Charge Allegan Social Worker

Farnsworth To Run Again; Faces Van Til

ALLEGAN — Representative James R. Farnsworth, Allegan county, announced today he will be a candidate for re-election in the newly created 55th legislative district.

District 55 includes one half of Allegan county now represented by Farnsworth, plus seven townships from Barry county, two from Ottawa, and the city of Holland.

Farnsworth stated he regrets being unable to represent that part of Allegan county now in District 54, but welcomes the opportunity to offer his services to the people of Holland City, Zeeland and Jamestown townships in Ottawa county and of the seven townships in Barry county.

According to Farnsworth, his choice of districts was motivated by the location of his automobile business, which he has operated for 34 years, located in District 55 at Plainwell.

Farnsworth said he will live in Plainwell to be in the area of the new district. Chairman of the State Library Committee, Farnsworth is also a member of the Committee on Education and Public Health, a member of the Revision and Amendment to the Constitution and Apportionment Committee and serves on the Important Interim Committee on Governmental Reorganization.

A Con-Con delegate, former mayor of Otsego, former member of the Allegan County Board of Supervisors, and presently a member of the state legislature, Farnsworth has served in local, county, and state government a total of 23 years.

Farnsworth will be opposing Riemer Van Til of Holland for the Republican nomination in the 55th district. Van Til currently represents Ottawa county in the House of Representatives. A reapportionment some weeks ago put Holland city into the 55th district.

Nab Man in Car Theft

Carl C. Avants, 43, of Flint, was arrested by Ottawa sheriff's and Holland police detectives Wednesday in connection with a car theft last weekend in Flint. The congregation of Central Park Reformed Church will hold its annual church and Sunday School picnic at Teusink's Farm on Wednesday, July 22.

Charter Vote On Library Is Sought

A charter revision vote to remove the one mill limitation on library operations likely will be voted on in the November election.

Mrs. Guscinski said "she had gotten tired of seeing welfare recipients cheat and simply decided to take some for herself," according to Allegan County Prosecuting Attorney E. L. Andrews.

Mrs. Guscinski went to Allegan County jail instead of to a birthday party planned for her Tuesday.

Andrews said Mrs. Guscinski was making a "full and complete statement" at about the same time her office staff had planned to hold a party in her honor on her 55th birthday.

The prosecutor said she is specifically charged with preparing a false set of accounts and a check in the amount of $422.80.

However, Andrews said a preliminary audit of the department's accounts along with her statement indicate the amount involved will exceed $40,000.

The audit has disclosed falsified accounts dating back to November, 1959, and as recently as last week, according to Michigan Auditor General Billie S. Farnum.

An audit by John Tate of Kalamazoo, in charge of routine auditing for the department, brought the discrepancies to light, Farnum said.

Andrews said the tape-recorded confession by Mrs. Guscinski revealed she had drawn up false bills for food supplies for the county's medical care facility and infirmary. She then drew up vouchers and issued checks to non-existent firms and individuals and endorsed them herself. All of the checks were cashed locally Andrews said, but he indicated the investigation thus far "involves no one but Mrs. Guscinski."

Mrs. Guscinski has been county welfare director for seven years and was a social worker for five years prior to becoming director.

Mrs. Guscinski, apparently aware that an investigation was under way, said she burned a large amount of cash which she had hidden in a shoe box.

She told officers she burned the money Friday and dumped the remains in a garbage can. Andrews said checks issued to pay false invoices ranged from $150 to $480 and that the investigation had turned up 125 checks.

State Police were searching her home near Allegan to see if any other money turned up.

250,000 Tulip Bulbs Purchased

City Council Wednesday night approved the purchase of 250,000 tulip bulbs, twice the amount usually purchased annually in recent years, from the Dutch firm of J. Vandenberg-Verdegaal at a cost of $12,320.75, the lowest bid offered.

The bulbs will be used in tulip lanes, park plantings, and a good share of them will be planted at the new windmill which will be ready for Tulip Time in 1965. The bulb sale was approved following recommendations by the park superintendent.

Council decided not to vacate that section of Myrtle Ave. lying north of Lakeview Dr. leading to Lake Macatawa but as a solution recommended that vehicular traffic be prohibited. Such a move would keep cars from being stuck in the roadway which is not maintained, but would permit foot traffic over the right of way. City Manager Herb Holt said poles likely would be installed in the 33-foot roadway.

Two plats were approved. One is designated as Lone Oak plat filed by Moore and Bruggink, consulting engineers, on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wassink and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Arens. All required improvements are in except for sidewalks which are being provided for in the restrictive covenants of the plat.

The other plat known as Plymouth Acres, previously approved by Council March 4, has been redrawn for 12 lots. Previously, the plat called for 11 lots and one outlot, but the latter was eliminated and designated as a regular lot on recommendation of the Planning Commission. Designation of an outlot is that no structures should be erected on it since it may eventually be used as a road.

Council approved a culvert agreement between the city and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ryngaert to share costs for a 36-inch pipe for tiling 150 feet of open storm sewer in the area of 32nd and State Sts.

Council authorized the city clerk to take bids on replacing a 1956 truck and to purchase an additional leaf loader for the street department for which funds have been provided in the budget. The present leaf loader has been in use since 1947.

All Councilmen were present at the meeting which lasted two hours. The invocation was given by the Rev. Wesley Timmer of Calvary Christian Reformed Church north of Holland.

On two occasions Richman was Democratic candidate for senator in the 23rd district and in 1962 was Democratic state representative candidate in Ottawa county. He also was his party's nominee for delegate to the Michigan Constitutional Convention from the 23rd district.

An associate in the McBrice-Crawford Insurance agency in Holland, Richman has a long business career of 51 years including experience as an Indiana state official, vice president of the National Underwriter Co., insurance publishers, member and president of the board of directors of Valparaiso University, and as an associate in many religious, political and business fields.

This is a federal-state organization making plans to promote restoration of the economy following any nuclear attack on the United States. In reports directly to the nation's President.

Two Cars in Collision; Third Driver Ticketed

Tom Louis Schinpa, 19, of 272 Washington Ave., and Jessie T. Barnhill, 20, of New Richmond, escaped injury Tuesday when their cars collided on East Eighth St., 50 feet east of Central Ave. about 5 p.m.

The driver of a third car, Ruth R. Strenger, 45, of Lake Forrest, Ill., was not directly involved in the collision, but was ticketed by Holland police for interfering with through traffic.

