Clerk Advocates Central Purchase Office for Holland

Grevengeod Believes
Strict Budget Control
Would Benefit City

A central purchasing office for the city of Holland is advocated by City Clerk Clarence Grevengeod in his annual report to Common Council.

Grevengeod, who recently attended a convention of municipal finance officers in Denver, said such an arrangement could save the city considerable sums if bids on all purchases and work were channeled through a central office which could then keep strict budgetary control in advance of actual expenditures.

The clerk pointed out that Holland is fortunate compared with other cities on debt service which is only $10,000 in general city obligations and $5,500 in special assessments.

"This may be an indication of a good situation, but on the other hand it might signify that the city of Holland is at the point of stagnation so far as improvements are concerned."

License fees charged in Holland yield little revenue. Grevengeod said local ordinances are far out of date and if the city could make inspections of milk handlers in the old days for $1 per store, it should do so no longer. Other similar antiquities in ordinances are costing the city a considerable revenue. Grevengeod said the city received $34,918.96 last year from sales tax diversion. If the repeal of this issue goes on the November ballot, local voters should be aware what it means to them and the city of Holland.

Grevengeod also pointed to the necessity of building good will in the community. The home owner is the stable part of the citizenry and most of them are here to stay. These citizens and others should receive pamphlets and folders explaining taxes and affairs of the city.

A carefully worked-out plan of training employees in city work also was advocated by the clerk. "Not only should the municipality hire good employees but equally important is the weeding out of inefficient ones. Employees should be given an incentive and training for supervisory positions with a corresponding financial incentive. Each employee should feel he is an important cog in an important organization," Grevengeod said.

He said Holland could benefit by a rearrangement of departments, particularly from the viewpoint of finances and public relations. He also suggested elimination of duplicate records in the cemetery and clerk's offices.

Since the city of Holland underwrites a deficit at the hospital each year, council was urged to consider possibilities in a new arrangement in which physicians might be willing to contribute through financial means or through donations of equipment for the new addition.

A "suggestion" program whereby an employee offering an outstanding suggestion would be given a reward commensurate with the value of the suggestion, also was listed.

According to police, Mrs. Bell was getting out of a car which was driven by Madeline E. Zych of 31 West First St., when a car driven by George E. Walbridge of 121 1/2 East Ninth St. backed into the door and injured her.

She was taken to Holland hospital and released after treatment.

Sigler Speaks At Saugatuck Resort Opening

Saugatuck, July 1 — Gov. Kim Sigler quit his muttonous ship of state and flew here to take part in the Saugatuck-Douglas Lion's club official opening of the resort season Wednesday night at the Big Pavilion.

Sigler highlighted a brief program which included Mike Holm, Minnesota secretary of state; Russell J. Boyle, editor of the Michigan Tradesman, Clarence A. Lynds, president of the village of Saugatuck; H. A. McDonald of Saugatuck and Lem Brady of Saugatuck, district governor of the Lions.

Following a "non-political" speech in which Sigler pointed out the importance of the tourist and resort business to Michigan, the governor teamed with Mrs. Lem Brady to lead the grand march.

"Our tourist and resort business is the second largest industry in Michigan," said Sigler. We have a lot to be thankful for here in Michigan."

Mike Holm, who has established an enviable record as secretary of the state of Minnesota for the last 28 years, said if he ever had to leave Minnesota, he would "certainly think of coming to Saugatuck to live."

Holm praised Sigler as a truly fine governor.

Editor Boyle, of Grand Rapids, wished the Saugatuck-Douglas area success for the resort season. A grand march directed by H. A. McDonald followed the speeches and when all the lines of dancers were assembled in front of the bandstand, Mrs. Eugene Phillips led the group in singing the national anthem.

Sigler landed at the Douglas airport at 6:30 p.m. and was whisked to The Dock where officials and their wives were guests at a dinner.

Attending were Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Fennville; Sen. and Mrs. Harold D. Tripp of Allegan; Mr. and Mrs. Irving K. Pershing of Saugatuck; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burns of Douglas; Mr. and Mrs. Howard McDonald of Saugatuck; Mrs. Henry Brady of Houston, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. Lem Brady of Saugatuck; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Dunn and daughter Shirley of Douglas.

Also at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. John Constantine, Mr. and Mrs. Beifield and Mr. and Mrs. Shutter, all of Chicago and Saugatuck; and the distinguished guests.

Sigler spent the night at the Butler hotel in Saugatuck as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Kirby. He was to leave by plane this morning for Lansing. Accompanying him was State police Trooper George Brannay.

Christian School Makes Another Expansion Move

Increasing Enrollment Problems Discussed;
Study Secondary Issue

The Holland Christian school society, at a special meeting Monday night, took the second step in its proposed expansion and renovating program when it approved a $28,000 "new look" for its Central Ave. grade school building. The first step in the program is underway with the expected completion of the South Side elementary school sometime this year.

In addition, the society heard and discussed building problems brought by the increased enrollment in both the high school and grades. Supt. Bert P. Bos outlined prospective enrollments.

Partial modernization and renovating on the Central Ave. building will start immediately, board officials said. The "face lifting" would include a brick front with new approach; painting of exterior and interior; asphalt tile floors in all of the rooms, new rest room facilities and many other improvements.

In presenting the plan to the society, a board spokesman said the work was not being done because the building was a fire hazard. He reported that a state fire inspector in approving the building, said that the school could be evacuated in less than a minute.

Funds for renovating will be taken from the reserve established by the two recent school drives, the spokesman said. There will be funds to cover most of the expense of a proposed West Side elementary school, he announced.

In addressing the group, Bos said, "It is obvious that we are faced with a dual problem due to the necessity of providing facilities for increasing enrollment in both grades and high schools."

Bos said that already 96 pupils are enrolled in the kindergarten for next September with every reason to anticipate that the number will exceed 100. He said that when the South Side school is completed, four kindergarten sections will be provided. Three sections each of first and fourth grade pupils, should also be included, he said.

"From a study of all of the problems involved there seems to be no question about the need of having additional elementary school facilities (even after the South Side school is completed) as early as September of 1950. This includes the continued use of our present Central Ave. and 15th Street buildings..." Bos revealed.

Bos said that the architects have recommended additional classrooms on the south side of the high school, or on an area now comprising 20th Street. No solution to the problem has been found, he reported.

However, the superintendent did report progress in reducing the increasing high school enrollment in Holland. He revealed that the board of trustees of the Zeeland Christian school has been requested to consider the possibility of keeping their ninth grade pupils by September, 1950. He said the local board had been assured that Zeeland will try to accommodate by September of 1949. Furthermore, he added that with the new school at Allendale, that society has decided to retain its ninth grade pupils this September. Hudsonville and Beaverdam Christian schools have operated their own ninth grade for several years, he added. He also announced that the boards of trustees of the rural areas have been asked to study the possibility of extending their facilities to include the other high school grades in the near future.

"Even with the help of these rural communities in alleviating the problem somewhat, our high school facilities are becoming inadequate for the pupils residing in Holland and outlying areas," Bos said in conclusion.

William H. Loutit

Leading Citizen Of Grand Haven Succumbs at 81

Grand Haven, July 1 (Special)—William H. Loutit, 81, of 333 Washington St., member of the Michigan Conservation commission from 1927 to 1941, died at 4 p.m. Friday in Municipal hospital where he was taken Wednesday. Until he was taken ill a month ago he had been in robust health.

Although a life-long Democrat, Loutit was appointed to the commission by Gov. Fred Green, a Republican, in a reorganization program. Loutit was influential in developing recreational facilities in Michigan and it was mainly through his efforts that state parks at Holland, Grand Haven and Muskegon were established. He was chairman of the commission 12 years.

He was a former president of the West Michigan Pike association which developed the West Michigan Pike to link resorts in Western Michigan. It is now U.S. 31.

Loutit served as mayor of Grand Haven for five years in the early 1900's. At the time of his death, he was president of the Keller Tool Co. since 1924 and a director of Grand Haven State bank since 1918. At one time he owned a steamship company which plied out of Grand Haven. He also organized the first artificial gas plant in Grand Haven.

