THE NEWS CONDENSED.

THE EAST.

WHILE going to church at Erie, Pa., Adam Brabender, President of the wrecked Erie County Savings Bank, was arrested on the charge of having embezzled the funds of the institution, $150,000, and was committed in default of $100,000 bail. The millinery house of S. & J. Sommerich, of New York, has failed for $90,000. The paper of J. de Riviera & Co., sugar-dealers in the same city, has gone to protest, but they claim that with $1,000,000 in goods on hand they will soon be able to resume. The Toronto champion lacrosse team defeated the Americans, just returned from Europe, at New York.

A FIRE broke out in a bakery at Bradford, Pa. Mrs. Reibley and her two children and a Swedish servant girl perished in the flames. A gentleman named Clark, of Denver, Colo., made a heroic attempt to rescue Mrs. Reibley. Two women were badly injured in leaping from the burning building.

THE dry goods firm of Halstead, Haines & Co., of New York, made an assignment with preferences of $417,000. Liabilities are estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. The failures are also announced of John W. McFarland, an iron manufacturer of Alliance, Ohio, and J. M. Hamberger, a picture dealer of New York. The weekly statement of the New York banks shows a gain of $7,550,900 in reserve, bringing their surplus above the legal requirement by $23,861,500, the largest amount of idle money for years. Prof. Packard, acting President of Bowdoin College, died suddenly. The damage by fire at Wain & Co.'s furniture factory, Williamsburg, N. Y., is estimated at $300,000.

THE WEST.

ROBERT S. AYERS, agent of the Southern Kansas Railroad Company at Garnett, Kas., also agent for the Wells-Fargo Express Company at that place, has been prosecuted several times for delivering packages containing liquor to parties in Garnett and vicinity. The packages were sent from Kansas City, and the agent was not presumed to know what they contained. He has been fined $50 in each case. In consequence of the prosecutions, several express companies have withdrawn their agencies from Garnett and other Kansas towns.

TWELVE acres in the Toledo (Ohio) lumber district were burned over, the property destroyed belonging to the Mitchell & Rowland Lumber Company, in whose yard the fire started; Nelson, Holland & Co., and J. B. Kelly. The loss is $365,000, and the insurance about $340,000. The police of Milwaukee have arrested a man carrying on his person $10,000 worth of diamonds, on which he was endeavoring to obtain advances from pawnbrokers. W. S. Jackson, a Colorado Springs banker, has been appointed receiver for the Denver and Rio Grande Railway.

W. R. McHILL, President of the Cincinnati and Eastern Railroad, recently lost his life by a fall from the door of a baggage-car on the trestle-work near Winchester, Ohio. It is now learned that he had been securing money on forged notes, the amount involved being about $30,000, and the conviction grows that he committed suicide. Four farmers from Macedonia, Iowa, appeared in Council Bluffs, with search warrants issued by a Justice of the Peace, and demanded bottles of liquor, enforcing it with drawn revolvers. They were soon arrested for carrying concealed weapons, and were threatened with tar and feathers. Joseph Smith, son of the "prophet," and two others from Utah, are at Richmond, Mo., comparing the Mormon Bible with the original manuscript from the plates alleged to have been given by an angel to Smith, Sr., but the reasons for the comparison have not been made public. Mand S., while exercising at Cleveland, trotted a mile in 2:14.

"BILLY" and "Charley" Hamilton were hanged at Warrensburg, Mo., for the murder of Carl Steible, a German. A sanitary circular, urging that precautions be taken to prevent and counteract the inroads of cholera and suggesting the cleansing of streets, alleys, etc., has been issued by the Illinois State Board of Health to cities, towns, and villages. Everett & Weddell, private bankers at Cleveland, made an assignment. Their assets are reported to greatly exceed their liabilities, which amount to $1,000,000, and it is expected that the suspension will be only temporary.

THE Cincinnati Coroner has just returned a verdict on account of the deaths in the riots there some months ago. He finds that the rioters were killed by the officers of the law in the discharge of their duty in preserving the peace, which is anything but satisfactory to the Germans.

THE SOUTH.

THE first monument to a woman mised in the United States was unveiled at New Orleans, in memory of Margaret Haughery, known as the Orphans' Friend, whose benevolence was extended to all worthy calls for assistance.

THE Louisiana Board of Health has instructed quarantine officers to detain all vessels coming from Toulon, Marseilles, or other cholera-infected ports. Paul Morphy, the world-renowned chess-player, died in New Orleans.

THREE men were executed at Fort Smith, Ark., for murders committed in Indian Territory.

A DUEL was fought at Lozier Station, Texas, on the Southern Pacific Railway, at thirty paces, between Lieut. Cunningham, commander of the Seminole scouts, and a railroader named Daly. The weapons used were pistols. Three shots were fired, resulting in the wounding of Cunningham in the leg. When it became known in the camp that the officer had been wounded, several Seminoles armed themselves, and sought to assassinate Daly, but were restrained by Cunningham. The encounter is said to have resulted from a drinking bout. W. H. Beale and a man named Bowie fought a duel to the death at Dallas, Texas. They were close friends before the fight, and no cause can be found for the quarrel. Seven stores on Market street, Chattanooga, valued at $50,000, were swept away by fire.

WASHINGTON.

THE pension appropriation bill provided for 150 additional special examiners in connection with the Pension Department. The places will be filled by competitive examination. Twenty-five additional appointments in the Patent-Office will also be filled in accordance with the civil-service rules.

At the solicitation of some of the leading trade and industrial organizations of the country the Secretary of State last winter directed the preparation of a circular letter with a view to securing through Consular officers the fullest obtainable information concerning the condition of labor throughout the world, and especially in Europe. Very full returns have been received from Consuls everywhere, and are now in process of preparation in the Bureau of Statistics of the State Department for the press. The material embodies information relating not only to the rates of wages paid to all classes of laborers but to the prices paid for the necessities of life, clothing, rent, food, etc., not only from the American standpoint as to what the necessities of life comprise, but the actual nature and quality of the articles consumed. Within the limits of Washington a Chicago express train collided with a local passenger train, and several persons were killed.

POLITICAL.

A DISPATCH from Albany, N. Y., tells how Gov. Cleveland received the news of his nomination by the Democratic convention:

The first intimation the Governor received of his nomination was when, sitting in his private room off the executive chamber, in the Capitol, hard at work on routine executive business, he heard the boom of a cannon, the reverberations of which echoed back from the hills opposite the stately edifice. The Governor had come to the Capitol at the customary hour, and examined a number of papers requiring his early action. He remained quietly at work until half-past 12 o'clock. There were less than the customary number of chance callers, and nothing occurred to disturb the ordinary routine of the day. At about half-past 12 o'clock Gov. Cleveland, with Adj. Gen. Farnsworth, retired to the Governor's private room in rear of the Executive chamber, to consider some matters concerning the State camp. They were hard at work and apparently oblivious of the fact that a National Democratic Convention was in progress at Chicago. Every other moment a blue-coated messenger interrupted the discussions by a bulletin of the voting at Chicago, received from the Assembly, telegraph office. When the announcement of Pennsylvania's change was made a few friends of the Governor, who had by this time dropped into the office, applauded vigorously. Soon after came the formal announcement of the first ballot. Still the Adjutant General continued calling off the figures from the proof in his hand without watching to see if the Governor made the corrections. At about 1:45 Gen. Farnsworth with the soldier's instinct, first heard the cannon shot. He held up his hand and said, "Listen!" They turned, and then came another roar from the brass "baby waker" that the Young Men's Democratic Club had stationed at the foot of State street. Gen. Farnsworth promptly jumped to his feet and said: "They are firing a salute, Governor, over your nomination." "That's what it is," said Col. Lamont. "Do you think so?" said the Governor. "Well, anyhow, we'll finish up this work," and at it they went again. If any doubt remained as to what the booming of cannon meant, it was soon dispelled by a telephone call, which said: "Tell the Governor he has been nominated on the second ballot." Col. Lamont, the private secretary of the Governor, conveyed the news. The Governor smiled. He did not seem to be at all nervous or excited. Hand-shaking followed, and then the Governor said, suddenly: "Lamont, I wish you would telephone that to the main line. Sisters will want to hear it." The Colonel did so.

GENERAL.

TWO BOYS and two girls went out on Detroit River, from Sandwich, Ontario. Their boat was capsized by the swell of a pro-peller, and three of the party were drowned. One of the girls clung to the skiff all night and until the following afternoon, when she was rescued from a bank of rushes.

THE National Sons of Temperance of America held their convention at Halifax, N. S., last week. An increased membership was reported. The Baltimore and Ohio Company has purchased the Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Toledo Road, and will honor the paper indorsed by Commodore Garrison and the Andrews brothers.

In the National Base-Ball League contest the Bostonians lead with 40 games won; the Providence has now 38, New York 34, Buffalo 27, Chicago 26, Cleveland 21, Philadelphia 18, and Detroit 13. In the Union Association St. Louis has now 36 games, Boston 26, Chicago 25, Baltimore 23, Cincinnati 21, Philadelphia 15, Washington 14, and Kansas City 3. In the Northwestern League the Grand Rapids and Quincy have won 36 games each, Bay City 34, Peoria 31, Saginaw 30, Milwaukee 23, and Minneapolis and Muskegon 19 each.

