Holland Suffers Through Hottest Day of the Year

Temperature Hits 96
Most of the Afternoon;
No Definite Relief Seen

It got so that people didn't even want to look at the flashing sign on the First National Bank Tuesday afternoon.

"Temperature — 96," it kept flashing all afternoon.

"They ought to turn it off," one suffering citizen was heard to remark. "It's not a community service when it's this hot."

Most Holland citizens weren't thinking about the sign. They just knew it was the hottest day of the year and they hoped for rain.

Actually, the high of 96 was reached last Thursday, too. But it didn't stay there nearly as long. Tuesday, area residents did all the usual things to escape the heat, but none of them seemed to work. They drank gallons of the ice coldest beverages they could lay their hands on.

They opened all the doors and windows, but most of the time there wasn't any breeze. They tried a switch, closing all the doors and windows to keep the heat out, but it just seemed to seep in.

They found it pleasant in air-conditioned buildings, but it was all the worse when they had to leave.

Fans (all varieties), shorts, ice. Put 'em all together and you still had the hottest day of the year.

Just to keep things warm and cozy the weatherman blessed the city with another scorcher July 27. By 11 Wednesday the temperature was already at 90. Some clouds that darted in and out late Wednesday made it look like relief was on the way, but the weatherman promised nothing definite. He never does.

Last time it was so hot during the month of July was in 1949. Then the mercury hit 96 a couple of times, too.

Realizing that it's really too hot to keep records, The Sentinel still figures this item might be interesting.

It was 103 one day in June of 1953.

If you were around then, you should realize that your blood doesn't boil at 101. That means you're safe at 96.

Look around you. Everyone's got the same problem.

Heat records tumbled throughout the Midwest. Highs included 99.3 at Chicago and 101 for Milwaukee — both records for the date. In Sioux City, Sac City and Oskaloosa in Iowa and at Beloit, Wis., it was 102. Hottest temperatures recorded at Blythe and Daggett, Calif. — 103. The temperature shot into the 90s at Hart, but most of the talk was about cold weather. The Michigan Christmas Tree Assn. was meeting to draft plans for the sale of evergreens next December.

Seems like one word of advice is in order for everyone.

Don't sweat it.

Heights, Eagles Tied For Softball Lead

Holland Heights and Holland Eagles are tied for first place in the Holland Optimist Club Softball League.

Now in its fourth week, the league is for boys from 12 to 14. The six-team league includes more than 70 boys.

The two leaders have 2-1 records. Games are played every Wednesday night on the Recreation Department diamonds at 22nd and Pine, 22nd and Maple and 23rd and Maple.

In games last week, Graafschap beat Harlem, 8-3, the West End Sluggers lived up to their name with a 17-2 bombing of the Eagles and Heights nailed the Tigers, 9-2.

About 20 guests attended the get-together at the Bayles summer cottage at Castle Park.

Can't Afford License— But Also Can't Pay Fine

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — A 19-year-old Grand Haven man who couldn't afford a driver's license although he's been driving for several months, couldn't pay the fine either, and will spend the next four days in county jail.

Raymond C. Rance told Justice F. J. Workman he just couldn't afford the license, after being brought into court on a warrant when he ignored a summons. Rance said he had been in the armed service and was broke. Alternative to the four days was $14.90.

Dr. Thomas Boslooper, minister of the Reformed Church, Closter, N. J., will be the guest minister at Hope Church Sunday at 11 a.m. He will preach on "Let God Get Through To You." Guest soloist be Willard Fast.

Set Polio Clinic In Zeeland Monday

Salk vaccine for another make-up clinic in the county was received Wednesday by Health Department officials, who immediately announced plans for a clinic in Zeeland Lincoln Elementary school, Monday at 9 a.m.

The Zeeland clinic will be open to all youngsters in 17 area schools who received first round inoculations in April.

Schools included are Zeeland Public Schools, Zeeland Christian, Vriesland, Drenthe, Huyser, West Drenthe, Townline, Owens, East Crisp, Harlem, West Crisp, New Groningen, Van Raalte, Noordelo, East Holland, South Blendon, Corwin Sherbourne and Borello.

Health officials issued an urgent appeal to parents to pass on notice of the clinic. "With this short notice, we can't possibly get in touch with each parent individually," one worker explained.

Tremendous response from families in Spring Lake was reported Wednesday as the first make-up clinic attracted more than 300 of the 400 eligible youngsters.

Officials said the response was "remarkable" in view of the short notice, vacation conflicts and difficulties in contacting parents.

Arrival of the latest quota of vaccine means that about 50 percent of the second round inoculations can be made. Only Holland and Grand Haven city remain to be completed in this round.

Third round shots will be made in about seven months, according to information received from the national polio foundation. All vaccine used in county clinics is approved by national and state agencies.

Drs. D. C. Bloemendaal and John Yif or Melvin Friesswyk will administer the shots at the Zeeland clinic.

The Ganges Garden Group was pleasantly entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Martin Meldrum, who served a dessert luncheon to 12 members and guests.

A. W. TAHANEY, 50, of 1429 South Shore Dr., died at about 1:45 this afternoon at Holland Hospital. He had been in the hospital since Monday night. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Visitor Cherishes Visit From Late King, Queen

The title "Alderman" for Harold Thomas of Truro, Cornwall, England, Mayor of Truro during the years 1940-1942 — the year that the late King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, now Queen Mother, paid Truro a state visit. Thomas was in Holland this week visiting his cousin, Percy Taylor and Mrs. Taylor, before leaving for Canada.

On sort of a "busman's holiday" Thomas arrived in New York on June 7 on the Queen Mary. His first stop was in Jeannette, Pa., where he visited two brothers and two sisters.

While in Pennsylvania, the English visitor spoke at meetings of Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs. He talked on local government in England.

He is most impressed by what he has seen in this country, especially the roads and highways and the system of marketing products. "You can see what you buy in the shops," he said.

