The city hall has that new look these days, and local citizens who have had occasion to inspect the new modern entrance have been voluble in their praise. The new glass front with aluminum railing on the canopy and the handrail have been installed under the direction of Ed Holkeboer, contractor. The Koneer doors and the aluminum trip were installed by Toledo Plate Window Glass

Co. Cement work was done by Kryn Kalkman of Holland. The buildings and grounds committee of Common Council arranged for plans drawn by a Grand Rapids architect, which council approved last fall. Main purpose of the entrance is to provide double doors to aid in the winter heating problem.

Coast Guard Plans Rigid Enforcement Of Boating Rules

Violations Touch Off Crackdown; Safety Rules Are Listed

Capt. James A. Hirschfield, commander of the Ninth (Great Lakes) Coast Guard district announced today that within the last few weeks numerous complaints have been registered with the Coast Guard against reckless and negligent motorboat operators, and advises that the Coast Guard will rigidly enforce all pilot rules and motor boat regulations.

Owners of pleasure craft are creating an increasingly dangerous situation, not only to themselves but to others by the careless and negligent manner in which they operate and allow their boats to become unseaworthy.

The following are a few specific violations that have been found:

1. Traveling at excessive rates of speed in a congested area.
2. Failure to keep to the right hand side of the channel.
3. Failure to observe restricted areas.

4. Unnecessarily holding the right-of-way in a narrow channel, when safe navigation for small vessels exists outside the dredge channel, thereby creating a dangerous or difficult situation for large, unmaneuverable, seagoing vessels.

5. Operating a pleasure craft while under the influence of liquor.

The following list depicts a few of the cases wherein lives were lost due to unseaworthiness of pleasure craft:

1. Faulty ignition resulting in explosion or fire.
2. Lack of power ventilation resulting in explosion.
3. Lack of general knowledge relative to upkeep of machinery on small craft.
4. Careless handling of fuel.
5. Insufficient life preserving equipment on board.

Motorboating is practically the same as driving an automobile. There are rules and regulations that must be obeyed. Copies of these rules and regulations may be obtained by writing to the U.S. Coast Guard, Motorboat Inspection Section, 1700 B. F. Keith Building, Cleveland 15, Ohio.

Check Forger Forgets; Nailed on Holland Job

Det. Clarence Haight of the state police and Officer Gil Tors of the Holland department returned Kramer to Holland Thursday night. When arraigned before Municipal Judge Cornelius Vander Meulen this morning, Kramer waived examination and was bound over to circuit court for appearance July 24.

Bond set at $5,000 will not be furnished, police pointed out, because Kramer, as a parolee, is not entitled to freedom under bond.

Kramer was paroled from Southern Michigan prison last December after serving a term for forgery. To detectives, his record invited investigation.

Confronted with the bad checks from Holland, Kramer confessed. He told state police he must have endorsed the check absentmindedly.

In addition, he admitted having left a trail of bad checks totaling $1,500 in Adrian, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, Owosso, Albion, Coldwater, and Alma since January.

The Holland check which led to his downfall was for $47.68. Kramer purchased an alarm clock June 23 at a Holland hardware store for $9.83, and paid for it with the worthless check, drawn on a Holland bank. The check was signed by Charles Van Gelder, and endorsed by William Kramer. A Michigan driver's license was presented for identification, police said.

State police said that Kramer usually signed his bad checks with the name of W. Shulman or John Alberts. He had false credentials for both names.

In addition to passing checks, Kramer also held down a full-time tool making job in Detroit, according to state police. They said there was only one other case in their files where a bad check artist trapped himself by signing his right name. It occurred back in 1934.

County Group Seeks Ban On Sunday Beer Sales

Grand Haven — The Ottawa Christian League is circulating petitions throughout the county requesting a ban on the sale of beer and wine in Ottawa county on Sundays. Members are seeking 112,000 signatures by Aug. 15 in an attempt to put the question on the ballot at the next general election Nov. 7.

The group held its first meeting in Hudsonville a few weeks ago and adopted the name of Ottawa Christian League at a meeting Tuesday night in Grand Haven. (The proposed referendum would have little effect on Holland area since Holland city and Holland Park townships have their own agreements on prohibiting beer and wine sales on Sunday.)

W. Van Eenennaam of Zeeland is general chairman in the county. District chairmen are W. Grover and Mrs. Edith Walwood, Holland; G. Michmehrschulzen and Frank De Young, Zeeland; N. Poel and J. Duerwaerden, Grand Haven; the Rev. G. Rozeboom and M. Langeland, Coopersville; Albert Bytwork and Dick Ver Hage, Hudsonville.

Allegan GOP's Offer Opposition In 3 Contests

Allegan (Special) — With the exception of the sheriff, coroner, and state representative jobs, Republicans put up a single slate for the fall elections, according to petitions filed by deadline time. Democrats have two nominations for several county posts.

Republican contests shaped up between Prosecutor Chester Ray and Ben Lohman of Fillmore for state representative; and incumbent Louis Johnson, Jesse Runkel, of Hopkins, Michael Uramkin, Allegan and Victor Smoke, Otsego, for sheriff.

Four filed for the two county coroner titles, including incumbents Dr. Clyde B. Dickinson, Wayland, and William Ten Brink, Hamilton, plus newcomers Dr. Kenneth Miller, Saugatuck, and Dr. A. G. Goude, Hopkins.

Dwight Theever is unopposed as Republican candidate for prosecutor. Incumbents County Clerk Esther W. Hettinger, Treasurer James Joyce, Register of Deeds Howard Strand, Surveyor Hugh MacDougall and Drain Commissioner William Teed are unopposed on their ticket.

The Democrats have three in the race for state representative nomination, including Robert Fletcher, Wayland; Adolph Beck, Watson, and the party's county chairman, Carl Winslow, of Pearl.

Louis Reno, Hopkins, and John Jennings, Fennville, want the treasurer's nomination; Walter Robbins, Fennville, and Walter Butler, Watson, sheriff; Gerald Van Order, Allegan, and George Earl Soyster, Otsego, surveyor.

Democrats with no opposition on their ticket are Elizabeth Ramsey, Allegan, for prosecutor; Stella D. Miller, Plainwell, register of deeds; Thaddeus M. Bliski, Hopkins, clerk; Bernard Cavanaugh, Watson, drain commissioner; and Dr. Ernest Wheat, Allegan, coroner.

In Allegan county, noted as a GOP stronghold, it was the largest Democratic slate offered in many years.

Allegan Draft Office Opens 40-Hour Week

Allegan (Special) — With no draft quota yet received, Allegan county's selective service office has been opened on a 40-hour week instead of the one day a week plan as previously. Mrs. Leland Gray, draft clerk, announced.

The office will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Fridays for registration of 18-year olds. The recruiting officer, who previously spent Mondays here, will be in Allegan at the office also on Fridays to take care of the local increase.

A definite increase in registrations has been noted the past few days by young men who had neglected registering in the required five-day period after their 18th birthday. Mrs. Gray said there had been a deluge of inquiries from veterans who wished to re-enter the armed forces.

She urged Allegan county youths to bring their draft records up to date by informing her of marriage, children, and other factors influencing their draft status.

Local Student Gets U of M Fellowship

Howard J. Koop, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Koop, 116 East 14th St., has been awarded a University of Michigan fellowship for next year, it was announced today by Dr. John Hollenbach, dean of Hope college.

According to Dr. Hollenbach, the fellowship carries a subsistence and tuition grant in the field of public administration and the holder of the fellowship is required to engage in research on urban problems in the Flint area. The fellowship is one of six offered to advanced graduate students and is designed to bridge the gap at one point in the program of the graduate instruction between related, though separate fields of learning. Koop will be working for a doctorate in public administration.

Koop was graduated from Hope college in 1949. An outstanding student, he was active in extracurricular activities. He was a member of Fraternal society which he served as president, editor of the Milestone, college yearbook, and sports editor of the Anchor, college bi-weekly publication.

Mercury Drops In Holland Area

A 55-inch rainfall descended on Holland during the night, accompanied by cooling temperatures ending a heat wave threat which kept the mercury in the upper 80's for several days.

