Continue Dragging For Body Missing In Channel Area

The body of 16-year-old William West of Memphis, Tenn., still was not recovered at 2 p.m. Monday after the youthful vacationer died by drowning in the Lake Michigan channel late Sunday afternoon.

Young West was swimming with a companion in a restricted area when caught by a current that carried him into the swiftly running channel. The mishap occurred at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, at about the same spot where a young Grand Rapids girl was drowned last summer.

West and his companion, George Goodspeed, 17, of 1224 Alexander St., Grand Rapids, were trying to swim from Ottawa Beach to the north pier, according to the report of Coroner Gilbert Vande Water. Goodspeed was ahead of West when he noticed him caught in the current and headed toward the channel. Goodspeed told the coroner that when he heard West call for help he turned around and swam back to his friend, holding him above water.

A cruiser entering the channel, the High Timer owned by Pete Van Domelen of Holland, threw a kapok cushion and lifebelt on a line to the two youths, Vande Water said. Goodspeed got the cushion under West's arms but lost his grip on the boy when he reached for the lifebelt, he told Vande Water.

West went under then, and Goodspeed dived after him several times without success. West was reported to be a poor swimmer.

Coast Guardsmen, alerted by the lookout in the tower, arrived on the scene and immediately started dragging operations. Ottawa Deputy Clayton Forry and park official Jim Brooks worked from another boat, and park life-guard Bob Burton assisted from still another boat from the state park.

Park Manager Clare Broad pointed out that the two youths were swimming in an area posted as restricted. He said park guards had assisted swimmers from the area earlier in the afternoon.

The water was a warm 65 degrees and attracted a fairly large crowd of swimmers throughout the day, Broad said.

Young West was vacationing with his friend Goodspeed in Grand Rapids, and his family also was staying in Grand Rapids at the time. Survivors include the mother, Mrs. Elizabeth West, and three brothers, James, John and Richard. They were staying with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Houseman, 35 Park Hills Dr., SE. Their home address in Memphis is 3189 Northwood Dr.

Listed as witnesses to the tragedy were Frank Hopple, Jr., of Grandville and Frank Peck of Grand Rapids, who were on the pier. Both came to the scene to offer assistance.

Mrs. Ruth Overway and her VFW auxiliary group served the bean supper for the Military Orders of Serpents and Lizards Tuesday night in connection with the state USWV convention.

Man Dies While Fishing On Grand Haven Pier

Grand Haven (Special) — Guy Nelles, 64, of 2300 Lake Michigan Dr., Grand Rapids, died of a heart attack at 7 a.m. Tuesday while fishing. He was sitting near the headlight on the north pier when he toppled over on the cement portion of the pier. Coast Guardsmen at first thought it was a drowning and immediately went to the scene. It was learned that he had had a cup of coffee just before, also that he had been suffering from a heart condition previous to today. He had recently returned from Texas.

The body was taken to the Van Zantwick funeral home and later transferred to the Hildreth funeral home in Grandville.

He is survived by a sister. He was accompanied on his anticipated fishing trip by C. S. Nordberg of 2214 Lake Michigan Dr.

The 19 teams who shot also posted their scores as qualifying rounds. The top seven teams were grouped in class A, the next six in class B and the final six in class C. This will be the division for the rest of the summer.

Grand Rapids No. 3 team posted top score with 1,120 out of possible 1,200. Holland's No. 1 team of Ralph Woldring, Dennis Ende and Ernest Bear was fifth in line with 1,008.

Area Residents Placed on Guard Against Gypsies

Residents of the Holland area, particularly rural residents, were warned today to be on the lookout for a carload of gypsies who have been victimizing citizens in Western Michigan for the past few weeks.

The roaming party, including two women and one man in a large black car, stole a wallet from an Olive township man containing $131 in cash.

Sheriff's officers said the gypsies approached the man, saying they were Spanish, and offered to buy his farm. After talking real estate for a while, they invited the man to have his fortune told. They told his fortune and added to their own at the same time, officers said, by lifting his wallet.

