Lida Rogers, 85, Dies in Marne

Miss Lida Rogers, 85, the Holland High School biology teacher who is acclaimed as the originator of Tulip Time, died Friday evening in Beacon Light Christian Nursing Home in Marne where she had been since Feb. 18, 1961.

In failing health in recent years, the long-time educator who retired from her teaching career in 1952 nevertheless remained fairly active until she was taken ill four days ago. Exact cause of her death was not determined, but it was believed death was due to complications.

While Miss Rogers was acclaimed as the founder of Tulip Time, she displayed considerably more interest in general conservation and civic duty.

Closest to her heart was the

Miss Lida Rogers

Albert C. Keppel School Forest on Lakewood Blvd., which she and her biology students helped develop through the years. This work was begun in the early 1930's and the 80-acre forest today boasts of a fine stand of trees.

It was in 1927 that Miss Rogers appeared before the Woman's Literary Club for an address entitled "Civic Beauty." At this time she suggested the city select a particular flower as a civic project and perhaps devote one day a year to a community celebration. In view of the fact that about 85 per cent of the residents were of Dutch extraction at that time, she suggested the tulip because of Holland's link to the Netherlands.

The immense gap between idea and action was bridged when Common Council with Ernest C. Brooks as mayor voted to buy 100,000 imported bulbs. By 1929, Tulip Time was announced to the world. In time it became a nine-day festival in the period close to the 15th of May. Since World War II it has operated as a four-day festival, incorporating all the attractions of the previous longer fetes.

Miss Rogers was born June 20, 1877, (she would be 86 next week) on a farm in Lenawee county and when she was three years old her family moved to Oceana county where she attended rural schools. She was graduated from Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti and taught in Oceana county schools and at Carthage, Ind., before coming to Holland around the early 1920's.

A secret desire to become a doctor did not materialize and Miss Rogers entered wholeheartedly into the "next best thing" and devoted her attention to biology and botany. Throughout the years she inspired her pupils to look for beauty in their surroundings, and to conserve the glories of nature.

Graduate studies at the University of Michigan and the University of Wisconsin and a trip abroad in 1923 combined with interests in educational fields provided a full life for the teacher who came to regard Holland, Mich., as her home. Besides her many professional interests, she was active in the local DAR chapter and in the Eastern Star.

In the 1930's she conceived the idea of a "Council for Civic Beauty" in Holland and with the help of the late Park Supt. Dick Smallenburg and city fathers launched a program largely geared to encouraging well kept yards, attractive plantings, with particular emphasis to landscaping at motels, service stations, and the like. While an admirer of beauty in parks, she nevertheless promoted and outdoor living.

In 1938, Miss Rogers was one of 12 persons nominated for "Michigan's Outstanding Woman" by the Grand Rapids Business and Professional Women's Club. At that time, her nomination carried the endorsement of Mayor Henry Geerlings, School Supt. E. E. Fell and Chamber of Commerce Manager William M. Connolly.

One of the last thrills Miss Rogers experienced was receiving a bouquet of tulips last month from Chamber of Commerce Secretary William H. Vande Water. At the time of the presentation May 15, a bed of tulips was in full bloom in the nursing home's yard clearly visible from Miss Rogers' window. The bulbs had been presented last fall by Holland Tulip Time Festival, Inc. Miss Rogers was granted an honorary degree of Master of Education by her alma mater, Michigan Normal College at Ypsilanti in 1951, now known as Eastern Michigan University. The school is the second oldest normal school for training teachers in the United States and the first west of the Allegheny mountains. Miss Rogers is survived by several nieces and nephews.

Complete 33 Conservation Plans in 1963

The West Ottawa Soil Conservation District has a total of 33 basic conservation plans completed in 1963. A more recent basic plan was completed on the Gordon Schreur farm by Vern Anderson, Soil Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service. Schreur is a cooperator of the district from Zeeland Township. He is following the basic objective of the district program which is the use of each acre of agricultural land within its capabilities, based on soils information, and the treatment of each acre according to its needs for protection and improvement.

On the Schreur farm when corn follows wheat, a green manure crop of sweet clover will be seeded with the wheat. The green manure crop will be plowed under with the wheat stubble. He recognizes that the silt loam soils on his farm have a high yield potential. A cover crop of sweet clover and domestic ryegrass will be broadcast during the last cultivation of corn to be plowed under the following spring. He likes cover crops on his slightly rolling land to protect the soil from erosion through the late fall and early spring. Adding organic matter is important to increase soil fertility.

Schreur practices minimum tillage. He comments that the soil structure isn't broken down. Less soil nutrients will be leached out. More oxygen will be held in the soil. The proper amount of soil oxygen is important for plant growth. He states that the soil will hold more moisture for plants to use during dry periods of the growing season when it is really needed.

Willard Antonides, Conservation Technician of the Soil Conservation Service, made a complete drainage survey of the farm. The completed design is planned to install some tile every year until the tiling is completed. An erosion hazard exists at the waterway outlet. An erosion control structure will be designed and constructed to prevent further erosion where the waterway outlets into the ditch.

