The Detroit Weekly Tribune

FOR 1873.

ENLARGED AND IMPROVED.

THE DETROIT WEEKLY TRIBUNE, one of the oldest and most firmly established Republican newspapers of the country, has been enlarged by the addition of One Column to each of its pages, and is now a Fifty-six Column newspaper, and one of the Largest Weekly publications in the North West.

This marked increase in its size, and therefore, in the amount and variety of its contents, is not accompanied with any increase in its subscription price; which remains at the old figures of $2.00 for single subscriptions, or $1.50 for subscriptions in clubs of twenty or more, or five papers for $9.00, or ten for $16.00.

WILL M. CARLTON,

the famous "farm ballad" poet is a regular contributor to its columns, and during 1873 will furnish a New series of "Farm Ballads," written especially for The Tribune. This fact will be learned with pleasure by the thousands who have read with such rare delight his "Betsey and I are Out," "Out of the Old House Nancy," etc.

The Detroit weekly Tribune is also a carefully edited journal, which publishes in compact form all the news of the day, Foreign and Domestic; which is especially attentive to all matters possessing a Michigan interest; which gives full and accurate Commercial Reports; and which presents to its readers a large range of choice literary and miscellaneous selections. Its Agricultural department is under the charge of an experienced and practical editor, and furnishes an increasingly popular medium for the interchange of opinions and facts among its subscribers.

The present circulation of The Weekly Tribune exceeds that of the combined weekly editions of all the other Detroit political journals, and will undoubtedly be greatly increased during the coming year.

It is published on the new four-column rotary press of The Tribune establishment, which is the only one of the kind in Michigan.

Saved by a Dream.

Permit me to introduce the speaker, Mr. Haskell, western stage driver—a man muscular, and with an eye as keen and unflinching as an eagle's. I drove the stage from New Sharon to Wexford, a distance of thirty miles. In the spring and fall when the travel was bad, I always tarried over night at Wexford, going down to New Sharon the next day, but during the summer I returned by night. I liked that plan better, for it gave me some leisure to be with my family.

The night of which I am going to tell you, was late in the summer. It had been a mighty tough storm all the way up—a northeaster, just as full of needle points as they could stuff in. Fine hail, you understand, and rain freezing up and frosting your beard, giving one a remarkable if not a pleasing cast of countenance. I had but two passengers up, an old man with very white hair and beard, and a younger man with a slight stoop, and no other peculiarity, that I noticed. I took the mail bags outside with me under the apron.

I wasn't a particle sorry when the village of Wexford blinked at me with its numerous eyes from crevices in the showers of driving sleet.

Wexford was dignified by the name of village, or South Wexford, more properly, for there was a meager collection of five or six houses, and I drove through this place, usually putting up at the half-way house, as it was termed. Beyond this half-way house was Wexford proper, with quite a bustling business air in its one huge smoke stack, and the row of stones well punctuated with drinking dens. The other stage route ended here, on account of the roughness of the road—the postman jostling the distance between the half-way house and there to connect the mail line. This half-way house had a sorry reputation, on account of the villainous class of roughs that frequented it, to have a game of poker for a bit of a ring fight. I had watched the games scores of times, without allowing myself to be drawn into them or disturbed by them.

As I said, I only tarried at Wexford during the bad weather of early spring and late autumn. But to come back to the night of the storm. It was as much as might be expected. A small number of ruffianly fellows were in the bar-room, but the night was rather threatening for the mass to come out. In fact, I brought in the stage about all the noticeable persons destined to study the cloudy heavens that night, through the bottom of mine host's glasses. There was black Dave—an appendix general to the tavern—as clumsy a piece of clown as one would care to see and Powder Bill, a second class ruffian who had gained his cognomen by having had his face blown full of powder. Besides these there were several loafers in no wise remarkable. Of this I was glad, for I was aware that the mail bag was unusually heavy. I knew that there was quite large sums of money expected by different persons about that time, and I should be glad enough when the responsibility was off my shoulders.