He was a charter member and officer many years in the Spring Lake Country club, a member of the Grand Rapids Peninsula club, former director of the Tuesday Musicals of which his wife was president more than 25 years.

Among other offices he held in earlier years, he was on the State Board of Corrections and Charities from 1915 to 1919 under Gov. Woodbridge N. Ferris, and on the State Highway board from 1919 to 1933.

He was born in Grand Haven Dec. 18, 1867, son of a millionaire lumberman. He is survived by the wife, the former Maude Kraai who has been an invalid for four years, and a son, William R. Loutit of Chicago. Another son, Clyde, died many years ago.

Fishing Is Slow

Ideal weather conditions prevail on the piers today, but fishing is still on the "slow" side, local anglers reported this morning.

Zeeland Folk Tense as Dial Service Is Born

Zeeland folk tensed in their seats as Mayor Nicholas Frankena signaled the cut-over to dial telephone service in Zeeland Wednesday night at ceremonies in Zeeland high school gymnasium.

The mayor pressed a button which alerted employees in the old exchange to cut some 1,500 wires clearing the way for operating the new $250,000 dial system. With old wires cut, employees in the new plant half a block away pulled hundreds of tapes removing blocks of wood, throwing the new system into operation.

Spokesmen at old and new plants described the dramatic operations, their voices coming over speakers in the auditorium. Mayors Frankena's first call on the new system was to Mayor Bernard DePree in Holland, and the 350 persons in the auditorium heard Frankena's one-sided conversation. Amid congratulations, the two mayors discussed plans for attending meetings of the Board of Supervisors this afternoon in Grand Haven.

For five minutes preceding the cut-over, Zeelanders making calls were asked to postpone them so that no conversations would be cut-off in the change-over.

A burning cord in the motion picture caused an eight-minute delay in the early part of the program, but the slack was taken up and the cut-over was accomplished a minute or so after 10 p.m.

Telephone Manager A. G. Sall presided at the program, which included a variety of educational features. A movie, "Just Imagine," told the dramatic story of the telephone, and a traveling Detroit crew staged an electronics demonstration entitled "Modern Miracles." Paul G. Leslie, division commercial superintendent, gave the address.

Among exhibits on display were an operating model of the dial telephone system, a microphone "hear your own voice," an oscilloscope "see your own voice," and panels on operations of mobile telephone service, television network, rural telephone service, and what it takes to provide telephone service.

Rules Restrict Use of Bottles At State Park

No Bottles Allowed on Beach in Effort to Rid Park of Broken Glass

A few amendments to establish rules and regulations at Holland state park were announced today by Park Manager Clare Broad who asked co-operation of the public in observing the rules.

One new rule requires that bottles and all glass be kept off the beach, since broken glass is one of the greatest hazards and is responsible for 90 per cent of all first aid given in the manager's office.

Broad said Cub Scouts did a fine job removing broken glass from the park last spring. "There are almost no traces of broken glass at the moment and we'd like to keep it that way," he said.

Broad also announced office hours in the pavilion for camp and trailer permits. Such permits may be obtained between 10 a.m. and noon, from 2 and 5 p.m. and from 6 to 8 p.m. The curtailed service is necessary because of a restricted budget and the necessity of controlling hours of personnel, Broad said.

Permits must be obtained before tents or trailers are put in place. The camp ground also is closed to the use of unattended trailers and tents. This is defined as a trailer or tent not in use for a continuous period of 48 hours by one or more persons registered in that camp.

Broad explained that some persons used to set up trailers for the maximum length of time and occupy them only on week-ends. Under the new rule, such trailers can be moved to make space for others since demand for trailer spaces usually exceed the supply.

The park is closed between midnight and 5 a.m. to all uses except occupancy by registered campers. Reasonable quiet is expected after midnight.

Broad also called attention to the need of competent chaperones. Rules on this score are flexible and say permit may be refused to persons under 17 unless accompanied by an adult.

Established rules point out that persons who violate rules are subject to prosecution which can bring fines up to $100 and/or jail sentences to 90 days. These rules cover defacing or destroying public property or vegetation, rubbish disposal, no open fires except in designated places, no firearms, no dogs on beaches, and no changing of clothing in rest rooms or motor vehicles.

Railroad Police Arrest Quartet

Eddie Smith, 52, of Traverse City; George Dunlap, 63, of 9 Ninth St.; and James Niverson, 63, of Marion, Ind., each began serving 15-day terms in the county jail in lieu of fine and costs of $13.90 Wednesday pleading guilty in municipal court to charges of being disorderly and drinking beer in a public place.

Charles Vander Kooi, 63, of Holland, was arraigned on the same charges and paid fine and costs of $13.90.

All four men were arrested by Eugene Finney, Chesapeake & Ohio railroad detective, early Wednesday between the Holland depot and the freight warehouse.

Erville Ten Brink, 22, of route 1, Grand Haven, and John Douma, Jr., 21, of route 2, Holland, each paid fine and costs of $13.90 for drinking in public. They were arrested by sheriff's officers Monday for drinking on M-21 in Holland township.

Vote Appropriation For Camp Betterment

Grand Haven, July 1 (Special)—The county Board of Supervisors voted $200 to use for necessary minor repairs and to buy utensils at the newly purchased Camp Pottawatomie. The action came after a report on the camp by Clarence Reenders.

Reenders said a group from Maple Grove Christian Reformed church in Holland asked to use the camp and said it "was one of the finest things the Board ever did when it purchased the camp."

John Galien, who opposed the purchase, offered his apologies and retracted his opposition and said the committee should be commended for their action.

The Board of Appeals approved the Crampton Mfg. Co. application to build a $30,000 addition to their factory facing 12th St., following a spirited public hearing Tuesday night in the Common Council chamber.

The board stipulated that the Crampton Co. "must do all in its power to eliminate causes for complaints regarding smoke and gas nuisances in the neighborhood and other objectionable features incident to its manufacturing operations."

A storm of protest erupted at the public hearing preceding a Board meeting. Fifty property owners within the area were at the session to lodge grievances against the company.

Under the provisions of the city ordinances, the board is empowered to grant "non-conforming" use of property in class B residential areas on which the Crampton Co. will build.

The Board gave its decision after adjourning to a closed meeting which lasted from 9 p.m. until 11:15 p.m.

Crampton Co. was represented by Vernon D. Ten Cate. He explained the building would be a one-story structure on property adjoining the present factory on the 12th St. side.

He pointed to a "sorry" industrial picture in Holland and emphasized the need for increased industrial activity. He quoted a Chamber of Commerce bulletin which mentioned several industries moving out of town.

Ten Cate said according to local unemployment office figures there are 836 unemployed compensations on file today. With Bohn Aluminum and other industries closed, the situation in Holland is going to be critical after the resort season ends and throws more persons out of work.

Ten Cate pointed out that Crampton's assessed valuation totals $209,350, and brings annual taxes of $5,000 to the City of Holland.

He also outlined the development of the plant to a point where together with their plant in Grand Rapids, Crampton does an annual business of $5,000,000 in the manufacture of refrigerator and automotive parts.

The company operates 14 die-casting machines in the local factory and seven in Grand Rapids. Company officials said they want to bring all 21 machines to Holland. However, they would not be housed in the new addition.

The addition will increase employment from 200 to 350 persons; salaries from $563,000 to $900,000 annually; use of electric current from $8,000 to $15,000; water from $1,150 to $3,500 and gas from $16,000 to $27,000.

Collectively the protests boiled down to smoke nuisances, gaseous fumes in the area, noise and "poor housekeeping" on the part of Crampton Mfg. Co. Parking problems were also mentioned in the complaint.

Several residents said they had lived there many years before the factory was built. Crampton took the plant over from Federal Aircraft Co. in 1937.

Many were concerned about possibilities of further expansion in the future.