FOREIGN.

MR. ANDREW CARNEGIE, the Pittsburgh millionaire, has quarreled with his English partner, Mr. Samuel Storey, M. P., over the management of their half a dozen halfpenny newspapers. Carnegie furnished the money and Storey the brains for the journalistic enterprises. Storey was making the papers too radical. Hence the quarrel. At Whitehaven, England, Irish Nationalists made an attack on an Orange procession. Shots were exchanged, and several persons seriously injured. A telegraph boy was killed. The Gladstone party refuses to accept the compromise offered by the Tory Peers through Lord Wemyss on the franchise bill. This probably ends the negotiations for the present. China continues to maintain her bluster in the dispute with France, and the latter is reported as firm and determined. A week will settle the question of whether it will end in war or peace. England, it is reported, is inciting China to fight. A train conveying the Emperor of Austria found the rails misplaced at a gorge near Podgoritz, evidently with murderous intent. The British Government has information that Osman Digma has seized the port of Assis, six miles from Suakin. The cholera epidemic at Marseilles is spreading. The people are fleeing from the city in large numbers. The railway stations are crowded with people trying to secure passenger tickets.

ADDITIONAL NEWS.

TO A reporter at Lockport, N. Y., Gen. Butler said he did not like the Democratic nominees, but he would take no definite action until he had read the letters of acceptance of all the candidates.

THE Mark Lane Express, in its weekly review of the British grain trade, says: "Trade in foreign wheat very dull. The market is decidedly weaker, especially for American, the supply being excessive."

A DISPATCH from Starkville, Miss., says that in October, 1882, B. J. Parish's two boys, aged 12 and 14 years, died suddenly. It now turns out that a negro named Newton Carpenter, living with Parish at the time, poisoned water which the boys drank. Newton confided the matter to a negro woman who a few days ago told Parish. Carpenter was arrested and said he got the poison from a negro doctor, Ned Macks, a notoriously bad character. Macks was also arrested. A posse of half a dozen men had them in charge, when the prisoners were seized by a disguised mob and hanged. A masked mob took Dick Jones, a negro, from jail at Owensboro, Ky., and hanged him. The jailer fired on the party, killing one man, and fatally wounding another. The mob then shot the jailer, who died soon after.

AFTER damage of $50,000 had been done by fire at the mission of San Jose, in California, the old church was saved by the use of claret wine as an extinguisher. D. B. Buford & Co., of the Rock Island (Ill.) Plow Works, have made an assignment. The liabilities are $500,000, while the assets are placed at $800,000. Burgert & Hart, wholesale boots and shoes, at Toledo, Ohio, have made an assignment, with liabilities of $100,000.

It is understood that a successor to Judge Drummond will not be appointed until December, when Congress meets. Postmaster-General Gresham will then be appointed almost without a doubt. In the meantime business in the United States Circuit Court will be seriously delayed.

ANOTHER reason is urged for the acquisition of Cuba by the United States. It would add to the sanitary safety of the nation. We are constantly threatened with the importation of yellow fever from Havana. If that city were controlled by Americans it is urged that it would be a most healthy city, and the contagion-breeding menace would be removed.

THE horse Sour Mash was driven twenty miles in 77:35 in Hampden Park, at Springfield, Mass. The Court of Errors of New Jersey has released two printers of Decker-town who were sentenced to long terms in State prison for criminal libel perpetrated by their employer. A dispatch from Parker, Pa., says seven men were buried by an embankment caving in. Frank Gleason and Michael Miscabrough were killed, and Bernhard Singer, William Piper, Charles Allick, William Kentumach, and John Schalk injured. Singer and Piper are hurt internally, and will probably die.

THE value of the total imports of merchandise of the United States, exclusive of specie and bullion, for the calendar year 1883, amounted to $687,077,666, against $752,843,507 for the previous year, showing a decrease for 1883 of $65,765,841. The value of the total exports, domestic and foreign, exclusive of specie and bullion, for the year 1883, amounted to $795,175,701, against $767,781,946 for the previous year, showing an increase for 1883 of $27,393,755. The value of the total imports of specie and bullion for the year 1883 amounted to $36,209,318, against $22,500,913 for the year previous, an increase for 1883 of $13,708,405. The value of the total exports of specie and bullion for the year 1883 amounted to $31,843,440, against $56,038,134 for the year previous, a decrease for 1883 of $24,194,694. The total foreign trade of the United States, imports and exports, exclusive of specie and bullion, was, for the calendar year 1883, $1,482,250,367, against $1,520,825,453 for the previous year, a decrease for 1883 of $38,575,086.

USE ONLY PURE WATER.

Simple Tests by Which Impurities May Readily Be Detected.

In suspected potable water for persons who can not command chemical analysis the following tests are recommended as being generally available and reliable:

Color—Fill a bottle made of colorless glass with the water; look through the water at some black object; the water should appear perfectly colorless and free from suspended matter. A muddy or turbid appearance indicates the presence of soluble organic matter, or of soluble matter in suspension. It should be "clear as a crystal."

Odor—Empty out some of the water, leaving the bottle half full; cork up the bottle and place it for a few hours in a warm place; shake up the water, remove the cork, and critically smell the air contained in the bottle. If it has any smell, and especially if the odor is in the least repulsive, the water should be rejected for domestic use. By heating the water to boiling an odor is evolved sometimes that otherwise does not appear.

Taste—Water fresh from the well is usually tasteless, even though it may contain a large amount of putrescible organic matter. Water for domestic use should be perfectly tasteless and remain so, even after it has been warmed, since warming often develops a taste in water which is tasteless when cold. If the water, at any time, has a repulsive or even disagreeable taste, it should be rejected.

Heisch's Taste for Sewage Contamination—The delicacy of the sense of smell or taste varies greatly in different individuals; one person may fail to detect the foul contamination of a given water, which would be very evident to a person of finer organization. But if the cause of bad smell or taste exists in water, the injurious effect on health will remain the same, whether recognized or not. Moreover, of some water of very dangerous quality will fail to give any indication by smell or taste. For these reasons I attach special importance to Heisch's test for sewage contamination or the presence of putrescible organic matter. The test is so simple that anyone can use it. Fill a clean pint bottle three-fourths full of the water to be tested, and dissolve in the water a teaspoonful of the purest sugar—loaf or granulated sugar will answer—cork the bottle and place it in a warm place for two days. If in the twenty-four or forty-eight hours the water becomes cloudy or muddy, it is unfit for domestic use. If it remains perfectly clear it is safe to use.—Sanitar. an.

In the Upper Air.

Two Frenchmen claim to have solved the problem of aerial navigation. They have spent many long years in perfecting their machine. It has been demonstrated that birds and insects can travel through the air by aid of one of twelve different means of locomotion. These Frenchmen have taken for the base of their invention a hint from the insect world. We all know that a thin sheet of paper, if it could be kept straight, or if bent downward at the corners and edges, would float for a long period in mid-air. It is this principle of an extended surface, very flexible but under control, which is to be the guiding power of this very ingenious flying machine. It operates by setting in motion a set of rotatory wings, something like those which are used to raise the little imitation butterflies commonly sold at bazaars and fancy fairs, or as children's toys. The principle of their action is that of scattering the air, and creating a vacuum, into which the air behind rushes, carrying with it any solid body which may be floating with it. The apparatus is described as consisting of a long shaped spheroidal balloon, measuring about twelve feet from end to end and three feet in diameter. At each end is arranged a projecting axis, having arms like a windmill, with small cards fixed to them as sails. When one of them is set in motion, the whole machine moves forward in the direction of the axis so working, and continues to do so as long as the sails revolve. By stopping these sails, and starting those at the other end a contrary movement is imparted, and so also with another similar apparatus affixed to the lower side of the balloon and intended to make it descend toward the ground. There is also an arrangement of screens on each side of the several sets of sails, by which the course can be made to deviate to the right or the left. There is no reason to doubt but that the air will be navigated successfully before the close of this century, and man will eventually discover there is not only one but many ways of sailing securely through the open air.—Demorest's Monthly.

A Limited Liability Company.

"Do you insure people engaged in dangerous occupations?" asked a man with a sling over his eye and who hobbled into the office with a crutch.

"Certainly," replied the insurance agent, "we insure men who work in dynamite factories and powder mills."

"Then I want my life insured for $3,000," said the man hobbling to the desk.

"What is your business?"

"I am—"

"Can't insure you."

"Why, I thought you just said that you—"

"That's all right, but we can't take such a heavy risk as yours. We've got to draw the line somewhere."—Louisville Journal.

God smiled when He put humor into the human disposition, and said: "That is good."—Henry Ward Beecher.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

RING-WORM is caused by a parasite and is known by its circular form. It appears in patches, usually on the head and neck. In mild cases, pencilling with tincture of iodine or acetic acid night and morning will be quite sufficient. An ointment made of chrysanthemic acid, 5 to 10 grains; vaseline, 1 ounce; mix and apply night and morning. This ointment cured three cases for me and may be found useful in the treatment of others. Pencilling with sulphurous acid and water in equal parts will cure some cases.