Another ruse used often is to offer massage treatment for arthritis, rheumatism, sciatica and other ailments. While massaging, the gypsies also have been picking pockets. They promise to return in 30 days for another "treatment" but fail to show up again, officers said.

The Olive township man registered the first complaint received here so far, but the gypsies have been known to be active in other parts of Western Michigan.

Police said that if any residents run into these people they should inform the officers of their whereabouts and also note the license number of the car.

Officers especially warned elderly people about contact with the roamers.

Water Treatment Will Start Soon

Plans are progressing for treating rusty water in Holland with "Calgon." Common Council was informed Wednesday night.

City Manager H. C. McClintock told council that most of the equipment necessary to put the treatment in operation has arrived but certain minor parts have been on order for 90 days and are expected soon.

George H. Rendleman, superintendent of the Board of Public Works, said today that he expects equipment will be installed and treatment started by July 10. He warned that results could not be expected overnight and said it might be some time before rusty water is eliminated.

Water bills mailed this week also follow new rates adopted some time ago, taking into consideration the new treatment to be used. Minimum rate for householders now is $2.40, compared with $1.50 for the three-month period formerly.

City Manager Harold C. McClintock said Holland was in need of a new building code and cited some model codes which might cover the situation. Building Inspector Joseph Shashagay said Holland's old building code did not meet the needs of modern construction.

The emergency ordinance, known as ordinance No. 416, is an amendment to No. 368 establishing a fire district in Holland, and the specifications are limited to construction of that particular corner. It was drafted during the meeting by City Attorney O. S. Cross.

Sodium Fluoride Clinic Operating

Sodium fluoride dental clinics are in operation in Holland again this summer and about 500 children in the second and fifth grades are taking advantage of the program. During the last few months, all children in the second and fifth grades in suburban and rural areas were contacted and about 300 signed up for the program. The other 200 come from city schools.

These treatments, which consist of four applications of sodium fluoride to the teeth, two to four days apart with a preliminary cleaning at the first visit, are endorsed by the Ottawa County Dental association which has a representative visiting the clinic at various intervals during the summer.

Experiments show that sodium fluoride applications decrease decay about 40 per cent. However, a balanced diet, decreased consumption of sweets, and periodic visits to the family dentist for cleaning of the teeth and immediate care of cavities are essential to good sound teeth.

The clinic is being held at Washington school, Room 9. Although more children than could be accommodated requested treatment in June, appointment cards will be sent to every child as soon as possible, and as close to requested dates as can be arranged.

William Gregory, senior dental student at the University of Michigan, is in charge of the clinic, and Mary Madison is assisting as clerk.

Planning Group To Absorb Work Of Appeal Board

Only Resident Members To Assume New Duties, City Council Decides

Members of the Holland Planning commission who live in Holland city will hereafter serve as a Board of Appeals, it was decided by Common Council Wednesday night.

Legality of the appeal board had been in question in connection with the city charter, and City Attorney O. S. Cross ruled two weeks ago that Council had three choices. Council itself might act as an appeal board, the planning commission might act as the appeal board, or Council might appoint a board.

Alderman Robert Visscher, recently appointed to the commission representing Council, suggested that the planning commission serve as the appeal board inasmuch as the board is regulating all such matters. Alderman Rein Visscher amended the suggestion to include only resident members. Such members are Mrs. William Winter, Jacob Zuidema, Robert Visscher, Henry S. Maentz and Mayor Harry Harrington.

On the matter of the harbor board, council considered the status of this board which had been tabled until this meeting and decided to table indefinitely the matter of any appointments. The city attorney previously had ruled that the board had no legal basis under the new charter, but suggested that the functions could be absorbed by the City of Holland Authority.

City Manager H. C. McClintock presented a report regarding smoke complaint in connection with Baker Furniture plant at 24th St. and Columbia Ave., summarizing clauses in other smoke abatement ordinances. He stated he had conferred with Hollis M. Baker and explained new equipment which had been installed and the firing procedure to be followed, thereby minimizing the nuisance in the future.

General city claims for the two weeks amounted to $36,286.42. Other claims include library, $482.10; hospital, $23,509.39; Board of Public Works, $80,490.73. The city treasurer reported May collections of $78,942.21. The BPW reported collections for the month of $463,002.67, which included $298,021.06 from sale of securities.

