Hope College Observes Its 89th Commencement

Three outstanding men, all alumni, one a theologian and two in the field of law, were awarded honorary degrees at the 89th annual commencement convocation held in Memorial Chapel on Monday morning, June 14.

The Rev. John H. Bruggers, presented by Dr. Clarence De Graaf, is a graduate of Northwestern Academy, Orange City, Iowa. After receiving his AB from Hope he entered Western Theological Seminary from which he was graduated in 1918. Hope College conferred upon him the degree of bachelor of divinity.

In 1918 he served in France, Belgium and Germany as a YMCA secretary, and in 1919 he was installed as pastor of the newly organized Holland Sixth Reformed Church which he served until 1928. He was pastor of the Reformed Church in Coopersville for 15 years before taking his present charge in 1943.

Mr. Bruggers has served the Reformed Church in America in various capacities throughout his active ministry. He has been president of the Chicago Synod, member of the Reformed Church Board of Benevolence and a member of the Board of Trustees of Western Theological Seminary. He served as chairman of a number of committees of the General Synod including foreign missions, education, ministers' fund and church expansion. Always interested in fund raising, he actively participated in the United Advance, the General Synod Fund and other drives for funds sponsored by the Reformed Church General Synod.

Judge Brush was presented by Dr. Edward D. Dimnent. For his bibliography please see the Alumni Magazine, April 1953.

Supreme Court Justice Dethmers, presented by Rev. William J. Hilmert, was featured in the Alumni Magazine, January 1954.

The Rev. Elmer G. Homrighausen, D.D., professor of Christian education at Princeton Theological Seminary, told graduating seniors that his greatest sorrow on the occasion was the absence of Professor Henry Schoon. Speaking on "Running the Course of Life," Dr. Homrighausen said that Prof. Schoon, who died this spring, was his ideal on how to live life to the fullest.

President Irwin J. Lubbers presided at the convocation and presented diplomas to the graduates. Dean of the Faculty, John W. Hollenbach, presented special awards to seniors.

Mrs. W. Curtis Snow presided at the organ, the Rev. John C. de Maagd '24, Reformed Church missionary to Japan, gave the invocation; the Rev. LeRoy Nattrass '27, director of admissions at Northwestern College, Orange City, Iowa, read the scripture; and the Rev. Martin Hoeksema '25, pastor of the Reformed Church in East Williamson, New York, gave the benediction.

The Role of Hope College in the Assimilation of Dutch-Americans

By PRESTON J. STEGENGA
Reprinted from History of Education Journal

It is generally recognized that denominational colleges in the United States have been a dominant force in the establishment of American higher education. For example, during the decades following the Dartmouth College decision in 1819 to the close of the Civil War, more than two hundred denominational institutions of higher learning were founded. However, it has often been overlooked that many of these church-sponsored colleges have also played a prominent part in the assimilation of a national group to its American environment. Numerous denominational colleges were established in the nineteenth century by European immigrants who came to America in quest of religious, educational, social, economic, and political freedom.

One of these institutions was Hope College, founded by Dutch immigrants who settled in Holland, Michigan. Since its origins in 1851, Hope College has been affiliated with the Reformed Church in America, which had its heritage in the Netherlands. If the various phases of the Hope College development are considered as a unified inter-related unit, there is little doubt that the college has been a significant factor in the assimilation of the Dutch to American life. When one observes the entire pattern of the institution's growth, including its administration, finances, faculty, students, and curriculum, it is evident that Hope College has been a "focal point" reflecting the extent of the Hollanders' adjustment to America. Centered around the college activities have been evidences of localism and cosmopolitanism, conservatism and liberalism, denominationalism and non-denominationalism, Dutch nationalism and American nationalism.

Curti and Carstensen have suggested that the American college or university, has been 'subject to direct and indirect pressures from within and without its walls' as it has become "a vast repository of often conflicting and contradictory functions imposed upon it by individuals and groups who at one time or another have stood in a position of power." This has been true in respect to Hope College since diverse pressures from the church to preserve the religious and Dutch heritage of the institution have made more difficult the paradoxical position in which the college finds itself. On the one hand, the college has been sensitive to suggestions as well as criticisms from denominational groups and individuals. On the other hand, Hope College, in a sincere desire to improve its facilities and its program, has found it necessary to seek assistance from various groups outside the denomination. These conflicting pressures during the past one hundred years have resulted in accomplishments as well as difficulties.

Despite these problems, Hollanders associated with Hope College have steadily adjusted to their American environment is evidenced by the rapid rise of the institution from localism to cosmopolitanism. Although during its formative period, the college enrollment included a predominance of Dutch-American students, as early as 1876 four Japanese students were enrolled. Then, as the institution continued to increase the size of its student body, greater diversity in geographical representation was evidenced. During the academic year of 1952-1953, seventeen foreign nations and twenty-three different states of the union were represented by the student body which numbered approximately one thousand. The registrar's report for the same period also indicated that fifteen different religious faiths were represented by the students. The growth in variety of geographical and religious backgrounds of the Hope College student body is indicative of the transition from past Dutch-American and denominational localism toward a greater American cosmopolitanism.