We passed a sociable evening. The chatting turned upon practical joking, and the danger oftentimes resulting therefrom. The person who participated least in the conversation was my passenger up—the man with stoop shoulders. I had learned that his name was Jenks. While this one and that one told their tales, his sharp, downcast eyes would, in spite of himself, turn continually toward that corner of the room where I had tossed my mail bags. On the other hand, the old fellow with the long, white hair, was the most boisterous talker of the group. His laugh was the loudest, his puffs of smoke the most frequent, and his voice, strengthening with his rising spirits, lost much of the quiver noticeable in older persons. I was both astonished at him and delighted also. To find a man slipping down the shady side of life's hill, gay and disposed to make merry with his friends, is as rare an occurrence as it is exhilarating to witness. He had a peculiarity about the face which you sometimes see, and which gives an effect singular if not pleasant to the beholder. He had very bright, rapidly revolving eyes, under bushy, black eye-brows, brows shaggy enough to suggest miniature crows' nests, roughly piled together. He called himself Stowell, and I judged him to be a stranger in those parts. In truth, he incautiously made mention of the fact that he was on government business. At mention of this, I found Jenks furtively and steadily regarding him from the corner of his eyes. My feelings had settled into fixed distrust before the evening was half spent; on the other hand, the entire company, if I except Jenks, mentally pronounced the old fellow just the one to while away a dull evening.

After some quite loud boasting of courage, and brave deeds by several of the party, and this one telling what he could do, and this one affirming what he would not do under such and such circumstances, a motion was made for bed. The old fellow, with a separate good-night to all was shown to his room first, at his own request, Jenks and myself going last. The glances which this fellow cast at the bags as I took them to my room, were not particularly reassuring. I thought at first to speak of my suspicions to the landlord, and then I felt ashamed to do so and went into my room. Turning on the threshold, I was unpleasantly surprised to see Jenks standing outside of his room, and regarding me with a fixed gaze.

"Blundering fool!" said I to myself. "If his intentions are to rob me, he has taken the mode of proceeding to put me on my guard."

I closed the door and locked it securely, dumped the mail bags in the corner, and, being weary, immediately undressed and retired.

I lay for a long time, turning this way and that, made restless I suspected by continually thinking of Jenks and his strange conduct. I grew angry at last, with myself, for allowing him to keep so before my vision; but this state of mind did not tend to sleepiness, I assure you. While I lay tossing about, I heard one after another of the members of the family go to bed. Still that infernal Jenks kept before me. I muttered anathemas and turned over again.

Now comes the singular part of the affair. I must have fallen asleep for a moment. I dreamed that I was in that very house, in that very room and bed, that I had fallen asleep, and woke up with the impression that some one was under the bed; that I did not know how to ascertain the truth of it without causing the robber and murderer to spring upon me unawares; that having a boyish trick of stuffing my pockets with everything, I felt in there for a marble and found it—and leaning cautiously from the forward edge of the bed, dropped or rolled it toward the backside or wall of the room, thinking as I did so that if there was no one there, it would roll across and strike the mop-board with a sharp click. I dreamed that the marble rolled but a little ways, struck something and stopped—that I looked under the bed and found Stowell instead of Jenks, with murder written upon his face. Then there was a confused plan of what I said and did.

I came to full consciousness from this dream, or incubus state, and ached and turned over to see if I were really awake now. My whole body was damp, the sweat standing in cold drops upon my face, so great had been my suffering in that few moments' sleep. It was so strange, so frightfully real, that I shifted to the other side, and as silently as possible, drew up my pants and felt in the pocket. My fingers touched a bullet that was lying loose amidst other rubbish. I drew it out, and with a sensation such as I never experienced before, and hope never to again, I prepared for the dream test. Reaching my hand well down toward the floor, I gave it a roll toward the back of the bed. It moved a foot or two, and struck something soft and stopped.

My heart stopped beating for a minute, and globules of fire swam before my face, peopling the darkness with horrors. There was no choice but to fill up the programme of the dream. I sprang from the bed before my muscles were paralyzed with terror, and called out:

"Here, you, Stowell!"—I actually intended to say Jenks, but could not—"come out from there, and have done with this kind of joking." No sound about the house. The stormy clouds tearing away overhead, allowed a watery moonlight to flood the room.

"Stowell," I called again, "I am in no mood for this kind of practical joking. I have not boasted of my courage but I shall discharge my pistol under the bed, hit or miss, in one moment more."

There was a thumping and a rustling, the spread was swept aside, and good Heavens! it was Stowell. I could see his white hair and beard. Before he had come to an upright position, for I could dimly discern the outlines of objects, I sprang to the door to shout for help.

