10-31-1990

The Anchor, Volume 102.08: October 31, 1990

Hope College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.hope.edu/anchor_1990

Part of the Library and Information Science Commons

Recommended Citation

http://digitalcommons.hope.edu/anchor_1990/21
Retirement community built on 7th

Scott A. Kaukonen and Hope Vanderbilt, Freedom Village is "something beyond the condo." According to Executive Director and former Hope College professor and coach, Dr. William Vanderbilt, Freedom Village is "progressing on schedule. It will open in September 1991."

Work on Freedom Village, a new retirement community in Holland, is

Students dance for Halloween

p. 8-9

Manchester gives rise to new sound

p. 11

Prof-run Bible studies offered to students

by Pam Lundberg

feature editor

"To get more students involved, and to increase student-professor contact" are two of the reasons professors have been asked to run Bible Studies, said Chaplain Van Aarendonk, who organized them.

These "new" Bible studies started a few weeks ago, and are based on the subjects of "Love", "Christian Growth", "Spirit-Lead Life", "Prayer", and the book The Road Less Traveled. Running these sessions are Dr. Boulton, Chaplain Van Heest, Carol Simon and Steve Taylor. Dr. Boulton agreed to run a Bible study on Love, "Because I enjoy it. I like talking about the Bible without the academic restraints of a classroom. I like talking about the Bible openly." He explained these groups as an equal relationship between the professor and student where neither is an expert.

The students in these groups are from varying backgrounds. The intensity of the group is determined by the professor and the students together. "These groups are more of a study group than a prayer group," said Chaplain VanAarendonk, "However, the meetings will probably begin and end with prayer."

Along with increased contact between professors and students and increased student involvement, the goals of these groups include allowing professors to pass on their excitement about their subject to the students. Dr. Boulton's goals, in his study of "Christian Love", are, for example, "To show how exciting it is to let the Bible speak to those who listen." To him, there is "No subject of higher importance in Christian life than Christian love." His Bible study will allow students to grapple with what it means (LOVE) in light of the Bible.

Dr. Boulton's Bible Study, starting this week, will differ from his class in the way that it will focus only on the Bible, and it will deal more with love in the life of the students.

So far these professor-run Bible studies have been well-received by many students and will continue next semester.

Students prepare for Nykerk

by Pam Schmidt

staff writer

In the spirit of Nykerk, this Saturday evening at 8 p.m., almost four hundred Hope students will take to the stage at the Holland Civic Auditorium. This year marks the 55th anniversary of the Nykerk competition. Over three hundred '93 and '94 song girls, sporting the traditional navy sweaters and skirts, will be escorted to their seats by thirty-five mustachioed guys in formal wear. This year there will be 175 '94 song girls and 135 '93 song girls competing.

The theme for oration this year is "The Silence of the Sun; the Rest in the Shadows." Leslie Schoon, '93 orator and Barbara Woodruff, '94 orator will present their interpretations of the theme.

The '94 play, titled "Prince Punnyfoot," is being coached by Leigh Ann Kayser ('92) and Joann Schma ('92). '93 Play coaches Ann Schioff ('91) and Renee Porter ('91) opted not to reveal the title of their play.
March against rape and violence draws small crowd

by Carrie Maples

campus editor

"We are here to take back the night," said Kristen Gray of the Center for Women in Transition. She was speaking to a group of about seventy-five gathered in the Centennial Park gazebo last Thursday night for the first Holland area "Take Back the Night" march.

The march evolved through the joint efforts of Gray, Susan Hansen of the National Organization of Women (NOW), and Fonda Green of the Hope College Office of Special Programs. People from the Holland Community and Hope students attended.

According to Hansen, NOW has been involved in "Take Back the Night" marches across the country for the past ten to twelve years. "NOW's part as much as anything was to get it (the march) started," said Hansen.

"Women should have the right to walk whenever and wherever they want or need to without fear of violence or harm," said Hansen. She explained that the goal of the march is to make people aware of the problem of sexual assault and the need to convict rapists.

Green said, "For Hope College the time is right for this march, in lieu of the explosion of sexual assault in the area." The march is an opportunity for people to vent their feelings and for survivors of assault to "take back" that incident and to "take back" the power the attacker has over them.

Gray gave the crowd the following statistics: every three minutes a woman is raped; every fifteen seconds a woman is battered; one in four women will be raped before she turns twenty-four; and according to the FBI ninety percent of all rapes go unreported.

Three speakers addressed the crowd at the gazebo, Madeline Perkins of the Center for Women in Transition; Jim Rotman of the Holland Police Department; and a Hope student who is a survivor of sexual assault.

Perkins commented on the expansion of the "circle of safety" for victims since 1977. "Our purpose here tonight is awareness," she said. Recently proposed legislation will allow batters to be prosecuted across state lines to prevent them from escaping justice. The legislation declares sexual assault a hate crime.

"Rape is very, very violent and this is something we want to get on top of," said Rotman. Rape takes place on two levels, the physical and the mental, after the bruises heal a victim may have to live with the memories for a lifetime.

Rotman talked about date rape as the betrayal of a friend. "Anyone who violates your body is a rapist and he needs to be put away." He explained that many rapists do it because they want to overpower women and that the police need help to put these people away. "Things like tonight are very important to help us get our job done," he said.

The young woman who has survived date rape and incest described disclosure and the betrayal of a friend. "Anyone who violates your body is a rapist and he needs to be put away." He explained that many rapists do it because they want to overpower women and that the police need help to put these people away. "Things like tonight are very important to help us get our job done," he said.

"What should I have done? What should I have done?" But those questions have no answers. "If you live through a rape, you did everything right," she said.

One problem victims run into is alienation from friends, who can't understand what a survivor is feeling, even when they mean well. Some friends, she explained, don't want to let the victim grieve but that needs to happen. "Don't take this from me," Ann said. "Let me heal."

"We are not pieces of meat, we are human beings. We do not want your sympathy. We demand your respect," Ann told the men in the crowd. "I am a woman and I will survive," she said.

Laura Holloway '91 played her guitar and sang three songs, two of which she had written especially for the march. The songs addressed the issues of domestic violence and rape.

At that point armbands were passed out to the crowd, red for survivors of assault and black for supporters of survivors. Candles were lit and the crowd marched from Centennial Park, through campus, downtown and back to the park.

The Center for Women in Transition provides counseling for victims of assault. They also have two safe houses that provide shelter for women who want to leave a violent domestic situation.

The Hope Counseling Center provides individual counseling for sexual assault including date rape and incest. A support group began in September but is closed now to new members. A new group will be starting up in January. For more information contact Pat Roehl at the Counseling Center, Ext. 7945.
Campaign class requires intern

by Hope Oscar
staff writer

Students are required to gain 72 hours of internship experience for the three credit Campaign Management class taught by Dr. Holmes.

Laura Whitwam, '91, a student in the Champaign Management course, said one of the benefits of the class was the help Dr. Holmes gave in finding internship opportunities. Christine Brink, '91, another class member, said, "Dr. Holmes allows us to get more involved in the campaign and have more responsibilities than stuffing envelopes. We get to work in areas where we want more experience."

Whitwam said she wants to help campaign because, "I feel like I'm putting something back into the system that's given me so much and I'm working for something that I believe in."

Whitwam said sometimes her internship involves "glamorous activities such as meeting Bill Schutte and John Engler or seeing George Bush." Whitwam said she also does "what needs to be done—stuffing envelopes, photocopying, and phoning."

Brinks internship involves generating volunteers from the Ottawa County High Schools. Brink said she talks to students in their government classes. Brink said, "At the high schools, handing out bumper stickers and signs is like handing out candy. The students are idealistic. This makes them enthusiastic and excited to get involved."