Since the early days of Hope College, the curriculum has likewise reflected the steady adjustment of the Hollanders to his American environment. Undoubtedly, academic accrediting agencies have been a significant factor for the expansion of the curriculum of the college. Hope College has become fully approved by such agencies as the Association of American Universities and the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Despite rapid expansion in curricular offerings as encouraged by accrediting agencies, denominational influence has continued to serve as a counter-balance so that the broadened academic program continues to include a measure of religious instruction for all Hope College students. Although the Reformed Church has continued to exert its influence upon the college curriculum, the study of the Dutch language in the Hope College program has steadily diminished throughout the years. During the early decades of the college, Dutch was a required subject for all students. It later became an elective course during the transition period of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. As a final measure, in recent decades, there has been little or no demand for Dutch language instruction and so it was abandoned. The diminishing demand for Dutch courses in the Hope College curriculum has been another reflection of the Hollanders' Americanization process.

Throughout the years, denominational influence has been evidenced in the determination of the Hope College faculty qualifications. The dominance of the Reformed Church was displayed in 1878 when it forced the resignation of the college's entire teaching staff. Moreover, whenever an isolated case has occurred in which a faculty member professed views contrary to the denomination's heritage, the church has demanded the resignation of that individual. Despite the religious qualifications imposed by the denomination, the Hope College faculty has been required to maintain high academic standards in its professional training. In recent years the college has stressed the need for its teachers to continue graduate study and independent research. Undoubtedly, the emphasis for the faculty to continue its professional training has been stimulated by the various national accrediting agencies. Thus, on the one hand, the church has continued to specify certain religious requirements for the college staff, but, on the other hand, such non-denominational influences as the accrediting agencies have also been an important factor in the determination of faculty qualifications.

Although Hope College has continued to serve the denomination, it has steadily extended its program to aid the community, state, and nation. The recently organized "Hope Evening College" has been an expression of the institution's desire to serve citizens of the western Michigan area. The director of the program was prompted to suggest that the new project will "help make Hope a community college as well as a denominational institution." The college has recently coordinated this program with the University of Michigan Extension Service which provides the instructors for some courses. In announcing the plan, the Extension Service stated in February, 1952, that "it is planned if there is sufficient demand, a long-range program on the graduate level will be given in cooperation with Hope College."

During periods of national conflict, Hope College has been especially active in its endeavor to serve the nation. As early as the Civil War days, Hope College students were urged to participate actively in the union cause. The leader of the Dutch Colony in Holland, Michigan, Dr. Albertus C. Van Raalte, held that the young men of the college were Americans and not merely Hollanders and, therefore, they should join the army. In fact, one of the Hope College students to enlist was a son of Van Raalte. Since those early days of the college's existence, the institution has continued its service to the nation. During World Wars I and II, Hope College established military training units on the campus. The Student Army Training Corps of 1918 and the Army Specialized Training Unit of 1943 were programs adopted by the college for the training of American soldiers in the service of the nation.

The denominational influences on the college were greatly diminished during these periods of war. Direct governmental control in the affairs of Hope College was particularly prevalent during the two world wars. It appears, however, that in the post-war periods there has been a tendency for the renewal of denominational controls. Despite the peace-time influences of the denomination, the wartime innovations have to some extent remained in the Hope College program. For example, the war-time accelerated program has resulted in the post-war summer schools. The numerous transitions from peace-time, to war-time, to post-war activities have indicated that the college has continued as a significant factor in the adjustment of the Hollanders in their changing American environment.

Another factor in reference to the role of Hope College in the assimilation of Dutch-Americans has been evidenced in the changing sources of income for support of the institution. On the one hand, there have been periods in its history, such as that of 1851 to 1877, when the denomination was almost the sole support of Hope College. On the other hand, there have been times when the college was chiefly supported by non-denominational contributions. It seems as though greater non-denominational sources of income were more prominent whenever Hope College faced a serious financial crisis. As early as 1878, it was primarily supported from individuals not directly affiliated with the Reformed Church that relieved the indebtedness of the institution. Likewise, during the crucial periods of World War I and II, federal government assistance was of great importance to the college.

The non-denominational sources of income have gradually become more important for the support of Hope College. Because of inadequate church contributions, it became essential, during the early decades of the twentieth century, for President Kollen of the college to encourage men like Andrew Carnegie, the industrialist, to contribute substantial support to the college's building program. In recent years, Hope College has become affiliated with the Michigan Colleges Foundation which encourages industry of the state to contribute financial support to the private colleges in Michigan. Since the college continues to encourage secular support, it inevitably has increased the contacts of Hope College with a greater diversity of Americans and American institutions. As a result of these numerous relationships, the Hollanders Americanization process has undoubtedly been accelerated.

