SHOT TO DEATH IN LOOP HOTEL.

Insane.
Cremate.
Oh, mother. GOD.
Forgive.
Unsigned note found on a dresser in hall room of Herbert Kullman.
Herbert Kullman, a member of the firm of Kullman & Sulz, 206 West Lake street, tanners, was found dead in his room at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, early Friday, having shot himself in the head with a revolver. He had been ill for a long time and is believed to have become mentally deranged.
Kullman's body was discovered by a maid who went to the room to clean it. She was unable to enter and an investigation followed. Kullman was found dead in a chair, with his head resting on a table. The revolver was on the floor. On the dresser was found a note.
Kullman is the owner of a string of tanneries all over the country, one of which is in California and was managed by Ed Bertsch, proprietor of the Consumers Ice Co. Mr. Kullman and Mr. Bertsch were fast friends and both went to California together about three years ago to put one of the tanneries in better shape. Kullman has been a Holland visitor on several occasions.

LIGHTNING'S QUEER PRANKS.

In a recent thunder storm four horses belonging to Cornelius Bush in Laketown while sheltered in the barn were struck by lightning. The most peculiar prank that the lightning played was to kill the first horse and of the six horses that were stabled in a row it killed every other horse, and the equines which the lightning jumped over are stone deaf. The animals were fine draft horses and were worth in the neighborhood of $700. They were partially insured in the Allegan and Ottawa Farmers Insurance Co. and Mr. Luke Lugers is adjusting the loss.

Flag Day, Wednesday, June 14th

The council at its regular meeting in the city hall last evening went through a mass of routine work as usual but few things of much importance came up for discussion.
The ways and means committee in a report on the resignation of Dr. Godfrey as health officer recommended its acceptance. The committee took this stand in the matter because of the facts that Dr. Godfrey knew of the conditions as to salary, etc. when he took the oath of office, and that it is impossible under an ordinance to raise the salary during the present year. Ald. Harrington at once moved the adoption of the report and the question went to a vote in which the city fathers stood 5 to 4 to accept. It seemed that the doctor had intimated to some of the aldermen that he would be content to let the matter rest where it was, which fact some of the aldermen construed to mean a withdrawal of his resignation. The mayor and a number of the aldermen were not satisfied with that kind of a withdrawal and insisted that it be in writing the same as his resignation had been. At this stage the matter was left for future consideration. A little later in the evening, the written withdrawal mysteriously appeared and was read to the council. The withdrawal was accepted by the council without discussion and the question finally settled.

The much mooted bath house question was again brought before the council, this time by a report of the ways and means committee. In as much as the board of health had prohibited bathing in the lake within the city limits the report suggested that a bathing pool be constructed at Yonkers creek east of the city between 7th and 8th streets. The ultimate cost of the pool would be about $3000 and the matter was referred to a committee of the whole for investigation.

The question of furnishing the court room in the city hall was settled for the time being by an order from the council for the purchase of 100 chairs of those used in Price's Rink. The chairs are to be purchased at the rate of $3.50 per dozen and will be placed in the court room immediately.

The mayor read an invitation from the Chicago association of Commerce to the council and city officials to attend the International Municipal Congress and Exposition to be held in that city in September. The council accepted the invitation and voted to send the mayor and the chairmen of the ways and means and streets and crosswalks committees as delegates.

The Police Board recommended the purchase of a motorcycle for the use of the police department and the purchase was accepted by the council. It is thought that a motor cycle will greatly aid the police department in the apprehension of automobile drivers who insist on exceeding the speed limit.

An interesting situation has developed in the case of William Smeenge who was exempted from taxation because of alleged poverty by the old council. At the time of the exemption he entered into an agreement with the city that if he should sell or in any way dispose of the property he would pay the city the amount out of the proceeds. Now it has developed, that he has lost the property on account of his failure to live up to the terms of the contract upon which he bought it. The matter was brought up before the council last evening and the city attorney was directed to collect the amount. Whether or not the money can be collected is a question. According to the terms of the agreement the present owner of the property is not liable and Mr. Smeenge is poorer now than at the time of his exemption because of his loss of the property. If he was not able to pay the amount then he certainly is not able to now. But with all of his alleged poverty, Smeenge seems to be somewhat of a financier.

According to information tendered by alderman Brouwer he had raised the amount by subscription shortly before the time of his exemption, and now it appears that he has purchased another piece of property. At any rate it is up to the city attorney to do what he can in the matter.

The question of limiting the use of explosives on the Fourth of July was brought up and the ordinance committee instructed to draw up a safe and sane Fourth ordinance.

The bids on the paving of First Ave. were opened in the council last evening and were referred to the committee on streets and crosswalks.

The resignation of Peter Van Kolken as a member of the park board was read before the council last evening and accepted. G. Van Schelven was appointed in his place.

Alderman King introduced a resolution providing for a public rest room to be located on eighth street. This has been a long felt want and the resolution was readily adopted by the council. Ald. King also introduced a resolution to have sanitary drinking fountains established on Eighth street but the council rejected it.

The last thing to come up before the council was a resolution introduced by Ald. Mersen to have the names of the streets stamped in the cement at the junction of the crosswalks on each corner on Central avenue. The resolution was adopted after a short discussion.

Rural Carriers Get More Money.

The carriers on rural routes will get a raise of $100 a year on full routes after July 1st, making their salary $1,000 a year instead of $900. A full route is twenty-four miles or more. Carriers on routes of less than twenty-four miles get proportionate salary and raise. The raise was agreed upon in the house some weeks since, but the senate committee made an amendment giving the raise to only offices of a certain class, but the senate turned down the amendment in the last days of congress and made it a flat raise to all carriers.

During a storm the other day lightning struck the barn of G. Terbeek at Bentheim and killed a valuable horse. Lightning also struck the barn of William Mulder at Fillmore.

MACATAWA PARK.

Undoubtedly no individual is doing more for the beautification of Macatawa than D. P. Perry of the Vesta Battery company, Chicago. During the winter months he has selected five new cottages, all of which are of a style in keeping with the rest of the buildings at the park. He has also placed a concrete walk from the Seldon Inn facing Macatawa bay, to Lake Michigan. It is opening a road to be known as Perry avenue, and this is now nearly ready for traffic.

John A. Thompson of Grand Rapids opened the first hall of the kind in Macatawa. One of the novel features of the new amusement parlor is the fact that a man can push the ivory and fish at the same time, as the building is located over the water. Three pool and one billiard tables are found in the parlor. A cigar and tobacco stand and rest veranda are also provided. Mr. Thompson was prominently identified with the recreation in Grand Rapids, having managed the parlors in the Livingston and Herkimer hotels and the one at East Grand Rapids for years.

A five-story addition has been completed at the Grand hotel, which will add 48 more rooms to the hostelry. The dining room has been remodeled and will accommodate 100 people. Other improvements have been made in anticipation of a busy season.

The two old ferries which have for the past few years carried thousands of resorters to different points on Black Lake, the Perry and Skidoo, will again be seen in active service this season. Both are now being overhauled, repainted and fitted for the long and busy year predicted. Though they will not begin regular trips until near the end of the month, they will be used for chartering purposes after another week. Wallace Smith and Frank Van Ry will captain the boats as last year.

A nice broad cement walk will be laid between Jenison Park and Macatawa. A survey has already been made and men are busy on the grade and before the season has advanced very far the new promenade will be a realization.

A party took place at the home of Mrs. Stobbelaar in Zeeland in honor of Dr. M. Kolyn of the Theological seminary of Holland, who will leave June 17 for The Hague, Netherlands. Among the guests were the Rev. and Mrs. P. P. Cheff and Rev. and Mrs. C. C. A. L. John, both of Zeeland. Dainty refreshments were served.

