PLANS ALREADY UNDER WAY FOR FETE NEXT MAY

Inspection of Tulips and Committee Meet First on Schedule

This Year's Crowd Set at Six Hundred and Five Thousand

Regarded as the most successful in the 12 years of the event, Holland drew the curtain on its 1940 Tulip Time festival here Sunday night and festival officials carried out preliminary arrangements today for the 1941 tulip feast.

S. H. Houtman, general festival manager, stated that a committee would tour the tulip lanes to inspect the flowers to determine which tulips must be replaced this fall and which ones are still in good condition and will be left in the ground for next year's fete. Members of this committee are Mrs. Arthur Visscher, Andrew Hyma, Edward Brouwer, Ben Brouwer, John Van Bragt and Mr. Houtman.

Mr. Houtman also reported that a meeting of the general Tulip Time committee will be called sometime during the first week of June to receive a financial report on the outcome of the 1940 festival and to set the date for next year's event.

Although there are no scheduled events this week, it is still Tulip Time in Holland because of the lateness this year of the blooming of the tulips and expectations are that post-festival visitors will come here until after Memorial day.

Harry Nelis of the Nelis Tulip farms here predicted that at least 60 per cent of the tulips there will still be in bloom for the holiday. Many of the tulips in Holland also have not bloomed and a good coloring is anticipated throughout the week.

Mr. Houtman said the biggest problem at the present time is to gather outstanding bills and make final settlement in order that the financial report may be drawn up for submission to the committee.

"The 1940 Tulip Time festival has been by far the most successful from every angle, in spite of the poorest weather in its history. The management greatly appreciates the work of all persons who participated or had any part in arranging the various events. This would include about two-thirds of the citizens of Holland," he said.

Perfect weather prevailed here for Saturday's festival events but rain at various times during Sunday somewhat reduced the number expected here. Sunday's attendance, according to Mr. Houtman's estimates, totaled upwards of 125,000 persons.

A squad of 40 special police officers and 30 Boy Scouts was required to handle Saturday's heavy traffic. Thirty special officers directed traffic in Holland Sunday.

Andrew Klomparsen, who had charge of the seating arrangements at Saturday's band review, today extended his compliments to the Boy Scouts for their work at the park.

Deputy Sheriff William Van Etta reported here that 12 deputy sheriffs were required Saturday and Sunday to handle traffic in the vicinity of the tulip farms. The officers reported heavy traffic Sunday afternoon on Lakewood boulevard, many of the cars coming from Muskegon and Grand Rapids, visiting the tulip farms and then returning without entering the city.

Attracted by the annual band review and parade of bands, an estimated crowd of 150,000 persons poured into the city during Saturday. It was by far the largest week-day crowd in the history of the festival and even larger than the opening day's attendance of 120,000 persons.

The week-end attendance of 275,000 boosted the week's total number of visitors to 605,000. Another 100,000 persons are expected to visit the city as post-festival visitors.

Estimated attendance at the 1939 fete was 535,000, this year showing an increase of 70,000 over last year. The 1938 attendance was estimated at 544,000 or 61,000 less. However, this year's crowds were 14,500 less than the record breaking 1937 crowd of 750,000 although festival attendance since Mr. Houtman became general manager has been on a conservative basis. Festival attendance for other years were estimated at 525,000 in 1936, 450,000 in 1935 and 300,000 in 1934.

The largest crowd in the history of the band review was present Saturday afternoon. The estimated crowd was 15,000 persons with all grandstand and bleacher seats filled to capacity and many persons forced to stand or sit on the grass about the field.

Two of the festival exhibits, the Little Netherlands and Netherlands exhibits, were kept open Sunday for the benefit of the out-of-town visitors. In both instances, no admission price was charged and only contributions were received.

Both exhibits reported large attendance. (See Festival — Next Page).

Fifteen Thousand Attend Spectacular Band Review

Contest Is Climaxed With Listing of Winners in Park Ceremony

A record crowd of 15,000 attended the 11th annual review of bands in Riverview park Saturday afternoon.

At the review a massed band of nearly 2,000 musicians played King's "Hosts of Freedom," Berlin's "God Bless America" and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" after the individual bands had performed. These numbers were directed by the three judges at the festival, Glenn Cliffe Baimum of Northwestern university, senior judge; Ralph Rush, of Cleveland Heights high school; and William D. Revelli of the University of Michigan.

These conductors, who direct massed bands all over the country, commented that this was one of the best affairs they had seen anywhere. It certainly was the best massed band event ever held in Holland, and the playing of the two patriotic pieces, together with the picturesqueness of the whole affair stirred the hearts of every American.

STITES TO LACK CIVIL WAR VETS

Swan Miller and Madison Richards Are Unable to Attend

Neither one of Holland's two remaining Civil War veterans are expected to participate in Thursday's Memorial Day parade.

Swan Miller, 96, who recently returned from California, informed Mayor Geerlings today that he will not be able to ride in the parade or attend the services in Pilgrim Home cemetery.

Failing health will prevent Madison Richards who is making his home with his granddaughter, Mrs. Dick Wiersma, 298 West 22nd St., from attending the services.

Thursday's program will open with a parade at 9:30 a.m. from the city hall. The services at the Pilgrim Home cemetery will follow the parade. Cornelius Vander Meulen will be principal speaker.

May Geerlings announced today the Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp will serve as chaplain in place of the Rev. Marion de Velder who underwent an operation Monday for removal of his tonsils. Plans for a quartet to sing were canceled today when the committee was unable to obtain one.

Dr. William Weststrate, parade marshal, today issued instructions to the various units as to how they will march and march in the parade.

The Holland high school band and the national guardsmen who will lead the parade will form on 11th St. west of River Ave., facing east. Women's Relief Corps members in cars, Gold Star mothers, Boy scout guard of honor, United Spanish War veterans and their auxiliary will form in the order named on River Ave. with the head at 10th St. The Holland American Legion band, massed colors, firing squad, World War veterans, massed colors of auxiliaries, auxiliary members and flower girls will form on 10th St., east of River Ave. with the head at River Ave.

The second division, including the Junior high school band, Camp Fire girls and school children, scout boys, Holland Christian high school band, Boy scouts and decorated veterans will form on 10th St. west of River Ave.

The third division will form in the following order on River Ave., facing north, with the head at 11th St.: Elementary school band, decorated in autos, city officials, officers of the day and procession. All Boy scouts and cubs are requested to meet Thursday at 9 a.m. in front of Hope-Reformed church to receive instructions.

NEW POLICE RADIO LEADS TO ARREST

Grand Haven, May 29 (Special) — A 16-year-old runaway boy from a farm near Coopersville, arrested Monday night on a bus in Holland, was turned over to probate court Tuesday and allowed to return to the home of Raymond Hubbel where he had been working.

The youth is alleged to have stolen $20 from his employer. Any further action in the case will be taken by the employer.

The youth's arrest was largely attributed to the new two-way radio system, recently installed by the Grand Haven police department. A description of the youth was broadcast to the two Grand Haven police cars at the request of the sheriff's department.

Mrs. Elmo Emery, living at Fifth and Columbus Sts., heard the broadcast and immediately called police to report that a boy, answering the description, had just passed her home. Officers then learned the youth had boarded a bus and a call was made to Deputy William Van Etta in Holland.

The entire review was run off with unerring smoothness and Manager S. H. Houtman today was loud in his praise of the fine work by Eugene P. Heeter, chairman of the review. Mr. Heeter directed the event from the press box via telephone to different parts of the park.