WATER FOR INFANTS—Some two years ago Dr. N. S. Davis, of Chicago, called attention to the condition of the blood of infants in summer, which we might term exaquesous, due to the excessive amount of liquid lost by perspiration, and which he deemed predisposed the system to the Summer diseases of children; and now Dr. Charles Remsen calls attention to this point, which has received altogether too little attention. We all know how seldom an infant is given any more water than that contained in its food, and yet we all see how eagerly they will often drink when it is offered to them. A slightly depressed condition of the anterior fontanelle is one of the earliest symptoms showing the amount of water in the system to be below the standard. Fretfulness, moderate rise of pulse and temperature, a hot, dry skin, and frequent desire to nurse, are other signs. If not relieved, collapse is apt to set in. The treatment adopted for these emergencies consists in wrapping the patient in a wet sheet, applying cold to the head, and plying as much water to the mouth as the child will swallow. The results of this simple method have been extremely satisfactory, the child becoming quiet, and even going to sleep, while all the threatening symptoms subsided with great rapidity.—Health and Home.

DOCTORING IN THE DARK—In many diseases several organs are more or less implicated, and what seems a primary ailment may be one only remote. For instance, a severe headache may have its origin in a disordered stomach. On the other hand, sickness at the stomach may be caused by a blow on the head. Boils and other eruptions on the surface often result from the imperfect action of the liver in eliminating effete matter from the system. So, offensive excretions of the skin, are caused by this latter organ's throwing off what the kidneys or bowels have failed to do. A severe pain in the lower part of the spine may be due to an irritation of a nerve near the base of the brain. A pressure on one side of the brain by an effusion of blood or water (serum) into one of its cavities, may cause a paralysis of the opposite side of the body. The seat of typhoid fever is in the upper part of the bowels; but some of its worst symptoms are often in the brain. Uterine diseases are very often dependent on diseases of the liver, and attention to this latter organ, as well as to the stomach, brain, spleen, etc., is far more important than ordinary local treatment. These facts with many others that might be given, help to show why most persons are incompetent to "doctor" themselves, and why patent medicines are quite likely to do harm rather than good. In sickness, and even in ailments that may seem almost trivial, the most judicious course is to seek the council of a skillful physician. The years that such men have given to the study of disease and to the practice of medicine, make his opinion of value, and worthy of confidence, and there is always a risk when a person seeks to "doctor" himself.—Youth's Companion.

An Ancient Toast.

It was a grand day in the old chivalric times, the wine circling around the board in a noble hall, and the sculptured walls rang with sentiment and song. The lady of each knightly heart was pledge by name, and many a syllable significant of loveliness had been uttered, until it came to St. Leon's turn, when, lifting the sparkling cup on high—

"I drink to one," he said,
"Whose image never may part,
Deep graven on a grateful heart,
Till memory is dead."

"To one whose love for me shall last
When lighter passions long have passed,
So buoy 'tis and true;
To one whose love has longer dwelt,
More deeply fixed, more keenly felt,
Than any pledged by you?"

Each guest upstarted at the word,
And laid a hand upon his sword
With fiery flashing eyes;
And St. Leon said, "We crave the name,
Proud heart of this most peerless dame
Whose love you count so high."

St. Leon paused, as if he would
Not breathe her name in careless mood
Thus lightly to another;
Then bent his noble head as though
To give that name the reverence due,
And gently said "MY MOTHER."

Social Rivalry.

"Mamma," said a New York girl, "do you know that at the Fitzsimmons dinner party yesterday peaches were served in unlimited quantities?"

"Yes, I heard about it."

"They are a hateful set. They knew that we are to give a dinner party next week, and they gave theirs just to spite us."

"Why so?" asked the mother.

"Why so?" the daughter repeated. "Because they must have heard that we are to serve peaches, and they wanted to be the first to do so. I only hope they won't go down any in price."—Philadelphia Call.

WHAT Sunday is to Christians, Monday is to the Greeks, Tuesday to the Persians, Wednesday to the Assyrians, Thursday to the Egyptians, Friday to the Turks, and Saturday to the Jews.

WHAT HE SAID.

Oh, yes, I'll tell you the story—
The very words that were said.
You see the supper was cooking,
And I was sitting some bread,
And Richard came into the pantry;
His face was exceedingly red.

He opened his half-shut fingers,
And gave me the glimpse of a ring;
And then—yes, I remember,
The kettle began to sing,
And Fanny came in with her baby—
The cunningest bit of a thing.

And the biscuit were out in a minute—
Well, what came next? Let me see—
Oh! Fanny was there with the baby,
And we all sat down to tea,
And Grandma looked over her glasses
So queer at Richard and me.

But it wasn't till after milking
The he said what he had to say.
How was it? Oh! Fanny had taken
The baby and gone away—
The funniest rogue of a fellow—
He had a new tooth that day.

We were standing under the plum tree,
And Richard said something low,
But I was tired and flustered,
And trembled, I almost know;
For old Red is the hardest of milkers,
And Brindle's so horrible slow.

And that—let me see—where was I?
Oh! the stars grew thick overhead,
And we two stood under the plum tree
Till the chickens flew up to bed—
Well, he loved me, and we're to be married—
Add that is—about what he said.

THE CLERK'S TALE.

It was a suffocating evening early in August, and I left my work at the foreign office to plod home to dinner through the dusty parks in the worst spirits. The wrongs of a junior clerk whose long-promised holiday had just been snatched away from him on the eve of fulfillment were boiling in me; I felt that they cried out for justice in a free country. Everything was prepared for this month's leave which was to have begun the next day. My father had taken a house on one of the most attractive slopes above Grasmere, and the family residence in Lancaster Gate already bore that denuded and forlorn appearance which precedes a general family flight. We had breakfasted gaily, picnic fashion, with old and inadequate implements; we had prophesied with unabated cheerfulness dining with still fewer of the appliances of civilization, the family plate being not lost but gone before to Grasmere. The house was in as uncomfortable a state as much packing and putting away could make it, for my people intended to spend between two and three months at 'Emerald Bank.' Here was I, with my wings outspread for flight, caught back and doomed to remain in solitude, with dismantled rooms and furniture lurking under dust sheets for company and all because an unstable senior clerk suddenly declared that his health demanded instant change of air, instead of waiting to take his holiday later on, as he had intended. The tale of woe is not complete, for Olga Fielding, to whom I had been but three weeks betrothed, was coming with us to Grasmere, and we had promised ourselves a month of unalloyed bliss among the Westmoreland hills before she was obliged to go back to her filial duties in Copenhagen. There, as her mother was dead, she had to preside over all matters, social and domestic, in her father's extensive establishment.

Gracious heavens! what an ill-arranged planet is this, and what a disorganized constitution was that miserable I's, to choose such a moment to be out of repair! In the first week in September Olga would have to follow her father, who had returned to Copenhagen, and we should meet no more till after Christmas. Was it not enough to make a worm blasphemous? and the bang I gave the hall door on entering covered a vigorous expression of feeling.

Well, the news was broken to a dismayed and sympathetic circle. Olga, who had hitherto professed to consider me as likely to prove a very small addition to the natural features of the lake scenery, was quite overcome; there was some small balm in that. My mother was very unhappy. Even Barbara, the youngest of the family, and strong in the scorn of seventeen for matters of sentiment, forbore to jibe, and gave utterance to violent exclamations of regret, coupled with equally violent abuse of vague persons unknown.

My father, after the first natural shock of disgust, endeavored to console me with unpalatable philosophy and the cool light of reason, remedies which always seem an insult offered to affliction, when applied to one's own case. "It's hard on you, Harry, my boy, no doubt, and I'm sorry for it," he said, in that sobering tone which strikes a chill through the greatest moments of excitement, and makes all previous emotion appear annoyingly ridiculous; "but now you have entered on the serious duties of life, you can't learn too soon that work and not play is the object of a man's life. I'm not at all sure that—" "Ah! how hor-r-rible," broke in the soft voice of my betrothed, with the pretty careful intonation, and long-drawn ripple of the r which she had inherited from her Danish mother.

"Dear Mr. Richardson, do not let us be reasonable to-night. What is the use of being British subjects if we may not have a great grumble? No, that poor boy is very badly treated, and it is all fr-r-rightful!" And my lady clasped her eloquent hands, approached the iron-gray parent for whom our affection had always been largely tempered with respect, and, flinging one arm tightly around his neck, laid her pretty head with its crown of bronze-ripples confidently on his robust black-cloth shoulder.

My father, no doubt, experienced a slight shock; he was unaccustomed to such audacious treatment from the young. But he liked it, he certainly liked it; and planting a firm parental salute on the breezy coils he left us to pour out our mutual woe at leisure.