Of his position in city government, Thomas explained that he is chairman of the magistrates (similar to our justices of peace) of Truro. He is also a member of the Cornwall County Council — a position to which he was re-elected shortly before coming to America. The term is for three years.

Thomas is especially proud of the visit from the King and Queen during his term as Mayor and cherishes the pictures that were taken at that time.

One of a large family of 11 children, Thomas is visiting relatives here, and in Canada. Thomas will sail for England on the Queen Elizabeth on Oct. 12. Truro, to which he will return, has a population of about 16,000 — about as big as Holland — and is famous for its Anglican Cathedral Church of St. Mary, which attracts thousands of visitors each year.

Lightning Starts Fires; Barns Burned to Ground

Electrical Power Knocked Out in Some City Areas

No Serious Damage Reported as Storm
Brings Cooling Relief

The rains finally came Wednesday night, and they brought some fireworks with them.

But the city escaped without appreciable damage as a welcome cooling thunderstorm bathed the area with almost three inches of rain.

Everyone breathed a sigh of relief as the temperatures dropped more than 20 degrees after Wednesday's high of 96, the second straight day of record-breaking heat.

This morning it was both cool and calm in Holland. And most of all, it was comfortable. At 11 a.m., the reading was 70 degrees, compared to 90 at the same time Wednesday.

Lightning did snuff out electric power for a spell many places in town, however.

Biggest bolt struck the Fifth St. power plant about 1:45 a.m., knocking all the circuits and consequently the power for the east end and most of the downtown area.

Superintendent George Rendleman of the Board of Public Works said city crews had the circuits repaired in 40 minutes.

Rendleman reported that about 10 transformers were knocked out at various times leaving small sections without power for half-hour periods.

BPW crews were out from 11 p.m. to 3:30 a.m. on the various calls.

Rendleman said that he knew of no serious damage caused by lightning.

Holland's Fire Department reported a usual quiet evening with no calls.

Raphael Wouters of the Holland Coast Guard reported that there was little wind and therefore little trouble. Coast Guardsmen were called to go after a boat which went adrift when the anchor failed to hold when the storm came up.

The thunderstorm even spared the perch run. Reports from the piers this morning indicated that the thunder and lightning hadn't scared the fish off as they were biting well again.

Because the storm came up quickly, it caused a heavy traffic jam of cars rushing from the beaches about 11 p.m.

A train plugged up the railroad crossing on the shortcut just off M-21 and cars were lined up more than a mile back—past the US-31 viaduct.

Over in Zeeland, City Superintendent Leon Sears thought the city was mighty fortunate.

Lightning did hit one transformer at the city light plant at 6:30 this morning, but that knocked the power from only one street, Alice St., just southeast of Zeeland.

A relay was hit during the height of the storm Wednesday night, but only a few street lights on the east end of town were put out of commission.

The city's sewers stood the tide well, and only West Washington Ave. (M-21) was flooded for a time.

Zeeland Fire Chief John Van Eden said that the department received no calls.

"We think we got off real easy," Sears testified.

Local Water Skiers Perform at Showboat

As pre-show entertainment, a group of Holland and Macatawa water skiers are presenting a show this week at the Lowell Showboat. Performing routines, slalom, riding discs and jumping and trick riding, the skiers have become a feature at Lowell.

Miss Mary Gronberg has arranged the program and Charles R. Sligh, Jr., announces the show. Skiers include Chuck Bradford, Linda Bradford, Kathy Cavanaugh, Deanna Phillips, Margaret Moore, Judy Duffy, Barbara Cullen, John Gronberg, Jim Fentress, Rod Ver Sluis, Liz Sharp, Miss Gronberg and Jim Hubbard. Parents of the girls have been accompanying the group to Lowell.

Zuverink Blanks Tigers In Relief Stint Again

George Zuverink hurled against the Tigers again Wednesday and was extremely effective.

He pitched the eighth and ninth innings of the first game and held Detroit to only one hit and no runs. But Baltimore had already fallen behind, 8-4, and that's the way it ended.

The Tigers pounded out 11 hits for eight runs off Zuverink's predecessors, starter Ted Gray and Don Johnson.

Zuverink's appearance marked the third straight game he appeared in against the Tigers.

He's 'Cornered' Holland Tragedy

You don't have to make an expensive trip to Broadway to see some of the biggest shows on earth. Just treat yourself to a cup of coffee in one of the drugstores at the intersection of 8th St. and River Ave. and watch the crossing from your stool.

For ten cents you'll have a front row view on a tragedy that would even make Shakespeare blush.

Don't get us wrong — it isn't drama a la King Lear out there. But that doesn't mean you won't see any madmen when the curtain goes up.

As a matter of fact, they are the villains in the all-day-round performances with climaxes at rush hours.

And the plot? It's set in motion by the traffic lights that tell the traffic in one street to leap forward and at the same time order pedestrians in the other street to cross.

The rest is simple as tragedies come. Some rascals in their cars just don't drive straight ahead but roar around the corner as if they had Hamlet's ghost at their heels.

Then, the crossing pedestrians start running for their lives for it isn't fun to play the victim's role in a bloody scene.

From our drugstore stool we almost saw it happen the other day. A big blue sedan swung from River Ave. into 8th St. where a middle aged man was quietly strolling from one sidewalk to the other.

Fortunately, the guy was as quick as a deer and so he landed safely on the villain's bumper.

Yelled this driver: "Where do you think you're going?"

Answered the pedestrian: "Seems I'm going same place as you."

The driver again: "They don't need you there."

And the pedestrian: "Not if you're heading for a driving school."

Well, so the play goes on with breath taking action and fascinating dialogues.

Sometimes even the yellow police sign warning drivers to stop for pedestrians doesn't interrupt the acting.

A few respectable citizens have big ideas for a solution. In their worried dreams they see a Public Works crew digging tunnels at the dangerous intersection.

Alas, even such drastic measures probably wouldn't work out too well.

An expert on metropolitan traffic problems, just back from a study trip to Great Britain, recently told us that even the well-disciplined Londoners risk their lives at busy intersections rather than use the pedestrian tunnels.