Mrs. John Bekken of 315 West 13th St. said, "My husband and I have spent $1,500 on improvements in our kitchen and now all I can see from my kitchen window is Crampton boxes piled 15 to 20 feet high. I used to be able to look out that same kitchen window and see big boats coming up the bay."

Jack Van Bragt said his wife has to do the washing twice because of soot from burning oil barrels belonging to Crampton.

Raymond Mooi summed grievances of property owners.

Clarence Lokker, a member of the Crampton Board of Directors, assured the group he would personally bring the protests to the attention of the board today with emphasis on "bad housekeeping" on the part of the company.

Dutchmen Annex Eighth Straight Win Thursday

Skaalen, Victor Hurl For Locals; Classy Fielding Featured

The Holland Flying Dutchmen outscored the South Haven baseballers 13-7, Thursday night at Riverview Park to cap their eighth straight win. Mike Skaalen and Ernie Victor worked for the locals while Brinks went the route for the losers.

South Haven scored four runs in their first two innings on two errors, two hits and two walks. The Dutchmen quickly wrested the lead in their half of the second when they scored eight big runs.

Czerkies walked and Ernie Victor was out second to first to end the inning after eight runs had crossed the plate on five hits.

South Haven, trailing by five runs, added one run in their third frame on a walk, a fielder's choice and a hit by Rightfielder Moore.

The contest settled down to a one-two-three affair for the next inning and one-half. Skaalen relieved Victor on the hill for the Dutchmen in the fifth and continued for the remaining innings.

Holland added three runs in their half of the fifth on three hits and a walk.

South Haven scored two runs in their half of the fourth on fielder's choices with men on third when third baseman Lou Borgman elected the throw to first instead of the cut-off play at home.

Several flashy fielding plays highlighted the contest for the locals.

Right fielder Hamelink of South Haven led off their seventh with a walk. Next up, shortstop Wenban, hit a sharp drive just to right of shortstop Don Mulder who stabbed the ball backhand, flipped it to De Neff on second forcing Hamelink. De Neff jumped up and threw to first to double Wenban.

Another spectacular play was made by Frankie Wlodarczyk in the sixth. He ran after catcher Trey's fly ball in left center field and dove after the sphere, catching it just off the ground.

Wenzel replaced Wlodarczyk in the fifth behind the plate and Wlodarczyk moved to left field replacing Harold Van Wieren.

An average adult man eats 65 pounds of sugar a year.

This group studies maps and blueprints for the new water pipeline which the Board of Public Works is laying to new wells on Waverly road. Laying of the pipeline is one link in a long-range program which eventually will see the erection of a water softening plant for the city. Seated are Supervisor John Helder of Holland township and County Engineer Carl T. Bowen of Spring Lake. Standing are Road Commissioner William Verduin of Grand Haven, George J. Tubergen, who is a township resident, and Commissioners Albert Hyma of Holland and John Van Noord of Jamestown.

BPW Gets Permit to Lay Pipeline in Township

The Ottawa County Road commission Monday afternoon granted a permit to the Holland Board of Public Works to lay a water pipeline over township property to new wells on Waverly road, following a public hearing in Federal school attended by 50 township residents. Board of Public Works representatives and road commissioners.

Unanimous approval was granted on the first ballot in a special meeting of commissioners and BPW representatives after the half-hour hearing.

Purpose of the hearing was to determine where the pipeline will be laid, and the commission approved the BPW's request to lay the line on the north side of East Eighth St. to the present Eighth St. wells, then south two blocks over BPW property to 10th St. and east on the north side of 10th St. to the new wells on Waverly road.

Road Commissioner Albert H. Hyma presided. Joe Geerts, president of the Board of Public Works, admitted that the board erred in applying for the necessary permit to cross township property. He freely admitted the error and said the board had been presumptuous in believing no opposition would be encountered.

He explained that trenches are filled as soon as the pipe is laid and the front yards and roadways which are torn up will be left in as good or better condition than before. Trees will not be disturbed, he said.

He explained that a pipeline down 14th St. would not be practical since the line must connect with the three wells on Eighth St.

Answering a query on whether the new line would improve the "rotten water we drink now" he said people in Holland city also drink "rotten water" and the water softening plant is planned to remedy just that fault, as well as save soap and prolong use of pipes and equipment.

He explained that the new deep water wells will not affect surface well supplies. He added this method of water supply was advocated by competent engineers as the most economical, most direct and the least trouble to anybody.

Township residents attending the hearing were concerned mostly about damage to their yards and driveways, the effect on their own water supply and whether they would benefit in the new program.

County Engineer Carl T. Bowen who said the BPW had applied for the permit last Thursday, submitted maps and blueprints for the pipeline route. He explained the road commission, consisting of Capt. William Verduin of Grand Haven, John Van Noord of Jamestown and Albert Hyma of Holland, takes charge of all roads and roadways, and it is this group which issues permits and investigates complaints.

Meanwhile plans went forward today for laying the pipeline across M-21 as it curves onto Eighth St.

Response Good To Queries in Guidance Study

Gerrit H. Wiegink, co-ordinator for the Co-operative Training program in Holland high school, said today that response to questionnaires on vocational guidance sent to members of the '45 graduating class of Holland high has been enthusiastic.

So far, he has received 30 replies to questionnaires sent out last Friday seeking information for a follow-up study which will be used in high school curriculum planning.

Several replies included personal letters and comments which are valuable to those evaluating current practices in secondary education. One student remarked he had never seen any use in Latin which he considered a dead language while in high school, but now he realizes the value of the language in studying chemistry.

Many others remarked they were glad Holland high has instituted the study and believed they would have profited from such a study if it had been carried on when they were in school.

Wiegink said his office in Junior high is now preparing questionnaires to be sent members of the class of '41 and is seeking correct addresses of the former students.

Since Wiegink is new to the Holland school system and unknown to most alumni, the questionnaire is accompanied by a letter from Principal J. J. Riemersma.

Alumni are asked to list the five subjects they consider the most valuable, also check three characteristics of school life most valuable, and check blanks relating to problems, school planning, and general information on present occupation.

Couple United in Church Service

The wedding of Miss Lois Althea Van Zomerem and Cornelius H. De Blaay was solemnized Saturday at 8 p.m. in the parlors of Third Reformed church. The Rev. C. A. Stoppels, assisted by the Rev. George Vander Hill of Muskegon, performed the double ring ceremony before an arrangement of palms, ferns and pink and white peonies flanked by seven-branch candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. John Van Zomerem, 46 East 13th St. The groom is the son of Mrs. Henry De Blaay of Grand Rapids.

Miss Edna Dalman, pianist, played prelude and ceremony music. She accompanied George D. Zuidema who sang "O Promise Me" and "O Lord Most Holy."

The bride approached the altar on the arm of her mother who gave her in marriage. Her traditional gown of white satin was fashioned with a bouffant skirt and a long train trimmed with chantilly lace. The lace-trimmed long sleeves tapered to points at the wrists. Lace also trimmed the neckline of the gown. Her fingertip veil of French illusion was fastened to a tiara of seed pearls.

Her shower bouquet consisted of pale pink roses, swainsons and sweet peas centered with a white rose corsage. She also carried the wedding handkerchief of her mother. A double strand of pearls completed her ensemble.

Mrs. C. Garvelink, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid wore a gown of pink net with fitted bodice and full double net skirt. Her bouquet was of roses, snapdragons and delphiniums. Little Judy Van Eerden as flower girl wore a pink dotted Swiss dress and carried a colonial bouquet. The ringbearer, Richard Brondyke, wore a white suit and carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Henry De Blaay, brother of the groom, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. John Van Eerden were master and mistress of ceremonies.

Ninety guests were present at the reception following the ceremony. Serving were the Misses Dorothy Williams, Louise Miller and Bessie Taylor of Grand Rapids and Evan Dalman and Mary Lois Dalman of Holland.

Inner Channel Will be Widened At Grand Haven

Grand Haven, June 29—Grand Haven will receive a $225,000 slice of the $573,000,000 total appropriation bill for flood control and navigation recently signed into law by President Truman.

