day Rev. Peter Moerdyke, D. D. of

Not a little excitement was caused on Sunday by the report that while the family of Henry Hidding was absent at church a colored tramp forced entrance to their home in the Fifth ward. There was no one at home at the time excepting Reka the 18 year old daughter. She succeeded in getting from the house through the front door and making an outcry which alarmed the neighbors. Several came to her assistance and gave chase to the man who was evidently a very desperate character as he made considerable flourish with his revolver and discharged two shots at his pursuers. By these means he succeeded to evade capture. Later a diligent search was made for him by the officers and a posse of citizens. It is not known whether his motive in entering the house was for robbery or felonious assault upon the girl.

Holland, June 22, '95.

To the Editor of the HOLLAND CITY
News!

Coming over on the Soo City last night from Chicago to Holland the Soo stopped at her freight dock to take on freight. The City of Racine went out of the harbor from 35 to 45 minutes ahead of the Soo. It seems that she (the Racine) waited for the Soo. When Capt. Driscoll saw the situation he spoke to the engineer
through the tube to let her out all right.
The Soo City gained so on the Racine,
that we thought that she was a dock,
only for the dense volume of smoke
that was coming out of her smoke stack. Inside of a 4 hour we passed her, crossed her bow at a safe distance so that the Racine would not have to change her course, dropped astern
then came up with her again, then Capt. Driscoll saluted her and went on his course.

A SUGGESTION FOR MY COMPE-TITORS.

Yes Raven is going to have an other auction sale of fine Watches, Clocks, Jewelry and Silverware, beginning
Monday evening July 1 at 7:30 sharp.

Everybody knows that when Raven says special it means something besides wind; it means the latest styles best goods ever made by any manufacturer; it means prices way below what they can be bought for in any other jewelry store.

No matter what other jewelers tell you in regard to run in goods out of date patterns, going to leave town and all of that kind of stuff attend the sale, the buying public are not all fools and have some confidence in what Raven tells them in regard to the quality of the goods he sells. The people that have bought goods of him know better how they were than the jewelers that say they are no good.
One thing is absolutely certain if anything I have sold or do sell is not found to be as I have represented: the best ever made by any manufacturer, I am always ready and willing to refund the money, but no one has ever yet asked me to do so. Special sale for Ladies only every afternoon at 2:30 beginning Tuesday afternoon. Come and get a souvenir on the opening day. Chairs and fans furnished.

Evening sales for everybody.
After each sale there will be a drawing of a certain article to which each person attending, whether you purchase or not, will be entitled to a ticket FREE OF CHARGE.

It features a large, spoked flywheel on the right side, connected to a long, angled lever arm that extends upwards and to the left. The lever arm is supported by a complex arrangement of smaller mechanical parts, including a crankshaft and various linkages. The entire device is mounted on a base with several small, ornate feet. The illustration is highly detailed, showing the texture of the metal and the intricate design of the components.

Commencement Week at Hope College.

Hope College has passed through its twenty-ninth annual commencement week and what is looked upon as being the most successful one in its history. The weather although sultry and oppressive was in every way favorable. People came from all directions to be present at the various exercises of the week. The program was ushered in with the baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class in Hope church on Sunday night by Rev. W. H. Williamson of the First Ref. church of Grand Rapids.

The edifice was crowded to its fullest capacity and many were unable to obtain admission. Dr. Williamson gave some good sound advice to the members of the class who occupied seats in the front pews of the church and his discourse was listened to with the closest attention throughout. It seemed to be the universal opinion that a more satisfactory baccalaureate sermon had not been preached within several years.

Monday was however the gala day of the week as in the afternoon came the class day exercises of the Preparatory Department of the college which always are a good drawing card.

Long before the time set for the opening of the exercises the seating capacity of Winant's Chapel was taxed to its fullest limit and hundreds remained standing while the program was being carried out. The class was the largest that has been turned out from the school and was composed of the following:

Anna Appeldoorn, Henry D. Brink,
Harry G. Birchby, Jacob D. Broek,
Wm. N. Birchby, Peter C. d. Jong,
Peter Braak, R. W. Douma,
Benjamin Befting, F. Mansens,
Isaac J. Fles, P. J. Marsilje,
Grace Hazenberg, W. J. Maurits,
J. E. Kuitenga, C. D. Mulder,
Katie Rooks, Henry Sluyter,
Jacob Schepers, Edward Takken,
Henry Schipper, J. H. Ter Avest,
S. E. v. d. Meulen, Fedde Wiersma,
John Van Ess, M. Wilterdink,
John Verwey, Ellen Winter.

