BORCULO.

Following a long illness, Mrs. Henrietta Gebben, wife of L. Gebben, is dead at her home in Borculo at the age of 73 years. She was born in Hanover, Germany, and came to this section in 1847. At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Buter, on the Oseward road near Zeeland, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Tena, and John Petroelje of Borculo. Many relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony which was performed by Rev. D. R. Drukker, pastor of the First Christian Reformed church of Zeeland.

SALEM.

Citizens living in the township of Salem are deeply concerned over an outbreak of hydrophobia in their section. Some time ago a cow belonging to Guy Shuck became ill and the owner thought that she was choking. A neighbor, Thomas Loew, was called to help, and while trying to relieve the animal was bitten in the hand. Mr. Shuck and his brother Ora also were bitten, and as the cow died the head was sent to Ann Arbor. The case was pronounced hydrophobia and the men were hurried to the Pasteur institute for treatment, where they must remain until all danger is past. Where the cow contracted the disease is unknown, as no mad dogs have been found in the vicinity for years. The farmers are deeply worried and are keeping a close watch of their stock.

CLASS SONG.

Tonight our ebbing thoughts are drifting,
Back to days long gone,
Recalling happy days we spent while
There.
The dear old school yard trees and flowers,
We love them every one.
In retrospect, oh, every spot seems fair.
We think of schoolmates tried and true
Who with us all took part,
Who through the grades have been our Comrades still.

But most we think of him who taught
With kind voice and heart, Whose memory always every soul will Thrill.
Chorus:—
Oh, to fancy we hear ringing,
The bells of future ringing,
The ropes we grasped in days now far Away,
Have set the bells a ringing.
In our fancy we hear ringing, Singing songs for which the bells will Sing day.

The slender cords we grasped long since
When feeble were our hands.
The larger ropes we held when we were grown,
Were lessons taught by teachers dear,
And led up to the bells.
That ring chimes of future yet unknown.
Now just above our waiting fingers, larger ropes are hung.
That we must pull through every coming year.
So greater deeds with mighty honors may be won,
And bells will tell it out both loud and clear.
Chorus:—
—Mrs. Hattie L. Bird.

VERSE.

HAMILTON.

The walls of the new bank building are up and the front will be finished within a few days, and it is expected that by the end of the week the roof will be completed. The front is constructed of red brick and the walls of concrete, while the roof and ceiling will be steel, making it practically a fireproof building. Inside a modest little vault will be built of the burglar-proof safe and safety-deposit boxes, the latter to be rented to citizens having valuable papers to be protected from fire and burglars. Altogether the building will be a credit to our village and a valuable addition to the industries of the town.

People in and about Hamilton are glad that at last they are going to have a bank of their own. Ever since the idea of a state bank has been temporarily abandoned, Mr. Brower has been quietly at work with the idea of giving Hamilton a bank that the people would have as much confidence in as they would have in a state bank, believing that a "one-man" bank or a side issue of some outside city bank would not be satisfactory to all people, with the result that he has associated with him four prominent citizens, some of whom are among the best farmers of the community. The company will have a backing of $75,000, which will be a better guarantee to the depositors than even a state bank would have been, as at first contemplated. Not being satisfied with this, it is the intention of the management to have the bank regularly examined by some outside, disinterested banker, so the public will be protected to the fullest extent. We are assured that complete details will be given to the public within a short time. The idea of making a state bank has not been entirely abandoned, however. A good many applications for stock have been coming in from outside parties lately, and there is enough in sight about here to make the change at almost any time that it is thought desirable, thus giving more people a chance to own stock in their home bank.

One good industry in a town helps in more ways than one and is a help to get others. One of the direct results of the new bank is the Balthuis Manufacturing company lately organized. Mr. Balthuis has for some time been manufacturing canvas gloves and mittens on a modest scale and his business had grown to such an extent that branching out was necessary. He had tempting offers from several outside cities, and was seriously considering them because there were no banking facilities here, but was urged by some to remain and organize a company, as a bank would be started here, with the result that a $10,000 company was organized. G. H. Rigerink is president of the new concern, A. Kolvoord vice president, Abel Balthuis secretary and manager, and Herman Brower treasurer. Much new machinery is being placed and the working force is being doubled and will be increased still more. This is a good beginning for Hamilton during 1911. Now the Business Men's association has been organized to boost Hamilton in a modest way and work together for the good of the town. Let the good work go on.

The Hamilton business men met at the Hotel hall and adopted the following resolutions:
"We, the undersigned business men of Hamilton, Mich., hereby associate under the name of Hamilton Business Men's association for the following purposes, viz: The object of this association shall be:
First. To promote and encourage good feeling and fellowship between the business men of Hamilton and to discourage all feeling of dissension and unfair and ruinous competition between business.
Second. To encourage a feeling of harmony wherein all work together for the best interests of our village, socially, morally and financially.
Third. To work together to encourage and devise ways and means to bring about needed improvements to our village, such as street lamps, fire protection, sidewalks, etc., and such other things as shall suggest themselves from time to time.
Fourth. To advertise Hamilton as an ideal place for city people to spend their summer vacation and to attract desirable people to locate here permanently.
Fifth. To work for and encourage the locating here of business institutions, such as we do not now have, especially such as employ labor, as factories and to advertise the natural advantages of our village for such institutions.

Meetings of the association will be held on the first Monday evening of each month and that each member be fined for each time he is absent unless he can advance reasons satisfactory to the chairman and secretary. We further recommend that membership be open to all business men and other citizens having the best interests of our village at heart and that invitations to join be extended to all such."

HOLLAND TOWNSHIP.

Supervisor John Y. Huizenga has had a saw mill put up in his woods about one mile east of the city and is each day turning out about ten thousand feet of lumber to be used in the erection on his farm east of the city of a large barn. It is years and years ago, in fact so long ago that many of the present generation do not remember it, since the hum of a saw mill was heard within a mile from the city limits. There are many people in Holland, in fact, who did not dream that there was a large enough woods so near Holland in which actual lumber could be cut. The older pioneers tell of the days when the hum of the saw mill was heard in the very spot where the city is now built and when, in fact, that was the most characteristic sound in the entire colony. Before the big fire of 1871 stripped large areas of Ottawa, Allegan and other counties of rich forest, lumbering operations were carried on here on a big scale and the saw mills dotted the woods surrounding this city. But after the fire they soon disappeared. The one nearest Holland that has been operated for many years and is still being run intermittently is the saw mill in the woods known as the Veneklassen woods, about three miles north of Zeeland. This for a number of years has been operated by the Van Slooten family.