The temperature at 11 a.m. today was 64.

Lake Michigan was so rough today that water temperatures could not be taken. The air was much too cool for comfort on the beach.

An accompanying electrical storm did little or no damage in Holland area, but a barn on the Thomas Lawler farm near Fennville burned to the ground after being struck by lightning at 3:30 a.m. The Fennville fire department responded but the fire had progressed to the point where it could not be controlled and the department stood by to protect other buildings.

Included in the loss was a large supply of wood stored for the winter. The farm was formerly owned by the late Norbert Switzer.

Zuवरink—whose record on July 4th stood at nine victories and 10 setbacks—doled out a stingy five blows to the Sacramento Solons. George had good control, passing one man and fanning three.

The Padres—believing in the old adage of "do unto others," bowed to the Solons 9-0 in the late tussle.

George proved once again that he is terrific for about seven innings. Most of his losses have come in the last two frames, either through fielding lapses by his cohorts or through his own wildness.

The Padres continued to flounder in third place as of Monday of this week, a scant game over the 500 mark and 10 games off the pace being set by the league-leading Hollywood Stars.

Holland Furnace Institutes Suit In Circuit Court

Local Firm Seeks To Restrain State Securities Group

The Holland Furnace company is asking a temporary injunction and permanent order in Ottawa county circuit court restraining the Michigan Corporation and Securities commission from taking any action that will affect their selling, servicing, repairing and installing furnaces in Wayne and Oakland counties. The commission has jurisdiction in these two counties only.

The bill of complaint, filed by the Holland Furnace company, claims that the commission is opposed to the distribution methods by the company in Wayne and Oakland counties. It also claims that the system of maintaining branch offices, which operate under supervision of the home office, has been questioned by the commission.

According to officials of the Holland Furnace company, this matter has been under controversy for the last two years. Originally 11 assumed complaints, covering mechanical details, were brought to the attention of the company by the commission, officials said. Since then, 11 more have been added, upon which the commission bases their contention that the fundamental method of operating branches is unsound.

The company further states that the commission, in order to locate 22 complaints, had to contact customers who bought furnaces as long as 10 years ago. Considering that over one-quarter million people in Wayne and Oakland counties were sold Holland products during those ten years, the management feels thoroughly satisfied with so few complaints. Furthermore these were handled immediately to the customer's satisfaction when brought to the attention of the company.

The Holland Furnace company is the only firm in the furnace industry that distributes products under its own name, local company officials said. All other manufacturers depend on dealers who, in turn, sell under their own local names. Contrasting, each Holland product is sold, installed, guaranteed and serviced by the parent company, under the name "Holland" which, as a result, becomes extremely conspicuous in comparison with other names, officials said.

Holland Furnace company officials feel certain no merchandiser in any field could handle one-quarter million customers with such a trifling number of complaints. It is impossible for even the smallest business to operate without some and this amount they feel to be insignificant for such a tremendous volume, they said.

Company officials also feel that if their branches were left alone by certain agencies, there would be no open complaints, since it is the policy of the company to handle immediately any complaints.

The commission is questioning this distribution method which has been in operation since the inception of the company. The company feels this is the only method by which products requiring highly-specialized personnel can be successfully operated. Heating equipment cannot just be set in anywhere, such as vacuum cleaners, for instance, but require skilled, trained organizations, company officials said.

This suit is instigated by the Holland Furnace company with the desire to stop this unwarranted interference, officials said.

Zuवरink Bags Ninth Victory

San Diego—George Zuवरink bagged his ninth game—a five-hit shutout for the San Diego Padres in a seven-inning opener of the holiday bargain bill.

Zuवरink—whose record on July 4th stood at nine victories and 10 setbacks—doled out a stingy five blows to the Sacramento Solons. George had good control, passing one man and fanning three.

The company employs a peak of some 350 employees during the season. It is expected the firm will be in operation until Christmas. It now operates on two shifts. Marc C. Hutchinson is president and general manager.

Zeeland Restricts Lawn Sprinkling

Zeeland—Sprinkling restrictions have been imposed in Zeeland.

The Board of Public Works took action Tuesday to limit sprinkling to two hours on three evenings a week, in an effort to prevent a water crisis in Zeeland. The problem arose after reports showed a steady decline in water levels in all local wells.

The sprinkling schedule will be limited to 7 to 9 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings only.

Last month, council authorized expenditures of $3,000 in a search for additional water sources, and the geological division of the department of conservation is conducting a survey. Reports are expected in a week or two.

Six Errors Give Muskegon Outfit One-Run Victory

Humbert Falls Victim To Mates' Misplays; Freak Play Features

The Holland Flying Dutchmen scored early and easily to cop a 7-1 lead at the end of the second inning and then they gave a masterful exhibition of how to kick away a ball game by committing six errors which gave the Muskegon Continental Red Seals an 8-7 triumph Monday under the arms at Riverview. The game was an exhibition.

Bill Bartlett—better known as a football player for the University of Michigan—went the route for the Red Seals and after giving up seven runs in two innings settled down to blank the Dutchmen the rest of the way.

An oddity featured the contest when a routine fly ball, hit by Jack Van Dorpe in the sixth inning, suddenly stopped in flight and came straight down. The ball struck an owl flying overhead and killed the bird.

Van Dorpe's comment after the game, "And I can't even hit a pheasant with a rifle during hunting season."

The Red Seals came to town short-handed. A hasty call over the loudspeaker brought Stan Wlodarczyk from the stands to catch for the invaders. Stan played credible ball and made the final put out—that on his brother Frank—in a thrilling play at home to end the game with a double play.

The Continentals opened the scoring in the first on a triple by leadoff man Lee Biedinski and a single by Andy Olah.

The Dutchmen tied things up in their first with a tainted tally when Lou Borgman got life on an error and coming around on a stolen base, an error and a wild pitch.

Things broke loose in the second with the Dutchmen crossing six times. Gene Schrotenboer led off with a single to center. Gerry Witteveen sacrificed. And George Czerkies slammed a double to left with Schrotenboer scoring.

After Harold Van Wieren struck out, Lou Humbert cracked a single to center scoring Czerkies. Ron Fortney drew a pass. Jack Van Dorpe drove in two with a triple to deep center. Borgman walked and he and Van Dorpe scored when Frank Wlodarczyk punched a single over first.

Lou Humbert—who worked eight innings for the locals—was tagged with his first loss. But Lou, although hit hard, was the victim of his mates who committed six errors behind him.

Meanwhile, the Muskegon club kept pecking away with two runs in their third, four in the sixth and the clincher in the seventh. Olah led the Seals at the plate with three hits. Butch Petroski, Jim Parker, Biedinski, and Bartlett each had two.

Van Dorpe, Wlodarczyk, Schrotenboer, Czerkies and Humbert each had a pair for the Dutchmen.

The Dutchmen had golden opportunities for tying the game in the sixth and ninth innings only to have their chances evaporate. They loaded the bases in the sixth on an assortment of wierd plays.

They included Van Dorpe's "birdie" hit and Borgman's strike out which found him perched aboard second after Stan Wlodarczyk threw wild on a swinging third strike. However, a beautiful running, diving, rolling catch of Wlodarczyk's hard drive in left by Petroski pulled Bartlett out without trouble.

The locals committed six errors, three by Fortney and two by Schrotenboer which gave the Seals the unearned runs they needed for victory.

Taxpayers' Money Has Long Trip From Citizens' Pockets to Bank

You may think when you pay your summer taxes, now due at the city treasurer's office, all that Treasurer Henry J. Becksfort does is haul the loot to the bank and that's that.

The treasurer's office has almost as much trouble getting rid of the money as most tax payers have getting the money to pay their taxes.

Becksfort outlined the system: 6,000 tax bills have been sent to residents and find their way back to the treasurer's office. They are numerically sorted, and broken down into individual accounts. These four accounts include city operating, school operating, school debt and school special voted. There are six entries for each tax bill, and each one is added a total of six times.