One phase of the college program that has continued to reflect the denominational and Dutch heritage of Hope College has been the granting of honorary degrees. According to a report issued in 1951 by President Lubbers, approximately 55 percent of all the honorary degrees conferred by Hope College have been the doctor of divinity degree for ordained ministers chiefly of the Reformed Church. Moreover, the Dutch heritage of the college has been perpetuated by the award of numerous honorary degrees to prominent Holland-Americans as well as to government leaders from the Netherlands. Among the renowned Dutch-Americans who have received recognition from Hope College were President Theodore Roosevelt and United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenburg, Recent Ambassadors to the United States from the Netherlands, Dr. Alexander Loudon, Dr. Eelco N. van Kleeffens, and Dr. Jan Herman van Roijen, have also received honorary recognition from Hope College.

Undoubtedly, the most widely publicized event for the award of a Hope College honorary degree to a native Hollanders occurred in June, 1941. On that occasion, Princess Juliana, as heir to the Dutch throne visited the Hope campus to receive the doctor of laws degree. The degree was granted "in humble recognition of her genuine interest in the life and culture of the Netherlands' settlement in Michigan . . . with particular thought of her deep interest in our seat of learning at Hope College . . . ." As evidence of Juliana's continued interest in Hope College, she returned to visit the college as Queen of the Netherlands during her official tour of the United States in the spring of 1952.

As one considers the entire pattern of Hope College's development during the past one hundred years, it becomes clear that the college has been an important factor in the assimilation of Dutch-Americans. Moreover, the college has emerged as a result of pressures from groups and individuals, secular as well as sectarian. The realizations and disappointments, the achievements and failures of the Hollanders have blended together to form Hope College of the twentieth century. Although Reformed Church influence in all aspects of the college program has continued to be important, non-denominational factors have become significant. This tendency for a greater secular impact upon Hope College has reflected the steady process of Americanization of the Hollanders. It is likewise apparent that the college has tried to plot a "middle of the road" course, since it has been sensitive not only to denominational but also to non-denominational forces. Thus, although the central core of religious and Dutch heritage has persisted throughout its history, Hope College has modified its program in an endeavor to meet the emerging needs of modern society. If other American colleges, founded under similar circumstances as Hope College, have followed a parallel development, they too have been not only an important contribution to higher education but also have played a significant role in the assimilation of a European national group.
STERENBERG DIES RETURNING HOME FROM CONVOCATION

James Sterenberg '93 died Sunday, June 13, while driving his car on US 31, near South Haven, as he was returning to Chicago after attending the Alumni Day events on the Hope Campus. Particularly dear to his heart was the annual convocation of the "Fifty-year Circle" which he organized in 1951 and served as president since that time.

Dr. Sterenberg, who was 84 at the time of his death, was born May 6, 1870, near Fulton, Illinois. After receiving his AB degree from Hope in 1893, he took the work for his BD degree at Princeton Theological Seminary, graduating in 1896. Harvard University conferred upon him a D.A. degree in 1897.

After serving the Second Reformed (Dutch) Church at Orange City, Iowa, for two years, 1897-99, he returned to study at Princeton as a New Testament Fellow for one year, at the University of Leipzig for two years, the University of Halle-Wittenberg for a term and then became professor of Greek at Bellevue College where he remained from 1905 to 1909. He spent some time at the University of Munich in 1907 and received his Ph.D. there that year.

From 1909 to 1914 he was Rutan Professor of Latin at Olivet College and then followed twenty-three years, 1914-1937, as Professor of Greek and Biblical Literature at Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois.

After his retirement from Knox College he was professor of Classics at Carthage College for two years; pastor of Fountain Green Presbyterian Church, five years; and pastor of the Congregational Church, Plymouth, Illinois for one year.

Dr. Sterenberg was married June 14, 1905 in Bellevue, Nebraska. He is survived by his widow, Delta P., three children, Elizabeth, James and Kathryn, and three grandchildren.

Dr. Sterenberg was also Trustee of Hope College for a number of years. He organized a Dutch Reformed Church in Fulton, Illinois, his home town, in his vacations during his years at Princeton.

While professor at Knox College, he often preached in the Reformed Church at Raritan, Illinois and later preached frequently in the Elmwood Congregational Church.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS MEETING

The Hope College National Alumni Association board of directors met June 11 in Van Raalte Hall on the campus. Those present were Clinton S. Cole, president, Rose Tenninga Bell, Arloa Van Peursen Tyssse, Aalthea Raffenaud, Robert Donia, Frederick Yonkman, Alvin Neevel, Cornelius Pape, Edward Viening, Neil Van Oostenburg, Harold Dykhuizen, Ralph De Roo and Lawrence Veenstra.