The saw mill in Mr. Huizenga's woods was put in by J. Owens of Holland township.

UNDER EXAMINATION.

Teacher in mental arithmetic—"If there were three apples on the table, Johnny, and your little sister should eat one of them, how many would be left?"

Johnny—"How many little sisters would be left?"

Teacher—"Now, listen, Johnny. If there were three apples on the table, and your little sister should eat one, how many would be left?"

Johnny—"We ain't had an apple in the house this year, let alone three."

Teacher—"We are only supposing the apples to be on the table, Johnny."

Johnny—"Would they be preserved apples?"

Teacher—"Certainly not!"

Johnny—"Baked apples?"

Teacher—"No, no! There wouldn't be any apples at all, as I told you, Johnny; we only suppose the apples to be there."

Johnny—"Then there wouldn't be any apples, of course."

Teacher—"Now, Johnny, put that knife in your pocket, or I will take it away, and pay attention to what I am saying. We imagine three apples to be on the table."

Johnny—"Yes."

Teacher—"And your little sister eats one, and goes away."

Johnny—"Yes; but she wouldn't go away till she had finished the three. You don't know my little sister."

Teacher—"But suppose your mother was there, and wouldn't let her eat but one?"

Johnny—"Mother's out of town, and won't be back till next week."

Teacher (solemnly)—"Now Johnny, I will put the question once more, and if you do not answer it correctly, I shall keep you after school. If three apples were on the table, and your little sister were to eat one of them, how many would be left?"

Johnny (straightening up)—"There wouldn't be any apples left; I'd grab the others."

Teacher (touching the bell)—"The scholars are now dismissed; Johnny White will remain where he is."—Detroit News Tribune.

A Portrait of Charles Anthon.

His outward personality was unique and impressive. He was a trifle under the average height, erect as an Indian and inclining to portliness. His head was superb and his features strong and finely cut. He was punctiliously neat in his dress, the style of which was never varied. A short sack coat hung straight from his ample shoulders, merging in front into a black satin vest and an expanse of spotless linen, relieved only by a very small gold pin, the whole surmounted by a black satin stock and a high standing collar with rounded corners.—Columbia Quarterly.

Beware of counterfeits, for such are abroad.—From a London Newspaper, 1718.

Flag Day, June 14

The celebration of Flag Day, the anniversary of the adoption of the stars and stripes as the national emblem, grows year by year. Under the auspices of the American flag association, an association of individuals and flag committees from patriotic societies formed in 1897, the observance of the day has increased very encouragingly.

The schools in Holland will be in session on Flag Day, June 14, so it will be possible to arrange simple exercises in observance of the occasion. By all means it should be done, though it is not necessary to prepare elaborate programs the preparation of which will wear out the teachers, bore the pupils and make both dislike the occasion. The usual custom in schools is to salute the flag, and to have the pupils repeat this pledge:

"I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands. One nation indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

This is simple and sufficient. There are so many temptations away from patriotic impulses in the life outside of school that it seems an essential part of the life in school that it should inculcate these impulses.

Governors of states are asked to proclaim Flag Day, and to order the display of the flag on all state buildings. Most of them have gotten into the way of doing this. Mayors of cities, too, will order a display of flags, and many of them will issue proclamations asking the citizens to observe the day at least to the extent of putting out their flags.

The coming anniversary will be the one hundred and thirty-fourth. On June 14, 1777, congress enacted: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." April 14, 1818, it was enacted: "That from and after the fourth day of July next, the flag of the United States be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be twenty stars, white in a blue field, and that on the admission of a new state into the Union, one star be added to the union of the flag; and such addition take effect on the fourth day of July next succeeding such admission." Since 1818 twenty-six additional stars have blazed forth in the union, representing twenty-six states added to the Federal union. Today there are forty-eight stars in the flag.

A Man Who has the Courage of His Convictions

William Howard Taft is a pure-minded, level-headed, sincere man. His stand on the reciprocity question and his frank statement of his views must command respect. In his address to the National Grange members who called upon him, President Taft made it plain that a desire for re-nomination did not influence him in the matter. He is satisfied that the adoption of the treaty will be of benefit to the whole people of this country, and he will use all of his influence to secure the passage of the reciprocity bill. The bill in question is in line with the policy advocated by Blaine and other great statesmen in the past, and is certainly in harmony with the idea of tariff reform so overwhelmingly endorsed at the polls last fall.

President William Howard Taft is not a spectacular statesman but he is a man of great natural ability who has learned by years of practical experience to look before he leaps. Mr. Taft is not a man of impulse who is constantly making mistakes, but he is one who deliberates carefully before he acts and can then be depended upon. "Be sure you are right and then go ahead," is the motto that this self-reliant and able man seems to have adopted.

President Taft has the confidence and respect of the great majority of the people of this section, and the fact that he has the courage of his convictions and that he has demonstrated this fact by his plain talk to the influential men who differed with him cannot fail to add to his popularity with those who admire courage as well as good judgment and self-reliant ability.

Vassar college has celebrated her 50th anniversary—and she wasn't ashamed to tell her age.

If men would only make a few 9th inning rallies when their work seems to be going badly perhaps there wouldn't be so many failures.

We are now approaching the season when one should be able to look a dish of ice cream in the face without causing it to blush.

The inventor of fly paper, Mr. Thumb, is running for office in California. As a candidate he ought to be able to stick besides remaining in touch with political conditions.

Wellesley girls want to return Rockefeller's donation of $150,000, but it's inconvenient, as it is all invested in the heating apparatus of the college.

A Michigan lawyer has found a new way to break a will. One of his clients spoke his will into the trumpet of a phonograph and had the record put away. His lawyer, by dropping the record, smashed it into a thousand pieces. It seems to be impossible to make a will that some lawyer can't break somehow.

HOPE COLLEGE.