I had not turned the key when I heard a leap outside, and the instant that the bolt fell back from the socket, a man sprang into the room; a pistol ball grazed my ear, another shot, and two forms were struggling upon the floor. I was but a moment inactive; the next and I had planted a blow with the butt of my pistol somewhere upon the gray head, which stretched the villain senseless, almost the same instant receiving the flash of a pistol in the side of the head, which, had it not providentially refused fire, must have materially interfered with my future powers of narration.

Much confusion followed. The landlord rushed in; the landlady also. Everything was explained directly. Jenks was my rescuer. Jenks, whom I had so doubted, said to me, "Look here!" and he removed the white hair of the robber, and exposed to our startled gaze the clean face and closely-cropped hair of a "sentenced for life" penitentiary man.

"He escaped two weeks ago from—and eluded pursuit. I got on the track of him at Detroit, and have followed him, off and on, ever since. He came up from New Sharon purposely to rob, and if need be to murder you. His joviality and apparent good humor, allayed all suspicion. I could read his plans when he first went to bed. He stowed himself into some closet or corner of your room to wait for you to fall asleep. I remained close by your door, and should have warned you but feared to arouse the suspicions of the fellow, lest he should again make off."

Since I was really saved by a dream, I consider it remarkable. I distrust remarkably jolly persons now, and take into favor, sour, silent appearing people.

Jenks was a detective.

New Bows & Light Engines Draw East Train

BY PROF. J. D. BUTLER.

The first locomotive was patented twenty years ago. Driving only one car, if lightly loaded it did very well; but when the load it drew was heavier than its own weight, its wheels would not bite—that is, they would turn round and round without advance. Hence a cow-catcher was needed behind to guard against cattle running into it in the rear. It seemed at first impossible to make a less weight move a greater on an up grade; and, for 27 years afterward, no one invented an engine able to draw three times its own weight. At the present day, however, locomotives sweep along with trains more ponderous by 15 or 20 times than they are themselves. One means of gaining this vast increase of power for the locomotive, was by dividing the load. It was found, that an engine powerless to stir five times its weight of freight when concentrated in one car, could readily draw it when distributed in a dozen cars loosely shackled together. It was heavier that each single car; and it had overcome the inertia of each one, a moment before it encountered the inertia of another. It was thus more than a match for each car taken singly; and, pulling them successively, it drew after it a train as long as a comet and the faster it ran the more strength it had to run faster. Here was the story of little David over again. Ordinarily the strapping weight as he told Goliath, was one hundred and twenty tons. Moreover, the engine forced the momentum acquired by every car it had started, to swell its own potency in overcoming the resistance of all that remained still motionless.

"This railroad achievement (making a light engine draw a heavy train), if not so common would seem miraculous; and it is analogous to an expedient for securing a farm which is equally simple and equally efficacious. It is this: 'Divide your payments.' Buying, as 4,535 settlers have bought of the Burlington and Missouri River Road in Iowa or Nebraska, within the last three years, on ten years' credit, and at six per cent. interest, you pay in eleven installments spread over half a life time, the first not due till the beginning of the third year. Besides, every acre you improve adds to your paying power, as the headway of every moving car reinforces the tractive energy of the locomotive."

In purchases made since 1873 nothing is due on the principal until the beginning of the fifth year, and then only one seventh annually. "Divide and conquer" is the maxim of Satan when sows discord among brethren. Use it for your good as Satan will for your harm, and as Stephen son did to multiply the magical forces of his immortal and world-moving locomotive. "Get mad and weigh a ton." Own land and nobody shall ever own you. Be your own man!

Vienna Exhibition.

The part of Vienna in which the Exhibition will be held is called the Prater. It is a kind of park, intersected with drives through groves of trees and over lawns. In the summer season the Prater is one of the most lovely spots in Europe. The river Danube is within a mile or two of the Exhibition, but its most glorious scenery is some miles distant from the city.

The stream which runs through Vienna, and is crossed by handsome bridges, is a canal cut from the Danube. By the side of the road through the Prater approaching the Exhibition there is a great number of buildings just erected by speculators as places of entertainment and amusement for visitors. These already give an air of bustle and gaiety to the scene, though they are in an incomplete condition. A stranger might, at first sight, imagine that they belonged to the Exhibition itself. Vienna is said by residents to be the most expensive city in Europe, and everybody seems to expect that prices will rise enormously during the approaching summer. Competition, however, will regulate charges. The Exhibition covers, with the grounds, no less than four square English miles. The central dome is three hundred feet in diameter, and two hundred and fifty feet high. The interior decoration of the building is extremely rich and pleasing.

