Work on Anchor Chains Likely to Continue Into '45

Capacity Production At Northside Plant to Be Reached in Month

Indicative of the rising trend of war orders that are being handled by local industries, is the announcement by the Holland Furnace company of another $400,000 in anchor chain contracts for their Northside plant, bringing the present total to well over five million dollars.

The orders now on hand call for a continuous production schedule through September of next year, with every likelihood of additional contracts expanding the production into 1945.

The U. S. maritime commission has contracted with the local furnace company to produce the heavy anchor chain for 549 maritime vessels. Other contracts are for army transportation and for various Allied countries under lend-lease direction.

P. T. Cheff, general manager, said each ship requires from 15 to 20 lengths of anchor chain, each length being 90 feet. The total tonnage involved in present commitments exceeds 60,000,000 pounds of solid steel rod, from 1 1/8 to 2 5/8 inches in thickness.

The fabrication of these ship chains calls for special equipment, particularly for the testing of each chain length. Much of this equipment is now in place, with preliminary production operations under way. Full capacity production will be reached in another month, and will continue on a six-day, 48-hour week basis. While men will be required to do the major part of the work, a great many operations of a light character will employ women.

These anchor chain contracts, the first of which was announced April 3, have come at a time when the Northside furnace plant is already busy on tank armor plate work. A few months ago there was a tapering off of this armor plate operation, but of recent weeks it has picked up again, and all indications are that the present high peak of production will be steadily maintained for many months to come.

When asked if any difficulty was anticipated in acquiring the additional help demanded by the new war contracts, Mr. Cheff stated that it was his opinion that once the people of this vicinity fully realize that many local industries are on the same imperative war-footing as those in other industrial centers, they can be depended on to see the personal advantages of responding to the local call for help.

Other communities have drawn heavily upon the Holland area for workers, many of whom will now be wanting to enjoy the added hours of freedom made possible by doing their essential war work near their homes, with permanency of employment at high wage standards assured.

Holland Is Leading Sales Market

New York, May 27 (Special)—Holland was a leading sales market last year, with more money available to the average resident for spending, after providing for basic necessities, than was the case generally throughout the country, according to a sales management's special wartime survey of buying power.

The per-capita income in the city was $988, an increase over 1941. The greater income was reflected in greater business activity. With retail sales at a new high of $11,398,000, the city accounted for 220 per cent of the nation's business, although its population is only .012 per cent of the nation's. Also, it did .44 per cent of Michigan's retail business with but .28 per cent of the state's population.

Despite the above-average sales activity, pointed to as the true yardstick of a city's business health, the people of Holland did not spend as much as they could have, because of war savings and a merchandise shortage. Actually, shows the survey, Holland is a $13,773,000 market, on the basis of real money buying power. The sales potential amounted to 1.15 times the actual sales in 1942.

Rotarians Hear Dr. Heyns Speak On State Prisons

Motion Picture Is Also Shown at Luncheon of Club in Hotel in City

Dr. Garrett Heyns, director of Michigan prison, showed a motion picture entitled "Interior of Southern Michigan Prison" to the Rotary club Thursday at its regular luncheon in the Warm Friend tavern.

Preceding the picture was a brief introductory talk by Dr. Heyns on "Michigan Correctional Problems." The problem of the prison is to treat the inmate in such a manner that he won't come back to prison once he is released, Dr. Heyns said. The problem of every citizen in every community is to see that a person doesn't go to prison in the first place, he added.

The first reel of film showed the various steps that an inmate goes through when he enters the prison. Photographing, finger printing, health examinations and classifications are all included when the man comes in for the first time.

Also revealed by the motion picture was the fact that the prison contains several vocational and avocational schools where inmates may learn a vocation or a hobby. Printing, weaving, baking, metal work and many other trades or hobbies may be learned in the schools.

Some of the scenes showed the various industries in the prison. Agriculture also plays an important part in the life in the prison.

Dr. Heyns, who is also chairman of the Michigan board of corrections, has had experience as superintendent of schools, instructor in Michigan colleges and was warden of the Ionia reformatory. He was introduced by Neal Stekotee.

The Rev. William C. Warner, pastor of Grace Episcopal church of Holland, was welcomed as a new Rotarian. Guests of the club were the Rev. Henry Vermeer, Fred Miles, Dr. J. E. Kuizena, Howard Peters, Jay P. Garlough, Stephan Karsten, Egbert Winter and P. R. Gram. The motion picture projector was operated by William Pott.