The Ottawa band will soon be again giving their evening concerts in the city park. Zeeland has the best band in the county and they are a progressive lot of fellows. The concerts each week are free and our citizens should appreciate them. The city park thus being put into service should be improved. The grass should be kept cut and gardens of tulips and other flowering bulbs started, which would be a vast improvement to the city and give it a metropolitan appearance.

A number of benches should be placed in the square for the purpose of creating rest spots for the public, while enjoying band concerts and other open air meetings. To create funds the council should make an appropriation, which need not necessarily be large, and some of our well-to-do individuals could add greatly to the spirit of the city beautiful with their purse.

Rev. Mr. Bruins of Milwaukee preached Sunday at the new Second Reformed church. This church is at present without a regular pastor, Rev. William Moerdyk, the former pastor, having accepted a pastorate at Grandville. Arthur Roosenraad, a theological student at New Brunswick, N. J., and son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Roosenraad of this city and members of the First Reformed church, conducted the services at that church last Sunday night.

The first annual concert of the North Street chorus of the Second Christian Reformed church of Zeeland was held in the church last Thursday evening and was largely attended. It will undoubtedly interest her many relatives, friends and acquaintances to hear of the marriage of our former Zeeland girl, Miss Jennie Van den Bosch, at Carlisle, Ariz., to Walter A. Bell of Loneko, Ark. Miss Van den Bosch was a telephone operator at Carlisle and the courtship is a sort of telephone romance, and the marriage was kept secret till after its conclusion. The contracting parties are well thought of in their home towns and the Zeeland friends of the bride join in wishing them a full measure of success in their matrimonial venture. They have accompanied the bride's father, Jacob Van den Bosch, and family, to Bradenton, Fla., where they are keeping house.

DOWNWARD COURSE

Fast Being Realized by Holland People.

A little backache at first. Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak. Urinary disorders quickly follow: Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.

This is the downward course of kidney ills.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Holland citizen.

Otto C. Van Dyk, 26 W. Eighteenth St., Holland, Mich., says: "I can say 1. at Doan's Kidney Pills are the most reliable kidney remedy on the market today. A short time ago I was suddenly taken with a sharp pain in the small of my back. I did not pay much attention to the trouble at first, but it gradually grew worse and my condition became so bad I was unable to walk. When a member of my family who had used Doan's Kidney Pills with excellent results advised me to try them, I procured a box at Geo. L. Lage's Drug Store and I had taken only a few doses before the pains were greatly lessened. I continued using this remedy and gradually improved until I received a complete cure. I attribute my present good health entirely to the use of Doan's Kidney Pills."

GOING TO SEE

THE ELEPHANTS.

Holland will be well represented in Grand Rapids, Thursday, June 15, on circus day. Indications are that the town will turn out by the thousands, attracted by the wonderful new circus which the Barnum and Bailey people are putting forth this season. The show has an entire new equipment, costing the management $3,200,000. One third of this was spent on the parade which is reported as the most elaborate street spectacle ever devised. It is three miles in length.

The great menagerie of this circus is creating nothing short of a sensation in towns it visits. It contains the most remarkable collection of rare beasts of any zoological display in the world, and many specimens which are not duplicated in any other zoo, in America or Europe. The chief attraction here is a year old giraffe, the only one ever born in this country. In fact it is the only giraffe, not full grown, ever seen outside the depths of the African jungle. Matured giraffes are scarce enough but this youngster is worth its weight in gold.

The performance in the main tent is presented by 400 of the world's greatest artists, gathered from no less than thirty-two nations. The acts they are offering are novel and not at all like the acts that have been seen in America in the past. Fifty clowns furnish the comedy and in this respect the show is the laughing success of the age. And there are thrills without number from the start to the finish. The performance of Charles the First, a chimpanzee bicycle rider and roller skater, is a most sensational surprise. The specialties of John Ducander's bell-ringing horses, Winston's riding seals, a brass band of elephants, the Konyot family of German riders, the Fonelli family of Italian acrobats, the Les Deko family of French equilibrists and the Siegrist-Silbon family of aerialists are of the first European rank.

Barnum and Bailey carry 1,286 people, 700 horses, 40 elephants, 30 camels, 1,000 other wild animals, bath parlors, laundries, blacksmith shops, harness shops, carpenter shops, dentists, doctors, a lawyer and a private police force. The many tents cover fourteen acres of ground.

ROAD TO WEALTH IS PLAIN

But the Man of Millions Quotes One Vital Point From His Directions.

The Man of Millions smiled benignly upon the earnest faced youth who stood before him, hat in hand.

"You wish to know," he said to the young man, "the rules to be followed to attain fortune. It is a simple matter and it is no secret. Yet so many men fail."

The Man of Millions sighed. After a momentary pause, he resumed in his most gracious manner:

"First, I wish to say that every boy has today the same opportunities—nay, better opportunities—that I had. You have a better knowledge of men and books than I had at your age. Furthermore, you have glorious examples of men like—well, I might mention myself, but modesty forbids. Anyway, the magazines and newspapers are filled with stories of the successes of our great men of industry from which you may profit.

"Work and save, by boy, and opportunity will come. For instance, you might buy a few good standard stocks when they are down at rock-bottom and sell when they get high; or you might buy some good lots in a locality where some great city is to be built and hold them until the city springs into being, and gold will flow in upon you in a steady stream."

The Man of Millions swung back to his desk to contemplate the plans for the new hospital he was building for sufferers from gout.

"But," suggested the youth timidly, "how am I to know when stocks are at rock-bottom?"

"I have already given you too much of my valuable time," said the Man of Millions shortly, as he pushed an electric button on his desk which released the section of the floor on which the youth was standing, and lowered him gently to the reception room below.—Roy R. Atkinson in Puck.

LEAVING IT TO THE GUIDE

Bishop Didn't Have Language Equal to the Occasion When the Trout Escaped.

The bishop was an angler and was keen on trout fishing. Early in the season, if not the opening day, he responded to the lure of the rippling brook. As he crept softly through the elder thicket that bordered the stream he had the good fortune to hook a trout that put up a stormy fight. Evidently the fish had no mind to grace the crosel of even an apostolic expert.

The guide held his breath. It was not possible for him to get near enough through the brush to help the bishop and the enemy. He could only watch the fight and hope for the best. The struggle culminated in a swift jerk that landed the dripping old warrior up in the branches of a maple which towered above the alders—not an unusual experience for an angler, but the first of the kind that had fallen to the lot of the bishop. Well—he was always seeking experience and now he had it. This, however, was different from casting and the result was dire. The line snapped, the brilliant and dashing Pontifical dropped back into the brook and with an insolent wave of his tail said as plainly as words, "By, by, old boy."

The bishop and guide looked at each other. Then the bishop said to the guide in the earnest and appealing tone with which he was wont to stir the emotions of his congregation, "John, you say it."

How Spirits Spell.

"Judging by spiritistic communications I have received lately simple spelling must be more popular in the world beyond than it is in this," said a man who patronizes mediums. "Half the messages received from the spirit land nowadays are spelled in a way to bring joy to the hearts of the simple spellers. Not one medium, but many, transmit them thus. Mediums who know the old-fashioned spelling book well enough to spell down a whole room full of folks have gone over to the revised edition."

"Whatever force it is that guides their hands when transmitting messages must be impressed with the utility of the new system. At the last seance I attended I received a communication from a man who fought new-fangled spelling with his dying breath, but since he passed over he must have learned something to make him change his mind, for he now writes like a disciple of Artemus Ward."