Then, each account has to be balanced with the tax roll when the roll closes in October.

Saturday morning was the biggest day yet recorded in collection of taxes.

A total of $21,000 passed over the counter on the half day. The treasurer's office is open 5 1/2 hours a week—Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday 8 a.m. to noon.

Becksfort reported that very few complaints have been registered over the increased taxation this year. Many persons ask for an explanation, he said, and he tells them the specially voted tax makes the rate higher. A rate of $6.54 per $1,000 of assessed valuation is charged due to the school expansion program approved in a recent election.

In addition to taxes twice a year, the treasurer also handles all hospital and cemetery collections daily, and police and parking meter collections weekly. Municipal Court revenue and library fines and fees enter the treasury monthly. Then there are miscellaneous fees, such as Riverview park revenue, health fund, sales tax diversion, gas and weight tax, and other small items. Parking meter revenue, collected each Wednesday afternoon, is sorted and counted. A complete report of this was given recently in The Sentinel.

One of the big jobs, of course, is collecting of light and water bills. All light bills, and one third of the city's water bills are due each month. These total 9,739 bills each month.

Becksfort pointed out the increase in municipal light and power bills since he took office in 1936. At the end of 1936, the city had 5,454 light meters. Today, there are 8,196. In 1936, there were 3,336 water meters, and today there are 4,629.

If the treasurer gets time—he is the only full employee but has part time help during rush seasons—he can reflect that tax collections will begin again in the fall. Fall taxes are broken down into county, pavement, sewers, compulsory sewers, water mains, sidewalks, and delinquent light and power, in addition to the regular city school and school classifications.

Midnight Investigation Reveals Saga of 1950

A near-midnight investigation of strange lights in a downtown store office by Holland city police Tuesday night revealed the inroads of modern technology on our way of life.

Investigating a tip that strange lights were blinking on and off in the store office, police looked into the situation.

They found the store's employees taking advantage of company merchandise—watching television.

The reconstruction job currently taking place on the White House is estimated to cost $5,400,000. It will be finished in the autumn of 1951.

The above sections, 32 and 33, comprised region seven, which includes the Grand Valley Boy Scout council. As a matter of fact, the Michigan delegation overflowed into section 32, which originally was intended for Indiana troops. The Jamboree area was made up of 35 sections with 1,250 scouts camped in each section. Region seven had 6,750 scouts at the encampment.

Water Use Monday Reaches All-Time High for Holland

It was a wet Monday in Holland.

Water pumping for the 24-hour period from 6 a.m. Monday to 6 a.m. Tuesday reached an all time high of 6,568,000 gallons, Board of Public Works officials said today. The previous high was 5,768,000 gallons in the summer of 1949.

"As far as we know, there was no trouble with water pressure due to the high volume of use," BPW officials said. "Some rust was caused by excessive flow in the pipes."

Laundry work and lawn sprinkling after an especially dry weekend were given as reasons for Monday's high water usage.

"Although, we have adequate pumping facilities, there is no sense in wasting water," officials said. "It's a natural resource that shouldn't be wasted."

The 6.6 million gallon figure can be broken down into some interesting comparisons. For example, that is equal to the large water tank near the hospital being filled and emptied 13 times.

Using Holland's 1950 census figure of 15,742, Monday's usage amounts to a per capita figure of 418 gallons for each man, woman and child in the city.

"That's a lot of water," BPW officials mused.

Soil District Buildings Are Destroyed by Fire

Grand Haven (Special)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed 3 nursery buildings of the West Ottawa Soil Conservation district early Friday morning. Loss was estimated at $5,000, partly covered by insurance.

The main building, oil storage shed and tool shed contained fire fighting equipment, seed drills, rollers, transplanters, power cultivator and other tools and materials. There were no seedlings in stock at the time of the blaze.

The buildings were located on the Frank Garbrecht farm near West Olive. Garbrecht said he was awakened by dogs barking and found the one-story frame building ablaze. He called William Zalud, conservation department fireman at Allendale, but the blaze was too far advanced when equipment arrived.

District directors were to meet this week to plan for immediate rebuilding and prepare for the heavy Christmas tree harvest this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Van Der Kamp, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Van Der Kamp, Jr., and children of Grand Rapids were recent visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Lampen.

Elizabeth Wetmore . . . Hale and Hearty at 78

Pioneer Descendant Attends Reunion At School Her Grandfather Founded

Allegan (Special)—When the former graduates of the Wetmore school north of Allegan met for their second reunion Sunday afternoon, one of the big drawing cards of the occasion was a student who attended the school only a short time and a teacher who never taught there at all.

Nevertheless, Miss Elizabeth Wetmore, 78-year-old descendant of one of Allegan township's pioneer families, is intimately identified with the school. It was her grandfather, Chester Wetmore, who founded the first Wetmore school in his barn down the road from the present site. His daughter taught the first class of five.

Miss Wetmore's father, Albert, gave the land for the present school. Her mother taught the school in the 1860's. And always, the large Wetmore house on top of the hill has presided over the valley that is the Wetmore school district.

The reunion Sunday especially honored the eighth-grade graduates of 1900, eight of whom still are living. More than 100 persons gathered for the pot-luck dinner, a short program, and lots of reminiscing.

Miss Wetmore, equipped with a sharp memory to augment any such occasion, was the center of many a "remember when" session. In a way, these Wetmore students are all the family she has left.

Her sister, the late Dr. Mary Wetmore, and a brother, are gone, breaking up a trio known for their strong family ties.

They are descendants of Gov. William Bradford, first governor of the Pilgrims. Their father took up land in Allegan township in 1835 and the family branches across Corners and Wetmore lake.

Surrounded by the handed-down antiques and books of the family, Miss Wetmore laughs as she recalls the one flaw in her happy childhood. It was the nightly eight o'clock "reading aloud" hour when children had to be quiet while the adults read Shakespeare and other classics.

"I vowed that when I grew up, I never would have a book in my house," she says. Now her large collection includes many books more than 100 years old and some valuable first editions.

With that kind of a background and in a time when students progressed as fast as they were able, it was not strange that Miss Wetmore was only 11 when she entered high school in Allegan. She ended her college training at the University of Boston, and set out on a teaching career that was to last 30 years.

"I was always restless," she comments. "I could teach one school only three or four years and I was worn out. I had to start fresh in a new place for new inspiration."

The result was that she taught in several Michigan communities, including East Jordan, Boyne City, and at different times, 15 years in Allegan. During one of her "restless" periods, she staked out a land claim in Montana, and while there, tutored five children isolated from formal schooling.

Her most prized possession of all, however, is her interest in the children she taught and those of Wetmore school. She watches them grow up and she's proud of them all.

Draft Machinery Shakes Off Dust, Readies for Work

Michigan Quota Set At 946 for Service In Early September

Ottawa county unlimbered its rusty draft board machinery Tuesday to help Michigan meet its first Korean war selective service of 946 men by Sept. 1.

The county board at Grand Haven was ordered on full time schedule after running on a 2 1/2 day basis in recent months. It will now be open five days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Local selective service headquarters at the Red Cross office reported more than a 200 per cent increase in business Monday. Beth Marcus, Red Cross executive secretary, said that 25 men registered Monday. Usual total for a week is only six. In addition, she had 25 calls from registrants telling of a change in address.

Miss Marcus pointed out that the Holland office does no classification. The men are only registered here, and the papers are sent to the county office. Young men are compelled by law to register within 10 days after reaching their 18th birthday.

Some registrants come from as far away as Hudsonville. Miss Marcus said, and men from the entire south Ottawa county area have signed up.

Services Increase Recruiting Hours For Holland Area

Navy Visits Twice Each Week; Army Reopens its Office

Armed forces recruiting efforts in Holland have been stepped up by both the Navy and the Army-Air Force, it was learned today.

Chief John L. Dixon, Navy recruiter, previously had been in Holland each Friday. Starting this week, he will be in town each Monday and Friday.

M/Sgt. Dick Flint, Army recruiter, will be in Holland each Friday starting this week. Previously, the Army had not maintained a branch office in Holland.