There, too, the only solution seems to lie in a public appeal to certain drivers to respect the rights of fellow citizens no matter whether they go on wheels or on foot.

Like Shakespeare said in another tragedy: "To be considerate or not that is the question."

Or was that in a speech of the National Safety Council's president?

Mrs. Zuverink Joins Husband in Cleveland

Mrs. George Zuverink Sunday left the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hendricks of Zeeland, to meet her husband in Cleveland after the doubleheader between the Indians and Orioles.

She took the family car to Cleveland and they drove on to Baltimore, where the Orioles open a home stand against the Detroit Tigers this evening.

Zuverink is scheduled to pitch the second game.

First task on the Zuverink agenda in Baltimore was finding an apartment for the rest of the season.

Traveling with the Zuverinks were their 15-month-old daughter, Dawn, and Mrs. Zuverink's brother, Bobby Hendricks, who will stay in Baltimore for a couple of weeks.

Farmer, His Son Are Knocked Off Milking Stools

Passing Drivers Help;
Livestock Lost; House
Blistered by the Heat

Lightning started fires that burned two barns to the ground in the Holland area after midnight today.

Nine cows, two horses, the season's harvest of threshed grain and all of the farm equipment save a single tractor were lost in a blaze touched off by lightning at 1:30 a.m. on the Peter Knoll farm two miles northwest of Crisp on Blair St.

John Genzink, whose farm is one mile west and one mile south of Graafschap, was more fortunate, but his barn was still a total loss.

A bolt knocked Genzink and his son off their milking stools at 6:50 a.m. and floored the cows in the barn.

Passing motorists helped to save the livestock and farm equipment, but 300 chickens were burned and the harvest of newly-threshed straw and hay was lost.

Graafschap Fire Department stayed on the scene until 9:15 and kept the flames away from the house, which was badly blistered by the heat.

Only prompt action by the Knoll family and neighbors saved the home of Kenneth Knoll, son of the owner of the destroyed barn. A strong east wind sprayed burned embers over the house for a couple of hours. It stands less than 100 feet from the barn.

The large gambrel-style barn was completely leveled by the fire. Firemen from the Olive-Blenden station concentrated on saving the house and a nearby grainery.

Volunteers had already started taking some furniture out of the house into the driving rain.

The blaze lit up the sky and was visible for at least 10 miles. Cars of volunteers lined the road for some distance around the area.

No estimate of damage was immediately available. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Lightning startled the James Pain family on New Holland St. at 11:15 Wednesday night when it knocked a cement block out of the wall into an unoccupied bed.

Members of the family sitting in the living room were thrown to the floor by the shock, but cooperation by neighbors kept fire damage down to a minimum.

Fire Chief Herman Windemuller of Park Township No. 2 reported that the fire evidently started when lightning hit a television aerial.

He said all the fuses were burned out and that there was some electrical damage. Members of the department had a hard time getting to the fire because of the heavy storm and a couple of cars stalled along the gravel roads leading to the damaged home five miles north of the station.

A neighbor telephoned the department because the bolt had knocked out Pain's telephone service. When the firemen arrived the fire had been extinguished.

Minor fire damage which is covered by insurance was reported by the Graafschap Dept. at the home of Del Van Leeuwen one-half mile south of Laketown Park.

A passing motorist reported smoke pouring out of the roof at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, and firemen stayed at the house until 8. Cause was reported as either spontaneous combustion or faulty wiring.

Firemen said damage was confined to the attic. No one was home when the fire was discovered.

Heat Exhaustion Ruled in Death

The results of an autopsy late Wednesday revealed that three-year-old Arley Monroe Jackson died from heat exhaustion.

The autopsy was ordered by Medical Examiner Warren Weststrate and performed by Dr. Eugene W. Lange, pathologist from Muskegon.

The youngster died in Holland Hospital early Wednesday where he had been taken after he had been found in his parents car parked along side their home at 175 East 18th St.

The mother, Mrs. Eugene Jackson, was in the back yard hanging up the washing at the time. The child was found by a relative. The boy was first taken to a doctor where his body temperature was found to be 108½ and then to the hospital.

Funeral services were held this afternoon from the Dykstra Funeral Home with Herman Kamp-house of City Mission officiating.

Cars Pile Up

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Three cars piled end to end in an accident at the approach to the swing bridge on US-31 at 9:50 p.m. Wednesday. Involved were cars driven by Darwin G. Van Raalte, 25, of Ferrysburg, Gerald Ryke, 38, of Grand Rapids, and Thomas Pegg, 28, of Grand Haven. Pegg was ticketed for failure to stop within an assured clear distance.

Real Test of Skill

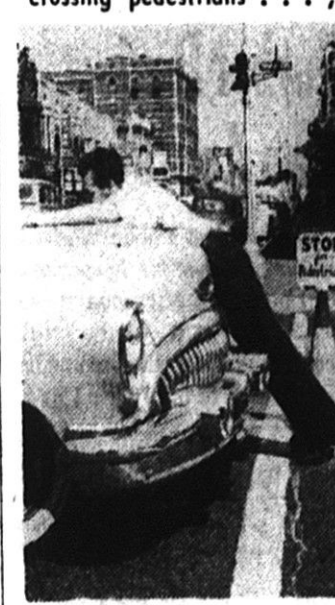

WASHINGTON (UP)—Contestants in the national teenage Road-E-O pitted their driving skill today against Washington traffic, snarled more than usual by a streetcar and bus strike.

Crossing at the intersection of River Ave. and Eighth St., a pedestrian may jump forward to escape some madman-on-wheels...

... or even be stranded in the middle of the street, clinging to the sign that warns drivers to stop for crossing pedestrians...