The city manager reported rapid progress in the 1952 paving program. He said by the end of next week virtually all curb and gutter work will be completed. All excavations have been completed and most road beds had been graded. City Engineer Jacob Zuidema also provided further information on developments and estimated the project will be completed by Labor Day. McClintock said paving costs were about $11,000 cheaper than last year, laying this to the fact that specifications were completed much earlier and the Holland job was among the early ones offered to contractors for bids. Otherwise, labor costs were no lower than last year.

McClintock said initial plans to resurface River Ave. have been delayed because the state is considering widening Michigan Ave. south from 19th St.

The city manager also was instructed to confer with the police chief on possibilities of cracking down on large trucks which operate in Holland city without mufflers. Heavy River Ave. truck traffic has been particularly annoying to council on many occasions.

Shanor is alleged to have stolen two tires from parked vehicles at Turk's Tavern early Saturday morning, at Nunica.

David N. De Satterlee, 19, Grand Rapids charged with disorderly conduct upon complaint of Louis Haney, park superintendent, was arraigned before Justice Hoffer Monday, pleaded guilty and paid $15 fine and $7.95 costs. DeSatterlee is alleged to have been drinking beer on the street, among other things, Saturday night at the state park, and was taken into custody about 9 p.m. Saturday. He spent the week-end in the county jail.

Wolverine Boys' State is not a school room activity but is designed as a practical experience for boys who attend in the problems of self government as operated in Michigan. Boys put into actual practice the theories of American government as taught in the classroom through the actual control of city, county and state offices as organized under plans of the mythical 48th state. It is a program to develop leadership as well as good citizenship.

On arrival, each boy is assigned to a city and will have a permanent residence in that city for the entire period. He will be assigned to one of the two political parties and will be identified with that party until after elections when the entire program will be conducted on a non-partisan basis.

The 1952 enrollment is limited to 1,000 boys. Most meetings will be held in Jensen fieldhouse. The program is sponsored by the American Legion, but patriotic and civic organizations interested in a better citizenry are co-operating with the Legion.

Delegates are invited to bring with them musical instruments to form a band. Glee clubs and quartets also are organized. These groups perform at various assemblies.

Allegan Schools Ordered to Repair All Fire Hazards

Allegan (Special) — State fire marshal reports have put Allegan county school boards in a tizzy.

The Allegan district board was given 30 days to comply with changes which members estimate will cost more than $25,000. Changes were ordered at South Ward school, where an addition is in progress, and at the old North Ward building.

The board has indicated it will comply immediately with changes ordered at South Ward—which are not extensive—but hopes to reach a compromise agreement on the North Ward school.

The fire marshal warned use of the North Ward school must stop if the present boiler is not replaced with a new one and moved to a new building, outside the school. Direct exits must be built for each of the first floor rooms; main doors replaced and anti-panic hardware installed. Worn brick must be repaired and the four-foot parapet wall must be replaced. Replacement of several windows also was ordered.

Removal of dust and debris in the boiler room and lower halls, re-charging of fire extinguishers and removal of two radiators near the main exits also were ordered. Board members agreed to start immediately on the minor items and offered to abandon the room over the boiler room, the ceiling of which they propose to sheath with sheet iron.

A joint meeting of the board and Deputy Fire Marshall Walter Burns of Paw Paw will be sought sometime in July. Burns made the original inspections.

At South Ward school, Burns ordered installation of a class A fire door between the old and new buildings and a bricking up of other connective openings. A fire door also must be installed between the boiler room and school, equipped with an automatic self-closing device. The board also was ordered not to convert the present hand-fired boiler to automatic gas as long as it is located beneath a classroom.

County Superintendent of Schools G. Ray Sturgis said main recommendations for several rural schools is the removal of out-moded ventilation flues incorporated into chimneys. Installation of efficient exits from classrooms and fireproof roofs have been ordered in many cases.

Sturgis reports several rural schools have major construction programs underway.