Both services use the second floor of the post office for headquarters, and both are in town from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Chief Dixon works out of Muskegon and Sgt. Flint from Grand Rapids.

The Marines and Coast Guard haven't moved recruiting offices here yet, and applicants must contact these services in Grand Rapids.

Both service men reported no great rush of enlistments since the Korean war started. But they have had lots of questions thrown at them about the status of individuals, and anticipate many more due to activation of the draft law.

Most of the questions are from ex-servicemen who are anxious to know their status as reserves or as veterans. They also ask about what rating they could get if they re-enlisted.

There are six Army branches open now, in addition to the air Corps, Sgt. Flint said. These are engineers, armored cavalry, field artillery, coast artillery, paratroopers and infantry.

Navy applicants may be sent from Holland to Chicago for final processing and enlistment, and then on to Great Lakes for boot training, Dixon said.

Both recruiters urged youths to contact their home office if any information is needed between recruiting visits. The Army recruiter is in the Grand Rapids post office, and the Navy recruiter in the Muskegon post office.

The new US-31 highway from Holland to West Olive is rapidly nearing its completion date set for the end of July. Construction has advanced slightly more than six miles north from Holland, and has three miles more to go. Cement is being poured daily, and the road will be ready this month, officials of the Carl Goodwin Construction company of Allegan, in charge of the job, said. The contract calls for 9.1 miles of two-lane cement highway paving.

Pictured above is the giant cement mixer being used on the job. Gravel is dumped from trucks into the scoop shovel apparatus at the left, which is raised upright, as in the picture, dropping the gravel into the mixer. The cement comes out in the carriage on the long crane arm at the right, and the carriage slides back and forth, distributing the concrete.

Pre-War Homes Drop in Value

The owner of a pre-war home faces a dollar loss in its value this year as the sellers' market gives way to a buyers' market.

So said over 60 per cent of a panel of builders, architects and other authorities in a recent survey.

This opinion is based on the large number of new homes erected this year, and the probability of a new all-time high record.

The new homes are up-to-the minute in design, equipped with more conveniences, and generally have more "buying appeal" than their forerunners.

Demand for used homes began to drop last year as the doubling-up of families eased and as actual home costs became lower.

The home-owner can protect his investment by modernizing his house. This may be done without heavy financial strain through an FHA-insured mortgage payable over three years.

Last Holland Entry Eliminated From State Tennis Match Play

The last hope of Holland's tennis crew bit the dust at the state tournament at Kalamazoo Thursday when Dave Moran was eliminated in the third round of play.

Moran dropped his Junior singles match to Hamtramck's Dick Potter 7-5, 6-0. The local netter held a 5-3 edge in the first set but Potter strived and by hard baseline driving won rather easily.

Three boys singles entries were eliminated in the third round also. Henry Visscher lost to Ed Downing (Wyandotte) 6-2, 6-1; Paul Dykema was defeated by Ken Phillips (GR) 6-1, 6-2; and Dave Schreuer fell before Tom Tessen (Saginaw) 6-1, 6-2.

The Junior doubles team of Moran-Bob Piersma got through the first round of play by taking MacKenzie-Ferris (Grosse Pointe) 9-7, 6-3, but were dropped by Cornier-LaVasseur (Bay City) 6-4, 6-1.

Junior girls: Marlene Koning won from Mary Kihm (K) 7-0, 6-1, 6-3 but lost to Pat Campbell (GR) 6-1, 6-3; Betty Schepers won from Ann McNaughton (GR) in a well-played three-set match, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1 but dropped before national indoor champion Elaine Lewicki (H) 6-2, 6-0.

Girls Under 15 doubles: Pniwski-Jake def. Joyce Alverson-Carol Vander Meulen 6-0, 6-0; Campbell-Swaney (GR) def. Koning-Mary Lou Van Dyke 6-1, 6-0; and Schepers-Pat Myers lost to McCoughlin-Kimball (GR) 6-2, 6-0.

WAR TRIALS AND AMERICAN LIVES

General MacArthur's warning to the Communists that they will be held personally responsible for mistreatment of American prisoners of war is timely and wholesome. Based apparently on reports of Communist action on the front, it is intended to protect those Americans who may be unfortunate enough to be captured.

The warning has sharper teeth in it than a similar warning would have had before the second world war. It may be that the war crimes trials will now pay dividends in American lives. After the war the very highest officials in the governments that lost were hanged by the neck until they were dead, like common criminals. Nothing like that had ever before happened in the world. The North Korean Communists must understand that what has happened can happen again.

When the war crimes trials were in progress voices were not wanting that demanded clemency for the criminals. There was no precedent for bringing the losers in a war to trial. The theory of the Allied governments—including of course Russia—was that those leaders were not brought to trial because they fought and lost a war but because they committed criminal atrocities that violated such international law as had become recognized, to say nothing of the more inoperable laws of humanity.

It may well be that Premier Tojo of Japan and the top German Nazis who were hanged like criminals did not die in vain. The probabilities are that the lives of American prisoners will be safer because of those executions. Or at any rate, if those arch criminals had escaped the punishment for their crimes, there would be much more reason to fear that Americans who fall into enemy hands would lose the protection of international law.

Flushed with victory in the initial stages of the present war, the Korean Communists may have started out on the assumption that defeat was impossible and that hence they could violate the laws of war with safety. But they are doubtless intelligent enough to remember that defeat is always a possibility. MacArthur's warning gets its force from the dramatic object lessons that are still fresh in memory.

Kids Jam Centers For Play Sessions

More than 800 Holland kids crowded the city Recreation department's four play centers Monday for the opening of the Summer Playground program. "It was the biggest crowd we've ever had," said Joe Moran, recreation director. Playground leaders were too busy to keep track of every one, but there were 150 to 175 boys and girls at each playground at all times, and about 200 at Van Raalte, he said.

Special leaders report large classes in their fields. Mrs. Gerrit Wiegier, handicraft instructor, is spending this week at Van Raalte playground, Mrs. Preston Shaffer, dramatics, at Longfellow, and Jeannette Smith, baton twirling, at Lincoln.

Ruth, a Symbol of Family Loyalty
Ruth 1:8, 14-22
By Henry Geerlings

The book of Ruth tells a delightful story in a fascinating manner. It is placed in the Bible in the midst of the troublesome times described in Judges and Joshua. It shows us a glimpse of family life and makes it clear that personal loyalty swayed persons.

The famine in Bethlehem was so severe that in desperation Elimelech took his wife and two sons to Moab. Ill fortune befell them there. Naomi was called upon to grieve the death of her husband and her two sons.

It was natural that Naomi would want to return to Bethlehem. That was her native place and there she would have her relatives and former friends. Moab had been both kind and unkind to her. She had been granted the companionship of two splendid women of Moab, whose attachment to her was very strong. But she had lost the three men who had made the journey thither with her.

The famine had passed and there was plenty of food in Bethlehem. There was no longer need for Naomi to remain in Moab. In fact there was no good reason for her to stay. Bethlehem had a religious atmosphere and a magnetism for her, and she was informed that God had blessed her native land.

Her decision was made known to Orpah and Ruth. They started with her fully intending to leave Moab and go to Bethlehem. But Naomi was convinced that this was foolish. Her selfishness led her to suggest that these two daughters-in-law return to homes in their own land.

Her suggestion did not find favor with them. They continued with her on the journey pledging loyalty to her and giving evidence that they expected to spend the rest of their days in Naomi's country. She repeated her pleas for their return. She tried to argue the point with them showing what a mistake it would be for them to accompany her.

Orpah weighed the matter carefully and decided to bid farewell to Naomi and Ruth and go back to her own people. In so doing she did not label herself as ungrateful to Naomi. Probably she calculated the situation with care. While she liked Naomi and was loyal to her she was not ready to give up her religion and her gods and the prospect of being happily located in a home of her own among her own people. Besides Naomi was insisting that the wiser course for her was not to go to Bethlehem. Perhaps she reasoned that Naomi's suggestion might be better than her own immediate thought of venturing into a new land and trusting to luck for her future. At any rate there was an affectionate separation Orpah heading back to Moab, and the other women setting their faces toward Bethlehem.