Cecil Rhodes' Good Sense.

Although Cecil Rhodes was a busy man he found time for a certain amount of reading. He made it a rule, although very fond of good pictures, never to buy any for fear of developing a craze for collecting works of art, for with all his wealth he felt that he could not afford to spend so much money on a tad. The only famous painting that he owned was one by Sir Joshua Reynolds, supposed to represent a young married woman, which hung in the dining room over the fireplace. As a boy he had taken a great fancy to the picture and when he grew up and became rich he bought it.

No Deception.

"You deceived me," protested the woman at the washbasin. "When you married me you said you had a job on the road." "And so I did, my dear," rejoined her husband, who was hitting the pipe in an easy chair, "but it hasn't arrived yet."

Lucy turned and looked at him with a pathetic seriousness in her eyes.

"Until this morning, Harry," she said, "I wanted to be a city girl. I thought the little town where I have lived was a pitiful place."

"But it had you in it," Harry reminded her, gently.

"I am beginning to understand," Lucy said, "that here appearances are everything—but there isn't any thing in the country, there is everything—and that takes the deceit from the appearances."

"Why, you're a genuine little philosopher," Harry said.

"We have the blue sky in the daytime back there," Lucy continued, "and here there are clouds and smoke. There we have the stars at night, here there are electric signs. There we get up at sunrise and the little birds sing us a welcome from the trees, but here—"

"Here the folks stay up until sunrise and eat the little birds before that," Harry finished for her. "You don't want a city home, then, Lucy?"

"I want a home where the heart does not have to be hidden," she told him.

"And so do I. I want a real home, with the best little girl in the world as my wife."

There was no mistaking his meaning. Lucy looked at him for half a minute, then said:

"When thee have explained, Harry."

CHAPTER XI.

Fifteen minutes later Count von Fitz cautiously crept beneath the window and whistled. Mrs. Blazes did not answer. He whistled louder. Still no answer.

"If you are gone, I'm glad," he said. "Cheer me by not replying."

But no such cheer was in store for him. Mrs. Blazes noiselessly opened the window and whispered:

"Sh! Be careful! Did you get my hat?"

"Not yet," the Count told her. "They had to make him. I wouldn't trust that Daffie woman. I went to snuffer hat place. Der name is Terese."

"But they won't know the model," Mrs. Blazes feared.

"I eggplant him perfectly. I tell her a shape like a smashed balloon, yellow on der outside mit a garden of red poppies."

"Red poppies, you silly man!"

"Poppies or poppies—day look chust as bad to me from now on."

"You'd best go right back and stay there until it is finished," Mrs. Blazes suggested.

"No. I told dem to sent it here, so I make sure I get it."

"That's good," she said, with a tone of relief.

"Now you come right out und ven der hat comes I gift it to you, und away you go."

"Come out?" she asked sarcastically. "Am I an aeroplane?"

"Lissen. Make a rope yet, und I pull you out."

"An idea!" she exclaimed with delight. "I'll tear up the sheets and things in here, tie them together in a rope, and let myself down."

"Splendid! I go und vatch for der messenger mit der hat."

The Count strolled away, while she closed her window.

A young couple came walking slowly through the flower garden. It was Pigeon and Carolyn. The twilight spell had been cast upon them. Arm in arm, silently they strolled until they neared the bench.

Suddenly Pigeon said:

"Let's sit down here. I've got to see Harry through his racket, you know"—evidently continuing a conversation which had lapsed, some moments before—"but after that—"

He looked down into Carolyn's eyes. "After that?" she asked, softly.

For Carolyn had all a woman's intuition, in spite of her young years, and she diagnosed the symptoms of an approaching proposal. She did not intend to accept him, but no woman will allow a proposal to get away from her. Proposals to a woman are as the scalps the Indian brave ties to his war belt.

"After that," said Pigeon, beginning to sit down, "I can look after my own affairs. And I—"

An ominous, ripping sound came. Mrs. Blazes was beginning to make her rope, but the young couple, of course, knew nothing of that. Pigeon straightened up with a jerk and tried to look unconscious. He did not know what had given away. Carolyn tried to smooth over his embarrassment by saying:

"Isn't it a lovely evening?"

Then she began to sink gracefully upon the seat, when an even more ominous ripping sound was heard. Carolyn abandoned her project with due and proper suddenness, while Pigeon mopped his brow, and said, in flustered tones that he tried to make sound matter-of-course:

"I thought earlier today that we might have some rain."

He lifted his foot to rest it carelessly upon the bench, not caring to try to sit down any more, but with the movement came a terrific rip as though something had torn loose forever.

He dropped his foot and tried to whistle a popular air.

Carolyn looked the other way and became nervous.

"I can't do a thing with my hair to-night," she observed, lifting her arms to pat it into shape.

R-r-rip!

Her arms dropped to her sides, soldierwise.

"I think," Pigeon said, desperately, "that the evening is the most pleasant time of the day."

He sat down, in spite of the ripping that still sounded.

"Won't you be seated?" he asked politely.

Carolyn slowly, carefully allowed herself to sit beside him, and to her evident relief there was no further sound of ripping.

"Isn't it funny," Pigeon said, "how lonesome a fellow gets at this time of the evening, if he is all alone?"

"Now, don't get sentimental," Carolyn said, tapping him playfully on the shoulder.

Simultaneously with her movement there was a sudden, short rip. She drew back in confusion.

"Is it wrong to get sentimental?" Pigeon asked, carelessly dropping his arm along the back of the seat and behind her, and at the same time hearing another vicious rip. He pulled his arm back as though his hand had encountered a pin.

"It's silly to be sentimental," Carolyn declared, without a motion of any kind.

A Lesson by Diaz

Many falsities will be read into the meaning of the passing of Porfirio Diaz. The close of his career will be claimed as a triumph of liberty, but it is so only in one way. Mexicans have had more liberty under Diaz than they ever had before, and anybody familiar with the Mexican type must realize that the people have prospered more under the degree of liberty they have had than they could have prospered under a larger degree which the type would have mistaken for license. Diaz organized a system of public education. No enemy of a people ever does that. He reduced public burdens by abolishing sinecures and disbanding bodies of parasites. He made it not only possible but easy for the common people to get work on wages. There have been insidious influences at work for years against him, and these have been able to color the tone of much press comment in this country, to the peril of American residents in Mexico, and of hundreds of millions of American capital invested there.

It will not be long before the full truth as to the real influences which moved our army to the frontier will be made known. It will acquit our much maligned investors in Mexican properties. It will also acquit Diaz, who never asked or desired it. In the meantime we may extract from the situation such felicity as the end of the war affords, and even a modicum of innocent fun out of the delights of pure speculation. In speculating upon the one and real cause which worked the downfall of Diaz, we should say that he wrote his abdication in the document in which he consigned Madero to prison. Madero was a candidate for president last year. Madero had long been a candidate for president. He had never been a successful one, but last year, for some reason, Diaz, who was standing for another reelection, with Madero as his opponent, had Madero locked up in the midst of the campaign. This was the fatal mistake of his great career. The Mexicans, as any other people would have done, sympathized with a presidential candidate locked up by his opponent for no other reason than that he wanted to be president. The Mexicans thought that if it be a crime to run for president then Porfirio Diaz, perennial candidate, was the greatest criminal of his age. Wherefore, when Madero got out, they rallied to his standard, and few things are ever more certain in Mexico than that Madero will be president.