Drills and Talks at State Troops Event in Armory

Co. H. Holland's contingent of the Michigan state troops, celebrated "State Troops week" as proclaimed by Gov. Harry F. Kelly with an "open house" program Monday night in the armory. Inclement weather was somewhat responsible for a smaller crowd than was expected but a few hundred persons were on hand to witness the drills and other features of the program.

Due to illness, Col. Lewis J. Donovan, commander of the 32nd infantry, Michigan state troops, could not be present, but he was represented by Lieut. Col. Ben M. Barendse, Capt. Thomas Welmers and Capt. George R. Twelvetrees of the colonel's staff. These honored guests together with Mayor Henry Geerlings, E. P. Stephan, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and Commander Charles R. Sligh of the civil air patrol were introduced by Major Henry Rowan of Co. H and occupied places of honor on the reviewing stand. Members of the CAP squadron in uniform attended in a body.

The program opened and closed with an impressive flag ceremony presented with military music. The company was inspected by Lieut. Col. Barendse, Capt. Welmers, Capt. Randolph Wenzel and First Lieut. Budd N. Eastman. Capt. Wenzel and Lieut. Eastman commanded the various exhibition drills. Of particular interest were the close order drill, the riot formations and the silent drill, the last of which received heavy applause.

Lieut. Col. Barendse who spoke in place of Col. Donovan briefly sketched the history of the Michigan state troops which he said were organized under state law after the national guard of the state was called for war service. He said the state troops cannot be called into federal service unless the governor consents. He explained that the duties of the state troops are similar to those of the national guard such as to quell disturbances, protect life and property and prevent sabotage.

He said the troops are trained so that they can at any time take over duties formerly assigned the national guard. Already some troops have been called out for flood duty.

SLAVERY WITH MODERN TRIMMINGS

Russia's commissar of foreign affairs, V. M. Molotov, has served notice on the world that his country will demand retribution from those who have indulged in modern slavery. That Russia means business is shown by the fact that the notification of intention was formally issued separately to each government with which Stalin's government maintains diplomatic relations.

What form this retribution will take has so far been left to the imagination. That it will be terrible in its ferocity seems altogether likely; the Stalin government has never given evidence of softness of any kind—the name "Stalin" means "steel."

Nor is softness in order. The time would seem to have come to demonstrate to the world that the days of slavery have passed. Such a demonstration can hardly be given in mere words, if it is to be at all effective. Slavery, in its very nature, is so much of an anachronism that heads will have to be cut off, necks will have to be stretched, leaders will have to be shot, to impress on all peoples for all time to come that civilized man can no longer tolerate slavery.

Molotov's charges that the Nazis have systematically "abducted men, women and adolescents of both sexes and shipped them like cattle to Germany where they have been sold in special slave markets at 10 and 15 marks each (from $2.50 to $3.75)," may be somewhat discounted. The Russian commissar would naturally make it as bad as possible. But there is evidence enough that the Nazis have resorted to slavery, not only in Russia but in France, in Holland, in Belgium, in the Balkans. Slavery has become a part of the technique of Nazi warfare.

And civilized man has at least advanced far enough so that it cannot become reconciled to slavery. There may be other evils connected with war that are just as bad; modern slavery is something that the world is ashamed of. Nations that engage in it will have to be dealt with so ruthlessly that others will not wish to follow their example.

The enslavement of civilians is of course the logical result of what is known as "total war." It is not at all certain that other peoples besides the Nazis would not do the same thing, given the opportunity and the motivation.
Stamping it out once and for all, before the idea has been universally taken hold, will be a bloody business. But it is likely that there is no other way. The crime of slavery demands blood from the enslavers. Even in our own country we had to suffer a bloody civil war, with a million or more dead, in expiation of our crime of enslaving the Negroes.

THE CHURCH INVITES YOU

The President says, "The young must be taught, and they must be taught truly, if the springs of democracy are to be kept untained. The influence of the Scriptures in the early days of our Republic is plainly revealed in the writing and thinking of the men who made the nation possible.
They found in the Scriptures that which shaped their course and determined their action."

When one thinks of the Scriptures and its teachings, the church is considered as the one institution where the Scriptures are presented. Why not accept the invitation and go to church next Sunday?

Peter's Counsel to Scattered Christians
I Peter 2:11-25

By Henry Geerlings

The early Christians had a hard time of it. They were misunderstood. They were hated. They were looked upon as a dangerous class of citizens. It was a daring thing to give up paganism and embrace Christianity. It is always easier, oh, so much easier, to go with the crowd, to keep in step to do what the majority does, to hold opinions that the multitudes do.
Nobody will criticize you or persecute you if you are regular. To become a Christian was to become so different, to be separate and apart in so many ways from the pagans and therefore it was to invite trouble. The fixed world, the conservative world, does not want things different, and it always fights those who would have them so. The world is always watching the Christians. It was so in the early days and it is so in our day.