Mayor Henry Geerlings presented plaques to the participating bands at ceremonies held in Centennial park following the parade of bands.

Mr. Heeter was presented with an appreciation plaque from the city of Holland.

Bands were judged on playing, maneuvers, cadence, alignment and inspection. Major Henry A. Geerds of the 126th infantry, Holland, inspected each band before it took the field for the allotted six minutes.

The Lansing Eastern high school boy's band of which Harold Ferguson is the director, and the Muskegon high school band of which William A. Stewart, Jr., is director, the last two bands to appear on Saturday's program, presented the most outstanding performances.

Muskegon's band outlined a large flag and 350 yards of cheesecloth were unrolled to form the stars and stripes. The Lansing boy's band marching 132 steps a minute presented no fancy maneuvers or twirling exhibitions, but their straight marching routine was so effective that it drew rounds of applause at many intervals. These two bands, with the Battle Creek high school band, 1940 National marching champion of which Paul Tammi is director, were given first division in class A.

Second division in class A went to Lansing Central and Frankfort, Ind., bands.

In class B, Wyoming high of Grand Rapids, St. Joseph, Three Rivers and Charlotte received first division. Second divisions were received by Zeeland, Hart and Coldwater, and third divisions went to the Everett high school band of Lansing and the Caro High School band.

Busch high of Center Line and Reading high both received first divisions in class C. Second divisions were to Bremen, Ind., Bronson and Mantion's Rural Agricultural School band. Third divisions were awarded the Mesick and Brighton bands.

The Saginaw Chippewa Indian band of Mt. Pleasant, under the direction of G. W. Byers, and Maynard L. W. Velder, flag thrower of Franklin, Pennsylvania, accompanied by the Holland high band, also appeared on the program.

Many of the competing bands executed notable maneuvers. The Zeeland band made all the U. S. war dates from 1776 through 1917 and a '40 with a question mark. Battle Creek's band formed a big pine tree which the drum major with a big axe proceeded to chop down.

Hart's band formed a difficult moving circle which ended up in the shape of a heart and Three Rivers, in large letters, spelled out the word "Holland." Lansing Everett made an automobile with rolling wheels and a "Hello" — after discovering that the O was on the wrong end. The band from the governor's home city, Charlotte, produced a moving war tank and, in large letters, USA.

At Least Five Persons Are Injured in Series of Accidents

Holland police and Deputy Sheriff William Van Etta said Monday that 10 automobile accidents occurred in and near Holland over the week-end. The majority of the crashes, involving more than a score of cars and injuring at least five persons, resulted from the heavy Tulip Time festival traffic.

A team of horses, being driven north on the road, forced Maloney to stop his car. Hayes, unable to stop his car, first struck the Maloney car and then cut across the road and crashed into the oncoming Harig car.

Billy Quinn, 20, of Grand Rapids, riding in the Hayes car, suffered knee injuries.

FINAL PLANS OF MEMORIAL DAY ARE ARRANGED

Observance of Memorial Day in Holland Thursday will have a double significance.

Ordinarily Holland pays tribute each Memorial day to its dead of former wars but the recent overrunning of The Netherlands by German armies adds a new solemnity to this year's observance.

Numerous Holland persons have close relatives living in the mother country.

The general Memorial day committee at a final meeting Monday night in the GAR room of the city hall arranged final plans for Thursday's program. The holiday will be the first generally observed one since last New Year's day.

With approximately 2,000,000 tulips still in bloom, a large crowd of post-Tulip Time festival visitors is expected to visit Holland over the holiday. The Little Netherlands exhibit and Netherlands museum will be open.

Among the local patriotic organizations which will take part in the memorial services are Boy scouts and Sea Scouts, national guardsmen, Women's Relief corps, Gold Star mothers, United Spanish War veterans and auxiliary, Wilford G. Leenhouts American Legion post and auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars and auxiliary, Camp Fire girls and school children. The Holland high school band, Holland Christian high school band, Junior high school band, American Legion band and the elementary school band will participate in the parade.

Thursday's services in Pilgrim Home cemetery will be preceded by the annual parade which will be north on River Ave. from 10th to Eighth Sts., east on Eighth St. to Columbia Ave., and south on Columbia Ave. to 12th St. Here the parade units will be reformed for march to the cemetery, the route being south on Columbia Ave. to 16th St. and east on 16th St. to the cemetery entrance.

Orator of the day will be Cornelius Vander Meulen, local attorney. Mayor Henry Geerlings will be president of the day.

Following the march to monument square, the program will be opened with the singing of "America" by the audience, music to be furnished by the American Legion band. Miss Myrtle Padgett, representing Holland high school, will read the Memorial day proclamation of Gov. Luren D. Dickinson.

The invocation will be given and the legion band will play "Hail Columbia."

Decoration of graves will be in charge of Alfred C. Joldersma, representing the American legion. All graves of deceased soldiers and the grave of Dr. A. C. Van Raalte will be decorated with flowers.

There will be a bugle signal, dirge by band and salute by colors as the decorators return to Monument square. Blase Leval, Hope college student, will read Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

Mr. Joldersma will read the roll call of departed Civil war, Spanish-American and World war veterans buried in local cemeteries which will be followed by a dirge by the band, salute to the colors and decoration of graves on Monument square.

Mr. Joldersma will then read a roll call of the absent dead of the three wars. There will be a dirge by the band, salute to the colors and decoration of the Civil war monument by daughters of World war veterans, Marlene Cook, Joyce Kobes, Norma Huyser and Bettie Bremer.

Veterans of the World war will fire a military salute followed by taps by Franklin Van Ry.

Total number of deceased soldiers, buried in the local cemetery is 196. Total absent number is 47. The two remaining Civil war veterans are Swan Miller of Macatawa park and Madison Richards of Holland.

Soldiers who have died in the past year were Martin Vande Water, Spanish-American war; Orla Arnold, James Bareman, Leonard Bareman, William Koppenal and Arie Vos, World war.

All offices in the city hall and the local office of the Michigan Employment service will be closed Thursday. There will be no issue of The Sentinel-Retail stores and food markets will remain open Wednesday afternoon but will be closed throughout Memorial day.

Assistant Postmaster John Greengood said the usual holiday service will prevail at Holland post office Thursday. There will be no rural or city deliveries, and all windows will be closed. The lobby will remain open from 7 until 9 a.m. for the benefit of boxholders. There will be a collection of mail at 5 p.m. from all designated boxes.

Governor Has Busy Time During Brief Visit to City

Sees Tulips and Review of Bands and Has Honor Place in Parade

For the second consecutive year, Governor Luren D. Dickinson visited Holland's Tulip Time festival Saturday to view the tulips, witness the annual band review, hold a place of honor in the parade of bands and enjoy the rest of the procession from a reviewing stand at 11th St. and River Ave.

Immediately following the parade, the governor and his party, which included four women companions and his chauffeur, departed for Dickinson's home in Charlotte. Holland police provided an escort to the city limits.

Members of his party included Miss Margaret Shaw, his personal secretary; Miss Desse Rogers, his nurse; Miss June Navue, secretary to Leslie B. Butler, former executive secretary to the governor and now state Republican chairman; Miss Winifred Coors, a daughter of the governor's physician; and Henry Noack, chauffeur and bodyguard to the governor.