That night I found it impossible to sleep. The atmosphere was so close and oppressive there seemed to be no air to breathe, and a dull feeling of undefined apprehension haunted me persistently through long hours of wakefulness and miserable brief dozes, refusing to be charmed away by the voice of reason. Haggard, unrefreshed, and still conscious of the same vague foreboding clawing at my heart, I left that bed of suffering at an unwonted hour in the morning, and descended to the library, now a desert of bare boards, dotted about with precipitous islands under dusty cloths. Here a pipe, that unflinching comforter of dejected manhood, restored some balance to my disordered mind, but I still felt very depressed, and was preparing to go forth and seek the restorative dear to every unhinged Briton, an early swim, when the door opened, and to my amazement Olga glided into the room, pale and drooping, with dark lines under her brown eyes. After mutual exclamations and greetings, I demanded the reason of her wan and dejected appearance. She did not answer at first, but turned her face away and tormented the braid on her traveling-dress in silence. "Well, if you will know, dear friend," she said at last, with a charming gesture of resignation, "I think your old foreign office has bewitched me. No, it is that unhappy T., who has the evil eye, for I have a feeling as if some danger was hanging over you, and I could not sleep all night for it. O Harry!" continued the impetuous damsel, suddenly throwing aside the dignity with which she was wont to treat me, now that the worst was out, "come away with us to-day. Never mind a thousand governments and clerkships! I will not go without you. Something dreadful will happen; you feel it too. You look fit for the hangman yourself." It took me a long while to restore Olga to calmness. I laughed at her prognostications and was careful to betray no similar feelings on my own part. She was more or less convinced at last of the utter ruin it would be to my future prospects to desert my post, and we were reasonably resigned if not cheered by breakfast time.

Well, I saw them all off from Euston Station, and trailed away a hapless victim, to my dreary task in the exalted gloom of White Hall. That day seemed interminable; yet there was nothing to look forward to at the end of it, and still with the previous night's weight on my spirits, I started on my way back to the howling wilderness in Lancaster Gate.

Near Hyde-Park-corner, where very few carriages remained to make hay of the dust, I was startled from melancholy reflection by a great bang on the back. Turning sharply round I confronted that athletic giant, Jack Oliver, who had been at the same college as myself, and whom I had not met since we took our respective degrees at Oxford three years before. At Oriel I had been wont to write Jack down an ass, because his invariably boisterous spirits and perpetual athletics were at times a perfect nuisance, but in my present forlorn condition his jolly face and infectious laugh were a real God send.

We dined at the club together, and afterward went to the theater, then smoked a pipe or two in company at Oliver's lodgings, so that it was toward 1 o'clock when I left him to return to Lancaster Gate. Walking along under the park railings, the trees made occasionally ghostly rustlings over head; the air was very still and heavy, in expectation of a traveling thunder storm. The tall shut up houses facing the park looked as forbidding as so many mausoleums in the moonlight, and only the footsteps of a stray wayfarer here and there, or the welcome rattle of an occasional hansom, broke the strange stillness.

All the uncomfortable feelings of the last twenty-four hours, temporarily thrust back by Oliver's cheerful company, returned with overwhelming force. Indignant at being so befuddled by what I declared to myself must be a dyspeptic imagination (though my acquaintance with dyspepsia was happily of the slightest), I argued fiercely with my own folly; but all in vain, that indescribable dead weight of apprehension still crushed my spirits. The senseless sense of unseen danger grew stronger at every yard. I was ready to roar for very disquietude of spirit, "confound it all," I almost shouted, "this is beyond a joke! What an abject piece of imbecility, for a man who has always flattered himself on having too much reason to fall a prey to any superstitious delusions whatever! I must be ill; if things go on like this to-morrow I shall give in, and go to old Burrows (the family Æsculapius) to be put together again."

Meanwhile every step forward appeared to grow more and more difficult. A sudden sound of footsteps close behind most unaccountably paralyzed my powers of locomotion, and filled me with a horrible dread. This was monstrous; with a kind of groan of disgust and misery over my own decrepitude, I resolutely turned round and waited till the steps reached me.

Merciful heaven! What was this that came up, brushed past me, and went on? My brain reeled, a cold perspiration broke out on my forehead, for, frantic as it may sound, it was myself that I saw go by. My exact image and counterpart came toward me, looked me full in the face with cold, indifferent eyes, differing from mine only in their expression at the moment, and passed on, brushing me with the sleeve of a light overcoat exactly like the one I wore. I noted with despairing recognition on the creature's left hand, which was raised, holding the unbuttoned flap of his coat in front of him (a favorite trick of mine), the very ring Olga had given me a week ago, and which was also on my finger at that moment.

For one long minute I stood stupefied with horror, the next I darted forward after that terrible familiar form, which crossed the street and went on toward our door. I felt sure that I must be mad, or in the clutches of some hideous nightmare. Oh! for some power to shake it off and awake. But no! the area railings had a firm and chill reality when I touched them. My footsteps and those others sounded all too solidly on the deserted pavement. I even caught myself deliciously smiling at a peculiar trick of walking in the thing in front, with which Barbara had often taunted me. It was an extraordinary opportunity of seeing oneself as others see one, but what mortal could have availed himself of it under such circumstances?

I staggered on behind him, unable to diminish the twenty yards or so that separated us. Would he stop at No. 204? The suspense was almost intolerable. He did. He disappeared through the door, though the only surviving latchkey was in my hand. When I reached the door it was shut and bore no signs of any unusual treatment. I could not go in; I could not follow into the House and run the risk of meeting that on the dark stairs. A horror unspeakable had taken possession of my senses; I turned and fled, and spent uncounted hours in walking about the silent streets and squares, unconscious of the lapse of time.

The early sunshine aroused and cheered my scattered wits. Gradually the sounds of common life awakening brought back my reasoning faculties; the discordant cry of that bird of dawn the early sweep, was as music in my ears, and seemed to make the dreadful night fade into remoteness and unreality.

I made my way back to Lancaster Gate, footsore and exhausted. The milkman was driving merrily up and down; when I reached our door steps it seemed a year since I had last ascended them. I rushed to my room; it was, of course, empty, the bed untouched. But on the pillow and turned down sheet, exactly where my head and shoulders would have been in the natural course of things, lay the ruins of a large bust, the Hermes, which had been wont to stand on a bracket over the head of the bed. This bracket my mother had frequently entreated me to replace by a firmer support; it had given away at last under the ponderous weight of the bust, which, striking against the iron rail of the bed, had broken into two or three murderous portions that reposed on the pillow and sheet, the bracket only having chosen to glance off on to the floor. Had I been there Hermes must certainly have crushed my skull.

Thrilled with fresh emotion, but too exhausted then to meditate long over the event, I went slowly down to the dining room, and fell asleep on the sofa. The old charwoman, who appeared later with my breakfast, told me she had been startled by hearing a loud crash in the night, soon after the clock had struck 1, but having been only half awake at the time she concluded it was the thunder of my boots being thrown out to await the morning's cleaning. She was now, however, much excited about it, and disposed to revel in a tragedy. I told her that I found the statue fallen on my bed, and that, as it took three men to move it in a general way, I had been obliged to content myself with the sofa. The brief and matter-of-fact tone of my explanations quite failed to quell her exclamations of wonder and amazement, and she was not to be debarred from the pleasure of gloating over all the details of the tragedy which had been averted.

Since that night all has gone well with us. My blessed chief found means to let me go in a day or two, and our time at Grasmere was all we had expected it to be. After Christmas, to our great joy, Mr. Fielding gave up his house at Copenhagen, and came to live in London. Olga and I were married the following summer, and we have never again been disturbed by presentiments, apparitions, or any other subjects worthy to exercise the industry of the Society for Psychical Research.—M. C. Vachell, in Longman's Magazine.

Nations not Parties to Suits.

It is a principle of law among all civilized nations that no government can be tried by or in its own courts. The eleventh amendment to the constitution is as follows: "The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another State or by citizens or subjects of any foreign State." On the same principle States cannot be sued. Persons who believe they have or hold certain claims against the United States may have their cases heard by the Court of Claims, to which are referred all claims founded upon any law of Congress, or upon any regulation of an executive department, or upon any contract, expressed or implied, with the Government of the United States, and all claims which may be referred to it by either House of Congress.—Inter Ocean.

LAMP chimneys will last a great deal longer, if, when new, they are put in a kettle of cold water with a handful of salt, boil a couple of hours, then take off and let the chimney stand in it until cold. This process, I can say from experience, toughens them very much.

WORKSHOP ITEMS.

A suitable place for everything, and everything in its place.
A proper time for everything, and everything done in its time.
A distinct name for everything, and everything called by its name.
A certain use for everything, and everything put to its use.

TEMPERING TOOLS.—A tool, after it has been forged, should be so hardened or tempered that it will never want to come to the fire again until it is so worn down that it requires retempering. This saves the time lost in a second hardening, and it avoids the damage always done to the cutting power by rehardening without forging.

BLACK DYE FOR WOOD.—First sponge the wood with a solution of chlorhydrate of aniline in water, to which a small quantity of chloride is added. Allow it to dry, and go over it with a solution of potassium bichromate. Repeat the process twice or thrice, and the wood will take a fine black color, unaffected by light or chemicals.