Practice what you preach and live what you profess is what the world demands, though it reserves the right to itself to be as inconsistent as darkness and light. Peter evidently found among the converts of his day many who had come over from paganism, who had not really and fully come over to Christianity. It looks as if they had not given up their pagan passions of the flesh. It seems as if some of them were as loose morally as the pagans themselves were. Or it may be that they were wrongly blamed for being so by their enemies. At any rate, Peter challenges them with the necessity and value of a clean life so that the very purity and decency of their lives would be a triumphant proof against the slander of the pagans. Good lives are always a refutation of any false charges against Christians.

The world may find all kinds of fault with Christianity. It may question its standards, it may laugh at its idealism, it may scoff at its requirements, it may be skeptical of its claims, but it is put to confusion by the lives which it produces.

One knowing the pagan world, its terrific immoralities and its low idealism and its innocence of spiritual graces, can easily feel the power of Peter's appeal to these early Christians to live clean and stainless lives. The very contrast between real Christians and real pagans in their every day living could force itself upon the attention of pagan society. And one sees too how jealous Peter was for the religion which he championed. He wanted neither his Lord nor his religion brought into disrepute. He felt the mighty responsibility of making Christianity felt as a regenerating power in the pagan world. He seems to have had a passion for proving through the life that the followers of the much misunderstood and offentimes hated Jesus had a power which the pagans did not have and that this power works.

Christianity was on trial and Jesus did not want it to fail. He had a mighty hunger of soul for its success. We moderns forget what the struggles—almost superhuman at times—of the early Christians were to give their religion a conquering place in the world. We forget that it was their heroic living and dying that gave Christianity its foothold in the world.

But Peter makes another powerful appeal to these early Christians for great living from another point of view. We must bear in mind that these followers of Christ were not regarded as good citizens, but rather were looked upon as enemies of the empire.
It was a most trying task to live under a government such as they were called upon to live under.
There were conditions that pre-dictated or produced conflicting loyalties. But, on the other hand, Christians were charged with practicing things that were thought by the pagans to be disloyal to the government of the empire, but this was misunderstanding, pure and simple. So Peter urges loyalty to the powers that be as an argument against all misrepresentations of them and their attitude toward the government.

Obedy the laws which you like all of them or not. Prove that Christianity makes loyal citizens.
Prove that the government has every reason to trust you and to depend upon you for a high type of living which makes for orderliness in the empire. It is significant fact that Peter emphasizes reverence for God as a powerful factor in producing good citizens.
That is where and how good citizenship begins. One cannot expect obedience to human laws if men do not have regard for God who is the inspiration and meaning of all orderly life.

One of the great troubles of our day is an impudent godlessness in our country. Many men do not have the fear of God in their hearts and hence they have no regard for their fellowmen and what they say. They hold law in contempt.

Tulip Time Group Is Cited for Work

Appreciation has been expressed for the efficient and capable handling of arrangements and publicity for the war-time observance of Tulip Time in Holland. Members of the Tulip Time committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Marvin Lindeman, Chester Van Tongeren and Henry Oosting, were especially lauded for their efforts in making the local observance a fitting as well as interesting event in this war time.

Tulip Time arrangements were under general supervision of the Dutch Bulb Growers association headed by Harry Nelis as president. Other officers are Harold Klaasen, vice-president; Oscar Peterson, secretary-treasurer; Mr. Van Tongeren and John Emmick, directors.

The stage setting which provides an ideal background for the tulip show has been the subject of much favorable comment. The large potted plants, palms and other pieces were arranged by Dick Smalenburg of the city park department.

Many Visitors At Tulip Farm

Harry Nelis of the Nelis nurseries estimated today that between 5,000 and 10,000 visited the tulip farm over the week-end. Three full buses with soldiers of the Grand Rapids weather school, representing young men from all over the country, visited the farm Sunday afternoon.

The tulips estimated at about 2,000,000 are in full bloom at present and their condition is remarkable good considering the heavy rains and lack of sunshine the last few weeks.

Mr. Nelis said that the number of visitors was about what he had expected for the week-end.

Too many of us put a ceiling on our loyalties to great and eternal causes.

May Day Ceremonies Held on Hope Campus

Coronation of the Hope College campus queen, held outdoors in the pine grove on the campus for the first time in three years, was a colorful ceremony Friday evening as Rose Winstrom of Zeeland, chosen by the student body and a special committee, ascended her throne to reign over remaining May day festivities and throughout the next school year.