Clinton Cole was re-elected president and Donald Cordes, vice-president.

Among the topics discussed were the Jack Schouten Tribute in the Gymnasium project; and the Student Share Fund which was reported to be $14,273.50, just over $5,726.50 short of the goal of $20,000. The directors expressed confidence that the goal would be met by the end of the fiscal year, August 31.

Among other subjects discussed were the placing of alumni in club areas; carrying out the alumni fund by areas rather than by classes; and the basis for admitting new clubs to the association for representation.

The directors voted to continue the Student Share Fund and to endorse the Alumni Varsity 'H' Club Gym project, for the forthcoming fiscal year.

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT RECEIVES SCHOLARSHIP FUND

Dr. Gerrit Van Zyl has received a letter and the first grant from the Johnson Foundation establishing a scholarship for an undergraduate student majoring in chemistry. The grant is to be administered by the chemistry department. The grant, in the amount of $1,000, is a $500 scholarship for each of two years.

The Johnson Foundation is a philanthropic trust, established in 1937 by the Johnson family, owners and founders of the Johnson's Wax Company of Racine, Wisconsin.

CLASS REUNIONS HIGHLIGHT ALUMNI DAY

1954 ALUMNI DAY DINNER

Mary, a native of Walden, New York, received her MS degree in 1953 from the University of Indiana where she majored in physical education. While at Indiana she was elected to Delta Phi Kappa, honorary society of physical education for women.

In 1950 and 1951 Mary served on the Hope faculty as assistant in physical education. In 1952 she was appointed instructor in physical education for women at Central College, Pella, Iowa and held that post to the present time.

Dr. William Vander Lugt, at present lecturer in philosophy at Pennsylvania State College, has been appointed professor of psychology at Hope.

Dr. Vander Lugt, a native of Rotterdam, The Netherlands, received his undergraduate education at Calvin College where he majored in mathematics and received his A.B. degree in 1927. He studied at the University of Michigan from 1928 to 1932, one year on a U. of M. teaching fellowship. He received his A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from this four year period of study.

Dr. Vander Lugt's teaching experience includes one year at Western Academy, Hull, Iowa; professor of philosophy at Central College, Pella, Iowa, from 1934 to 1950; and dean of instruction and professor of philosophy at Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pennsylvania, from 1950 to 1953. He will take the place of Prof. Lars Granberg, who resigned recently to become dean of students and professor of pastoral psychology at Fuller Seminary, Pasadena, California.

1939. Willard De Groot, of Bateman, Iowa, has been elected president of The Bond Club of Los Angeles for the current year. This club is a vital force in the economic, financial and cultural development of Los Angeles and Southern California. The goal of the Club is to foster the healthy growth of the community through sound constructive financing and planning.

AL VANDERBUSCH TO BE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

Al Vanderbusch '29, head football coach at Hope since 1946, has been named to take over the reins as director of athletics in the fall. He will succeed Russ De Vette, who is leaving to become head basketball coach at the University of Maine at Orono, Me.

Al, whose football teams have racked up an amazing record, will continue with a lightened teaching load in the history and political science department.

In the athletic department shift, necessitated by Russ' leaving, Larry Green, assistant professor of physical education, has been appointed chairman of the department of physical education.

Head basketball coach John Visser '42 will continue in that position, as well as assuming direction of many of the physical education classes formerly taught by De Vette. Coach Visser will teach no academic courses next year.

The bodies of both students were sent to their homelands via air, where services were held.
Majid's brother, Hamid, was graduated from Hope in 1953.

Hope on TV
Did you see Hope College life depicted on the program called "On Your Account" on May 20? Occasioned by the desire of the mother of a Hope senior to see her son graduate, NBC with the cooperation of the Holland Furnace Company, not only flew Mrs. Enne Martin and her daughter, Judy, of Midland Park, N.J. out to Holland for Tulip Time, but also made a film of Ed Martin's life on campus and put it on the air. It was very nice!

He has been active in extra-curricular work on the campus. He has served the International Relations Club as president, has been vice president of Phi Kappa Alpha, history fraternity, and is secretary of the Michigan Intercollegiate Council for UNESCO.
Ray Vedder is from Schenectady, New York. He has received a tuition scholarship in the field of journalism at Northwestern University. Ray has served the college as director of athletic publicity, editor of the Anchor and was assistant editor of the Milestone during his junior year.