Pasture planting for the livestock will be completed in the small odd shaped fields that are not economical to crop because of size. The plantings will increase the yield from three-fourths ton to three or four tons per acre.

Lime and fertilizer will be applied to all of the cropland and grassland according to results of soil tests taken.

The planned uses of a basic conservation plan will sometimes take years to complete. The major purpose of a plan is to help apply conservation practices to the land for protection against erosion. For more information on a plan for your land, contact the Soil Conservation Service at the Federal Building in Grand Haven.

Swimming Pool Vote To Be Called

Holland residents probably will vote soon on whether this city will have an outdoor swimming pool.

On motion of Councilman Richard W. Smith, City Council Wednesday night authorized drafting a resolution calling for a special election at the earliest possible time for an advisory referendum to build a swimming pool financed from funds now existing in the capital improvement fund of the city.

Smith said if the referendum is approved, plans should be completed and have everything set to go for next spring so that the pool can be in use next summer.

Recommendation for an outdoor pool came in a report from a citizens committee last February following many months of study. The committee recommended Prospect Park as the No. 1 site for such a pool, but also said Council should give consideration to more than one pool for the city. The committee consisted of two appointees from each ward. Ab Martin served as chairman.

A cost of $125,000 was indicated in the report. Architects Kammeraad and Stroop were retained to draw up preliminary plans which were presented to Council early in March.

It was pointed out that a public vote is not necessary for such a swimming pool, but following considerable opposition voiced when the 1963-64 budget was adopted early in May, Council at that time said no action would be taken without a fair expression by the people.

Smith said the special election should be held in all precincts. Estimated cost of such an election is $1,600.

The special election would be in the nature of a "straw vote" and would not be binding. No millage vote would be involved.

In its budget study this year, Council earmarked $275,000 in estimated Board of Public Works electric profits for the city. Of this amount, $175,000 was earmarked for the general fund and $100,000 for the capital improvements fund.

The public hearing May 1 resulted in a number of protests to placing $100,000 into the capital improvements fund, many persons feeling it should be placed in the general fund, thereby reducing the tax rate.

Community Ambassador Set to Leave

Holland's 1963 Community Ambassador, Judith Swieringa, will spend the summer living in Calcutta and Nagpur, India.

Miss Swieringa, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Swierenga of 369 Pine Ave., has been notified of the locations of her two "homestays" by The Experiment in International Living, administrators of the program.

The Holland Community Ambassador Association solicits funds from local service groups, church groups and individuals to pay for the Ambassador's trip.

Miss Swieringa reports July 5 to The Experiment's Brattleboro, Vt., headquarters "Sandana," for her five-day orientation period, before flying to India from New York.

She will be a member of a group of 11 Americans making the Calcutta and Nagpur tours. After the homestays, the group will travel around the country before returning to the U. S. early in September.

On her return, Miss Swieringa will maintain a schedule of speaking engagements, as she relates her experiences in India to the community. The Ambassador speaks to sponsoring service clubs and other organizations who help sponsor the trip. Other groups may also engage her as a speaker, through special arrangement with the Community Ambassador Association.

Acquaintance Month Opens In Allegan

ALLEGAN — This city promises to rival Philadelphia in brotherly love — at least beginning today to July 18 — when 33 local businesses will participate in a contest to determine the most courteous and service minded employers and employees in town. Residents will ballot and awards will be handed out during the week-long 125th anniversary celebration.

Mayor Marvin Hays has proclaimed the month-long period of the contest "Let's Get Acquainted Month," and asked that businesses cooperate in promoting hospitality and friendliness during that time.

More than 300 pictures of local businesses, their managers, owners and employees are to appear on the pages of an Allegan shopper's guide in a special issue coming out this week.

Mayor Hays commented that Allegan has long been known as a "friendly city," where "we are all good neighbors."

The mayor added however, that the coming contest will serve to "renew and strengthen old ties; to meet and come to know better the folks who come to Allegan to do business; and to thus develop a sincere, strong basis of friendship and make our city even more hospitable-minded." He further urged each citizen to greet each other with a smile, call each other by first name — and to make a special effort during the next few weeks to "become better acquainted with the folks around us."

Hospital Releases Man in Accident

Loren Howard, 42, of 41 East 28th St., was released from Holland Hospital after he was treated for multiple abrasions on the head, left arm and leg he received in a two-car accident at 16th St. and Lincoln Ave. at 9:30 a.m. today.

Floyd D. Zoerman, 29, of route 2, Felch St., complained of pain, but was not treated, Holland police said. Howard was a passenger in Zoerman's car.

Henry A. Kuhlreiter, 70, of 445 Maple St., Saugatuck, was issued a ticket by Holland police for disobeying a stop sign, after his car collided with the one driven by Zoerman.