Brink said she decided to take the Campaign Management course since, "I wanted to learn more about campaigning, fundraising, and the organization that goes behind campaigning. I wanted to learn about the grassroots organization of campaigning."

Whitwam said she took the course because, "I wanted to see Engler and Schutte elected and I wanted to do everything I could to help their campaigns."

Brink said she learned from the class, "Campaigning is a lot of work and takes a lot of effort but with the right candidate doing the right things she or he can win."

Whitwam also learned she does not want to run for public office. She said, "I don't want my private life being made public. Candidates relinquish private life when they run. That's not for me but I do want to help somebody run."

Students protest quality of life

(CPS) — Saying they wanted more education for their dollars, students at the universities of the District of Columbia and Arizona separately protested the quality of their campus lives in last September.

The protests echoed a string of similar efforts, started during the 1989-90 school year, that featured complaints about campus services, living conditions and what students were getting for their tuition and fee money.

District of Columbia students shut down the campus Sept. 26, issuing 40 complaints ranging from the hours the library was open to the athletic department's condition.

When officials tried to resume classes five days later on Oct. 1 nearly all students continued to boycott classes.

"Our arguments are legitimate," said one protester who wouldn't give his name, "and we're not going to stop until we get what we want."

On Sept. 6, Arizona students decried cancelled classes and other enrollment problems at the campus.

"There was a general feeling by students that classes were being cancelled when tuition had gone up," explained Scott Malm of the Arizona Student Association.

About 100 students heard speakers blast cancelled classes, tuition hikes and budget cuts. More than 300 students signed "petition of concern," which were presented to the administration.

Such protests about various "quality of life" issues, including campus safety, classroom size, the quality of instructors and housing conditions, have become more common during the past two school years.

Earlier in September, some University of Southwestern Louisiana students demanded a partial refund of their housing fees because they are stuck in the only dorm that doesn't have air conditioning.

The University of Illinois' Student Union, a campus consumer group of off-campus students, already has gathered 39 complaints about lousy housing conditions, compared to 12 all last year.

Last school year, students at the universities of Rhode Island and South Carolina-Columbia, Tennessee-Maryville, and Syracuse universities, as well as Marygrove College in Detroit and Paine College in Georgia held similar "quality of life" protests.

Freedom— Continued from p. 1

As of Friday, 26 apartments had already been sold. Sun City and Sun City West in Peoria, Arizona, just outside of Phoenix, are the only such communities built by the Freedom Group to have sold more. Fifteen percent of the future residents are from out-of-state, representing 16 states. Sixty-three percent are from outside the Holland mailing address.

A number of the prospective-residents list Hope College as their alma mater. According to Vanderbilt, "The opportunity to one's college years is a new trend come back home to the area that seems to be picking in momentum around many of the nation's campuses. Vanderbilt said he sees the future relationship between Freedom Village and Hope College as "symbolic." Potential interactions include internships as well as part-time employment with their food service, though much "remains to be seen."

In addition to Vanderbilt, Roskamp, and the Freedom Group, Inc., the partnership responsible for Freedom Village includes former Hope College president Gordon Van Wylen, Ron Bove, John Tyuse and Edgar Prince.

The general contractor is Granger Construction and the buildings are concrete-stee1 reinforced, sound and fire proof. Occupancy is scheduled for early fall of 1991.

Public Safety says parking is sufficient

By Jill Sandor
staff writer

Public Safety says that there is adequate student parking on campus and there should be no parking problems this year, in spite of student grumbles.

Ray Gunknecht of Public Safety said that 804 student parking stickers have been issued this year although there are about 720 student parking spots. "The large amount of parking rotation accounts for the difference," he said. For example, students park in lots only certain hours of the day or certain times during the year.

"We have enough spaces for the students. It may not look that way according to the registration issue," Gunknecht said.

According to Public Safety, it would only be on rare occasions that all student lots are completely filled. There are enough campus parking places that such a situation should not have to occur.

Students who park on the street from two to five a.m. will be ticketed by the Holland Police Department.

In such a situation where students might need to park in a lot not designated to them (upperclass or faculty lots), they should call Public Safety and receive permission first. In such a situation no tickets would be issued. Gunknecht said that he has received appeals from students who feel they should not have to park so far from campus. "Students should take advantage of the Public Safety escort service," he said. The Peale Lot and Lot Q (Siberia) have phones from which students can call for escorts.

First year students are currently allowed to park only in Lots Q and F. They will be ticketed for parking in other lots.

Students living off-campus will not be issued campus parking permits.

SAC Silver Screen Series

NOVEMBER 2 & 3
One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest
Friday 9:30
Saturday 7:00 & 12:00
From Here to Eternity
Friday 7:00 & 12:00
Saturday 9:30

PARENTS ARE WELCOME!!!
$2.00 admission
Winants Auditorium, Graves
Rabbi Jacob Neusner speaks with interested attendees of a reception held in his honor. Neusner spoke at 11 a.m. and 1:30 on Judaism and what it can tell people about other religions. Neusner's visit to the campus was sponsored by the Presidential Lecture Series. Photo by Rich Blair.

Rabbi examines religion at Presidential lecture
by Carrie Maples

Rabbi Jacob Neusner, the Presidential Lecturer, addressed a large crowd in Dimnent Chapel on the question "What does Judaism teach us about religion in general?"? Neusner used conclusions drawn from Judaism to make several generalizations about religion during his speech.

"It think it's only in America that a Christian college would welcome a rabbi in this manner," said Neusner as he began his speech.

Neusner spoke of the power of religion saying, "Many, though not all, of the irrepressible conflicts within nations, moreover, draw their power from religion: the division of Ireland, the tensions between the Roman Catholic western and Protestant eastern parts of Germany... not to mention, after all, the state of Israel." He explained that religion and nationalism form a combination that is impossible to overcome, though when divided there is a struggle between the two.

"If I had to identify the single most urgent question confronting us when we want to make sense of a world that is shaped in significant measure by religion, it is what do religions tell me about religion in general?" asked Neusner. "I cannot say how religion forms a factor case by case. So, as I said, I can make sense of religion, but I do not know how to speak about religion."

Neusner explained that we cannot explain what we mean by "religion" but only "religions." He went on to give the example of the Supreme Court distinguishing between "religious" and "merely-cultural" aspects of Christmas.

"So I theorized, implicitly to be sure, that religion is the single most important force in the social order of many nations and even whole religions of the world, the Middle East and India, Western Europe and North America, for instance," said Neusner.

'it's only in America that a Christian college would welcome a rabbi in this manner.'

Neusner talked about the divisive power of religion in society. "I suppose I should propose as my generalization for all religions that they serve in the end to divide, that their power in society is principally to generate conflict," he said.

"Religion then is to be classed as one of the main fissiparous forces of social order, bringing a message of peace to those near at hand, but of war and destruction to those far away, and, alas, defining those near at hand in ever diminishing circles."

He spoke of three propositions about religion that Judaism offers. Firstly, he said, religion helps a defeated society endure defeat. "So Judaism tells us that when religion works, it works best because of its peculiar kind of power."

Secondly, religion explains the life cycle from birth to death. It sets up the family unit as a basis of life. "What we observe is a religion that works its power of enchantment within the framework of the home and the family," Neusner said.

Thirdly, religion accomplishes "the transformation of the past into something memorable, and of the present into an occasion for the celebration of the past." Religion is based on history but is never historical.

Neusner concluded, "The fundamental lesson that I think Judaism, in particular offers, religion matters in the world -- whether as a medium for disruption and discussion, as in times past, or a method for the conduct of dialogue between people who have nothing else in common, as in times to come -- because, to begin with, religion make a difference in the home and family." Neusner graduated Magna Cum Laude from Harvard. He has taught at Columbia University and Dartmouth College and is currently on the faculty of the University of Southern Florida. Neusner is an internationally recognized author on Judaism and religion.