Local Nine Drops League Contest At Grand Haven

Grand Haven (Special)—A ninth inning rally that produced four runs provided the difference as the Grand Haven Athletics ripped the Holland Flying Dutchmen 5-4 in a Southwestern Michigan Baseball league game played here Friday evening.

A bases-loaded triple by third baseman Pat Kamhout with two down followed by a Dutch error allowed the winning runs to score, destroying a 4-1 Dutch lead.

Holland scored its first rally in the third on a walk, sacrifice and Athletic error. Three more scored in the seventh on singles by Morris Witteveen and Tony Wentzel and a home run by Whitey Witteveen.

Grand Haven pecked away at this lead with a single tally in the eighth on a single by Glenn Dobson, walk and single by Emory Holzinger.

In the fateful ninth, the first man went out on an infield roller, but pinchhitter Ray Hartz reached first when hit by a pitched ball. Two walks loaded the bases but pinchhitter Tom Puleo struck out. Then Kamhout lined his blow to center driving in three runs. On an attempt to get Kamhout at third, the ball got past the infield and the husky Athletic streaked home with the victory.

Holland outlived the winners 9-5, with Tony Wentzel contributing three singles and a double. Clare Van Lierse was the losing pitcher, and Ken Clark the winner. Each struck out eight and walked six.

Lieut. Col. Wilber K. Anderson, post chaplain, Fort Monroe, performed the single ring ceremony.

The quaint Chapel of the Centurion, one of the historic landmarks of the Virginia peninsula, was beautifully decorated with magnolias, white iris, gladioli and smilax and, with the exception of flood lights playing on the stained glass windows in the chancel, was illuminated entirely by candles placed throughout the church. Floral arrangements were placed on either side of the nave arch. Candelabra and banded flowers flanked the altar and candelabra placed in the chancel formed an aisle from the nave arch to the altar.

The event was a formal military wedding with the groom and groomsmen attired in the summer Army uniform with service blouse. Preceding the ceremony Bruce Vander Boegh of Hampton, Va., sang "From Sense to Soul," and concluded the service with "The Lord's Prayer." Mrs. J. C. CONTROL OF NARCOTICS

The problem of regulating the international flow of narcotics is extremely complex. The development and sale of narcotics may yield to control only when international inspection teams are allowed to check all narcotics-producing areas.

The United Nations Commission on Narcotics Drugs recently approved a plan which may curtail illicit shipment. It would prepare a blacklist of seamen and civil aircraft crew members convicted of smuggling narcotics. The names of these offenders would be turned over to their governments or unions for action that might result in the loss of their certificates or licenses.

Many ways will be found to get around this law. The ante for carrying illegal narcotics may be raised to the point where seamen and airmen will not care if they do lose their licenses. Civilians may also be enlisted to carry the goods ashore. Still, it may be effective at least in reducing the smuggling.

The basic law governing international narcotic drugs control makes it the responsibility of the governments to see that the output does not exceed legitimate requirements. Actually there is no reliable estimate available today of how large the world's supply of raw opium, coca leaves and Indian hemp actually is. Authorities estimate that an annual world output of one million pounds of raw opium would be more than enough to meet all medical needs, but the world production is more than four times as much as that.

Drugs are one of the world's great dangers to mind and body. They need effective control. In serious accident or illness involving terrific pain they are balm to thank God for. Under other circumstances they are deadly peril.

Sunday School Lesson

June 22, 1952

The Sin of Greed

Exodus 20:17; Luke 12:13-21, 29-34

By Henry Geerlings

The lesson title calls attention to a sin which is very common. It is a sin to which all classes and conditions of mankind are liable and to which expression is given in different ways. Covetousness is a great evil. And what is meant by covetousness? We may define it as being an inordinate desire for earthly things, or what belongs to the neighbor or fellow man. It is one of the greatest evils human nature is heir to. There is no deeper vice that has its source in the sinful human heart. Other evils more or less, affect only the person guilty of them, but not so with covetousness. This evil strikes directly at others. The covetous man is cruel and crafty, industrious and evil, and full of care and malice. It leads individuals into various and terrible sins.