According to plans of the U. S. engineering department, the funds will be used to widen the inner harbor at Grand Haven from 200 to 300 feet from the Grand Trunk carryway slip to the railroad bridge at Ferrysburg.

A 700-foot turning basin with a 18-foot depth opposite the Construction Aggregates Co. to take care of 600-foot boats will be taken care of with Grand Haven's share.

Engineering office officials said they will advertise for bids and the work will be started after a survey, now underway, is completed.

Work could be finished by fall if no obstacles are met, officials said.

They said if the bid is let to a firm using a hydraulic dredge, the silt will be put on the island to build that land up for possible industrial or shipping use. Hydraulic dredging is usually cheaper, it was pointed out.

This will make the second attempt to convert the island to stable ground. In 1938, approximately five acres were filled in to a depth of four feet. Shell Oil Co. and a local coal company now use this land for storage.

The final approval of the sum culminates 10 years of effort by the Grand Haven harbor commission, city officials and the Chamber of Commerce.

Hearings and several legal entanglements, including a presidential veto of the bill which included the Grand Haven work, have delayed the improvement.

In 1939 the tonnage was 1,464,576 and in 1941 it jumped to 2,034,979.

James Van Zyl, harbor commissioner, presented the local harbor improvement need at a hearing in Washington last January. He was instrumental in getting the Grand Haven request tacked onto the finally approved appropriation bill.

U. S. Army engineers said the city must get certified titles to property bordering the channel improvement to relieve the federal government from possible damage when the silt from the river is deposited on the island.

director, coach and teacher for 18 years in the Grand Haven schools, will become an assistant professor of continuing education at Michigan State college and will assume his new duties Aug. 15.

E Bond Sales Behind Quotas

Reports from the 83 Michigan counties up to June 14 show a total of $42,067,351 or 67 per cent of the state's $63 million E bond quota has been reached, according to Frank N. Isbey, drive chairman.

The security local campaign officially ends June 30, but all sales up to July 17 will count toward the mark, officials said.

Meanwhile in Holland, E bond sales have continued at their usual pace. Local bond sellers say they have noticed very little increase during the drive.

Only 14 counties have passed the halfway mark figures reveal. Dickinson, in the Upper Peninsula, is the only county that has made its quota.

Next in standing are Midland, 76 per cent; Wayne, 76 per cent; Genesee, 75 per cent; Menominee, 73 per cent; Ontonagon, 66 per cent; Muskegon and Lenawee, each 60 per cent; Washtenaw, 58 per cent; Kent, 57 per cent; Gogebic and Luce, each 53 per cent; Marquette and Oakland, 52 per cent each and Iron and Bay each with 50 per cent.

Power Yacht Race Is Scheduled

A new feature of the LMYA regatta to be held at Macatawa Bay during the July 4 week-end will be a power yacht navigational race. It was announced today. The race is scheduled for 4 p.m. on the Fourth in Lake Michigan off Holland harbor. This race is open to all power yachts recognized by the LMYA, if owned or chartered by a member of a recognized yacht club, it was reported.

Speed is not a factor in this event, with the slower yachts competing on the same basis as faster ones, officials said. Determining factors are skill in maintaining a constant speed and in keeping accurately true compass courses on each leg of the race.

Entries may be made at the MBYC club house and complete instructions will be given one hour before the race. The LMYA has purchased trophies valued at $150 which will be awarded to first, second and third place winners.

Members of the Power Yacht Race committee are: Phillips Brooks and Edward R. Jones of the Macatawa Bay club, James A. Hudson of the Southern Shore club, chairman, James H. Fahey, Chicago club, Dr. E. V. J. Young, Diversey club and Harry E. Lambert, Burnham Park club.

From June 28 to July 2, approximately 80 county agents and assistants will spend a week on the campus of Michigan State college at East Lansing. They will get a concentrated short course in new developments in Agricultural and home economics research.

Last June, Michigan's agents visited the research plant of the U. S. Department of Agriculture at Beltsville, Md., near Washington, D. C. This year they're going to find out what's new at Michigan's own experiment station.

They will be housed and fed in one of the college dormitories.

Murray D. Van Wagoner, former governor of Michigan, recently participated in a ceremony commemorating the restoration of the trade between Holland and Germany. Van Wagoner, military government director for Bavaria, and Karl Scharnagl, mayor of Munich, examine some of the 4,000 tulip bulbs presented by the Netherlands government to the city of Munich as a gesture of good will. The bulbs will be planted in the gardens surrounding the Haus der Kunst, or art museum, which stands on one of Munich's main boulevards.

Farm Women Must Be Good World Neighbors

Farm women in this country can and must become better world neighbors, says Mrs. Sayre, president of the Associated Country Women of the World.

The ACWW is an international organization of five and one-half million women from farms and villages and has as its aims the betterment of rural homes and communities everywhere. Mrs. Sayre, a farm woman from Ackworth, Ia., has taken these aims for her own, and in an article in a farming magazine she explains how farm women can be "good neighbors."

"We can begin the job in our own homes, and in our own communities, and in our schools," Mrs. Sayre says. Real understanding is based first of all upon knowledge. So, if we are to understand the world in which we live, we must learn more about people of other countries, their history, their political life, agriculture, their customs, and their geography.

Recent opinion polls show an appalling ignorance of geography. Fifty-one per cent of Americans can't identify Argentina on an outline map and one-third of us cannot identify France. How can we be neighbors when we don't even know where our neighbors live?

"We must realize," Mrs. Sayre continues, "that freedom demands tolerance and respect for human dignity; that men can, if they will, learn to settle their differences without war."

Friendship is what most people of the world want. As we struggle together to build a world of peace and freedom, we want our less fortunate friends to know that they can count on us for help.

Through church and community groups we can send packages of food and clothing, as evidence of our interest and friendship.

Scores of farm families in the United States are learning about other people first hand through correspondence with families in Europe—letters that generally follow gifts from this country.

"Such 'neighborliness' is an act of faith," Mrs. Sayre concludes. "Faith that the world must be one, not only in fact, but one in spirit, also."

Miss Kathryn Simpson Given Surprise Shower

A surprise kitchen shower honoring Miss Kathryn Simpson, who will become the bride of Robert Welton in the near future, was given at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Welton at Jenison park Thursday. A crown of orange blossoms held her fingertip-length veil in place and she carried a bouquet of white roses.

The bridal attendants wore matching gowns of Nile green taffeta styled with cap sleeves and bustle bows. They wore mits matching their gowns. The maid of honor carried orchid daisies with a tiara of orchid and white daisies in her hair and the bridesmaid carried pink daisies with pink and white tiaras in their hair.

Oceana Fair Board Plans Poultry Exhibition Hall

Hart—A new poultry exhibition hall will be constructed on the Oceana Fair grounds and other improvements will be made to buildings in preparation for the 77th annual Oceana Fair, the board of directors decided at a meeting this week.

The new poultry hall will be a cement block structure 25 by 50 feet to replace a wooden structure. The old building will be dismantled and lumber used to build nine more stalls in the race horse barn.

Supt. Mark H. Hunkins of the horse racing department presented a program of six races to the directors for approval with increased purses in each. Instead of $400 for each race a total purse of $500 will be offered this year in an effort to attract faster entrants. The free act program is being contracted and the three-day amateur boxing tournament will run as usual with Jasper Olendorf in charge.

We just can't produce telephone calls this way

It would be nice if we could make up a lot of telephone calls in advance and store them for future use. But we can't. Every telephone call must be made to your order on the spot... whenever you want it, day or night.

Every call requires a system of wires, cables and central office equipment which grows more and more complex as it becomes easier and faster for you to use. And as more telephones are added, the equipment needed per telephone multiplies.

There, in brief, is the "rising-cost characteristic" of the business that always challenges the telephone industry.

Over the years, better equipment and more efficient methods have been able to meet this challenge. But today, these alone are insufficient to offset the overall increase in the costs of running the business.