Holland to Host Police Shoot-Off

BAY CITY (Special) — The Fraternal Order of Police Monday elected to hold their 1964 state pistol shoot off at the Holland police range.

Gene Geib, president of the Holland FOP, said the unanimous decision was made at the 24th annual convention being held in Bay City.

An estimated 175 to 200 police officers are expected to take part in the shoot usually held in late May or early June.

Robert J. Eastman, 20, of 214 Scott's Dr., lost the sight of both eyes as the result of a potassium chlorate explosion, Holland Hospital officials said Tuesday.

Eastman also received abrasions on the face, chest and left hand, but was in fairly good condition Tuesday, officials said. He was in surgery four hours after he was taken to the hospital Monday night by ambulance.

He was grinding about a quarter pound of potassium chlorate between two pieces of cement, Ottawa County sheriff deputies said, when the mixture exploded, striking him in the face and chest. He was in a bent-over position in the yard of the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Budd Eastman, when the explosion occurred.

Eastman was grinding the chemical to use in a rocket, deputies said. He has an interest in science and has been firing rockets for several years. Potassium chlorate is a highly explosive salt, is used in explosives, fireworks and matches.

Rates Boosted At Hospital

A rate increase for Holland Hospital effective July 1 was announced Wednesday by Hospital Director Frederick S. Burd.

According to action taken by the Hospital Board Tuesday afternoon, there will be an increase of $1.50 across the board for all daily service charges, formerly referred to as room rate. The increase will place new rates at $19 for wards, $21.50 for semi-private rooms, and $25 to $27 for private rooms.

Nursery care will be increased $1 a day, placing rates at $11 and $13 a day for babies. The higher rate is charged if babies are left in the hospital after the mothers go home.

Burd said the increases are necessitated by salary increases and adjustments, also effective July 1. This involves roughly a 5 per cent increase for all employees. Local hospital wages have been below those of neighboring hospitals, particularly in nursing salaries, Burd said.

He estimated the rate increase will yield an estimated $65,000 for next year. Direct cost increases are in the neighborhood of $71,000 according to the hospital budget.

2 Dogs Kill 64 Turkeys

Sheriff's officers late Tuesday afternoon completed an investigation into a turkey killing spree which occurred Monday night when two unknown dogs went on a rampage at Pine Creek Turkey Farm and left 64 turkeys dead or dying.

A claim for $233.60 was filed through the justice court of Wilbur E. Kouw and will be turned over to the Ottawa County Board of Supervisors. Losses in such cases when ownership of the dogs cannot be determined are paid out of a county fund financed through dog license fees.

Officers said the two dogs had got into the fenced pen of the turkeys.

BRIDGE SITE—This is the muck area on the Kalamazoo River just east of the Saugatuck-Douglas area which has required a later completion date for a five-mile stretch north of Saugatuck than the planned opening of the rest of I-96 this fall. The surcharge

(across the river) has just been added and must settle for 90 days before it can be leveled off and work resumed. When completed in 1964, a bridge will span the Kalamazoo River from the surcharge to this wooded area on the north side of the river. (Sentinel photo)

New Thermoelectric Plant In Operation in Holland

A new entry in the thermoelectric field has come to Holland, it was announced today by Clarence Jalving, president of the Holland Economic Development Corp.

The new company, known as Electrotherm Incorporated, is owned and managed by Clarence T. Clevenger, a native of Indiana. It is located at 302 East 19th St. Clevenger is a graduate of Indiana Institute of Technology and has a master's degree from Michigan State University. Following his graduation from Indiana Institute of Technology, he came to Holland for development work on thermoelectric cooling, temperature control and power generation devices.

Last fall he started the design of a thermoelectric hypo-hyperthermia and a thermoelectric blood heat exchanger. The hypo-hyperthermia is designed to control the temperature of the human body during and after surgery. The blood heat exchanger is used in conjunction with the heart-lung pump.

Later in 1962 the firm received its first order for an experimental thermoelectric hypo-hyperthermia. This machine was completed in early April and taken to the customor for tests and evaluation. Then returned to Holland for modification. After finalizing the design, the machine was shipped to the customer a few days ago.

The principal of electrotherm cooling involves no moving parts. It is a solid state electronic cooling apparatus and performs the operation of cooling or heating by means of a series of semi-conductor couples. When these couples are energized by an electrical current one side of the series will heat while the other side will cool. About 80 to 90 per cent of the parts that go into the end product which is produced in the local plant is jobbed out to other industries, both local and out of state.

Clevenger said his plant has a working agreement with Hope College physics department and the Indiana Institute of Technology for mutual research, development and testing of thermoelectric products. The plant currently is developing several other thermoelectric products, some of them to go into production.

Clevenger's wife, the former Norma McFall, is a native of Holland.