Council Rejects Funds For Township Airport

City Council decided Wednesday night not to share in proposed improvements at Park Township Airport following a discussion which lasted nearly 1½ hours in which merits of public and private operations, and financial aid from governments were reviewed, as well as a look into the future when Holland may be operating its own municipal airport.

Prime reason for not going with proposed improvements at the township airport appeared to be the recently developed private Tulip City Airport south of Holland but within the city limits where a blackout runway was completed only four days ago.

Another factor was that the Michigan Department of Aeronautics will not share in the proposed improvements at the township airport in any interim program—a development which knocked the props from the $30,000 improvement program in which Holland city was asked to contribute $8,520.

Based on equalized valuation, Zeeland city had been asked to contribute $1,650; Park township $1,575, and Holland township, $3,255. After the state refusal, figures were redrawn and Holland's share was placed at approximately $14,200.

Letters from 17 parties, most of them representing local industries, urging Council support in the Park Township Airport improvements were submitted but not read.

The action which Council adopted was recommended by Councilmen Richard Smith and John Van Eerden, Council's members on the Park Township Airport advisory committee, who felt industries interested in Park Township Airport were not fully aware of services offered by the private airport.

A substitute motion submitted by Eugene Vande Vusse calling for a hearing in which these industrial representatives would receive all necessary information lost 5 to 4, and the original motion carried.

Park Township's request for funds from Holland City, Zeeland City and Holland and Park townships had not been publicly announced earlier.

The new private airport, developed by Gradus Geurink in cooperation with Home Furnace Co. interests, could serve interim needs of the community pending more adequate municipal facilities. Moreover, it lies within one of the six recommended sites for a new airport as listed in an airport study conducted by Black and Veatch, consulting engineers, and Leigh Fisher Associates.

Lee Bauer who heads the sales division of Miller Gun Co. which is associated with Home Furnace Co. explained functions of the new airport, emphasizing that the new enterprise has received only the best cooperation from Park township leaders and stating there were no gripes of any kind. He said the company had four plans with an investment of $100,000 and desired better facilities which he felt were provided in the Geurink development.

9,933 Listed In Holland's School Census

Holland city has nearly 10,000 children and young people between the ages of birth and 20, according to figures in the school census taken annually in May.

Figures submitted to the Board of Education Monday night revealed a total of 9,933 children, compared with 9,902 in 1963, 8,086 in 1962, 7,164 in 1961 and 7,292 in 1960.

There are 2,442 children below the age of 5 years and 7,491 from 5 through 19.

The year's total is broken down as follows: under 1—462; 1—458; 2—512; 3—514; 4—496; 5—511; 6—512; 7—487; 8—538; 9—546; 10—540; 11—532; 12—528; 13—491; 14—515; 15—466; 16—498; 17—542; 18—383; 19—402; total, 9,933.

In 1900, there were 2,364 children between the ages of 5 through 19.

Blueberry Pickers Needed in Area

James Bielby, farm placement man for the Employment Security Commission in Holland, today made a request for several hundred blueberry pickers following a survey of local fields in Ottawa county, north of the city. Weather conditions have been favorable for the crop and early berries are now on the market. Quantities will be increasing, he said, and more pickers are needed.

Interested persons, 14 years and older, may contact Bielby's office at the corner of River Ave. and Lakewood Blvd. by coming in person to receive information as to where they can pick. In some of the cases the employer will provide transportation. No working permits are needed for berry picking.

Bielby said that growers prefer that mothers pick with their children if possible.

Convertible Overtakes On Impact

Brenda Roberts Dies At Hospital; Five Others Hospitalized

A 16-year-old Holland girl was killed and six persons injured Friday in a two-car collision at 160th Ave. and James St. about 2:40 p.m.

Brenda Roberts, 16, of 71 Manley Ave., was pronounced dead on arrival at Holland Hospital of a crushed chest and broken neck by Dr. William Weststrate Jr., Ottawa county deputy medical examiner.

Admitted to the hospital from

the same car were Mary Hoffman, 16, of 42 Duntun Ave., with multiple body bruises, lacerations of the feet and second degree burns, and Debra Emmons, 6, of 14195 James St., with bruises and lacerations of the face. Debra's sister Dianna Emmons, 17, driver of the car, was treated at the hospital for bruises, lacerations and a fractured left clavicle and released.

Admitted to the hospital from the second car were Mrs. Ann Tanis, 54, of Grand Rapids, with fractures of the left leg and arm and lacerations of the face, and her son Roger Tanis, 17, with lacerations and bruises.

Also admitted from the second car was Mrs. Tanis' grandson, Richard Jones, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jones, of 2006 Lakewood Blvd., with multiple lacerations and abrasions. Hospital authorities said all were in good condition today.

Deputies said Miss Roberts was fatally injured when the Emmons convertible rolled into a field after the collision, pinning her underneath. Miss Hoffman was also pinned under the wreckage.

Deputies said the dead girl was pulled from the wreckage with the aid of bystanders, but the position of the Hoffman girl, however, forced them to wait for a tow truck to arrive before the car could be raised enough to allow the girl to be pulled free.

Hospital authorities said the Hoffman girl's burns were probably caused by leaking fuel or by hot water leaking from the cars ruptured radiator.

Deputies said they would be unable to determine the driver of the second car until the Tanises and the Jones boys have recovered sufficiently from their injuries to allow questioning.

At least four Holland ambulances were called to the scene of the crash to remove the injured to the hospital. Bystanders from about 60 cars gathered around the wreckage as deputies and ambulance attendants worked to remove the injured.

The area of the crash was littered with broken glass and parts from the wrecked vehicles. Shoes and bits of clothing, some stained with blood, were scattered throughout the area. Officials at the scene had difficulty deciding to which car the articles belonged.

One car was littered with the remains of blueberries that had spilled from their containers. Deputies said the car had been occupied by the Tanises and Richard Jones, who were returning from a berry picking outing when the accident occurred.

Deputies could offer no explanation for the crash. Although there are no traffic control devices at the intersection of the two roads, the area is clear of obstructions, they said.

Surviving besides the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Roberts, are seven sisters, Mrs. Flossie Henderson of Arkansas, Mrs. Rossie Holt of Holland, Mrs. Mary Belle Smith of Almonte, Calif., Mrs. Shirley Skinner of Alhambra, Calif., Mrs. Annie Gras of Zeeland, Mrs. Betty Eden of Pontiac, and Ann Roberts at home; one brother, Leon of Holland.

She had just completed eighth grade at West Ottawa High School.