Copyrighted logos become targets
by Julie Sauer
staff writer

"Calvin and Hobbes "Mercedes Benz," "Bloom County." The dorm shirts you an your roommate have been wearing around may be illegal to prosecute. Small potatoes, looking at Harvard's pause in his studies at Harvard University for a year. Andrew Starr recently turned in Harvard Dining Services for a legally adopting names for its breakfast products, the MacDuff and Raga's Mac, which returned to famous McDonald's Corporations' confusion.

"It's against the law," said Starr. "I feel it's like plagiarism. They're using someone else's work."

After receiving a call from McDonald's in late September and being approached by a McDonald's representative at a conference, Harvard Dining Services Director Frank Weissbecker voluntarily changed the names.

This incident was not the first in which Starr volunteered to police copyrights around campuses.

Dunster House, a Harvard dorm, printed T-shirts featuring Bart Simpson drawing on a blackboard. In May, Starr informed the 20th Century Fox, the owners of the copyrights to the Simpson cartoon characters, of this "copyright crime." Fox wrote to Dunster House telling them not to sell the T-shirts resulting in a $900000 loss for the dorm.

Starr has also reported to Universal Press Syndicate, owner of the trademark for Calvin and Hobbes, Paramount Pictures, producers of Star Trek, and the Boston Symphony Orchestra about illegal T-shirts around Harvard.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.

"If someone were robbing a bank, I'd turn them in too," remarked Starr.
Holland to celebrate Halloween with magic

by Amy Giles
staff writer

For those looking for a haunting Halloween, the search may be kind of like looking for the great pumpkin—a long one. Contrary to past years, Holland seems to be a ghost town.

However, if a night of magic sounds appealing, the Allegan-Ottawa County Shriners are sponsoring a magic show at the Holland Civic Center beginning at 6 p.m. Tickets can be purchased at the door or by calling the Civic Center. The show costs four dollars.

Taking a trip to the haunted house will take thrill seekers to Grand Haven. The Grand Haven Jaycees will sponsor their annual haunted house at the Story and Clark building in downtown Grand Haven. This terror-filled evening will cost three dollars. The haunting begins at 7 p.m and continues through midnight.

For those who are seeking a different Halloween evening activity, Hope’s literary magazine, the Opus and the English Department are sponsoring a reading by novelist William Patrick and poet Richard Jones. This is in conjunction with the Day of the Dead Exhibit at the Depree Art Center Gallery. The reading will take place in the gallery beginning at 7 p.m.

---

Anchor Files

5 years ago: Students rallied in the Pine Grove to protest the ban of alcohol on campus and the clampdown by the administration and police of off-campus parties. Ironically, it took place at the end of Alcohol Awareness Week.

10 years ago: The football team won at Homecoming. There was an article in the anchor proclaiming the positive aspects of Nykerk. There was talk of starting a sexual awareness program.

20 years ago: Hope planned to increase the cost of attending by $250 making the total cost (tuition, room and board) $2,865. Wichers Hall of Music was dedicated as an addition to the Nykerk building.

---

Perkins

A Nightmare on 14th St.

- Stan and Beuna, a couple in their 70s, attend to Halloween treat duties.
- They smile on this ghoulish tradition and do their part to make it whole some.

---

President Jackson

Shoot the suit should have tipped me off.

---

Jon O'Brien demonstrates a "Chem Tree" reaction for Science Day. Last Wednesday and Thursday, approximately 150 high school students visited the Peale Science Center for various demonstrations and lectures. Photo by Janet Bowdich.
Copyright laws: how much enforcement?

Majority viewpoint

Copyright laws are made for a purpose, to protect the rights of people's ideas. These laws should not be taken lightly no matter where they are or how many people it may effect. This includes here at Hope College.

Anytime an idea that someone else has copyrights to be used, their idea is being taken away from them. The law requires that anyone who wants to use someone's idea, ask permission first. For instance, when making a t-shirt with a logo on it that is copyrighted, the user must seek permission from the person who holds the copyrights. It is unfair to use someone else's ideas without first consulting them. They worked hard to get their idea where it is and they should have the credit they deserve. Most people are willing to let you use their idea if you ask, why not ask?

The idea of being flattered to have someone use your idea is great. The flattery, however, would be more gratifying if the user asked the originator before using his or her idea.

Minority viewpoint

While its easy to understand the principle behind copyright laws and to agree with them in spirit and roughly 99 percent in law, one cannot but shake one's head at the greed of the rich in recent cases over dorm shirts and food services at Harvard University.

Copyright laws were developed to protect a person's ideas. And that's fine. The laws should prevent person A from stealing the idea of person B, claiming the idea as one's own and within the capitalist system, making lots of bucks.

What happens when a group of college dormmates decide to use a "Calvin and Hobbes" theme on their dorm shirts? Have they stolen Bill Watterson's idea? Are they claiming it as their own? Are they making mucho bucks and thereby cutting into Watterson's potential profits from his idea?

Technically, they have "stolen" Watterson's idea. (Some people would be flattered to have someone find their work worth copying). Are "Calvin and Hobbes" being worn as a malicious rejection of the copyright laws. Of course not. The idea is used because people like the characters. They like wearing them on their chest (or wherever).

But what about those people who see the shirts and say, "Oh, look. What a neat idea of a boy and his pet tiger. Isn't that a creative person who made those shirts?" No. More likely they say, "Oh look. Calvin and Hobbes. Bill Watterson's comic strip."

Furthermore, it's free publicity for Watterson and his strip. Generally, Mercedes-Benz might pay people to wear shirts around that use their theme. It's called advertising.

As long as the students involved do not attempt to claim Watterson's or Matt Groening's "Simpsons" ideas as their own and the shirts are not mass produced with a profit motive, there shouldn't be a problem with the "copyright infringement."

The legal cost involved in charging a dorm for their crime will certainly cost the copyright holder (in most cases) more than they are "losing" if they were receiving money from the sales.

There seems to be something wrong with a corporation such as McDonald's suing the Harvard Food Service or some dorm, they haven't sold the shirts claiming them to be Mercedes-Benz. The average Joe Harvard will realize that the McWhatever of the Harvard Dining Service is not an "authentic" McDonald's, whatever.

Well, when should the copyright laws be enforced? Are the dorms making a profit? Are they laughing all the way to the bank? Anyone who's shelled out $8 for a t-shirt knows that profit isn't an issue. But what about the dorm that has made up 12,000 Simpson t-shirts to sell to raise money for the new basketball court. That would deprive Groening of some profit.

Hope College isn't doing that with the Student Activities Committee's May Day t-shirts. They are a fun shirt to commemorate a long school year. The characters used are a tribute to their creators not a malicious effort to make a profit off of their distance from Hope College. If they want to make a profit on their creations fine. That's what television advertising and Burger King souvenir glasses exist to do.

Letter to the Editor

Outdated attitude needs change

Dear Editors:

I can't help but be disturbed by the editorial written by Ms. Smith and Ms. Jarvis. I would like to express my gratitude to the two for enlightening Ms. Stryker and the rest of us to the blatantly obvious, self-evident truths that govern our campus community.

It is true that Hope is not a Bible college, nor an insecure college which requires students to sign a statement of faith. Thank God it's over for these fragile communities thrive on the classically-conditioned Christianity which inhibits intellectual striving and self-discovery.

Nevertheless, I believe that these rules must change so that society can progress.

However, doesn't your self-righteous arrogance cloud your judgment? Did you consult Ms. Stryker before you simply assumed that she was ignorant as to the necessity of societal rules? I believe that societal rules serve to protect chaos, as you may well agree. Nevertheless, I believe that these rules must change so that society can progress. In addition, it seems as though Ms. Stryker has chosen to question society's conventions, rather than blindly abide by them. For this, I am grateful. Society needs people like her. Shouldn't you also be grateful? If nothing else, her column served to disturb you.