You can be sure, however, that we shall continue to provide the best possible service at the lowest possible cost. And every day—as the telephone system grows—the value of your service increases because you can call more people and more people can call you.

IF F. D. R. WERE ALIVE

If Franklin D. Roosevelt were alive today, and in reasonably good health, he would almost certainly be a candidate for the Democratic nomination at the coming Democratic convention.
That assertion does not come merely from people who do not like the New Deal president; it is an almost unescapable deduc-tion from things as they are.

A political party wants to win,
as a matter of course. All other considerations yield to that political necessity. As things stand today, about the only man in the Democratic party who could hope to win would be the late Mr.
Roosevelt. If he had lived, domestic politics would probably have developed differently from the way they did under Truman, but the chances are that international affairs would have worked out substantially the way they have.
Russia would hardly have changed her spots even if Roosevelt had been in the White House the past four years.

As a result we would have one more of those well known crisis
elections. All true Democrats would of course have shouted that the Roosevelt medicine was the only nostrum that could save us
from disaster, and enough Republicans or independents would have let their fears persuade them to go along with that point of view. The result would have been a fifth-term president.

While it is idle to speculate about what might have been, it is not unfruitful to imagine what may be some time in the future.
As a fifth-term Mr. Roosevelt might conceivably have been a blessing to the American nation, speaking of him personally. There is no need to talk about dictatorsships. But the builders of the republic saw clearly that it is dangerous to keep any one man in office too long, no matter how benevolent he may be. Whether he so desires or not such a man develops around him a frozen political organization that comes to have all the disadvantages of dictatorship government. The life of a free people depends on change.
The moral is clear. The American people should see to it that never again can this political hardening process go so far as it went under Roosevelt. They can no longer place their reliance in a tradition. That tradition—now embodied in a proposed constitutional amendment—should be written into rigid law. Anything less than that is unsafe.

Macalah, a Prophet of Israel
1 Kings 22

By Henry Geerlings
It is good politics to be friendly with everybody. Politicians practice this whenever they face election time. The farmer is often surprised to see a well-dressed city man trudging across a newly plowed field to shake his hand and discuss his family and his crops and his general health. The foster interest of the prospective candidate in the farmer's well-fare is a bid for his vote at the fall election. Probably all of us fall into the habit of cultivating persons whom we hope to use sometime.

Israel and Judah were rival kingdoms, though they had a common religious and political interest. Wars were waged between them, but at times it was wise and necessary for the two to merge, thus uniting their forces against a common enemy. But such mergers were not well tied together. They were temporary plans for emergencies while at heart the two nations were at odds.

Jehoshaphat of Jerusalem, king of Judah, visited Ahab of Samaria, king of Israel, as a friendly gesture, a courtesy between kings and nations. Ahab faced a serious situation. By treaty between Israel and Syria, the important town of Ramoth-gilead was to be turned over to Israel. The town commanded the highway, and was a strategic center in military operations. But Syria had retained the place and Ahab was worried.
He did not feel able to capture the place from the Syrians.

The arrival of Judah's king gave him the idea of proposing a merger of Israel and Judah for a campaign to force Syria to evacuate Ramoth-gilead. He had good reason for making the proposal for the possession of Ramoth-gilead was equally important for the protection of Jerusalem. So the diplomatic Ahab asked Jehosha-
phat to join him in the undertaking. It was a reasonable request.
Besides, the king of Judah was keen to have the goodwill of Ahab. So the agreement was made,
the merger effected.

Jehoshaphat clung to the belief that no major undertaking should be started without the approval of God. So he asked for the word of the prophet of God to guide their course. Ahab could not refuse the request. To do so would have broken the merger at once.
But Ahab had maintained the semblance of religion by gathering about him a group of trained prophets who played into his hand by always advising him that God would bless him. Their replies always flattered the king and he liked flattery. So with much apparent reverence he asked his four hundred prophets whether or not the Ramoth-gilead campaign should be undertaken. These prophets knew Ahab's desire. Probably they had been tipped off as to what reply to make. They unanimously advised the campaign.

Jehoshaphat was suspicious of these many prophets. He had the courage to inquire about a real prophet of God, and ask that before anything was done about the campaign His word should be had.
This did not please Ahab, but he had to be courteous. It was the only hope of supplementing his army with the army of Judah.
But he tried to discredit the prophet of God, though he acknowledged that Macalah was such a prophet.

Ahab lost his control while speaking of Macalah, and confessed that he hated him because he did not prophesy good concerning him. Jehoshaphat showed his courage by rebuking Ahab. Ahab could not avoid sending for Maca-lah. While a messenger was sent for the prophet of God, a piece of byplay was put on to dissuade Jehoshaphat from disagreeing with the false prophets. It was a magnificent scene the two kings
on royal thrones in royal robes and the group of prophets before them.

The head of the prophets was Zedekiah. He turned dramatic and with horns of iron, symbolized the assurance that victory would result from the attack on Ramoth-gilead. In the messenger, sent to bring Macalah to bribe
him into speaking to please Ahab,
he tried to pledge him to agree with the false prophets. But Maca-lah was not a trimmer, a taker
of bribes, a coveter of Ahab's favor. He stood for God, and only what God gave him to say would he speak. So he was brought.

His reply was an outward agreement on the proposal of Ahab,
but Ahab knew that he was merely imitating his false prophets and at heart was against him.
Then Macalah came out with the truth, describing two fascinating scenes. The final word of Macalah was God's disapproval of the merger and the campaign. But Ahab insisted on having his way and Jehoshaphat showed his weakness
by standing by the merger, even when the prophet of God had advised against it. The result was the tragic death of Ahab and the complete loss of the battle as Macalah had predicted.

When Hope college celebrates its semi-centennial anniversary
next June prospects are that it will graduate the largest class since its incorporation in 1866, began a story in the Wednesday,
July 28, issue of the Holland
Daily Sentinel published in 1915.
The junior class this year had an enrollment of 42 members all of whom are in line for promotion to the senior class and it is expected that practically the entire class of Holland descent were asked to sign it. The petition has been forwarded to the President and ac-

it contained a little over 2,000
names of Hollanders from all parts of the United States. This news story appeared in the Thurs-

ing formulated for a new implement building about 50x100 feet
in which the latest designs in modern machinery can be displayed. The race track will be greatly improved and purses aggregating $1,850 will bring out many of the fastest trotters and pacers in the state.

contest to stay."

At the same time, backers of the pre-Atlantic City contest appeared directly to Pope Pius XII
from the ruling made by Bishop John J. Swint of the Wheeling diocese.

Mary Ruth Ford, of nearby
Warwood, W. Va., told reporters that she chose to stay in the preliminary city contest at Wheeling despite the fact that two other members of churches in Bishop Swint's diocese have dropped out of the pageant. Her father, a grocer, backed her up. He said
"it's a matter of the church having one view and the family another."

William J. B. Miller, director of public relations for the Moun-tainville Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the "Miss West Virginia" contest, said that he sent a cable to Pope Pius at the Vatican. It said that the sponsors would "appreciate an expression
from the church leader on the matter because Bishop Swint's ruling "threatens the success" of the pageant next Monday.

In the Good
Old Days

Just before entering Muskegon harbor Wednesday morning the Goodrich line steamer Atlanta suffered an accident to her steering gear which rendered her practically helpless, according to a story appearing in the Dec. 12 issue of the Ottawa County Times published by M. G. Manting in 1902. There was quite a sea at the time, about 4:30 a.m. The Atlanta was about a half mile from the harbor at the time and drifted rapidly toward the pier. Seeing that the boat could not make the harbor, the engine was set to work, and the boat backed out to sea. Two miles out Capt. Mardee lay to and repairs were made on the steering apparatus.

Ed Brolin Captures
HLTA Net Tournney

Ed Brolin, Saturday afternoon,
won the Holland Tennis association's "closed" tennis tournament
by defeating Bob Herschel, 1947
City champion, in a hard fought match. Set scores were 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

Brolin also holds the No. 1 position on the HLTA ladder, which will be in operation through the tennis season.