The group, leaving Charlotte about 9 a.m. Saturday, reached the Zeeland city limits about 11:20 a.m. They were met there by Rep. Nelson A. Miles and Municipal Judge Raymond L. Smith, and a police escort, including Deputy Sheriff William Van Etta, Acting Police Chief Jacob Van Hoff and Police Officers Ernest Bear, Harris Nieuwma and Harvey Murray.

After a ride along Zeeland's main street, Governor Dickinson and his party were taken to the Nells Tulip farm. The governor and members of his party walked among the tulip beds and then climbed the steep steps of the windmill to view the tulips from above.

Miss Mary Nells presented Governor Dickinson with a bouquet of tulips. At first the governor gained little attention but as he left the tulip farm numerous persons crowded about, many of them seeking to obtain pictures.

From the tulip farms, the governor's party was escorted into Holland and taken on a brief tour of the tulip lanes which extended from River Ave. west on Seventh St. to Pine Ave., south to 19th St., west to Washington Ave., north to 17th St., west through Montello park, past the lake excursion boats and back along 16th St. to Washington Blvd., north to 10th St., west through Kollen park and east along 12th St. and to the armory by way of Pine Ave. and Ninth St.

During his tour, the governor had little to say, except that the tulips were "beautiful."

While riding along Washington Blvd., the chief executive was offered opportunity to see a dog drawn cart with his milk cans and also numerous children in Dutch costume who were seated or standing among the tulips on the boulevard to have their pictures taken by festival visitors.

A luncheon was served in the armory for the guests. Those present, besides Dickinson and his party, were Rep. Miles, Judge Smith, President Clarence Javling of the Holland Chamber of Commerce, Judge Fred T. Miles and E. V. Hartman, and the Rev. H. D. Terkeurst of Holland, and Judge Ruth Thompson of Muskegon, one of the two women members of the state house of representatives.

Following the luncheon, the governor autographed several pairs of wooden shoes for Dutch costumed girls who also presented a brief entertainment.

Governor Dickinson and his party arrived at Riverview park about 1:20 p.m. and occupied box seats in the grandstand. His arrival was announced over the loudspeaker system and he was applauded.

The governor walked into the park with two Dutch costumed girls, Doris Eby and Lois Meppelink. He arrived shortly before the high school band from his hometown, Charlotte, went through its maneuvers on the field.

Judge Miles, a close friend of Dickinson, sat on the governor's right and throughout the afternoon the two of them talked.

As the massed bands were playing, Governor Dickinson left the park to enter an open car to ride in the parade immediately behind the Holland American Legion band. Judge Miles and his two unofficial escorts, Misses Eby and Meppelink, also rode in the car.

Along the line of march, Governor Dickinson acknowledged the ovation from the large festival crowd. He left his car at 11th St. and River Ave. to review the parade.

Mayor Henry Geerlings and several aldermen returned to the reviewing stand after completing their line of march. Miss Lida Rogers, whose suggestion in 1927 resulted in the formation of the Tulip Time festival, also sat on the reviewing stand.

Other members of Dickinson's party preceded him to the reviewing stand. Dr. Wynand Wichers, president of Hope college was among those on the reviewing stand.

At the conclusion of the parade, numerous persons crowded about to shake Dickinson's hand and ask him for his autograph. Apparently anticipating such requests, Dickinson handed cards that bore his signature and a gold seal of the state to Misses Eby and Meppelink for distribution.

Arrangements for the governor's place in the parade and for the reviewing stand were carried out by Edward Brouwer, acting chairman of the Tulip Time committee.

Civil War Veteran Will Take Part in G.H. Rites

Grand Haven, May 29 — Joost Verplank, 96, Grand Haven's lone survivor of the G. A. R. Weather-war post, is expected to take part Thursday in the annual Memorial Day parade and exercises here.

Mr. Verplank spent the winter with a son in Hobart, Ind., and had not planned to attend the rites. However, when another son, Tony Verplank, drove to Hobart Monday, the war veteran was eager to return and again take his place in the parade.

SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

SUNNY skies, warm days, a holiday on the calendar, and the sunburned noses of the family are mute testimony that summer is here—and that Sunday, spent either indoors or out, should be a day when Mother takes a rest from the strenuous cooking of the winter months. With so many foods on the market at this season of the year that lend themselves to partial or entire cooking the day before, your Sunday menu should be arranged with this in mind.

Because of the holiday this weekend, especially priced, and easily prepared, are cucumbers, carrots, asparagus, beans, cabbage, new potatoes and spinach for the coming week. Tomatoes, which have been high, will be much lower in price.

Strawberries also show a considerable drop in price. Fruit special for the week include pineapple, rhubarb, oranges, bananas and apples.

Here are three menus suggested by Miss Cora Anthony of the Kitchen for Sunday at different price levels:

Low Cost Dinner
Cottage Ham
Potato Patties
New String Beans, Carrots
Bread and Butter
Mixed Fresh Fruit Tarts
Coffee Tea Milk

Moderate Cost Dinner

Muskegon Girl Married to Former Local Man

Charming simplicity marked the home wedding ceremony in which Miss Winifred Jannenga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jannenga, of Muskegon, became the bride of Ralph Martinus, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Martinus, 121 West 19th St., this city Saturday, May 25. The Rev. Harry Bultema, pastor of the Berean church of Muskegon, read the service at 8:30 p.m. in the presence of 60 guests.

FINAL FESTIVAL PARADE PROVES BIGGEST EVENT

Record Crowd Lines Both Sides of Route to See Tunes March

Governor Holds Place of Honor; Thirty Bands Participate

A climax to the 1940 Tulip Time festival, the parade of bands, one of the largest and most colorful in the 12 years of the festival, was held here Saturday afternoon, before a record breaking crowd.

Thirty bands, all attired in flashy uniforms, participated in the event along with many costumed groups. Twenty-one of these bands took part in the annual band review at Riverview park earlier in the afternoon.

Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, the No. 1 guest of the day, held a place of honor in the parade, riding behind the Holland American Legion band in an open car. Along the line of march, he acknowledged the applause from the large crowd. At 11th St. and River Ave., he left his car to view the remainder of the parade from a reviewing stand.

The line of march extended west on Eighth St. from Columbia to River Ave. south on River Ave. to 12th St., east on 12th St. to Central Ave. and north on Central to 10th St.

Thousands of persons lined both sides of the streets the entire distance of the parade route. Others hung from windows or gained vantage points from the roofs of buildings. To obtain unobscured view, thousands took up their places along the parade route hours before the parade started.

Starting promptly at 4 p.m., as the band review was completed on scheduled time, the parade required approximately 50 minutes to pass a given point. High stepping drum majors or drum majorettes received the plaudits of the crowd as they went through their paces. The weather was ideal for the band review and parade. Numerous persons received slight sunburns from sitting in the sun at the band review or while standing along the parade route.

Two motorcycle police led the parade and were followed by Marshal J. J. Riemersma and his assistant, Dr. William Westrate, whose young daughter also rode a horse.

A color guard from local veterans' organizations followed.

The first band was the Holland American Legion band, its members wearing blue shirts, grey pants and yellow ties. Behind the band rode Governor Dickinson. The governor was followed by Mayor Henry Geerlings and 10 of his 12 aldermen, all dressed in their Rembrandt costumes.

The Three Rivers band members wore uniforms of dark blue coats, light blue pants and white belts, with black and yellow being used for trimmings. The women's authentic costume group marched behind the band.

Members of the Coldwater band were dressed in black uniforms, and white belts, with a red and white stripe on the side of the pants. The Women's Literary club members and Junior Welfare league and school teachers in costume followed this band.