GLUE TO RESIST MOISTURE.—The preparations are: One pound of glue melted in two quarts of skimmed milk. If stronger glue is required add powdered chalk to common glue. Another receipt for marine glue is: One part of India rubber, twelve parts of mineral naphtha or coal tar; heat gently, mix and add twenty parts of powdered shellac. Pour out on a slab to cool. When used to be heated to about 250 degrees. A good glue cement to resist moisture may also be made as follows: One part glue, one part of black resin and one-quarter part of red ochre, mixed with the least possible quantity of water; or, four parts glue, one part of boiled oil (by weight) and one part of oxide of iron.

IRON PAINT.—A recent German invention, composed of pulverized iron and linseed varnish, is intended for covering damp walls, outer walls, and, in short, any place or vessel exposed to the action of the open air and weather. Should the article to be painted be exposed to frequent changes of temperature, linseed oil varnish and amber varnish are mixed with the paint intended for the first two coats, without the addition of any artificial drying medium. The first coat is applied rather thin, the second a little thicker, and the last in rather a fluid state. The paint is equally adapted as weather-proof coating for wood, stone, and iron; nor is it necessary to previously free the latter from rust, grease, etc., a superficial cleaning being sufficient. The paint will prove a valuable auxiliary to manufacturers.

SOMEbody says large articles of brass and copper which have become very much soiled may be cleaned by a mixture of rotten-stone (or any sharp polishing powder) with a strong solution of oxalic acid. After being thoroughly cleaned the metal should be wiped off with a cloth moistened with soda or potash, and a very light coating of oil should be applied to prevent the further corroding action of the acid. A more powerful cleaning agent, because more corrosive, is finely powdered chromate of potash mixed with twice its bulk of strong sulphuric acid, diluted (after standing an hour or so) with an equal bulk of water. This will instantly clean the dirtiest brass, but great care must be taken in handling the liquid, as it is very corrosive. Brass which has been lacquered should never be cleaned with polishing powders or corrosive chemicals. Wiping with a soft cloth is sufficient, and in some cases washing with weak soap and water may be admissible. Dry the articles thoroughly, taking care not to scratch them, and if after this they show much sign of wear and corrosion send them to the lacquerer to be refinished.

The Cow's Color.

In the early days of Thaddeus Stevens' practice he was engaged by the defendant in a suit for damages in an alleged trespass of his cow in a neighbor's garden. In the cross examination of a witness who swore to having seen the cow on the premises, Mr. Stevens said:

"Did I understand you to say that the cow in the garden was a black cow?"

"Yes, sir."

"Will you undertake to say that the cow you saw was perfectly black, or was it not lighter in some parts? Now be careful; this is a very important point in your testimony and will effect the decision of the jury."

"Well, I said it was a black cow to the best of my recollection, but it might have been a little mixed in color."

"Ah!" said Stevens, "we are coming to the truth at last. You say it was mixed in color, what do you mean by that? Was it spotted?"

"No, I did not see any spots on it, but it might have been lighter or brindle about the head and breast."

"A brindle cow was it? First it was black, then a little mixed in some places, and now brindle."

The poor witness, utterly bewildered at the perversion of his testimony, could not make a clear statement. Stevens in his speech to the jury, said: "Now, gentlemen of the jury, you have heard and must judge of the credibility of a witness who first swears that he saw my client's cow in his neighbor's cabbage, then swears that the cow was black; he then admits that the cow might have been partially brindle; in fact he can't tell what kind of a cow it was. As there is no question about the color of my client's cow, this evidence fails to prove the case against him."—Philadelphia Times.

SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1884.

J. B. MULLIKEN has been elected Vice-President of the Chicago & West Michigan Railway Company and appointed General Manager pro tempore, to succeed Geo. C. Kimball, who retired on last Tuesday. Mr. Mulliken still retains his position as General Manager of the Detroit, Lansing & Northern. Though his position on the Chicago & West Michigan is announced as a temporary one, there is no doubt that the appointment will be made permanent, and Mr. Mulliken will hereafter have the management of both roads. There is no foundation for the report, however, that the properties are to be consolidated. Both are substantially owned by the same Boston parties, and the high estimation in which Mr. Mulliken is held by them is shown by the fact that both are entrusted to him. He has earned that confidence by the manner in which he has built up the Detroit, Lansing & Northern—almost from "two streaks of rust" to one of the best paying local roads in the country. Last year besides the seven per cent interest on the bonds the common stockholders were paid six and one-half per cent out of the earnings. Besides this the equipment and road bed are first-class. Mr. Mulliken's railroad career is well known among railroad men and is one to be proud of. He began in the ranks, as a brakeman. Reaching the position of station agent on the Chicago & Northwestern his promotions came in rapid succession to Assistant Superintendent and the Division Superintendent. About eight years ago when Mr. Joy was President of the Detroit, Lansing & Northern, Mr. Mulliken was selected as the proper person to pull that road out of its straits and was made General Superintendent. When the condition of the road warranted he was given a general superintendent to lighten his duties, and he himself made General Manager. He has received several flattering offers from important railway companies, but has preferred to remain with the road whose prosperity he has made.

Fruit Growers' Association.

This organization recently formed includes the two western tiers of counties in the state, at a meeting held July 1, 1884, it constructed its working machinery by adopting its by-laws and appointing its committees. Among its by-laws are these two:

7. There shall be appointed annually by the president a committee of three on marketing whose duty it shall be by visit or correspondence to ascertain all desirable points for distribution, the amount of each kind of fruit needed at such points and the best houses through which to make sales, reporting same to the executive board in time to arrange the business for each fruit season. The executive board shall then determine and recommend to the members of the society these points of distribution.

8. The committee provided for in section 7, shall ascertain as near as practicable the supply of fruit on each successive season, reporting the same whenever called upon by the society or executive board; and on that basis shall obtain from all available transportation companies lowest terms of freight for direct and speedy shipment through to all selected points of distribution. There terms the committee shall report to the executive board for its action or recommendation.

Under these by-laws the president appointed as the committee on marketing: A. S. Kedzie, of Grand Haven, J. O. Antidale, of Lake Harbor, and Arend Vischer, of Holland.

Any inquiries or suggestions pertaining to the business of the committee may be addressed to any member of the committee or to its chairman.

A CLERGYMAN stopped in the middle of his sermon Sunday morning and said: "I notice something in my congregation this morning that I have not noticed before since I have been here. In a short time there will be a collection taken up and those found sleeping will of course be expected to pay for their lodging." It is almost needless to say that his congregation remained wide awake during the remainder of the service.

Card of Thanks.

To all those who contributed towards the liberal purse of seventy-nine dollars placed in our hands during the past week I would express, in behalf of myself and family, our grateful feelings. The Christian sympathy and kindness displayed in so many ways during our present sorrowful experiences we fully appreciate. May the Lord administer richly to the peace and comfort of all those whose words and deeds have proved so helpful to us in these days of our grief and gloom.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved, that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only fifty cents a bottle at H. Walsh's.

If any of our readers should not attend church to-morrow, we commend for his consideration the following rule of conduct adopted by a Quaker:

I expect to pass through this world but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do, to any fellow human being, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again. Let this be my epitaph:

What I spent I had;
What I saved I left behind;
What I gave away I took with me.

Complainant.

ALBERT F. HUNGERFORD,
Defendant.

Suit pending in the Circuit Court for the County of Ottawa in Chancery, at the City of Grand Haven, on the twenty-second day of May, A. D. 1884.

It is satisfactorily appearing to this court by affidavit on file, that the defendant, Albert F. Hungerford is not a resident of this State, but resides at Jamestown, Stutsman County, Dakota, on motion of G. J. Diekema, Complainant's Solicitor, it is ordered that the said defendant, Albert F. Hungerford cause his appearance to be entered herein, within four months from the date of this order, and in case of his appearance that he cause his answer to the complainant's bill of complaint to be filed, and a copy thereof to be served on said complainant's solicitor within twenty days after service on him of a copy of said bill and notice of this order; and that in default thereof, said bill be taken as confessed by the said non-resident defendant.

And it is further ordered that within twenty days after the date hereof, the said complainant cause a notice of this order to be published in the HOLLAND CITY NEWS, a newspaper printed, published and circulating in said County, and that such publication be continued therein at least once in each week for six weeks in succession, or that she cause a copy of this order to be personally served on said non-resident defendant, at least twenty days before the above time prescribed for his appearance.

Dated at Holland, Ottawa County, this twenty-second day of May, in the year A. D. 1884.

Mr. Jas. Huntley is erecting several very fine cottages for summer tourists.

What has become of our Band Excursions? And what has become of our band?

The weather for haying has been fine and the crop has been secured without damage.

SENATOR John Roost who has been very ill is reported as being in a fair way of recovery.

The schooner Wender, Capt. E. Belhuis, is carrying considerable back freight from Milwaukee to this city.

GENERAL MANAGER MULLIKEN, of the Chicago and West Mich. Ry., passed through this city last Thursday.

The steamer Macatawa has carried an average of 200 passengers daily during the past two weeks. Capt. Hopkins is happy.

PROF. G. P. HUMMER attended the sessions of the National Association of Teachers, held in the city of Madison, Wis., this week.

