to adopt a likely bairn about my age."

"I hope we won't be tempted to eat too much of it ourselves," said the provident Flo.

"Where's the tin pail?" said Nettie, jumping up with alacrity. "Oh, here it is. I'll go to Dickerman's for the molasses right off. You will need every spare minute for your brushes now—till you teach me how to make them too. After all, I don't see why it won't be just as respectable to sell candy as any thing else, if we deal in pure goods, and give honest measure. I'm sure authors sell their books, and artists their paintings. It's only a question of degree."

"And even monarchs and great statesmen receive compensation," laughed Flo.

The molasses was soon bubbling merrily in the porcelain-lined kettle, and, until the time of constant stirring should arrive, Nettie sat down by her sister to take a lesson in brush making.

"We can take a few dollars of your pay, Nettie, and lay in a small stock of candy to-morrow. The school children will soon find it out. I can take some comfort in having you at home, for a time at least. Why can't we indulge in a good supper to-night, as long as we have your pay? I'm getting reckless. Let's have oysters."

"Agreed!" said Nettie, delighted to see Flo so ready (for once) for a comparatively luxurious "scrump-tion" has its limits!"

"Oh, oh!" cried her sister, in mock horror. "Labors of Max Muller! How can you, Nettie? There!—the candy nearly boiled over! Run and stir it—quick!"

(In the midst of the stirring and the fun, enter Miss Mellavine in a state of unwonted excitement.)

"Such a surprise, my dears! What do you think? But, first of all, I suppose you have heard that Caleb Stone is dead?"

She dropped into the nearest chair, and fanned herself with her brown check apron, though it was wintry March outside.

"Why, no!" exclaimed the girls in a breath, while Nettie held her spoon suspended in mid-air, with ropes of taffy gracefully pendulous therefrom.

"I must begin at the very beginning," said Miss Mellavine, "or I shall be sure to forget something. I ought to remember. He died at 4 o'clock this morning, but Mirandy couldn't bear to have a mess of half-strange women around, she said, so she begged me to stay on—though I'm free to confess I ached to come and tell you as quick as I decently could. I can't get over the turn it gave me. To think that all this time—but I shall be sure to let it out before I get around to it, after all, if I'm not careful. When I went up last night he was asleep and Mirandy was sitting by the fire and the little fellow had gone to bed. 'I'm so glad you've come, Mellavine,' says she, 'for Caleb is that set on seeing you that I was afraid he might try to dress himself to go to your house if you didn't come. He's been out of his head more or less all day, but the doctor gave him another small dose of morphia, and he's resting easier now.' She hadn't more than got the words out of her mouth when he turned his head on the pillow and opened his eyes.

"Is that you, Mellavine?"

"Yes, sir," said I, going up to the bed.

"Mirandy," says he, 'you go out and sit by the kitchen fire till I want you again'—and to humor him she went. Just as quick as she shut the door he clutched me by the arm and pointed to a heavy black box that stood on the bureau.

"There! There it is!" says he. 'It's clutching at my throat as if it had fingers! Take it away! Take it away!' he almost shrieked.

"Yes, yes, presently," said I, to pacify him.

"Why don't you take it? The key hangs around my neck. Here, unlock the box and take away the package. It's clutching me, I tell you! Be quick! Be quick!"

"I did just as he told me (you've got to be with a ravin' man, you know), not expecting to find anything important. I unlocked the box, and the first thing I see—oh, I pretty near let it out that time, but you've guessed it, like as not. I declare, I don't know when I shall get over the turn it gave me!"

(Flo and Nettie exchanged quick, startled looks, and drew nearer to Miss Mellavine, while the molasses bubbled unheeded in the porcelain kettle.)

"Tell them," he says, 'that I've not had an hour's peace since I locked it in there. Their father's sudden death put it in my head—the temptation came like a whirlwind, then, oh, the misery! You know the rest. Afterward I could not confess. They are good girls—good girls. John Randall's daughters could not be anything else. Tell them to keep it all—all. It is doubly theirs, I have so wronged them! I do not want them to pay another dollar on the old account. It is the only reparation I can make. Beg them to keep my secret. I don't deserve that they should have mercy on my good name, but, oh! for Mirandy's sake and little Joe's beg them to show it. They are good girls. Now call my wife, he says, and drops his head back on the pillow without another word. There, I've tried to tell it, word for word, just as it happened—and you, dear things, nobody could be gladder to put it into your own hands than my very own self—but that miserable man's looks and notions will haunt me to my dying day, I verily believe."

She drew from the bosom of her calico dress a packet which she placed in Nettie's hands. The lost money! as the reader has doubtless guessed.