In recognition of his enviable record on the bridle, diamond, track and basket ball courts, John Vruwink of Grand Rapids, a sophomore student at Hope college, was chosen director of athletics at the enthusiastic meeting of the Hope College Athletic association, attended by nearly one hundred members. Arthur H. Heusenkveld of Fulton, Ill., was elected secretary and Clarence Dame of Chicago treasurer.

Managers of the different departments were elected as follows: Alex Van Bronkhorst of Hudsonville, football; James J. Van Strien of Grand Rapids, basketball; John J. Riemersma of Sioux Center, Ia., baseball; George Steinenger of Woodlawn, N. Y., track; Wallace W. Visscher of Holland, tennis.

The athletic association closes the best year in its history. Although baseball was dropped from the calendar this season, the demand for the national game by the students will undoubtedly call for a revival when college opens next fall.

Preparations for commencement are practically completed, the first part of the program opening Sunday evening, June 18, with the baccalaureate sermon by Prof. John E. Kitzinga. The closing exercises of the grammar school will be held in Carnegie gymnasium Monday afternoon, June 19. The alumni association meets Tuesday afternoon, June 20, followed in the evening by a program commemorative of Dr. J. G. Kollen's forty years official connection with the college. On Wednesday evening, June 21, the commencement exercises will be held in Carnegie gymnasium when a class of sixteen will be graduated.

At a regular meeting of the Hope College Athletic Association the following officers were elected for the coming school year:

Director—John Vruwink.
 Secretary—Arthur Heusenkveld.
 Treasurer—Clarence Dame.
 Foot Ball Manager—Alec Van Bronkhorst.
 Basket Ball Manager—John Van Strien.
 Base Ball Manager—John Riemersma.

Track Manager—G. Steinenger.
 Tennis Manager—Wallace Visscher.
 James J. De Kraker of Grand Rapids, a graduate of Hope college and who graduated from New Brunswick theological seminary this month, was awarded the Zuydam prize as the best preacher in his class. The award was the result of a contest and was decided by a vote of his classmates, as well as by the faculty, and was based upon work during the school year.

Manager Stegeman of the Hope college track team is already negotiating for another relay race with the Grand Rapids Y. M. C. A. Owing to the unfortunate circumstances which attended Saturday's event neither team finished the race. Vandenberg, Hope's first man, sprained his ankle when two miles out. Before his substitute was pressed into service Grand Rapids had a mile lead. The severest handicap was encountered when Hope's fourth man, Muste, lost his way owing to unfamiliarity with the course and had run a mile in the wrong direction before his mistake was discovered. This gave Grand Rapids a lead of from three to four miles and Hope's men were called off. The Hopeites anticipated a close and spirited race, but ill luck spoiled their plans.

Hessel Yntema of Hope College has returned home from Sioux City, Ia., where he attended the Interstate Oratorical contest, as secretary and treasurer of the Michigan Intercollegiate Oratorical league. Mr. Yntema declared that it was the best contest he ever attended. The hundreds of delegates from all the states represented in the contest were royally entertained by the students of Morningside College of Sioux City, Ia., where the contest was held. They were given a college dinner after which every one became acquainted with everyone else at a reception. In the afternoon the delegates were taken to an aviation meet.

Michigan landed fourth place in the contest. First honors were won by Ames of Iowa. Muskingum of Ohio was second and Beloit of Wisconsin third. Michigan was represented by Harry Young of Albion College.

New Fence Factory

Close upon the announcement that a new concern for the manufacture of umbrellas had been added to the list of Holland industries comes the news that the Board of Trade has landed another factory for this city. The Simplex Fence Machine company which has its headquarters in Battle Creek will put a factory in this city for the manufacture of woven wire fence, ornamental wire fence, poultry netting and wire concrete reinforcement. The concrete wire reinforcement is something new on which the Simplex Fence Machine Fence Machine Co. has a patent. Some weeks ago the Battle Creek firm made a proposition to the Board of Trade, and the matter was referred to the industrial committee. The committee reported favorably after an investigation and the report was accepted by the Board of Trade. $15,000 worth of stock has been offered for sale with a bonus of 50 per cent. The local plant is to erect the building and provide the power and the Battle Creek firm is to install the machinery.

NEW INDUSTRY.

The initial steps have been taken for the landing of a new industry for Holland. At a meeting of the Board of Trade held last Friday evening a favorable report was read by a committee composed of Con De Pree, Austin Harrington, Prof. H. J. Kleinheksel, Dr. Kremers and George E. Kollen, who were appointed to investigate the Barnes-Baker Co. that wishes to locate here.

MYSTERY PARTIALLY SOLVED

The mystery concerning the disappearance of William Boggs of Omaha, Neb., of whom all I race was lost in Chicago some weeks ago while he was on his way to attend his father's funeral in this city, has been partially cleared up by a telegram received from the wife of the missing man late last week. Nothing was said in the message that explained where he had been or what had happened to him, it simply read, "Will home sick." Relatives in this city are anxiously awaiting a letter that will explain matters.

During the time that the whereabouts of Mr. Boggs was a mystery, Mrs. Boggs received a telegram from Clarksburg, W. Va., which read, "Am sick; wire ticket," signed Will. An effort was made to determine whether or not the telegram was genuine but there was no address in Clarksburg corresponding to the address on the telegram and the ticket was not sent. Evidently, however, Mr. Boggs found money to take him home, but the details of the story are still a mystery.

GENERAL ITEMS.

The grape crop this year promises to excel any in Michigan in years. The vines are heavily laden with buds. At Niles, in the vineyards of the Mohn Wine company, are 45,000 that are likely to produce a record crop.

"Rash" Smith of Allegan has a shipment of Hop-Ale, swill, and as Horatio has a well-developed respect for the law, which has been pretty well enforced in Allegan county of late, he sought advice on the subject of whether the sale of a particular brand of near-beer would be a violation of the statute. He thought to make himself solid with the new marshal, Mr. Tilton, so sent for him and in all seriousness asked him to judge of its alcoholic contents. Mr. Tilton did not wish to assume so much responsibility all at once and suggested to "Rash" that the board of review, Messrs. LaForce, Phillips and Tanner, were in session and were the proper ones to pass upon such questions. Horatio expressed sincere thanks to the marshal for his wise advice and promptly sent three bottles of the stuff with his warmest compliments to the honorable board of review, believing that body to be the highest and last court of judgment. When the samples arrived John Phillips was the only one who dared "take evidence," the others saying they had weak stomachs, etc. So John was the only one to render a verdict, and he came near "reversing the decision" in a back room. The exact phraseology of the finding has not been made public as yet but it is understood to have been of only two words, "dam poor." Fred Tanner may file a dissenting opinion yet. LaForce put his bottle on ice and says its going to stay there.—Allegan Gazette.