The example of Orpah was used by Naomi to persuade Ruth to return to Moab. It made it more difficult for Ruth after Orpah had returned. But she was determined to stick to her pledge and to continue the journey with Naomi. Ruth had caught something of the challenge of what Naomi could offer her. While it meant sacrificing much that was precious to her Ruth decided to take her stand and refuse to leave Naomi.

Her fine entreaty which persuaded Naomi to allow her to go to Bethlehem is one of the most beautiful sayings in literature. Back of these words was the great spirit of Ruth. She had considered what she would have to give up and what she would have to assume. But she was ready to renew her pledge.

She would go to Bethlehem. That was the end of the argument. She pled with Naomi to cease asking her to return to Moab. She desired to go with her, though it was into a foreign land to associate with foreign people. If Naomi was a sample of the people of Bethlehem, Ruth was willing to throw her lot with them. She was not afraid to adopt the people of Bethlehem as her people. She would put aside her gods of Moab and have no God but Jehovah. It was to be a life-time contract. Even in death she would not request that her body be buried in the soil of Moab.

She was willing to make her vow in the name of Naomi's Jehovah, that she would not leave her nor forsake her mother-in-law. Her plea was persuasive and Naomi agreed to have Ruth as her traveling companion all the way to Bethlehem. There was a deep love between these two women. The loyalty of Ruth for Naomi was unshaken by any sacrifice she would have to make.

The story of Ruth records one of the foremost steps in teaching mankind that God is the God of all. This truth has continued to grow as the peoples of the world have intermingled and as they have carried on to a greater extent the facts behind the story of Ruth; the intermarriage of peoples, and the consequent sharing of truth and religion.

Constant separation of peoples tends to make them narrow and unsympathetic. Interchange of ideas and thoughts tends to bring out the similarities of people. Many problems are due to language, to customs, to different approaches, rather than to essential differences. If we can promote interchange of thought and viewpoints, we will hasten the coming of the Kingdom of God. Goodness does not promote good. Goodness

Shoe Loop First Round Ends in Tie

The Wooden Shoe league jumped into second round play with a new team replacing the defunct Zeeland outfit.

Oakland will play its games in the slot scheduled for Zeeland and will use the Zeeland park for its home games.

The North Shore Cubs and Fillmore Creamery, each having to play a postponed game, tied for the first-round championship with identical 7-2 records.

North Shore must play a rained-out tilt with Virginia Park while Fillmore faces third-place Hamilton. If the records mean anything North Shore should have easy sledding but the Fillmore crew might have its hands full with the rough Hamilton nine.

In the event both lose it would throw the first-round play into a three-way deadlock. If a playoff is required it will take place at the end of the second round.

Diria-Workman Vows Exchanged at Bay City

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. De Vries, Central Ave., have returned from Bay City where they attended the wedding of their granddaughter, Miss Marilyn Gay Workman, to John Arthur Diria. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Workman and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Diria, all of Bay City.

The ceremony was performed Wednesday at the Madison Avenue Methodist church. Dr. Harry Martin solemnized the double ring candlelight service.

Fred Lake was organist and accompanied Miss Ann Russell, soloist.

A Chantilly lace cape distinguished the white satin gown worn by the bride. Two panels marked the front of the skirt and continued in a ruffle to form a cathedral train. Her Chantilly lace bonnet trimmed with lilies of the valley, held an imported silk illusion veil. She carried a cascade of white roses.

Miss Marjory Henry was maid of honor and wore white nylon marquisette over lilac taffeta. She carried a cascade bouquet of deep red roses. Misses Margot Thureau, Ruth Diria and Celeste Workman, bridesmaids, wore white marquisette over Nile green and lilac. Their bouquets were of pink roses. The attendants wore mits and bonnets to match their gowns.

The flower girl, Sandra Pfenniger wore a white ruffled marquisette gown with hoop skirt and white satin sash. Her colonial bouquet was on white, pink and red roses.

Clyde Diria assisted his brother as best man and Les Sheffield, Dan Kraushaar, Roger Workman, the brides brother Bob Reif, Burt Fox and Scott Pope seated the guests.

A reception was held in the church parlors. Guests were present from California, Iowa, Illinois, Buffalo, N. Y., Tawas, Midland, Flint, Saginaw and Holland. Mrs. Harry Grond, who had come to Michigan to attend her niece's wedding, returned by train Friday to Pella, Iowa.

DeKoning, De Pree Kuyper Named To School Board

621 Votes Are Cast In Annual Election for Board of Education

Two incumbents and one newcomer were named as trustees to the Board of Education in the annual school election Monday in the GAR room of city hall.

Dr. Lester J. Kuyper, professor at Western Theological seminary who has been active as chairman of the Citizens School committee to promote new school buildings, is the newly elected trustee. He succeeds Harry Wieskamp who did not seek re-election.

Incumbents re-elected were Jay L. De Koning and Mrs. Kenneth De Pree, both of whom served two three-year terms.

A total of 621 votes was cast in Monday's annual election which was held in the GAR room. Trustee A. E. Lampen was chairman of the election board.

De Koning polled the largest vote with 507. Dr. Kuyper received 486 votes and Mrs. De Pree 466. Other candidates were Mrs. Clarence Wagner who received 138 votes and Eugene Vande Vusse who received 224 votes.

Fennville (Special) — Lynn Chappell was elected to a three-year term as trustee succeeding Ned Bale who declined another term after 12 years on the board. Fifty persons attended the annual election in the school Monday night. Mrs. Thelma Dickinson was re-elected for a three-year term and Elwin Johnson was named to fill a vacancy for a two-year term. Johnson lives in the Macks Landing school district which recently was annexed to Fennville.

Bale was commended for his service to the board, and in his response he said his "favorite baby" was the school reforestation project of 160 acres where during the last nine years 73,600 trees were planted. He said an adjoining 80 acres is available from the state for additional development.

At a board meeting following the election, John Andrews was elected president, Mrs. Dickinson was re-elected secretary and Keith Landsburg was elected treasurer.

Zeeland (Special) — Henry Geerlings and Dr. Henry Kuit were re-elected to three-year terms at the annual election held in the school Monday night. Wheeling onto the sun deck at Holland hospital is a favorite diversion of John Jaackel, Hope college sophomore of Auburn, N.Y., who has been a patient at the hospital since he was injured in an auto accident last Feb. 24. He has been able to get around in a wheel chair for several weeks now, and spends much of his time visiting other patients. (Sentinel photo)

Long Stint in Hospital Really Not Bad at All

Being laid up in a hospital for 4½ months isn't exactly a picnic, but it's not bad once you get used to it. Besides, the service is good, the food is good, the people are friendly and things could be a lot worse.

So says John Jaackel, Hope college sophomore of Auburn, N.Y., who has been a patient at Holland hospital since he fractured his leg in an auto accident last Feb. 24.

Ironically, it was a "Good Samaritan" deal which backfired. John and a friend had stopped to help a motorist in distress on an icy road, and another car slid into the stalled car, throwing John to the pavement. His left femur was fractured and a nerve was cut in the foot. After three months in a cast, the bone cracked again, and John is still laid up, although not in a cast.

Hospital life has become a lot more interesting since he has been able to be in a wheel chair. He finds he can wheel his car at quite remarkable speeds through the corridors. This puts him in contact with other patients and he makes a lot of visits. Two-handed canasta is one thing he excels at.

One visitor he calls on often is Mrs. Harry Larson, iron lung polio patient right across the hall who has been in the hospital longer than he has. Besides, she has a television set in her room.

John doesn't lack for visitors, but he has had fewer since college let out. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jaackel of Auburn, N.Y., have been in Holland on two occasions since the accident. For the most part, John spends his time reading, writing, visiting and sleeping. An inveterate talker, he keeps up a steady chatter with nurses, visitors or patients. Somehow, he wasn't nearly so talkative during this Sentinel interview. "John's gone modest," one patient observed.