Wearing orange coats and black pants with orange and yellow trim on the uniforms, the Reading band marched ahead of the flower girls, milk maids, cheese carriers, knitters and other costumed groups.

The Holland elementary band, its members dressed in white and wearing yellow and black capes, preceded the state highway department float which represented a roadside table with a group of Camp Fire girls enjoying a picnic lunch on the table. Behind the float marched the Camp Fire and cub (young Boy Scouts) scrubbers.

The Western State Teachers college band was one of the new entrants in this year's parade. Its members wore yellow coats and brown pants with a gold stripe. American Legion members, in costume, marched behind the band.

The Lansing Central High school band members wore black uniforms with white trim and marched ahead of the Holland Exchange club members.

Wearing blue uniforms with yellow belts and a yellow stripe on the pants, the Hudsonville band marched ahead of the boys and girls honor safety patrol.

With high-stepping Shirley Rutgers receiving a big ovation, the Holland high school band, its members wearing maroon uniforms, led the second division of the parade. Maynard L. W. Veller of Franklin, Pa., "dean of American Flag Throwers," who performed at the band review, also marched ahead of the band, giving a demonstration of flag throwing. Members of the Holland Lions club, in costume, marched behind the band.

The Battle Creek band was attired in black uniforms with a yellow stripe on the trousers and behind it came the Holland Rotary club farm wagon float with a Dutch costumed group riding in the wagon. Club members marched behind the float.

Featuring six girls who twirled flags in unison to vie with Veller for flag throwing honors, the St. Joseph band members wore uniforms of a style similar to ones worn by cadets at West Point when on "dress parade," the color being blue, with white belts and yellow trim. Members of the Holland

The Charlotte band members wore black uniforms trimmed in orange. Behind it marched a group of junior scrubbers in uniform.

Dressed in complete Indian regalia and playing Indian music, the Saginaw Chippewa Indian band from Mt. Pleasant marched ahead of a Boy Scout color guard and Boy scout unit. A team of Dutch dancers followed the scouts as the Plainwell band did not participate in the parade.

Unknown except to a few, sixth division of the parade marched as the fifth division in the parade. The Hart high school band members wore uniforms of red coats, white pants with a red stripe and white belts. Behind it came a group of wooden shoe dancers.

The Everett band members wore uniforms of red coats, white pants with red stripe and white trim on the coats. More wooden shoe dancers followed this band.

The Manton band members were attired in uniforms of orange coats, black pants with an orange stripe and was followed by dancers.

At the head of the sixth division, listed as fifth division on the program, marched the Mesick band, its members wearing black uniforms with yellow and black capes and a yellow stripe on the trousers. Then came more dancers.

The Caro high school band members wore black uniforms with yellow belts and yellow trim. This band was followed by additional dancers.

The Bronson band members wore bright purple uniforms with yellow belts. Additional dancers followed.

The Brighton high school band, its members wearing black uniforms with orange belts and orange trim on the uniforms, led the seventh division. More dancers followed this band.

As the end of the parade passed, thousands of persons flocked into the streets, filling the parade route with one solid mass of humanity. Local police then went to work to direct the heavy vehicular traffic.

HOLLAND EDGED OUT BY G.R.'9-8 IN FESTIVAL FRAY

Flying Dutchmen Score Six Runs in Third and Lead to Seventh

Fifteen Hits Yielded by Vanden Berg; Twelve Against Little

Night baseball officially began at Riverview park last Thursday in the midst of a cold wave. The Dutch Krafts of Grand Rapids defeated the Holland Flying Dutchmen, 9-8, in the close and drawn-out opener.

Six hundred Tulip Time fans saw Bob Vanden Berg allow 15 hits and strike out seven men and Ken Little, Grand Rapids moundster, allow 12 hits and strike out eight men. Each pitched all the way and passed three men.

Things really didn't begin to tighten, until the third inning, after the visitors had sailed ahead, 6-1. In the last of the third, Harry De Neff, lead-off man who had scored Holland's only point in the first round, walked and was followed by Ev De Neff and Driscoll. With the bases loaded, De Witt, who topped the locals' batting averages, doubled bringing in all three men. More doubles by Ken Vanden Berg, who knocked in De Witt, and Wenzel, set the locals out ahead, 7-6.

Everything remained quiet for three innings then, except for De Witt's unproductive hit.

Third Baseman Manley tied things up in the first of the seventh after a single to center. While the Hollanders remained stagnant, Waggoner with a single and Little and Green with doubles pushed in two more runs for a 9-7 lead.

A beautiful double play from second to first in the ninth put the Krafts down swiftly as the losers came up for their last time at bat. Driscoll, taking one base at a time, was the only Holland man to score after the third inning rally.

Wenzel's error on a throw to second in the second inning with Witzel on third accounted for one of the visitor's runs. Green, second man on the batting list, slammed out a homer his first time up, driving in Witzel who had singled.

Aside from that homer, most of the Krafts' hits were singles, pots just over the infield and drives off the infielder gloves.

List Includes Four Who Lose Lives in Crash Near Glenn

Including the death of four persons Saturday morning near Glenn in Allegan county, at least 16 persons met violent death in Michigan over the week-end.

Three of the persons killed in the Allegan county accident were from Evanston, Ill., and the other was an Allegan high school senior who was riding with seven other senior students to a class breakfast at Saugatuck State park.

The dead are Harry Ochampaugh, 16, of Hopkins, the high school senior; John T. Godberg, 17, Richard Flanigan, 17, and Becky Stokes, 23, all of Evanston, Ill.

The accident occurred at the junction of US-31 and County Road 426, just north of Glenn. Ochampaugh and Godberg were killed immediately. Miss Stokes died in Douglas hospital and Flanigan died in South Haven hospital.

The injured included Ruth Jensen, 18, Stewart Akon, 16, Beverly Hamilton, route 4, Ruth Teed, 17, and Grant Babcock, 17, of Allegan; Joseph Bartz, 17, route 1, Dorr; and Fred Stokes, 18, Evanston.

Henry Gebben, 183 West 18th St., who chanced to be passing, shortly after the accident, aided in bringing the injured persons to Douglas.

Police said the car driven by Ochampaugh, entered US-31 off the county road without making a stop. One of the cars sheered off a communication pole, disrupting telephone service and preventing residents from notifying authorities.

In other week-end accidents in Michigan, two were killed and two were injured near Bay City when the automobile of William Pockrandt, 27, struck a car driven by Henry Maxwell, 32, Saginaw on U-23. Pockrandt was killed instantly and Maxwell died on the way to a hospital.

William Higgins, 19, shot himself to death in the front yard of his former sweetheart's home at Woodland.

At Buchanan, Roy Smith, 59, of Gallen, died of injuries he received when an automobile struck the bicycle he was riding.

Near Iron River, an automobile-truck collision was fatal to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wall of Stambaugh.

South Haven, Mich., May 29 — Delmar Burkhardt, of Metropolis, Ill., died here Saturday of injuries suffered in a truck collision which killed two other men Friday.

Niles, Mich., May 29 — Two were killed and a man was injured seriously when they were struck by an automobile two miles west of Niles Friday night.

Orlo Maxson, 18, and Gordon Mitchell, 14, both of Buchanan, were killed and Charles Maxson, 49, was hurt when they were struck by a car driven by B. A. Jerue, 26, also of Buchanan. The victims were fixing a tire on the roadside.

WHO WILL EXPLAIN?