The throne, placed on a hill before a graceful grouping of majestic pines, had pastel rainbow streamers draped against its white background to form an attractive setting. Palms and ferns were also featured in the decorations. Announced by a fanfare of pompous march music, freshmen girls in pastel formal entered carrying the traditional daisy chain and formed an aisle leading to the throne.

Her Majesty Edith Klaaren, retiring queen, was preceded in the procession by members of Alcor, her court and pretty little flower girls Judy Bos and Beth Wichers. Mannish little trainbearers were Tommy Bos and Bruce Van Leuven.

Student Council President Al Weenink presided at the ceremony and gave a brief history of Alcor, which was originated in 1937 and annually elects as members junior girls who are outstanding in scholarship, leadership and service. Present members of Alcor including Barbara Dee Folsenbee, Mildred Timmer, Irma Stoppels and Wendy Rameau escorted new members to the throne where they were crowned the queen and were pinned with Alcor's gold star and blue and orange ribbons by Jean Ruiter. New members of the honorary society include Mary Blair, Marjorie Emery, Margaret Friesema, Lois Mary Hinkamp, Persis Parker, Phyllis Pelgrim, Marian Sandee, Vivian Tardiff, Ruth Van Bronkhorst, Phyllis Van Duzer and Dorothy Wichers.

A history of May day was read by President Weenink who also announced members of the new queen's court. Former court members who escorted newly-chosen attendants to the throne were Louise Becker, Marjorie Brouwer, Florence Dykema, Barbara Folsenbee, Syd MacGregor and Mildred Timmer. Members of the new court include Phyllis Van Duzer, Lois Mary Hinkamp, Betty McCann, Ellen Jane Kooker, Norma Leander and Persis Parker.

A trumpet fanfare by Jud Van Wyk announced the approach of Rose Winstrom who was escorted to the throne by Mr. Weenink where Queen Edith relinquished her scepter and placed the crown upon the head of Her Majesty Queen Rose. Following the recessional led by the new queen, students and faculty members adjourned to gaily decorated Carnegie gymnasium for the all-college May day banquet.

Pastel scallops of streamers were festooned from the curving balcony and the same colors were used for table streamers. Candles in pastel shades and bouquets of vari-colored snapdragons decorated the queen's table. Prominent in the decorations were two May-poles with twisted streamers.

Approximately 265 persons attended the banquet which was prepared and served by women of Trinity Reformed church. Dinner music, for which arrangements were made by Bill Draper, consisted of popular records.

Following the meal, rousing community singing of service and college songs was led by Everett Kleinjans who wielded a candle as his baton. Barbara Folsenbee was accompanist for the program numbers and Gordon Van Oostenburg served as master of ceremonies. Clever duets which were punny "how do you do's" to various faculty members were sung by Els Kleinjans and George Lumsden and provided much entertainment.

Chairman Edith Klaaren greeted the new queen and thanked all committees who had contributed to the day's festivities before class presidents were introduced to toast Queen Rose. Student representatives who pledged the loyalty of their classes as subjects of the new ruler were Dale Van Lente, freshman; Russ De Vette, acting president of the sophomore class in the absence of Don Mulder who is in the army air corps; Verne Boersma, junior; and Els Kleinjans, senior. Dr. Wynand Wichers, college president, dubbed the "king" of the campus, also toasted the queen and made humorous remarks apropos to the occasion.

The audience rose as subjects in tribute to Queen Rose as she ascended the platform to take her place on the throne and preside over the remainder of the program. Results of student elections announced by the queen were Roy Davis, student council president; Larry Beltman, vice-president; Peggy Cross, secretary; and Harland Steele, treasurer. Elected as associate editors of the Anchor for next year were Connie Crawford and Helen Wilhelm.

Don De Fouw, president of Blue Key, senior men's honorary fraternity, announced that due to wartime uncertainty the society would discontinue with its custom of "tapping" new members at the banquet. Blue Key has "humbly yielded the priority to Uncle Sam" and decision on members for next year has been left to the faculty advisory committee, since many eligible members will have entered the armed services by that time.

Prof. Albert Lampen, Blue Key faculty advisor, also spoke briefly, saying tribute to the work done by the fraternity and stressing the fact that the society will not be discontinued.

Main feature of the program was the "Campus Review of Reviews" an entertaining drama of typical college life, which was written and narrated by Harland Steele. Scenes depicted life at old "Swish" where students looked strangely familiar to Hopeites.

Appearing as faculty members at an important meeting in the opening act were Bud Koranda as Dr. Edward Dimment; Al Rypstra as Prof. Thomas E. Welmers; George Lumsden as Dr. Teunis VerGeer; Charles Dykema as Prof. William Schrier and Harold De Roo as Dr. Walter Van Saun. Bill Midavaine furnished accordion selections during the interlude.