A deep forehand drive worked well for Brolin Saturday to enable him to keep his opponent at a disadvantage throughout most of the match.

Volleys From Ambush

NICK VER HEY, who lives at 36 East 26th, dropped in the other day to tell the Ambusher
about the starlings in his neighborhood. Several, he thinks, are survivors of the shotgun crusade
last year. At least some of them are crippled.

But the most interesting thing
was watching a mother starling
feed one of her babies.

"Why the big lug was bigger than his mother," Nick says.

And as long as Nick told his story, the Ambusher is encouraged to tell you his experience with birds this summer. After feeding them most of the winter, there was still quite a supply of food suitable for birds. And what with nesting and all, it looked as though the birds were having a tough time finding enough food,
so some of the winter feed was placed.

You probably recall that the winter feeding attracted sparrows and starlings, so you can imagine my delight when an oriole showed up regularly this summer.
And quite a few robins availed themselves of the free eats. One of them was a female with a crooked tail. Her tail feathers point about 30 degrees to the port. She flies pretty well, but not as well as the other birds.

The point in telling you about Old Crooked Tail is to tell you about her feeding her young.
When they were old enough to leave the nest she brought them to the garden to facilitate feeding.
It was quite a sight to see the babies lined up to eat. Mrs. Ambusher noticed them one night
when Crooked Tail was nipping off pieces of an apple and stuffing it down the mouths of the fledglings. She exclaimed:
"Those lazy things," Mrs. Ambusher said. "That poor mother never gets any rest."

Janet A. Cornelius, a Charlotte girl working in a local lunch room, is an appreciative girl.

She was duly grateful when a thief with a conscience of sorts returned her Social Security card and operator's license after her billfold was stolen a few weeks ago, but she would have been happier if he had included some highly prized snapshots which were in the billfold.

Janet and her twin sister, Joan,
are employed here for the summer. The two cards had been returned to the home address in Charlotte and were forwarded
here.

Recognizing people is no chore,
but hitting a name readily to every face really presents its problems.

Psychologists often tell persons to associate each face with some person's work. That works fine until you meet that butcher's delivery boy buying a pair of shoes
instead of driving his truck.

Almost every reporter, taking notes from a person whose name eluded him, has at one time or another hazarded "And how do you spell the name?" only to find it
Smith, or something equally simple.

An insurance salesman who knows a lot of people in Grand Haven, Holland and Allegan, says he's particularly confused when he meets them away from their native habitat.

Too bad we can't be Siglers or

Everybody has his troubles.

He has the sympathy of all drivers familiar with Washington's parking signs which are likely to read, "One hour parking except between 4 and 6 p.m. with no
parking Wednesday afternoon."

Paris in Spring Is City of Laughs, In Spite of --

Annoyances in City Begin at Breakfast With Meager Supplies

By Bob Ball

PARIS THIS spring is a city which laughs in spite of. In spite of the fowl ersatz coffee, in spite of the hobbles of rationing, in spite of crowded transportation, in spite of a cost of living which long ago lost sight of the wage and salary level. It is not a scornful laughter, and not at all a light-hearted sort; it is the laughter of people who wonder just how much more fouled-up things can get.

The annoyances of Parisian life begin at breakfast. No milk for the cafe au lait. The meager supply of ration tickets goes to waste, because insufficient milk is delivered to cover the ration allowance.

On the rare days when same trouble has not left shelves bare of butter, a Frenchman can allow himself a few slim curls of it, which makes the wretched bread (still baked with corn meal) go down a bit easier. However, the allowance has to be pinched to make it reach three meals a day.

If our Parisian can afford high prices, he can embellish the slices with jam, dreaming the while of the "avant guerre" time when flaky croissants were plentiful and cheap. To return again to the coffee, sans milk. Perhaps to term it coffee is to be over-generous. Whatever portion of coffee it contains is well strangled by a dreary substitute, besides which even chicory would taste good. The government must put this in the coffee to make enough to go almost around.

THERE ARE NOT enough export credits to buy much real coffee. The acrid smoky taste is no whit improved by being sweetened with saccharine. Sugar, of course, is on short ration as well. Embittered by this collation, the Parisian advances into his day, in which he will wait in line for a number of things, be obliged to stand in the Metro or on the bus, earn a rather small amount of money, and have to pay too much for whatever he brings home.

If our Parisian is a worker doing a job that a lot of others can do or an office worker in the same category, he will make $50 to $70 a month for an average of 48 to 50 hours a week. On this he supports his family.

A group of economists has calculated that existence salary at present Parisian price levels is about $40 a month for a family with one child. Obviously our average Parisian, who, by definition, makes a little more than some and a little less than other wage-earners, is treading rather close to the edge. The purchase of a new pair of shoes is something that must be planned and worried about.

Prices, except for wine, fruits and vegetables, are as high or higher than in the United States. In America, an industry which with present prices paid its low echelon people only 25c an hour would be subjected to great public indignation, but in France it is normal, and the Parisian manages occasionally to laugh in spite of it.

laughter is naturally the government. It is also the target for a number of the pungent comments he makes in non-laughing moments, and bullseye within the target is the matter of the "functionaries." These are the persons who man the unwieldy, misshapen bulk of French bureaucracy, like a horde of beetles on a tired old tree.

It is these unfortunates, underpaid, overworked often in useless employ, encouraged to petty tyranny by a system that demands quintuplicate, six stamps, seven signatures, and eight initialings, who feel the brunt of our Parisian's blame.

Most of the lower level functionaries, who ride the same commuters' train with our Parisian and drink a bock with him at the same "zinc" before coming home in the evening, agree that their efforts are fruitless, their numbers too great.

There is a popular contention, which may be true, that France, with about a fourth the population of the United States, has more government employees. In any case, the Parisian is convinced that his cares would lighten in proportion to a lightening of the government payroll, and it would seem that the elective members of that government have at length come to agree with him. Schumann has proposed a house-cleaning and the Chamber of Deputies, after considerable fustian, has given him a vote of confidence for it.

Den Uyl Explains Parking Charges At Macatawa

Fishermen, Shoppers And Hotel Guests May Park Free of Charge

Reasons for the 50-cent parking charge at Macatawa park were outlined today by Simon Den Uyl, owner of Macatawa hotel and other resort properties.

Den Uyl explained that the new program was launched to control a situation which was steadily growing worse, even though improvements the past year had provided parking spaces for 300 to 400 more cars.

The new lot north of the hotel between the original oval and the channel is a joint venture of hotel management and Casey Landman, who operates a fish livery and carries fishermen in his boat to and from the breakwaters. Den Uyl said about $6,000 was expended on materials alone, mainly sheet piling, in developing the new plot.

Fishermen patronizing Casey may park free, Den Uyl said. Persons shopping in Macatawa stores will be allowed one hour's free parking and those patronizing the beauty parlor may park as long as is necessary free of charge. Persons going to the hotel for meals also may park free.

Den Uyl outlined some of the problems confronting officials. Not the least of these were drunks who hurled beer bottles about the beach and in the lake, motorcyclists who drove wildly down the narrow park roads, general hoboing by adventurous groups, and picnickers who littered private property.

Den Uyl pointed out that all roads and the lake fronts are privately owned and he estimated between $25,000 and $30,000 has been spent in road and parking improvements since he took over the holdings in 1944. No aid for road improvements has been forthcoming from the Ottawa County Board of Supervisors, although repeated requests have been made. The park also hires additional deputies during the summer season.

Roped areas in the original oval which accommodated about 50 cars serves to slow speeders, Den Uyl said.

He said the new program is not designed to cut the park off from the public. He recalled the days when he often came to Macatawa park as a boy and said he fully realized that the actions of a few were spoiling the enjoyment of many.

Macatawa residents themselves pay fees of $30 for assigned parking spaces each season and $25 for unassigned spaces, Den Uyl said. When the resort season closes, there will be no parking charges, he said.

Macatawa residents, irate over repeated vandalism, had been in favor of blocking the road at the entrance to the park and allowing only residents and guests, but Den Uyl held out for the new parking program in an effort to solve a serious problem.