The root of covetousness is unthankfulness. When people live in a state of appreciation for their manifold blessings, then they are immune to the ravages of greed. Just as faith must be actively exercised in order for it to grow, so thankfulness must be a growing habit, or the soul will slump back into a miasma of discontent. Godliness comes from a continual rising up of the soul, to respond to the Maker's blessing and return to him a heart full of praise.

Written large into the Law of God were provisions whereby the children of Israel were encouraged to express their thanksgiving and praise. Their history was a well of thanksgiving. Their feast were full of the remembrance of the goodness of God. The Passover spoke of deliverance. Pentecost told of a gracious law that had been provided. The feast of Tabernacles reminded them of the rich harvests whereby God had bountifully provided for them. The Sabbath Day was given as an occasion of rest and reflection.

When the bounties of God are received without thankfulness, they will not be a blessing. They shrivel the soul and dry up the springs of gladness within. No people were blessed as the Israelites were. Their ground brought forth plentifully. The gifts which God had given them to be shared with the nations were used by them for their own pleasure. Instead of investing their gifts in spiritual service for the enrichment of mankind they poured out their strength and abilities in every other field except that for which they were chosen.

The apostle Paul lists covetousness as a sin of the spirit. Jesus seems to denounce the sins of the spirit more harshly than those of the flesh. It is no doubt due to the fact that sins of the spirit are more subtle, more poisonous to the soul than those of the flesh. We can very easily detect these sins of the flesh because they are expressed in outer acts which society condemns and punishes. But we cannot readily detect a sin of the spirit such as pride, malice or greed. They may not find expression in deeds. But if they are in our hearts they poison the soul and result in death. How many times have we denounced the prodigal son for his sins, and commended the elder brother who remained at home and worked hard. But we have overlooked the covetousness that was in the older brother's heart.

Many church members have been excommunicated because they were guilty of some sin of the flesh. But did you ever hear of a member being excommunicated because of covetousness? And yet there are members in good standing in our churches, who in their hearts are filled with envy, greed and covetousness. It is because covetousness is so subtle that it is so hard to deal with.

There is another reason why this sin is so deadly. The drunkard will acknowledge his sin, the thief will recognize his error, but the covetous man will rarely admit his guilt. He does not recognize it as a sin, but calls it good business, clever dealing, or some other such term. The Pharisee, in the story of the two men who went into the temple to pray, was unconscious of the fact that he was a sinner and guilty of malice and greed. Religion did not interfere with his sharp dealings with his neighbor. The man who tore down his barns and built larger ones was perfectly satisfied with himself. Yet Jesus called him a fool because covetousness was destroying his soul.

There are not very many people in our churches who are guilty of the gross sins of the flesh. They are able to avoid them because they are outer acts. But we are all in constant danger of the secret sins which are not so evident to our fellow men. Covetousness is a sin that will ruin us if not curbed. It cannot be seen by our neighbors. It is of the mind and heart. It is secret and within. Doubtless we are all more or less tainted with it. We want more than we have. From this comes the craving for what others have. And from this craving comes the effort to get what others have.

What gives the last two commandments importance is that they start with the inner thought, and only afterward do we have the deed. Good works and evil alike come from the heart. We think about them, ponder over them, allow the desire of them to grip us, and then we go after them. If we pay attention to our desires, curb them, pluck them up as soon as they begin to take root we shall not be guilty of works of which we must be ashamed. He who would regulate a clock by moving the hands does

'Imperatives for Today' Listed for Graduates

Five "musts" were listed by Dr. J. Riemersma, superintendent of Chicago schools, in his address, on "Imperatives for Today" at Holland high commencement exercises Thursday night in Hope Memorial chapel.

Speaking for 216 graduates, Dr. Hunt, who was graduated from Holland high school exactly 33 years ago, mentioned the many pleasant memories he had always associated with Holland and paid tribute to Holland's fine educational system, to Dr. E. E. Fell former superintendent, and to two of his former teachers who are retiring this year, Lida Rogers and Maibelle Geiger.

He listed character as the first of the five imperatives, defining character as the priceless ingredient or the "sterling" mark on a piece of silver. Earlier he defined character as "what you are when nobody is looking."