Bob, Terry and Betty Prins, children of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd R. Prins, were among those attending a reunion of the Prins family last Saturday at Dumont Lake. Their names were omitted in a story appearing in Wednesday's paper.

Holland Has New Judge, But Little Has Changed

Holland Municipal Court has a new judge, but little or nothing has been changed in the process.

John Galien Jr., who was appointed July 1 by City Council to succeed Cornelius vander Meulen who retired after 16½ years, is no newcomer to the court. He has served as associate judge since his appointment by council Feb. 18, 1959. That year he was elected associate judge for the year starting in 1960.

Judge Galien, 35, has presided at many sessions of court, particularly when Judge vander Meulen was on vacation. Of late, he conducted all Thursday night traffic court sessions.

An admirer of Judge vander Meulen both as a jurist and as a gentleman, Judge Galien is proud of the court system his predecessor has established, and expects to carry on in much the same manner, but always with an eye for possible improvements.

Judge John Galien Jr.

"Most people think of Municipal Court in terms of paying a traffic fine, but traffic court is only a small part of criminal cases processed. Most people do not even think of the vast amount of civil cases this court handles. In volume, the civil cases far exceed the criminal load," Judge Galien said.

Work of the local court multiplied in annexation programs, and the Holland court today has jurisdiction in both Ottawa and Allegan counties. Any claim up to $1,000 is handled in civil cases, but the majority of these cases is settled at the first settlement — a hearing in which settlement is made or a payment schedule established. The court also handles garnishments.

All felonies in the criminal classification call for initial arraignments in Municipal Court. Felonies cover anything from larceny over $100 to murder.

Judge Galien's initial interest in courts stemmed from close association with his father, John Galien Sr., longtime justice of the peace who died in 1953 at the age of 52. Galien Sr., local realtor, was one of four justices in Holland city. This system was replaced by Municipal Court in 1940 with Raymond L. Smith, now circuit judge, as the first municipal judge.

"Dad would needle me sometimes, and we'd argue heatedly over all kinds of subjects. I'd defend my side vigorously and I often won, but when it was all over I'd realize he really didn't believe some of the things he was arguing for. It was great mental stimulation," the judge said.

Later his interest in law received a boost in his favorite studies, history and political science. After graduating from Holland High School and Hope College, class of 1951, he entered the University of Michigan law school, graduating in 1954.

The first day of the month holds particular significance for the new judge. It was on July 1, 1954, that he was admitted to the bar and began practice in Holland, also serving as assistant Ottawa county prosecutor under James W. Bussard. Five months later he entered the Army and on his discharge in September, 1956, returned to law school for a semester of graduate work.

On Feb. 1, 1957, he reentered the practice of law in Holland. On Feb. 1, 1958, he and Walter Roper opened a partnership here, and on Feb. 1, Hannes Meyers Jr. joined the partnership, operating an office in Zeeland. The law firm of Galien, Roper and Meyers dissolved its partnership as of June 30 this year and on July 1 the firm resumed as Roper and Meyers while Galien became full time judge. While a municipal judge is allowed to practice law, Galien expects his time will be pretty well taken up by the court and plans but little work on the side.

The court staff consists of two fulltime clerks, one part time clerk and a part time probation officer.

Judge Galien a year ago married the former Mildred Gloss of Chicago. They live in an apartment in the Temple building. The judge is a member of Maple Avenue Christian Reformed Church.

Perhaps the greatest change at City Hall is in the parking lot, not in the court. Instead of Judge vander Meulen's staid dark blue sedan in the marked parking space, today there is parked the red sports car of Judge Galien.

Former GOP Congressman Barry Fan

ALLEGAN — Clare Hoffman, the "forgotten man of politics," was keeping abreast of the news from the San Francisco GOP convention Monday by radio and newspapers and wishing he could be there.

Hoffman, known as a rugged individualist and conservative during his 14 terms as Fourth District U.S. Republican congressman, is strictly a Goldwater fan.

What the Democrats couldn't do to him during 14 elections—knock him out of office even during Democratic landslides—two strokes accomplished, one in late 1961 and another in early 1962.

"He's strictly a Goldwater fan and is sorry he can't campaign actively on his behalf," Attorney Leo Hoffman, son of the former congressman, said Monday.

The attorney said his father was confined to a wheel chair but is an avid reader and occasionally took an auto ride.

Hoffman, now 88 years old, was known as a "lone wolf" militant conservative in Congress.

During his fourteen terms he was elected by pluralities which ran as high as 78 per cent of the total vote without the benefit of a political organization or machine behind him. One year, when he received his largest plurality, one county GOP organization in the district passed the word urging Republicans to neither support nor contribute to his campaign.

He hated government deficits and government waste. As a "lone wolf," he realized no important legislation would ever bear his name as author, but he played a large part in drafting the Armed Forces Unification Act and the Taft-Hartley labor law.

He was known as the most outspoken congressman in Washington—possibly until Sen. Barry Goldwater came along.

On one occasion Hoffman was principal speaker at a convention of post office employees in Benton Harbor. He told them he would vote against pay raises for them because the government was going deeper in debt by the year. The money wasn't available and that the trouble with the modern congressman is that "he yields to pressure groups."

"I got a lot of applause but no votes," the congressman quipped after the meeting.

Hoffman was succeeded by Edward Hutchinson of Fennville who won the last election and is seeking a new term.

Heinz Employees Given Awards for Suggestions

Two employees of the H. J. Heinz Co. in Holland were presented with cash awards for suggestions for improving production methods at a ceremony Thursday in the presence of day shift employees in the local plant, the largest pickle factory in the nation.

Chanch Gilliam, route 3, Fennville, received an award of $2,267.91, the largest award made by the Heinz Co. since instituting the suggestion box in 1943. He has been with Heinz for nine years.

Jess Burchfield, 354 West 21st St., Holland, received $566.55, the eighth largest award. He has been a Heinz employee for nine years.

Presenting the checks was R. Burt Gookin, executive vice president heading Heinz operations in the United States.

Gilliam, a filling line attendant, suggested the installation of a conveyor chain and conveyor belt beneath the filling line. As a result, pickles and pickle products are returned to the packer instead of falling as waste. Savings from this suggestion amount to approximately $15,000 a year.

Burchfield suggested the installation of an outlet and check valve in the bottom of processing tanks. This installation saves approximately 100 gallons of sweetened vinegar per tank, amounting to more than $3,500 per year at the Holland plant. The vinegar formerly was lost because the existing method did not empty the tank completely. Burchfield is a leadman in the pickle receiving, salting and preparation department.