BREAKS ICE IN HARBOR — The U.S. Coast Guard cutter Escanaba, sunk by an explosion in the Atlantic Ocean June 13, 1943, is shown here in the early spring of 1941 breaking the ice in the Holland harbor channel. She was the fifth cutter and the 99th U.S. naval vessel lost in World War II. Word of the Escanaba's sinking was announced by the U.S. Navy Department June 18, 1943.

ESCANABA IN CAMOUFLAGE — While serving in World War II, the U.S. Escanaba looked like this. The picture was obtained by David Hoedema of 94 West 17th St., a Holland High School student, from the Ninth U.S. Coast Guard District in Cleveland. Hoedema provided The Sentinel with information about the sinking of the coast guard cutter 20 years ago Thursday. A ship enthusiast, Hoedema collects information and photographs on Great Lakes ships. Escanaba Sank 20 Years Ago

It was 20 years ago Thursday on June 13, 1943, the Escanaba was struck by a deadly missile and sank while on convoy duty in the North Atlantic killing 101 men.

Well-known in Holland, the ship had been a Coast Guard cutter assigned to Grand Haven for 10 years before leaving March 7, 1942 for escort duty during World War II.

The Escanaba visited Holland many times breaking ice in the winter and tying up here during Tulip Time while its crew marched in the festival parades. She also was docked here for July 4 celebrations.

Best remembered for her ice-breaking work, the 165-foot Escanaba with only 1,500 horsepower, opened vital lake ports and channels each spring. The Mackinaw, presently used for icebreaking, has 10,000 horse power.

The ship had a 36-foot beam and a draft of 13'7" and was built at the Defoe Ship Yards in Bay City in 1932. She was one of six gunboat class sisters built between 1932 and 1934. The Escanaba made its maiden voyage Dec. 9, 1942 and weighed 718 tons.

Two survived the sinking of the Escanaba and eyewitnesses reported a violent underwater explosion "literally blew the cutter from the sea."

One survivor, Boatswain's Mate Raymond F. O'Malley, who had been steering the ill-fated ship, remembered hearing what he thought was machine gun fire from one of the Escanaba's after gun stations about 5 a.m.

This incident brought the officer of the deck and commanding officer Lieutenant Commander Carl Uno Peterson into the wheelhouse. It was at that moment, O'Malley reported, that the ship was rocked with the explosion.

He only had time to tie two top strings on his lifejacket and force open the starboard door of the wheelhouse before he was washed overboard.

The other survivor, Boatswain's Mate Melvin Baldwin, said he had retired to his quarters on the berth deck, two decks below the main deck, after coming off watch at midnight.

Baldwin said the explosion knocked him out of his bunk and the room was filled with black smoke. The deck was awash with several inches of fuel oil. Baldwin climbed the ladder exit, grabbed his lifejacket, raced up through the mess deck and noticed fire spreading in several places. He reported dozens of men were trapped below deck.

The water hit Baldwin from behind and he was sucked under until the pressure hurt his ears but was kept afloat by the lifejacket. He held on to what appeared to be a strongback until he was picked up by the cutter Raritan.

Witnesses from other ships in the convoy said only a minute lapsed between the explosion and the sinking while others held it was seconds rather than a full minute. Cause of the explosion was never determined. It may have been a torpedo or a mine.

The rigged mast, life-boat raft and other rigging of the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Escanaba were given to the City of Grand Haven and placed as a memorial in Grand Haven. Dedication of the memorial took place May 30, 1944.

Grand Haven residents purchased more than $1,000,000 in war bonds in 1943 to build another ship to bear the name Escanaba.

BORING FOR MUCK—Crewmen of the Carl Goodwin & Sons Construction Co. of Allegan make wash-boring tests on the sand surcharge and base covering the muck area by the Kalamazoo River in Allegan County to determine how deep the sand base has settled. Water washes the sand up through a pipe, and the crewmen bore until they hit muck. In this instance, they bored 48 feet through sand before hitting muck. Here, the water has washed down the side of the surcharge onto surrounding muck. The surcharge will eventually be the south base for a bridge spanning the Kalamazoo River on the new I-96 freeway from Holland to Benton Harbor. (Sentinel photo)

Most of I-96 Open This Fall

All of the new I-96 freeway from Holland to Benton Harbor is scheduled to open this fall, except for a five-mile stretch north of the Saugatuck Douglas area, Bill Kasip, road project engineer of the Michigan State Highway district office, said Friday.

The five-mile stretch should be ready for traffic June, 1964. It will take from six months to a year more to complete construction in that area, Kasip said, because of the extra work entailed with a muck hole on the Kalamazoo River just east of Saugatuck.

Work on the muck area is not being delayed, he said; it is only taking longer to complete the job. An earlier start on that area, he said, probably was not possible because the contract for the complete freeway was made at one time.

The addition of sand over the muck area was completed this week by the Carl Goodwin & Construction Co. of Allegan.

They must now wait at least 90 days for the sand to slowly sink into the muck and force it aside before they can resume working in the area.

The sand, or surcharge, stretches 1,000 feet out into the muck area on the south side of the Kalamazoo River. Average depth is 50 feet.