It is my hope that such strongly-convicted, self-assured individuals, like yourselves, open your mind from time-to-time, to arrive at more gentle outlooks. Ms. Stryker's article didn't attack you, personally. You made the first blow. I would like a chance to respond.

It is true that Hope College has strong ties with the Reformed Church in America. However, are these ideological ties, or ties to the Church's wallet? Sometimes I wonder if policy decisions here reflect actual sentiment, or merely serve to protect the flow of contributions from Native Christian alumni. Sometimes I think that outdated policy persists due to a fear from departing from "the whole grand tradition." And, other times, I feel that the majority of students are dissatisfied with the policy, but are just too apathetic to band together for change.

I begin to feel like a child, when I think about all of the rules which affect me at Hope. We are young adults and need to learn how to cope with our freedom. It may be beneficial for some younger students to be controlled. However Hope could work something out. I am not advocating that Hope abandon all of its rules, but why not give the students the benefit of "The Bill of Rights," and simply let the law govern activity?

In addition, Ms. Smith and Ms. Jarvis, are parietals simply a matter of courtesy? It does sound reasonable, but wouldn't it be a good lesson in real-world confrontation, if a victimized roommate were to realize that the only way to protect their privacy was to confront their roommate rather than to rely on a rule which doesn't exist in our secular society? Furthermore, I feel that Hope should let those who are twenty-one drink. It should place the responsibility or morality, consideration and illegal activity on the students and the law.

Ms. Smith and Ms. Jarvis please don't assume that everyone assumes that Hope's policy is unquestionably "moral," and "beneficial to all."

Sincerely,

Steven C. Pierce
SLIP OF THE MIND
Al's Bar and Grill
JIM MONNETT

Time: lunch, the distant past
Place: Al's Bar & Grill, the Middle East
Players: Soldier Mike and Soldier Bob

Bob entered Al’s Bar & Grill tent and hung his armor up on the armor rack near the flap. He stretched and mosied up to the bar. He flopped onto the bench next to Mike.

"Hey, Bob how’re ya doing?" Mike said turning to toast him with his beer.

"It’s good to see you again.
Mike. How’s my favorite spear chucker?"

"The usual, hot and dusty." "Isn’t that the truth," Bob said.

"Sometimes I think I’ll never get this Judah dust out of my throat." "What you need is what dry is.

"Right, Al?" Bob said to the bartender.

"What can I do fo you boys?" Al said drying a glass in his apron.

"Pour me a friend a Joshua Dry," Mike said.

"Coming up," Al said. "How’s the war going up on the front. Mike and Bob glanced at each other with disgust.

"The same. They’ve got us pinned down and outnumbered..."

"How’s the Bob, don’t blow dust up Al’s robe. He’s been pouring brew along here for weeks. He knows about that giant Philistine."

"Yeah, I even got up early last week to go here his challenge," Al said. "‘Why do you come out and line up for battle? Am I not a Philistine, and are you not the servants of Saul? Choose a man and have him come down to me...’"

"Blah, blah, blah," Bob muttered. "It’s not really a pasture I’d go show that Goliath dude a thing or two."

Al snorted loudly and moved down the bar to get the manna burgers off the grill.

Mike looked at Bob, "Sure you would," Mike laughed, "You’d have known it early on the end of his spear. He’s too big to get close to."

"Maybe we could get some archers up there to perforate his hide."

"His armor is too thick. It would take a lucky shot. King Saul seems to be running short of luck these days."

"Oh that reminds me, did you hear the latest one?"

"No, what happened?"

"Eliah’s little brother came up to bring some bread and cheese from their Dad. He heard Goliath’s threat and said, ‘Who is this uncircumcised Philistine that he should defy the armies of the living God? Can you believe that? Eliah nearly blew a torch.’"

"What did Eliah’s little brother do then?" Mike asked.

"David, that’s the boy’s names, just waited a little. I’ll tell you other guys what the king said he’d do for the person who kills this Philistine and removes this disgrace from Israel.”

"Disgrace from Israel? Sheesh, you’d think he was the king with all that up talk. If King Saul hasn’t been able to kill this Goliath, who does this guy think’s going to do it. Us ‘armies of the living God’ haven’t had much luck against him. Sheesh."

Shaking his head Mike downed the rest of his Red Sea Ale.

"It gets better, Mike. Some personal life, yes it does. But what about to civilization? What does it matter to the history of the world? I sometimes have a hard time convincing myself that one student in a little school can really change the course of history by writing yet another paper."

"I don’t know. I didn’t stay to watch. I was thirsty and needed something to drink."

Suddenly a cheer cracked the Israeli camp.

Letter to the Editor
Beware of censorship when condemning porn

Dear Editors:

Many people are making a strong effort to involve the students of Hope College in their fight against pornography. On the surface, this looks like a noble cause, indeed. Bob Anderle, in his letter in the October 24th issue of The Anchor, writes that “pornography is exploitive of mainly women, but certainly also men and children.” Few, if any, would wish to support the exploitation of others. At first, it is hard to see why anyone would not “show their opposition to pornography in their community,” as a poster on campus reads.

It would certainly be a positive development if the students of Hope College were to become involved in a worthwhile cause of some sort.

But you are cheering on the self-styled, socially conscious, "social goals of these frictioners against pornography, however, you stumble across frightening phrases such as “People have a right to such expression, but not in a way which damages others.”"

Once people begin amending “people have a right to free expression” with “but not...” it becomes easy for them to continue adding a long series of such qualifiers: "But not in a way which weakens our country” "But not in a way which belittles my religious beliefs" "But not in a way which..."

As I’m finishing this wonderful paper, I think to myself, “Great, now I have time to go back home to take a nap!” Well, not quite, that’s when my alarm goes off again.

That’s also when I realize I was dreaming. I should have known it was too good to be true. My paper still isn’t done, I still have to get up, I still have to write the paper. And I’m still in bed.

What’s worse is that I can’t remember any of the brilliant paper I was writing in my sleep. I know it was good, but it’s gone. Every single last word has completely vanished.

Cruel isn’t it? This dream never fails to give me the feeling of being hopelessly lost. I’m forever caught up in a sea of papers, quizzes, and exams.

I begin to wonder if it’s ever going to end. And when it does, will it have been worth it? Can the chronic fatigue and frustration really lead somewhere?

When I place school in the grand scheme of life, does it really matter? Well in my own personal life, does it really matter? I think so too. But there reality hits once again. I can’t just take a week off. I have to just buckle down and keep on working.

For us seniors, the only conclusion is that the end is almost here (unless, of course, Grad School is in your future). At long last we are finally glimpsing the light at the end of the tunnel.

As for the first-year student, don’t worry. I know it’s hard to believe, but it really does go by faster than you think. So really, I think you should all just enjoy it. After all, you know what they say: These are the best years of your life!
Delbert Kaniddlehopper (alias James Schut, '93) consults with Judge Ferguson about the quality of his Maasquerade attire.

"Der Yoopers" (Brad Votava, '92, and Tim Grotenhuis, '92) talk about nostril size with the Maasquerade judges.

Costumed cra

by Ryland Bouwen
staff writer

Wearing various themed costumes, Hope students entered the Maas for the annual Maasquerade Dance Saturday night for the video music or the costume contest. Forty-four distinct groups and individuals competed for prizes such as movie tickets, poster gift certificates and in the Maas Conference Room, the participants shared their costumes, brief skits and impersonations with a panel of judges. "Maasquerade is one of the biggest dances of the year," said Michelle Imhoff ('92). Students said there were more people than last year. "It's an eye-bugging good time to be had by all," said Tim Grotenhuis ('92).