Wives of both men are former Heinz employees working during peak production seasons for several years. The Gilliams have six children and the Burchfields have four.

JOHN R. MULDER

Dr. John R. Mulder, a native of Holland and past president of Western Theological Seminary, died Saturday after reaching the age of three score and ten.

This eminent theologian, tall and dignified yet close to people, is mourned by good friends not only in Holland but in many other places where he served churches and appeared as guest speaker.

His devotion to the Reformed Church in America, which numbers among its educational institutions both Hope College and Western Seminary, was characterized by a lifetime of service to the church and his fellow man.

Dr. Mulder brought to Western Seminary not only a superior intellect but a fine business mind which served the institution in good stead during his 18 years as president, culminating in a fine new building which was debt free when dedicated in 1954. In all, he had been with the seminary 32 years before retiring in 1960.

God Delivers His People
Exodus 6:2-7; 12:29-33a
By C. P. Dame

The Bible plainly teaches that God is a judging God. Our age does not stress this fact about God, it prefers to write and speak about a loving God. A parent who never disciplines a child is not a good parent and a God who does not judge wrongdoers is not holy and just.

I. God makes Himself known. A part of the lesson text is taken from Exodus 6 and another part is from Exodus 12.

In order to understand the lesson text be sure to read Exodus 5 to 15 which tells about the struggle between Moses and Pharaoh. And by all means note that these chapters say much about the deeds of God. We have to do with an active God. We do not always see His activities.

God spoke to Moses in a special manner. God said to him, "I am the Lord," thus telling him who He is. This was followed by a statement about His past appearances "unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob." Now why God spoke to these three men we do not know. God has the right to pick His friends—we do this.

In the Bible there are several names of God. They all reveal something about Him. God also told Moses about the covenant He had made with the patriarchs to give them the land of Canaan. The patriarchs believed God's promises and they showed it by being content to be strangers and pilgrims in the land God promised them.

Jacob told Joseph to bury him in Canaan and Joseph told his brothers that God would bring them back to Canaan and he gave orders that his bones be brought there.

II. God is concerned. He said to Moses that He had heard the groanings of the Israelites who were enslaved. God still hears the cries of the oppressed and downtrodden. God told Moses to tell the Israelites that He would deliver them and take them as His people. God's concern caused Him to act.

As one reads the story of the deliverance of Israel one is impressed by the fact that God did it—Israel had now power to do it.

III. God delivers. When Moses asked Pharaoh to let Israel go he refused. Ten plagues followed. All the plagues were acts of God. They were native to Egypt but they came at the word of Moses—one following the other.

The last plague, the slaying of the firstborn of all the Egyptians caused a great cry "for there was not a house where there was not one dead." The plagues did not come upon the Israelites. Every plague was a judgment of God. The last plague, the death of the firstborn, made Pharaoh willing to let Israel go.

The oppression of the Egyptians made the Israelites ready to leave the land of bondage and the plagues upon the Egyptians forced them to surrender and made them eager to get rid of the Israelites.

The Old Testament tells us that God delivered His people from the house of bondage. The New Testament informs us that God through Christ frees people from the bondage of sin. God is the great Deliverer.

Hamilton Lake Hosts Michigan PGA Tourney

SAUGATUCK — For the third straight year, the Hamilton Lake Golf and Country Club will host the 36-hole Michigan PGA golf tournament, Bill Hamilton, club owner and course pro said today.

The event will be held July 29-31 with an 18-hole pro - am tournament slated Wednesday, July 29 followed by the PGA tourney, July 30-31. Plans call for 18 holes to be played on Thursday and the final 18 holes in the 36-hole event on Friday. Hamilton said the purse for this year's tourney has been tripled and $9,000 will be distributed among the contestants. During the past two years, the tournament purse has been $3,000.

Ben Lula of Mount Clemens won the 1962 event at Hamilton Lake and pocketed $750 while last year's winner Dick Bury of the Lochmoor Country Club in Grosse Pointe received $700. More than 60 of Michigan's top professional golfers are expected to compete in the tourney. A total of 66 competed last year. Besides Lula and Bury, Glen Stuart of Casade Country Club in Grand Rapids will be competing.

Stuart has just missed winning the tournament for the past two years. He finished second both times. Lula's winning score in 1962 was 142 while Bury shot a 139 score last season on 18-hole rounds of 70 and 69.

The tournament is held over the Saugatuck nine-hole course with 18 different tees. The course totals 6,700 yards. The 520-yard, par 5 No. 5 hole is regarded as one of the roughest holes on the course.

Stuart's 32 on the opening nine last year equalled a course record set some years ago by Merald Disbrow. He fired a 35 on the second nine and his 67 was the best round shot in the two years of the tourney.

John Barnum, three-time state PGA king, will be back along with Lorin Shook of Saginaw, ex-Saugatuck pro. Also competing will be Ted Kroll, Wally Burkemo, Gene Bone, John Dalrymple, Tom Talkington, Tom Rosely, Ron LaParl, Gordy Carlson, Chuck Matlack and host pro Hamilton.

Many other pros from throughout the state are also slated to play. Phil Wiechman, Holland American Legion pro is not eligible to play in the PGA tourney.

The Michigan PGA is for Class A pros and to be a Class A pro takes five years. Wiechman is completing his fifth year as a pro and will be eligible to compete in the PGA next year.

Opposes Boat Ordinance

Waukazoo Woods Association is dissatisfied with the proposed boating ordinance for Lake Macatawa which City Council passed two weeks ago. Similar action is awaited by Park and Holland townships before the program becomes operative.

Bill Jesiek explained the ordinance which restricts certain activities on the lake at a meeting of the Waukazoo Association board Tuesday night in the Park township office. The meeting was open to all members of the association and others interested and about 40 were present.

After 1½ hours of discussion, it was the consensus that the ordinance as drawn up is not desirable and further study is needed. The greatest objection on the part of Waukazoo residents points to skiing areas in Big Bay and Pine Bay. Water ski enthusiasts feel the areas as listed on the map Jesiek displayed are too restrictive.

Fred Bertsch, association president, presided at the meeting. It is expected the association will send several representatives to the next meeting of the Park township board Aug. 4 at which time consideration will be given to the boating ordinance.

HIGH IN AIR — Jim Meyer of Holland, veteran starter at the Speedrome race track, leaps into the air to demonstrate the form used in starting stock car races. A colorful signals the start of the race by jumping high in the air and waving the starting flag to the group of racers as they rapidly approach the starting line.