I-96 is scheduled to be finished this fall, with the paving of the freeway beginning in August. Because of the later completion date of the bridge spanning the Kalamazoo River, traffic will have to be detoured back onto US-31 for a five mile stretch north of Saugatuck. I-96 will junction back to US-31 five miles south of Holland where the two highways will intersect and back again to I-96 south of Douglas until the five-mile stretch is completed.

Goodwin crewmen have been making wash-boring tests on the surcharge this week to determine how deep the sand has sunk into the muck. The average depth was 50 feet.

When completed, the surcharge, or sand above the river level, will be the south base for the bridge spanning the Kalamazoo River. Although the freeway will be concrete, Kasip said, the stretch above the surcharge will be blacktopping.

The sand was laid on top the muck, sometimes as high as 80 feet above the river level, according to Frank Goodwin of Goodwin & Sons. The dense gravity of the sand forces the muck out from beneath it, and as it sinks, more sand is rolled onto the base.

Although most of the freeway will rest on a solid foundation of 50 feet of sand in the muck area, a short distance near the river will be "floating" on a thinner layer of sand, Kasip said. Settling is eventually expected, and the blacktopping will be covered with asphalt.

Construction of the overpass just south of Douglas is further developed than those just south of Holland. Crewmen were scheduled to lay concrete Monday on the overpass. Sand has also been laid for the exits and entrances which will connect US-31 and I-96.

The Japanese call their country Nippon, which means "home of the sun."

The afternoon ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Stull, St. Clair Shores, brother-in-law of the groom and the Rev. Fred Ligteneer, Mrs. L. E. Lake was the organist.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of French silk chiffon over taffeta fashioned with a fitted sleeveless bodice topped with a scoop neckline and a waist-length chantilly lace jacket with elbow length sleeves. Fastened to her pearl tiara was a fingertip veil of Swiss illusion. She carried white carnations and roses in a colonial arrangement.

Miss Kay Keefer, Three Oaks, was the maid of honor and Rebecca Ann Koosterhouse, sister of the bride, was the junior bridesmaid. Their dresses were of pink tulle. A headpiece of a single large pink rose, with net shoulder-length veils of the same color completed their costumes.

any time of the year. It goes: "Today my daughter, who is seven years old, started to school as usual. She wore a dark blue dress with a white collar. She had on black shoes and wore blue gloves. Her cooer spaniel, whose name is Coot, sat on the front porch and whined his canine belief in the folly of education as she waved good-bye and started off to the hall of learning."

"Tonight we talked about school. She told me about the girl who sits in front of her, the girl with yellow curls, and the boy across the aisle who makes funny faces. She told about her teacher, who has eyes in the back of her head, and the trees in the school yard, and about the big girl who doesn't believe in Santa Claus. We talked about a lot of things — tremendously vital unimportant things, and then we studied spelling, reading, arithmetic — and then to bed."

"You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see, I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger is cut or her head gets bumped, I can fix it — but when she starts to school, when she walks across the street, then she's in your hands."

"She's a nice kid. She can run like a deer and dart about like a chipmunk."

"She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time; I have to work to pay for her clothes and her education. So please help me look out for her. Please drive slowly past schools and intersections — and please remember that children run from behind parked cars."

"Please don't run over my little girl."

LIDA ROGERS

The city of Holland owes a debt of gratitude for its nationally known Tulip Festival and much of its civic beauty to the efforts of Miss Lida Rogers who died last Friday.

An adopted daughter of Holland, Miss Rogers came to this city in the early 1920's and began campaigning early for programs of civic beauty. It was through her intense interest in her adopted city that she conceived the idea of a tulip festival. In 1927 she addressed the Woman's Literary Club on the topic of "Civic Beauty" and suggested that the city adopt the tulip as its flower and hold a one-day tulip festival each year. With the help of city fathers and the people of the community the idea became a reality.

The Albert C. Keppel School Forest on Lakewood Blvd. stands as a monument to this long-time biology teacher and her pupils and to the unflagging interest which she showed in her chosen field and her home town.

Many of the men's clubs will remember this school forest and the many days spent in tree planting. This has grown to a place where many people who helped can look with pride at the accomplishment and think back to the woman who had the idea.

In 1938 Miss Rogers was honored by being nominated for the title of Michigan's Outstanding Woman. She was well-known by thousands of people in the field of education as well as the people of this community.

Many articles have appeared about Miss Rogers over her long and useful life. Holland could use more civic-minded people like her, and the city will certainly feel this loss.

Lida Rogers is gone now, but lasting monuments to her full and active life and to her great contributions to the city of Holland continue to live.

God in His World

Psalm 19:1-6; 95:1-7

By C. P. Dame

The world in which we live is God's for He created it. Many people seem never to think of God as Creator and the Sovereign Ruler of this universe. Those who recognize Him feel accountable to Him, while those who slight Him have no sense of obligation.