There were many friends of this class that came in from neighboring towns and the number of comfortable looking and stylish toilets was especially noticeable. It can be said however that our home young ladies appeared to an equally good advantage. The handsome chapel presented a cheerful and inviting appearance so far as decorations were concerned. In front of the platform potted plants were neatly arranged while back of the proscenium arch were drooped the stars and stripes above them and a shield containing the class motto: "Ever Onward, Never Halting."

On account of making extra provision for seating the many who were left standing, it was half an hour after the time set that the programme could be proceeded with. The Rev. J. P. De Young of Zeeland offered the invocation following which came this program:

Regardless of the excessive heat and the crowded condition of the room the best of order was maintained and the exercises were carried out without break or interruption. The program is too lengthy to give it detailed mention or to speak of each one who participated. Suffice to say that they all acquitted themselves creditably. Ladies were especially fortunate in receiving the most liberal applause, but that was because they are always the favorites on occasions of this kind. Upon one of the long tables in the class room near the main entrance to the library and chapel, were displayed the flowers and presents that had been sent in by the parents and friends of the graduating class. They were numerous and handsome and in many instances useful and valuable. The day as a whole will long be remembered more particularly by the young ladies and young gentlemen who concluded their studies and embarked in life for better or for worse.

MELIPHONE AND ULFILAS.

There are always two features in connection with the commencement week program that in many ways are more pleasing to the students than anything else. We refer to the entertainments of the Meliphone Society and the Ulfilas Club. On Friday night the former society held their 38th annual entertainment in Winants Chapel which was well filled to listen to the following program:

Invocation, Prof. G. J. Kollen, LL.D.
Address of Welcome, Pres. C. Mulder.
Chorus—"Mush, Mush," Recitation, Peter Marsilje.
The Battle of Bunker Hill, Henry Sluyter.

On Saturday the Meliphone's wound up with a days outing at Macatawa Park. They packed their lunch baskets and accompanied by ladies spent the day under the trees at this cool retreat.

The Ulfilas Club although not quite as old an organization among the Hope College students is equally as popular. The exercises of this club as well as all other deliberations are conducted in the Holland language. We herewith attach a translation of their ninth years program, presented on Monday in the Chapel:

THE INDEPENDENT THINKER.

One of the main features of the Meliphone gathering during commencement was the address delivered by Captain Cornelius Gardner of the United States Army stationed at Fort Wayne, Detroit on the above topic. The News would very much like to publish this address in full as Captain Gardner is well known here and it would be read with much interest, as it is, however, we are only able to make some extracts as follows:

It is a great pleasure to me to be able after an absence from your midst of nearly 30 years to meet once more with the old Meliphone society of which I was once a member. Those who were its members then are now scattered far and wide and some are no more. We are all now much older than you are and have been able to digest what once we laid by in the way of knowledge in these College halls. After a career in the U. S. army of 26 years coming into contact with all sorts and conditions of people both in the far west and in the great cities, both the rich and the poor and having of late years made somewhat of a study of sociology and government, I have become impressed with the fact, that our times are sorely in need of independent and fearless thinkers and it is therefore that I have chosen for the subject of my address "The Independent Thinker."

A great poet has said that "Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers." It need not be explained, that he meant that the acquirement of technical information about things was in this day of general education a relatively easy matter, but, that wisdom, the habit of drawing correct conclusions by correct thinking, the being able to see things in their broadest view, came more slowly, or even to some never came at all.

A young man when leaving college, after perhaps ten or fifteen years of continuous study, when first he looks about him to view the ground over of what he has accomplished, finds himself standing in a junkshop of facts, theories and general information. He has been so busy in gathering the tools which he expects to use in after life that he has had no opportunity to sort or test them, often times he has not even learned how to use these tools or what each and every one is for. Like the man made suddenly rich by some stroke of fortune or by the successful legal wrecking of some railroad, who feels that to appear cultured he must needs among other evidences of refinement, possess a fine library and who buys books as much for their style of binding as for what they contain, and which books he will perhaps never read, so many a young man in this age when knowledge can be so cheaply acquired or perhaps held in bondage by the curriculum of the school which he attends, promiscuously stores his brain with every fact or theory within reach and often to such an extent that a long life thereafter will be insufficient to digest this mental pabulum or to arrange it so that he can scan the field over and draw broad and independent conclusions concerning existing events assisted by the data which he has mentally stored away. Especially in the field of history, unless he has been cautioned that history may be true or false and that facts may be distorted or entirely unstated, depending often largely upon the standpoint whence the author wrote, his view of past events will be one sided and faulty and lacking that broadness and comprehension by which we recognize the wise man and the independent thinker.