He was able to leave the hospital a short time on Fourth of July. He expects he may be discharged in a few weeks and confidently expects to be walking without crutches before long. Anyway, he's all enrolled to start the second semester of his sophomore year again next fall.

Van Putten Warns Americans Not To Get Pessimistic About Korea

"I hope the American people won't get pessimistic about the situation in Korea in the next few weeks. It'll take time and men and arms to defeat North Korea."

That's what Dr. J. Van Putten, who evacuated from Korea last week, told the final gathering of Rotary International's district assembly Monday noon in the Warm Friend Tavern.

"As soon as we get organized force with proper equipment, the South Koreans will fight better, and we will too," Van Putten said. "We started with raw recruits and poor equipment against highly trained and well equipped fighting men. So far, Americans have been using delaying tactics, waiting for help."

Van Putten pointed out the Korean terrain is bad for warfare, unless you're used to it. It's all mountains and valleys, he told Rotary, with rice paddies in the valleys. To travel, an army has to stick to roads and railways.

The fighting began just before the rains season due any time now and lasting two months. Then action will be slow, Van Putten pointed out. I hope the American people don't get panicky, he added.

The former Hope college athlete outlined events in the Orient the last six months, starting with Communist occupation of Peking in January. He was public affairs officer there, with the job of selling the American way of life to the Chinese, on a shoestring budget. His office used a library, films, news distribution, posters, concerts, art shows and personal contact to get the message across.

"Things were going along nicely in Peking until the Reds moved in," Van Putten said. "The first thing they did was close my office."

He told how three bayonet-wielding soldiers entered his office and questioned him. They asked him to locate the "secret radio" he used to send inside information to America and asked were the "guns being given to the Chinese?" Van Putten answered that if they found either, they could lock him up.

They also asked him what he thought of Henry Wallace and Wallace's books, and if he voted for Dewey in the last election. They closed the news service first, and a little later the library. They worked with the Chinese staff to start labor troubles, Van Putten said.

"We contested some of the cases in court, but it did no good. A foreigner can't win a case against the Communists," he noted.

The invaders shut down all communications so people had no contact with the outside world, a typical red method of occupation, Van Putten said. Several foreign correspondents were forbidden to file dispatches, and newspapers carried no outside news except what the Communist news agency, Tass, released.

"Students had to study Communist doctrine from the first grade up," Van Putten said. "Then they tried to break down the family system, on which Chinese society is based, by teaching children to distrust their parents. They teach that the state is supreme; the individual doesn't count."

Van Putten went from China to Washington and was sent back to Korea to establish an English teaching institute. There were 60 North Koreans taking his course for six months. That was the situation when the trouble began June 25.

Van Putten pointed out that Korea is divided at the 38th parallel, with industry in the north and agriculture in the south. North Koreans are larger and more industrious, and South Koreans are slower and smaller, he said. With the advent of trouble, three million North Koreans filtered through to South Korea. They feel if the Northerners come, they will be executed.

"What can we do about it?" Van Putten asked. "We need more money to sell Americanism. The Reds flood an occupied area with propaganda—books, posters, news. We must educate these countries to the American way of life. Not by arms alone can we defeat communism."

The only good will we have left in China today is that built up by individuals, such as missionaries, educators, doctors and others demonstrating the American way, Van Putten said.

"I would say that 99 per cent of the Chinese people are opposed to communism, but the 1 per cent has the power, guns and money," Van Putten said.

Russia is willing to spend money to win the mind, and we must spend money to combat their propaganda, he said. He pointed out that Russian propaganda exaggerates the faults of democracy. For example, when the stock market dips a bit, red stories tell of the collapse of the American financial system.

"All of China was won for the communists by propaganda," Van Putten said later in an interview. When Van Putten pointed out that he wasn't a Rotarian at the time—his membership in the Peking club had lapsed, and he was due to be made a member of the Seoul club three days after the war started—he was unanimously made an honorary member of the Holland club.

Dutch Mill Popular For Private Parties

The dignified, yet homey atmosphere of the Dutch Mill's banquet room has made it a favorite with Holland's smaller organizations who demand the best, and at reasonable prices. June R. Van Raalte, owner-operator of the popular restaurant, takes pride in her dinners and there is always "something just a little extra" to please the guests.

The Colonial room is gaily decorated and the entire restaurant reflects the mood and the season. It is a popular setting for wedding parties, business meetings and college functions.

The dining room, known for its tasty food and wide range of choice, is open 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. daily, and Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The staff which serves the patrons is carefully selected to make eating out a pleasure. Sunoco Products Sold by Harrison

Harrison's Super Service station, a Sunoco Oil Co. station, is owned and operated by Ray Harrison. It is located at 677 Michigan Ave. Work was recently completed on a modernization job at the station which now makes it one of the best and largest Sunoco stations in Western Michigan.

Sunoco products were accepted in Holland to such an extent that a larger and better-equipped station was needed to take care of the trade, according to Harrison. Sunoco is proud to offer the best to Holland customers, Harrison says.

The station interior has two twin-post hoists that are flush with the floor. There are no posts in the center of the room and the inside has glass partitions. The doors are of special design.

In addition to Blue Sunoco gas, Excide batteries, seat covers, Firestone tires and polishes, Sunoco Mercury Made and Dynalube oils also are sold at the station.

Allegan Goes to Court on Federal Housing Project

Land Owners Contend Units Their Property As Lease Not Renewed

Allegan (Special) — The city of Allegan, which holds the peculiar position of being both tenant and landlord of the former federal housing project on Vernon St., has gone to the circuit court for solution of its problem.

Naming James and Amelia O'Connell, undisputed owners of the land, asked the city through their attorney for the $250 per month rentals being collected from the project. The letter suggested the city might have a five per cent real estate agent's fee coming, but asserted the building had become O'Connell property.

A one-year lease signed in 1946 between the city and the Connells is the crux of the dispute. It was renewable and the city reserved the right to move the buildings. Meanwhile, the city spent nearly $4,000 putting in utilities, a street, and sidewalks on the site.

No formal renewal of the lease has been discovered, and a new council has succeeded the original signers. The city claims it still owns the buildings by operation of renewal of the lease. It wants the court to give it the right to continue as tenant for a year with the right to remove the buildings, or to have the lease construed as expiring upon notice of the O'Connells, still retaining the right to move the houses to a new site.

The project was constructed originally to alleviate a local housing shortage and has been fully occupied ever since. In the agreement, the federal government constructed the units, the city provided services on the land leased from the O'Connells.

Whether or not the buildings are removed, the utilities on the land are permanent.

Long Prison Term Looms For Man in Auto Case

Grand Haven (Special)—Marshall Rogers, 30, Grand Haven, can look forward to a long prison term.

Found guilty a week ago of a charge of unlawfully driving away an auto, Marshall was sentenced Thursday to serve 4 to 5 years at Southern Michigan prison at Jackson.

But since he also is a parole violator, Rogers must first finish serving almost two years on a previous sentence before starting the new term. The other sentence was imposed Nov. 25, 1946, out of Muskegon county in which he was sentenced to serve 1 1/2 to 5 years on a similar offense.