The fatal blunder made by Diaz was turning the key on Madero. Such a policy would even have made Mr. Bryan president of the United States. Mr. Bryan has been the Madero of this country in the persistency with which he has insisted on being a candidate for president in spite of many discouragements. He has tried our patience as Madero tried the patience of Diaz, but we have never thought of putting him in jail as a means of getting rid of his campaigning. In 1908 the presidential candidate of one of our minor parties was in jail, but not on the charge of running for president. Had Mr. Bryan been jailed on that charge in that year, he would be president now. He will be president yet if he can only get in jail for wanting to be. This is one of the lessons Porfirio Diaz has taught the world.

Fight Against Dandelion On

Our ancient, though far from our esteemed friend, the dandelion, has made its appearance by the millions as a result of the recent heavy rains and high temperature. There appear to be more of the "yellow fellows" in the city at the present time than ever before. You cannot exterminate the dandelion. Sad experience has proven that beyond all argument. If every dandelion in Holland was dug up by the roots and cremated this fall, the weed or flower would still be with us in all its pristine glory when the robins nested again next spring. The seed of the dandelion is equipped for flying and when the autumn breezes blow it raises in the air and travels anywhere from a yard to 3,000 miles before alighting to take root.

The weed appears to be a thing of beauty when it first blossoms. It is the harbinger of spring. But it is not long appreciated. As eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, so is eternal work the price of keeping the dandelions from monopolizing the lawn and the gardens. The Japanese are said to marvel at the beauty of the dandelion and to regret that it does not flourish in the flowery kingdom. Americans would be willing to let the Japs have the dandelions—all of them.

PICKPOCKETS IN HOLLAND.

Carl J. Herman of Holland is held at the county jail charged with attempting to pick Mrs. R. Hoogerhyde's pockets on a Holland interurban car. Mrs. Hoogerhyde boarded the car at Zeeland and stood on the rear platform for a short time before entering the car. She claims that she felt something in her pockets and immediately missed her pocketbook. She accused Herman, who was standing behind her, of taking the pocketbook and he suggested that perhaps she had dropped it. Glancing down she discovered it lying between Herman's feet. When she picked it up she discovered it to be empty. When she continued to accuse him, Herman offered to give her money, stating that he would rather give her ten dollars than be mixed up in such an affair. When the matter was reported to the Ottawa county officers Herman was taken in Grand Rapids by Detective Smith and brought to the county seat. He protests his innocence and appeared before Justice Wachs this morning. His case was adjourned for a day or two but he was finally bound over to circuit court under bonds of $300. He is 34 years old and has a wife and family.

This is dated to take effect June 1 and it is estimated will make a difference in the company's revenues of $27,000 a year. This is the fourth voluntary reduction in rates in the last eight years.

A TALE OF A GALLANT SEAMAN.

When the government steamer Gen. Meade steamed into port at Grand Haven the other day she had on board among her ship's company a man who was proclaimed a hero of the sea. All of this glamor and all of this glory, because Billie O'Brien, a Grand Haven sailor, had taken a Memorial day ride in a canoe with a young woman, at South Haven. According to the story published in the South Haven papers, Mr. O'Brien, who is said to be the leader of the society set on board of the exclusive Meade, took Miss Gail Tinley, a South Haven athletic summer girl, out for a canoe ride. All went well until Miss Tinley in moving about the canoe caught her foot in her skirt and was thrown into the water. Whether he dove to save the girl or merely rolled over with the canoe is somewhat of a question of fact. The young man is a good swimmer but before he got fairly started the young woman was overboarding it out of the wet places in the river, and he had some difficulty in catching up to her in time to assist her up the bank.

The young woman was taken to the Meade, where she enjoyed the hospitality of the ship, and a cup of steaming coffee from the chef. With a coat which was but one of the dozen or more offered her, to cover up her wet clothes, the heroine of the day was escorted home, none the worse for her experience.

It is alleged that Van Duren was Justice of the Peace when he was appointed city attorney and that he thereupon dropped all justice work. When Cornelius Vandermeulen was appointed city attorney Van Duren again resumed justice work.

The action is brought by Prosecuting Attorney Louis H. Osterhouse upon relation of Engertus Vanderveen.

A record breaking revenue was collected by the city clerk Monday. All was raised from the issuance of licenses. Dog licenses, milk dealers' licenses, pool room licenses and sidewalk licenses were sought in great numbers. The unusual demand was the result of a clause in the city ordinance which makes the procuring of these permits on the first Monday in June necessary.

Beginning today sweeping changes will become effective in the schedules of the Holland Interurban. Beginning at 7:35 o'clock cars will leave Grand Rapids once an hour until 9:35. At 10 o'clock a service of a car every hour will be carried through until 4 o'clock. Limiteds will leave at 4:45, 5:35, 6:10 and then from 7 until 11 o'clock local cars every hour on the even hour. The attention of local merchants is called to the new state law promulgated by the dairy and food department which makes it unlawful for dealers to expose goods for sale without proper sanitary protection against flies and dust, particularly referring to meats, fruits and vegetables. This law has attracted much attention throughout the state and there will be general effort to enforce it. A penalty is attached for those who violate the law.

The display of the weather and temperature flags at the local office of the U. S. Weather Bureau was discontinued last week. This step was taken on recommendation of Inspector Conger and was concurred in by the local observer, C. H. Eshleman. The objection to the flag signals is that it is impossible to express the forecast definitely, and the public will be encouraged to consult the cards. Another change will be the discontinuance of the high temperature reports on the daily weather bulletin during the summer months.—Grand Haven Tribune.

His companion, Alfred Sirrine, also a student, who was on the opposite bank, noticed Koeppel's predicament and plunged into the water after him. Koeppel came up the second time and Sirrine grasped him by the hair and succeeded in getting him to the bank. Koeppel was unconscious for about fifteen minutes before he was finally resuscitated.

Unless the board of education reconsiders its action in replacing two women teachers at the Christian school on Central avenue with male teachers, the ten other teachers employed there will go on strike. Out of sympathy for the two discharged teachers the ten co-workers say they will refuse to renew their contracts. The school was organized nine years ago and although dependent upon the benevolences of its supporters and the essential tuition fees, has made considerable progress. Between four and five hundred pupils are enrolled. The board of the school has not indicated what action will be taken.

OLD TESTAMENT TIMES BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

HEZEKIAH'S GREAT REFORM

II Chronicles 30—June 11
"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."—I Samuel 16:7.

KING HEZEKIAH of Judah has a wonderful record as a man of God, a reformer, a patriot, yet he was the son of a bad father, who in turn was the son of a good father, who in turn was the son of a bad father. The alternation between good and bad for four generations illustrates the fact that, although heredity has much to do with every member of our race, nevertheless, there are counter-balances in nature.

We are all members of Adam's family, and as such we are all sharers in the general weakness, mental, moral and physical, which for six thousand years has descended upon us. St. Paul refers to this, saying, "By one man's disobedience sin entered into the world, and death as the result of sin; and thus death passed upon all men, because all are sinners."—Romans 5:12.

The downward or sinful tendency inbred in our very constitution is so strong that none is able fully to overcome it. The best that any of us can do is to set our wills in opposition to our inherited weaknesses and to fight courageously against them. The Apostle assures us that if it were possible for humanity to fully gain such a victory over its fallen self as to bring itself back to perfection, then doubtless God would have provided that way of salvation.

Hezekiah the Reformer
The King's father had introduced idolatrous worship—erecting altars and groves to the worship of Baal. God's temple was strewn with rubbish. Under the direction of the King, the Levites began a cleansing work. It required eight days to carry out the rubbish from the court, etc. Then the priests, who alone were authorized to enter into the Holy, or temple proper, were directed to cleanse the temple itself.