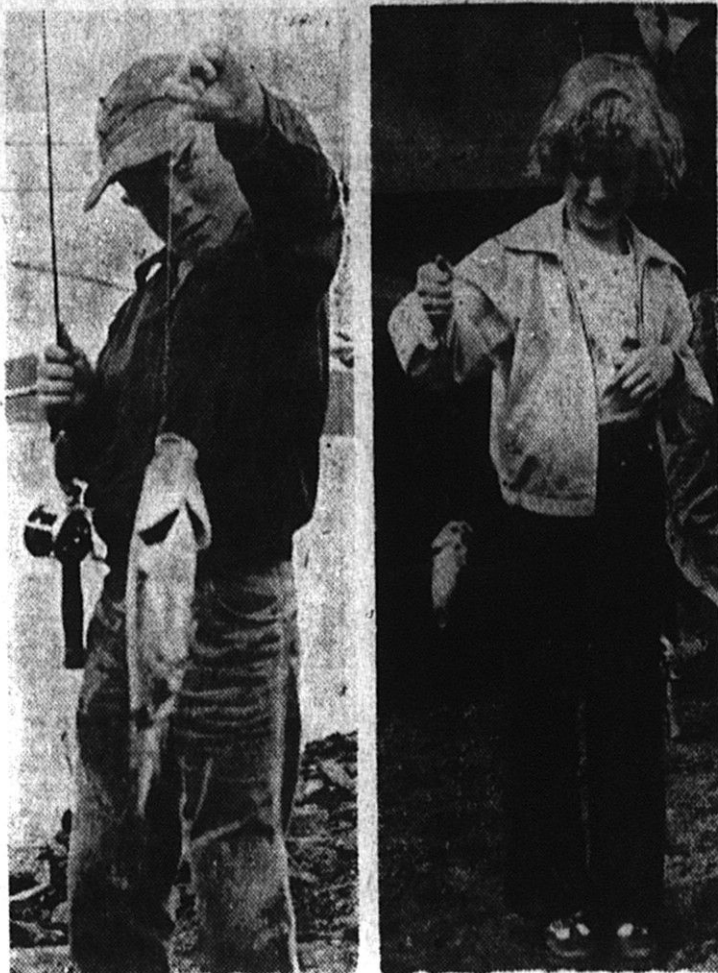

... but sometimes he's lucky to end up like this even though a hood is harder than a stretcher.

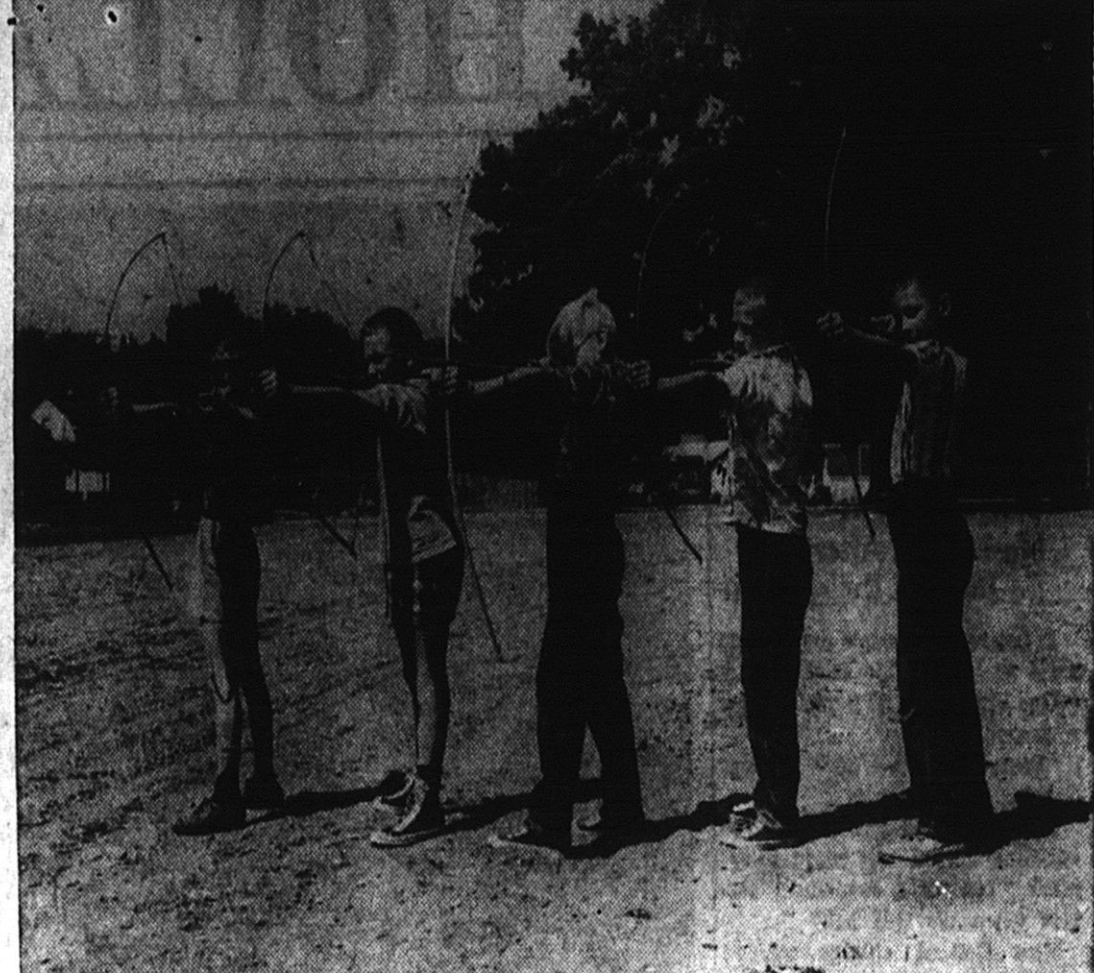

UNEARTH SKULL—If only this skull could reveal what the eyes saw in the past, historians of the early period in Holland would have a wealth of material. The skull and a few bones were uncovered by workmen Monday on the old Heber Walsh property on east Ninth St. Being near to Ninth Street Christian Reformed Church, some observers thought it might be the site of an old cemetery. But Dr. Albertus Pieters, 86-year-old resident, points out that most of the burials during the early period were made up by the old log church on 16th

St., and no one remembers a cemetery near the Ninth Street site. Because the body was evidently buried without a coffin, it probably belonged to an Indian—about 18 years old if the condition of the teeth is any proof. Shown looking at the skull are (left to right), back row, Glenn Arendsen, Bert Arendsen who uncovered the bones, and Clarence Jolving, president of Peoples State Bank, owner of the property. Holding the skull is Herm Van Kampen while Pete Kalkman holds some other bones. (Sentinel photo)

BIG FISH—AND SMILES—Two of the 1954 Fishing Rodeo winners display their catch following the event that attracted more than 300 local youngsters. An even larger group is expected for this year's Rodeo set for Saturday afternoon, Aug. 6.