Who will explain why, after nine months of war, the Allies were caught short in airplanes? The explanation will be forthcoming some years hence when the public men of France and England begin writing their autobiographies. Then the world will be let in on the secret of the astonishing neglect of the governments of both Chamberlain and Daladier in not speeding up production to such a point that Germany could have been met at the crucial moment on something like an even basis. But for the present no one can do anything else than indulge in guesswork.

On the surface it seems astonishing that the two great democracies, each of which had almost unrestricted access to the raw materials from which airplanes are made, should not have captured the ascendancy over a country that was restricted by a rigid blockade. Moreover, the Allies had the American manufacturers to help them. In a long war that help might eventually have given out, but up until the present at least the Allies have still so many billions of securities in this country that American factories alone could have made up for the start Germany had. If it is true, as manufacturers are now asserting, that they can bring this country to a 50,000-plane production in one year, what could they not have done during these past nine months—if the Allies had ordered the planes?

If it is true—and it seems reasonable to believe it on the basis of events—that Germany has an air superiority of three to one, what have the Allies been doing the past nine months? It can't be that they did not know, at least roughly, what Germany was doing.
Of if they did not know, then their business to find out. After all, war is waged not merely on the battle field but through the intelligence service as well.

Assuming then that they knew Germany had planes, and was building more, at the rate of three to one as compared with the air service of England and France, why didn't the Allies do something about it? Did they think that Germany was building those airplanes for the fun of it, just to keep their factories running? Or did they think that one Allied plane was a match for three German pilots?

These are all unanswered questions. Perhaps it is not the business of Americans to ask them. In view of the fact, however, that there is an increasing disposition on the part of the Allies to expect us to come to their aid, the questions are in a way our business.
The questions will be answered some day—but then it may be too late.

RESEARCH IN CHINA

The Chinese are indeed an amazing people. Not long ago they asked foreign friends to send them books to be used by students and teachers driven away from their buildings and equipment, who had set up school again with nothing but their determination to keep going.

Now they ask American scientists who have scientific books and reprints to spare, to send them to China to help research workers trying to carry on there.
"Owing to our hurried departure from Nanking, more than 200,000 volumes fell into the hands of the Japanese, who set them, together with the valuable collections of other institutions, on fire," writes the librarian of the National Central Library.

The library has been moved to Chungking, provisional capital of the Chinese republic, and from there lends what books and publications it has to scientific workers in other parts of the country, sending the material by mail.

The Japanese, who have been trying to sow ignorance as well as physical destruction in China, can hardly succeed against such determination as this.

Testing Conduct by Its Usefulness
Ezekiel 15: 1-6; Matthew 5: 13-16;
Matthew 7: 16-20.

By Henry Geerlings

A good habit is a self-imposed bondage that leaves us free for the important things of life. A bad habit keeps us from being really free. There are, of course, habits about which opinion differs as to whether they are good or bad, permissible or forbidden, and the wise teacher will not be too dictatorial, because there are plenty of quite bad habits to be avoided and important good ones to be encouraged. Positive teaching is preferable to nervous warnings. It is best to overcome evil with good, and this is true of building good habits.

There are habits of good speech to be encouraged. We are slipshod in our use of words, disinclined to study grammar and pronunciation seriously. But a mastery of grammar, so thorough that it becomes second nature, is necessary before there can be effective speaking or writing.

There are good habits in dress.
Many people are very careless about their personal appearance.
Care in one's appearance is not a sign of conceit, but of self-respect.
We are judged as to our capabilities by our care for ourselves.

There are habits of play to be developed. Too many play too much, or feel that they must always play to win. Good games and social pleasures are quite rightly called recreation. Properly used they refresh and recreate us, so that we can keep healthy and work more effectively.

There are habits of selfish attitudes, intolerance, and profanity. As a result when these habits are indulged in, many never do anything useful in the world, never develop self control and readiness to sacrifice. One good test is whether we have the habit, or the habit has us.

It is a good thing for us to take account of the stock of our habits now and then. There are persons who believe that it is wrong to go to the theatre, or to attend a moving picture of any kind, anywhere. There are those who are persuaded it is a sin to go to a professional football or a basketball game. What shall we say about that attitude? There are a few persons who take any such position that they are almost negligible. If they feel that way about the matter they should not go; but it would not seem right for them to set the standard for others. Surely some discrimination should be made, with regard to pictures at least, and there are guides for us in these fields.

But it would do us all good at intervals to ask ourselves if our habits are best in all cases. We are not to be denied our pleasures simply because we are Christians.
We test machines; we test instruments, we test bridges; we test much of the machinery our factory-men turn out. You have heard of cab drivers who were lined up along the station platform waiting for passengers. One driver to demonstrate how careful a driver he was drove out along a steep precipice, to show how close he could get without toppling over. This trick did not please one of the guests of the city, who said that he would not trust his life with a man who purposely drove as near danger as possible without a mishap, but would gladly trust his life to the driver who always kept a safe distance away.

Ezekiel proved the unprofitableness of certain habits. Israel had grown careless about loyalty to God, even supplanting true worship in idolatry. He had no doubt as to the usefulness of this habit.
Here is a principle we need to consider. It fits all situations. It points to the ideal a people adopts measures its effects on the life and worth of that people, not only in present times but as to future fruitfulness. None can doubt that temporarily even bad habits can make a good showing. Bad habits do not at once make people or nations with scars. These come later, and for the most part are not removable. Habits are tested by their usefulness.

Costume Display Again
Is Festival Attraction

The Woman's Literary club auditorium was filled Friday afternoon for the Dutch costume and style show arranged as a Tulip time attraction by Willard C.
Wichers of The Netherlands museum, assisted by members of the Woman's club. An innovation this year, the costume review was presented for the first time Monday May 20, and repeated Friday because of popular demand.

More than 300 persons saw the colorful and authentic costumes of the various provinces of old Holland modeled by residents of this community. Many of the costumes were imported directly from The Netherlands; some of them had been handed down in the wearer's family.

Vocal selections by Mrs. Richard Hill of Kalamazoo, and a wooden shoe dance by a group of little girls in Dutch costume were features of the program.

Mr. Wichers introduced the program, and Mrs. Charles K. Van Duren read the script. Music was arranged by Mrs. Clyde Geerlings; Mrs. F. E. DeWeese was in charge of the dancers; and Mrs. John K.
Winter was responsible for staging the event.

Voluntary contributions were donated to the Netherlands relief fund.

Bounties for crows have been given in the U. S. since 1793.

interesting report on the "Cur-

FOUR PRINCIPAL PRIZES GIVEN IN CATTLE JUDGING

Other Awards Presented at Festival's Black and White Show

Thousands View Exhibit and Parade of Holstein-Friesian Breed

Selection of the grand champion female of all ages, the senior champion female, the junior champion female and the grand champion bull brought to the successful conclusion of the "black and white" cattle show which featured the May 23 Tulip Time festival program.

Held along the east side of Centennial park, the authentic Dutch cattle "markt" attracted 39 exhibitors with 74 head of cattle. Throughout the day, thousands of persons visited the market to see the purebred Holstein-Friesian cattle, the exhibitors and attendants in Dutch costumes and Dutch milkmaids with buckets hanging from shoulder yokes.

Headed by the Holland Junior high school band, a parade of the cattle was held Thursday at 1:20 p.m. Due to the late hour in which all judging was completed, the afternoon speaking program was canceled.

Having received the highest rating possible, "excellent," Towerline Olva Ormsby De Kol, a five-year-old cow owned by M. D. But and sons of Comstock park was selected as the grand champion female of all ages.