But as a preliminary work, before the cleansing of the court or the temple began, the King directed that the priests and the Levites sanctify themselves afresh to the Lord and His service. How appropriate! How in harmony with the words of the Prophet Isaiah, who lived at that time and who was the King's counselor—"Be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the Lord's house!"—Isa. 62:11.

But let us not forget the instruction of St. Peter upon this subject. Comparing the priesthood of Israel with the institutions of the Christian church, St. Peter gives us the thought that the priests of olden times do not find their antitypes in the clergy of today, but in God's saintly or sanctified people, whether in or out of the public ministry.

Thus St. Peter says to all of the consecrated Church of Christ, "Ye are a Royal Priesthood, a Holy Nation, a peculiar people, that ye should show forth the praises of Him who has called you out of darkness into His marvelous light."

The Divine Blessing

The conclusion of the feast was a Divine blessing upon all the people, through the Priests and Levites. So there goes out a Divine blessing from the Lord's sanctified people—from all the consecrated of the household of faith—to the people in general—to their neighbors, their friends and visitors from afar. Let such be our influence amongst men. In this connection let us remember the power of the tongue, of which the Apostle said, "Therewith praise we God, and therewith curse (or injure) we men." Let our tongues and all our powers be used in blessing the people as well as in praising our God.

The King wisely began his reformation at the temple and gave the priests and Levites the first share therein. It was later that the idols of the city of Jerusalem were gathered and buried into the valley of Kedron, and it was after the fervor of the Passover occasion that the zeal of the people in general rose high, and they went forth all over the land, destroying the idols, the groves of Baal, and every symbol of idolatry to God.

And so today: Everywhere the light of our day is showing more and more of the meanness, selfishness, corruption—some of it centuries old, and some of it bred of special privilege and opportunity. The call for reform is heard on every hand, although sometimes but feeble. The proper place for reform is, as in Hezekiah's day, with the sanctification of the priests and the Levites themselves.

If the Church of Christ could but faithfully perform her responsibility, under the direction of the King, it would mean a great revival of religion.

On Thursday afternoon a fire was discovered a little southwest of our city, and blowing directly toward us with about the same favorable prospect for a first class conflagration as in '71. The fire alarm was given to go and obtain the mastery of it before it should endanger us, and a great many turned out, but only a few volunteered to go and work—and work they did, until they had cleared up a wide track through the rubbish for a line to fight it on. Happily enough rain set in toward evening, and no further trouble was necessary.

Ex-Alderman J. Aling expired on Monday morning and his funeral was taken charge of by the Odd Fellows, of which order he was a member. This funeral is the first one that order was called upon to conduct and we don't hesitate to state that it was executed in a very good order, on Wednesday afternoon aided by visiting members of the lodges and encampments of Grand Haven, Saugatuck and Allegan, and also by the presence of the Hon. Schuyler Colfax. The funeral sermon was preached in the Holland language by Rev. H. Uiterwijk, in the 2nd Reformed church.

St. Joseph was first settled by whites in 1785. In the early 60's when Judge Littlejohn was on the bench, his circuit included the counties of Ottawa, Allegan, Muskegon, Newaygo, Mecosta, Osceola, Oceana, Grand Traverse, Antrim, Kalkaska, Benzie, Emmett, Otsego, Wexford and Missaukee counties.

The coinage of gold was almost suspended in Holland last year, as the commercial price of gold was too high to permit the coinage unless for export for special purposes.

The carrying of the mail from the Vriesland station to Drenthe, Mich., has been relet. Mr. A. Denning, the new carrier, will commence on July 1, and is to receive for the same $150 per annum, while the present carrier is receiving $270.

The mayor, aldermen and city officials, on Friday evening, invaded the home of City Clerk Sipp 12th street. It was 35 years that day that Mr. and Mrs. George H. Sipp had plighted each other their vow. The party numbered about 18, and remained long enough to extend their personal congratulations and present the veteran city clerk with a gold headed cane, and his estimable lady with a rocking chair.

The wheelmen of Holland went to Zeeland one evening last week, and organized what will be known as the Ottawa Cycling Club. The club musters 23 wheels of which Zeeland contributes 13. The officers are: President, Dr. J. G. Huizinga; vice-president, A. Lahuis; Secretary, C. Lahuis; treasurer, A. Veneklassen; Captain, J. J. Cappon, lieutenant, Prof. Petrie. The drill is by means of a code of signals. Tuesday evening the club paraded on the streets of this city and made a very creditable and imposing demonstration. The distance between here and Zeeland is generally made in 45 minutes, though some riders have made the run from one post office to the other in 35 minutes.

Last week, Friday, afternoon the first match game of baseball that has been played here for years took place at the fair grounds. There were about 200 present to witness the game, which was between a nine composed of students of Hope College and the regular club of Grand Haven. It was not known until this game was announced that the Holland boys made any pretensions at playing ball, and what little conceit they may have had previous to this game was quickly taken out of them. The Grand Haven club played with no degree of skill, and in fact played poor for a regular organization. The following is a list of players with their respective positions:

We understand that a return game will be played at Grand Haven next Monday on which occasion we predict a better game, especially on the part of the Holland club. Last Tuesday evening a Baseball association was formed here with some 25 members and this number is being constantly augmented by new converts to the "National Game." The officers of this association are: President, J. G. Van Putten, Secretary, W. C. Walsh, Treasurer, D. Gilmore, Captain of Nine, W. Steldt.

WHAT YOU SAW 10 YEARS AGO

What may prove to be another Lake Michigan mystery, was partially revealed last Sunday at Port Sheldon; but whether it is a tragedy or a comedy may never be ascertained.

As Ed Lyons was strolling along the beach near Port Sheldon he picked up a bottle containing a note written in plain backhand on a piece of envelope. It read as follows:

"I was tired of life and jumped overboard in despair. Fred Elfin."

Art Drinkwater brought the note to this city. Whether it was written in sport or whether it is a message from a suicide's grave in the depths of Lake Michigan, will probably never be known.

The employees of De Grondwet were taken out on a fishing excursion Wednesday. Van Eyck's steam yacht and four of George Bender's row boats were put in commission and the trip to Pine Creek Bay was made. On their return they showed a string of 225, not counting the dog fish.

Guard—But you don't mean to tell me this boy is under 12 years of age? Passenger (on very slow train)—Perhaps not—but he was when he got in.

"Jack," said Mr. Brown to his only son and heir, "I've got a good mind to send you to bed without any tea!" Jack—"Why, dad?" Dad—"I hear that you have disobeyed your grandmother, who told you not to slide down the banister, and you continued to do so."

Jack—"Grandma didn't tell me not to, dad; she only came to me and said, 'I wouldn't slide down those banisters, my lad.'"

Dad—"Well?" Jack—"Well, dad, I shouldn't think she would, an old lady like her; should you, dad?"

Mr. Brown didn't pass an opinion, thinking it best to let things drop.

A boy twelve years old with an air of melancholy resignation, sent to his teacher and handed in the following note from his mother before taking his seat:

"Dear Sir: Please excuse James for not being present yesterday."

"He played truant, but you needn't whip him for it, as the boy he played truant with and him fell out, and he licked James; and a man they threw stones at caught him and licked him; and the driver of a cart they hung onto licked him; and the owner of a fat they chased licked him. Then I licked him when he came home, after which his father licked him; and I had to give him another for being impudent to me for telling his father. So you need not lick him until next time."

"He thinks he will attend regular in future."

VALUE OF CROP ROTATION.