Many a young man, at least such is my own experience, fails to see upon leaving college that the knowledge there acquired was for the most part intended as a means to an end, a sort of mental gymnasium, to develop the tissues of the brain, so that he may acquire better thinking powers and be able, due to this development of ganglion cells, to become an independent thinker, produce new thoughts and store up wisdom of use in every day life.

Wisdom, on the other hand, can not be learned from books, it comes to a man from observation and thinking. The greater his powers of observation and thinking are, the more wisdom will a man acquire. He must digest what he takes in.

Let me first explain what I mean by an independent thinker. He is a person whose constant effort through life has been to get at the true facts of every case coming under his observation uninfluenced by his own relations thereto and who can as easily decide against, as for himself. He has carefully guarded himself from falling in love with his own opinions, because they were his and from allowing his mind to begin running in a groove. This running of a mind in a groove or cut is suicidal to all independent thinking. True, it is easier to accept the ready made conclusions of others than to exert upon the problem one's own thinking powers. We see daily many of such people who never think for themselves, but accept for themselves as theirs, such opinions upon current events as the first book or newspaper, which they read, furnishes them with. These are most often adopted in toto and defended with a zeal having all the appearance of originality of conception. The independent thinker after arriving at the truth of a thing, should be fearless to express it. He is often a man, who like Elijah is accused of troubling Israel, by such as are the beneficiaries of existing wrongful conditions and is never appreciated in his day and generation.

The power of mind which God has given him to be able to see things as they really are, to strip from the arguments or the facts all the non-essentials and view them in their nakedness, to decide and then to speak fearlessly the truth, he recognizes as not for his own benefit or advancement but for the furthering of the interests of mankind and of which mental power he is only the guardian. A seeker after truth for truth's sake is generally an unselfish man, he is readily convinced by arguments of sound reason, he has no pet theories to desert or test them, often times he has not even learned how to use these tools or what each and every one is for. Like the man made suddenly rich by some stroke of fortune or by the successful legal wrecking of some railroad, who feels that to appear cultured he must needs among other evidences of refinement, possess a fine library and who buys books as much for their style of binding as for what they contain, and which books he will perhaps never read, so many a young man in this age when knowledge can be so cheaply acquired or perhaps held in bondage by the curriculum of the school which he attends, promiscuously stores his brain with every fact or theory within reach and often to such an extent that a long life thereafter will be insufficient to digest this mental pabulum or to arrange it so that he can scan the field over and draw broad and independent conclusions concerning existing events assisted by the data which he has mentally stored away. Especially in the field of history, unless he has been cautioned that history may be true or false and that facts may be distorted or entirely unstated, depending often largely upon the standpoint whence the author wrote, his view of past events will be one sided and faulty and lacking that broadness and comprehension by which we recognize the wise man and the independent thinker.

To be an independent thinker is essential that one should not become wedded to the opinions of any one school of philosophy, or any system of ethics to the exclusion of all others; but one should be an earnest seeker after truth only. No sound conclusions can be built upon erroneous premises, the foundation must be stable. Let him therefore guard his mind constantly against error and most of all against the tendency for reasons of policy to call right wrong or wrong right, and thereby sear and make callous those functions of the mind which the Creator intended as a guide to the clear and independent thinker in forming correct conclusions. The delicate mechanism of the thinking powers can no more be abused, than can the mechanism of the body, without detriment to its after efficiency and consequent deterioration. Permit me to summarize then what is essential to him, who desires to become an independent thinker and possess a clear mind which shall at all times be able to distinguish truth from falsehood, right from wrong.