I. This universe reveals God. Psalms 19 and 95 tell us much about God. Psalm 19 is divided in two parts. The first six verses speak of the power and majesty of God. The second part, verses 7-14 is composed of two sections — vv. 7-11, speak of the glory and grandeur of God's law and vv. 12-14 is a prayer for pardon and preservation.

The Old Testament identifies Israel's Lawgiver with the Creator of this universe — see Amos 4:13 and 5:7,8. God reveals Himself in two ways — through nature and through His Word. Some people like to speak of God's two books — the Book of Nature and the Book of Grace. The first book speaks of His power and wisdom, the other one of His Grace, which offers us pardon and forgiveness.

The heavens continuously declare God's glory so that the godly and the godless observe it. Day and night they speak of God. The message of the heavens is universal. "Their line is gone through all the earth."

David singles out the sun as the foremost witness of God's glory and compares its coming forth morning by morning to a bridegroom who in the joy of youth goes forth to face the tasks of the day. Light and heat are felt the world over.

The Psalmist was not a scientist but a worshipper. He marvelled at the way this universe was put together — some modern scientists do likewise. This universe reveals divine wisdom.

II. God deserves man's worship. Psalm 95 is composed of two parts — an invitation to worship and a warning against disobedience. Millions of people never worship God. The Psalmist extends an invitation to worship — to sing, to make a joyful noise, to come before Him with thanksgiving and to do all with enthusiasm.

In many church services warmth and enthusiasm are absent. What can we do in order to have more of it in all our church gatherings?

The Psalmist served a great God who he calls "A Great King." He controls all nature. It is most fitting that we who are His creatures should worship Him. "O come let us worship and bow down." Worship is man's noblest act. It is tragic that so little time is spent in worship by the majority of people.

It is especially fitting that God's people whom the writer calls "the people of His pasture" and "the sheep of His hand" should adore and worship God, their Creator and Redeemer. They worship God the best who make preparations for this holy act.

Quartet Sets Out On Alaska Trip

"Everybody wanted a front seat," was the explanation given by Delwyn Ter Beek in describing the unusual design of the vehicle in which four Holland youths hope to travel to Alaska.

Ter Beek, 20, of 238 Arthur Ave., his brother, Eric, 18, Jim McBride, 16, of 293 Elm St., and Dave Beyer, 17, of 128 West 19th St., left Friday afternoon for Whitehorse, Yukon Territory, Canada where they will begin a 400-mile canoe trip down the Yukon River to Dawson City. From there the boys plan to motor through Alaska visiting Anchorage, Fairbanks and Mt. McKinley National Park.

The adventurers have christened their "truck" the "Green Monster." They have been working on the truck since the beginning of May and estimated they have spent $250 on the venture.

The truck used on the lower half of the vehicle has been equipped with a rebuilt motor, while the truck used for the top deck was "stripped down to the frame."

Each of the boys will carry on his back a two-week food supply and other supplies including tents, sleeping bags, and cooking kits. The boys are also packing two rifles in case they encounter any grizzlies.

They plan to be back in Holland by Sept. 1.

Ottawa County Farm News

Ottawa Farm News
By Richard Machiele
Extension Agent, Agriculture

We are looking for farm couples between the ages of 30 and 50 who are free to travel for a period of time, however there is one stipulation that the husband should be bilingual in that he can speak the Holland language. One requirement is that he be American-born but of Dutch descent. If there are any such couples in the county who might be interested in the anticipated project, we would like to hear from them as soon as possible.

It was of real interest to find that Ottawa County ranked in the top 100 counties in the United States in several enterprises, according to the last U.S. census. Here are the items listed by the census: 41st in poultry production; 61st in dozens of eggs sold; 45th in turkeys raised; 17th in turkey hens kept for breeding; 87th in value of poultry and poultry products sold; 36th in dry onions harvested for sale; 45th in apple trees bearing and non-bearing; 96th in peach production; 54th in pears; 64th in plums and prunes; 48th in cherries; 93rd in strawberries. This gives a rather high rating. If all states would average 50 counties per state this would mean there are between 2500-3000 counties in the country.

It might be of interest to note that in the recent wheat referendum the final vote was 595,851 "No" 545,776 "Yes".

The annual swine type conference is planned for Saturday, July 13, at the Charlotte fair grounds. This is a conference planned by the Michigan Swine Breeders Association. The conference begins at 9:30 with registration for judging competition in the junior, men's and women's division. This should be a real good program for anyone interested in purebred swine production, so plan to attend. Also a pre-announcement is made of the annual Michigan swine day program to be held Saturday, Sept. 21.

A tour of swine facilities, observing of experimental lots, followed by a discussion in the afternoon of the experiments and at 3 p.m. there will be a sale of performance tested boars and gilts. Be sure to mark these two dates on your calendar.

Here is an item for egg producers. Michigan only produces about one-half of the eggs consumed in the state according to Michigan State University extension service poultry specialists.

