Swim Pool Dedication Set June 8

Holland's new outdoor swimming pool in Smallegang Park, to be known as the Bouws Recreation Pool, will be dedicated Saturday, June 8. City Council was informed by Councilman Al Kleis Jr. Wednesday night. Kleis is chairman of the pool committee.

Kleis said plans call for the pool to operate Monday through Saturday, with competitive swimming in the morning, and open and family swimming in afternoons and evenings.

Admission will be 50 cents for children and 75 cents for adults, but city residents may purchase advance tickets at the city treasurer's office in multiples of 10 at a 30 per cent discount. Proof of residency must be given at the time. There also will be a 10-cent locker and key charge.

The admission charges were approved 7-1, Councilman Ken Beelen dissenting on the basis he thought the prices too high.

Brochures will be prepared, Kleis said. He added work is basically completed. Parking area will be improved later.

Councilman James Vande Poel of the City Hall remodeling committee recommended a fire escape on the west side of city hall, moving air conditioning equipment to the third floor for Council Chambers, and providing a partition in one of the NIS offices to provide a small office for the City Employees Credit Union. Quotations on this work will be sought from contractors engaged in remodeling the BPW meter quarters into a computer center.

Contracts for computer center remodeling were awarded to Tab Products Co., environmental control equipment, $8,300; De Pree Electric Co., electrical construction, $5,153; and Langejans Building and Supply, general remodeling $10,060. The city manager pointed out that the bids exceeded estimates by some $1,500 and a transfer from contingencies was approved. A lower electrical bid had been withdrawn because of an error.

The city manager reported on the impact of the Fair Labor Standards Act which has been amended to apply its requirements to local governments. This means municipal employees must be paid for time worked in excess of 40 hours a week, aside from exceptions for police and fire employees. The city manager said overtime applications will be conserved as much as possible but felt it imperative that Council take some action at the next meeting either to agree to pay overtime or reduce the levels of service.

A petition with 42 signatures representing 25 addresses requested surfacing of 33rd St. from Washington to Pioneer Aves. The city manager pointed out that since this section is slated for a storm sewer installation, it is not Council's policy to improve a street and then tear it apart. He said he does not expect installation until next year at the earliest.

Jason Roels, 322 West 23rd St., pointed out that the city had received $30,000 last year from Allegan county for its one-mile levy to be used for bridges and streets and would be receiving another $30,000 this year, which could finance the project. The city manager said that the city would be spending $70,000 on street improvements this year on the Allegan county portion of the city, not counting 33rd St. The petition was tabled.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society was granted a 24-hour beer-liquor license for a dance in Holland Armory June 15. Inasmuch as there had been some complaints on noise at a previous dance, a spokesman promised that efforts would be made to keep the noise down.

Council granted permission to William Clay to connect with the city sewer in the South Shore area. His problem was regarded as a special problem and not a precedent for sewer connections.

Michigan Bell Telephone Co. was granted permission to connect its 24th St. property to city sewer service at a cost of $4,941.66.

Council also granted permission to HEDCOR, represented by Roscoe Giles, to proceed with a sanitary sewer service extension south of 48th St., the work to be done by private contractor, based on established standards.

Break-In Investigated

Holland police today investigated a break-in at Mr. Steak restaurant, 175 east Eighth St., where a few packages of cigarettes and some crackers were missing. The break-in was reported at 6:39 a.m. Tuesday and was believed to have occurred after 2 a.m. today. Entry was believed gained through the roof area, police said.

Board Okays Development Program

The Hospital Board approved a long range planning committee to retain TriBrook Group Inc. for a new hospital development program at its regular meeting Tuesday, but because of legal necessities and some further study asked City Council to delete the item from its agenda at its meeting tonight.

The Hospital Board has been studying its proposed coordinated program for some time which includes a reorganization for a hospital authority, and all the ramifications for public health inspection, the Economic Stabilization Program and other aspects.

A review of the situation in which a contract technically posed a loss of up to $80,000 in Medicare benefits indicated the figure is much less than $80,000.