1st. A thorough and comprehensive knowledge of the character and teachings of Jesus Christ.
2nd. Sufficient acquaintance with the various departments of natural science and in particular with the history and development of the race.
3rd. Sufficient acuteness and clearness of judgment to draw by induction and deduction the necessary logical consequences that flow from such empirical knowledge.
4th. Sufficient moral courage to maintain his views no matter how novel they may appear to others, against the attacks of those who are wedded to or profit by perpetuating existing untruths or wrongs.
5th. Sufficient strength of mind to free himself by sound independent reasoning from dominant prejudices and especially from irrational theories which have perhaps been firmly lodged in our minds from earliest youth.

In reviewing the field of history and of the development of the human race mentally and morally we will at once see that these conditions or most of them have been fulfilled by all its great thinkers and leaders, those who have moulded its thought and led it onward and upward through the past.

If now that indestructible thing called the human soul be the sum of all our feeling, willing and thinking and is acted upon by the operations of the brain and during life is a function of these brain operations it is apparent that such operations leave their impressions either for better or for worse. I claim then, that we owe it to ourselves, having been endowed with reason by a wise Creator, that we should only permit ourselves to think rationally and not irrationally. As in the building up of a physically perfect human frame it is essential that we should exercise every muscle in a manner which will properly develop it as intended by nature, and that for perfect health we introduce no poisonous substances into our tissues but only such food as will nourish and sustain the blood cells, in order that the body may be able properly to perform its various labors; so also for the perfecting of the mind in order that we may be correct and sound thinkers, nothing but truth and sound principles should be permitted to enter. It seems clear, that the human brain was intended not as a repository of unreasonable and irrational propositions but as one, where truths only are stored away, in order that the operations of thinking may be from unquestionable data and not be based upon false premises. We see the necessity of this when we recognize that thinking is an involuntary act and one not to be controlled in any way, a force, a vibration, we know from where, disturbs the ganglion cells and using what is there finds stored away as material to act upon; builds up and constructs new impressions, presents to view new pictures, forces us often to see things in a new light, which activities of the brain become part of us and fashion us.

It is therefore so necessary to one who desires to become a correct thinker that all data stored away should be closely scrutinized.

Right willing controls right doing; right doing leads to right thinking; right thinking leaves permanent right impressions upon brain tissues and character and upon that part of us which does not cease to exist when this mortal body perishes. If then by right action and right living we train ourselves to right and independent thinking we will when new questions present themselves involuntarily find ourselves taking their measure according to principles of truth and right and we will take our position accordingly.

If however seeing the right and knowing our duty, we lack courage to uphold it or are vacillating in our course, we are storing up for ourselves that much poison which will deaden the brain tissues and prevent their sound and healthy action thereafter.

Our will power makes us the master of our actions which actions are controlled by the voluntary muscles but not of those operations of the human body controlled by the involuntary muscles.

There is no control of the operations of the brain which produce thoughts. These are involuntary and depend upon what has been pictured or stored away. It is as futile to order or command that this or that proposition should be believed, as to command or order one's child to love such or such a person.

The present century has produced a number of independent thinkers, chiefest among whom is perhaps Mr. Darwin, who in announcing his theory of evolution, made many enemies and was much criticised.

But the theory of evolution or accommodation was so in accord with the orderly and natural processes with which the Creator accomplishes his great purposes that all intelligent minds were not slow in procuring its truth and reasonableness and to-day it is denied only by such as one would expect to assert that "the sun do move." As Copernicus laid at rest forever the geocentric view of the world, so did Darwin the anthropocentric one. Those independent thinkers who after examining for themselves into the evidence whereby man claimed a right to own property in man and dared differ with statesmen and clergy upon this subject and who in these United States less than forty years ago were denounced from forum and from pulpit because of their opinions and expressions against slavery are now appreciated and honored. It seems hardly creditable to you, but it is none the less true, that from pulpits right here in these Holland colonies, human slavery was upheld and defended in good faith by good and pious men. It was claimed that slavery was in accord with the teachings and practices of the bible and biblical days. It was therefore said to be heretical to denounce slavery. What says the world to-day upon this question, what was God's will? The fact is men generally had not measured this question by God's eternal law, announced upon the Mount as the fulfilling of all law, but had been content with laws and practices of men concerning it.

Even so great a man as Abraham Lincoln did not in the earlier portion of his career have the clearness of perception or moral courage upon the slavery question which he afterwards showed in public questions.