In a recent study made by Michigan State University it was found that dairy farmers with 20 to 40 cows would find it more profitable to continue grazing herds rather than harvesting and hauling feed to dry lot.

Use of agricultural airplanes for aerial pest control, weed control and fertilization adds an estimated $3 billion to the United States farm income each year.

Judith Essenburgh, 18, Miss Holland for 1963

Judith Lynn Essenburgh, 18, of 720 Joyce Ave., was crowned Miss Holland before 1,400 spectators in the Civic Center Saturday night. She will now compete for the Miss Michigan title in Muskegon July 8, 4 and 5.

Her court consisted of:

First runner up, Lois Jane Dirkse, 18, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Dirkse of 1967 South Shore Dr.

Second runner up, Lois Anne Heidema, 21, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Heidema of 908 East Eighth St.

Third runner up, Kristi Ann Venhuizen, 17, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Venhuizen of 730 Harrison Ave.

Fourth runner up, Ellen Sue Loewy, 18, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Loewy of 215 West 13th St.

Miss Michigan, Carole Jean Van Valin of Roscommon presented each finalist with a trophy and Miss Essenburgh was crowned the new Miss Holland by Elisabeth Clark, Miss Holland of 1962.

Meta Raad, the 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Raad, of 15519 Riley St., was voted Miss Congeniality by the other 12 contestants and presented a trophy by Miss North Ottawa County, Lynn Sanders.

In answer to a question by the judges, Miss Essenburgh told the audience that her ultimate goal in life was to "make my parents proud of me." She had already started when she was named Holland before 1,400 spectators in the Civic Center Saturday night. She was a step closer to her goal as Miss Holland for 1963.

After the four runners up had been announced, Miss Essenburgh was crowned and presented with a trophy and bouquet of roses. And with the faintest hint of tears of happiness in her eyes, she paraded down the boardwalk before the audience and in a hazy trance, walked back to her throne.

Each of the contestants had gone through four hours of modeling evening gowns and swimming suits and displaying their talent. In addition, the five finalists were asked two questions before the judges made their final decision.

Each finalist was asked: What would you do if you walked into a restaurant and saw your steady boy friend with another girl? And: What is your ultimate aim in life?

Miss Essenburgh answered: "I would make it obvious I saw him and then go to the nearest boy and ask him to play along with me just for a minute."

And for the second question, she answered:

"My ultimate goal in life is to make my parents proud of me. It is hard in this age," she continued, "but I hope I can do it."

Miss Heidema's answer to the first question received a large applause from the audience.

"It would make a difference what he was eating," she said, jokingly. "But," she said, "hoping for the best, I would pull up a chair and join them."

In displaying her talent, Miss Essenburgh did an original interpretive dance of a girl at the grave of her young lover. Using the theme music from "Exodus," she "stabs" herself and asks for forgiveness before a Christian cross used in the dance.

Miss Essenburgh, who has blonde hair and blue eyes, is five feet, two and a half inches tall. She was graduated from Holland High School in June.

As Miss Holland, she will receive two $100 scholarships from the parent sponsor, the Jaycees, and from the Jaycees Auxiliary. She also will receive an evening gown for the Miss Michigan pageant, an oil portrait, a case of soft drinks a week for six months and numerous other items.

Miss Dirkse and Miss Heidema as first and second runners up, each will receive $25 cash.

The pageant ran smoothly Saturday night except for several interruptions "due to mechanical difficulties" with a record player the contestants used for their talent performances. George Lumsden as master of ceremonies and Mrs. Jean Engelsman as organist, however, came to the contestants aid.

West Ottawa Accredited By U. of M.

West Ottawa High School has been accepted by the University of Michigan School Services in Ann Arbor, Supt. Lloyd Van Raalte informed the West Ottawa Board of Education Monday night. This means any recommended graduate of West Ottawa may enter a state university or college without taking an entrance exam, and also makes a graduate eligible to compete for University of Michigan scholarships.

The following teachers have been invited to join the Junior-Senior High School staff: Roger Borr, junior high counselor; Karen George, oral English; Howard Updegraff, senior high band; Kent De Jong, English, forensics and debate. Mrs. Eva Hilmer is being transferred to junior high to conduct special education classes. In the elementary area, contracts were extended to Mrs. Emily Mow to teach in Glerum School and Mrs. Marilyn Slickers who will teach in Pine Creek School. Mrs. Barbara Klaasen will be visiting teacher.

A partial leave of absence was granted Dan Paul to enable him to accept a fellowship from Western Michigan University to complete work on a specialist degree in curriculum development.

Mrs. Bobbie Boer gave a demonstration in developmental reading to the board, showing how students at the beginning of the 10-week course can read 240 words a minute with good comprehension, and how this increases to 300 words per minute with perfect comprehension at the close of the course. The board discussed the feasibility of using such reading machines from the fourth through the 12th grades with adult classes a possibility next year.