Other items listed a number of gifts: Auxiliary Board for $2,568.70, March of Dimes for $2,000 and Margaret Hummer Guild of $2,000, all towards a fetal monitor; Marvin Albers, two vacuum cleaners for $319.90; and $2,110 in Memory of Mildred L. Anderson, a nurse, to be used for equipment in the pediatric department. At least 20 donors were listed for the latter gift.

Allows City to Assume Responsibility

BPW Ends Duplicate Work

Apparently realizing the old saying "You can't fight City Hall," Board of Public Works General manager Ronald L. Rainson announced Monday his staff no longer would duplicate work performed by the general city.

Instead the BPW would concentrate on the "most important projects" and submitted a list of 24 "essential BPW Projects" necessary to the survival of the BPW.

In a prepared statement read at the BPW meeting Rainson said "General City and BPW bickering and job duplication is at an all time high. It is being done under all sorts of righteous guises by both sides but it costs us time and the citizens of Holland a great deal of money."

"With every department of the BPW in a crisis situation we have only enough staff for the most important projects."

Thus, Rainson said, "at this morning's BPW staff meeting our managers were asked to discontinue wherever possible all non essential work, to avoid all job duplications within the total city, to refrain from contention for responsibilities with the general city and to bend every effort to the completion of their necessary daily operating tasks and these projects."

An example of the "bending" was shown later in Monday's BPW meeting when it was recommended by City Manager William L. Bopf and City Engineer Gordon Start that two engineering firms be hired to develop plans for sanitary and storm sewer installations. The BPW had recommended the hiring of a different firm for the Central Ave. sewer project because the firm was under consideration for expansion plans at the waste treatment plant.

But the BPW approved a motion "recommending" the firm but saying there would be no objections if the city chose other engineering firms.

Rainson said eight of the "essential projects" have been completed including rate increases for electric and water and a $315,000 savings in the first year a cost control system. Projects in process include pollution control at the electric plant, a long term coal supply for electric generation, township water supplies and evaluation of the sanitary sewer collection system.

After the meeting Monday, Rainson told newsmen the BPW would continue to cooperate with the city, but now if the BPW was working on a project and the city decided it could perform the work the BPW would step aside and let the city take over.

Areas in question, Rainson said, include planning and use of sanitary sewers and inspections and evaluations of sewers.

The city charter charges the BPW with maintaining and expanding water and electric systems but allows the city council to assign such responsibilities for waste treatment systems to another board, in this case the BPW.

In other action Monday, the BPW referred back to the panel of electrical inspectors for more study proposed revisions in the city's 1922 electrical code and authorized the general manager to negotiate for purchase of a private electrical distribution system in the Ken-Mar mobile home park on Lincoln Ave.

Rainson praised the work of U.S. Rep. Guy Vander Jagt who helped in locating a possible source of oil to operate boilers at the electric plant.

City Council Meets For Three Hours

At a three-hour meeting Wednesday night, one of the longest in recent years, City Council processed a lengthy agenda ranging from bond bids and public hearings to sewer reports, city policies, traffic and appointments.

The length of the meeting was somewhat due to a postponement from last week because of Tulip Time. Mayor Pro Tem Donald D. Oosterbaan presided in the absence of Mayor Lou Hallacy who is attending a company convention in Nevada.

Sale of $1.8 million general obligation water supply bonds brought seven bids, and council approved low bid of First of Michigan Corporation of Detroit and associates at an interest rate of 5.9673. Total interest for the 25-year period runs $1,638,460.25. Other bids ranged up to 6.238 per cent.

Bond Counsel Charles Moon told Council that the bids although somewhat higher than was hoped represented a very good sampling of the investment market. He said municipal, government and utility bonds have been coming into the market and the upward trend in rates is noted almost daily. He added that the 5.97 low bid on tax exempt bonds is equivalent to the 12 per cent figure on other issues.

Council also held public hearings on two ordinance amendments and approved a third which did not require a public hearing. No objections were voiced at the hearings.

One ordinance rezones property on the east side of Washington Ave., between 28th and 29th Sts., from C-1 neighborhood commercial and A-2 and two-family residential to B-1 apartment. The other rezones an area along the south side of Eighth St. from Lincoln Ave., east to Western Foundry property from D-1 industrial to C-2 commercial.