BUDDING ROBIN HOODS—The first year experiment in teaching archery techniques at local summer playgrounds has attracted more than 20 youngsters at each of the four sites. Gene Hiddinga, member of the Holland Archery Club, is serving as instructor. Special emphasis is given

No Cause for Action Ruled by Ottawa Jury

GRAND HAVEN (Special)—After deliberating only 20 minutes Monday, a Circuit Court jury found no cause for action in a suit brought by the Hawkeye Security Insurance Co. against Ronald Van Herwyn, of Holland. The insurance company, assignee of Henry Nieboer of Holland, brought the suit as the result of an accident March 18, 1954 in Holland involving cars driven by Nieboer's wife, Magdalene, and Van Herwyn.

The court also rejected a $300 counter claim and ordered a verdict of no cause for action.

Beeman Paces Nippers Again

John Beeman still can't be beaten in the Nipper races at Macatawa Bay Yacht Club.

Those who trail him keep changing, but he won both Saturday and Sunday again.

Behind Beeman Saturday were Joey Good, Tommy Baker and Ed Marsilje. Sunday, Louise Marsilje, Jimmy Spencer and Cathy Cavanaugh trailed.

Dale and Dave Van Lare won the International 110 race Saturday and there was no Lightning competition because of the MBYC-Saugatuck regatta in Saugatuck.

Peter Sears and Mel Bissell were second and third among the International 110's Saturday.

Sears moved up to first in Sunday's 110 races with Bissell and Jim Boyd trailing.

Veldman Puts On Merchant Colors; Whips Vets, 12-0

The Vets found out what it's like to be playing against Lum Veldman Monday night as Lum hurled a no hit, 12-0 shutout for Hudsonville Merchants.

Lum usually plays with the Vets, but he also plays with the Merchants of the Zeeland league.

Monday's non-league encounter pitted the two squads, and put Veldman with the Merchants. He promptly proceeded to hurl the no-hitter while striking out 12 Vet batters and walking only two.

Hudsonville was battering every thing that Vet moundsman Case Veldman got near the plate. And Vet fielders were miffing almost every ball they got their hands on.

"Veldman was being hit, but he sure deserved a better fate," observed Vet manager George Cook.

The Merchants didn't waste any time getting started. Veldman singled, advanced on the first of the evenings 14 Vet errors, and scored on Nels Brower's single.

Brower and Jack Kole, who was safe on a fielder's choice, both scored on errors.

Seven Merchant players scored in a mad third inning. Basic ingredients were singles by D. De Weerd, Veldman, Bud DeWeerd, Brower, Ken De Vree, and Windel Burrikk, six errors, a wild pitch and a fielder's choice.

The Vets still didn't get a hit. Hudsonville chalked up two more runs in the seventh as Veldman pounded out his fourth single in five trips to the plate.

The game in a nutshell: everyone on the Merchant squad got a hit; nobody on the VFW squad got one.

Huist Brothers opened the night's action with a modest 3-1 win over Raphael, Inc., getting the three runs on two hits while Raphael scattered seven safeties.

Huist's only runs came in the fourth inning on a pair of errors and a walk. Only hits came in the first—a single by Ron Weatherbee—and the fifth—a double, again by Weatherbee.

Raphael scored in the fourth frame after Mel Koenes triple and scored on an infield out. They failed to score in the sixth frame despite three safeties.

Larry Knoper got the win allowing seven hits. But Norm Boeve did a creditable job getting tagged for only two hits, but losing.

Volleyballs

A copy of the home-spun column "Down by the Sycamore" in the July 14 issue of "The Ingham County News" had a heap lot of praise for Holland State Park.

Seems the author bought a tent 23 years ago and set out with his two youngsters on a camping safari. However, the missus tired of campouts and its tribulations, such as sand-sprinkled food.

From then on it was a cabin complete with rocking chair.

However, earlier this month he unpacked the old tent and with three grandchildren in tow, came to Holland State Park for a week-end. Here's a few choice quotes:

"We went and returned (from Mason, Ingham County seat) by secondary roads Charlotte, Hastings, Middleville, Dor, Overisel and thence to Holland and to the state park 12 miles beyond. Probably we could have made the trip quicker over US-16 to Grand Rapids and thence to Holland about 12 miles farther than our journey, but for scenery we had by far the best of it."

"The farther west into Michigan we went the more Guernseys we saw, instead of Holsteins. Using street and avenue designations for country roads, like Allegan and Kent counties do, takes away part of the glamor of rural travel. . . ."

Holland's south city limits are on the Allegan-Ottawa County line. . . . Holland's First National Bank has a big neon sign which gives the hour and minute in two-foot letters every minute and the temperature in between. . . ."

Holland has several good restaurants. We came in from the beach for Sunday dinner to eat with Hollanders, and they always eat good. "Maybe I should say something about camping. Holland is one of the most popular state parks. Facilities are good and order is excellent. Each camper, whether he has a pup tent or an Army pyramid tent, is allotted a space 45 feet square."

He continues by quoting fees for electrical service, hours, etc. He concludes by saying: "State campers are friendly. For instance, our group made the acquaintance of two nice girls—Barbara and Gloria Bell of Dor. Barbara had broken her arm falling out of a tree yet she was having as good a time as any girl, with one arm in a cast, could have at a beach."