The launching here of La Belle, a motor yacht being built for Alexander Winton of Cleveland, puts afloat the most pretentious vessel of its kind in the world. The boat, which is of steel and 140 feet long, will cost $135,000 and will be driven by three engines of 200 horsepower each.

Under Sheriff Gladstone Beattie of Van Buren county has arrested Sadie June Zoliner of Minneapolis on a charge of larceny. She is wanted in Lawton, where, it is alleged, she defrauded Adolph Stolz out of his farm and a sum of money on a scheme by which he was to be co-partner with her in the management of an orchestra composed of girl musicians she was to engage. She denied this at first, but later admitted she sold the farm after obtaining it from Stolz. She chatted glibly to the officer and is described as unusually pretty.

One thousand pounds of honey, some of it more than 60 years old, is on exhibition at East Lee, Mass. The entire quantity was obtained by workmen, while tearing down a tavern built 150 years ago. They discovered in the garret more than 50 swarms of bees and their accumulation of honey. For more than a century the tavern has been in the hands of a single family. No person now living remembers ever having entered the garret.

LOCAL.

Master Dick Rottschaefer, formerly of this city, arrived in town Saturday evening after having made a trip of nearly three thousand miles practically alone. The little Rottschaefer boy is something like ten years old and came from Oak Harbor, Washington, to Holland to join relatives in this city. About two years ago, when his brother, the Rev. William Rottschaefer, went as a missionary to India, the little fellow accompanied the former to make his home there for a while. Last week he began the trip home and the greatest part of the 3,000 odd miles was made by him alone. His route had been carefully mapped out by his brother and friends living in cities along the way saw to it that he was kept on the right track. When he reached Chicago Prof. Henry Rottschaefer, Bellevue, Mich., was on hand to steer his way through that city to the Graham & Morton boat dock.

D. E. Van Drezer is the new member on the board of building inspectors. The appointment was recently made by the mayor and approved by the council at its last regular session. The board of building inspectors is composed of chief of the fire department of the city engineer as permanent members and one man appointed each year by the mayor. Mr. Van Drezer takes the place of D. A. Van Oort on the board.

The new power life saving boat recently purchased for the Macatawa station arrived today and Capt. Van Weelen and his men have been busy unloading it while several people from Holland have been on the scene to take a look at the new craft. All declare that it is a "beauty" and that it will more than double the efficiency of the life saving force at Macatawa. The boat is a "twin screw" and is the first power boat used at the local station. The old twenty-six foot craft that is displaced by it will be sold at auction.

A neighborhood scrap that stirred up the southeastern part of town yesterday ended in justice court Monday when Charles Morton signed a complaint for the arrest of William Kieft, on an assault and battery charge. Morton charges Kieft with attacking him with an iron instrument of some kind while the two neighbors were engaged in a fight Sunday. Kieft was arraigned before Justice Miles and pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Prof. John M. Slagh, instructor in Latin at the Manistee high school for the past year, has been given an offer by the board of education of Manistee to take the same position during the coming year with a substantial increase in salary. Prof. Slagh has however a number of other offers under consideration and will not make a decision until June 1. He is a graduate of Hope college and received a master's degree from the U. of M. last June.

The old Rix Robinson, one of the relics of long ago, was dragged out of its retirement Saturday to do its share toward the relief of the water situation. The Rix is an old fire steamer which the city has owned many years and which has been out of use so long that most of the oldest inhabitants had forgotten that such a contrivance was in existence. The inability of the pumps to keep the water pressure up Saturday placed this city in a very serious predicament and had a fire occurred the situation would have been desperate to say the least. The water committee realized this fully and as a last resort, the old Rix Robinson was hauled out and put in the job. The steamer was placed on the dock at the foot of Washington street and in a short time the fires under the boiler were going and the outfit had steam. The long idleness caused a little balkiness at the start, but by Saturday night the old Rix was in good working order and pumping away as easily as could be. The presence of the Rix at the river front was more for an emergency that the water could be pumped into the mains from the river should a fire break out. The pump was kept running all night in order that it might be ready in an instant's call. George Walsh looked after the Rix while it was in commission.—Grand Haven Tribune.

Thomas Scholten, a Zealand farmer, lies in a precarious condition as the result of a most peculiar accident. He was driving a herd of cows across the Pere Marquette railroad Monday. Nine cows had safely crossed the tracks, and while Scholten was trying to chase the last one across the trestle, came around the curve. The engine struck the animal and hurled it with terrific force against Scholten who was close behind. The cow was killed and Scholten sustained several broken ribs.

BUILD LIFE BOATS.

The United States government is asking for bids on the construction of twelve new life-saving boats to be stationed at various points along the great lakes. It is hoped to have the boats completed to go into commission this season. The boats will be thirty-six feet in length, and will be of the self-righting, self-bailing variety. They will be similar to those the department has had built previously, but with several improvements, including life rails, life belts for helmsmen, and additional electrical appliances for lighting, ignition, etc. The boats will be built of solid mahogany, double planked, copper fastened and riveted throughout.

Heavy bronze keels and centerboards are used, as the boats depend primarily upon their sail power, which is of lag rig, for running off-shore, while the 40-horse power, six cylinder gasoline installed is used for maneuvering around the wrecks. The total weight of the lifeboat is eight tons, and nearly half this weight is made up in the bronze and copper fastenings used in the construction of the hull.

Wagner Concert a Success

The fifth concert of the Wagner Male chorus given in Carnegie Hall last evening was undoubtedly the greatest success the chorus has enjoyed since its organization. Every number on the program was greeted with a loud enthusiastic applause from an audience that taxed the capacity of Carnegie Hall.