The third ordinance amendment concerns the sign ordinance and relaxes certain restrictions previously approved. For instance, temporary yard signs are allowed for garage or porch sales, etc., but only on the day or days the sale is in progress. The sign must not exceed six square feet in area.

Council set a revised budget hearing June 5 so that the first levy of millage to defray the cost of $1.1 million general obligation bonds voted June 7 for storm and sanitary sewers will be in the July tax bills. This will increase the city tax rate by .695 mill, a slight reduction from the estimated .75 mill given in advance projection.

Council tabled a city manager recommendation to have traffic on Eighth St. one way east between Pine and River Aves. The original recommendation called for tabling until next meeting, but Council action left tabling indefinite.

An intensive study by the city manager's staff, the BPW and the engineering office on development of an over-density tap charge revealed that there should be no implementation at this time, but the report stated that Council, the Planning Commission and the Board of Public Works are now alert to the problems and there is no question that new interceptors will be needed within the next five years.

Mayor Pro Tem Oosterbaan commended members of the urban studies class of Holland Christian High School for attending the entire three-hour meeting, and he spoke briefly of the visit he and Councilman Hazen Van Kampen and their wives made to Traverse City on Mayor Exchange Day Monday. He presented a plaque from Traverse City commemorating the opening of their Dial-A-Ride system which had just been implemented. The plaque will hang in Mayor Hallacy's office.

All Council members were present except Mayor Hallacy. The Rev. Paul Colenbrander of Maplewood Reformed Church gave the invocation.

CONESTOGA HIGH BAND OF BERWYN, PENNSYLVANIA PERFORMS IN CENTENNIAL PARK

Classy Pennsylvania Band Is Enjoying Visit

By Ann Hungerford
They needed $20,000 to make the trip to this year's Tulip Festival.

So in typical high class style the 100 members of the Conestoga High School Band from Berwyn, Penn., raised $26,000.

According to their director, Anton Kiehner, the money is being well spent as he told the crowd listening to their band concert Friday night in Centennial Park, "We're having a ball. Something happens when you come here. It's the warmest thing." He addressed the local residents, "You've got a good thing going for you."

But his enthusiasm for the friendliness of the city still allowed him to chide the weather situation in Holland. He announced the orchestra's next selection, "It Never Rains in California," and coyly added "or in Holland, Mich."

The recent bad weather did allow the group, which arrived Thursday night, an opportunity to see the children's parade and local bands. Everything was nutty and fantastic," Kiehner said. "It was a real eye opener for kids who don't really know what a town is like," he said, hoping the expression didn't sound trite.

Kiehner describes Berwyn as a "fairly wealthy suburb of Philadelphia," and said the high school students were really enjoying just talking to local people, something which hasn't always been possible during the band's other trips over the years.

Among other places while he was director, Kiehner said, the band has played in the St. Patrick's Day parade in New York City, Washington, D. C., Atlantic City, Expo '67, the Kentucky Derby, and at pro football games.

Kiehner's decision to take his band to Holland started two years ago when his parents came to Holland for a visit and told him he just had to bring the band to the Tulip Festival. He received the invitation to appear this year and the group went to work.

"Not as enthusiastically after we reached our goal," he admits, "but we had two more fund raising projects on our schedule and I was determined they wouldn't be cancelled." The extra $6,000 will be used for future trips.

Part of the money was raised by selling 25,000 submarine sandwiches, paper drives and numerous other activities.

"We never go anywhere without the band and orchestra," the personable director said. "And I always try to schedule a concert so we don't just walk down a street," he added.

The band is being lodged in Kollen Hall of the Hope College campus and on the portable bulletin board in the lobby, the students placed a sign, "Pray for Sun."

For all their enthusiasm and determination maybe it just doesn't rain on the classy band from Berwyn, Penn.