Den Uyl said he was not entirely satisfied with present arrangements and would be glad to consider any suggestions.

The interview was arranged by the Chamber of Commerce which had received many complaints on the parking program.

French Duties Affect Mails

Postmaster Harry Kramer today announced that all mails to Army personnel, civilian employees and dependents in care of A.P.O. 58, must contain a special form listing the nature of the articles enclosed and their value.

This is necessary because of the recent duty and tax charges imposed by the French government. Sealed first-class packages, containing airmail packages, containing merchandise must have a special post office form attached or be endorsed for opening for customs purposes.

Customs inspection will not be made at the A.P.O., but after its delivery to the addressee or his representative.

French authorities said the following articles are banned from the import list through A.P.O. channels:

Tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, matches, phosphorus, medicines and vaccines not conforming to French laws, narcotics, gunpowder, explosives, unauthorized publications, reprints and publications prohibited on account of their political character or immoral contents.

Also banned are monies, currencies, gold and silver in bullion and securities.

Army Worms Invade Allegan

Fennville, July 1 (Special)—Army worms, the dreaded pests which completely lay waste crops, have invaded Clyde and Ganoga townships in western Allegan county.

Forty acres of rice on the A. M. Todd farm have been completely stripped of leaves. Rye and hay fields on the William Rasmussen and Mrs. Clifford Morse farms also have been riddled.

Army worms are thus named because they come in huge droves. Farmers claim that at dusk the invaded fields resemble "the crackle of fire, so great is the noise of the pest."

A. H. Morley, county agricultural agent, says army worms work in a cycle usually seven years, but farmers in this locality say it is 12 years since the last invasion.

Morley said the worm lays its eggs and dies. Many dead can be found in the fields. He said these eggs do not hatch until the next cycle.

Preventive or curable measures are plowing furrows and filling with poisoned bait, but the cost is almost prohibitive compared with the loss to the crop. Dusting by airplane also is a costly measure.

The invasion usually lasts about two weeks and the worms disappear seemingly as mysteriously as they appear.

Fallen Tree Blocks Traffic on 16th St.

Traffic was re-routed on East 16th St. for several hours this morning while county employees cleared away part of a large elm tree which fell across the road at the F. E. De Weese home at 6:45 a.m.

The large limb fell across the road onto the '40 model car which Dr. De Weese had parked across the road. He said the top was dented.

Dr. De Weese said the tree had been rotting and it is believed the extra weight of water on the leaves caused the fall. Lightning did not strike the tree, it was said.

The tree snapped telephone wires to the De Weese home located just east of the creek between Lincoln and Fairbanks Ave.

Fire Destroys Barn on Farm North of City

Fire of undetermined origin leveled a large barn and damaged a home Sunday afternoon on a farm on Waverly road located four miles north of M-21. The farm was owned by Mrs. William Elfers and occupied by her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Prince, and their family.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. Prince who was reading the Sunday school lesson to her three young sons on the front lawn. She called her husband who was napping upstairs and he was able to drive the family car from the barn, one fire already afire.

In a matter of minutes, the entire 50 by 60-foot structure was ablaze. Fanned by a strong south wind, flames spread to the house less than 50 feet away, causing considerable damage to the kitchen, a frame structure behind the main house of brick construction. The rest of the house was damaged by smoke and water. Loss was estimated at $8,000, according to sheriff's officers.

Trucks of the Holland township fire department and the Blendon-Olive department responded and kept the fire from destroying the house. They were aided materially by two water tankers, one carrying 1,500 gallons and another 600 gallons. Neighbors formed a water brigade before the trucks arrived.

Last in the fire were 15 tons of baled hay owned by Henry Slag and David Bosch, farm tools including a hay loader and binder owned by Herman Ortman, and a half ton of coal, a quantity of wood and kindling, garden tools and other effects owned by the Princes. A small shed north of the barn also was destroyed.

Sheriff's officers discounted a theory of spontaneous combustion since the hay had been baled more than a year ago. High praise was given the firemen for their efficient handling of fog lines. At one point neighbors hitched long cables to the binder and pulled it through the burning hay to get at the fire.

New roofs had just been put on the house and barn at a cost of $300. The Princes had just completed redecorating the kitchen and living room the day before the fire occurred.

Hundreds of neighbors and Sunday riders were attracted to the scene, both in the afternoon and evening. Mrs. Elfers was visiting the Princes during the week-end and was resting when fire broke out.

A five-minute shower in mid-afternoon failed to have any effect on the blaze.

Lions' Baseball League Starts With Twin Bill

HC Looms Favorite In New Circuit; Schutt Hurls Well

After a belated start, the Lions club baseball league finally got underway Saturday afternoon at Riverview Park. Rain had washed out the two opening twin bills. Getting their first tastes of victory were Duffy's who stopped the Ford nine. 9-5 and Hart and Cooley who swamped Fillmore Creamery, 13-6.

In the first game between Duffy's and Fords, the outcome rested mainly on the sturdy arm of Howie Schutt, Duffy flinger. Schutt was personally responsible for retiring every Ford batter but one. He struck out 20 would-be-hitters during the seven inning performance. The only other out came on a fly to centerfield. He allowed five hits although four of them were of the doubtful variety—which should have been easy outs.

Ford netted two runs in the third on a double, a walk and two successive singles to take a 2-0 lead. Duffy's came back with three runs in their fourth on a single, a triple and two walks. Ford again took a 4-3 lead in their half of the fourth on two errors and two singles.

Neither team scored again until Duffy's broke loose in a big sixth with five hits and six runs—that was all for Fords, with Duffy's now holding a commanding 9-4 margin. Ford netted its final tally in the sixth on a walk and an error.

Losing pitcher was Duane Rosendahl who allowed nine safeties to the Duffy batters.

Hart and Cooley definitely stamped itself as the team to beat in the circuit when it blasted out 14 hits to rout the newcomer Fillmore club.

After a scoreless two innings, the winners pounced on Pitcher Bob Kamphuis in the third for three hits and two runs. They added four more tallies on three hits in the fifth to lead 6-0.

Two hits and three walks produced Fillmore's first two runs in the fifth inning. A big sixth and seventh inning which accounted for a combined total of seven runs for HC dashed all Fillmore hopes of a victory in their opening fray. Fillmore tried desperately to get back into the ball game in their last chance at the plate, but their rally fell seven runs short, after hits had produced four runs.

Frank Wlodarczyk handled the pitching chores for the winners, allowing just six hits. Ed Setter relieved Kamphuis for Fillmore during the wild seventh inning rally.

Ford and Duffy's still could use some new boys in key positions, a spokesman said today.

In the second doubleheader Tuesday night, Duffy's will tangle with Fillmore Creamery at 6:30 and Fords will meet Hart and Cooley in the nightcap.

North Shore Nine Stops Zeelanders

North Shore's Cubs had little trouble with the Zeeland Van's in their Wooden Shoe league contest at Zeeland Tuesday night, when they annexed a 9-0 shutout. Carl Reimink worked on the mound for the Cubs, allowing only four hits while striking out 12 batters.

The winners tallied two runs in the third on a walk, a single and an error and then went scoreless until the fifth inning. Wilness on the part of the Van's pitcher accounted for a good share of the damage in the fifth inning. Three walks, two errors and a timely single by Jerry Witteveen upped the North Shore total to six.

Two more hits, including a double by Witteveen, combined with a walk and an infield out accounted for the final three runs scored by the victors.

Reimink held the Zeeland batters in check most of the way although the losers managed to put a runner on base in every inning.

Pitchers Westenbroek and Johnson allowed six hits to the North Shore aggregation. F. Witteveen, Jerry Witteveen and H. Waterway did all of the hitting for the Cubs, with each getting two safeties.

Thermometer Is Good Check for Hay Temperature

Spontaneous Ignition Danger Reduced When Examined Regularly

The danger of a barn fire from spontaneous ignition of hay can be reduced through the construction of a simple hay prod thermometer to check hay temperatures, advises Fred Roth, farm safety specialist at Michigan State college.