For some, the preparation took minutes while others planned both their attire and impairments over a lengthy duration. "I planned this out before I came to school. I had my costume and personality already picked out," said James Delbert Kaniddlehopper. Schut said he perfectly modeled the石膏 stereotype.

Eric Prestin Kirkbourn ('92) dressed up as Batman's enemy, Harvey Dent - the Two Face. He wore two suits joined together with half his face in scar makeup. "The preparation took several weeks. First, I bought the suits. Then I stitched them together. I started working on the mask..."
Crowd fills Maas

Though some costume ideas proved to be purely whimsical, subsequent application of such ideas was not. "I was looking in Meijer's and saw some blue hairspray, and I thought it would be really cool to be Marge Simpson, because my hair is really long," said Charla Schwerm ('92). We were talking on the phone and joking around and decided it was a good idea," said Sue Hollar ('91). Depicting the cast of the Sound of Music, the group of which Sue was a part, earned grand prize honors—a one-hundred dollar gift certificate to Westshore Mall.

Hollar said, "Holly Villepique deserves all the credit. She sewed all the kids' outfits in two days." I just did it as I went along. It was all done on Saturday Night Live. I just put it together," said Jason Evert ('93), who performed a humorous imitation of the church lady. He said that he started practicing his imitation probably since the first I saw them acting on Saturday Night Live.

Many students agreed that they enjoyed the dance, but some lacked room for improvement. Mark Costner ('94) said, "It was rather enjoyable. Wild Video Tape Party did a good job, but in the future, I think it should be moved to a larger area." "They (SAC) did a good job. They've played some good stuff," said Eric Vogas ('94).

The group costume—"The Sound of Music," won first place and a $100 gift certificate to the Westshore Mall.
Fear spreads: colleges 'seething with crime'

by B.J. Hoeptner

(CPS) - A student is found strangled in his dorm room at Lock Haven University in Pennsylvania.

Student editors return to their office at Bridgewater State College in Massachusetts one day in September to find $23,000 in computer equipment stolen.

At about the same time, police arrest four Delaware State College students, charging them with the gang rape of a nearby resident.

A student at State University of New York at Buffalo is found raped and strangled on Sept. 30.

Such scenes are not unusual, but high number and broad range of campuses this fall as something of a crime wave seems to be washing over American higher education.

"College campuses are just seething with crime," said Dr. Alan Lizzotte, associate dean of criminology at the State University of New York (SUNY) at Albany. "They're horrible places."

"A lot of students are scared," added Rob Tumney, an Ohio State University senior who heads the school's Crime Watch Escort Service. "They don't go out alone."

The fear has turned into wild rumors at some campuses. Administrators at Iowa State University spent the first week of October trying to convince students that there was not a serial rapist on campus.

But some crime threats are real. While campus crime statistics are notoriously unreliable, Purdue, Yale, and Loyola of New Orleans universities as well as the universities of Colorado at Boulder and California at Santa Barbara all report an increase in crime during the past year.

Much of the nationwide student skittishness, of course, stems from the brutal late August murders of one Santa Fe Community College student and four University of Florida students.

While police still search for clues and someone to charge with the slayings, the tragedy made the subject of campus crime more visible than ever. Recent stories on the Oprah Winfrey Show, Good Morning America, ABC News and USA Today have fanned the flames.

In truth, campus crime was getting so prevalent in 1988 that an "anti-fear movement" grew up at the University of Illinois, the University of Arkansas, the University of Colorado at Boulder, and the University of Florida. Claims and counterclaims about a serial rapist at the University of Florida have had to sue to gain access to crime reports from administrators concerned about privacy and publicity issues.

Crime articles have created a sense of anxiety on campus among students and employees," said Michael P. Riccords, president of Shepherd College in West Virginia, in denouncing the student newspaper Oct. 5 for publishing stories detailing a Shepherd students rape.

Plas for better protection from criminals were central parts of protests at Tennessee State University, Morgan State University, Pennsylvania College in Georgia, Marygrove College in Michigan and the University of South Carolina during the 1989-90 school year.

"It's hard to know whether the amount of crime is going up or whether the appearance of crime is going up," said Lizzotte.

Students may have been living in the midst of such dangers for years. The difference is that now they know about it. Lizzotte noted it has become more acceptable for campus newspapers to report crimes, especially "sensitive" crimes such as rape, creating an illusion of increase.

Student papers like the Standard at Southwest Missouri State University have had to sue to gain access to crime reports from administrators concerned about privacy and publicity issues.

Wanted:
Managing Editor
Paid Position
Distribution Manager
w/car and available
at 11 a.m. on Wednesdays
call X7877 for details

First year & Sophomore men
YOU ARE WANTED

...that's right. Your opinions about Fraternities at Hope are wanted. A phone survey will be conducted soon by senior sociology
research students.
If you are called we would like your input. THANKS

NYKERK CUP
COMPEITION

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 3
HOLLAND CIVIC CENTER
8 P.M.

55th year - tradition
Join your friends!
Manchester, England brings latest sound to America

by Brian Meengs
arts editor

It used to be when someone mentioned British music, the first thought that came to mind was the Rolling Stones, the Beatles. When one thought of the capital city of English music it was typically London's Olympic pool. Things are changing, however, and though the classic bands are still enjoying success, the capital city for the new wave of British music has shifted to the city of Manchester.

Manchester can claim to be the home to some of the most popular bands in England and at U.S. colleges. Manchester has to offer credit bands like the Stone Roses, Inspiral Carpets, Charlatans U.K., James, Happy Mondays and Trash Can Sinatras.

Each of these bands plays a variation of what has been termed the Manchester Sound. This sound consists of a shuffling guitar line played over a steady bass line and dance beats. One reason of its success is that it is very versatile music. It can be danced to, many simply sit back and enjoy what's going on musically.

While the Manchester Sound is big on U.S. college campuses, it is huge in England. Greg Johnson, music director for Hope College's WTHS radio station points out that the Manchester sound is "top 40 in the U.K. it's a mainstream sound."

In fact, the sound has caught on so much that it has begun to move out of Manchester to affect other cities as well. The Wild Americans seem to prefer that the Manchester sound, in fact, the sound has caught on here. "London has a huge club scene. New York is known for its bar bands, but cities like Detroit and Chicago have a strong Acid House club scene," Johnson said.

Johnson points out that, like the Manchester sound, Americans seem to prefer that their Acid House music come from the U.K. He said that a group of Detroit based Acid House groups got together and produced a demo tape. When they weren't signed by a U.S. label, they sent the tape to England where they were promptly nicked up. Their album is now being imported to the states for $20 a copy.

The Manchester sound is tied through its psychedelic tendencies to another English sound movement: that of Acid House. Acid House uses heavy sampling with his wife, Ellen, who is played by Linda Hamilton ("Terminator"). They both work for a sporting goods company where we meet Larry's stereotypical co-workers. One of the more amusing characters is his best friend, Chip, who is played by Jon Lovitz.

The charts seem to back up Johnson's assessment. A check of the Rockpool College and Dance charts for Oct. 15, 1990, showed that 18 of the top 20 Dance tracks were by British artists with Soho at number one, the Soup Dragons at number two, and Dee-Lite at numbers three and nine.

Manchester, England has produced bands like Stone Roses, James and Charlatans U.K.

Additionally, six of the top 20 tracks on the college chart were from U.K. artists; the Soup Dragons were at number seven, the Charlatans U.K. at number 13, Dee-Lite at number 39, Stone Roses were at number 42, and James came in at number 58.

Galaxie 500, an American band with a Manchester sound, was at 28 on the Rockpool chart.

Rockpool's Kristin Carney had this to say in the Oct. 1 issue, "(Too) often people get caught up out of the movement and bands end up getting attention for the wrong reasons. The Manchester phenomenon, it appears, has thus far happily escaped this fate, and the area just keeps cranking out good bands."