Sellout Crowd Thrilled By Barbershop Quartets

By Cornelia Van Voorst

Before a sellout house, Barbershoppers staged their Tulip Time gala in Civic Center Friday night before one of the most enthusiastic audiences on record. And Tulip Time barbershop parades go back a long time . . . at least 30 years.

In recent years, the Holland chapter has wisely cut down the number of quartets . . . usually four quartets plus the Windmill Chorus founded many years ago by one of the nation's most avid barbershop enthusiasts, Willis A. Diekema, composer of the SPEBSQSA theme song, "Keep America Singing." And it was Diekema who left his front row seat to lead the chorus and visiting quartets in the finale.

Modern trends in male apparel were evident in quartet outfits, with lots of emphasis on splashy colors, rich velvets, ruffled shirts, and the ever-present bow ties. Eclipsing all quartets in appearance were the Galaxies of Grand Rapids, Pioneer district champions, who sported lime green outfits with dark green velvet trim. These spanking new outfits were worn for the first time.

It was an evening of barbershop singing at its best, although new sound equipment at times could have used a more gentle hand on volume controls.

Climaxing quartet was Gentleman's Agreement of Detroit, 1971 international champions, who mixed old barbershop chords with slick new arrangements of "Fiddler on the Roof" as well as the theme from "Love Story." To prove they could sing most anything, they included such country favorites as "Shanendoah" and "Country Roads."

"Saturday's Heroes" of Chicago area mixed high comedy with barbershop music that had the huge crowd all but rolling in the aisles. It was baritone Jim Foley who captured his listeners with a monologue of "pure corn" compared with more sophisticated stories of other quartets.

The Cardinals of Evanston, Ind., reveled in comedy and good singing and on one occasion featured Mike Lucas, formerly of Holland, as soloist. Mike formerly sang with the Chord Counts in Holland. Their arrangement of the quartet from "Rigoletto" in somewhat free form brought down the house. Mike also served as master of ceremonies.

The Grand Rapids Galaxies demonstrated a wide range of talent from Johnny Cash's "Green Green Hills of Home" to the comical "Don't Bring Lulu," showing that brand of perfection evident in all prize-winning quartets.

It remained for the Windmill Chorus to add real drama with black light on huge polka dot bow ties and candy striped canes. In singing "The Sunshine of Your Smile," an arrangement by Diekema, they doffed their straw hats to display happy faces on the top. In true barbershop tradition, members wore striped shirts with arm garters. The chorus this year has two directors, Mike Oonk of Holland and Del Doctor of Muskegon.

GARDENS ARE IMPORTANT

Woman's View, by Gay Pauley UPI Women's Editor has this to say: "The minigardens are again the maxi thing in popularity. Technically, they're known as terrariums, indoor gardens that can thrive in anything from fancy drinking glasses to spheres a yard across and displayed on tripods.

"The whole minigarden is a big thing again, a big gift item," said Kerry Fitzgerald, who runs one of New York's best known landscaping businesses. "You should see the books coming out just on terrariums alone," he said. "Certainly, I think the new popularity is because we're so urbanized. Yet there's still the green thumb within us all."

"Terrariums have been with us for hundreds of years. Victorian homes often contained several, each depicting a different natural terrain.

"People today hang them, use them as room dividers, when tired of the goldfish convert the bowl into a garden," Fitzgerald said. "They're wonderful for children's rooms, popular as a gift to anyone hospitalized."

"Fitzgerald, who studied landscaping in his native New Zealand, came to this country eight years ago and went to work for Philip True, who ran the City Gardener Inc. When True retired to write books, Fitzgerald took over the 20-year-old firm which keeps some of New York area's poshest roof and backyard gardens, apartments and houses a greenery paradise.

"A couple of other experts on terrariums are Judith Handelman, a former reporter and copywriter, and Sara Baerwald, former teacher, who run an indoor and outdoor landscaping business called Greenworks. They've put together a paperback on plant care, also titled 'Greenworks.'"

This is the time of the year when more and more people are going to be outside enjoying the weather and they no doubt will be more interested in gardening. This could help with the cost of living.