Knickerbocker Blood Bank
The Holland Red Cross has announced the establishment of the Knickerbocker Blood Bank from which area persons can draw on the supposition that they are unable to replenish or pay for an ordinary withdrawal. It was initiated on May 10 with the donation of 33 pints, the initial donation. Dr. Otto van der Velde, director of the local Red Cross chapter bank, calls the Knick project "The walking blood bank." Donations will be made as called for by Dr. van der Velde as long as any member is available and physiologically able.

DETHMERS AWARDED COVETED NYU SCHOLARSHIP
John Robert Dethmers, who received his A.B. degree from Hope on June 14, has been selected as a Root-Tilden scholar in New York University School of Law. Mr. Dethmers was selected from a field of six applicants from each state. The scholarships were awarded on a competitive basis, two from each of the ten Federal Judicial Circuits, on the basis of potential capacity for public leadership, academic record and extracurricular activities. These scholarships which in many respects carry more prestige and are more eagerly sought after than the internationally famous Rhodes Scholarships, are designed to aid young men who give promise of becoming outstanding lawyers.

MRS. SNOW CHANGES DEPARTMENTS
Mrs. W. Curtis Snow, for 18 years a member of the Hope College music department, has resigned from that department. She has started study at Michigan State College toward her masters degree in German, where she will continue her work through the coming school year. Her plans are to return to Hope as a member of the German department in September 1955.

A World At Peace Under Law

By Sam Dudley

Gosh, but it costs a lot! Out of every tax dollar spent in this country, 87c goes to pay for past, present, and future wars. That leaves only 13c to spend on all the other activities for which we established our government. This figure is especially startling when we think back over the past few months and remember that the local school board and citizens' committee had to cut their building program from $295,000 to $150,000 before the citizens would vote in favor of a new elementary school. Why, if we could take any part, let's say even 30c, of that 87c by not having to prepare for future wars, and put it into the building of schools, hospitals, churches, into programs of relief for grief-stricken areas, food for the hungry, or care for orphaned children or infirm aged, we could be justly proud of our expenditures.

Besides the cost, financially, think of what else modern war means. Hysteria should be avoided, but it is only reasonable that we should take a long, cool, calculated look at the significance of the recent scientific developments . . . bacteriological warfare, new deadly gases, the Atom bomb, the Hydrogen bomb, and even consideration of a Cobalt bomb that can't be exploded because its effects cannot be predicted. These developments have even led Malenkov to tell his people publicly that mankind now has in his possession the power to cause the utter destruction of civilization. These developments led Albert Einstein to state that he didn't know what weapons would be used to fight World War III, but that if it came, he was sure that World War IV would be fought with clubs and bows and arrows. They caused Ed Reed to draw a cartoon showing a cave man sitting on a rock in his cave, his club leaning against the wall, reminding out loud to his small son, "Those were the days, son—jet planes, television, hydrogen bombs." We can't ignore the moral aspects of war, either. Besides the killing, which is in itself immoral, the destruction of property, disruption of normal family life, creation of unnatural tensions, and the many other devastating effects of warfare tear at the very heart of the moral fibre of human beings.

We know that peace is not only the absence of war, however. We know that it also means the presence of order and justice under enforceable law. We have found out that men or groups of men can live together in an orderly manner, even though they differ to a great extent in their basic philosophies, if they are living within the framework of enforced law.

If laws are to work on any level of society, they must be founded upon basically moral concepts and must be acceptable to the vast majority of those governed by the laws. Even then, however, laws, or rules, of themselves do not make good men out of bad, nor do they eliminate the possibility of conflicts. In any social unit, be it city, state, or nation, what enforceable law does is to establish the conditions under which men can continue to be different, can even have conflicts, and settle their differences or conflicts without resorting to violent means. In our own country we have recognized the necessity for establishing rules or laws and requiring all members of the social unit to abide by them on every level—city, country, state, and nation.

Recent developments in communication and transportation have brought the peoples of the world together as never before. We can transport ourselves around the world in days, and our voices in seconds. Because of these developments we have the kind of world where 3,000 Americans are living (not as tourists) in Saudi Arabia at the present time, where one university reports that over 400 of its students are foreign students, where the Secretary of State of the United States has traveled more miles in his one year of office than the total distance traveled by the combined Secretaries of State who preceded him. Today we can fly completely around the world in the length of time that it took some of the delegates of the original thirteen states to get to the convention in Philadelphia, where our Constitution was drawn up. Naturally this has brought an interdependence of peoples unknown before, and has made our citizens conscious of other peoples' languages, art, music, and politics. International developments during the past few years clearly indicate that through these same technological advancements in transportation and communication we also have increased facilities for creating conflicts with the peoples of other nations.