Second on his list was service, "the work you perform for nothing" or "the rent we pay for the space we occupy." Estimating costs involved in educating a class of 216 seniors, he multiplied that figure by 12 representing the years in school, times a figure he selected as the cost to taxpayers, ending with a figure of about three-quarters of a million dollars. "That's part of the rent bill we're talking about," he said.

Third was the ability to get along with people, a most necessary ingredient since this generation already has seen two world wars and a Korean conflict which now is completing its second year. With six per cent of the area and seven per cent of the people, America holds a tremendous responsibility.

Fourth was humor, the oil that lubricates the machinery of life. "There's nothing like laughing a thing off when that's the thing to do," he said. "It's not so much what we eat that causes ulcers but what eats us," he added.

Fifth and last was the need for fundamental loyalties, the loyalty to school, to the Master Teacher, and to the "four basic needs, work, play, love and worship, which form a pattern of things which make us as we are."

Included in the list of graduates were three now serving in the armed forces, A. Jay Bos, Vernon Kortering and Darwin Timmer. Manfred J. J. Dankleff, an exchange student from Germany for the past year, also received a diploma.

Supt. Walter W. Scott presented the diplomas and Principal J. J. Riemersma announced awards, most of which had been previously announced at the annual home assembly. Included in the 26 scholarship awards were two new scholarships for Roland C. Vander Ven and Daniel Hazebrook for the Michigan College of Mining and Technology.

Prizes not heretofore announced included First National bank commercial prizes to Barbara Ann Elgersma, Ruth N. Smeege and Joyce Van Lier; the Peoples State bank co-operative training prize to Marion Gayle Reus; the Edwin Barkel memorial band prize to John William Kools and Richard H. Zeidler; the Woman's Literary club Junior Prize to Joanna Fisher, Marilyn Post and John Angus.

Music included a soprano solo by Mary Ann Knooihuizen, accompanied by Betty L. Schepers, and a clarinet concerto by Richard Zeidler, accompanied by Jeanie Zeidler. Dr. Richard C. Ouder-sluis gave the invocation and benediction and Mrs. W. Curtis Snow played the processional and recessional. The speaker was introduced by Mary Ann Filrit.

Vernon D. Ten Cate, member of the Board of Education, presented resolutions passed by the board commemorating the 21 years of service of C. J. De Koster and the 18 years of service of A. E. Lampen on the board. Both are retiring this year.

John Kools, president of the senior class, announced the class memorial which includes $100 for three scholarships at Interlochen Music camp, $135 for guest assemblies next year, $150 for a suitable plaque for the Korean war dead, and $300 for new stage equipment.

Fishing Trip Deep Into Quebec Provides Many Interesting Tales

Fishing In Quebec
By W. A. Butler

I have just returned from a fishing trip as a guest of the International Paper Sales Co., Inc., along with Randolph C. Neely, Western representative, Chicago, Ill., and six other newspaper people: Lloyd Taft of the Cincinnati Times Star; Tom Wood of the Hopkinsville Advance, Hopkinsville, Ky.; J. Evans Campbell of the Owosso Argus Press, Owosso; Harold Fursenau of the Ludington Daily News, Ludington; Mac Hansen of the Nevada Journal, Nevada, Iowa, and Kenneth Burt of the Gannett newspapers, The Danville Commercial News, Danville, Ill.

We traveled by train to Montreal, assembled at the Ritz-Carlton hotel upon arrival, changed into our fishing clothes and were flown to the Oriskany club—160 air miles north of Montreal. The planes are operated by the Wheeler Air Service of St. Jovite, Quebec.

They are float type planes taking off and landing on rivers and lakes. This service is used extensively in the bush throughout Canada. Flying time going in was about one hour and 15 minutes. Coming out with a tailwind we made a little better time.

There are many lakes and rivers in the area. The piece that International has leased from the government is controlled by them, and as this area was burned over many years ago, there are many rules and regulations that must be followed in order to be admitted to these leased areas.