When Is A Man Really Free?
Acts 26: 19-32
By C. P. Dame

This is the last lesson of this series. In it Paul gives several facts about himself to several dignitaries who wanted to hear a man who differed radically from his hearers—he, although a prisoner, was free while his hearers were slaves of sin.

I. We'll note first how Paul became a prisoner. In last week's lesson we noted what happened to Paul in Jerusalem and how he spoke to the temple crowds and how his reference to the Gentiles caused a new outburst of fury which compelled the soldiers to rescue him and bring him to the barracks. When Paul told the centurion he was a Roman citizen he saved himself from a scourging. Because of the danger of being killed by the Jews, Paul was brought under heavy guard to Caesarea and tried before Felix the governor who heard a sermon which made him tremble. Festus replaced Felix. When the Jews asked that Paul be brought to Jerusalem for a trial he appealed to Caesar knowing that if he were brought to Jerusalem he would be killed by the Jews.

When Festus was waiting for a ship to send Paul to Rome, king Agrippa, who was an apostate Jew, with his sister Bernice, paid a visit to Festus who told him about Paul. Agrippa asked to hear Paul and so he was ushered in the palace hall, chained, and spoke. He was not on trial, he did not give a defense but gave a story of his life.

II. Let us take a look at Paul's address. Note the three themes. In verses 4 to 11, Paul deals with his life before his conversion, in verses 12 to 15 with his conversion, and verses 16 to 18 tell about his commission to serve Jesus Christ and preach to lost mankind. In obedience to his call he served and suffered freely. While Paul spoke eloquently about Christ, his suffering and resurrection Festus interrupted Paul saying, "Much learning doth make thee mad." We need earnestness and zeal today!

The interruption gave Paul a chance to address Agrippa to ask him about his attitude to the prophets who foretold about Jesus. The answer of Agrippa is explained variously—was he serious or jesting? Take a good look at the reply of Paul—he wished that he might be as he was except his chains, be a Christian, with peace in his soul and have the freedom which only a believer enjoys. Paul's hearers were slaves of sin, he was free from its bondage, but a slave of Jesus Christ. The hearers were impressed but not changed and continued to live as slaves of sin. We hear much about freedom today. Who are really free?

Shrine Club Show Has Polish, Pace, Pizazz

By Helen Wright

From the opening notes on the stroke of 8 p.m. until the final stirring strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever," the Tulip Time Concert of the Saladin Temple's Million Dollar Band and Chanters moved at a brisk pace in a program that was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience in Civic Center.

There is a professional polish to these two groups that attests to their faithful practice and performance as they tour Western Michigan for the benefit of the Shrine Hospitals for Crippled Children and Shrine Burns Institutes.

The crowd was mainly Tulip Time guests from many states, tour groups, many of whom have attended previous concerts on annual visits to the Holland Festival.

The selections played by the band and sung by the Chanters were all crowd-pleasing, ranging from familiar band classics, to show tunes to Dixieland and "big band" era favorites.

Soloists Kathleen Coe and Norman Bradley of Grand Rapids added luster to the concert with well-chosen selections designed to showcase Miss Coe's litting soprano and Bradley's robust baritone voice. The audience would have gladly heard encores from both, if the fast-pace program had allowed for them.

The Chanters provided a pleasing balance of male voices

Announce New Director For Red Barn Theatre

Saugatuck's Red Barn Theatre, now in its 17th season, asked its audience what it wanted, and this season the audience will get what it wants: new faces, fresh productions, some face lifting and a new director.

Behind the change is Ted Kistler, director of Kalamazoo's New Vic, a seven-year-old cabaret theatre. Kistler states that planning for the upcoming season has only started, the schedule includes a minimum of three musicals and a new cast of professional actors.

The season will open with "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" and he is considering an oldie, probably either "Arsenic and Old Lace" or "The Man Who Came To Dinner," as well as Neil Simon's "Prisoner of Second Avenue," and the musical "Company."

Part of the thrust of the new Red Barn plan is youthfulness; but Kistler is a veteran of show business. He has one season as an actor with the Hull House Touring Theatre out of Chicago; four years as an entertainer, most of it folk singing; two years as director and actor at Sister Lakes Playhouse; and three years as director of the Marshall Civic Theatre in Marshall.