Jim Meyer Thrills Fans As Speedrome Starter

Highlighting each racing event at the Comstock Park Speedrome near Grand Rapids each Thursday and Saturday evening is Holland's Jim Meyer, track starter for nine years, and the man who sometimes lends more thrills to a race than the drivers themselves.

Standing immobile on the asphalt with anywhere from eight to 20 high speed racing machines bearing down on him at speeds sometimes approaching 100 miles an hour is a dangerous way to make a living, but Holland native Meyer does the job with form, agility and confidence.

Meyer said he has always wanted to drive, "but with a wife and three children," he said, he has "no business racing." Once in a while he likes to wheel one of the fast cars around the track during practice, but starting is what gives him the chance to participate in the sometimes dangerous sport.

The Australian pursuit race, a popular event with fans at the track, offers a good example of Meyer in action on race nights at the Speedrome.

Cars in the race are not allowed to break formation until all have passed the starting line. Each driver knows that once he has been passed, he must drop out of the race. Each driver, therefore, wants to get going as fast as possible to stay in contention and bring in the win.

To keep the cars in formation until all have passed the line, Meyer stands a mere 12 feet from the retaining wall. The drivers are forced to pass at top speed between Meyer and the wall. It is always a thrilling sight for most fans.

One of Meyer's main problems at the start of a race is to keep drivers from anticipating or outguessing his green flag. This is necessary, he said, to allow each driver an equal chance. Since racing at the track is in the inverted style, with the faster cars at the rear of the formation and the slower cars to the front, a quick jump by a faster car at the rear of the formation may sometimes give it an unfair advantage.

To solve the problem, Meyer changes his starting procedures with almost every event. Sometimes he stands completely still, with the flag behind his back and then jumps high into the air with the cars only a few feet from the starting line. Other times he moves close to the forth turn and runs backward down the front straight before giving the drivers the "go" signal.

As flag man, Meyer has complete control of the track once a race is started. From his position at the starting line, he keeps a close watch on the cars, and if trouble occurs, he may slow the race with the yellow caution flag, or if necessary, he may stop the race completely with the red flag.

Meyer concedes there is always an element of danger for a starter. With cars speeding toward him out of the fourth turn at the start of an event bunched up in tight formation, with every driver keyed up for the green flag, it only takes one mistake to send tons of machinery spinning down the track or bouncing off the retaining wall toward him, and there isn't anywhere a starter can run.

Has he had any close calls as a starter? There was one in particular, he said, that taught him a lesson a few years ago. He said he turned his back on a car coming out of the fourth turn at the Speedrome during time trials. The next thing he knew, he said, was the whip of wind as the car sped by behind him, brushing his clothes as it went. He found out later the car had spun coming out of the turn, almost taking him with it into the wall. From that time on, he said, he has never taken his eyes off a car while he is standing on the track.

Danger is his business, but with ability, color and daring, Meyer sets a fast, fun-filled pace that doesn't end until the final checkered flag falls on an exciting night of racing.

Views From The Campus

(Dr. Douglas J. Duffy came to Hope College from Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene, Texas, in 1962. He received his Th.B. and B.D. degrees from Northern Baptist Theological College and Seminary, his A.M. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago. In addition to teaching at Hardin-Simmons, Duffy taught at Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, was principal of the Christian College in Jorhat, Assam, India, and was head of the department of education at Iowa Wesleyan College in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. At Hope he holds the post of associate professor of education. Editor's note.)

By Dr. Douglas J. Duffy
A few months ago, prior to the millage increase, one of our local professional men asked, "How can we say that Holland High School is not what it ought to be?" This is undoubtedly a question that deserves an intelligent answer.

Although a tremendous amount of research in the social sciences has been done in the past quarter of a century, much of which has direct implications for education, amazingly little gets down to the production level — to the school boards, school administrators, teachers and parents. Most of it gets tucked away in educational and psychological journals which very few people, including professionals, ever read.

It is a fact, however, that from the primary grades to graduate and professional education, the quality of education varies greatly from institution to institution and from classroom to classroom. In some recent studies on 125 high schools, it was found that these schools were very different in their grading standards, so different that the grade of F in one school was found equivalent to the grade of A in another school. Further study also indicated as much variation at the college level as had been found in the secondary schools. It is easy to conclude, therefore, that the mechanical reliance on credits, from the high school to the graduate schools of the universities, without due respect for coherence and standard, is the curse of American education.

Why is there so much variation among schools and colleges? The answer for the colleges is more difficult than it is for the secondary schools. Research on the variation in the achievement of high school students reveals at least three important factors. First, the educational level of the adults in the community and the cultural advantages the community possesses are highly related to the measured achievement of the secondary school students. This means that the extent to which the community and the home value education and offer an environment in which music, art, and libraries are accessible to the youth will in a very large measure determine the academic standards of the school and the level of attainment the high school graduates will reach as measured by both achievement tests and college grades.

The second factor which is highly related to the educational achievement of high school students is the financial support for education. The research evidence is very clear in demonstrating that the amount of money spent for each student in average daily attendance is highly correlated with the achievements of the students. This is not to say that each extra dollar spent will affect the quality of the learning of students, but there is no question about the difference between a community that annually spends 300 dollars per student and one that spends 600 per student. And it happens here, for the United States is one of the few countries where financial support for education may vary so greatly that one community may spend as much as ten times the amount that another community may spend on education. Where do we stand on this ladder?

The third factor affecting the variation among the schools is the quality of the teachers. And they are such a mixed multitude. Yet the evidence is clear that as the quality of the teachers rises there is a corresponding rise in the educational achievement of the students. There are many indices of quality of teachers, but salary level, professional interests, qualifications, etc., all appear to be related to student achievement and grade standards. With tenure, this factor assumes even more importance. How many Ph.D.'s are there at the local high school? How many teachers have extensive post-masters preparation, etc.?

ity seem simple enough, but they are determinative. We cannot afford to ignore the relationship between the school and the community; we must not fail to provide sufficient financial support for education, even if this means increased federal aid; and we must do everything necessary to ensure the quality of the teaching staff. There are better ways and means than we are now employing for arriving at quality in education, and this community needs to insist that they be found and utilized. As Horace Mann once said, "No community should rest content being superior to other communities, while it is inferior to its own capabilities."

Bury Phone, Power Lines In Same Area

City power lines and Michigan Bell telephone lines were buried in the same trench in a new process at the Plymouth Acres Subdivision on the south side of Holland last week according to Guy E. Bell, superintendent of utilities.