"Come dusk Sunday evening and we folded our tent and headed for home—tired physically but rested inwardly—glowing inside with the fun of two days in the open and glowing outside with sunburn. We are going to use that old tent often this summer and if a portable rocking chair can be found we may take grandma along."

Mrs. J. M. DeHaan of East Lansing, whose home town is Holland, sent a copy of the column to The Sentinel.

The unknown child pictured on page five of the July 16 edition of the Sentinel has been identified. He is six and a half month old Randall Lee Kammeraad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Kammeraad, route 5.

A picture of the sleeping youngster, wearing a Dutch costume, was sent in by a Tulip Time visitor from Muncie, Ind., who hoped that the little boy's mother would recognize him and claim the snapshot at The Sentinel office. Mrs. Kammeraad, who picked up the picture July 18, said that she remembered the picture being taken but had forgotten about it until she saw it in the paper.

Dutchmen Need 13 Innings to Shade Grand Haven, 7-6

Grand Haven's Athletics and the Flying Dutchmen tangled for 13 innings at Riverview Park Monday night before Bob Van Dyke doubled to give Holland a 7-6 victory and a tie for first place in the Southwestern Michigan Baseball League.

Van Dyke's double in the bottom of the 13th came with the bases jammed and sent Duane Westenbroek across with the run that won him his own game.

He deserved the honor, too, as he allowed only seven hits and held the Athletics scoreless after the eighth inning when the Dutchmen plated two runs to tie the game up at 6-6.

Holland was only able to manage seven safeties off Pat Kammeraad as both sides were plagued with an abundance of errors.

The Dutchmen are now tied with South Haven for the second half lead with two games to go for each squad. The faltering Athletics, on the other hand, fell into the cellar along with Fennville at 2-4.

Grand Haven spurred first with two runs in the first without getting a hit. The Athletics capitalized on a walk and three Dutchman errors.

Holland retaliation came in the second with a pair of back-to-back doubles by Ted Schreur and Max Doolittle for a single tally.

Only one hit was needed for three Dutchman runs in the third as Kamhout got wild and served two walks and a wild pitch to go along with an error. Schreur's single was the big boost, however.

Grand Haven tied the game at 4-4 in the sixth on three singles and an error, then added single runs in the seventh and eighth on walks and errors.

But Holland could play that game, too, and the Dutchmen tied it again in the eighth on two runs without the benefit of a hit. They did find a walk and a pair of real nifty errors convenient, though.

From then on neither team could punch a run across until Van Dyke did it in the 13th. It was shaky in the top of the 11th, however, when Grand Haven's Emery Halzinger doubled with a man on. But there were two out and Westenbroek struck out the last man.

Out of necessity, Ted Schreur was the fielding star of the evening since the rest of Holland's infield couldn't seem to find the range on pegs to first base. Schreur went high and low, but he caught 'em.

Next game for the Dutchmen is Thursday night in Grand Haven. The standings:

	W	L	Pct.
Holland	4	2	.667
South Haven	4	2	.667
Zeeland	3	3	.500
Grand Haven	2	4	.333
Fennville	2	4	.333

Dog Notes

By Peter Boggs
HERE IS ONE WAY YOUR DOG THINKS

I am often asked, "does a dog actually think and reason?" Of course he does. Past associations and memories enable dogs to display astonishing reasoning powers—the same as you and I. A dog remembers past incidents very clearly and uses this sense to advantage. For instance:

Almost a year and a half ago "Gip," a collie owned by Jack Nash of Providence, R. I., was run over and injured by a speeding automobile. Nash rushed the dog to a nearby veterinarian who treated the injuries and after keeping the animal in his hospital for about 10 days returned him to his owner.

A couple of weeks ago the same veterinarian was surprised to see a stargate dog sitting on his front doorstep. On investigation he recognized Gip, the dog he had treated many months before. The dog began to wag his tail as the doctor approached, whined a little and held up his front paw. Taking the paw in his hand the vet discovered a bleeding cut in it, probably caused by the animal having stepped on a sharp piece of glass. He took Gip into his office, treated the wound and phoned Nash to come and pick up his dog.

Many people may think that Gip displayed real reasoning powers to go alone to the veterinarian when he had injured his paw. He did, but only because he associated his former injuries with the person who had then eased his pain and made him well. All dogs display such reasoning powers from time to time and if you will stop and think you can trace many of the unusual things a dog does to his remarkable memory and his past experiences.

Amount of Food Your Dog Needs

It is pretty well known that the average young puppy should be fed three times a day, but what about older dogs? How much food should they be given each day? You would be surprised how many experienced dog owners either over-feed or underfeed their pets.

When it comes to "How much to feed a dog," here is a good rule to remember: Feed a dog one-half ounce of food daily, for each pound of his weight. For example, a dog weighing 64 pounds should receive 2 pounds of food daily.

Most Intelligent Dog, Etc.

This spring I was asked to give my opinion as to the most intelligent breed of dog, the most loyal, etc. Here is how I rate them. Do you agree?

Most Intelligent — French poodle and German shepherd.
Most Loyal — Airedale.
Most One — Mannish — Chow.
Friendliest — Any of the hunting breeds.
Trouble-Maker — Wire-haired Terrier.
Best Sense of Humor — Springer Spaniel.
Hardest to Make Friends With — Pekingese.

Lightning Touches Off School Blaze

Fire touched off by lightning swept a small portion of the roof and attic of South Side Christian School early Saturday but water was blamed for the major share of the damage.

The lightning struck a ventilator on the southwest corner, melting the steel "like a wax candle." The blaze was first noticed by Louis Van Hemert, 16 West 30th St., who called firemen.

Firemen had to chop several holes in the roof to get at the fire, and water poured through the ceiling into two new classrooms just opened in September of 1954.

One room was thoroughly soaked, including textbooks and other supplies. Two other rooms were somewhat less damaged.

Superintendent of Christian Schools Bert P. Bos praised quick work by firemen for limiting damage. "We could have lost the entire roof," he said.