One must have a circulation permit that allows him to circulate in the area. These permits are printed both in English and French. This is also true of the fishing license. The French language is predominantly spoken by most of the people you come in contact with, such as the fire wardens, game wardens and guides as well as the other people employed by the company to operate the club.

The buildings are of log, varnished inside and out. They have modern facilities such as baths and showers with hot and cold water as well as large fireplaces that consume quantities of birch firewood, which is very plentiful. They use wood for all cooking and baking as well as heating.

The camp is in charge of a Mr. Jorgensen. He and his family along with two or three other people live at the camp the year around. At the time we were there there were some 35 employees. They look after the club and the other buildings as well as do all of the necessary repairing and up-keep. They also keep records of all of the fish that are planted in the various lakes, the number of fish that are caught, the weight and the length, because it is necessary to keep restocking the lakes.

Many regulations on the different lakes are contained in the brochure that is published by the club. One of their rules is: "Kill Less and Fish More." Use of double and treble hooks is not permitted. I fished five minutes on one small lake known as Hot lake where the limit was one fish per pole. We caught the one fish, a red trout, weighing more than a pound and moved onto the next lake. Most of the lakes contain either grey or red trout. This is also characteristic of some of the streams flowing between the lakes.

There are also the usual number of speckled trout and they grow to quite good size. One doesn't have to struggle length and weight. The laws of the Province prohibit smoking while traveling in the forest and warn against throwing away lighted matches, cigars, cigarettes or pipe ashes. Another one of their slogans is, "Green Forests." The most popular fly for wet fly fishing seems to be the Montreuil.

We could have speckled trout for breakfast, lunch and dinner if we cared for them. While I am on the subject of cooking, I should refer to their French chef, Eddie. Eddie has been with the company for a number of years and has trained a lot of their younger cooks. His students call him "professor." They do all of their baking in an outside oven that is about seven feet long, five feet wide and five feet high with a large chimney about 10 feet high. This is a brick and stone round oven. Twenty or more loaves of bread, both white and brown, are baked along with the cookies, pies and cakes.

This would be a very poor place for anyone who was on a reducing diet with all of this good food available. They also have all of the fresh vegetables in season. Vegetable gardens are fenced in with high wire to keep the bears from destroying the vegetables; in fact they were calling on us morning, noon and night. We were out fishing and didn't see them but some of the people said they were small, only weighed about 200 pounds. We saw a few ducks, some muskrat and moose. The moose were usually standing in the water because of the flies. Mosquitoes—no—no—no—black flies were ever present. However, this seems to go along with fishing. I used three kinds of fly dope but they still did a fair job of labeling me in several places.

Most of the fishing is done from canoes. They are the usual Canadian type canoe and weigh about 80 pounds; perhaps nearer to 100 pounds after they are used because they absorb moisture. It is necessary to do quite a lot of portaging, so the guides carry the canoes by using tump-line. This is a leather thong tied to both sides of the canoe and it rests on the forehead of the carrier. It is amazing to see them walk along a trail bearing the canoe. Once they pick it up and start walking they always seem to be able to last until they reach the end of the portage. This was not true, however, of the fishermen following. One member said, "goodness sakes this fly rod got heavy making this portage."

We were rained off one day so it was necessary to build up quite a fire in the fire-place to dry out all of the wet clothes. The club is equipped with all kinds of raincoats but the sun was shining when we started out in the morning so we did not go equipped. The seat of the trousers gets a little moist when it starts to pour down rain and you find yourself sitting in the bottom of the canoe. The temperature was about 60 degrees and so using the Holland expression, "it was not too bad."

Large Cottage Damaged by Fire

Grand Haven (Special) — Fire caused an estimated $8,000 damage to the large Carl M. Montehlas cottage on the north shore of Spring Lake early Monday.

The Spring Lake fire department received the call at 5:40 a. m. and within an hour had the blaze under control. The Montehlas, from Grand Rapids had been at the cottage all day Sunday and left about 9 p. m.

Firemen believed defective wiring caused the fire. It started in a closet in the kitchen alongside a new refrigerator which had just been installed. The fire crept from the closet to the ceiling then to a ventilator in the bathroom upstairs and into the attic.