A Curious Climate.

The climate of Peru is set forth by a correspondent as exceedingly peculiar and strange. It never rains there, we are told, but during certain seasons, and when the atmosphere is filled with clouds, a dew falls so thick, heavy and continuous, that it will saturate the heaviest clothing in less than half an hour. The coming and going of the clouds that distill this dew, is another strange thing connected with Peru. The changes are reported so rapid and violent as to startle the stranger. One may be walking along the street, glorying in the rich warmth of the sunshine and admiring the deep, clear blue of the sky, when suddenly, and almost imperceptibly, a change takes place, and from the southward a mass of dark clouds come rolling swiftly across the firmament, and soon the blue sky is replaced by a somber pall, and to the glorious sunshine succeeds a drizzling, penetrating mist. And this is as suddenly changed again, even while one is preparing to guard against the mist, the sunlight and sky reappearing in all their brightness and beauty.

HOLLAND CITY NEWS

S. L. MORRIS, Editor.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1879.

ADVANCE TO THE FRONT.

Perhaps no better opportunity has ever presented itself to the people of Holland to further its material interests than the present. A contemporary very pertinently remarks, that "The only incentive to the growth and prosperity of hamlet, village or city, is the advantages possessed by its locality, and the enterprise of its citizens." Every embryo city or village has some distinct advantage which will invite capital and labor, and around which people will hover for the purpose of "making money." This principle being thoroughly established, we are not surprised to see many of our energetic citizens seeking to further promote the interests of this city by more fully developing its natural resources.

It is not enough that we have a surplus of capital to be borrowed at two or three per cent. per month, but that this capital shall be invested in manufacturing, where, by prudent management, the same or a greater per centage may be realized to the capitalist, and employment given to those hundreds of men who would otherwise be the borrower. It is not sound policy to keep in one business all the capital of a town. It should be divided and the different interests encouraged. Neither is it sufficient for the best interests of a young city that too many should go to "keepin' store." There is capital locked up in "store goods" in this city, to-day, that is not paying two per cent. per year, and of no benefit to the place. We have too many stores, such as they are, and not enough such as we should have; too much capital invested without a proper return of profit. Our natural advantages are entirely overlooked, and where wealth is almost sure to be found, has hardly been noticed.

Capitalists from abroad are willing to unite with us, and now is the moment for energy to be employed to secure aid in building up a mammoth business, which will consume our surplus at home, using our natural resources and advantages for the increasing of our wealth and importance.

The question of a blast furnace here, which has so long been agitated, has now assumed an attitude when every man must put his shoulder to the wheel and aid on the work. Too much time and money has already been expended upon the project to have it fail. The importance of the work none can fail to appreciate. Our locality is favorable, and the energy of citizens will never recognize any such word as FAIL. Holland enterprise is already noted for indomitable perseverance in all matters hitherto advanced, pertaining to material interests, and we have no doubt but success shall crown our efforts at this time; for we believe every man sees the importance of the work, and will add his mite to secure it. It is far better to encourage the increase of population from our laboring classes than it is from wealthy "nabobs," whose capital is kept for shaviny notes as a business, and will loan only at three or four per cent. per month. We want capital invested where it will employ the most labor, and now is the time. Shall we secure it?

Common Council.

CITY OF HOLLAND, June 4.

The Council met in regular session, and was called to order by the mayor. The roll was called by the Clerk.

Present—Alds. Kanter, Aling, Kamperman, Dykema, Duursema, Hoogesteger and Sipp.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Presentation of petitions, none.

Reports from standing committees, none.

The select committee on cemetery grounds reported that they had visited several localities, obtaining the price of grounds and other information.

Moved by Ald. Aling, that the Council meet Friday, June 6, at 2 o'clock p. m., and proceed to examine the grounds designated by the committee.

Select committee for procuring legal opinion, report:

To the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Holland:

GENTS:—Your special committee beg leave to state that they have endeavored to perform the important duty assigned to them, carefully, conscientiously, diligently and perfectly impartially. As committee, they have inclined to neither the one, nor the other side of these questions, and as inquiring committee, they were perfectly neutral about the decisions by legal talent in our vexed questions, and have tried with all means at their disposal, to probe the wound to its deepest depth, regardless of consequences, as to what would stand or fall by the decision.