Although water damage makes an estimate difficult, fire officials agreed it was "less than $5,000."

TOLERANCE: AMERICAN MODEL

A little 17-year-old German girl, Uta Marie Strauven, left Allegan
the other day for her native land, after capturing the hearts of the people of the community by a year's residence among them. One of the most important things she had learned in America, she confessed, was that the charge of American intolerance that she had learned in Communist controlled schools in her former Iron Curtain home was false.

If their attitude of respect and love for the visitor is taken at face value, as it should be, the people among whom she lived the past year also learned the same lesson from her that she learned from them. When we Americans learn that those visitors from Europe, even the occasional ones who had to escape from behind the Iron Curtain, are like us when they have a real chance to bare their hearts to us, the lesson of tolerance has become a two-way affair.

The change that has come over the American people in the short space of ten years is rather astonishing. Just a decade ago, a girl like Uta Marie Strauven would not have been tolerated in a typical American community. She belonged to the "enemy" and the thought could not get through to us that not all Germans were little Hitlers.

In the same way, ten years ago, it was not safe to have a good word to say for anything Japanese.
A former teacher in Japan, speaking before an American audience, was almost insulted when she declared that she had found the Japanese delightful and kindly and human like ourselves. In those days anyone who happened to own anything marked "Made in Japan" kept it under cover.

Today all that has changed for both Germans and Japanese, to say nothing of Italians, who also were the subjects of our intolerance. Visitors like Uta Marie Strauven have changed all this.
We have learned to understand that, while there are skunks and Hitlers in every land, the masses of the people in any country are as wholesome and human as we ourselves are. To find it out, all we need is to meet them.

And to find out about us, all they need is to see us in our natural home surroundings. Not all the people of any nation like Germany or Japan are friendly and kindly and wholesome. But goodness knows, not all Americans are like that either.

Just now all Russians are "enemies" — to Americans; and all Americans are "enemies" — to Russians. If the two peoples ever get a chance to know each other in the way in which this German girl learned to know Americans and Americans learned to know her, that term "enemy" will fade out. Such is the true meaning of tolerance.

This right now is appropriate in view of the Geneva Conference.

The People Left in Judah
Jeremiah 42:1, 5-7, 10-18; 43:2, 4, 7
44:15-18

By Henry Geerlings

We have no knowledge how many people were left behind when Jerusalem and Judah were destroyed. It was a remnant, but probably sufficient to occupy the land and care for its agricultural needs.
The fervent patriotism of Jeremiah would not let him accept the offer of Nebuchadnezzar to go to Babylon as a favored character, but he chose to remain with the people left in the land and hoped to persuade them to rebuild.

Gedaliah was appointed governor of the territory. He was a good and just man. Many Jewish refugees who had fled from the country during the wars returned from the lands to which they had fled. A semblance of government organization was being worked out. The question of fleeing into Egypt, which had been Judah's last ally, was already hotly debated. The old stubborn and disobedient spirit that had brought ruin upon the land still persisted. He ruled, but there was a party in league with the Amonites across the Jordan who had other plans.

Gedaliah was too trusting to believe the plots against his life when they had been revealed to him. So Ishmael and his men slew him and the others with him at Mizpah.
Johanan, leader of the forces in the open country, emerged as the leader.

After the fall of Jerusalem, the Hebrew people survived in three main groups, aside from the citizens of the Northern kingdom who were deported, scattered and assimilated by the Assyrians. These were first, left in Palestine; second, those in Egypt; and third, the captives in Babylonia. The largest group was still in Palestine.

When the conquerors carried away captives they took the city dwellers, the wealthy, the skilled, and those connected with the king and the aristocratic families. They hardly touched the poor and the country and village dwellers. Between earning a living by crops and herds and defending themselves against marauding bands they had a hard time surviving.
Nevertheless, this group of peasant people lived on the land and became an important factor in Jewish life after the restoration.

The second largest group of the Hebrews were to be found in Egypt. A considerable group fled to Egypt after the murder of Gadaliah, taking along Jeremiah. These people settled in frontier towns.
The largest number of Hebrews in Egypt were located at Memphis and Patros in upper Egypt whither they had migrated during the troublesome times of the later Judean kings before the fall of Jerusalem. One colony had settled on an island in the Nile where a temple was erected for the worship of Jehovah. Many of these people remained loyal to their religious and ethnic ideals. Others who lived in the Nile delta, reputedly the worship of Jehovah, asserting that it was this worship which caused all their suffering and trouble.

The third, and numerically the smallest group, was the band of exiles transplanted to Babylon.
In every way this was by far the most important group, for through some of these the Hebrew religion was transmitted to posterity as Judaism. Here was found practically all the wealth and culture, the brains and skill, and among them grew those ideas and ideals which have determined the life of the Jewish world down to this day.

Jeremiah's ministry in Egypt to a people who rejected him and his God was one of divine judgment. The one great basic sin was idolatry. The very sin which had brought ruin to Judah and Jerusalem was practiced without apology in Egypt by the Jewish remnant. Only judgment remained. So complete would it be and so destructive that none of the remnant would escape or remain.
Their destruction would be accomplished by the sword and by famine. So terrible would it be that the people destroyed would become an object of amazement and a curse by the Egyptians.

Again Jeremiah pronounced the coming of certain doom upon an idolatrous and dishonorable people. A small number would rescape the sword and would return to Judah in order to bear witness to the truth of the words of the prophet.

Men do not escape the consequences of evil by moving to a different place, especially if they carry with them their intentions to evil doing. The people left behind in Judah illustrate this truth.
One of their motives in going to Egypt was to escape possible war and famine in Judah, but they carried with them their apostasy and their idolatry. And so they suffered in Egypt the consequences of their sins that they had suffered in Judah-war and famine.
Evil and evil doing are a matter of the individual's heart and will.

Until we do something about evil in our own lives no outward changes will alter the relentless operation of the sin death principle in a moral universe like ours.