Carl L. Marcus, manager of Holland's telephone plant, said that this is the first time the new system has been used in southwestern Michigan. A new kind of thick vinyl and plastic insulation on the two wires allows this joint burial, Marcus said.

Bell explained that there are several advantages to this new process. First, the companies won't have to build separate conduits for the wires. In fact, no conduits are necessary, Bell said, because the new insulation resists corrosion. In the past, wires buried underground had to be in separate conduits two to three feet apart.

Two other advantages, Bell cited, were that the underground lines would be protected from storms, and that the absence of wires would add to the attractiveness of the subdivision.

The city and phone company may set up similar wire systems in other new subdivisions in the city, Bell said. He said that the city did not plan to use this system to replace overhead utility poles.

Wichers Returns After Windmill Negotiations

Willard C. Wichers returned home here Saturday night after five weeks in the Netherlands during which he negotiated for the sale of an 80-year-old octagonal windmill from Vinkel, Noord Brabant, and arranged for its dismantling prior to shipment to Holland, Mich.

Wichers said dismantling of the large mill should be complete by July 24. Meanwhile, some parts of the mill which do not need repair or restoration already have been sent to a pier in Rotterdam. This includes the millstones and some of the gears. Other structural parts which need repair including the entire cap which must be rebuilt have been taken to the workshop of millwright J. D. Medendorp who is supervising the dismantling. Medendorp's workshop is in Zuid Laren, north of Vinkel in the direction of Groningen.

If repair and restoration is completed according to schedule, the mill will be shipped early in September and it is hoped the ship will arrive at a Great Lakes port early in October.

Wichers has carried on some negotiations to have the mill shipped directly to Holland, Mich., but there is some question of the necessary port facilities to handle the large pieces, plus a question of the lowest water levels in history.

Wichers was taken ill of some virus causing an infection while in the Netherlands and spent 10 days in a hospital in the Hague, the hospital which was rebuilt with the aid of American funds collected around the time Holland, Mich., celebrated its centennial in 1947. This hospital was completed around 1960 and funds collected locally went for certain hospital equipment. Wichers said he was grateful for the aid given by local Hospital Director Frederick S. Burd in placing the orders at the time.

While a hospital patient, Wichers set up a "command post" and carried on negotiations in the many steps of consummating the sale. The Ministry of Education and the Dutch Windmill Foundation which restores old mills previously had given permission for the sale to Holland, Mich., but it remained for provincial authorities of Noord Brabant to waive the six-month waiting period before a mill could be dismantled. Meanwhile, the people of Vinkel had grown sentiment-tal over the old mill, and there was some question whether negotiations would go through.

While in the Netherlands, Wichers read in the Holland City News of the severe windstorm June 9 which felled many trees in Centennial Park and other areas. Reading of the gale clocked at 100 mph. in Grand Rapids, he relayed this information to A.J. de Koning, windmill expert, who is drawing up the engineering data for the mill. De Koning had visited Holland two years ago and emphasized the need of wind cups for an operating mill. Wichers said while the dismantled mill is being shipped here, Holland contractors can be working on a base for the mill in the Black River delta area, so that much of the work of restoring the mill can be completed before winter sets in. The restored mill with related buildings and garden setting is slated to be ready for the opening of the Tulip Time festival in May, 1965.

At 1:30 p.m. June 20 in Rose Park Reformed Church, Patricia Vander Beek and Henry VanDer Kolk were united in marriage by the bride's father. The bride is the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Vander Beek of Holland and the groom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Bert VanDer Kolk of Hopkins.

Oregon ferns, seven-branch candelabra and kissing candles adorned the altar while white satin bows with greens marked the pews.

After the pre-nuptial recital had been given by Miss Belle Kleinheksel, organist, and Dave Tubergen, violinist, the bride was escorted by her father to the altar as Lee Kleinheksel, trumpeter, played "Trumpet Tune in D Major" by Purcell.

Before exchanging vows and giving rings, the bride sang Gounod's "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee." As the couple knelt, Ronald Vander Beek sang, "O Perfect Love." Candles were lighted by Tommy Essenburg wearing the traditional choir boy attire.

For the ceremony, the bride wore a gown of silk shantung featuring a bell-shaped skirt, detachable train, and a scoop neckline enhanced by Swiss-orange-blossom lace identical to the embroidered lace appliques on the skirt. Her elbow-length veil was held in place by a pillbox headpiece of fabric and lace appliques. She carried orange blossoms and natural greens with cascading ivy.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Clinton VanDer Kolk, wore a floor-length gown of daffodil yellow shantung with elbow-length sleeves, scooped neckline, and a bell-shaped skirt elaborated by a bustle bow. Her matching head bow and white gloves completed the ensemble.

Mrs. Paul Volkers and Mrs. Peter Hansen as attendants were identically attired to the honor attendant. Bouquets of white daisies, cascading ivy and white ribbon streamers were carried by each while the matron of honor carried a single yellow rosebud.

Best man was the groom's brother, Clinton VanDer Kolk, while groomsmen were Ron Vander Beek, brother of the bride, and Ted McNitt.

The bride's mother selected a spring blue sheath dress complemented by a matching lace jacket while the groom's mother chose a powder blue dress having a lace bodice and matching fabric jacket. Each wore corresponding blue and white accessories including two white cymbidium orchids arranged into a wrist corsage.

NEW STEAMBOAT—Roy Walters and his wife, Joyce, enjoy the view from the starboard side of their new steamboat which Walters built out of a lifeboat of the old luxury cruiser, S.S. Alabama. Walters has worked on the boat in his back yard at 218 East 16th St. for three-and-a-half years. He hopes to launch it in about 3 weeks after completing some electrical wiring. Walters, who retired Saturday after 46 years as a railroad engineer and fireman, plans to spend his retirement working on the boat and enjoying other hobbies. (Sentinel photo)

Engineer Retires After 46 Years

After over 46 years as a fireman and engineer on the Pere Marquette and Chesapeake and Ohio railroads, Roy Walters retired Saturday one day before his 65th birthday.

Walters, who lives with his wife, Joyce, at 218 East 16th St., a half-block from the C. and O. tracks, will not retire to a life of idleness, however. Behind his home the husky and healthy railroad man is carrying on his love of steam engines by building a 28-foot steamboat.

The boat, a former lifeboat on the Great Lakes luxury cruiser S. S. Alabama, has been under construction for three-and-a-half years. Walters said he has only some electrical wiring to complete before the boat is finished. He hopes to launch his boat, the S. S. Royal, in about three weeks.