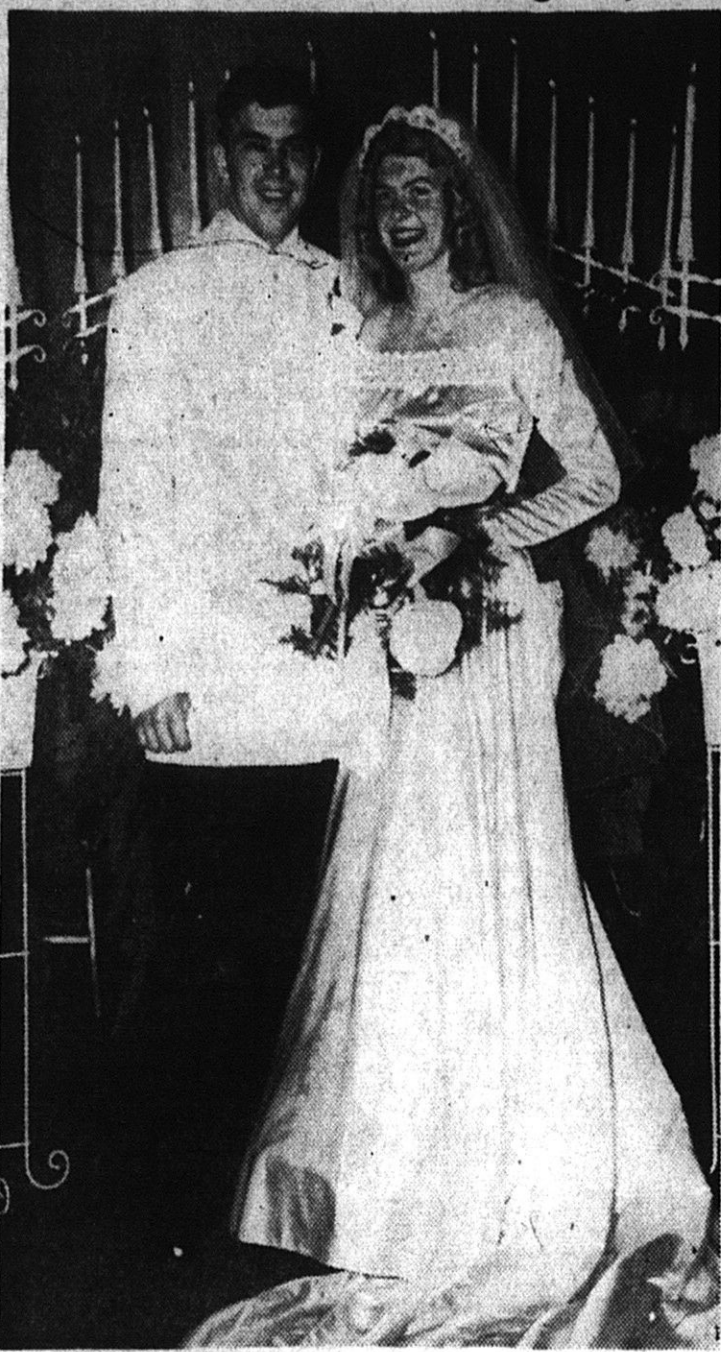

The latest offense took place March 21 when he allegedly removed an auto from the used car lot of Thieleman Auto Co.

Brushes Need Dipping But Lightly into Paint

Brushes should not be dipped too deeply into the paint, incidentally—just far enough so that, after tapping or "whipping" lightly against the inner side of the container they will carry the paint to the job without dripping.

Dipping too deeply not only wastes paint, but soon impairs a brush by causing a collection of hardened paint to accumulate at the part of the brush nearest the handle.

Accidents Claim Big Weekly Toll

Nearly 1,000 persons are killed or injured on Michigan highways each week, and speed is one of the principal causes, Sgt. Carl Kamhout of the Grand Haven post of Michigan state police said today in urging motorists to co-operate in the campaign to reduce speeding.

"The slogan of the campaign, 'Speeders Lose,' is well chosen, because records prove that speeders do lose," Kamhout said. "Even when speed is not direct cause of an accident, it often contributes to its seriousness and means the difference of life and death."

Not only was speed a factor in 500 Michigan traffic deaths last year, but it also was responsible for serious injuries to many of the 41,000 persons who were hurt in 143,000 accidents in Michigan, Kamhout said.

He explained that where there is no specified speed limit, which is the case on most highways, state law provides that it is a violation to drive faster than conditions, such as traffic, weather and time of day, permit.

Afternoon Swim Ends in Tragedy

Grand Haven (Special) — A swim in Spring Lake after an afternoon in the hayfields ended in tragedy Friday afternoon when Marinus C. Schippers, 20, route 2, Grand Haven, was drowned 12 feet from shore in 12 feet of water.

Schippers and William Tiles, 20, had obtained permission from Mrs. Thomas Heffren to swim in front of her cottage. Shortly after they entered the water Schippers went down. Tiles got him half way out of the water but had to let go because he was being pulled under. Tiles called for help and Mrs. Heffren dived for help and Schippers but was unable to find him.

State Troopers David Swanson and James Hinkley arrived while Mrs. Heffren was diving. Troopers Clyde Marquardt and Armond LeClair arrived with grappling hooks and together with Sgt. Carl Kamhout began dragging. Police Officer Charles Rumsey stood by with a resuscitator. Coast Guardsmen also joined, and the body was recovered at 7:25 p.m. by Robert Elzin and Arthur Jones of the Coast Guard.

Coroner Joseph Kammeraad said death was accidental, caused by drowning.

Dramatic Indian Legend Retold in Pageantry

Colorful costumes and authentic dances marked the second annual Indian pow wow Friday night at Waukazoo.

Waukazoo Inn guests and area residents gathered on the spacious lawns and porches for the dramatic event which told the story of the infamous attack in which Red Wing, ousted war chief under Chief Waukazoo, led the Sacs in battle against the Ottawas on property now called Waukazoo.

With Grace Wolpert Keene, dramatic artist as narrator, assisted by Randy Vande Water of Holland, the colorful story developed in a setting complete with tepees, camp fire and other Indian relics. It started with Chief Waukazoo calling the war chiefs in conference in an attempt to effect peace treaties with other tribes.

Then ensued a series of dances—the friendship dance with the entire company taking part, the dance for men, the hoop dance (singles), the rabbit dance (courtship) worship dance, feather dance, hunting dance, rain dance, and as the story developed, the big war dance.

The story tells of how old Chief Waukazoo relinquished his leadership, the vote for his successor in which Waukazoo triumphed over Red Wing, the latter's attempt to kill Waukazoo, his escape and pursuit by Waukazoo's son who was killed by Red Wing.

As the recovered Waukazoo prepared for battle, he was killed by an arrow and fierce fighting ensued between the Ottawas and the Sacs and Menominees. It was another tribe, the Pottowatomies coming behind the Sacs which routed the attack, and the Ottawas returned carrying the body of Chief Red Wing, who had fallen as bravely as any warrior before the tomahawk of a former tribesman. And so the Ottawa buried the two warriors together, Red Wing and Waukazoo, reputedly where the Waukazoo tennis court now lies, uniting in death those who had been rivals in life.

The pow wow is an outgrowth of an annual event at Waukazoo in which S. E. Paulus, Inn manager, read the Indian legend around a camp fire. Now the pageantry is staged on the expansive lawns of the hotel.

The show was staged by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Griffin with their two children took active parts in the drama and war dances in which authenticity at no point was sacrificed for showmanship.

Sailboat Found At Port Sheldon

Anybody lost a sailboat? The Coast Guard has one without an owner.

A Port Sheldon woman called the local station Wednesday reporting a 16-foot sailboat on the Lake Michigan shore near her home. The boat was full of sand, and had a loose plank. In fact, Coast Guardsmen were unable to float the boat.

So they returned Thursday and towed it into Holland harbor.

Only identification is a pair of coveralls split lengthwise, wrapped around the spar and nailed to it. The name of "Lincoln Park Dairy" is on the back of the coveralls, with "Bruce" on one pocket. There is no boom, just the spar.

Coast Guard officers said the boat probably broke loose and drifted to Port Sheldon, because it appeared to be wrapped for storage. Besides, they added, no boats or persons are reported missing around here.

Description of the boat will be forwarded to district Coast Guard headquarters in Cleveland to check against its "stolen or missing" file.

No Traffic Fines

Thursday was one of those infrequent days in Municipal Court when nobody appeared to pay a traffic or parking fine.

Lost Boy Finally Gives His Name After Bribe With Chocolate Bar

"Hey chief, this kid's lost!" Harold Large, Sentinel newsboy was doing his good deed for Wednesday and as it turned out later, it became a rather perplexing situation for Chief Jacob Van Hoff and the police department.

Large strode down Eighth St., with a tow-headed bundle of energy riding piggy-back on his shoulders. When he got to the police station, Large popped past the sergeant's desk and straight into the chief's office.

"Hey chief," he heralded in overtones, "this kid's lost."