The fact that, thus far, the Manchester movement has been able to avoid the pitfalls of America's post Motley Crue and Guns n' Roses heavy metal movements of the 80's and 90's brings the question: "Is the end in sight?"

Consider that one of the Manchester's most recent reports, the Charlatans U.K., saw their debut single climb to number one on the U.K. indie charts in a matter of two weeks. That single was poorly finaced and released on the band's own label makes the feat all the more amazing.

A listener would have to answer that the end is not in sight.

Extraordinary day fails ordinary movie

by Kris Olenik
staff writer

Mr. Destiny" is Mr. Predic-table. Jim Belushi plays the ordinary Larry Burrowo who isn't satisfied with his ordinary life. Later, Larry's life becomes extraordinary, but unfortunately the movement.

Larry narrates the bizarre events that took place on his 30th birthday. It starts with his haunting memory of a high school baseball game, the state championship, where he struck out and lost the game for his team. It's been twenty years and he still can't get over it.

Then he goes on with the rest of his ordinary day, driving to work with his wife, Ellen, who is played by Linda Hamilton ("Terminator") and early '70s rock and roll. He looks and attitude. They look like the Stones album cover, or the memories of the Drors as their music is often laced with Hammond organ riffs.

Johnson says that while Acid House is strong in England, it is catching on here. "London has a huge club scene. New York is known for its bar bands, but cities like Detroit and Chicago have a strong Acid House club scene," Johnson said.

Johnson points out that, like the Manchester sound, Americans seem to prefer that their Acid House music come from the U.K. He said that a group of Detroit based Acid House groups got together and produced a demo tape. When they weren't signed by a U.S. label, they sent the tape to England where they were promptly nicked up. Their album is now being imported to the states for $20 a copy.

The Manchester sound is tied through its psychedelic tendencies to another English sound movement: that of Acid House. Acid House uses heavy sampling with his wife, Ellen, who is played by Linda Hamilton ("Terminator"). They both work for a sporting goods company where we meet Larry's stereotypical co-workers. One of the more amusing characters is his best friend, Chip, who is played by Jon Lovitz.

The charts seem to back up Johnson's assessment. A check of the Rockpool College and Dance charts for Oct. 15, 1990, showed that 18 of the top 20 Dance tracks were by British artists with Soho at number one, the Soup Dragons at number two, and Dee-Lite at numbers three and nine.

Manchester, England has produced bands like Stone Roses, James and Charlatans U.K.

Additionally, six of the top 20 tracks on the college chart were from U.K. artists; the Soup Dragons were at number seven, the Charlatans U.K. at number 13, Dee-Lite at number 39, Stone Roses were at number 42, and James came in at number 58.

Galaxie 500, an American band with a Manchester sound, was at 28 on the Rockpool chart.

Rockpool's Kristin Carney had this to say in the Oct. 1 issue, "(Too) often people get caught up out of the movement and bands end up getting attention for the wrong reasons. The Manchester phenomenon, it appears, has thus far happily escaped this fate, and the area just keeps cranking out good bands."

The fact that, thus far, the Manchester movement has been able to avoid the pitfalls of America's post Motley Crue and Guns n' Roses heavy metal movements of the 80's and 90's brings the question: "Is the end in sight?"

Consider that one of the Manchester's most recent reports, the Charlatans U.K., saw their debut single climb to number one on the U.K. indie charts in a matter of two weeks. That single was poorly finaced and released on the band's own label makes the feat all the more amazing.

A listener would have to answer that the end is not in sight.

Larry narrates the bizarre events that took place on his 30th birthday. It starts with his haunting memory of a high school baseball game, the state championship, where he struck out and lost the game for his team. It's been twenty years and he still can't get over it.

Then he goes on with the rest of his ordinary day, driving to work with his wife, Ellen, who is played by Linda Hamilton ("Terminator") and early '70s rock and roll. He looks and attitude. They look like the Stones album cover, or the memories of the Drors as their music is often laced with Hammond organ riffs.

Johnson says that while Acid House is strong in England, it is catching on here. "London has a huge club scene. New York is known for its bar bands, but cities like Detroit and Chicago have a strong Acid House club scene," Johnson said.

Johnson points out that, like the Manchester sound, Americans seem to prefer that their Acid House music come from the U.K. He said that a group of Detroit based Acid House groups got together and produced a demo tape. When they weren't signed by a U.S. label, they sent the tape to England where they were promptly nicked up. Their album is now being imported to the states for $20 a copy.

The Manchester sound is tied through its psychedelic tendencies to another English sound movement: that of Acid House. Acid House uses heavy sampling with his wife, Ellen, who is played by Linda Hamilton ("Terminator"). They both work for a sporting goods company where we meet Larry's stereotypical co-workers. One of the more amusing characters is his best friend, Chip, who is played by Jon Lovitz.

The charts seem to back up Johnson's assessment. A check of the Rockpool College and Dance charts for Oct. 15, 1990, showed that 18 of the top 20 Dance tracks were by British artists with Soho at number one, the Soup Dragons at number two, and Dee-Lite at numbers three and nine.

Manchester, England has produced bands like Stone Roses, James and Charlatans U.K.

Additionally, six of the top 20 tracks on the college chart were from U.K. artists; the Soup Dragons were at number seven, the Charlatans U.K. at number 13, Dee-Lite at number 39, Stone Roses were at number 42, and James came in at number 58.

Galaxie 500, an American band with a Manchester sound, was at 28 on the Rockpool chart.

Rockpool's Kristin Carney had this to say in the Oct. 1 issue, "(Too) often people get caught up out of the movement and bands end up getting attention for the wrong reasons. The Manchester phenomenon, it appears, has thus far happily escaped this fate, and the area just keeps cranking out good bands."

The fact that, thus far, the Manchester movement has been able to avoid the pitfalls of America's post Motley Crue and Guns n' Roses heavy metal movements of the 80's and 90's brings the question: "Is the end in sight?"

Consider that one of the Manchester's most recent reports, the Charlatans U.K., saw their debut single climb to number one on the U.K. indie charts in a matter of two weeks. That single was poorly finaced and released on the band's own label makes the feat all the more amazing.

A listener would have to answer that the end is not in sight.
Therefore, here are some movies you want to watch.

Best movies of all times, but they done to ease the rental video

But finding them is another story would agree that a bigger selec-anyone that something has to be

co-editor

Dy Jim Monnett

CLASSICS

"Casablanca" It's good to start with a movie that would make the top ten list for movies of all time.

Humphrey Bogart is dashing. The plot is exciting. The romance is strained and dangerous. Violence is in the mist. Adventure and romance, what more is needed.

Comedy? Adventure, romance and comedy? That means Cary Grant and "It Takes A Thief"! This is the definitive Cary Grant movie.

Grant as the jewelsuave jewel thief is marvelous. Set on the French Riviera the settings are eye-catching and the plot twists and turns nicely.

A Marlon Brando movie is necessary for everyone to have seen. Brando is great in "The Godfather" and imposing in last "The Godfather Part III." Neither is a great movie when all the pluses and minuses are added up. But they both grip the audience and force people to address subjects that should be wrestled with. "The Music Box" has Jessica Lange defending her steel worker father who is accuscontinues with 1988's "Slow Turning." He made two albums I.li will also perform the famous

American tune "Chesler by

William Schuman; "Jupiter" from

The Planets" by Gustav Holst, excepts from "My Fair Lady" by

Lowe; and the brilliant "Jubilee

Prelude" by Claude Smith.

Following a brief intermission

the orchestra will perform the

Overture to "War and Peace"

by the Russian composer Prokofiev.

"Night on a Bald Mountain" by Mussorgsky; "Meditation for Light of Love" by Elgar; and, it conclude the program, the "Faus

Ballet Suite" by Charles Gounod.