Walters began stoking coal as a fireman for the old Pere Marquette line in 1918 when he was 18-years old. He took over his brother's job when the brother went to fight in World War I.

By 1923, Walters was allowed to run some of the engines part-time while serving as a regular fireman. In 1941, he became a regular engineer. As an engineer and fireman Walters covered all of the Pere Marquette's lines from Petoskey to Chicago, Ill., and to Toledo, Ohio.

During his many years as railroad man Walters developed a love for the steam engine.

"You lived with them, and they were like a part of your own body," he explained. "You could make them do just what you wanted."

Then in 1951 the C. and O. which had purchased the Pere Marquette lines in 1947 replaced all of its steam engines with diesels.

"From then on railroading went down the drain as far as I'm concerned," Walters said. "Running a diesel engine is like running a streetcar."

Walters continued to work for the railroad, but got much of his enjoyment in life out of two steam engine clubs that he joined. He got the idea of building a steamboat from friends in these clubs.

Walters had a name for the steamboat before he even had a boat. He named the boat the S. S. Royal from his first name.

Walters said he would have liked to name his boat after a granddaughter, but that this was impossible because he has four of them.

"It wouldn't have been fair to name it after one of the granddaughters," he said. "And I couldn't fit all four names on the side of the boat."

When the 51-year-old S. S. Alabama was dismantled in 1961, Walters saw his chance to build a steamboat. He purchased one of the former luxury ship's lifeboats, and began working on it in his spare time.

The job of building the now sparkling and gleaming little steamboat has kept Walters busy for three-and-a-half years. In good weather he worked on the boat's hull and engine in his back yard. During the winter he worked on the smaller parts in his basement.

One of the hardest jobs was just finding the various parts for the boat. The two-cylinder engine which will power the boat was originally used to power a net lifting jack on a Great Lakes fishing ship. Walters got the 60-year old engine in Kalamazoo with the help of a friend.

The gleaming boiler in the center of the boat was once used in a dairy in Bangor, Mich.

One special feature of the boat is its seven steam whistles each of which has a different tone. Walters got the whistles from many parts of the country. One day last summer he fired up his steam engine in the back yard, and tried out the whistles. They all worked.

He hopes to have the boat ready for his vacation which begins August 1. He said that he has no special trips planned for the boat.

What does Walters think about retiring?

"I'll be darn glad to retire," he said. "I've worked hard for 46 years, and now I'm tired of railroading. It's not an easy life, and I tried to discourage any interest in it by my two sons. The trouble is that you have to work long hours, and are away from home a lot, he said.

In the last few years Walters has worked a more regular schedule operating a switching engine. But, even with this job he has sometimes had to work part time seven days a week.

Walters plans to spend his retirement running his boat, and "getting any bugs out of it." If he gets tired of this he has a big garden at the back of his house. In the fall he enjoys deer hunting — though he seldom gets his buck. Walters also likes fishing.

He said that he has no plans of building another steam vehicle.

Falls From Car Avoiding Bee

A bee in the back seat of a convertible resulted in minor injuries to a Royal Oak girl Friday south of Holland.

Charlene Riemersma, 15, of Royal Oak, received multiple abrasions. She was treated and released at Holland Hospital.

Allegan Sheriff deputies said Miss Riemersma was sitting in the back seat when the bee flew into the car. The bee stung Miss Riemersma. As the car slowed down, Miss Riemersma prepared to jump into the front seat.

As she began to change positions in the car the driver, Ralph Van Houten, 20, of 294 Eastmonth Ave., who was unaware of the happenings, began to increase his speed throwing the girl off balance.

Miss Riemersma fell out of the car onto the road.

RUNWAY PAVED — Gardus Geurink (right) showed interested officials the progress taking place this week on the airfield located on his property on old US-31, south of the I-96 interchange. Workers are shown at left paving one of three runways on the property. The completed runway is 50 feet wide and 2,500 feet long.

South-Side Airport Plans Expansion, Improvement

Construction of a new hard-surface landing strip which will provide improved airport facilities for the city of Holland was completed this week.

The 2,500-foot blacktop runway is one of three landing strips on property owned by Gradus Geurink on old US-31, about a half-mile south of the new I-96 interchange.

The new hard-surface runway is 50 feet wide and runs from northeast to southwest. It is the first hard-surface landing strip to be put into use in the Holland area.

In addition, there is a 2,100-foot north-south runway and a 2,600-foot east-west strip on the Geurink property. Neither of these is paved.

Present hanger facilities can accommodate five aircraft, but these will be expanded to provide space for four more planes within three weeks and an additional three planes within 60 days.

Plans for improving the airport facilities were approved by the Holland city zoning board in April of this year.

Geurink said the airstrip will be lighted and that radio service would be provided. Arrangements are also being made for mechanic service.

Leland Bauer, a Home Furnace executive and owner of three airplanes, is also one of the prime movers of the airport improvement and modernization project.

Geurink's property had been a licensed airport before the annexation of the property to the city and had been used extensively in GI training.

Plans are now in motion to have the improved facility licensed as a commercial field. Although the airport is privately owned, it is open for public use. It is expected that the airport will be used extensively for business aircraft.

Three More Teachers Approved

Contracts for three more teachers were approved by the Board of Education at a regular monthly meeting Monday night in the high school library.

Mrs. Mary Starks, of 83 East 31st St., will teach an elementary grade with assignment in either Lincoln or Washington schools. Mrs. Starks has had 20 years teaching experience, the last 3½ years in Federal School. She holds a B.S. degree from Western Michigan University.

Donald Roy Roll, of Omaha, Neb., will teach art in E. E. Fell Junior High School. He has had no previous teaching experience.

Robert Lynn Clark of Grand Haven, with 9½ years of teaching experience will teach distributive education under the co-op program for Holland and West Ottawa High Schools, working with Don Gebraad and Myles Runk.

A report on activities the past year by Speech Correctionist Gail Alderink revealed 158 children had received instruction in the department, leaving 90 receiving active therapy at the close of the year. A speech class twice a week proved valuable to children needing help. Conferences with parents also resulted in outlining special aids for home use. The report stated a waiting list of 27 students.

The latter statement brought a question from John Keuning, new member, on meeting the needs of the children. President Harvey Buter said the need for a second teacher in the system was recognized quite some time ago and the superintendent has been diligently seeking another teacher, despite the fact that there are 500 such vacancies in the state of Michigan.

Keuning questioned whether the school system should assume responsibility in encouraging or providing trainees in the program, and Buter agreed the point was well taken and that the board should give further consideration to such a possibility.