A valuable object lesson in the value of crop rotation is furnished by recent experiments, notably at the Virginia Station, where corn has been grown continuously on one plot since 1894, with an average yield since 1900 of over 24 bushels per acre. In a three-year rotation of wheat, clover, and corn the corn yield has averaged over 42 bushels per acre since 1900, showing a difference of over 21 bushels' increase, due solely to rotation. Where the land was matured at the rate of about eight tons per acre in a five-year rotation of wheat, timothy and clover hay, pasture, oats and corn the corn yield has averaged over 60 bushels per acre.

FALLING PRICES, NOT WAGES.

Prices are falling. Grain continues to tumble. Cotton has forsaken its eerie heights of last year. Textiles have come down. Wool is so cheap that farmers complain it is no longer pays to grow it. All kinds of meat are less expensive than they were not so long ago. Eggs have been cut in half. Butter has moved in sympathy. Bread ought to have come down, though little has been heard of lower prices at retail. Milk, especially the condensed variety, is not so hard to buy. Notwithstanding all this, wages have been scrupulously maintained, so that the lot of the average citizen is easier than it was during the greater part of 1910. There is still room for improvement, though it is gratifying to know that the tendency is in the right direction. The hiatus between prices at first hand and at last hand is still much too wide in many instances, but this is a matter which the consumer can do as much to correct as any one else.—New York Journal of Commerce.

AN EYE TO BUSINESS.

A dressmaker had sent her servant to post a letter and was anxiously waiting her return.

"Did you post my letter all right, Mary?" she asked, as the maid of all work entered.

"Oh, yes, ma'am!" replied Mary, holding a penny out to her mistress.

"What is this for?" again asked the fair employer, "I gave it to you for the stamp."

"I didn't have to use it, ma'am, I put the letter in the box when nobody was looking," explained the innocent Mary.

SPARKING ON SUNDAY NIGHT

Institution That Helps to Make Life Worth Living for the Young People.

The Sunday night sparking is a sacred institution. But for it, life would be at a certain age not worth living, and race suicide would become indeed a matter of serious apprehension. The man who has not tender memories of taking his girl home from Sunday evening service and going in for "a little while" is apt to be a crusty bachelor, hating women because he never knew one in her most charming attitude. The man whose youth was never mellowed by a Sunday night kiss stolen from not too unwilling lips has missed half his life. Half? Yes, ninety-tenths!

The Sunday nights when the fire burned low—and the lamp, too—hold a hallowed place in the memories of every normal life. The low fire and the low light have cast a glow that reaches all the way to the grave. They who are not grown old and heart-hardened may sneer at it now and think that young hearts should be caloused as old ones are; but time was with all of us when we looked forward through the seven days of the week to Sunday night as the golden time of the week. And our fathers did it. And our grandfathers. And our great-grandfathers. It is an ancient human custom that did not originate with our youth or fade with it. Our children do it in spite of our frowns. And our grandchildren will. And our great-grandchildren. Generations come and go, but Sunday night sparking remains.—Wichita Beacon.

END OF OLD MUSSENTOUCHIT

Baby Smashed the Gold Fish Globe, but Killed the Mysterious and Hatelful Creature.

There was one word the little girl heard many times a day and could not imagine what it was. The word was Mussentouchit. Baby wondered who Mussentouchit could be. The strange thing lived in the bureau drawers; it lived in the sewing machine; it lived in the tall jar that stood on the little round table; it certainly lived in the glass globe where the gold fishes swam.

This went on till baby was two years old. Mussentouchit was everywhere—in the shining books on the parlor table; in the flower beds; among the roses; even in mamma's work-basket the strange thing lived; and if baby took up a reel of silk or cotton, there was Mussentouchit.

One day baby found herself by the glass globe all alone. The family were very busy, and for a few minutes forgot the little, prying, restless darling.

This was her chance. Up went the chubby legs into the chair that stood near the gold fish globe. Poised on the rounding cushion, baby reached far over to touch the gold fish. In reaching she lost her balance and fell, dragging the globe to the floor. There was a crash, a scream, a rush, and mamma was on the spot. Baby was picked up, kissed and scolded.

"I deem I tilted old Mussentouchit 'is time!" she said, shaking herself and walking off.

Cherished Bell.

The oldest bell in the United States, possibly in the Americas, is in the small village of East Haddam, Conn. It bears the date "A. D. 803." Presumably it came from an old monastery in Spain, and was probably brought to this country as ballast or old iron in some sailing ship. Later it was bought in a junk shop, and now it hangs in a belfry in the rectory at East Haddam. The vicissitudes through which this old bell passed doubtless were varied. Before the discovery of the new world, before the first printed book, before the Norman conquest of England, before Charlemagne, it called men to prayers, at a time when the light of learning in western Europe was but a spark in the ashes of dead civilization. It was cast in an age when men were fearful, when those who were not strong were futile—and today it rests in a peaceful New England hamlet.

Origin of Common Phrase.

We owe the word "catchpenny" to a publisher of the name of Catchpenn. After a celebrated murder trial in 1824, when the assassin had been executed for the murder of Weare, this man hit upon the bright idea of issuing a penny ballad entitled "We Are Alive Again." People jumped to the conclusion that the title was "We Are Alive Again," and as it sold like wildfire to the extent of two and a half million copies; hence a "Catchpenn" or "catchpenny" affair came to signify a hoax of that kind. Incidentally it may be remarked that the ingenious Catchpenn succeeded in catching two and a half million pennies!

Thought He Was Dreaming.

"John," said the foreman, unexpectedly, "we have decided to raise you five dollars a week." John made no answer, but appeared to be looking for something on his desk. "Why don't you say something—aren't you satisfied?" demanded the foreman. "I'm trying to see if there's an alarm clock here," said John.

Deep Strategy.

"How 'did the girls' anti-smoking crusade turn out?" "It collapsed. The young men of the town organized an anti-chocolate crusade."—Stray Stories.

YIELDED TO WHIM OF WOMAN

How General Sir O'Moore Creagh Gave His Wife an Elephant Ride in Calcutta.

General Sir O'Moore Creagh, commander-in-chief of the British forces in India, stationed at Calcutta, is an indulgent husband as well as a brave fighter. Lady Creagh, becoming weary of driving out behind her horses, asked the general to arrange for her to take an afternoon constitutional on elephant back.

"But, my dear," explained the general, "there isn't an elephant in Calcutta, and besides one must have a special permit to drive an elephant through the streets. The ordinance requires all traffic to be stopped on occasions of the sort."

"The Indian commander-in-chief ought to be able to arrange it—the things you mention are mere details."

Sir O'Moore found that the only trained passenger-carrying elephant suitably provided with observation seats in the near neighborhood belonged to the Maharajah of Burdwan. Would the Maharajah loan the elephant to the Indian commander-in-chief? Would he? Certainly.

The huge animal was jogged thirty-six miles from Tarkesswarr to Calcutta, accompanied by two Indian grooms. At the appointed hour on the following day the elephant was in waiting gorgeously decorated. Lady Creagh mounted to the animal's back by means of a ladder. Then, with police escort, she rode at a stately pace through the town from Howrah Bridge to the fort. Along the entire distance she had the right of way. All traffic was suspended.

SCALING A FISH ISN'T EASY

Task That Requires Courage of High Degree, Together With Machinery and Patience.

In some places when you buy a fish it is cleaned for you. But sometimes you have to clean a fish yourself. For the benefit of those who may have to clean fish it may be said that you need a road scraper and an ax. If there is anything that clings closer than a fish's scales it is not generally known and flint and granite and a miser's heart are jelly as compared to the backbone of a fish for hardness.

After you have scaled a fish people are always kind enough to come forward and tell you how it should have been done. But if you plunge in yourself without advice or counsel you are apt to emerge with the scales of the fish transferred from him to you. Scales stick to your eyebrows, to your eyelashes; they are entangled in your hair. Your arms are a mass of scales. Your clothes are covered with them. If you happen to clean the fish on the back porch of a seaside cottage on a summer day when mosquitoes are thick your misery beggars description.