This is an altruistic age, an age of sympathy, civilization is the evolution of altruism, altruism is unselfishness, a desire, that justice, humanity, and righteousness should universally prevail, a care for others based upon the new commandment "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you." Slowly but surely has this permeating spirit been coming through the ages; it is to-day saturating the inner consciousness of all mankind. From seed sown in Galilee, the harvest is ripening. Now and then it is true the armies halt for a time or are demoralized for want of leaders, yet in due time such leaders come to the front and another advance is made upon the entrenchments of barbarism, egoism and bigotry; its leaders are the independent thinkers of the world. There are to-day coming to the front social questions of great importance to mankind, questions which you as young men will be called upon to think about and to form opinions and convictions concerning. Is your mind uninfluenced by opinions and verdicts of interested persons by the wealth and power of those who look only to selfish ends and never consider the welfare of others or mankind at large. Are you ready to take the measure of things and measure with the golden rule only. The conflict between altruism and selfishness is surely coming. One side has behind it the practices and conditions of the past and the further we go back into human history the greater is the fund of example to draw upon in order to maintain the arguments, sustaining its position. The other side, insists that we must look forward and not backward. That we must aspire constantly to live as a race closer to Christ's teachings, to the sermon on the Mount, before we can hope to reach that manifest destiny which the Creator intended for us and which even the early Christian church looked forward to.

At no time in the world's history has it been more apparent than to-day that greed the love of money is the root of all evil. That the tyranny of power and ambition has been supplanted by the tyranny of uncontrolled greed and consciousness wealth. This is especially so in this United States. The Nation has before it problems of vast importance. These must be solved according to principles of justice and righteousness in order that they may disappear. A condition of affairs when we must say to the poor man or the laboring man "you are morally right but legally wrong" and to his oppressor you are "legally right but morally wrong," can not continue to exist and be lasting.

A civilization where thousands die from want and hunger in our large cities and where by working hard 16 hours a day as do many women and children in the sweat shops or factories, they can scarce earn enough to keep from starving, needs a remedy somewhere.

If this is the best the world can do, it were better as Mr. Tyndall says "that the face of the earth be swept clean by the tail of some wandering comet," and Mr. Tyndall, as you know, is a very conservative philosopher. Less than 100 years ago no one paid any attention to questions of this kind, but now the world is outraged at every rehearsal of wrong cruelty or injustice committed, no matter where or by whom, be it in Brooklyn or Armenia. This isay is the working of the learned, and it is to it that we must look for the uplifting of humanity, the reign of the prince of peace when men will know one another as brothers.

The spirit of the prophet of Galilee is in our midst.

Every movement for liberty or the betterment of human conditions has had attached to its fanatics and zealots, who by their ill considered or lawless acts bring into disrepute that for which they oftentimes sacrificed their lives. It behooves all clear and unbiased thinkers of to-day carefully to examine the questions which are arising and especially is it incumbent upon believers in the teachings of the Nazarene to assist in carrying into practice that which he taught. Are there enough independent thinkers who can see the right and wrong of these great social questions to be its leaders. It is only the independent thinkers who are not cowed by the influence of power or place or subservient to wealth and the pleasure it brings.

It must be clear to all altruistic minds that the conditions under which the great masses of our so called lower classes live and work are without rational sanction in our civilization. Upon the school benches in all the poorer parts of our great cities we may find sitting limp and chill the young, pale faced scantily clad and hungry children of parents who toil from early dawn till evening late and who by so doing cannot even keep the wolf from the door, let alone enjoy any of the pleasures to which all of God's creatures are entitled.

One has but to make a study of life among the poor of the great centres of wealth or commerce to become convinced that it is the duty of every thinking man who has his country's welfare and the good of humanity at heart, to bring to bear upon this problem his best mental effort.

The independent thinker will strip from the question all that now obscures it, he will arrive at conclusions by hewing close to line and that line will be the "other commandment."

If men's laws or men's customs stand in the way he will fearlessly denounce them and regardless of epithets of scorn or denunciations of the Pharisees he will ultimately succeed in shaping the thoughts and actions of men so that there may be greater opportunities and happier lives for those to whom life now brings nothing but want, misery and despondency.

ing but want, misery and despondency.

THE ALUMNI.

The wind and rain storm on Tuesday night kept a good many at home but there were a sufficient number who braved the elements to comfortably fill Winants Chapel. President John A. Otte, M. D. of the Alumni Association acted as chairman and the order of exercises was as follows: Duet—"Go, Pretty Rose," Marzials. Mrs. Diekema and Mrs. Gillespie. Invocation—Rev. E. Winter D. D. Music—"You Stole My Love," Macfarren.