The second scene was a burlesque of freshmen taking oral entrance exams from some of the professors who had appeared performed so illustriously in the mock faculty meeting. Students who were victims included Eleanor Everse, Elsie Parsons, Audrey Scott, Mr. Lumsden and Mr. Dykema. Mr. Steele, author and director, appeared in the scene as a befuddled janitor.

Wearing perky hairbows and dainty cotton frocks, a sextet composed of Marjorie Brouwer, Dorothy Wichers, Rose Winstrom, Maxine Den Herder, Phyllis Pelgrim and Ellen Jane Kooker sang "An Apple for the Teacher."

Plans for May day progressed in the third scene and the cast was supplemented by Ruth Van Bronkhorst and Betty McCann, who accurately impersonated Dean Elizabeth Lichty, as they talked busily under the glaring eyes of the librarian. Following the act, Miss Winstrom as an overall boy and Miss Brouwer as a coy girl, sang a version of "School Days."

Inevitable in a college town, the corner drugstore used as a student "hangout," figured in scene four. Cast members enjoyed coke dates while lengthy argument ensued between De Roo and Koranda who had difficulty understanding the meaning of the word "wait." Miss Brouwer sang as a solo "You'll Never Know." Bud White, of Kalamazoo, former Hope student, sang "As Time Goes By" and "Black Magic" as a special feature.

In the concluding scene, the "Man in the Moon" was created by special lighting effects as he shone down on lovelorn college coeds and men whose trysting place was on a knoll beside the white picket fence. Philosphizing was thrown to the winds when Harold De Roo was enchanted by the love angel, Maxine Den Herder, who sang "Moonlight Becomes Me."

As a grand finale to the sparkling revue, the sextet reappeared to sing "We're Working Our Way Through College" and was joined by the entire cast and the audience. The singing of the Hope college song marked the end of the program.

Summons Is Issued as Result of Minor Crash

Charles Newcomb, 75, route 1, was given a summons on a charge of failure to yield right of way as the result of an accident Thursday at 3:30 p.m. on US-31 and 27th St. involving his car and a coast guard truck driven by B. L. Fowler, 35, attached to the Gull Lake coast guard training station. Newcomb was attempting to make a U-turn.

The right front fender of the coast guard truck was damaged and the left front fender of the Newcomb car. Witnesses were Vern Hyma, route 3; Mrs. C. Newcomb, route 1; Mrs. Watson, Michigan Ave., and R. T. Bjornson of the Battle Creek coast guard station.

Remember we are "organs, one of another." That is we ought to be proud rather than jealous of accomplishments in each other.—E. Stanley Jones.

We build our ideals and they in turn build us.—Le Comte.

The labor shortage has prompted Hope college coeds to help with meals and to keep Voorhees and Van Vleck halls clean as part of their war effort. Cleaning Voorhees hall's reception room are (left to right) Rose Winstrom, Millie Vander Linden (bending over), Vivian Moncton, June Pyle and Jean Shiftner.

Hope coeds, in both dormitories and on the campus, present a record of cooperation with the all-out war effort.

At the beginning of the year, the Woman's Activities league began a campus-wide bond drive, including a Stamp-A-Week club, paralleling the 10 per cent club in factories and offices.

A second campus affair sponsored by the W. A. L. was a profitable "penny carnival" for the benefit of the Red Cross.

All the women's societies have devoted three of their four monthly meetings to war-knitting and bandage rolling at Red Cross headquarters. Ninety sweaters and five helmets will be turned in shortly.

Quite regularly girls have been devoting time and energy assisting at the war rationing board, and when the newly recruiting office was in need of help, Hope girls came through cheerfully. Several of the girls are selling bonds and stamps at the Holland State bank.

Due to the shortage of labor, Voorhees hall has been having difficulties which the dorm girls, both from Voorhees and Van Vleck, have helped to alleviate. Girls now perch on window sills with a bottle of window cleaner in their hands or busily set tables for 120. A typical kitchen scene at Voorhees finds girls peeling potatoes, cleaning pots and pans and generally being the house-mother's "little helpers."

The living rooms are now given thorough cleanings by freshmen, sophomores, juniors or seniors—no class distinction. The girls are all voluntarily contributing their energies in order to keep the dormitories on a running basis.

Incidentally, the butter-shortage has hit the dorm too, and the girls have offered to cut down their use of this commodity to a half-pat meal.

Practice air raid drills have been held in the basements of the dormitories, under the watchful eye of the college defense corps, including the air raid wardens in Voorhees and Van Vleck.