If we were to look for a parallel, I would say that the nations of the world are today at the same point in their development within the framework of the whole world as were our states in this country, within the framework of the nation, under the Articles of Confederation. Transportation and communication and a new sense of interdependence brought the new states together, and it was only natural that eventually they should federate into a single nation to gain the advantages of living and working together, and of carrying on business and social relations with each other within the framework of law. Fortunately for the world a new concept of the "federation" was born at that time. This let the states retain their internal sovereignty while gaining protection against the use of violent means for settling interstate problems. (During the period between the Declaration of Independence and the Constitutional Convention there were many conflicts that developed. Some of them even broke into open warfare between the states.) By giving the Continental Congress additional powers within a limited jurisdiction our forefathers were able to establish a union of the states which has prevented their history from degenerating into bloody one, such as was the case of the small countries in Europe. Had the states not federated it is reasonable to assume that hundreds of wars would have taken place.

It just seems that this is the proper time for us to take the next logical step in our civilized development. Now is that time for us to extend to the world level the same conditions which we have established on the other levels of our society. Now is the time for us to create the conditions under which we can settle international conflicts without resorting to violence, which in this age means the possible destruction of our civilized world. As the representatives at the convention at Philadelphia had the foresight to establish enforceable law on the national level, so must we now establish a limited world federation which could give us the protection from war that our national governments can not now guarantee.

Such a statement naturally brings on questions. The first questions that it brings to my mind are, "What would this mean?" and "How could this be done?" The United Nations is one of the greatest steps that civilized man has made in his attempt to survive in the modern world. The establishment of that organization and its functioning under extreme disadvantages for these almost nine years is a demonstration that at least an overwhelming majority of the nations of the world are seeking some peaceful means for settling their disputes. The strides and achievements that the United Nations has made toward solving the maze of problems facing the peoples of the world are numberless. The first step then in the achievement of a world at peace is for us to support the United Nations, study it, know it well, know its weaknesses as well as its strength, for only in understanding its weaknesses can we strengthen it, and only in understanding its strength can we justifiably defend it against unfair attack.

The second step toward lasting peace then should come naturally through the already established organization. By extending to the United Nations, as did our forefathers to our Continental Congress, the power to legislate, interpret, and enforce laws within a limited jurisdiction, we could establish the machinery for operating a world at peace under law. This would mean turning the present General Assembly into a legislative body, giving the nations a more equitable system of voting based upon some formula which would allow for the elimination of the veto in the Security Council. It would mean establishing an executive body, perhaps in the form of an Executive Council, and the establishment of a system of world courts with compulsory jurisdiction. No law is of any value unless it is enforced. Thus it would be necessary to give the United Nations a civilian inspection force with the power to inspect in any nation of the world and have jurisdiction directly over individual world law breakers. In our country the F.B.I. men can arrest us for speeding, but if we break a federal law (which we, through our representatives, have written) they arrest the individual who has broken the law, even if the individual is the governor of our state. The F.B.I. is not required to report the matter to the federal government so they can march soldiers in or bomb the cities in the state involved... although that is what has to happen on the world level today.

The importance of limiting the powers of this extended United Nations has been mentioned several times. There are several schools of thought on that matter, but it is the opinion of this writer that we should limit the powers of this organization to the fields of arms control and international aggression. When we go beyond those areas we delve into the internal affairs of the nations, and the extension of powers in too many areas could lead to the establishment of a world super-state. The United Nations should extend its services to economic, social, and cultural problems, but this can be done without giving the organization power to legislate in these fields.

The final step to lasting peace is universal, enforceable disarmament. Disarmament is essential, but, as we learned between World Wars I and II, disarmament alone is impractical. By systematically establishing a world armed force, made up of well-paid, well-fed volunteers from all over the world, whose first allegiance would be to the United Nations Armed Force (but who could still retain their citizenship in their own state, city and country), and at the same time slowly, systematically reducing the armed might of the nations to internal policing level under a careful system of inspection by the U.N. inspection force, we would find that at some point in history the U.N. force would be strong enough to prevent any nation or group of nations from aggression against another.

Of course, a system of checks and balances would be necessary to prevent military, economic, or political coups of the strengthened U.N. Such a system is not beyond the realm of the possible. We did it in this country. It was necessary for us to set up quite an elaborate system of checks and balances, but they have kept our government quite stable.

It should be made clear that it is not a panacea, a solution to all of the world's ills. It is only a plan, a workable plan, for establishing and maintaining the conditions, on the world level, under which we could continue to be different, yet stay alive. Having publicly discussed this plan with thousands of people in the past two years, I fully realize that there are many obstacles which space limits our discussing at this point. None of the obstacles, however, overshadow the necessity. We can't be sure that the plan will be acceptable to all the nations of the world. We can be sure, however, that it won't be accepted unless it is proposed.

In 1955, a conference to review the Charter of the U.N. automatically appears on the agenda of the General Assembly. Article 109 so provides. The veto cannot prevent the holding of that conference. Out of that conference could come nothing... or there could come the greatest proposals for international cooperation within the framework of enforceable law since the Constitution of the United States.