Hope's Wind Ensemble to perform

As a part of the Parent's Day

Weekend activities the Hope College Wind Ensemble, Dr. Russell

Pfley, conductor, and the Hope College orchestra, Dr. Robert

Ritsena, conductor, will present a concert on Friday night, November 2, at 8 p.m. in Dimment Memorial Chapel. The concert is free and open to the public.

The two sixty-five member ensembles will present a varied program ranging from Broadway melodies to contemporary symphonic literature. The wind ensemble will open the program with "Tancred" by Rossini, and Field hockey ties Calvin in last game

Field hockey Is being dropped from varsity sport status by the MIAA and also by Hope. Photo by Lance Evert

Coach Karla Wolters complains to the officials during the last MIAA league field hockey game. Field hockey is being dropped from varsity sport status by the MIAA and also by Hope. Photo by Lance Evert

Sports

October 31, 1990

Field hockey ties Calvin in last game

by Rochelle Anderson

The Flying Dutch Field Hockey team settled with a scoreless tie in double overtime against Calvin last Thursday at Buy's Athletic Field.

This gave Calvin the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association title with a record of 5-0-1. Hope finished their final MIAA season with a record of 4-1-1.

Both teams played working hard to score, but were unable to convert. "It was really a well played game," commented coach Karla Wolters, "but I thought we dominated play and we were more aggressive. I think it's the best game we played all year."

Co-captain Abby VanDuyne ('91) echoed her thoughts as tears ran down her face. "I really think we were so honored to be part of this group."

Wolters put everything together on the other side of the coin, things could have been worse. "You sure do feel a whole lot better when you come out of it with a tie rather than a loss," said Wolters.

"The bottom line is, if the coach doesn't win, he loses his job," said University of Colorado sociologist patrician Adler, who coauthored the most recent study on athletes and pressured, two sociologists report in a new study.

Both studies blamed victory obsessed college athletic departments for warping the students' experiences.

"For all that (a coach) cares about these athletes as people," she added, "if the team isn't winning, it all starts to go."

In tracing the lives of student members of a Division I National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) men's basketball team at an unnamed Southeastern private university, the Adlers found students were quickly disappointed upon arriving on campus.

From the moment they stepped onto campus, athletes were treated differently and isolated from the general student population, the study said.

They were housed in an athletic dormitory, ate at a training table and maintained a rigorous practice schedule that interfered with social pursuits and school work.

A 1989 NCAA survey of 1,788 athletes nationwide uncovered similar complaints.

A disturbing percentage of students said they felt isolated on their campuses, had little time to study, and that they often felt physically abused by their coaches.

"Some days the coaches make you feel as though you are part of a large herd of animals. In other words, they treat you like a piece of meat," said one anonymous football player in the NCAA.
Sports drain monies from academics

by Amy Hudson

(CPS) - Big-time college sports do little to educate students and actually siphon money away from academics, says a new book by an Indiana University professor.

In "Sports Inc., The Athletic Department vs. the University," author Murray Sperber issues a long litany of charges against college sports. Among them are:

1) The big revenue-producing sports-football and men's basketball-do not earn enough to support the other athletic programs.

2) Most athletic programs operate in the red, and steal money from classroom and other student activities.

3) It's almost impossible for athletes, sometimes practicing and playing 40 hours a week, to find time to be students.

4) The powerful National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), in a name that represents its member schools, in practice protects and serves the student-athlete in the same way the university serves the student. Sperber says, "as long as it's serving a special talent." He adds: "It's the jock dorms. You're paying lots of money for this place, and your dorms are really palatial. Every school has special dining rooms for athletes, and the food is fantastic, and you're eating this lousy food..."

Sperber benzines the tremendous injection of money from TV advertisers for the current state of college sports. "They're not making a contribution to higher education. It's payment for a product to fill TV time, for college sports to be played at the highest possible level."

Women's soccer finish in fourth

by Kris Olenik

After playing in the MIAA tournament, which counted for half of the league standings, the Hope women's soccer team took fourth in the league overall. On Friday, they went up against rival Calvin College. The score was 1-1 at half time after Brigid Malloy '94 put in a goal for Hope to tie it up. But they couldn't hold on and Calvin scored twice in the second half to win the game 3-1. Hope then went on to play Adrian for third place. They had beaten Adrian earlier in the season 2-0 but in the tournament Hope suffered a disappointing 2-1 loss. Niki Dore (93) scored the only goal for Hope.

Kalamazoo College (1st) won the tournament, beating Calvin (2nd) 1-0. Albion beat Alma (8th) in a shootout to take 5th place. And another 20 to 30 break even.

But schools, either unwilling or unable to recognize that their sports programs lose money for them, regularly spend millions to expand their stadiums' seating capacities and build lavish training facilities, all in hopes of generating still more revenue, Sperber writes.

Filling those seats requires a winning team, which also costs money and inspires colleges to admit people who otherwise might never qualify.

Athletes recruited to play at NCAA Division I-A schools in 1986 were four times more likely to be admitted as "exceptions" to normal campus admissions standards than other students, a NCAA study released Sept. 26 stated.

"Money that could go to better qualified students ends up going to jocks," Sperber told College Report Service.

Such statements, needless to say, have infuriated campus sports officials.

"There isn't much on a college campus that operates in the black, and I don't think it should," retorted Donna Lopiano, assistant athletic director at the University of Texas-Austin.

A sports program is successful, she says, "as long as it's serving the student-athlete in the same way the university serves the student."

"It's the jock dorms. You're paying lots of money for this place, and your dorms are really palatial. Every school has special dining rooms for athletes, and the food is fantastic, and you're eating this lousy food..."

And instead of encouraging athletic programs to be played at the highest possible level, "where it really affects students is in debt servicing," the lanky former semi-professional basketball player said in an interview.

Students often end up paying for sports programs under the guise of "activity fees," and in athletic scholarships taken from general scholarship funds.

And instead of encouraging school spirit, Sperber says college sports foster little more than cynicism. "It's the jock dorms. You're paying lots of money for this place, and your dorms are really palatial. Every school has special dining rooms for athletes, and the food is fantastic, and you're eating this lousy food..."

Sperber blames the tremendous injection of money from TV advertisers for the current state of college sports. "They're not making a contribution to higher education. It's payment for a product to fill TV time, for college sports to be played at the highest possible level."

Sports Scoreboard

FOOTBALL
Albion 21, Olivet 20
Adrian 14, Kalamazoo 14(tie)
Hope 21, Alma 13

MEN'S SOCCER
League Games
Calvin 1, Hope 0
Hope 1, Alma 0 (ot)
Calvin 3, Kalamazoo 2
Kalamazoo 4, Albion 1
Alma 2, Adrian 0
Adrian 2, Olivet 0

Non-League Games
Olivet 3, Concordia 0
Wheaton 2, Calvin 1

WOMEN'S SOCCER
MIAA Tournament
Adrian 4, Albion 0
Hope 1, Alma 0
Calvin 10, Olivet 0
Kalamazoo 4, Adrian 1
Calvin 3, Hope 1
Alma 2, Olivet 1 (shootout)
Albion 2, Alma 1 (shootout)
Adrian 2, Hope 1
Kalamazoo 1, Calvin 0

FIELD HOCKEY
League Games
Kalamazoo 1, Adrian 0
Calvin 0, Hope 0

Non-League Game
Goshen Ind. 3, Adrian 1

VOLLEYBALL
League Matches
Kalamazoo d. Albion
15-6, 15-9, 15-11
Hope d. Calvin
15-8, 15-12, 8-15, 15-15
15-10
Alma d. Adrian
15-9, 15-3, 15-11
Alma d. Adrian
12-15, 15-5, 15-5
Adrian d. Hope
17-15
Elmhurst d. Albion
15-6, 15-8, 15-10
Wheaton d. Olivet
15-2, 15-8, 6-15, 17-15, 15-3
Albion d. Olivet
16-14, 15-13, 15-11, 4-15, 15-8
Schoolcraft d. Kalamazoo
15-7, 15-17, 15-3, 15-17, 15-5
Kalamazoo d. Dearborn
15-8, 15-5, 10-15, 15-5

CROSS COUNTRY
Men's Results
Alma 26, Hope 30
Calvin 17, Hope 44
Calvin 19, Alma 42
Alma 15, Kalamazoo 48
Kalamazoo 15, Olivet 50
Alma 15, Kalamazoo 50

Women's Results
Alma 21, Hope 36
Calvin 15, Hope 46
Calvin 23, Alma 35
Alma 19, Kalamazoo 41
Students oppose decision

NORTHFIELD, Minn. (CPS) — Students chanted slogans and gave concerts to alumni visiting St. Olaf College's Oct. 13 Homecoming events to protest President Melvin George's refusal to install condom vending machines in the student union and in dorm restrooms.