On Friday morning, May 28th, your committee proceeded to Grand Rapids, and consulted His Honor, Mayor P. R. L. Pierce, who, from his experience of sixteen years in the offices of Kent County, and the city of Grand Rapids, and his practice as a lawyer for the last five years, was, we were satisfied competent to give us a correct opinion on the points in question.

Herewith we report the written opinion of P. R. L. Pierce, as the result of our labors, and respectfully request the discharge of your special committee.

M. HOOGESTEGER, Special Com. J. DYKEMA.

OPINION OF P. R. L. PIERCE.

GRAND RAPIDS May 31, 1873.

To Messrs. M. Hoogesteger and J. Dykema of Holland City, Mich.

GENTLEMEN:—From the brief consideration I have been enabled to give the points submitted to me verbally yesterday by you with reference to matters involved in the late charter-election in your city. I am of the opinion—

FIRST. That there has not been such informality in the Election of April 7th last as to vitiate the same, or prevent all persons elected from qualifying, entering upon, and performing the duties of their respective offices.

SECOND. The fact that the Clerk (or any officer) required by law, to give ten, or any number of days notice of the election, did not perform his duty, is of no consequence, as the duty was merely ministerial, and the election it appears was duly held on the day fixed by law.

THIRD. The fact that the polls were opened an hour earlier, and closed an hour later, is not material in your case, because no fraud was intended or has been discovered either in the polling of votes or in counting the same and declaring the result.

FIFTH. It is not stated and does not appear that any elector protested against the polls being opened an hour earlier or closed an hour later.

SIXTH. The fact that the ballots were finally counted or canvassed, on Thursday instead of Wednesday following the election can work no injustice to any one as it seems the inspectors did meet on Wednesday, and for reasons appearing, as we are bound to suppose satisfactory adjourned without completing their work. It is not charged that there was any fraud or collusion in this matter by the inspectors.

SEVENTH. The requirement that vacancies shall be filled within twenty days after their occurrence is a little ambiguous in meaning still as there appears to be no officers who can hold over in order to form the Board of Education, as contemplated by the new or amended charter, and as great injustice and loss and inconvenience might ensue detrimental to the public interests if such board should not be formed, and as more than nine months must elapse before the next charter election, I see no objection that can possibly be fatal to the election or appointment of a sufficient number to fill up the board.

EIGHTH. There having been a sufficient number elected already, to organize—a majority of the whole required—when qualified, they will, I judge, constitute the Board of Education, though not a full Board, and it may be that with their present number, they could not legally pass upon any measure requiring a two-third vote of the whole number; they could pass upon such questions as require a majority vote—all voting.

NINTH. It appears from the new charter, that there was no action taken or direction given by the Legislature, while providing for the organization of the Board of Education, with reference to detaching so much of the district as lies outside of the corporation limits, and which was, at the time of the passage of the charter, an integral portion of a school district. It is presumed from all the surroundings, that this was an oversight, and that the Legislature did not intend such a blunder, and it being a well settled legal maxim, that the greater always contains the lesser, I cannot see any other way at present, than that, for school purposes, the boundaries of the district outside of the corporation must remain as they were before the passage of the charter, but in school matters, subject to the control of the Board of Education, unless the proper township authorities choose to change and attach the disputed territory to some other district. The question of the division of funds etc., must be left until the Legislature again meets (unless sooner decided by the courts), when the remedy can easily be had.

The above questions, cover substantially all of the main objections raised, and in dealing with them, the courts would construe the law favorably toward the side of justice and sound policy, having in view the circumstances and surroundings, which in your case seem entirely favorable without any intention to perpetrate fraud, or do injustice to any one.

There may be some provisions for holding special elections for members of Board of Education, where there are vacancies, or members did not qualify; if so, my attention was not called to it.

Respectfully,

P. R. L. PIERCE.

The report of the committee was accepted and the committee discharged.

It was moved and carried that the report of the special committee and the opinion of P. R. L. Pierce, be published with the minutes of the Council.

The City Treasurer made his monthly report, which was referred back for correction as to form.

The Clerk reported a bond, presented by Charles Scott, as Treasurer of the Board of School Inspectors, of the city of Holland.

On motion, duly seconded and carried, the bond was rejected and ordered returned to Charles Scott.