"From Loren Sackett, of Ashfield, to Caleb Stone, $1,800 payment for livestock. Sent by kindness of John Randall."

For two years hidden in Caleb Stone's strong box, while two heroic girls, turned out of their homestead to gratify his guilty greed, were working their young lives out to make good its assumed loss!

Flo and Nettie wept silently at the side of their good friend. Mingled with the inexpressible relief at their good fortune were pity (such as few in like case would have been able to feel) for the wretched, guilty man who had so used them—and sorrow for his innocent child, that this gain must come from their grief and loss! Ah! John Randall's daughters were indeed good girls!

"After all," said Flo, finally, jumping up and running to the stove, "I don't believe it's good economy to let the candy burn!"

They kept the dead man's secret faithfully, compassionately. They made the remaining payments to the heirs, as if nothing had occurred, then went to Boston, Nettie to take a thorough course in elocution, and Flo as an ardent student. They were not wanting numerous Paul Pry's of both genders who "couldn't for the life of them see where John Randall's girls got money to fool away on such doings!" To such Miss Mellavine discreetly replied that, as far as she could say, it was a present from a very kind friend named "Destiny!"

A LOTTSVILLE boy stole his mother's mocking-bird and sold it to a man who had just lost one, taking the dead bird in exchange. The good lady was overwhelmed at the death of her pet and gave him a tearful burial, at which her son, the money jingling in his pocket, assisted with great solemnity.

WEATHER--OR NOT.

We admire the philosophy of the unfortunate man, who, when everything had been swept away, said, "Well, then! let it be weather and taxes left, at any rate." Alas! weather is the "yellow dog" of all subjects; everyone thinks it his special right to try to better the weather, and huris his anathemas against "Old Probabilities," and all who endeavor to assist him in regulating the weather. The following communication is from Prof. Tice, of St. Louis, Mo., the renowned meteorologist and weather prophet of the West. It does not discuss the weather but something surely of more importance to those who suffer with that painful malady he speaks of: "The day after concluding my lectures at Burlington, Iowa, on the 21st of December last, I was seized with a sudden attack of neuralgia in the chest, giving me excruciating pain and almost preventing breathing. My pulse, usually 80, fell to 25; intense nausea of the stomach succeeded, and a cold, clammy sweat covered my entire body. The attending physician could do nothing to relieve me. After suffering for three hours, I thought—as I had been using St. Jacobs Oil with good effect for rheumatic pains—I would try it. I saturated a piece of flannel, large enough to cover my chest, with the Oil, and applied it. The relief was almost instantaneous. In one hour I was entirely free from pain, and would have taken the train to fill an appointment that night in a neighboring town had my friends not dissuaded me. As it was, I took the night train for my home, in St. Louis, and have not been troubled since.

IRELAND.

Provisions of Gladstone's Repression Act.

In the British House of Commons, Harcourt, Home Secretary, in introducing the bill for the repression of crime in Ireland, characterized the prevalence of crime there as a national disgrace. He said: "The time has arrived for the entire House to unite in taking steps to repress it. The case we deplore to-day is not solitary. Crime is a plague-spot on Ireland, and I believe the Irish people desire this removed. It springs from secret societies, and must be extirpated. The mainspring of crime is the expectation of impunity, which is only too well founded. The Government has, therefore, concluded it is necessary, in those places where the ordinary law is not observed, to create special tribunals, consisting of three Judges to be appointed by the Lord Lieutenant, to try cases without jury. The judgment of the court must be unanimous. Appeal can be made to the Supreme Court, judgment of the latter to be given by a majority of Judges. The Supreme Court may diminish but cannot increase the severity of the sentences. Parliament will be asked to provide special remuneration for the special Judges. The bill also contains the following provisions: It gives power to search for secret apparatus of murder, such as arms, threatening letters, etc.; power to enter houses by day or night, under warrant of the Lord Lieutenant; power to arrest persons prowling about at night and unable to give an account of themselves, who are to be dealt with summarily; power to arrest strangers, as the crimes are generally committed by foreign emissaries, the hospitality of England not being for such persons as the agents of O'Donovan-Rossa; and power to remove foreigners considered dangerous to peace. The Government, therefore, intends to revive the Alien act. Secret societies will be dealt with summarily, and membership thereof will constitute an offense under this act. Cases of aggravated assault will be treated in a summary manner. Power is given to repress intimidation and unlawful meetings, the latter to be dealt with summarily. Newspapers containing seditious and inflammatory matter will be suppressed and the proprietors required to enter into recognizances not to repeat the offense. Justices can compel the attendance of witnesses about, to abscond, and the Lord Lieutenant can appoint additional police where necessary at the cost of the districts concerned. Compensation for murder and outrage will be required of the districts where they occur. Outrages will be dealt with summarily by the courts, which are to consist of two stipendiary magistrates. The Government reserves for consideration any further alteration of the jury system."