Estimated damage figures to the two-story cottage cover both contents and building. When firemen arrived the smoke was so dense they were unable to enter the building, even with masks.

Grand Haven firemen were called as a safety measure and they furnished water and ran one line.

Giant 27-inch picture tube, the largest rectangular tube ever produced for commercial use, is featured in new Zenith line of TV sets. The huge tube, considered the biggest practical for home use, gives TV viewers over more than 400 square inches of picture, yet requires less cabinet depth than present 21-inch tubes. Scientists of the Rauland corporation, Zenith subsidiary which developed the mammoth, say that despite big proportions it offers a brighter, better-defined picture than many smaller size tubes. The 27-inch giant is shown above in Zenith's new "Sovereign" model. H. C. Bonfigli, vice president of Zenith Radio corporation, Monday announced 28 new models in Zenith's 1952 line of television receivers. Heading the line is the 27-inch picture tube. The Zenith TV sets are sold by Essenburg Electric company at 52 West Eighth St. Mike Essenburg, owner and manager of the company, will be glad to show these sets.

Any rumor to the contrary notwithstanding I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress. Why not? I never at any time said anything to anyone indicating that I would not be.

Having left a good law practice to fight the waste, extravagance, unsound policies, foreign entanglements, of the New Deal — and no one ever accused me of being a quitter or not being on the job — I want to see it finished. My colleagues say I am a hard-working Congressman, who has the know-how and experience and will be helpful to them in a thorough house-cleaning.

If the people will next November elect a President and a Congress in which there is a majority with good, hard common sense and courage — those who believe in constitutional government — and are willing to fight for it — waste, extravagance, corruption and a ruinous foreign policy can be minimized and I hope ended — this Government returned to the people, to whom it belongs.

Your active support toward that end is humbly and respectfully solicited.

Mobile Blood Unit To Operate Clinic In Holland July 21

The state health department mobile blood unit will be in Holland July 21 to operate a clinic for blood to Korea in the VFW clubrooms at 28 West Seventh St., it was announced today.

Plans for the local clinic were made this week when Iva Ellen, blood service field representative of the state health department, was in Holland to confer with Red Cross leaders.

Plans call for at least 200 donors to visit the clinic which will maintain a six-bed unit. Persons between the ages of 18 and 59 in good health are acceptable as donors. A new regulation allows persons who have had malaria but who have not had a recurrence within 18 months to be donors. Persons with allergies also will be acceptable. These changes were allowed since this blood will be used for fractionation (serums for various contagious diseases) and in this process the danger properly is destroyed. (Aside from these specific cases, all blood collected on that day, during the hours of 3 to 9 p.m. will be designated for military use.) The supply is at a dangerously low ebb, and Holland must respond to help meet the county quota.

The state unit is staffed with nurses and a physician. The local Red Cross chapter supplies volunteer nurses, nurses' aides, canteen, gray ladies and social welfare aides. It also bears the expense of feeding the donors and scheduling.

An application or registration form will appear in The Sentinel before the arrival of the unit, but anyone desiring to register before that time may call Red Cross headquarters.

The new back pressure-arm lift method of artificial respiration is demonstrated here by Sea Scout Ship No. 5017 which studied first aid under the direction of Joe Bolte. New Life Saving Method Is Widely Acclaimed

All local safety groups are using a superior new method of artificial respiration these days.

The new method, known as the back pressure-arm lift method, is an easier, more effective way of applying resuscitation and one far less tiring to the person engaged in the operation.

In the new method, the victim lies prone with head to the left and arms folded so that the side of the face rests on the hands. The person applying the artificial respiration kneels at the head, applies pressure to the back about midpoint between shoulders and waist and then pulls up the arms at the elbows forcing air into the lungs.

In the old Holger-Nielsen method, the operator straddled the body and applied pressure to the back, according to count. The back pressure-arm lift method has been studied for many years and has been adopted by the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, American Medical association and many other agencies which incorporate safety and first aid into their programs.

The new system has come into wide use this year and supplements on the method have been added to nearly all text books on water safety. It was first introduced into local Red Cross circles last fall.