Kistler is excited over his new responsibilities as director of the Red Barn. When asked why he took the job, said that there were three reasons: the Barn's reputation, playing to new audiences and to bring summer stock up to date.

Summer stock needs an update, Kistler indicated. The owners of Red Barn knew that last season, when they did market research work handled by a Western Michigan University student, Survey results indicated the audience was tired of tradition summer stock and new faces were needed.

Kistler will have a new professional company, and plans to make changes in the Barn. Notable among these changes are a thrust stage and less emphasis on traditional proscenium productions.

More leg room and better ventilation is planned.

The play list will be announced soon, geared to summer stock fare.

Kistler earned at least part of his reputation for serious theatre material, especially "Hadrian VII," as well as "Under Milkwood." Kistler has directed, "See How They Run," "Company" as well as a multimedia presentation of "Camelet."

The market research was responsible for the changes at the Red Barn. The owners said Kistler's selection was carefully made and they are confident that he will update not only the Red Barn, but the summer stock tradition.

James Dyas has been producer-director at the Red Barn Theatre for 16 years.

Military Records, Topic at Seminar

The Tulip Time motif was used at the booth of the Holland Genealogical Society at the genealogical seminar which was held last Friday and Saturday at Calvin College in Grand Rapids.

Committee chairmen Ken Jordan of Grand Rapids and Alan Bosch of Wyoming decorated the booth with bouquets of tulips, wooden shoes filled with Dutch candies and Dutch costumed dolls in addition to genealogical materials concerning Western Michigan Dutch heritage. Darlene Winter, attired in a Volendam Dutch dress, was hostess at the booth for the evening.

The seminar, sponsored by the Michigan State Genealogical Council and hosted by the Western Michigan Genealogical Society of Grand Rapids featured a reception Friday evening for James Dent Walker, director of local history and genealogical research at the National Archives in Washington D.C. The 175 guests were able to examine the materials shown by all participating chapters as well as to exchange ideas and data during the evening.

Walker gave the main address Saturday morning, a detailed presentation on the military records of personnel separated from the U.S. Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marine Corps and Navy, beginning with data available on the soldiers and civilian volunteers of the Revolution and continuing to the late 1890s. Many of the early records are quite incomplete and give only a serviceman's name and unit with whom he fought; which affords the genealogical researcher with little data about him or his family, Walker stated. However, since pensions were provided additional information is frequently available. Some series contain "bounty applications and records" where the serviceman was granted 160 acres or more for his services. This is especially true of the Revolution and the War of 1812.

Walker said that beginning with the Civil War much more information is given on the forms for the Union soldiers. He pointed out that during the first two years of the war, the states had charge of the enlistments and drafting of military persons; and therefore those records would be preserved in archives of the various states.

There are some records available to those researchers who desire information about Confederate military men. While some of those records were burned to prevent the Federal government seizing them, others were turned over to the Union officers when the unit surrendered.

Records relating to military service ended more than 75 years ago are available for public examination and copies can be provided. Records of military personnel who served within the past 75 years however, are subject to restrictions imposed by the military under the Public Information Act of 1966. Although such records cannot be made available for public examination or copies provided, information from them may be furnished to members of the family on a very restricted basis, Walker emphasized.

During the afternoon session, Mrs. Geneva Kebler Wiskemann, who has just completed 27 years in the field of genealogy and local history at both the State Library and the State Archives of Michigan in Lansing, explained about the materials available there regarding citizens of Michigan who had served in the various wars. Mrs. Wiskemann also touched briefly on other records of the state government which are helpful to genealogists. Some of these are papers of former governors, lists of persons who have been committee members, recipients of various state services and appointees.

Members of the Holland society who attended from the Holland area included Edward

Duryee to Head Citizen's Group

Graham Duryee was named chairman of the Citizens Advisory Council to the Ottawa County Juvenile Court at its meeting May 13. Other officers elected for the coming year were Ken Sebens, vice chairman; Nancy Jean Buskirk, secretary; Martheen Cook, treasurer and Fernando Munoz, member-at-large.