OUR wagon manufacturer, Jacob Flieman, reports the sale of thirty-seven wagons since the 9th of March and is now making preparations for a brisk fall trade.

LAST Thursday the members of Columbia Fire Engine Co., No. 2 went to Macatawa Grove and spent the day picnicking. The "boys" all report having had a very enjoyable time.

Rumor says two large summer resort hotels will be built here this fall. One at the park, costing ten thousand dollars and one at Macatawa Grove, costing thirty thousand dollars.

Mrs. Geo. Foster, who resides in the residence of Rev. Chas. Scott, D. D., on Ninth St., is a music teacher of ten years experience, and will form a class of pupils for instruction on the piano or organ. All who desire lessons should apply early.

Mr. A. Glerum, an old resident of Zeeland and the father-in-law of John and Gerrit Pessink of this city, died very suddenly of heart disease last Thursday afternoon. The funeral will take place to-day at one o'clock in the Reformed Church of Zeeland.

LAST Friday night after the news had been received here of the nomination of Cleveland and Hendricks for President and Vice-President on the Democratic ticket, the Democracy of this city indulged in a little ratification by shooting the cannon off and by building a big bon-fire on River street, opposite Centennial Park.

It is reported that some individual who runs a boat somewhere between Grand Rapids and Milwaukee, has started a report that the steamer A. B. Taylor, which regularly plys between this city and Chicago, is an old and unsafe boat to travel on. This report, in the face of the fact that the steamer Taylor is running for her first season, places that individual in rather an unfavorable light in marine circles on this shore.

The Grandview in a report of the democratic ratification meeting, held last Friday night, stated one thing at least that was not true, and that is that buildings were pulled down in Centennial Park. It is true, however, that damage was done, but it was promptly adjusted. The report also says that lives were endangered by the reckless firing of the cannon. This would be true if there had been any one standing within range of the gun. But to class our democratic aldermen as ruffians is the unkindest cut of all and is unworthy of the editor of that paper.

LAST Thursday evening, July 17, A. C. Van Raalte, Post, No. 262, Grand Army of the Republic, was instituted at this place in Odd Fellows hall by Comrade E. P. Gibbs and some twenty-two members of Weatherwax Post, No. 75, of Grand Haven. A. C. Van Raalte Post starts out with some twenty-three of our old soldier boys as members, and there are several who will immediately join. The officers as elected on the evening of the institution are as follows: Commander, John Kramer; Senior Vice Commander, Benjamin Van Raalte; Junior Vice Commander, James L. Fairbanks; Officer of the Day, W. Baumgartel; Chaplain, John Van Lente; Surgeon, William Van Putten; Quartermaster, Peter H. Wilms; Adjutant, John Grotenhuis; Quartermaster Sergeant, Peter De Feyter; Sergeant Major, John DeBoe; Officer of the Guard, Samuel Smith. This new post starts out with a good active set of officers and will undoubtedly grow rapidly in membership as soon as the "boys" learn the objects of the Grand Army of the Republic. May the "camp fires" of A. C. Van Raalte Post always be well attended.

MR. AND MRS. J. G. VAN ZANTEN, of Orange City, Ia., are visiting friends in this city.

JAMES KONING, Jr., Clerk of the American House of Muskegon, called on his many friends here this week.

A. F. BLOOTER has received a lot of fresh candles, nuts and foreign fruits. He also has some of the finest brands of cigars in the city.

JACOB FLIERMAN, Jr., has built a boat house at the foot of Sixth street and will run a boat livery. He has a good stock of boats and will let them at reasonable rates.

Mr. J. R. Kleyn has taken the contract for erecting a summer cottage for Mr. Heber Walsh. From the plans we should judge that it is to be a very fine and comfortable edifice.

C. H. HARMON, our first ward barber, has added a bath room to his establishment and has filled a long-felt want in this city. All who desire hot and cold baths can now procure them at his place.

SOME two hundred excursionists from Zeeland and vicinity visited this city and took in the beauties of our summer resort last Thursday. They were accompanied by the Zeeland Cornet Band which is, by the way, a very creditable organization and give the people of Zeeland plenty of good music.

THE first new wheat of the season was received at the Plugger Mills on last Thursday afternoon. It was raised on the farm of widow Bruschard who lives a short distance south of this city. The berry is very plump but is not as hard as it might be. The price paid for it was 85 cents.

To the kind friend who left a basket of very fine vegetables at our office we wish to return our thanks. If it were not for these occasional attentions from our friends we would have to stop business, as only a few seem to care about paying us our honest and just dues. We have sent numerous requests to "pay up" and they have universally been discarded. Is this thing to continue?

THE General Synod of the Reformed Church held the early part of last month at Grand Rapids, was one of the largest and best the church has ever enjoyed. Its deliberations were full of interest and importance as showing the spirit and standing of the denomination it represents. Next Sabbath evening in Hope Reformed Church Rev. T. W. Jones will give a review of its proceedings.

THE course of Holland is still onward. There is no halt in the building boom. The merry hammers of the carpenters are heard on every hand and dwellings and buildings are springing up. The prosperity of Holland is at high tide. And this being the case there is little matter we wish to allude to. The way to render this prosperity enduring and make no mistake about it, is to build up manufacturing industries. Money put in store buildings and houses and lots is well as an investment, but it only becomes a creator of wealth and a promoter of prosperity when it is invested in manufacturing enterprises.

THE crop report issued from the office of the Secretary of State, dated July 1st, 1884, shows the following facts: For this report returns have been received from 891 correspondents, representing 660 townships. The total number of bushels of wheat harvested in the state in 1883, was 23,478,322. The probable total yield of wheat in Michigan the present year is 21,965,391 bushels. This estimate is based on the number of acres in wheat in May as returned to this office by supervisors, and the average yield per acre in each county, as estimated by crop correspondents. The condition of crops, expressed in per cent of condition one year ago, is, for the State as follows: Corn, 118; oats, 95; barley, 97; clover meadows and pastures, 88; timothy meadows and pastures, 86; clover sowed this year, 88. The condition of corn compared with vitality and growth of average years is 92. Sixteen per cent of the corn planted failed to grow. Apples promise in the northwestern part of the State 76 per cent; in the northeastern, 81 per cent; in the central, 74 per cent; in the southwestern, 78 per cent; and in the southeastern, 72 per cent of an average crop. The average for the State is 75. Peaches promise in the northwestern part of the State 30 per cent; in the northeastern, 37 per cent; in the central 19 per cent; in the southwestern, 27 per cent; and in the southeastern, 20 per cent of an average crop. The average for the State is 26.

PROF. W. A. Shields is spending the summer at Good Hope, Ill.

In about three weeks some of the early varieties of peaches will be ripe.

LAST Friday evening a "roller skating reception" was held in Lyceum Hall and was largely attended.

FISHING in the bay for the past two weeks has been very poor and disappointed anglers have been numerous.

THE Water Works contractors have been busy this week setting a Hydrant on Eighth street between Market and Cedar.

MARTIN BREUKEMA now has nearly thirty as fine boats as can be found anywhere connected with his boat livery. Martin reports business as being lively.

Mrs. MATILDA INBUSH, Mr. and Mrs. Specker, of Milwaukee, Wis., and Miss Helena Breyman, of Salem, Oregon, are visiting the family of our jeweler, Mr. Otto Breyman.

LAST Thursday the steamer Taylor ran an excursion from this city to Chicago. Smith's opera house band of Grand Rapids accompanied the boat. Some fifty passengers took passage on her from this city.

Mr. George H. Souter will furnish families with fresh Kalamazoo Celery on Saturdays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the season. Parties desiring it can leave orders at the express office or at the meat market of De Kraker & Dek and it will be delivered at your homes. Mr. Souter has made special arrangements which will enable him to sell celery at reasonable figures and gives all a chance of procuring it fresh three times a week.

OUR water works are nearly completed and still no action has been taken toward furnishing a street sprinkler. It seems to us that it would be the part of economy for our Council to take hold of this matter. Both Eighth and River streets are greatly damaged in dry seasons like this, and if this weather and the prevailing winds hold on the gravel and clay that is on Eighth street will both have disappeared.

WE were handed the following as the report of the secretary of the Star Temperance Society for the quarter ending July 1, 1884: "The membership of the society numbers 22, of which 7 are new members. Meetings have been held every week but one. Literary exercises averaging 6 pieces, consisting of original productions, recitations, select readings, vocal and instrumental music, etc., have been given at each meeting. The society has procured 18 gold plated star badges. Expenses of the quarter $13.60, receipts $7.90, amount in treasury $3.25."

THE sabbath school of Hope Church went to the Park last Wednesday on their regular annual picnic. With the school, their friends, and the families who attend the church, there were nearly five hundred persons. The committee in charge were very liberal in giving out tickets and gave all friends who had ever been connected with the church an opportunity of going. The day was beautiful and no accidents occurred to mar the pleasure of the occasion. The boat made an extra trip back in order to accommodate the large number at the Park. About twenty of the young folks, who were sailing on Lake Michigan, missed the last boat, owing to a statement made by the Captain that the steamer would leave at 8 o'clock, and were consequently left to get home the best way they could, which they succeeded in doing by hard labor and a "white oak breeze."