If you can't get your fish cleaned for you it is best to frown upon a taste for fish in the family. If this doesn't work and you must get fish and you must clean them choose kinds that haven't any scales. Some fish are considerable enough to grow without scales. They are just as good to eat or good enough, anyway, and why transform yourself into the likeness of a mermale without any of the fun of being one, simply to induce a fish to part with its scales.

Tough Elbows.

At a time of the day when nobody was at home in a New York tenement except women and babies search was made through the building for a girl who had never worn elbow sleeves. "There was a time when I would have been eligible myself, but the styles of the last few years have disqualified me," said a settlement worker. "I found on this visit a baby who needed a bath right on the spot. I had no thermometer to test the temperature of the water, and there was none in the building. The hand and face are no guide, because they have become toughened through exposure. There was a time when the elbow was an infallible guide for a baby's bath. What felt comfortable to the elbow felt comfortable to baby. But alas, elbow sleeves have impaired the usefulness of that natural thermometer. That elbow test can be relied on now adays only when you find an elbow that never shed its long sleeves."

Worst Form of Ignorance.

Ignorance is in its most acute form when allied with vulgarity and rudeness. But there are so many branches spreading from this large tree that it would be quite a difficult task to divide them into specific sections. The advantages arising from its growth are so insignificant as compared with those of the tree of knowledge that no man dare without impunity offer many words of praise in its favor. There is a sort of ignorance that can be excused; it is that which exalts itself in silence. Like every other condition and quality that takes its place in natural order, it will receive its share of toleration when kept within the narrow bounds of the zone peculiarly its own.—Exchange.

Drama of Real Life.

"Look here," the angry manager exclaimed, "what do you mean by turning in such a play as this to me? You let the villain marry the heroine and permit the hero to get the worst of it all around, although he is an exemplary young man who has always led a blameless life." "Well, you said you wanted a play that was true to life, didn't you?"

LUCK A BIG FACTOR

BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIPS ARE OFTEN DECIDED BY SMALL THINGS.

HOW PITTSBURG LOST OUT

Might Have Won Great Battle of 1908
If Club Had Known Facts in Contest With Chicago—Tinker's Stage Fright.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Baseball championships often depend upon the slightest turn of the wheel of fortune. Often a pebble, even a tough blade of grass, will turn the entire season and make or mar the prospects of a club. Possibly the closest shave ever a championship club had was that of the Chicago Cubs in 1908. That was the year that Merkle forgot to touch second base, the year that the Chicago club finished tie with New York after beating Pittsburg in the last game of the se-son, and then won the pennant and later the world's championship by winning from New York in the play off of the tie game.

This yarn is about that last game of the season with Pittsburg. There is no harm in telling it now, but if the Pittsburg club had known the facts that day it could have claimed the pennant and won it without an effort.

The Chicago club had been on the road, battling desperately to hold even with New York. The Pittsburg team, coming from behind with a tremendous rush, had unexpectedly leaped to the front. On that last day of the season—Sunday, the situation was this: New York was done. If Pittsburg won the Pirates won the pennant on percentage. If Chicago won the Cubs and New York would be exactly tied. Chicago was baseball crazy.
Over 32,000 persons piled into the grounds to see that struggle which was to determine the championship of the National league. The crowd was banked around the playing field forty deep and every ball that was fouled into the crowd disappeared never to return.

And thereby hangs this tale. Secretary Williams, of the Cubs, had been on the road with the team. When he left home there were hundreds of balls boxed and ready for use, he jerked out two dozen balls, and sent them to the umpires when play started, but within two innings those balls had disappeared into the crowd and the umpires were demanding more. Secretary Williams, summoned from his duties of watching the crowds, rushed for new balls and to his dismay discovered that only a bare half dozen balls were left. The others had disappeared. Not a ball that was fouled off was coming back into play and it was certain that the half dozen new balls would not last more than an inning or two. Failure to furnish balls meant forfeiture of the game and the pennant for Pittsburg and it was certain that Manager Clarke would not hesitate to seize the advantage.
The situation called for action and Secretary Williams acted.

It was Sunday and Spalding's store was closed, but inside of three minutes, an automobile containing one of the park employees armed with a key to the store was racing down Jackson boulevard to bring balls. Meantime

"I'm Glad to See You Using Your Noodle at Last."

Secretary Williams, with a bushel of practice balls, balls that had been used and were being kept for morning practice work, was clinging to a screen on top of the stand watching each ball that was fouled off. Every ball that he saw go into or over the stand and disappear he replaced with a practice ball tossed onto the field near the umpires.

In spite of his work there were only four balls in the hands of the umpires.
Neither Clarke nor the umpires detected the trick. By the fifth inning seven balls were in the hands of the umpire. Sheppard came to bat and fouled off four rapidly, and watch as he could Williams could only get one back onto the field. Two more were fouled off. An honest fan over in the right field crowd threw back one. He did not know it, but his honesty may have saved the pennant for the Cubs.
The supply had dwindled until the umpire was demanding balls when that one came back and it gave Williams a new chance. He took desperate chances and threw three more balls onto the field, all from different points on top of the stand, and without arousing suspicion. Meantime the man who had gone after new balls had been held up for speeding on the return trip from the store and was delayed ten minutes. The situation was desperate in the seventh inning when the auto flashed up in front of the office, and a few moments later Secretary Williams was able to furnish new balls as fast as the umpires demanded them and the danger was past.

"The only time I ever got stage fright," relates Joe Tinker, the actor-ball player, "was the night I opened in vaudeville this fall, and the cause of it all was one of the wisest baseball fans I ever saw in my life. He knows baseball all right, but I never saw him before and I certainly hope I never will again.

"When I first started trying to act
it was pretty hard on the nerves, but I got interested in the work—which was hard for me, and forgot all about the audience. After one season I thought I wouldn't have any trouble and when I went onto the stage at Danville, Ill., to try out the sketch I was as cool as if it was a ball game.
Down in the second row, on the aisle

"He Gave Me Cub Signals With His Eyes and Hands."

was a big easy-looking fellow and I decided he would be a good man to play to as the stage director told me when I first started always to pick out one or two persons and aim at them while acting. I never made a worse guess in my life, even when trying to figure whether Bender was going to pitch a curve or a fast ball.

"I hardly had got started when that fellow began to give me the Cub signals with his eyes and hands. The first thing he did after catching my eye was to alip me the hit and run signal that Steinfeldt and I used last year. I don't know how he got it, but when he flashed it I began to weaken. Then he switched and signalled me to bunt. I tried to get my eyes off him and watch someone else, but it wasn't any use. When I looked back again he signalled me that I was to cover second, using the same signal Evers uses, and I nearly forgot what I was doing. He had me on the run.
I was hearing the climax of the act and had almost forgotten him when I happened to catch his eye again. He was getting up from his seat and looked bored. Without a smile he signaled Chance's signal to steal. I stuck to the base, but I never was more tempted to try to steal—into the wings—than I was right there.

"I don't know him or how he got his signals, but if he comes around again I'll strike out sure

MAN KILLED—WORKED IN HOLLAND.

James Teachout, aged 22 of Big Rapids, a lineman engaged at work for the Bell Telephone company, fell from a pole at the high bridge near Berlin, Friday, and died in the office of Dr. Bayer of Coopersville shortly after his arrival there.

The accident occurred at a point where the Grand Trunk, interurban and highway connect, and it is presumed that in some manner a telephone wire got across the electric feed wire, giving him a shock.