Duryee succeeds Sharon Rucker as chairman. She was cited for her work as chairman for the first year of the council.

Don Meindertma, director of court services, gave a progress report on the juvenile justice seminars on rules of evidence in juvenile court and parent effectiveness training.

A panel of punior high principals discussed rules for suspension of children from school. Included on the panel were Ed Roberts, West Ottawa; Richard Wagemaker, Jenison; John Van Straat, Grand Haven and John Noe, Holland.

The next meeting, open to the public, is June 11 in the Grand Haven County Building.

Prins, president; Mildred Waddell and Marian Dawson, vice presidents; Amy Jansen, chairperson of the hospitality committee; Vera Moser and Byron Cross, members of the program committee and Sena Oosterhof, Darlene Winter and Ralph Haan represented the Herrick Public Library as well.

The next meeting of the Holland Society is at 10 a.m. June 15. A patio coffee and a trip to a local cemetery is planned by the committee. Members will meet at the home of Darlene and John Winter, 3282 Elderwood, for coffee before being given supplies and directions to a nearby cemetery, where tracings of tombstones will be demonstrated and a list made of the graves there. In the event of inclement weather the meeting will be held at the Herrick Public Library.

CONTESTOGA HIGH BAND, BERWYN, PENNSYLVANIA

'WHAT A PLACE TO HAVE TO WATCH MOMMY DO HER DANCE'

Tulip Time Sidelights

One meets people from all over at Tulip Time band parades. On Saturday it was a nice lady of Alexandria, Ind., who said her city's school band was marching.

So we were all set to watch the third band in the fourth division, the Alexandria Monroe High School Band, which made a fine appearance. At the head marched a whole team of majorettes, all of them sporting short, attractive hairdos. Asked how that happened, the visiting woman said they were required to cut their hair for the Tulip Time appearance.

"Didn't they protest?" "There were some tears, but they all did it."

We don't expect everybody to agree, but short hair and short skirts seem to go together for majorettes.

Did you recognize all those Disneyland characters marching with the Zeeland High School Band Saturday?

They all appeared in a fine marching presentation of Disney tunes and folk characters at the band review at Riverview Park. Yes, Zeeland got a No. 1 rating.

Overcast skies covered Holland for the big events Saturday afternoon and although a few sprinkles of rain fell, few if any people left their places. And when the parade was over, the sun came out, and it was a lovely day.

The sun shone early, the sun shone late. All in all, it was a good day. Sunday was even nicer.

People living in the parade marshaling area near Columbia Ave. often find the parade lineup more interesting there than watching the spectacle on the parade route. Here, floats line up early, bandsmen arrive at scattered times, other bands march in smartly after participating in the band review, klompen dancers scramble in and out, and several convertibles and flatbeds loop around for a second and third trip. It's all terribly confusing but it all comes out right. Years of experience pay off.

Saturday's band review was tops in performance and the three judges, Eugene Heeter, Ray Roth and Gerald Bartlett, gave 12 of the 15 bands first division ratings. Saluting them for generosity in the judges' press box, their rejoinder was: "Not generous, the bands earned it."

Receiving first division ratings were Lee High School, Zeeland High School, Hudsonville High School, Columbia Central Band, Cedar Springs High School, Corunna High School, Jenison High School, Charlotte High School, East Kentwood, Owosso Wayne Memorial and John Glenn High School of Westland.

Wayne Memorial High School Band and John Glenn High School Band almost didn't make the band review. They were held up in traffic, and came marching down Columbia Ave. about five minutes before Wayne was to take the field.

Henry Vander Linde, who runs band reviews with the same precision, discipline and relaxed nerves as he does all those Christian school bands, was not going to delay the review. That would botch up the parade schedules.

Everybody was glad it turned out well.

Visiting bands are given precise routes to enter Holland on Band Day. It's a matter of taking 16th St., not M-21 where all the tieups are.

The succession of cars, buses, floats and whatnot on 16th St. after the parade is a parade in itself. This street is one of the much used but not officially marked entrances into the city. After the new I-196 between Holland and Grand Rapids is opened, it will be the main route.