This cow won the right to participate for grand champion honors, having been selected by the judges as the senior champion female. The grand champion produces about 90 pounds of milk daily which is almost 42 quarts of milk. Her record in two milkings daily is 18,285 pounds of milk and 661.2 pounds of butterfat.

The But entry entered the senior champion female class by placing first in class five for cows, four years old or over. For winning grand champion honors, Mr. But received a gold plated loving cup from Miss Sarah Van Hoesen Jones, president of the Michigan Holstein-Friesian association, who made the presentation.

Wacots Bessie Johanna, a heifer owned by the Wayne County Training school of Northville, was selected as the junior champion female. This heifer is one and one-half years old. Her dam produced 15,083 pounds of milk and 515.3 pounds of butterfat. She won the right to participate for junior honors by placing first in class two, for heifers one year old and under two years.

Motivic Johanna Rag Apple Posch, a yearling bull owned by H. J. Chittenden of Temperance, was selected as grand champion bull. His dam produced 23,392 pounds of milk and 921 pounds of butterfat in one year.

Ronald Mulvaney 16 of Bellevue, Barry county, was awarded the two-year-old calf which was presented to the winner of the 4-H club judging contest, also held during the day. Presentation of the calf was made by Elmer A. Beamer, state commissioner of agriculture.

Ravigotti was reported drowned when an excursion boat sank. Taking advantage of the curious situation, he did not return to his wife, with whom he had quarreled. He went to another town, was successful in business, returned, remarried his wife. The ceremony was necessary under Italian law because he had been away more than 10 years.

In presenting the heifer calf to the 4-H club contest winner, Mr. Beamer pointed out that this is the first time a "black and white" cattle show has been associated with Holland's Tulip Time festival and he complimented the National Holstein-Friesian association for arranging such an event.

Following the awarding of the grand champion honors, the show ended and the cattle were loaded onto trucks for trips home. Some of the champion cattle were led in Centennial park to have pictures taken among the tulips.

SUIT DELAYS G.H. PROJECT

Grand Haven, May 29—A $100,000 project for construction of 25 homes on the East Highland Park subdivision, scheduled for this spring by Fred C. McCrea, local real estate operator, faces postponement until fall and possible curtailment through inability of Mr. McCrea to provide acceptable titles to the property, bid in at the February "scavenger sale."

A suit to test the constitutionality of the act providing for the sale has not been decided by the state supreme court. Mr. McCrea believes considerable other local building likewise is held up.

Mr. McCrea has not received deeds to the property although these will not be of any use as far as the proposed development is concerned until the supreme court files its ruling in the test case brought by Harry H. Baker of Genesee county against the State Land Office board which conducted the sales under authority granted by a state act of 1937, amended in 1939. He has been assured the deeds will be in his hands and in the hands of other successful Ottawa county bidders in the scavenger sale, the week of June 3.

Mr. McCrea says financing of 25 homes to cost on an average of $4,000 each had been arranged for. This would considerably increase local home building as only six dwelling permits have been issued by the city manager's office since Jan. 1. More than six homes are under construction or have been completed this year as some were built under permits obtained in 1939.

Mr. McCrea points out that despite the building of the past three years, Grand Haven is 307 homes behind the average construction based on previous records due to the depression building lull. A survey from 1921 to the present gives him this figure. The average from 1921 through 1927 was 40 homes a year with a peak of 62 erected in 1925.

Until the supreme court decides on validity of titles to property purchased at the scavenger sales, many banks will not accept such property as collateral for loans title companies will not insure titles and attorneys generally will not pass on the titles, Mr. McCrea says.

Earliest of preserved English manuscripts bear the date of 1309 but paper was not manufactured in the country until well along in the 16th century.

PLACES BANDS ON MANY BIRDS

Did that bird you saw this morning wear a ring?

He may have and if he did he may have been banded by the local bird bander, George Kent, who reports that he has banded 646 birds of 25 different species during the last six months, from Nov. 16 to May 20.

Mr. Kent is licensed by the U. S. biological survey to trap and band birds for study. He conducts his work at the Idylwild banding station on route 4.

More than three million birds have been banded during the last 25 years by banders in the United States and Canada. The purpose of banding is to learn the life history of the various birds. Any one who finds a banded bird is asked to report the number to the U. S. Biological Survey, Washington, D.C. If the bird is still alive it should be released unharmed with the band still on it so that a further history of that bird may be ascertained.

The birds banded by Mr. Kent and their totals are as follows: Herring gull, 1; mourning dove, 9; downy woodpecker, 8; blue jay, 33; black-capped chickadee, 16; tufted titmouse, 3; white-breasted nuthatch, 6; catbird, 2; brown thrasher, 3; robin, 3; starling, 14.

Palm warbler, 1; Baltimore oriole, 3; cowbird, 4; cardinal, 16; red-eyed towhee, 10; slate-colored junco, 34; tree sparrow, 31; chipping sparrow, 1; white-crowned sparrow, 9; white-throated sparrow, 109; fox sparrow, 4; Lincoln's sparrow, 3; swamp sparrow, 1; song sparrow, 13. Juncos banded during April totaled 238.

Steenma spoke at a men's meeting in Third Reformed church in Holland a few weeks ago.

Benzie County Pioneers Planning Annual Picnic

Frank Miller of Holland is serving as secretary for the fourth annual reunion of ex-residents of Nessen City, Mich., who meet annually to perpetuate the memories of the now deserted lumber town. The affair which is called the Benzie County Pioneer picnic will be held June 2 in City Park in St. Johns, Mich.

Started in 1937 by a few former residents of Nessen City, now a "ghost city" but at one time a flourishing lumbering center, this group has grown yearly until over 400 families were represented last year. Mr. and Mrs. Miller and their family from Holland are planning to attend.

A feature event is the election of "city officers" for the "ghost city" and debate on municipal problems. Rivalry is always keen for the various elective honors and many residents of Michigan cities rejoice in their titles of "office" derived from these elections. In addition a full program of old-time dances and lumberjack sports has been planned together with contests for all ages.

Officers of the Benzie County Pioneer association are Tom Jacobson, Grand Rapids, president; Mr. Miller, secretary; and Miss Viola Obermeyer, Detroit, treasurer. Committee chairmen are William Menold, Thompsonville, reception; George Smith, Frankfort, refreshments; Francis Jenkins, Detroit, sports; Joe Vandervest, Ann Arbor, music; and Miss Obermeyer, publicity.

EYEBALL DESTROYED IN PLANT ACCIDENT

Charles W. Starr, route 5, Holland, underwent in Holland hospital May 23 an operation for the removal of his left eyeball which was injured in an accident in the engine room of the Baker Furniture Inc. plant.

His physician reported his condition was "good." It was reported that Starr was holding a chisel while chiseling out a cement pier in the engine room.

When the chisel was struck by a maul, in the hands of a fellow worker, a Mr. De Gloppe, two pieces of steel from the head of the maul struck him in the eye. Mr. Starr was rushed to the hospital and an x-ray examination revealed the larger piece of steel had passed completely through the eyeball.

With the aid of a magnet, the physician was able to remove the two pieces of steel but an operation was necessary because of the collapse of the eyeball.

Pagant Costuming Considered Unusual

With the Tulip Tunes pagant, one of the popular features of the festival, a closed book, costumes and other equipment used in the gigantic performance are being packed away. One of the most outstanding and artistic features of the pagant was its costumes, many of them of outstanding beauty and technically perfect.