The general orders of the day being reached, the message of the Mayor was taken up and considered by sections; a resolution was passed declaring the elective offices of School Inspectors of the Public Schools of the City of Holland vacant.

Roelof Pieters, Peter Moerdijk and Henry Uiterwijk, were appointed School Inspectors of the Public Schools of the City of Holland to fill vacancies.

A motion was made and seconded to remove C. Doesburg from office, in accordance with the recommendation of the Mayor, but was lost.

Anne Flietstra was appointed Collector of the city of Holland to fill vacancy.

Harm Wiersema was appointed Street Commissioner.

A resolution was passed, ordering the construction of the gutters on 8th street between Cedar and Market sts., and instructing the Clerk to advertise for sealed proposals for constructing the work.

The City Marshal was instructed to notify parties requiring licenses to apply for the same within eight days.

Adjourned to meet June 6th, 2 p. m.

BADLY RECONSTRUCTED.

There are many journals throughout the South that are doing noble work towards bringing about that fraternal feeling so much needed to build up the prosperity of the Southern States. To heal the wounds caused by the late war to remove those prejudices which grew out of the struggle between the two sections; to point out to the people the true road leading to wealth and happiness; to invite men to energy and capital to assist in developing the resources of the State; and to welcome them with a friendly spirit when they arrive. To mould public sentiment into a hearty good will toward the General Government, should be among the highest objects of Southern journalism. In a large measure these objects command the talent of the Southern editors. We are sorry to record any exceptions; but we cannot ignore their existence. To read some of these poisonous journals one would infer that the rebellion was still in full blast; that Lee's army was still defending Richmond, and that Johnston was still holding Sherman before Atlanta. As an illustration of the venomous spirit of these badly reconstructed organs, we clip the following from the Richmond Enquirer of a recent date:

"We want good men from the North to settle as citizens here that they may assist us in upholding the great Conservative cause, which is so essential to the security of our State from the political curse which is so degrading and damning to those States south of us that have been engulfed in the black waters of Radicalism."

When we consider that the "waters of Radicalism" have washed from the South an institution that degraded its manhood, and crippled its energies, and retarded its growth more than all other evils combined, we cannot but pity the partisan spirit that could breathe the item quoted.

But the Northeast Georgian outranks the Enquirer in pure venom, and expressed hate for anything that represents the Federal Government. It heads an article on the Modoc massacre as follows:

"An Indian Massacre—Captain Jack and Warriors Avenge the South by Murdering General Canby, one of Her Greatest Oppressors, and Peace Commissioners—Keep the Ball in Motion—Three Cheers for the Gallant Modocs."

Yet these are the journals that pretend to lay down rules for a loyal Administration to follow; that complain of the lack of friendly feeling on the part of the North; that deem every effort made by the Government to elevate their States from the degradation into which their rebel teachings have brought them, acts of Radical tyranny. Not until this class of "Conservative" journals is driven from existence by a healthy public sentiment throughout the South, can genuine prosperity bless the States of that section. We believe this sentiment is being moulded daily, and that the people of the South are beginning to open their eyes to the fact that the worst enemies they have are those that, under guise of friendship, preach hatred to the North, and keep alive the prejudices which added fuel to the flames of rebellion. The war is over, slavery is dead beyond resurrection, freedom to all is the order of the day, and the sooner the last spark of hate dies out in the South the sooner will the State of that section assume the leading positions in the Union which their natural advantages entitle them to fill.—Republic.

THE MODOCOS.

Capt. Jack, with the remnant of his band were forced to surrender June 1st. The day before his surrender, Colonel Green, who was scouting for them, made a haul of thirty-four men, women and children, thirteen of them being able bodied warriors. The Modocos say that Jack is insane. There is much method in his madness, he has evidently been reading the New York Court Records. We clip the following dispatch, relative to his surrender:

APPLEGATE'S HOUSE, CLEAR LAKE, June 1, 3:30 p. m.—A series of prolonged yells and cheers aroused the camp from a pleasant siesta half an hour after the departure of my last courier. General Davis, General Wheaton, and other officers, and all the men rushed from house and tents, to find the cause of the uproar, and at once the whole camp was in commotion. Down the level plain north of the house was a grand cavalcade of mounted horsemen. The steeds rushed forward at once at a furious rate, and soon neared the crowd of spectators scattered about the premises. "Capt. Jack is captured," shouted a sturdy sergeant, and again the valley echoed with cheers and yells. The mounted command was that of Perry. He had returned from a scout of twenty three hours, three miles north of the mouth of Willow Creek. At 10:30 o'clock this morning the Warm Spring scouts struck a hot trail. After a brief search Modocos were discovered. Col. Perry surrounded the Indians' retreat. His men were bound to fight. Suddenly a Modoc shot out from the rocks with a white flag. He met a Warm Spring and said Jack wanted to surrender. Three scouts were sent to meet Jack. He came out cautiously, glanced about him a moment, and then, as if giving up all hopes, came forward and held out his hand to his visitors. Then two of his warriors, five squaws and seven children, darted forth and joined him in the surrender. The command that made this famous scout was the first squadron of the First Cavalry, Colonel D. Perry, composed of troop F, Lieut. Miller, and troop H, Major Trumbull, and medical officer, Assistant Surgeon Dewitt. The guards were C. Pulliam and H. A. Applegate. Jack is about 40 years of age; five feet, eight inches high, and compactly built. He has a large and well formed face, full of individuality. Although dressed in old clothes, he looks every inch a chief. He does not speak to any one. The Modocos are grouped in the field near the house and surrounded by a guard. Spectators peer into Jack's face with eager interest, but he heeds them not. He is as still as a statue.

Citizens' Association.

Monday, June 2, 1873.

Met pursuant to adjournment, at Bakker & Van Raalte's Hall. Meeting was called to order with Vice President Kenyon in the chair.

Report of committee appointed at last meeting to nominate a committee to procure subscriptions to capital stock for the purpose of organizing a stock company for the manufacture of pig iron. The following named gentlemen were placed in nomination:

FOR THE CITY OF HOLLAND:

Charles Scott, C. Vorst, R. Kanter, W. Wakker, C. De Jonge and N. Kenyon.

TOWNSHIP OF HOLLAND.

B. J. Veneklasen, M. D. Howard, D. Van Raalte, J. Van Dijk and W. Diekema.

Zeeland, H. Keppel; Olive, M. E. Nienhuis; Graafschap, Hon. J. W. Garvelink; Statesland, H. O. Yntema.

Report of Harbor committee was verbally made by Mr. Van Schelven and gave satisfaction.

The steamboat question was agitated all agreeing that such an enterprise would be acceptable, and would undoubtedly be well patronized.

No further business appearing before the meeting it was resolved to adjourn for one week.

"FRUIT PROSPECTS IN SAUGATUCK."

—The St. Joseph Herald copies our article on "Fruit Prospects," and gives THE NEWS proper credit. But why our friend Chamberlain should locate us at Saugatuck we cannot guess. THE NEWS is published at the city of Holland, a thriving town of 3,000 to 3,500 inhabitants, the business center of one of the richest agricultural and horticultural districts in the State, and according to the 'Detroit Post' railroad map of Michigan, the great railroad center of Western Michigan. We hope our neighbor of the Herald will study the topography of Western Michigan, and hereafter give due credit to the different localities represented. The township of Holland is in Ottawa County, Saugatuck is a thriving township and village, twelve miles south of us, in Allegan County, and ably represented by the Lake Shore Commercial.

SOLD.—The steam tug, Croton, has been sold to parties in Chicago. Thus passes from view one of the oldest hulls built in Western Michigan.

NOTICE.—The Subscriber would return his sincere thanks to the Firemen and all others who assisted in saving his property from the fire last evening. HEBER WALSH.

J. M. Reidsema & Son would inform the public generally, that they have reduced the price of their famous Cane Seat Chairs $2.00 per dozen, and on all Rockers 50 cents apiece. A full assortment of Baby Carriages on hand, for sale cheap, for cash.

Read the new advertisement of Star Clothing House this week. This establishment has become one of the greatest business houses in Grand Rapids, and fully merits the success attending it. We would advise all in want of goods in their line to give them a call.

ALMOST A FIRE.—Sunday morning last, about 4 o'clock, a fire was discovered in the building, corner of River and Twelfth streets. The alarm was immediately sounded, when by the application of a few pails of water, it was extinguished. Loss, $25.00; insured in the Phoenix of Hartford.

BOSTON FIRE.—Another disastrous fire visited Boston May 30th, with an estimated loss of $1,250,000; insured for $750,000. Great consternation prevailed for a time, as the wind was blowing briskly. The firemen of that, and neighboring cities, were called out to fight the flames, which lasted about four hours.