SYRACUSE HOLDS INFORMAL MEETING
By Russell Damstra

The Hope alumni whom we could reach in this area had an informal dinner in Syracuse at the Mizpan Hotel on March 23. We had a most delightful time. Each alumni introduced himself and related one incident pertaining to his or her college years. We had some discussion whether we should attempt a chapter for this city and section. Syracuse is the center of the state and quite a number of Hope people live in the area. They are willing to come to Syracuse but find Albany or Rochester too far to go. It was agreed to have a similar meeting next year and I was given the responsibility to arrange for it. I asked Richard Fuller and Robert Siersma to serve with me on the committee. Our section may include Utica, Auburn, Herkimer and neighborhoods.

The persons (27 in all) who attended the meeting we had were: Rev. Raymond Van Zoeren, Alice Scholten Van Zoeren, Marjorie M. Pickens, E. E. Morgan, Florence Dykema Morgan, Wilfrid Hasbrouck, Ruth Heinricks Hasbrouck, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Siersma, Rev. Richard J. Blocker, Dorothy Doan Blocker, Dr. and Mrs. Orren D. Chapman, Peter A. REV. HENRY SCHOON DIES ON APRIL 23
From Holland Evening Sentinel
dated April 24, 1954

The Rev. Henry Ernest Schoon, professor of Greek and German at Hope College, died unexpectedly Friday afternoon (April 23) at his home in Waukazoo. Death was caused by a heart attack. Rev. Schoon, who was 62, had had a heart ailment for some time.

Surviving are the wife, Helen Haberland Schoon, also a member of the Hope faculty; two sisters, Mrs. Herman Dreesman of Tetonka, Iowa, and Mrs. Alvin Hayenga of Phoenix, Arizona, and a brother, Jerry Schoon of Buffalo Center, Iowa.

Rev. Schoon, born in Lennox, S. D. December 1, 1891, attended Pleasant Prairie Academy, German Valley, Illinois and received his A. B. degree from Hope College in 1915 and his B. D. from New Brunswick Theological Seminary in 1922. Hope College conferred the M. A. degree upon him for his work at New Brunswick.

A veteran of World War I, he became principal of Pleasant Prairie Academy in 1923 and held that position until 1946 when he came to Hope College. He was made dean of the chapel at Hope in 1952.

Rev. Schoon served on the Hope Board of Trustees from 1925 to 1946 and was a member of New Brunswick Seminary Board of Superintendents from 1935 to 1945. He served on the Board of Education, Reformed Church in America, for several years and at one time was vice chairman of the General Synod’s committee on International Goodwill.

During World War I, he served in the infantry and saw action in three major battles. He received the Silver Star for Gallantry. During the summer of 1937, he returned to Europe, spending most of his time in Germany conferring with educational leaders. The professor was author of “History of the Pleasant Prairie Classis” and “History of the Pleasant Prairie Academy.”

Funeral rites were held in Hope Memorial Chapel. Burial was at Pilgrim Home Cemetery.

★1950. Kenneth and Margaret Wolfensperger Kleis have left on an extended trip to the Netherlands to visit Margaret’s parents at Zwolle. They plan to return about August 1.

FUND TO HONOR PROF. SCHOON

Various campus organizations and interested students and faculty have established a fund in memory of Rev. Henry E. Schoon. A committee composed of Mrs. Schoon, Prof. Ver Beck, Dr. Lubbers, and students Carole Hoefs, Arthur Jentz and Edwin Cook shall decide the purpose of this fund. Among the suggestions made thus far have been a student award, or a small memorial chapel to be incorporated into the new men’s dormitory. Additional suggestions and comments from interested persons will be appreciated by the committee. Approximately $800 toward the goal of $1,000 have been received. Donations will be accepted by any member of the committee.

MARGARET DREGMAN PRICE ’35

Margaret Dregman Price ’35 passed away on June 26 in the Hancock Hospital, Hancock, Michigan. Funeral services were conducted Monday, June 28, in Houghton. Rev. H. P. Bothner, Presbyterian minister presiding, and at Pilgrim Home Cemetery Chapel, Wednesday, June 30, with the Rev. Paul E. Hinkamp officiating. Interment at Pilgrim Home Cemetery, Holland.

Margaret Dregman, born November 19, 1913, was salutatorian of her high school and valedictorian at Hope in 1933. She took her M.A. at the University of Michigan in 1936. She then taught English for two years at Allegan High School.

On August 13, 1938, she married Sherwood R. Price ’35, a high school and college classmate. They lived in Detroit or its suburbs for five years. At Lawrence Tech, where her husband was teaching, Margaret acquired a "Junior Engineer’s" certificate, of which she was diffidently proud. (Throughout her life, her eye was as quick to appreciate architectural and engineering achievements as it was to detect the flash of the kingfisher, the crimson of wild strawberries, the dimples of rising trout in the region in which she was to make her home.)