THE report of the census enumerator gives Holland City, population by wards as follows: first ward, 864; second ward, 511; third ward, 1,129; fourth ward, 468. The total is 2,972; population in 1880, 2,630; increase, 352. The following are the census returns for Ottawa county, for 1884, also those for 1880, and a comparison made of the difference:

THE INDUSTRIOUS ANT.

He Is Only Equalled by the Industrious Lion.

Sir John Lubbock, who has started a dog school in London, says ants stand next to man in point of intelligence, and I reckon they do. For instance: I have lived nearly all my life in the South, where the ants tackle everything. Beds, tables, cupboards—in fact, every article you wanted to keep ants out of had to be stood in water—that is, in peach cans cut off and filled. But even this wouldn't do; the ants would find some floating matter on the surface, and bridge the moat with their bodies, and so get over. Then we tried tar-water, and suspended sugar in pails from the ceiling. For a while this nonplused them; but attracted by the smell, they gathered on the safe under it, and after a while we found them coming down the rope. They had gone up the ceiling, and so on down. A friend of mine in the African fruit trade told me that one night, when up a river, near the Congo country, he was awakened by a yell, and tumbling out of his hammock, found himself standing a foot deep in solid ants. He ran for his life, covered with them, and finally got beyond their line of march and stayed in a tree all night. The next morning, when he returned, the whole house had been cleaned out. A dog that was tied to a tree was represented by a lot of clean-picked bones. It was the raider ant, and when they come there is no way to do but to surround the place with fire. Animals run from them.

"This sounds like a yarn," said the ant authority, "but the story told by Jaeger, the naturalist, is a bigger one. He states that a Catholic missionary was sick in Congo, when one of the armies came along, and it was by sheer luck that the natives got him up. As they carried him out of the house, the floor was over a foot deep with the insects, and of a cow that they forgot in the stable the bones alone told the story next morning.

"The most remarkable thing about ants is the method with which they work. The different families are divided off into different kinds of workers—soldiers who do the fighting, workers that do the manual labor, and kings and queens who do nothing. When the great Saaba ants start out on an expedition, if it is hot weather, you see the laborers ahead forming a covered tunnel through which the entire body passes. Now, if you break this in, out rush, not the laborers, but the big-headed, big-jawed soldiers, who dart about to find the intruder, and if nothing is to be seen they go in and inform the laborers, who then appear and repair damages. When they come to streams they climb the trees on the bank, form themselves into chains, and swing gradually over until the end ant catches hold of a tree on the other side. On this bridge pass over the rest.

"In Brazil the workers of certain ants form burrows under ground acres in extent, and those called the leaf cutters do incalculable damage. They climb the lemon and other trees in vast numbers, and by a scissors-like motion of the jaws, cut out a piece of oval leaf and start off, holding it erect over their heads like a parasol. These they carry to their underground houses and use them as thatching or wall paper, and for another purpose still more singular. Upon the leaves, as soon as they are put in place, grows a delicate fungus, which is used as food for the young ants. So, you see, the insects may actually be said to be agriculturists. The Texas agricultural ants go to work in a more methodical manner. They make a nest beneath the ground, and raised several inches above it, and clear away a space on either side of several feet, from which branch through the grass several roads. Curiously enough this grass about the nest is all of one kind. All the other weeds are cleared away. Some people say the ants actually plant the grass seed. However, they do gather it and feed it to the young, and store the grain houses under ground. Here you see another evidence of intelligence. The seeds stowed away would naturally sprout after a rain, but in some cases, when they become damp, the ants take them to the surface and dry them in the sun; in other cases, they poison the seed by biting it, so that it does not sprout.

"Some years ago, a discussion was raised in Brazil over the work of ants, a naturalist claiming that he could show a place where they had tunneled under a river. Such a statement would hardly be believed true, but it was proved, and marked ants passed into the tunnel on one side and were observed to come out on the other, a quarter of a mile distant. More than this smoke was forced through the tunnel.—Interview in the New York Sun.

An Interesting Lion Story.

The memory of the lion was preserved in its ancient haunts long after it had become extinct. The scene of one of the prettiest stories told by Aelian is laid in Mount Pangæum, which, from its mention by Xenophon, must have been a famous haunt of lions.

Endemus tells the tale that in Pangæum, in Thrace, a bear attacked the lair of a lion, while it was unguarded, and killed the cubs that were too small and too weak to defend themselves. And when the father and mother came home from hunting somewhere, and saw their children lying dead, they were much aggrieved, and attacked the bear; but she was afraid, and climbed up into a tree as fast as she could, and settled herself down, trying to avoid the attack. Now, when they saw that they could not avenge themselves on her, the lioness did not cease to watch the tree, but sat down in ambush at the foot, eyeing the bear that was covered with blood. But the lion, as it were, without purpose and distraught with grief, after the manner of a man, rushed off to the mountains, and chanced to light upon a woodcutter, who, in terror, let fall his ax, but the lion fawned upon him, and reaching up saluted him as well as he could, and licked his face with his tongue. And the man took courage. Then the lion encircled him with his tail, and led him, and did not suffer him to leave his ax behind, but pointed with his foot for it to be taken up. And when the man did not understand he took it up in his mouth and reached it to him. Then he followed while the lion led him to his den. And when the lioness saw him she came and made signs, looking at the pitiable spectacle, and then up at the bear. Then the man perceived and understood that the lion had suffered cruel wrong from the bear, and cut down the tree with might and main. And the tree fell, and the lions tore the bear in pieces; but the man the lion led back again, safe and sound, to the place where he lighted on him, and returned him to the very tree he had been cutting.—W. Boyd Hawkins, in Popular Science.

The First Health-Drinking.

"Healths" in honor of mortals came to us from abroad. The first given in Britain was proposed by a lady. It was the "Health of the King," and mischievous came of it. The lady was Rowena, the daughter of Hengist. That Saxon ally of the British King, Vortigern, entertained at a banquet the monarch whom he first intended to make his son-in-law and then destroy. After dinner the ladies were admitted, a custom which has not yet died out on occasions of public festivity, and Rowena was at the head of them. She carried aloft a capacious goblet of wine, and, approaching the dazzled and delighted King, she said, with a courteous reverence: "Lord King, I drink your health."

This was said in Saxon, and Vortigern shook his head to imply that he had not been taught Saxon, and was sorry for it. He looked inquiringly at his interpreter, and that official translated the lady's words. But this rendered Vortigern little the wiser, as Rowena stood silently gazing at him, cup in hand, and he found himself in utterly new circumstances and in dreadful want of a master of ceremonies.

"What ought I to do?" he asked the interpreter, and the latter replied: "As the lady has offered to drink your health, saying, 'Wacht heil?' you should bid her quaff the wine, saying, 'Drinc heil!'"

And Vortigern shaped his British mouth to the utterance.

Catholic College.

Mr. J. D. Kingsley, Secretary Holy Cross College Gymnasium, Worcester, Mass., writes: "Every member of our club frankly admits that St. Jacobs Oil, the conqueror of pain, is the best cure they have ever used, and all speak of it in terms of the highest approbation." 50 cents a bottle.

Letting $800 Drop.

A solemn-looking citizen appeared at Police Headquarters, and, beckoning the chief into a private room, said:

"You know that $800 robbery at my house that I reported yesterday morning?"

"Certainly, and I have put two of our best men on the case, and—"

"Well, I—ahem—I have decided not to pursue the matter. You needn't take any further steps. In fact—"

"You don't mean to say that you have recovered the money?"

"Oh! no—not at all."

"Found a clew, eh?"

"Well, n-o-o, not exactly. The fact is the money was taken out of my trousers' pockets at night, and—and—this morning my wife had sent home a new sealskin sack."

"Ah!"

"And so, you see, I have about concluded to let the matter drop—let the matter drop," and with a deep sigh the bereaved husband drifted out.—San Francisco Post.

What a Nuisance.

After eating a well-cooked meal with a tolerable appetite, to be pestered with heartburn! Is that your case, my dear sir or madam? If so, rectify the difficulty with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the national stomachic. It will put the stomach on good terms with its contents, and enable it to digest far more rapidly than carbonate of soda, or ginger, or any other carminative. Such post-prandial helps are ineffectual and injure the stomach. Not so the Bitters. Digestion is the proximate effect of its use, a function which could not be resumed without the disappearance of such symptoms as heartburn, flatulence and acidity of the stomach. Bilious subjects also derive speedy relief from it. As a laxative it is effective and painless. Rheumatic sufferers testify to its good effects, and as a diuretic it bears a high reputation. Languor and lassitude are succeeded by a feeling of vigorous energy when it is resorted to. It quiets and strengthens the nerves, and a wineglassful swallowed before bed-time enables one to court sleep successfully. It also eradicates malarial poison from the system.

ALTHOUGH the lower animals can not talk they are nearly all tail-bearers.

Wisely Adopted by Dairy-men.