Miss Maude Stevens, monologist and William Morse Rummel, violinist, assisted the chorus in the entertainment, while the efforts of each made a decided hit with the audience. To Mr. Rummel must be given the lion's share of the praise. The exquisite harmony and carefully blended melody of his playing will long be remembered as one of the finest treats it has been the pleasure of a Holland audience to listen to.

The Wagners Are Coming Again.

Plans for a big reception for the Wagner Chorus of Holland are under way when the chorus appears at the armory in Grand Haven on the night of May 31. The arrangements for the concert are in the hands of a local committee and the Holland singers are sure to be greeted by a great audience. The chorus has appeared in Grand Haven before, and those who hear it appreciate the fine organization it is. The Wagner Male chorus is under the direction of J. Jans Helder, who conducts the music at all of the concerts. He has been with the Wagners continuously for a number of years and therefore he is the more capable of drawing out the best there is in the singers. This year, he announces that the club is better than ever and the program which he has selected for the Grand Haven appearance is a gem, from a musical standpoint. The chorus is singing better each year and the program which will be presented here will be well blended with classic and lighter music. The great volume of tone produced by the organization can hardly be surpassed. Besides the chorus there will be a male and a female quartet, and Johnny Hyma, the reader, is hailed as a scream wherever he has appeared.

The advertising matter for the concert is already being put out in this city and the demand for tickets promises to be very brisk. The Wagner chorus will come to Grand Haven on the night of the concert in a special train over the Pere Marquette and as excursion rates will be offered for the evening the singers will be accompanied by a great many Holland people, admirers of the chorus, who want to hear another of the famous concerts before the season closes.—Grand Haven Tribune.

At a meeting in the Ladies' Literary club rooms here Monday night, attended by some 40 business and professional men, the Automobile Club of Holland was organized, with a charter membership of 20 members, and prospects of increasing this number to nearly 150, motorists of this city and Zeeland.

James R. Jackson of Grand Rapids, vice president of the Michigan State Automobile association and representing that body, addressed the newly organized club and explained the benefits to be derived from affiliation with the state and national associations, whereupon it was unanimously agreed that immediate steps to that end should be taken.

Officers of the new club were elected as follows: President, Dr. A. Leenhouts; first vice president, A. Lahuis of Zeeland; second vice president, Walter Lane; secretary, Arthur A. Visscher; treasurer, John Cappon; directors, these officers and Fred Tilt, C. DenHerder and A. Van Sytsma, the two latter of Zeeland. Annual dues, which were fixed at $2, were immediately paid in

OLD TESTAMENT TIMES BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

THE KINGDOM OF PEACE

Micah 4:1-8—May 28

"Nations shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

THE whole world has for a long time been boasting that civilization and Christianity have won the day, that the world has become God's Empire and that the blessings of the Millennium are ours to enjoy. Aid Conferences and Peace Councils and Peace Commissions have flared up for the moment, only to die down. The cry of "Peace, peace," has brought no peace.

We are beginning to see that we have been deceiving ourselves into thinking that the nations of the earth are kingdoms of God. We are beginning to see that the Bible styles them "kingdoms of this world," kingdoms of the Gentiles, and that it tells us that "the Prince of this world" is Satan.

We see it all. The Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Heaven, for which the Master taught us to pray, has not yet come. We are glad, however, that the Divine promise assures us that it will come and explains to us that the All-Wise Creator is now, first of all, preparing for his Kingdom by gathering from amongst mankind a worthy, saintly few, to be associates of their King and Redeemer in that Kingdom, by which the world is to be blessed.

But all are not yet convinced of these Bible truths.

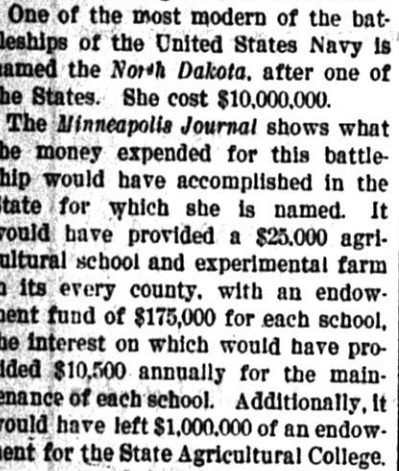

To convince the more prejudiced nothing further should be necessary along these lines than to point out the difference between present conditions and those which the Scriptures declare will prevail when He who redeemed the world by the sacrifice of Himself will take His great power and reign as Messiah.

In Our Favored Land

The United States of America does not lead the world in the size of its standing army and in great battleships. She has no need to do so, having no threatening Christian nations to menace her. Yet even this nation, walled about by thousands of miles of ocean, is making enormous expenditures on account of war, as the above diagram well illustrates.

One of the most modern of the battleships of the United States Navy is named the North Dakota, after one of the States. She cost $10,000,000.

The Minneapolis Journal shows what the money expended for this battleship would have accomplished in the State for which she is named. It would have provided a $25,000 agricultural school and experimental farm in its every county, with an endowment fund of $175,000 for each school, the interest on which would have provided $10,500 annually for the maintenance of each school. Additionally, it would have left $1,000,000 of an endowment for the State Agricultural College.

What the cost of a battleship would do in a State

The situation in Europe is still worse. Does not this preparation of the so-called Christian nations of the world to destroy one another prove that there is a mistake—that the term Christian has been misapplied to them? Nor can we say that there is no danger, for only fear could lead to such costly preparations for war.

Pray For Messiah's Kingdom

The hope for humanity is the Messianic Kingdom. The "mountain of the Lord's house" signifies the Kingdom of God's house, His Church. It will be established in the top of or above the kingdoms of the world. It will be exalted amongst the nations and all peoples will flow to it. There will be an attraction in it for all. It will lead them to climb upward. The attraction which will thus draw mankind will be the blessings of health and restitution, which the Kingdom will be prepared to grant to all peoples as they shall come into harmony with its requirements.—Acts 3:19-23.