Protest organizer Jennifer Kirmse, conceding that students can get condoms at the campus health clinic and in nearby Northfield, argued that “in the heat of the moment, it’s a little hard to say, ‘Wait a minute, I’ve got to run down to the hospital’ or take a three-mile hike to town.”

MSU students charged

EAST LANSING, Mich. (CPS) — The U.S. Secret Service charged a Michigan State University student and a friend with using MSU’s computer since July to manufacture fake cashier’s checks worth more than $50,000.

Officials said student Anthony Grewel, 21, and friend David Martin, 23, scanned bank logos into a campus Macintosh computer and, using a common illustration program, allegedly printed counterfeit cashier’s checks on a laser printer.

In announcing the arrest Oct. 16, a Secret Service spokesman said the two had used the cash to buy a bicycle, some ski equipment, a dining room set and a $17,000 computer.

---

PEACE CORPS: A Good Career Move

U.S. PEACE CORPS
Volunteers and American
Organized Program to Assure
Agricultural Technique
Residents which result in Nutrition sources and
Assisted Homesteads
Developing marketing
Lending primary school
Became more education
Increase in Thai
Health care
Answered

Information Table
November 9
Meal Times Phelps Hall
“Let It Begin Here” Peace Corps film
November 9
7 p.m.
Cook Auditorium
1-800-533-3231 toll free

---

SIBS... ‘Handled! Fan Times’!

“HEY ‘93 Morale Guys... HOW DO YOU FEEL?”

‘93 Oration, Play, and Song... Rock!!!

‘93 Song you’re the best!!

Rebecca and LeeAnn

FOR 200 years we’ve been con- quering nature. Now we’re beat- ing it to death.” -Tom McMillian, Canadian Environmental Minister

94 Play - You Rock! It’s Nykerk Time! Love, 94 Oration

94 Song - How do you feel?! Good Luck! Sing it out on Saturday night! Love 94 Oration

SUSAN, Huong, and Leslie Nykerk is upon us! It is time to SHINE!! Meet ya in the middle! Love—Sue, Michele, and Sue

NEYKERS! —Same time, next year — Can you say stress! You’ll do awesome at carrying on the Nykerk Spirit! I believe in you! Love—Gasper

ROCK US - Barb!! You totally awesome orator! Follow “Norm” to cut!! Love—Michele and Sue

HEY all you on-campus homies Freiburg! Fantastic! Munition? Marvelous! Berlin? xxx! So what’s up at Hope? Tschuss! — From the travelling trio Dogger, Beaner and B

94 Playgirls: Thanks for the warm fuzzy session. We love you, and we’re so proud of you! —Lavonne and Shirley 94 Play-We’re SO EXCITED!!

love, Joanna and LeighAnn

Hey Joe, How about them SUNS?

TO the best Playgirls in the world: Suzi, Beth, Erin, Amy H., Heidi, Julie, Becky, Stacy, Wendy and In.H. We believe in you! love your co-chesses

Jodi— you’ve been more help than you could ever know! Thanks for everything! —Joan and LeighAnn

94 Playboys - Thanks for all of your hard work and enthusiasm! Love, the 94 Playgirls

ニック and Aaron — It wouldn’t be Nykerk for us without you! Thanks for the roses and Reese peanut butter cups! Love, Jo and Pi

“HAPPY Birthday to you, Happy Birthday 20th Birthday to you, Happy Birthday Dear Holly, Wish you to know how blessed we feel to have a daughter like YOU! Love ‘n hugs! Mom and Dad P.S. You’re a pretty, nice sister, too! Love, Michel

HEY SIBS! Retreat was such a great time. Don’t forget how wonderful and special you all are. Have a great week!

GOOD Luck to all the Kappa Beta Phi Nykerk women!

HEY SIBS! Retreat rocked, thanks to everyone who helped make it special — the songs were original, and we bonded rather well! Remember what we said, and by the way: go psych-ed for All College Sing!

93 SONG: Odd year tradition will prevail. THIS IS OUR YEAR!

NYKERK 90: 55 years of tradition behind us and an endless amount of tradition before us

BECKY V.: You have been an inspiration. Thank you for your dedication

STUDENT Congress members: The possibilities are endless with the in-novation and dedication

ROOMIE: Good Luck with your interview. I can’t wait for Nykerk! You are a terrific friend! I love you! HMM

ONLY one more week!!

TO those who wear fur or leather jackets: REMEMBER the last owner of your coat ...DIED IN IT!

HEY B-S Babes! Thanks for making 8 a.m. so exciting every morning. Dirty Dianna, Kimmy, and Tor, I love you all and you’re wonder- ful. By the way, don’t gumm anything!! Love, Misch

HEY SAI. MPB! This is long overdue, but thank you all so much for a very successful Homecoming Weekend, many Kletz activities, and a fun Masquerade. Your hard work is appreciated. Thanks, Michelle SAC is now accepting applications for a Films Committee Chairperson. This position will open Spring semester, responsibilities include creating movie schedules, working with representatives from companies, chairing a committee, running concessions, and attending SAC events. If interested, please call the SAC office (X7882), or Michelle Imhoff (X921) or pick up an application outside the SAC office (Main floor, DeWitt).

Do You Want VISA & MasterCard Credit Cards?

Now you can have two of the most recognized and accepted credit cards in the world. Visa* and Mastercard Credit cards....In your name....EVEN IF YOU ARE NEW IN CREDIT or HAVE BEEN TURNED DOWN BEFORE! Visa* and Mastercard, the credit cards you deserve and need for: ID—BOOKS—DEPARTMENT STORES—TUITION—ENTERTAINMENT—EMERGENCY CASH—TICKETS—RESTAURANTS—HOTELS—MOTELS—CAR RENTALS—REPAIRS—AND TO BUILD YOUR CREDIT RATING!

Guaranteed gold card
No turn downs!
No credit checks!
No security deposit!
Approval absolutely guaranteed so MAIL THIS NO RISK COUPON TODAY!

Apple introduces the Macintosh Classic

Truly a computer revolution when the computer shopping doesn't mean you're willing to make sacrifices.

That's why you should consider the new affordable Macintosh Classic computer. It has everything you need—including a monitor, keyboard, mouse, 2 megabytes of RAM, and a 40-megabyte hard disk. Just plug everything in and the Macintosh Classic is ready to run. Because the system software is already installed. And, thanks to the Macintosh computer's legendary ease of use, you'll be up and running in no time.

Take our Macintosh, the Classic, run thousands of available applications that all work in the same, consistent way. As soon as you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. And this is one cheap roommate that doesn't have to be shared. The Apple* SuperDrive—standard equipment with every Macintosh—reads from and writes to Macintosh, MS-DOS, and Apple disk formats, which means you can share information with someone who uses a different type of computer.

See the Macintosh Classic for yourself. It'll change your mind about cheap roommates.