The adoption by most of the prominent dairy-men and farmers of the United States of the Improved Butter Color made by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt., is a proof of their wisdom in a business point of view. Nearly all winter butter is colored in order to make it marketable, and this color is the best, in regard to purity, strength, permanence, and perfection of tint.

THE STAGE-DRIVER'S STORY.

How General Scott's Life Was Saved and How His Driver Twice Escaped Death.

The traveler of the present day, as he is hurried along by the lightning express, in its buffet cars and palace sleepers, seldom reverts in thought to the time when the stage coach and packet were the only means of communication between distant points. It is rare that one of the real old-time stage-drivers is met with now-a-days, and when the writer recently ran across Fayette Haskell, of Lockport, N. Y., he felt like a bibliographer over the discovery of some rare volume of "forgotten lore." Mr. Haskell, although one of the pioneers in stage driving (he formerly ran from Lewiston to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, is hale and hearty, and bids a ro live for many years. The strange stories of his early adventures would fill a volume. At one time when going down a mountain near Lewiston with no less a personage than General Scott as a passenger, the brakes gave way and the coach came on the heels of the wheel horses. The only remedy was to whip the leaders to a gallop. Gaining additional momentum with each revolution of the wheels, the coach swayed and pitched down the mountain side and into the streets of Lewiston. Straight ahead at the foot of the steep hill flowed the Niagara River, towards which the four horses dashed, apparently to certain death. Yet the firm hand never relaxed its hold, nor the clear brain its conception of what must be done in the emergency. On dashed the horses until the narrow dock was reached on the river bank, when by a masterly exhibition of nerve and daring, the coach was turned in scarce its own length, and the horses brought to a standstill before the pale lookers on could realize what had occurred. A purse was raised by General Scott and presented to Mr. Haskell with high compliments for his skill and bravery.

Notwithstanding all his strength and his robust constitution, the strain of continuous work and exposure proved too much for Mr. Haskell's constitution. The constant jolting of the coach and the necessarily cramped position in which he was obliged to sit contributed to this end, and at times he was obliged to abandon driving altogether.

Speaking of this period he said: "I found it almost impossible to sleep at night; my appetite left me entirely, and I had a tired feeling which I never knew before and could not account for."

"Did you give up driving entirely?"

"No. I tried to keep up, but it was only with the greatest effort. This state of things continued for nearly twenty years until last October, when I went all to pieces."

"In what way?"

"Oh, I doubled all up; could not walk without a cane, and was incapable of any effort or exertion. I had a constant desire to urinate both day and night, and, although I felt like passing a gallon every ten minutes, only a few drops could escape and they thick with sediment. Finally it ceased to flow entirely, and I thought death was very near."

"What did you do then?"

"What I should have done long before: listen to my wife. Under her advice I began a new treatment."

"And with what result?"

"Wonderful. It unstopped the closed passages, and what was still more wonderful, regulated the flow. The sediment vanished, my appetite returned, and I am now well, and good for twenty more years, wholly through the aid of Warner's Safe Cure, that has done wonders for me as well as for so many others."

Mr. Haskell's experience is repeated every day in the lives of thousands of American men and women. An unknown evil is undermining the existence of the danger they are in until health has entirely departed, and death, perhaps, stares them in the face. To neglect such important matters is like drifting in the current of Niagara above the Falls.

Tried to Tire Him Out.

Mamma—I met young Mr. Nicefellow on the street to-day, and told him frankly that although he was welcome to come and see you, he should remember that you were young and needed plenty of sleep, and therefore ought not to stay so late.

Nellie—And what did he say?

Mamma—He shocked me awfully by insisting that you kept him from going.

Nellie—Oh, the great big story teller! I tried my best to tire him out so that he would go home.

Mamma—Tried to tire him out!

Why, how?

Nellie—By sitting on his lap.—Philadelphia Call.

Another Life Saved. Mrs. Harriet Cummings, of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes: "Early last winter my daughter was attacked with a severe cold, which settled on her lungs. We tried several medicines, none of which seemed to do her any good, but she continued to get worse, and finally raised large amounts of blood from her lungs. We called in a family physician, but he failed to do her any good. At this time a friend, who had been cured by Dr. Wm. Hall's Balsam for the Lungs, advised me to give it a trial. We then got a bottle, and she began to improve, and by the use of three bottles was entirely cured."

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE Or CHILLS and FEVER, AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.

PAIN.

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease. Such a remedial agent exists in that old Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS' Pain-Killer

It was the first and is the only permanent Pain Reliever.

ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.

There is nothing to equal it. In a few moments it cures

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhea, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.

It is found to CURE CHOLERA

When all other Remedies fail.

WHEN USED EXTERNALLY. AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker relief in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects, and Scalds. It removes the fire, and the wound heals the ordinary sores. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout, or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where

FEVER and AGUE

Prevails there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.

Amputation Within Three Inches of the Hip Joint!—Recovery Due to the Use of Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy (Rondout, N. Y.)

Money is the universal necessity, and none but a cynic or a fool will affect to despise it. Mr. Abraham Ellsworth, of Port Ewen, Ulster County, N. Y., had realized this truth. His disease involved the whole of his thigh bone, and the suffering man looked forward, not without apparent reason, to death as his only deliverer. His family physician refused to amputate the limb—asserting that the operation would kill the patient on the spot. Dr. David Kennedy, of Rondout, N. Y., who was consulted, held a different opinion, and amputated the limb. The Doctor then administered freely his great Blood medicine, FAVORITE REMEDY, to afford tone and strength to the system, to prevent the return of the disease, and Mr. Ellsworth remains to this day in the bloom of health. This gentleman's disease was the offspring of foul blood, and Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY purified the blood and restored to him the power once more to enjoy his life. Are you suffering from any disease traceable to the same cause? Try FAVORITE REMEDY. Your druggist has it. One dollar a bottle. Bear in mind the proprietor's name and address: Dr. David Kennedy, Rondout, New York.

THE following letter from Hon. H. R. Goss, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Lansing, Mich., to Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, shows the working of their compulsory temperance education law:

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION,
LANSING, May 29, 1884.

DEAR MADAM:—Yours of yesterday is before me. You ask, "Are teachers endeavoring to fit themselves to teach on this subject? meaning physiology and hygiene with particular reference to the effects of alcoholic drinks, stimulants and narcotics upon the human system, as required after Sept. 1, the present year?"

I can answer without doubt, that I think they are.

The law requiring teachers to give instruction in this particular study took effect Sept. 7, 1883, but it gave them time to prepare for examination in the same until Sept. 1, 1884, after which time, "No certificate shall be granted to any person who shall not pass a satisfactory examination in said study."

As the good results of the law I notice that publishers in several states have been and are hard at work getting out books to meet the demands of the law, the teachers, students, and the people.

The books that have appeared within the last six months are far in advance of any former published works, and some of them are really meritorious.

As the results of the law people in all parts of the country are waking up to the importance of the subject upon which the teachers of Michigan must soon be qualified to stand an examination and give accurate and thorough instruction in our schools.

An Editor's Tribute.

Thereon P. Keator, Editor of Ft. Wayne, Ind., Gazette, writes: "For the past five years have always used Dr. King's New Discovery, for coughs of most severe character, as well as for those of a milder type. It never fails to effect a speedy cure. My friends to whom I have recommended it speak of it in same high terms. Having been cured by it of every cough I have had for five years, I consider it the only reliable and sure cure for coughs, colds, etc." Call at H. Walsh's drug store and get a trial bottle. Large size $1.00.

H. B. COCHRAN, druggist, Lancaster, Pa., has guaranteed over 300 bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters for dyspepsia, bilious attacks, liver and kidneys.

In Holland, Mich., O. J. Doesburg published the News, and strongly recommends Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for coughs, sore throat, catarrh and asthma.

A PURE and Reliable Medicine.—A compound fluid extract of roots, leaves, barks and berries is Burdock Blood Bitters. They cure all diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys.

We hope those who read the following sad story may profit by it: Recently a resident of a Western state was out hunting, and to get shelter from an approaching storm he crept into a hollow log. After the storm abated he attempted to crawl out, but found it was impossible to make his exit. He endeavored to compress himself as much as possible, but without success. He thought of all the mean things he had ever done, until finally his mind reverted to the fact that, instead of subscribing for his local paper, he was in the habit of borrowing it from his neighbors and thus defrauding the printer. In this he felt so small that he slipped out of the log without any trouble.

GEO. H. SIPP, City Clerk.

It Will Cure You!

GOLDEN SEAL BITTERS are the great blood purifier, liver and kidney remedy and life giving principle, a perfect renovator and invigorator of the system carrying away all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition, enriching it, refreshing and invigorating both mind and body. They are easy of administration, prompt in their action, certain in their results, safe and reliable in all forms of disease. Every moment of our lives, every part of our bodies, is wearing out and is being built up anew. This work is accomplished by the blood. The blood if pure makes the entire circuit of the body every seven minutes. But if it becomes weak or vitiated and does not perform its work properly the system is actually poisoned by the worn-out matter clogging the vital organs instead of leaving the body. Cleanse the blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, sores, etc. Keep the liver in order, the blood pure health of the system will follow.