Several ribs were broken and one of them punctured his lung.

The young man was placed in an interurban car and hurried to Coopersville, a distance of four miles.

Two months ago Teachout left Holland, having been in the employ of the Bell Telephone company.

KATE HOWARD SOLD FOR $8.

The two masted schooner Kate E. Howard, formerly of Holland, which was wrecked off Fox Point in the gale of May 2, was sold at auction at Milwaukee by United States Marshal Harry Weil to the Aetna Insurance Co. The purchase price of the schooner was the staggering sum of $8. The cargo consisting of 80,000 feet of hemlock lumber was bought in by F. C. Maxon of the Independent tug line, for $200. The original value of the lumber was $1,600, but it is claimed to have been damaged somewhat in the wreck. The Howard is 97 feet long and 22 feet beam. She was built in 1867 but in spite of her age she was considered a very good boat until her mishap off Fox Point. The extent of the damage suffered by her cannot be definitely ascertained as she is still partly submerged inside of the breakwater at Milwaukee harbor. Her canvas is gone and her cabins have been washed away. The spars are left but the decks have been badly bulged by the seas. The auction sale was held to satisfy the salvage claim of the Independent tug line for $1,176.

LOCAL.

A Base Ball Funnisym

Morris Levi of Evansville spills the following: What punishment shall we find to fit the crime? Shall he be sent to the mines, shot at sunrise, boiled in oil, or simply drawn and quartered? Have at you:

"Ty Cobb, who is a Goode Speaker, but Moore of a Walker, while strolling along a Street in Birmingham on a Summers day, met a Young Green named Henry Barry. They decided to walk to White Lake, and while en route were discussing the many ways to throw a curve Ball, when suddenly a Brown Bunting hopped from under a Gray Bush, and Cobb exclaimed, 'Oh, Lord,' and, picking up a stone, started a Lively Chase. After jumping Overall fences and ditches they found that they were not able to go further on account of a river they would have to Ford. Here they changed their course, and by Chance spied an Oldring and a Golden Bell living on a piece of Steele. Barry suggested that perhaps some Hunter or Fisher had lost them, but upon explanation they were found to belong to Miller Otey, a well-known Baker of that vicinity. While looking over their find a small piece of Wood struck Cobb on the head, and some one hollered out to know what they were doing. When they looked around they saw Lewis Ebelfield, an old pal. Barry and Cobb caught him by the arms and pretended that they were going to Lynch him to one of the many Oaks which surrounded them, when George Wagner stepped up and interfered. After a short chat they decided to Grant Ebelfield another trial, and they all started back to the city. They had not gone far when they struck a small spring surrounded by what Wagner said was Snodgrass. They all took a Cole drink, and, continuing up the dusty Rhodes, came upon an old man seated on the ground with a peck of Wheat and a quart of Wilson whisky on his Lapp. The old fellow gave his name as Thomas Johnson, and said: 'Works as a Gardner.' In answer to inquiries as to the distance to the city he pointed West and said, 'About a Milan a half.' They hurried back to their hotel. The Holland Wooden Shoes shut out Traverse City Thursday by a 2 to 0 score after nine innings of strenuous playing, during which time the locals twice got men on second and third with but one out. They were unable to send them across. Manager Bill Hawker and Jake Vance fought a pitchers' battle. Vance showed far better style than in Wednesday's game when he was knocked from the hill. Score:

Shelly was pounded all over the lot Friday, Traverse City winning 10 to 2. Kirby had the Wooden Shoes at his mercy throughout the game, their two runs coming on a fluke in the eighth, when R. Moore failed to cover second with a double play at hand. Four hits for four runs in the third and five hits for five runs in the fourth, sewed the game up early for the resisters. The visitors looked dangerous only in the first, when Hines singled, stole second and third, Shaw was passed and stole. The next two batters went out on easy hits to the infield. Score:

Batteries—Stuck and Kamley; Hadden and Smith.

The Beaudry & Co. ball team, playing in form last Saturday, scored a 6 to 0 victory over the South Side Independents of Holland. DeRyke, in the box for the locals, was in superb form and scored 15 strikeouts. But three hits were made by the opposition. In the two games he has twirled this season, DeRyke has sent 26 men back to the bench via the strikeout route. That's going some. The east end boy is going fast and looks ripe for a tryout higher up. There were a number of new faces in the Beaudry line up Saturday. The boys all played well and there was a dash to their work good to see. They are ready for the very fastest semi-pros in Michigan. Keep your eye on the boys this season. Roossien carried off the batting honors Saturday with Hulme and VanDyke close up. Prins was in the box for Holland and VanWieren caught. The Beaudry team lined up as follows: Hulme, ss; Reus, rf; Roossien, 3b; Ed. Scott, 2b; J. Scott, c; Buwalda, m; Derkse, lf; VanDyke, lb; DeRyke, p.—Grand Haven Tribune.

Following yesterday's defeat of Ted Penfold's Wooden Shoes, Jack Ryan of Poplar Bluffs, Mo., assumed control of the Boyne City club yesterday morning Ryan succeeds C. P. Partlow, who resigned a short time ago because of the poor showing made by the club. Ryan will make several changes. He will appear at second in place of Frank Bennett and will send Charles Koehenbecher, a Poplar Bluffs' outfielder, into the outfield. Partlow will continue with the club. The Holland club added two new men yesterday. H. Handley of Chicago is added to the pitching staff to succeed Jake Vance, who is quitting baseball, and Bill Minardo of Grand Rapids goes into the center garden.

A couple of singles and an error gave the Boosters two runs in the first inning yesterday and Holland was unable to overcome the lead. Clever work caused the defeat. Yesterday's win is the second for the Boosters this season. The score was 2-1 and the Batteries were Devet and Yelle Woldring and Spriggs.

Again Holland was defeated by the Boyne City yesterday. As to Tuesday's game the playing was speedy, and had the Wooden Shoes been favored with the least bit of luck when opportunities presented the score might have been reversed. In the eighth Boyne City's first man up doubled and scored when Bate na, formerly with the locals, singled through short. By an error by Moss at second Batema was also allowed to cross, and the score was 3 to 1. The Batteries were as follows: Extine and Yelle, Clinton and Spriggs.

Jenison Park.

Rev. Father O'Brien of Grand Rapids has purchased an acre of land near Jenison park and will erect a church thereon at once. The property was purchased from E. J. Harrington of this city. It is understood that this move has been contemplated for some time, as many of the resorters in this section are Catholics and the only church in the city is not large enough to accommodate them all. It is stated that quite a number who would spend their summers on Macatawa bay have gone elsewhere, because there was no church of their denomination. Pastors will be supplied from Grand Rapids, in all probability. Several Chicagoans have already purchased lots in the neighborhood of the site for the church and will build expensive houses upon the same.

After working for three and one-half months, A. and J. Jesiek have completed their large launch, the "Tenison," and have broken the champagne on the bow. The craft is one of the finest on the lake. It is 36 feet long and is propelled by a three-cylinder, 21 horse power engine. The brothers began the construction of the craft shortly before Christmas and finished their work but a short time ago. The boat will be used for chartering purposes and will probably be a favorite with picnic parties. The brothers also own and operate three other charter boats, the "Blitzen," "Hattie L. V." and "Pup." They have constructed a new landing and boat house at Jenison park from which point they will do ferrying to all lake resorts.

Mayor Peter T. McCarthy of Bird Center has been granted a license for his buffet and will open for business Monday morning.

H. P. Kleis, who for several seasons has operated a grocery store overlooking the bay midway between Macatawa and Jenison park, has been opened for the summer. P. C. Phenambuco of Holland is proprietor of the market.