In complete charge of the costuming for the pagant was Miss Lavina Cappon of the Home Economics department of Holland high school. Miss Cappon designed and supervised the making of hundreds of costumes, a gigantic task carried out with efficiency and minute attention to detail.

Extensive research was made that costumes for the various scenes might be authentic and historically correct. Many of the costumes had to be especially designed. The costume for the Sun, one of the most effective in the production, was designed by Miss Cappon, its elaborate construction requiring the utmost ingenuity.

Miss Cappon was assisted in this work by Miss Elizabeth Arendshorst and Miss Lucille Schaeffer. Miss Esther Veenhuis, who was unable to take part in preparation for this year's performance, assisted with the original work carried on in 1939.

Visitors to the city praised the pagant, its setting, costuming, music, dancing and general continuity, as one of the most artistic productions of its kind.

G.H. MERCHANT BOASTS RECORD

Grand Haven, May 29—Having operated a store here for 65 years, Jurrien Ball, who will be 88 years old in November, plans to retire from business when he becomes 90 years old.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Ball is in exceptionally good health and he pays a visit daily to his store.

His first business venture was a grocery store, which he operated about 40 years, selling drygoods, notions, etc., as a sideline. Ball sold the grocery end of the business to a brother and moved to the corner store of a large three-story building he had erected. His business has developed into one of the leading drygoods stores here.

While operating the grocery he began to wholesale flour and sugar, and later was a large importer of Dutch cocoa, a practice he started after a trip to The Netherlands, native land of his ancestors. The war in 1918 put an end to this business; and after the war he did not continue it. Some years he imported as much as 20,000 pounds of cocoa.

Ball has lived in the same block here since birth. He is the oldest baptized member of First Reformed church and has been active in it for years. When the two big churches of this denomination were burned, he was the first to encourage members to rebuild. His latest contribution was some hand-some furnishings, for the new church house that will be completed this month.

Mrs. Ball died several years ago and he since has lived with his two daughters, Anna, former teacher in Grand Rapids schools, and Kattie, who has assisted her father in the store many years.

WAR NO LONGER HOLY CRUSADE, DE VELDER SAYS

Annual Memorial Sunday Services Conducted by Organizations

Minister of Hope Church Presents Answers to Sermon Topic

As a partial answer to the question, "What Can We Do?", the Rev. Marion de Velder, pastor of Hope Reformed church, gave four suggestions in his sermon in Hope Reformed church at the annual Memorial Sunday services.

He stated that as Christians, "we must maintain our faith in the university of the gospel; that we repent for our complacency with our own methods and condemning those of other nations; that we repent as a church for considering war an instrument of doing God's will; and that we believe in the overcoming power of friendliness and prayer and humility and sacrifice."

Members of local patriotic organizations attended the services in a body, first meeting at the city hall and then marching to the church to sit in a special reserved section. Mayor Henry Geerlings and several aldermen also attended the services.

Concerning his first suggestion, Rev. de Velder said, "We must keep our churches from being nationalistic. Don't let nationalism invade the church. Active Christian minorities in every land who believe that Jesus came for all men are essential to the working out of a future international order. We can proceed to act as though we were all Americans the world around, putting loyalty to God's family above loyalty to nation, class or race."

He contended that "we are as guilty as other nations for taking part in those things which lead to war," as he explained his second suggestion. The only difference, he stated, between past actions and those of nations today is a difference of equipment.

"We need to confess our sins as well as pointing out the sins of others. Christians are the conscience of a nation."

In discussing his third suggestion, the minister was of the opinion that war is not a holy crusade but "a horrible, stupid, senseless thing," and that it must never be blessed again. He quoted a statement from Gen. Smedley D. Butler that the churches "pepped up the boys in 1917."

Regarding his fourth suggestion, Rev. de Velder said, "Let us create confidence in our own friendliness, our own passion for peace, our own determination to be just and generous. Let us understand other people's needs and let us cooperate for a world in which all men will have a chance for a decent life. Christians are people who believe and do that."

He divided his sermon into two parts, the first part being a discussion on trying to understand the present danger and the second part to answering the question asked in his topic.

"At a memorial service in 1940, light and easy words can not be spoken because the world is in tragic gloom. There are wars and rumors of wars. These are times which try men's souls. There is fear and hate which threatens to engulf the world."

He was of the opinion that America is not in danger of using war as a means of defense, stating that American shores are not threatened and that the country's geographical position keeps it safe.

"Our preparedness program of the moment is for defense only, at least so we are being told. Secondly, we are in no danger of using war as an instrument of economic gain. We have no aggressive ambitions for more territory."

It was the minister's contention that "we are being tempted to take the steps that lead to war on the basis of a holy war." He asserted the country is in danger of being swept off its feet by moral indignation called "righteous wrath" and of consenting to use war as an instrument for doing God's will.

"We know full well that the last war did not bring those wonderful results which we thought it would. It did not make the world safe. It seems as if we sowed the wind and today are reaping the whirlwind."

After pointing out that "we fail to identify truly the nation or people who are at fault," Rev. de Velder stated that, for centuries, nations have been operating under a system of nationalisms, taking of the world's resources by the strong powers, the use of military force for keeping what "we have and getting what we want," tariffs and discriminations.

"Every nation has been doing this—we are all partners in these crimes. If we want to cooperate under that kind of system, let us not get so wrought up about some nations which are operating under this system and according to its rules. And must we not say further that the nations causing trouble today are the exaggerated result of the injustices of other great powers? Let us not be fooled into believing that one nation is a saint and another nation is a devil."

"We need to begin raising our voices against the way all the nations have been acting, and demand better conduct on the part of all. And the first step is to start at home."

Rev. de Velder contended that

"we didn't do so well" in serving liberty and democracy by entering a foreign war. He related an incident told by C. Wayland Brooks in his address here last Tuesday noon at a joint luncheon of service clubs as to why France felt it owes this country nothing from the last war.

"It may be that the best thing we can do for the time being at least is to safeguard our freedom at home and to make our democracy work. We are in a favored position to do that; it may be our calling," he stated, adding that there are 3,000 miles of border with no fortifications between America and Canada.

"We love our democracy, we prefer this way of life and government and we must safeguard it at all costs. But the best defense of democracy is to make it work," he stated as he presented five great assumptions of democracy as given by Prof. Charles Merriam of Chicago—the importance of the individual, the perfection of all as over against perfection of the few, the gains of the nations as mass gains to be shared by all, the distribution of political power and bringing about of social change through common sense and education.

"This democracy is being challenged by two groups, even in our own country. The first group are people in the upper income levels who believe in government through the leadership of the few. They would take over the state with the power of leadership in the hands of the elite. That program is known as fascism—the dictatorship of the few."

"The other group is made up of people of the lower income groups who believe in the dictatorship of the proletariat, or the masses. They propose that the masses take over the government and plan its development for the welfare of the masses. They have little faith in the processes of democracy. That program is known as communism—the dictatorship of the many."

"The greatest defense against these two groups is to make democracy work—to make it the kind of government that gives the most freedom and the most security and the necessities of life to all the people. Democracy cannot be defended by going to war—the moment we go to war we begin to let go of democracy."

The irony of it is that we must become a dictatorship to fight a dictatorship. To attempt to save democracy in this way means that we dispense with it," Rev. de Velder said as he outlined recent provisions adopted by Great Britain in making it a dictatorship to fight the current European war.