That Kingdom will be closely identified with the Zionist movement and the Holy Land. The Kingdom itself will be spiritual, invisible to men, but its earthly agents will be visible and they will be Jewish—"Ye shall see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob and all the Prophets in the Kingdom," etc. (Matt. 23:31.) The Jews, already impelled toward the Land of Promise, will go thither in increasing numbers, and all of the faithful of them will go in sympathy and representatively, through financial assistance. The Israelitish hopes and promises will attract that number strongly first. And gradually all the nations, learning of the grace of God, and the blessings of restitution to be bestowed, will say, "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the Lord and to the house of the God of Jacob; and He will teach us (as well as the Jews) of His ways and we will walk in His paths."

On Thursday last Ben Van Putten and Clarence Hopkins went fishing, accompanied by two young ladies, and brought 175 fish, consisting of white bass, black bass lake herring, or ciscoes and lake perch, after throwing away over a hundred little ones. There are also a great many more muskalonges caught this season than ever before. The fish are sometimes so thick in the water around the piers that one of our sailors caught four in his hand one day last week.

The summer resort craze has even struck the city of Grand Haven, our county seat. It is anything to beat Holland now. When any resort can supplant the enjoyment of the splendid ride of six miles down our magnificent bay, furnish better sailing facilities, and better bass fishing then they can begin to enter into competition with Macatawa. Until that time all of the so-called resorts on this shore of Lake Michigan, will have to "play second fiddle" to our popular and growing "Coney Island of Michigan."

Woltman was obliged to steer the boat by means of her screw. Being unable to enter the harbor she signalled for help. The tug Tramp immediately went to her assistance, and after considerable difficulty succeeded in towing her in. Several hundred spectators on shore anxiously watched the result. Those on board were Capt. Woltman, John and Martin Beukema, Geo. Brooks the engineer, and John B. Mulder. Much credit is due to the captain for his skillful management of the boat. The household goods of John Benkema, which the Lizzie Walsh was carrying to Benton Harbor were badly shaken up. The steamer is now at South Haven where she is undergoing sundry repairs.

The Piscatorial banquet at Van Drezer's the other evening was a brilliant affair and made up in enterprise and conviviality for the dismal results of the previous evening. For had it not been heralded all over the city that a score or more of our ambitious anglers, divided into gladiatorial groups were to enter upon a contest for mastery with the rod, the score to be divided by points, and that the extent of the wager was to be determined by our conscientious, kind-hearted restaurant keeper? The spread, which was a good one, when entered upon, was interspersed with a series of mutual apologies, each one present explaining to the others how disappointing the weather was that evening, how the wind blew from the wrong quarter, how riled the water of the bay appeared to them after dark, how a large number of them were sick that evening and failed to connect; and of what insignificant proportions the few samples of spotted bass were, that they happened to land. Each explanation as it was rehearsed was thoroughly understood by the others, and acknowledged by a fisherman's nod. Of the 24 would be champions that evening at the banquet table, only three were sick, the others showing remarkable powers at convalescing. In due season the table was cleared and Dr. M. F. Gillespie took the floor as toastmaster, with our esteemed contemporary of the Times as provisional chaplain. This recognition as was afterward explained to us, was by reason of his aptitude at devout smiling. The climax of the festivity was the conferring of the honorary degree of P. D. (piscatorial doctor) accompanied with appropriate decorations, upon the member that stood convicted of having caught the most insignificant specimen. This distinction befell Commodore De Pree, he having landed a Macatawa bass of 1 and one half oz. The medal presented on this occasion is highly prized by the young doctor, and nothing pleases him more than to have his friends drop in and ask him to display it once more. The most serious incident of the evening was the preferring of charges against the chaplain for having stocked his basket with fish that were caught with "a silver spoon" but our contemporary successfully covered himself—by smiling. As an eye-witness described it; "It was one of those everlasting smiles of his."

Fifty Years Ago---Soldiers Buried In Swamp

IN this picture, made from a wartime photograph, the pathos of war is told more plainly than words could express it. A terrible battle had been fought here. Both armies moved away, leaving details of men to bury their dead. The burial was devoid of pomp and ceremony. The brave men who had fallen in the fight were laid in the trenches, and the muddy earth was shoveled upon them. But before the burying squad departed some of the men set up rude headboards, marked with the names of the dead when known.

Fifty Years Ago---Where Ellsworth Perished

FIFTY years ago the north was shocked by the killing of Colonel E. E. Ellsworth of the New York zouaves. Ellsworth, only twenty-four years of age, a noted drillmaster and a protégé of President Lincoln, occupied Alexandria, Va., with his regiment. He saw a Confederate flag flying from the roof of the Marshall House, a local hotel. Accompanied by one of his zouaves he made his way to the roof, seized the flag and was carrying it down the stairway when James T. Jackson, the landlord, shot him dead. The zouave killed Jackson immediately.

Fifty Years Ago---Defenses of Washington

THIS wartime photograph, taken in 1861, shows vividly the nation's preparation for defense. The scene is a portion of Fort Corcoran, near Washington, one of those hastily constructed defenses which served to check the advance of the encroaching Confederates whose objective point was the national capital. The men in the picture are Colonel Michael Corcoran and his officers. Observe the man immediately back of the stack of ammunition near the left end of the picture. His right arm is missing. Already he had suffered for his country.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I. Harry Swift is spinning along in his auto, his thoughts dwelling in happy anticipation of a coming visit from his fiancée, Lucy Medders, a German, who he has known since he was a boy. He is now a successful business man in an auto accident out in the country. His mind taken off of his surroundings by these pleasant thoughts he crashes into another auto containing a German count and a beautiful woman.
The woman's hat is ruined. Ascent-mindedly Harry thrusts the remnants of the hat in his pocket and makes his escape.

CHAPTER II. Carolyn, Harry's sister, arrives to play hostess. So-called Primmer, a distant relative of Lucy's, arrives with a hat intended as a gift to Lucy.
Harry is trailed to his home by the German count and the lady of the damaged hat.

CHAPTER III. Who it develops, is Mrs. General Blazes. She is in distraction over her husband's death and her escape. She declares that her milliner told her a duplicate of the ruined hat had been delivered to Harry's house. Responding to her demands for the hat Harry insists that he knows nothing about it.
Lucy Medders and her father arrive and the Count is secreted in the library and Mrs. Blazes in Harry's bedroom.

CHAPTER IV. Lucy professes curiosity regarding the room in which Mrs. Blazes is hidden and Harry is forced to do some fancy lying.