The Home Secretary admitted that the bill was extraordinary, but necessary to meet extraordinary circumstances. The operation of the bill will be limited to three years. The Government would do all in their power to prevent innocent persons suffering from the action of the bill. He added that the bill placed almost unlimited authority in the hands of the Lord Lieutenant, and concluded by stating that the measure would shortly be followed by one dealing with arrears of rent. Harcourt stated that the Government had considered the question of instituting a military tribunal, but had come to the conclusion that a resort to such a measure was undesirable. After a brief debate the bill was passed to its first reading by a vote of 327 to 22. The minority was composed entirely of Home Rulers. Parnell said it was the most stringent measure ever proposed, and that it would result in a hundred fold greater failure than what had gone before. Dillon said the act would bring disaster, destroy all faith in ultimate justice, and play into the hands of assassins.

The Marquis of Lansdowne gave notice in the House of Lords, on the 9th inst., that he would drop the motion against the Irish policy of the Government, but asked that there be no yielding to popular demands without the adoption of compensating measures for strengthening the law. George Otto Trevelyan was appointed Chief Secretary for Ireland, and a new election was ordered for Hawick. Hamilton, permanent Secretary to the Admiralty, has gone to Ireland to take Burke's place for six months.

An important development in connection with the murder of Lord Cavendish and Mr. Burke was obtained by the Dublin authorities on the 9th inst. It appears that two young men employed in a railroad shop were witnesses of the tragedy. They were riding through Phoenix Park on bicycles when the four assassins attacked their victims, and the natural impulse of the two men to rush to the assistance of Cavendish and Burke was checked by the threat that if they approached nearer the bloody knives would be turned on them. They therefore sought safety in flight.

A Dublin dispatch of the 11th inst. says that "Sir William V. Harcourt has been apprised that an Irishman now in Liverpool claims to have refused an offer of £100 in Dublin to assist in the murder of Cavendish and Burke, and says he can put his hand on the assassins." The New York Herald's correspondent cables from London on the 11th: "It is understood the Irish bill is now complete, and that it provides, in complicated ways, for reforms in arrears, dividing concessions between landlords and tenants with tolerable evenness, and is, in this respect, nearly identical with the bill drawn by Parnell."

The Way to Look at it.

In all labor there is poetry, it can be found, containing its deepest meaning and its truest realities. One mechanic sees nothing beyond his tools and their daily use; another beholds the civilization or refinement which his work is daily spreading. One merchant measures his business only by the yearly account of profit and loss; another sees it in extent of commerce, the employment given to labor, triumph of honest principle. One physician looks at his profession only as a ladder for his own advancement and popularity; another beholds suffering assuaged, diseases overcome, sanitary habits enforced, healthful living secured, happiness increased. One woman sees in her house only an area of hard work and physical comfort; another sees exquisite picture of possible happiness, honor, development and value which may be cherished with it, and may issue from it to bless society and strengthen the nation. It is only as these higher truths of labor become vividly pictured in the imagination that labor itself can rise to its true position. Its poetry is its best reality, and ennobles all its prose of hard work or dry details.

An out-of-town druggist entered one of Boston's apothecary stores and handed a clerk a simple recipe. "One dollar and fifty cents," said the latter, as he handed the medicine over. "Isn't that pretty steep?" said the customer, adding, "I'm in the business myself, and know somewhat about the cost of these ingredients." "Oh! that alters the case," was the response; "17 cents, please."

What Parted Them.

[Somerville Journal.]

"Why did you send me that almanac, Augustus?" asked Angelina. "Because, darling," answered Augustus, as he vainly strove to twist the few downy sprouts on his upper lips into a curl, "because, darling, I wished you to select a date for our—the aw—ceremony."

"Oh, I see," she said; then smiling a bewitching smile, she murmured, "call it the first of April."

Augustus will some day succeed in raising a mustache, but he goes to see Angelina no more.

A SINGULARLY-INTERESTING case was lately referred to in the Brooklyn Eagle. It was told by Mr. W. A. Davenport, connected with the house of Messrs. Butler, Pitkin & Co., 476 Broadway, New York, and concerned the marvelous cure of Mr. Ezra D. Clarkson, near Newark, N. J., of a terrible case of rheumatism, which other remedies had failed even to alleviate. He was on his way to a hospital when Mr. Davenport met him and induced him to try St. Jacobs Oil, with the result named.—Cleveland (Ohio) Practical Farmer.