Alumni Quartette. Oration—John A. Otte, M. D. Slokh, China. Baritone Solo—"It is Enough" (from "Elijah").

Mr. J. B. Nykerk. (Mendelssohn). Chronicles—Prof. A. H. Huizinga, Ph. D., Chicago, Ill. Duet—"Estudiantina," Lacome. Miss Alcott and Mr. Nykerk. Welcome to New Members.

The musical selections of the evening were exceptionally well received, all the singers being in good voice. Miss Alcott and Prof. Nykerk were given an encore after rendering the final number. Dr. Otte's oration was fully up to the standard anticipated and showed careful preparation and thorough knowledge of the subject. In the absence of Prof. A. H. Huizinga the Chronicles were read by Rev. Jacob Poppen of Jamestown. These Chronicles were in Mr. Huizinga's happy, brainy and humorous vein and caused much merriment as did also the introductory remarks by the reader of them. President Otte welcomed the new graduates with a few well chosen words and urged that they all join hands in helping to elevate humanity.

The treat of the evening was the annual banquet which followed in the spacious dining room of the City hotel. Covers were laid for 60 and over fifty partook of the sumptuous spread provided by the new host and hostess W. R. Billings and daughter. The tables were handsomely laid and the fragrance of flowers pervaded the entire apartment.

Rev. P. De Bruyn of Grand Haven acted as toastmaster and the following toasts were responded to:

"Hope College and the far West" by Wm. Stageman of South Dakota.

"Prof. Doesburg's fifty years of educational work," by Rev. M. Kolyn Orange City, Iowa.

"The value of early impressions" by Captain Cornelius Gardner of the United States Army stationed at Detroit.

"The First Girl Graduates" by Mrs. John Otte of China.

"The College Bred Reformer" by Rev. John Poppen of Jamestown.

"Education; what it does for a people" by Rev. John Van der Meulen of Grand Rapids.

While the banquet was in progress a large crowd of students assembled under the windows on Market st., gave the College war whoop, and some songs that were appreciated but when fire crackers were introduced and the din became unendurable mayor Diekema interfered and the crowd dispersed.

COMMENCEMENT NIGHT.

Wednesday morning was very threatening, it rained hard and the weather prophets predicted an all day's storm. They were mistaken, for before ten o'clock the clouds broke away and the sun peeped out brightly. By noon it began to look like commencement day as the young ladies were able to come out in their best garments and the young men in their cutaway frocks with buttonholes.

It was very early in the evening when the people began to gather at Graves Hall for the exercises, an hour or more before the time set and by 7:30 o'clock the chapel was packed. The decorations were plain and consisted only of the national colors artistically draped back of the platform and the class motto "From Possibility to Reality" suspended above. The flowers were numerous but put in their appearance after the exercises were over.

Dr. J. H. Karsten of the classes of Wisconsin pronounced the invocation after which the following program was proceeded with under the direction of President Kolien:

Secretary Storrs of the state board

GOT THE BACKACHE?

If You Have, Here's the Way to Rid Yourself of the Weariness and Pain Attending It.

Some people suffer with headaches,
many people are worn out and weary all the time, many more people have lame back and backache. Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can find a cure. Just a word of explanation before we prove that what we say is true. The back is the key-note of the kidneys. It aches; that's a sign that the kidneys are not working properly; it is lame; another sign, the kidneys are out of order. The kidneys, you know, are the filters of the blood,
but filters sometimes get clogged up.
This means in their case that the blood courses through the entire system impregnated with poisonous uric acid, bringing on many a disorder which, if neglected, means disease perhaps incurable. And now about the cure.—Don't take our word
for it; read what others say:

Mr. David C. Oaks is proprietor of the well known hardware and paint shop at 230 East Main Street, Kalamazoo. Mr.
Oaks has suffered a great deal from kidney ailments; he described his condition and cure as follows: "I had a bad, lame back, which I suppose was caused by my kidneys; was confined to my bed during bad attacks. I might say, from time to time,
I have been in that condition for years.
The urinary organism was affected, urine being scanty, highly colored, and difficult in passage. I was in a bad shape when I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, about which I had heard. I have used now two boxes of them, and the pills have removed all the pain and trouble. There was a marked improvement right from the first, and it has continued right along. Doan's Kidney Pills are the right thing in the right place."