CHAPTER V. The milliner arrives to trace the duplicate hat. She proves to be Daphne Daffington whom Harry had shown considerable attention to in the past and the situation becomes more complicated. She agrees to make another hat providing Harry will take her to dinner. Lucy and Carolyn call Harry and Daphne is hustled into the room occupied by the Count. The Count and Daphne seems had carried on a flirtation before and greeted each other warmly.

CHAPTER VI. The Count asks Daphne why she left him standing on a corner waiting for her one evening. She explains that she met a dear friend and had accompanied him to dinner. The Count had given her a ring on a former occasion and demanded its return. Daphne explains that she had given it to General Blazes, at that the Count was in a state of mind bordering on insanity as he had given Mrs. Blazes a duplicate of the ring that her husband had lost. Daphne and the Count exchange bitter words and Daphne refuses to stay in the same room with him, so she enters the room that Mrs.
Blazes is concealed in.

CHAPTER VII.

When Harry and Lucy strolled into the den, just after Daphne had succeeded in getting into the room with Mrs. Blazes, they were followed by Mr. Medders. Mr. Medders was finding many things to interest him in Harry's home. This was the first time he had ever been where he might saunter from room to room and examine pictures, books and bric-a-brac —many of which were of a kind that were not popular in his own environment.

“Oh, Harry,” Lucy said, “this is just the most delightful visit!”

“I’m doing everything I can to make it pleasant for you, and I hope nothing happens to spoil it,” Harry said.

Medders, moving about the den, stopped at the door of the library.

“What is in there, my boy?” he asked. “I haven’t been in that room yet.”

“There?” Harry repeated, nervously.
“Oh, that’s just a junk room.”

“That means a junk room,” Lucy corrected him, mischievously.

“Yes,” Harry said. “It’s a junk bunk room.”

“Varily,” said Mr. Medders, “a junk bunk room must be interesting.”

And before Harry could stop him he had opened the door and started in,
only to step back and say:

“Why, there is some one in here.”

“Is there?” Harry asked, affecting surprise, hastily trying to think how big the headlines would be in the papers the next day.

“Why, who can it be?” Lucy asked.

Harry, feeling that all was lost, still racked his brain for some half-way reasonable explanation of the presence, as he thought, of Daphne as well as the Count, in his library.

“Why, you see,” he began, “they—they are—”

“They?” Medders said. “There is only one man in here.”

Harry was lost for language and bereft of thought when the Count stalked majestically from the door.
No one else could be seen in the library. Harry looked swiftly through the doorway into every corner of that room, asking himself: “Where the devils has she gone?”

She was no longer there, that much was certain. And he turned to see the Count bowing stiffly to Mr. Medders and Lucy. The Count held a book in his hand, and as his head rose from one of his deep bows he winked earnestly at Harry—a helpful, friendly wink, which was as though it said for him not to worry, that the Count would back him up in any story he told.

“I beg your pardon,” Harry rallied.

“I had quite forgotten the Count, Miss Medders, Mr. Medders, this is the Count von Fitz.”

The Count bowed beautifully. Lucy courtesied, her father shook the Count's hand—and still everything was not explained.

“And is the gentleman thy instructor, perhaps?” Medders asked, noting the book the Count held, and associating it with the fact that the Count had been in the library.

Harry fairly bubbled with joy at this helpful suggestion, all unconsciously given by Medders.

“Yes,” he said, “he is my German tutor.”

“And art thee a teacher of German?” Lucy asked, artlessly, of the Count. Before he could reply, Harry laughed:

“Yes, he’s a German teacher of German German. Ha, ha! Good joke,
dear teacher!”

He nudged the Count in the ribs, to that gentleman's discomfort.

“He is always choking ven he should be learning,” the Count gravely informed Lucy.

“Has he learned much?” Lucy wanted to know.

“He has a lot to learn yet,” the Count replied, with significance that was not lost on Harry.

“Oh, Harry!” Lucy cried, clapping her hands together delightedly. “Wilt they speak some German for me?”

“Sure, I’ll wilt,” Harry smiled. “Ich liebe dich.”

“Is that good German?” Lucy asked the Count.

“Very fine,” the Count assured her.

“He is a quick scholar—he is—vat you call—rapid—fast.”

“What does that mean—what he said?” Lucy asked.

“It is not for me, miss tutor, to translate for him. Later, he will tell you vat it means, I know,” the Count replied.

“What was thy last lesson about, Harry,” asked Mr. Medders. “Was it some passage from the German masters, or a chapter of history, perchance?”

“What was our last lesson about?”
Harry asked the Count.

“It was reading writing,” the Count said.

“Reading and writing, you mean?”
Lucy asked.

“No, no. Reading writing. I am writing der reading und den he is reading der writing.”

Harry saw that the Count had some plan in his mind, but what it might be he could not imagine. However, he willingly lent himself to forward it.

“He means that he would write something and then I would try to read it,” he said. Mr. Medders nodded gravely; to him it appeared to be a very good plan. Lucy, with great interest, said:

“Oh, write something in German now, then—it must be awfully hard to write in German, isn’t it?—and then these let Harry read it.”

So the Count tore the fly leaf from the book in his hand and solemnly wrote

For the first time in the history of the city, an action was begun today for the condemnation of property, the school board, in the name of the city, instituting suit for the possession of a tract of land, lying between River, Pine, Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets. It is owned by E. Vander Veen, who has considerable land in the city. Vander Veen came to this city with the Van Raalte colony in 1847 and it is alleged refuses to sell the tract only at an exorbitant figure. The school board finds it necessary to erect another school building, and the plan is to erect a $60,000 structure on the property to be acquired. At present the city has five public school buildings, besides one private institution, and the college, but there is still not room for the accommodation of the students. The new building will be for the high school. The present high school building will then be used for the grades.

The Greatest Play I Ever Saw

By Jake Stahl, Ex-First-Baseman for the Boston Americans

Neal Ball's unassisted triple play, made at Cleveland, July 19, 1909, was far and away the greatest play I have ever seen in baseball. I think it was far and away the greatest play that any one in organized baseball has seen.