After being bussed unceremoniously upon the chief's desk, the little blond youngster nodded his head. He was indeed lost.

"What's your name?" The chief opened the questioning.

The youngster mumbled something which no one understood.

Chief: "Where do you live?" Kid: "Donno."

Chief: "What's your father's name?" Kid, very quickly: "Daddy."

The chief grunted the pint-sized missing boy further. "What's your mother's name?"

Oldest Secretary In House Has Had Many Experiences

Aide to Congressman From Fifth District Boasts Long Tenure

Esther Van Wagener Tufty Writing one's memoirs is a Washington habit. Sometimes they turn out to be embarrassing, usually to someone else, but the volume contemplated by Ralph B. Pratt, secretary to Gerald Ford of Grand Rapids, is not likely to be that kind.

Only one other secretary of a member of the House of Representatives better the 39 year record of the Washington-born Pratt.

And 31 years have been in the service of the fifth district of Michigan, which he found a lot more pleasant than his first stint in a North Dakota district. It seems in those days a secretary was paid the fabulous salary of $125 a month by the congressman himself, not directly by Uncle Sam. Pratt quit because sometimes the congressman didn't come across with the $125. (Top secretarial salaries today are on a base of $5,000 a year.)

The longest chapter in his memoirs will concern the 19 year period with the late Carl Mapes, which started after a second short term with New Hampshire's Sherman Borroughs.

During his long close association with one of the most beloved congressmen ever to represent Michigan, the tall, lean Pratt saw Congress become big business.

In the early Mapes days, when his boss was against repeal of prohibition in a "wet" district, Pratt could handle all the mail himself by 11 a.m. in the morning.

Today it takes a secretarial staff of three. People are responding to the urgings to "write your congressman."

During two campaigns, the secretary became the campaign manager with offices back in the district. It was these days when "Mapes for Congress" banners were over his desk that he met many constituents.

Pratt is a professional in getting information out of government departments. It's widely known he once got a passport from the State department in 15 minutes — which must be a record.

He can remember when every congressman got 20,000 packages of vegetable and flower seeds and 20 pound sacks of grass seed to give away. And today the free farm bulletins and cook books give him a headache mostly because he can't get enough. But, typically, he solved that by "swaps" with city congressmen.

This secretary deluxe admits he has made mistakes. There was the time he got two letters switched in the middle of a campaign.

One read "What's got into so... why isn't he supporting me after all I did for him?" or words to that effect. And it was sent to so-and-so. But Pratt pleaded with the House Post office which recovered it... after a six hour search.

The shock of Carl Mapes' death was increased by the way he learned the sad news. The congressman had told him he felt too bad to undertake a certain inspection trip to New Orleans arranged by his Interstate and Commerce committee. The next news Pratt heard came from a reporter who telephoned to learn about the hour of the funeral.

Sheep Field Day Set for July 21 at Charlotte

Michigan sheep growers are saving the date of Friday, July 21, for their second annual sheep field day, to be held at the Eaton county fairgrounds, Charlotte.

Attendance at last year's event has discouraged the sponsors to plan for an even bigger field day this year. The program will include judging of several breeds, exhibits of all breeds, demonstrations on preparing and cooking lamb, and discussions on pastures and sheep management problems.

According to Graydon Blank, extension sheep specialist for Michigan State college, the co-operating sponsors are the Michigan Sheep Breeders' association, Eaton County Sheep Breeders' association, Eaton county extension office, and the animal husbandry department of Michigan State college.

Orchard Location Important Factor To Frost Damage

Though there is much interest in avoiding frost damage to fruit trees, the best method still appears to be a good location for the orchard.

Dr. H. B. Tukey, head of the horticulture department at Michigan State college, and Dr. C. L. Hamner, horticulture scientist, say that reliance is still to be placed on good location rather than artificial controls.

The suggested idea of using growth-regulating chemicals to delay the bloom has some serious drawbacks, the horticulturists say.

A recent experiment at the Michigan Agricultural Experiment station tested the value of chemical frost controls. A block of cherry trees, both sour and sweet, were treated with blossom-delaying chemicals. A mixture of naphthalene acetic acid and 2, 4-D was used.

The immediate result revealed characteristic curvature of foliage, retained foliage the same season, injury to twigs, buds, and spurs, and delayed blossoming the following spring. The delay in blossoming for which the trees were treated was from seven to 10 days. The fruit was valueless when it came into bearing.

Ann Hayes of Merson was to come back to state show in August to compete in the final dress review to name Michigan's delegate to the national 4-H style review at Club Congress in Chicago.

Folder Tells of Various Roses

As all rose gardeners know, many types of roses are available for almost every use. They range in variety from the rambler rose used to hide the back fence to the tea rose, which is much admired for its beauty.

Some roses such as the rugosa, prairie, and Scotch roses, sweet briars, and hughonis are effectively used as shrubby border, according to a folder entitled "Garden Roses." It can be obtained from county agricultural agents in Michigan or by writing the bulletin office at Michigan State college.

This folder gives tips to the novice rose gardener and also is a good refresher for the master rose gardener.

State to Expand Cherry Markets

Lansing (UP) — State officials Saturday announced plans to expand Michigan's sweet cherry market.

With a record crop expected this year, growers will tap the fresh fruit market in addition to annual sales to processors.

The plan, formulated by the state cherry commission, marketing experts, and Michigan State college extension specialists, calls for seven marketing points to be set up throughout the state.

These points will supply information to itinerant truckers and consumers wishing to buy cherries direct from growers.

SWITCH CAUTION

Switches for power machines should be placed out of reach of children or should be the type that can be locked. A good way to solve the problem is with a master switch for the whole power circuit, advise Michigan State College agricultural engineers.

The U.S. consumes approximately 4,200,000 gallons of lubricating oil daily.

In the spring, and in the summer, too, a young person's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of playground equipment. Recently four young Holland citizens decided to see if the swings at Kollen park were in good operating order. They were.

Scouts Are Home After 'Big Time' at Jamboree

Wirt Laun, Army officer, were introduced by Mrs. Tufty. Then the group was whisked away on a 42-foot cruiser, for a jaunt on the Potomac river and a night view of Washington. Later they toured the capital in convertibles. The next day, Maj. Laun took the boys on a tour of the Pentagon building, where two special shows and demonstrations had been arranged for them.

Another special event was a hiking tour of Philadelphia, led by members of the Order of the Arrow, camping society for older Scouts. About 9,000 Scouts went to Philadelphia by special train to see all the historic places.

An unplanned trip to Asbury Park, N. J., was a highlight for several boys. Rich Smeenge, former Holland man now of Philadelphia, read about the Holland Scouts and drove to Valley Forge to offer the tour.

Huge collections of souvenirs, from live snakes and toads to uniform shoulder patches, are now being displayed by all the Scouts who made the trip. Members of the delegation were Don Vuurens, Roger Essenburg, Rickey Linn, John Billett and Roy Kaper of Hamilton, Jim Cook, Byron Aldrich, Roger Kragt, Leonard Rowell, Dave Vande Vusse, Leo Jungblut and Bill Butler.

Predict July Farm Trends

Here are some farm outlook predictions for July, as seen by Michigan State college agricultural economists.

The seasonal price decline for Michigan wheat will likely be less than in recent years, although market price at harvest time will be below the government support price. The average price should be near the loan rate following the harvest rush. Support price will be 90 cent of July parity.

Top grade slaughter cattle prices are expected to work toward their seasonal peak during July. Stocker and feeder prices should hold steady or work lower. Hog prices probably will be steady to slightly higher.

Egg prices will be about five cents a dozen above June levels. As we enter the short production season, poultrymen can well afford to concentrate on keeping good layers in production as long as possible.

Allegan Women's Camp To Be Held at Kidwell

July 31-Aug. 3 are the dates selected for the Allegan Women's Camp, by the home extension council at their recent meeting.

KEEP RECORD

You can't check on a cow's production if you don't have some kind of record. Michigan State college dairymen say that weighing milk from each cow daily will help to give an idea of the cow's annual production. Then you can decide whether to keep the cow.