When hay is stored with much over 20 per cent moisture content, danger of heating in the mow is present unless a mow drier is being used. Even small amounts of damp hay, if all in one spot, may cause heating in a limited area.

Heating of the hay takes time and checking should be done continually for two months after hay is put in the mow. A hay prod thermometer can be made inexpensively to give a good check of the temperature of the hay. The outfit consists of 10 feet of one-half inch electrical conduit with an oak or ash point on one end to permit driving into the hay. Six one-quarter inch holes should be punched in the conduit above the point. A dairy thermometer on a string is then put into the conduit. A rubber pad at the bottom of the tube will keep the thermometer from breaking.

To use, the prod with the thermometer inside is inserted in the hay and left 10 to 15 minutes. The thermometer is then pulled up with the string and read immediately. Detailed instructions for making, may be obtained from county agricultural agents.

If the thermometer reads 140 degrees, the hay should be checked several times a day. At 160 degrees, check every hour. Get assistance if it should rise any higher than 180 degrees. Don't work in the mow alone if the temperature is excessively high. Adequate fire fighting facilities should be at hand if heated hay is to be removed and someone who understands the correct removal of heated hay should supervise.

Salads Are Ideal For Summer Days

Summer time and salads just naturally go together. Tossed salads are favorites with everyone because there is no limit to the variety you can bring to your meals with them.

Successful salads are guaranteed if you remember to follow a few secrets of the trade reminds Mary E. Bullis, Allegan County home extension agent.

First of all, start with fresh crisp greens that have been well washed in cold water and be sure they are thoroughly drained. Moisture on the leaves dilutes the flavor of the dressing and makes a wilted salad.

Mix a tossed salad just before serving. If you are using cooked vegetables you can marinate them several hours ahead of time and again be sure they are well drained. Let your imagination go and use new combinations of vegetables.

Slice cauliflower flowerettes very thin and add them with very thin crisp slices of carrots to shredded spinach, lettuce, endive and finely shredded cabbage. Toss in some Roquefort cheese and just before serving add sections of tomatoes. Serve with a zesty French dressing or mix with oil and an herb vinegar.

An attractive salad using three vegetables can be made with carrots, cabbage and beets. Make three small separate mounds on a lettuce leaf of the three vegetables shredded.

For a complete salad meal place three lettuce cups on a dinner size plate. Fill one with a meat salad, one with a mixed vegetable salad and one with a fruit salad.

Swine Conference Is Planned at Charlotte

A big day is planned for the Swine Type and Production conference at the Charlotte Fair grounds on Wednesday, July 21, says W. N. McMillen, swine specialist at Michigan state college.

The program will begin with a judging contest at 10 a.m., with J. S. Coffey of Ohio State university as judge. Type classes will be discussed at 1 p.m. and Harry Moxley, MSC livestock specialist, will present the leading production registry sows of several breeds with their litters.

A basket lunch is planned for noon. Several breed associations are planning meetings during the conference, McMillen reports.

Insulate Structures

Frame-constructed walls in livestock structures can be made sufficiently warm by putting waterproof paper, sheathing and siding on the outside and waterproof paper and sheathing on the inside, report MSC agricultural engineers. Walls can be improved by adding an inch of insulation or by filling the stud space with insulation.

On the "production line" is Michigan's No. 1 milkmaid, Miss Shirley Brehm, blond farm girl from Cadillac, who is being graduated this spring from Michigan State College. Shirley won the honor in a college cow milking contest. The event was sponsored by the June Dairy Month committee in behalf of Michigan's $200,000,000 dairy industry. Hints for Thawing Frozen Fruits

There is a trick to thawing frozen fruits so that they will have a fine flavor and color when you serve them.

Frozen fruit loses its good eating quality very quickly after it is thawed and will become too soft and lose flavor and color, reminds Mary E. Bullis, Allegan county home extension agent.

First of all, thaw only enough for one meal at a time. If your family is small, cut a large package of fruit in two before thawing. Rewrap the unused part and keep it frozen.

Always leave the fruit in the sealed container during the thawing period for best flavor and color. Turn the package several times during thawing to keep the fruit coated with syrup and prevent darkening. If you thaw it in the refrigerator, allow six to eight hours for a pound package. At room temperature, the time is shortened to two to three hours.

When you wish to thaw the fruit quickly, place the package—keep it sealed—in cold running water for a half to one hour.

Never re-freeze fruits after they have been thawed. To keep them, cook them first and then store in the refrigerator.

Information on preparing fruits and vegetables for locker storage can be had by asking Miss Bullis for bulletin No. 208.

Ranchers Do Too Much Walking

Efficiency experts say farmers walk too many miles a year and lift needless thousands of pounds annually in carrying out their normal farming operations.

Generally, they say, farmers are unaware of the wasted energy performed. The reason? These specialists at chore analysis claim that habit is the greatest enemy a farmer has to tackle in reducing a job to its simplest elements.

Too often farmers overlook the opportunities for making tasks easier and less time consuming because they have grown accustomed to a system and see no reason for a change.

Some efficiency experts are suggesting that farmers take a leaf from the note book of the engineer in determining the need for a "new look" in choreing operations.

The experts suggest the placing of a marketing board along a barn alleyway or other questionable routing. A pencil goes with it. Then every time the farmer passes the spot he puts a tick mark on the paper.

A record of his activities such as this, they say, will soon reveal whether there is a need for a change in the location of chore routes or way of doing tasks.

Growers Realize Cover Crop Need

The recent Grass Day at Ravenna shows a fine representation of Ottawa farmers, states L. R. Arnold, county agricultural agent.

Arnold feels this is an indication of growing interest in this important crop. The extension service and soil conservation district have stressed the importance of grass during the three years.

Arnold reports that many farmers are establishing grass and clover meadows.

Olin Clay, conservationist, is much pleased over the fact that many farmers have turned to cover crops in order to stop erosion and to add fertility to the soil.

He urges plantings of rye and rye grass in corn land in July or during August to insure coverage of bare soil. This crop may be utilized as late fall pasture or early spring pasture.

According to Arnold, farmers throughout the nation are becoming aware that grass is the final solution to this great danger of erosion. Building of dams will never solve this serious problem.

It is necessary to hold more water back on the farm. More grass and better soil conservation practices will accomplish this. The serious floods recorded during past years are a direct result of poor farm practices, allowing much of the rainfall to turn directly off the soil with a consequent loss of millions of tons of top soil full of valuable elements so much needed for plant food.

Calves must gain two pounds or more per day and must weigh at least 700 pounds (based upon home weight) at the close of the feeding period to be eligible for exhibit at the 1949 Farmers' Week program at Michigan State college.

Enrollment cards are being sent to cooperators of the past three years. However, others are invited to enroll by contacting their county agricultural agent or by requesting an enrollment card directly from the Michigan State college animal husbandry extension department. No enrollment fee will be charged in this 1948-49 project.

Agriculture Group Begins Research For Better Beans

From Our Washington Bureau
Washington — Recommendations were made this week for Agriculture department research into how to produce, use, and sell bigger and better dry beans and peas.

A 10-man committee of "outside government" experts on dry beans and peas, headed by A. L. Riedel, president of the Michigan Bean Co., Saginaw, gave the detailed suggestions. Not all recommendations will be accepted, but a Department spokesman said the Agriculture department "will lean over backwards" to follow the advice of "these men on the streets."

The scope of the research is broad. It covers production improvement with emphasis on new resistance to disease, insects and weed control; utilization of new food and industrial use of dried beans, peas, splits and hulls; marketing growth through developing foreign outlets and packaging.

The department has special interest in the marketing proposal being not so familiar. Work will start in July. For 1949 research is urged on labor saving machinery for producing, threshing and cleaning dry beans and peas.

Another Michigan "bean man", Clarence W. Swanebeck, a grower from Fenton, also serves on another committee, set up under a new agricultural department production and marketing research program.