The services opened with an organ number, "Evening Prayer," played by Mrs. W. Curtis Snow. The choir sang "National Hymn" as its processional hymn.

The invocation was given by the minister and the audience repeated the Lord's prayer.

"America" was sung by the audience followed by the reading of the scripture, Micah 4:1-5 by Rev. de Velder. The choir sang "Rest in Peace" with Mrs. de Velder as soloist.

During the offertory, Mrs. Snow played "Ave Maria." The choir sang "Recessional." After the sermon, "Faith of Our Fathers" was sung by the audience followed by the benediction and choral amen. An organ solo, "March," concluded the services.

SAYS SACRIFICE IS ESSENTIAL IN DEFENSE PLANS

Hoffman Points to Lack in Armament and Way to Correct It

Holds Everyone From FDR on Down Must Give Up Ambitions

Washington, May 29—The ambitions of everyone — including President Roosevelt — must be thrown aside if the United States is to realize complete national defense, Cong. Clare E. Hoffman of Allegan, Mich., declared this week.

"It means that the manufacturer's desire for profit must be limited, that the worker's hope of an ever-increasing wage and shorter hours cannot be realized," Hoffman said.

"It means that each and every one of us must make sacrifices. The manufacturer must give up the expectation of becoming a millionaire. The worker must forego for the present his desire to labor but 30 or 40 hours per week and to receive a wage like unto that paid during the first World war. You and I — yes, each one of us — must be ready and willing, and begin, to give up some of the luxuries which heretofore we have regarded as necessities; to get back to a simple life; to longer hours of toil; to a whole-hearted devotion to our country."

"The government itself — and by the government I mean the administration — must cease playing politics, catering to pressure groups for political support and assailing business and businessmen in the hope of catching a labor vote, for, just as surely as we continue as we have in the past, to waste our national income for things which, while desirable, are not necessary, we shall find ourselves when the day of reckoning comes, at the end of the present war or a few years thereafter, as unprepared as were the Belgians, the folks of Holland and of those other nations which have been wiped out of existence, and we will meet a like fate."

"Appearing before the senate sub-committee on military appropriations, the army high command May 17 told us that the United States was wholly unprepared to meet the test of war; that it had neither plans, equipment, ammunition, ordinance nor the men necessary for defense. That was the substance of the testimony of Gen. George G. Marshall, chief of staff, who told us that we lacked men; of Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps, who informed us that our airplanes were inferior; that, to send the army's best bomber against modern equipment would be suicide; of Maj. Gen. C. M. Wesson, ordinance chief, who disclosed the lack of ordinance."

BAND MUSIC AT PARK FESTIVAL THRILLS CROWD

Lighting Effects, Display of Fireworks Add to Tulip Feature

Concert and Field Units Are Perfect; Program Rated Highly

Five thousand spectators Friday night in Riverview park witnessed Holland's first night festival of music which Band Director Glenn Cliffe Bainum of Northwestern university declared was equal to the Chicagoland music festival.

The University of Michigan concert band, six of the state's top-notch class A marching bands and others on the program performed perfectly.

Had the rain which started earlier in the evening kept up, Holland would have missed one of the most beautiful and expensive shows ever put on here. While the audience sat snugly in the stand, the University band in the middle of the field, played its concert in a miserable drizzle.

At times with the lights out and the field in complete darkness, bands with little colored lights on each member's head made formations such as revolving windmills and tulips. Lighted and sometimes flaming batons were used in the dark. When the huge lights switched the background from black to green, there was a different mass of color with red and maroon coats predominant. At still other times, spot lights picked out outstanding performers.

When color finally ended on the field, a mass of fireworks blanketed the sky. Tulips, revolving windmills and Dutch and American flags were included in the fireworks display.

The odd part of the whole evening was that there was no climax. Instead every number and every maneuver from the first notes of the opening march by the University band under the direction of William D. Revell to the last notes of the "Star Spangled Banner," also directed by Mr. Revell, was a climax in itself.

The University of Michigan band opened the entertainment by playing "The Bandstand at Hyde Park," the third movement of the "Frescoes" suite by Hayden Wood, and continued with the lovely overture to the opera "Euryanthe" by Carl von Weber.

Albin Johnson, Richard Baker and Leslie Grimond, accompanied by the 110-piece band played "Bolero," a cornet trio and returned with the "Encores for Three Cornets" by Victor Herbert.

The spirited "Pageantry of the Gridiron" march by David Bennett and "Tropical," a panorama of the tropical country, were played next.

Senior Victor Cherven, president of the band and son of Mrs. V. W. Cherven of 326 Maple Ave., then conducted two movements from his descriptive Lake Michigan Suite. The two movements played were the first, "The Surf," and the third, "The Dunes." Most of this suite was composed at the Cherven cottage on Lake Michigan last summer.

Eugene F. Heeter conducted the dashing "Bravado" by Frederick Curzon, a march in three-quarter time, and Deon Chown, business manager of the band and graduate of 1939, conducted "A Michigan Fantasy," an arrangement by him of tunes familiar to all Michigan students and alumni.

"The Stars and Stripes Forever," by John Phillip Sousa brought to a close the concert of some of the country's finest band music played by one of the country's leading college bands.

During the playing of the last march, Maynard L. W. "Elmer of Franklin, Pa., performed a remarkable flag-throwing feat with a flag of maize and blue, the U of M's colors.

With the field absolutely dark between the concert and marching performances, Mr. Bainum, one of America's most famous maestros, led community singing with a lighted baton. He also directed the famous match-lighting ceremony so popular at Soldier's field in Chicago, in which every one strikes a match at the proper moment lighting the whole darkened stand with thousands of small lights. "America" was also sung. Mrs. Stuart Ludlow accompanied at the piano.

In field maneuvers, the Holland high marching band led off, coming down the field and forming a large revolving windmill. To the tune of a Dutch Dance, 200 Dutch dancers appeared from different stations on the field and participated in a huge dance. The brightly-colored clothes also made a brilliant showing. Eight girls on a dias in front of the grandstand to which a microphone was attached, provided the "klomp" for all of them.

The red-coated 110-piece, Muskegon band took the field at 9:30 p.m. With the field dark, it formed a big letter "M" made up of the hundred little red lights on the caps. Next the band formed a little red schoolhouse to the tune of "School Days" with the same red lights also forming two large red hearts. At a signal from a majorette with a lighted baton, the band members either stooped or stood and the little lights went up and down, adding greatly to the act.

The "Zulus," a group of musicians from Benton Harbor boys' band, who were as humorous as the Zouaves are serious, next produced a burlesque on the Zou-aves' performance at last year's tulip band review.

Burgemeister and Aldermen March in Saturday's Festival Parade

The Union high band of Grand Rapids formed a mill and accompanied its four spotlighted dancing majorettes. A quintet played the Netherlands Folk Song. Next, still in the dark, they formed in airplane and "droned" the full length of the field. A twirler with a baton flaming at both ends provided the propeller.

The Kalamazoo band made a pennant with a "K" inside and, also in the dark, made an electric sign with their small lights. This sign contained the letters, HTF—Holland Tulip Festival. Singing "Tiptoe Through the Tulips," the band formed a large windmill with blue lights in the revolving arms.

After separate performances by the Benton Harbor boys' and girls' bands, the two joined to make a lighted shield with the letters USA in red, white and blue. They featured the twirling of ten-year-old Patsy Cunningham.

The massed band played Berlin's "God Bless America" directed by Mr. Bainum, and the "Star Spangled Banner." "Bombs bursting in air" completed the successful program.