Holland police, assisted by sheriff's officers and state police, did a marvelous job keeping traffic moving in the big rush which lasted well over an hour.

Smart people who have been to Holland often on Tulip Time's big day remain in parks or rest in their cars for that hour, thereby avoiding the wait.

Those vintage cars in Saturday's parade proved particularly interesting to Dr. Zachary Veldhuis, 104-year-old grand marshal, who watched the parade from Civic Center after riding the route.

He spotted several models similar to cars he owned in the early days of working as a veterinarian, particularly the Fords.

"Yes, I knew Henry Ford personally," he said.

The venerable gentleman, still spry, was accompanied by the Rev. Roger Vander Kolk, pastor of Haven Reformed Church in Hamilton which Dr. Veldhuis attends.

The Bellevue High School band, directed by William Wiersma, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wiersma of Zeeland, marched in Saturday's parade, for the third time, under the direction of Wiersma who has been there three years. He is a graduate of Holland Christian High and marched for Henry Vander Linde. Bellevue is near Battle Creek.

Although they were two of the busiest persons during all of Tulip Time heading the housing bureau in Civic Center, Mattie Buursma and Harriet Kluthof found time on one occasion to help a klompen dancer who wasn't wearing enough socks. They removed several pair of their own.

Klompen dancers usually wear eight to 10 pairs of socks and sometimes as many as 14 or 16. But whatever the number, the top one has to be black.

Avery D. Baker, one of the marshals at Saturday's parade, lost a small pair of Army Air Force cadet wings at the marshaling area around 10th St. and Columbia Ave. Saturday. He also lost $20. He doesn't expect the return of his money, but would appreciate the wings which he has carried about 30 years. They are tiny propeller wings about 1½ inch across.

Playing a comedy role, Avery wore his old Army Blouse and shouted "hurray for Alf Landon" along the parade route. Senior citizens got a laugh.

Jenison Public Schools probably holds the record for the largest item reported missing during the Tulip Time festival. The schools said a tuba used in the Saturday parade was missing. The instrument was valued at between $800 and $1,000. It was last seen resting beneath a tree in Kollen Park and was reported missing at 6:32 p.m. Saturday.

"Oh no, I'm going to the program in Civic Center tonight," he said.

The Charlotte Band made its 36th appearance at Tulip Time band festivals Saturday, and its 27th under director Robert Powell. Their presentation consisted of precision marching and Broadway show tunes. Yes, they got a first division rating.

The first band review with Gene Heeter as chairman was held in 1933.

Black River spilled over its banks in many areas between Holland and Zeeland Thursday afternoon. Small streams also flooded many areas. Some people complained of water in basements.

Did you notice that winsome little miss with the whisk broom on the front page of Thursday's Sentinel.

Hopper Girls Delight Douglas Garden Club

Nancy and Betsy Hopper, junior horticulturists, presented a fascinating program "How Does Your Garden Grow" for a record crowd at the Douglas Garden Club Monday at Douglas Community Church.

As a preliminary the girls passed out three sheets on "A Garden Glossary for Beginners"; "Seed/Plant Source Finder for 1974" and "My Favorite Garden Books" to the members to become a part of their gardening libraries.

The girls showed slides of how to make your garden grow with Nancy pointing out the six steps necessary for good growth. This included soil preparation before planting; the addition of fertilizers, especially peat moss as a mulch; the use of stakes to acquaint the grower with what is coming up and to act as a guard against garden enemies; the need for daily weeding so the water is conserved for the plants and the use of garden dust as a protection against enemy insects.

Naming the six garden enemies as grasshoppers, spotted cucumber beetle, striped cucumber beetle, Mexican bean beetle, aphids and white grubs, the girls pointed out that there are three "friendly" insects—lady bugs, dragon flies and praying mantis.

Betsy's favorite crops she said are radishes and carrots, but she pointed out planting 200 strawberry plants using pine needles for mulch was quite a job for an 11-year-old girl. Nancy Hopper, who is 15, won a $200 first prize for a 12x12 garden of designated flowers and