I have never gotten over thinking of it. Although I was the victim of this most remarkable bit of quick thinking on the part of Ball I did not begin to fully appreciate what had happened until I got to my hotel that night. It dazed me at first, as it did players, umpire and fans. Many minutes passed before the baseball reporters realized that Ball had made a play totally unprecedented in baseball.

Our old team mate, Cy Young, was pitching for Cleveland. It was the second inning and we had him going. It looked like our game.

Wagner, our shortstop, was first up. He singled to center. I followed and bunted, managing to beat it out. Then McConnell came to bat.

We signaled to him to sacrifice. Old Cy caught the signal, and began working for a strike-out, or a base on balls, figuring that he could at least get the next man up to hit into a double play.

Ball, never more than a mediocre player, was the Cleveland's utility shortstop. Turner, Lajoie's regular, wasn't playing that day, so Ball was in his territory.

Cy Young played with McConnell until he had two strikes and three balls. He put another right over the groove. McConnell responded by hitting a whistling line drive toward center.

Ball ran back with the crack of the bat. In short center he leaped into the air, stuck his mit hand out and lo, caught the ball surely.

It had looked to Wagner and me as if McConnell's drive was good for a single, anyway. We were miles off our bases when Ball made his remarkable catch.

What did Ball do but dash to second, and touch it, making it a double play by retiring Wagner. Six steps toward first base and he had tagged me, completing his unassisted triple play. I was going so fast that I couldn't stop.

Well, it took the wind completely out of our sails. Old Cy and the team behind him steadied and the Boston Red Sox never had a look-in after that.

For the next few weeks, Ball became as great a drawing card as Lajoie. The fans lionized him. The hero-worship didn't turn Ball's head. He was trying too hard to make good in the ordinary way to let the spectacular interfere.

For some strange reason, Ball began immediately to slump. The Cleveland outfit carried him the rest of that season and last season, but he didn't play in more than a dozen games. Finally they released him to the Pacific Coast league, where he began to pick up again. Recently Cleveland negotiated his return and he is again a member of the Naps.

They say Paul Hines made a similar unassisted triple play back in 1878, in a game at Providence, but most baseball authorities deny it. I don't believe it. Such a thing can happen only once in a century.

The Holland league team was re-venge on the Kalamazoo Normals Saturday for defeat at their hands on Friday by handing out a 9 to 1 beating to the Celery Cityites in a seven-inning contest which was cut short by rain. Harry Shelly was on the slab for Holland, and toyed with the future pedagogues, striking out eleven and allowing but four hits, the one run scored being due to a scratchy three-bagger down first base line just out of Penfold's reach.

It was the first Boosters' day of the season and despite most unfavorable weather conditions a crowd of 500 turned out. Almost every man of the Holland team featured either on the bases or in the field. Hine stole third and home in one inning, and five other sacks were pilfered on Damoth, said to be the best throwing catcher in state college ranks. It was the Normals' first defeat of the season and they fought every inch of the ground gamely despite the one-sidedness of the score.

Manager Dickerson of the Holland baseball team of the State league has signed Pitcher "Vance," who has been in Chicago for several years playing semi-professional ball and making good at it. Vance is none other than Jacob VanPutten, a former Holland lad, who for a number of years was the star pitcher of Holland teams. He also came to Grand Haven several times and pitched for local aggregations. The Holland fans are very joyful over the announcement of the signing of Pitcher VanPutten. Grand Haven Tribune.

The Kalamazoo Normals defeated the Holland league team Friday 4 to 1. The Normals hit Woldring when hits meant runs. Vance of the Grand Rapids team joined Holland today. Pitcher Tindale of the Kalamazoo team goes to the Boyne City team of the Michigan league as soon as school closes. Score:

The South End Independents won the first game in the series for the city championship Saturday, defeating the North Siders 3 to 0. The two South End pitchers, Prins and Browner, allowed but one hit each, while five were counted off. Box of the North Siders: The South Ends also played errorless ball. They will play the fast Hope college team Saturday, and the manager wishes to book Saturday games with Coopersville, Berlin, Fremont, or any other fast team in the state. Address: communications to Will Donkers, 10 West Eighteenth street, Holland, Mich.

Yesterday the locals took another closely contested game from Muskegon by a score of 6 to 5. Holland scored once in each of the first two innings but Muskegon jumped into the lead by taking one in the second and two more in the third. In the sixth the locals evened up things by making the out-out once more. In the first half of the seventh the visitors got most to Shelly for two more. It was anybody's game up to this point but the last half of the "Terrible Seventh" settled all hopes of the Muskegonites. Hines led off with a home run over the right field fence, Shaw drew a pass, and Vance pounded another out of the lot bringing in Shaw ahead of him and winning the game. Score:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Holland	1	1	0	0	0	3	0	0

The Holland Independents have one of the strongest semi-pro teams in western Michigan and the Tigers are going after the Holland bunch with a greatly strengthened lineup. Joe Brownell well known to local baseball fans as the former groundskeeper and practically the builder of Lehigh park at Grand Rapids and later groundkeeper at Ramona Athletic field, has accepted a similar situation with Manager Forrest B. Dickerson of the Holland State League team. He is already on the job and has in mind many improvements on the cozy little park in which the Holland team plays its home games.

Holland defeated Muskegon in the opening game of the Michigan State league here Tuesday by the score of 9 to 8.

Mayor Stephan without coat or vest pitched the first ball, and alderman Van Tongern tried to swat it with all his might knowing it was a republican ball, but it landed safely in President Emerson Dickersons mit who did honors behind the bat after that the real game was on.

The game opened with a slugging bee on both sides, Vance for Holland and Tierney for Muskegon featuring with home runs. A brilliant onehanded catch by Penfold, Holland first basemen, nipped two runs. Muskegon fielded loosely, being chalked will six errors. Both teams used two pitchers.

Batteries—Shelly Jewel and Spriggs; Farrand, Bomers and Ryan. Attendance—600.

Word has been received here that Rev. D. H. Mayskens who has accepted a call to the Christian Reformed church at Patterson, N. J., and who recently declined one to the 14th street church here, met with considerable misfortune in moving his goods across the river to the main land from Oak Harbor, Wash. his old pastorate, the ship having caught fire and all of his goods being destroyed.