A report by high school librarian Lucille Donovan revealed that the library has well over 8,000 volumes and 66 periodicals with an average daily circulation of well over 100 books. Total circulation the past school year was 16,756 volumes. Fines yielded about $170. The librarian was assisted by 16 students the first semester and 17 the second semester.

Ed Prins of buildings and grounds introduced two new foremen among the maintenance staff. John Brinkman who will oversee the 10 elementary schools and Sidney Woudestra who will oversee the three junior high buildings. John Risselada has been foreman of the new high school since the institution opened 2½ years ago.

Buter also announced that work is progressing on replacing roofs on the fieldhouse and other buildings at the high school. An improved white plastic coating will be applied this summer, replacing the previous coating which showed some discoloration. The roof installers arranged for the replacement at no cost to the school system. Buter said the fieldhouse roof was somewhat experimental at the time of installation, and since then considerable progress has been made in such work, particularly on buildings at the World's Fair in New York.

Roofs on the field house, auditorium and library are being replaced this summer. Roofs on the two academic units and the art building were completed earlier.

The board granted permission to the city of Holland to use certain school facilities for polling places for the Sept. 1 primaries and the Nov. 3 election.

Chester Bouman of the Maplewood School PTA inquired as to possible arrangements for transportation for the coming year, particularly for those students crossing I-196 and was informed a recommendation was expected within a week.

Buter presided at the meeting which adjourned 55 minutes after it started. All board members were present. Russel Fredricks gave the invocation.

District 7 will hold a family picnic at Ludington July 19. Holland is included in this district.

Mrs. Virginia Van Deuzen of Hazel Park was a guest at the meeting.

Skillman-Scherer Vows Exchanged

Mr. and Mrs. Allan G. Skillman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roland G. Scherer of Bozeman, Mont., and former resident of Zeeland, became the bride of Allan Geoffrey Skillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Skillman of Wilsall, Mont., in an evening double ring ceremony June 16 in the Grace Baptist Church in Bozeman, Mont.

The Rev. Vincent Roshegar performed the ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, mums and pompons. Ropes of smilax draped the altar and candles decorated the pews.

Mrs. Lucille TeSelle, organist, accompanied the Rev. Glenn E. Smouse when he sang "O Perfect Love" and "The Wedding Prayer." The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a gown of candlelight French fillee. The fitted bodice was styled with long, lily-point sleeves and the bateau neckline was outlined with imported Alencon rose motifs. Lace motifs trimmed each side of the skirt from waist to hem and a chapel-length train descended from a large Dior bow at the back waistline. A tiered veil of imported silk illusion was secured by a large organza petal blossom in the center of which rested a large citrine heirloom gem. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of spider mums, yellow cymbidium orchids and glacier ivy.

Maid of honor was Barbara Hanno and the bridesmaids were Jean Skillman, Bernice Skillman and Barbara Main. The attendants were attired in identical floor-length dresses of Capistrano blue sheer over taffeta. Matching Dior roses and maline veils were worn and each carried a cascading bouquet of white daisy pompons.

The groom chose Arthur Dull as best man and Roland Scherer, David Scherer and Martin Batts were groomsmen. Glen Sager and Marvin Anderson seated the guests.

A reception was held at the Riverside Country Club. The bride changed to a suit of neutral tweed with beige accessories for traveling. A corsage of spider mums and cymbidium orchids complemented the ensemble.

After September the couple will reside at Bellingham, Wash. The bride was graduated from Wheaton College in Illinois and taught home economics in Zeeland Public High School for two years.

The groom was graduated from Montana State college and taught mathematics in Hobson and extension courses at Michigan State University.

Saugatuck Will Appoint Citizens Unit

SAUGATUCK — A crowd of some 125 persons attending the monthly meeting of Village Council here Monday night appeared satisfied after village president Lynn McCray in a 45-minute presentation outlined legal ramifications in dealing with boisterous weekends in the village.

"We cannot close the village," the president told local citizens, pointing to the fact that roads in which the state shares costs in any way cannot be closed to the public. McCray had spent considerable time researching the ramifications with the attorney general, the governor's office and with State Sen. Frederic Hilbert.

Out of Monday's meeting came a decision to appoint a citizens committee to study the problems of disorderly conduct on weekends in the resort village and to make recommendations to the village council. McCray was expected to name a committee of 7 to 9 members within a short time.

Suggestions from Monday's audience listed a curfew, the need for additional public rest rooms, and opening the beach under supervision for longer hours.

The board adopted an ordinance effective in 20 days preventing any sleeping in or out of cars on streets, parks or highways.

There was a general consensus that weekend troubles blossomed particularly on the Memorial and July 4 holidays were caused mainly by teenagers 14 to 18 years old — a group which could not purchase liquor legally yet were well supplied. Most of the disturbing elements come from an area within a 60-mile radius of the village.

The village board of trustees consists of McCray, Julius Van Oss, Michael Kenney, Ray Anderson, James Seymour, Roscoe Funk and Garth Wilson.

Local School Finances End Up in Black

After two years of austerity measures, the Holland Board of Education ended up in the black at the close of the school year June 30.

The financial report, as presented by Treasurer Albert Schaafsma at a monthly meeting of the Board of Education Monday night, revealed a June 30 balance of $34,221.61.

Two years ago, the board started the year with a deficit of approximately $125,000, and through stringent economies whittled away at the deficit month by month.

The $34,000 balance is the result largely of receipts above the expected budgetary amounts, listing $36,143.09 above the total estimates of $1,774,850.53.

This increase was accounted for mainly in additional primary school interest funds of some $14,000, additional delinquent taxes of $11,000 and interest on investments of an additional $17,000.

With this balance on hand, Schaafsma said this would be the first July in several years that the board would not have to borrow money. Besides, summer tax payments would be made soon to the school system.

Besides the regular accounts, the system has $39,659.51 in revolving accounts $3,751.14 in the high school building and site fund, $6,834.54 in the East Van Raalte 1962 building and site fund, $12,530 in the 1964 building and site fund as proceeds from the sale of the building to Holland Christian Schools, $19,604.24 in the 1960 school bond debt retirement fund, $2,538.82 in the Lakeview 1963 School bond debt retirement fund, $2,632.20 in the Apple Avenue 1957 School bond debt retirement fund, $2,109.20 in the Montello Park 1955 school bond debt retirement fund, $8,962.85 in the East Van Raalte 1962 school bond debt retirement fund, $12,936.51 in the East Van Raalte 1955 school bond debt retirement fund, and $55 in the school lunch and milk report.