Concerned with developing a uniformly good reading program throughout the district, the board decided to underwrite an inservice reading program for all elementary school teachers under the auspices of Western Michigan University. Dan Paul outlined the program which offers two hours of graduate credit.

With passage of the bond issue last week for elementary school improvements, the board issued a final invitation to anyone interested in serving on an advisory committee for the elementary building program. Persons interested should call the superintendent's office.

Exchange Club Holds Meeting

The speaker at Monday's luncheon meeting for the Holland Exchange Club was Fred F. Plimton, director of passenger transportation of TWA. He was introduced by vice president, Jim Brown. His talk dealt with reasons for many misconceptions concerning Americans that are prevalent among many of the nations of the world.

The speaker said "there is great need at the present time for clear thinking and plain talking to correct the false picture other peoples have of us. There are three landmarks in history for western Europe and the so-called Western World. These three are the Reformation, the French revolution and the Industrial revolution. These have given us a different cultural background than that of the rest of the world."

Plimton said "one of the terms used by us that needs defining is 'free enterprise.' Is it free and do our friends overseas think it is? Since 1890 we have continually added controls. What we really have is private controlled enterprise. We have accepted the fact that some control is necessary. Because we do not admit that our enterprise is controlled it is easier for the Communists to sell their ideology."

"Another abused word is 'capitalism.' Between taxes and competition the old idea of capitalism is impossible. If we told the world what our capitalism really is, Russia could not convince anyone that it is dangerous."

"Material progress is another phase of our culture not understood by other nations. No other nation has done so much for the world since 1920 as has the United States. High sums have been and are now being spent to help underdeveloped nations get on their feet."

"Our nation is the best example of what can result when people work together. The feeling that we should be loyal to the group or company for which we work is unique with us."

"Our failure to clear up the muddled picture the nations outside of the Western World, has lost for us one country per year for the last 15 years. This could be prevented if we but have the courage to think clearly, speak plainly, fear God, and make a modest profit."

Plimton said.

Gala Premiere Launches New Season at Red Barn

The Red Barn Theatre near Saugatuck launched its seventh season with a gala premiere Saturday night, opening with Jan de Hartog's popular "The Fourposter," a highly polished comedy featuring two durable regulars, Dorothy Lee Tompkins and Bruce Hall.

It was the first time Producer-Director James Dyas did appear in the years he operated the summer theatre at Saugatuck. Six years ago he closed his first season in 1957 with "The Fourposter" at that time featuring his wife, Miss Tompkins, and Tom Rosqui.

The leading lady, appearing no older than she did in 1957, and her leading man, Bruce Hall, one of the brighter lights in the Dyas company the last several years, showed great perception in interpreting their roles which spanned 35 years of marriage.

It was evident they were given considerable freedom in this interpretation since their fights were more athletic, their quiet moments more tender and their scenes of minor irritations more dramatic than productions by many another company. That their efforts were thoroughly appreciated was evidenced in the roars of approving laughter from a full house.

A well designed set by Don Weber and effective lighting by Jim Mitchell provided an excellent setting for the comedy which started with the wedding night and went through eight scenes of comedy plus trials and tribulations, the canopy of the fourposter and changes in furniture and furnishings reflecting the economic changes of the household. Costumes by Janice Music were particularly well chosen. From wedding gown to the "smart" styles of the mid-twenties, Miss Tompkins' wardrobe as well as night shirts and high collars worn by Bruce Hall, were geared to the period.

Since "The Fourposter" had only a two-member cast, the opening play gave little opportunity as a showcase for the talents of Dyas' 1963 company. Besides Miss Tompkins and Hall, the company lists such seasoned performers as William Cain, and Don Bonevich, plus newcomers Anna Marie Stremese and Margaret Owens Henry. The latter will be conducting a student theatre at the Red Barn this summer. Her husband, H. John Henry, new to the company last year, is serving as business manager this year.

"The Fourposter" will continue its run each night this week at 8:30 p.m. through Saturday, with a matinee at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday. Opening for a week's run Monday, June 24, will be the comedy, "Sunday in New York."

formed Church and Mrs. Milton Steketee, Sixteenth Street Christian Reformed Church.

Placement Service Places 50 Teens

Approximately 50 young people have been placed in jobs through the aid of the Holland Youth Placement Service. Since the registration began Wednesday, 325 young people have applied to the service. The service is conducted by the Education Committee of the Holland Chamber of Commerce.

Baby sitting and gardening jobs have been found in Macatawa Park, Rose Park and West Ottawa. Jobs found in Holland range from jobs in restaurants and stores to baby sitting and lawn work.

The service makes no pay arrangement for the prospective employee. Such arrangements are to be worked out between the employer and employee.

William H. Vande Water, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said that the initial registration ends Saturday noon. However, those wishing to apply to the service at a later time can do so at the Chamber of Commerce office in Hotel Warm Friend.

Vande Water hopes that the service can continue through the school year. "It all depends on the interest of the local people," he said.