A Camel's Kick.

The camel's kick is a study. As it stands demurely chewing the cud, and gazing abstractedly at some totally different far away object, up goes a hind leg, drawn close into the body, with the foot pointing out; a short pause, and out it flies with an action like the piston and connecting-rod of a steam-engine, showing a judgment of distance and direction that would lead you to suppose the leg gifted with perceptions of its own, independent of the animal's proper senses. I have seen a heavy man fired several yards into a dense crowd by the kick of a camel, and picked up insensible.

The Way to Save the Country.

Let Northern people go South in the winter, and Southern people come North in the summer, and let the young of both sections fall in love with each other and do a little marrying, and when Northern and Southern grandmothers go traveling back and forth to visit the babies that will naturally come upon the scene, that will end all ill-feeling. From personal observation, we recommend plenty of inter-State marriages for the next ten years, and the country will be safe.

THE Newark (N. J.) Sunday Call says: One of our Cincinnati exchanges cites the case of Mr. Haldeman, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, who was cured of rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil. His wife was cured of neuralgia by the same article, and every member of his family of some pain or ache by the Great German Remedy.

A STINGY family: "But why did you leave your last place?" asked Mrs. Brown. "Och, mum," replied the young person, with a toss of her shapeless head, "they was that mean that there was no livin' wid 'em. If you'll believe it, mum, 'twas only yister that I went into the parlor and there was two of the gurruls a-playin' on one peanny, and their father rich enough to buy a dozen and niver fule it!"

"WHERE is my boy to-night?" That depends. If he is not more than 12 years old, he is out on the curb, taking turns at smoking a cigar with another boy. If he is much older, inquiry should be made at the keno-room.

Lungs, Liver and Kidneys.

These great organs of life, as is known to every one, are most intimately related to each other, and where one is caused to suffer, the other two, on account of their sympathetic connection, are unavoidably made to feel the evil effects. Therefore, when distressed with symptoms of disease incidental to either organ, a medicine that will give tone and strength to all three is Nature's best assistant in restoring health. Such virtues are beneficial as are contained in Yellow Dock, Sarsaparilla, Juniper, Iron, Buchu, Celery and Calisaya. All these ingredients are scientifically combined in that great health renewer, Dr. Guyott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla.

ONCE upon a time, in Hart county, Ky., there was a miserly old person who, in a burst of unusual generosity, loaned an impecunious scraggy five cents. Shortly afterward the fortunate receiver left the State without paying back the money, and was gone for twenty-two years. When he returned the first person he met was his creditor, who at once struck him for the 5 cents which had been borrowed over a score of years before. "I don't care so much for the money," explained he, "but it's the principle of the thing."—Denver Tribune.

LAWRENCE J. AVERY, of Liberty, Ind., writes: "It was my misfortune to become afflicted, several years ago, with a severe attack of rheumatism in connection with dyspepsia and symptoms of lung and kidney disease. It seemed no medicine would reach my case, for I had tried this and that. My wife was using Dr. Guyott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, and persuaded me to try it. I did so, and used spirits of turpentine at the same time as a liniment. It has effected a complete cure."

At a concert an old gentleman was much annoyed by the constant coughing of a lady who sat in the seat behind him. His patience gave out at last; he turned round and said severely, "That's a very bad cold of yours, madam," to which the lady demurely replied, "I know it, sir, and I'm very sorry for it, but it's the best I've got." The old gentleman was silenced.

"Pa," said a child, thirsting for knowledge, "they say that beavers are the most industrious of animals. What do they make?" "Beaver hats, my child—beaver hats," replied the father.

Nothing Could Be Stronger.

1,400 PAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS, MO., Jan. 20, 1891. H. H. WARNER & Co.: Sirs—I have been troubled with kidney disease since my childhood. It would be impossible for me to describe how much I have suffered. Your Safe Kidney and Liver Cure has done me more good than the combined skill of all the physicians I have ever tried during my entire life.

CAROLINE F. WILKINS. "Yes," said a fresh arrival from Bodie, "the girl I married up on the lode last month is a perfect lady—a perfect lady, sir. I don't suppose I've heard her swear real hard more'n twice this spring."—San Francisco Coast.

AN Oregon man fell on the icy walk and broke his nose, and when he came to sue for damages the jury held that his looks had been improved 30 per cent. He therefore got nothing.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876 I was taken with bleeding of the lungs, followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead. I gave up hope, but a friend told me of Dr. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when, to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past. I write this hoping every one afflicted with diseased lungs will take Dr. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM, and be convinced that CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED. I can positively say it has done more good than all the other medicines I have taken since my sickness.