In 1943 the Prices moved to Houghton, Michigan, where her husband is teaching at the present time in the Language Department at Michigan Tech. When an army cadet nursing program got underway in Houghton during the war, Michigan Tech participated. At first Margaret taught psychology to the nurses; later, on a part-time basis, she taught psychology and sociology to engineering students as well.

In December, 1947, Margaret resigned her teaching position in order to devote all her time to her family, which was enlarged with the adoption of a son, Bruce.

She and her husband sang in three church choirs, one in Detroit and two in Houghton. She was active in several civic and educational organizations, but her chief interests were always in her home and her family.

Even toward the end, when chronic diabetes, nephritis, hypertension, and coronary insufficiency were sapping her vitality, she displayed much of her mother’s indomitable spirit and her father’s sagacity and love of learning.

LETTERS

Carol Kile Canfield '46, writing from Bloomingburg, New York .

Gentlemen: We are not engaged in missionary work, nor great scientific endeavor, but this is the time of the year when we are extremely busy both church worker, treasurer, and school worker. We are a tribe late with our announcement since Doris Jeanne arrived February 22, 1954, but the busy young lady keeps us all quite busy. We will again miss the April 5th meeting of the New York Club, but hope to see 'news' of it in the next issue of the Alumni Magazine. It is a wonderful magazine — keep up the good work!

Lucille (Teninga) Toren '46, writing from Chicago .

Dear Friends: At long last, we are giving up to be a substitute teacher in Roseland, on the far south side of Chicago, and we still seem to be in the process of getting settled. Since we do not want to miss any issues of the Alumni Magazine, please change your records to show our address as Mr. and Mrs. Chester J. Toren, 10724 South Rhodes Avenue, Chicago 28, Illinois.

Enclosed is a very recent snapshot of our only pride and joy, son John Robert—Hope Class of 1973. His proud father is sitting on the front steps next to him. Chet is from the class of 1941. He is a Statistician for the Zurich-American Insurance Companies. During this past year Chet has spent many evenings studying for the casualty actuarial examinations. In addition to this, he is a very busy man with church work as deacon, church treasurer, choir member, and Sunday School worker.

I, too, am kept extremely busy with church activities besides the usual household tasks and motherly chores. Occasionally, I am called upon to be a substitute teacher in both the grade and high schools. We thoroughly enjoy meeting our Hope friends from time to time and particularly we look forward each year to the Chicago Alumni dinner meeting. We think the Alumni Magazine is an excellent publication and keeps us well-informed about current campus events as well as giving us news about former Hopeites.

Wm. E. Welmers '36, writing from Ithaca, N.Y.

Please change our address, effective immediately, to Wm. E. (W) Welmers, Lutheran Mission, Monrovia, Liberia.

I guess a word of explanation is in order. We are taking the family back to Liberia (Peggy's birthplace) for a fatherly-month stay. I will be doing further research on African languages, particularly on the problems affecting missions. Specifically, I'll be spending most of my time on Kpelle, revising the lessons I wrote in 1946-48 for missionaries, gathering material for a dictionary, consulting and supervising language instruction, trying to coordinate translation work for the church schools in the tribe, and beginning work on problems of a native hymnology. I also hope to get some organized tape recordings of a number of West African languages. Though this is a little project is only in its humblest beginning stages, it may turn out to be the biggest news in a century in African linguistics. We will be located in the village of Yankewele in the interior of Liberia.

Rose Seith Maatman, writing on May 5, 1954 .

Hi! Being wanted to drop a few lines since I pass the alumni office every day. I was graduated (without a single examination credit, and now I've decided to teach). I find myself in the strange position of being alumna, student, and vice president of the PTA. It keeps me on my toes to decide from which angle to approach things. It's lots of fun to be on campus and see the many changes since my first college days. There's a new Koffee Kettle that has replaced the Model, a very complete Blue Key Book Store, more offices in Van Raalte, the library is changed. The students are much the same—only their faces are different.

We're living in Virginia Park where we don't have far to go to the beach. Don has turned from carpenter work to insurance. The reason for the PTA activities is Stevie, aged 6. We also have Peggy, aged 3. Hope friends who come to Holland, be sure to call us or drop in!

Pictured are James van Putten (left) conferring with Prof. Harry Frissel (center), who is holding a high powered oscillator, and Prof. Kleis, considering one of the rectifying tubes to be used in the construction of the Hope cyclotron. When completed the Hope equipment will contain a one half ton magnet which will be wound with 400 turns of one-fourth inch copper tubing. It will be capable of an output of 1.6 million electron-volts (mev) protons, in the making of matter from energy. It will be housed in the basement of the Science building for use by all the science departments. Construction will start in September.