ACCIDENT.—While Mr. John Danglemond and wife were going from church last Sunday, his horse took fright and ran away, throwing them both out of the wagon. Mrs. D. was very badly injured, and owing to her delicate health, fears are entertained for her speedy recovery. Mr. Danglemond had one shoulder dislocated and was otherwise severely injured by the wagon passing over him.

STAR EXTINGUISHER.—An agent of the Babcock extinguisher, attempted to prove to our citizens the other evening the efficiency of his apparatus in subduing the flames. A fire was built upon the Public Square, of combustible material, and when fully under way the gas was applied, with no visible effect whatever; the machine in this instance proving an entire failure. Such exhibitions will not convince our citizens that the Babcock is what they want to rely upon for the extinguishment of fire.

FIRE.—Last Thursday evening, about 6 1/2 o'clock, the cry of fire was sounded. It was soon discovered to be under the City Drug Store of Heber Walsh. The prompt action of the Fire Department and citizens, soon had it under control. The fire originated in a store-room, under the oil room, and is supposed to have been spontaneous combustion, as it was in a portion of the building seldom visited, and never with anything from which fire could originate. Loss at the present time cannot be fully estimated, probably $500, fully insured.

CHURCH FESTIVAL.—The ladies of the M. E. Church will hold a Festival in the Church parlors on Wednesday evening next for the benefit of the Church and Community generally. In building finishing and beautifying a church edifice we think we are benefiting the Public as well as our church, and think we may justly claim the patronage of all who feel an interest in the improvement of the city. Especially, should the Masons and Odd Fellows feel interested and not fail to give us their aid on this occasion, for it is the only church edifice which either of them can obtain, for addresses or other important works, and the only one in the future they will be able to use on any public occasion.

Ladies committee.

DECORATION DAY.—This day was quite generally observed throughout the Northern States. We regret to say, however, that no sympathy for the fallen heroes has ever manifested itself in this community. No observance, having for its native pure sentiment, has ever obtained such general respect from the people as that of decorating the graves of the soldiers who died while preserving the integrity of the nation. It is evidently a pleasure of the philanthropist to drop a tear of remembrance over the grave of one who has sacrificed all of this world to retain in all purity, the blessing of a free government. Little do we realize the debt of gratitude we owe those "brave defenders of our nation's glory," who paid with their lives for what we now enjoy. Congress has made it a legal holiday, yet so far as we are able, we can discover no disposition here to accept it as such. But we are rejoiced to know that there are those, whose unaffected sympathy will spend Decoration Day, and the motive of its ceremonies.

Twelve Good Reasons Why I Should Trust.

1. The pleasure of purchasing and opening a set of books.
2. The employment of a book-keeper at a high salary.
3. The employment of one or two men to collect your accounts.
4. When called upon to pay some demand so convenient to have a good number of accounts on your books.
5. The pleasure of sending in your bills through the post-office, and seeing nearly one-half your bill paid for postage, returned to settle some account.
6. To hire persons to make collections, and have the greater part of the bills returned unpaid, bringing you in debt to the collector.
7. Trusting parties who have always been your customers, and have the pleasure of seeing them go around one or two blocks to shun your place of business, and take their cash to a rival establishment.
8. To wait a year or two, send in your account, and see the party get up and curse and swear—that if you don't them, you will never get your pay, and they will be cured if they ever patronize you again.
9. The pleasure of having parties leave town, forgetting to settle that little account on your books.
10. Being compelled to take legal measures to collect your just dues, and thereby make friends with all the relations, friends and acquaintances of the party.
11. The knowledge that you must add all the bad debts in as expenses, and charge all your customers an additional price to cover, is very consoling.
12. The pleasure of making any number of enemies (if you ever ask for your own), who will be sure to run down your store and all connected with it.

NOTICE.

For the above twelve good reasons, I hereby give notice, that on and after this date, all goods sold at the City Drug Store, will be for CASH! or its equivalent; and shall give my customers the advantage of an immense stock of goods, and a cash trade.

Now I Mean Business.

I have on my books, accounts ranging from twenty five cents to hundreds of dollars, and I want all who read this notice (if in my debt), to call at once and pay. I must have the money, and I will let you settle without costs, but if it is your wish that I shall add interest and costs I will do so. Remember this. I intend to have my pay, and close my books, and have what is my just due.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible. For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by vitiated blood, which is produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