"JUST ONE MORE DIP"

July Means 'Full-Up' At Beaches, Resorts

Youngsters and oldsters alike crowded the shores of Lake Michigan last weekend, and from all reports the local beaches are going to be just as well populated for the rest of the month.

Even though the wind shifted to the northeast Saturday and the water temperature has dropped 10 degrees from that day's high of 70, the beach at Holland State Park still has a lot of sun worshippers sprawled about on the sand and a few hardy souls are braving the waves.

Total attendance and camping permits are at an all-time high, but with the extended facilities at Ottawa, trailer and tent spaces are still available.

(The two unidentified children pictured above were snapped at Ottawa Beach by The Sentinel photographer while they were trying to make the all-important choice between an ice cream cone or another dip in Lake Michigan.)

WAUKAZOO INN

Cincinnatians seem to have taken over at Waukazoo Inn, and they are helping to make it one of the liveliest resorts in the area. Sixty-five per cent of registration at the Inn is from the Queen City, and rooms are pretty well filled.
Shades of F. Scott Fitzgerald will be out and around at Waukazoo Friday evening for special entertainment at the Roaring Twenties Ball, and Saturday night will be Dickens night, as Hedley Hepworth an interpreter of the great author, presents his one man theater show.

The "pick your own" idea has come into its own at the Inn.
Groups venture out daily to nearby blueberry patches to gather their own fruit. Waukazoo is featuring blueberries on every menu to the seeming delight of its patrons.

The weekdays are busy, too. One of the Monday evening events was a party held at Mr. and Mrs.
Richard Munson's cottage. "Laughing Squirrel" Guest of honor was Mrs. Francis Payne, the Munson's daughter, who was celebrating her birthday.

Ottawa Farm News

Richard Machiele,
County Agricultural Agent
Seems good to be back in Ottawa County after a hot dry month in the West. Found crops rather advanced since leaving. Glad to be back.

We have had some calls regarding off flavor in milk. At first the thought was that some weeds were eating might cause this, but the trouble developed in herds that were on excellent alfalfa pastures.

Alfalfa seems to be the offender and at a certain stage of growth or seasonal conditions, it seems that he off flavor is more pronounced.
If you have had such difficulty, remove the cows from pasture at least two hours before milking and the trouble will usually be avoided.

Gene Dice wrote about the resolution passed by the Ottawa County board of supervisors regarding the request made to the state to have this county on the test and slaughter basis for Bangs control rather than test and deferred slaughter basis. This is a step in the right direction in order to eradicate the disease in the county.

Dr. John Trumble, who is in charge of the testing program in the county, reports that infection rate has been reduced very little in the last two years. In fact, less than one per cent reduction in both herd and cattle infection. He also found out of the 177 herds infected, over 100 were herds that had reactors from previous tests. Also that out of the 489 reactors, 300 came from the infected herds.

The request is that the change shall be made on July 1, 1956.

Howard and Ruby Alexander, testors for the Ottawa No. 1 DHIA, report the following high cows and high herds for the past month.

High Cows — Jarvis Van Rhee, Drenthe, registered Holstein, under 4 years old with 2,490 pounds milk and 92 pounds butterfat.

Mesbergen Bros. — Hudsonville, registered Holstein, aged cow, with 2,490 pounds milk and 90 pounds butterfat.

High Herds — Ward Keppel, Zeeland, with 1,231 milk and 46 butterfat.

Groen Bros. — Allendale, with 1,181 milk and 45 butterfat.

Jarvis Van Rhee — Drenthe, with 1,241 milk, 45 butterfat.

Hudson Barley, a winter variety, has been accepted for certification in Michigan. Our barley plots in Ottawa County showed Hudson a better yielding variety than the others. One other observation was made that winter barley will not produce well on low land which is not too well drained. More information on growing certified seed can be obtained in the extension office.

CRASH INJURES FIVE — Ottawa County deputies had their hands full Sunday night when five local residents were injured in a single car crash on South Shore Dr. near Graafschap Rd. The driver, James Oliver Gregory, 21, of 1746½ West 32nd St. is shown being carried on a stretcher to a waiting ambulance as Deputy Len Ver Schure (foreground) bends over another victim. Ambulances and Ver Schure's station wagon ran a shuttle between the accident scene and Holland Hospital removing the injured. Identifiable persons are special Holland officer John Piers (second from left), Deputy Rich Bell (on car) and Deputy Bud Gysen (partially blocked at right). (Sentinel photo)

Hundreds Mill Around Scene of Auto Mishap

Five youths were injured, none seriously, when their car flipped over on South Shore Dr. near Graafschap Rd. early Sunday evening.

Treated for minor cuts and bruises at Holland Hospital were James Oliver Gregory, 21, of 1746½ West 32nd St.; John Rodger Roberts, 18, of 49 East 16th St.; Wade Junior Cox, 18, of 1746 West 32nd St.; his brother, Jeff Cox, 20, same address; and Eddy Ray McKinney, 22, of 432 Central Ave.

All were released after treatment and immediately arrested by Ottawa County deputies and charged with offenses ranging from drunk driving to parole violation.

The driver, Gregory, pleaded guilty Monday to driving while under the influence of intoxicants and was sentenced to 10 days in jail and fined $104.70.

Three others, the two Coxes and McKinney, each entered guilty pleas to charges of being drunk and disorderly. Each was sentenced to five days in jail and fined $29.80. All appeared before Justice C.C. Wood.

The fifth occupant of the car, Roberts, was held on charges of violating his parole.

When deputies arrived at the accident scene minutes after it happened four of the youths were sprawled out on the grass. Gregory was jammed in the front seat of the car and had to be lifted out.

Two were taken to the hospital by ambulance and Deputy Len Ver Schure's station wagon which is equipped with a stretcher.

By the time the second ambulance arrived the area was jammed with cars and hundreds of persons milled around the car and victims on the grass.

Deputies, a special Holland patrolman and auxiliary officers directed traffic and helped place the third and fourth persons in the ambulance and Ver Schure's car for the second trip to the hospital.

The fifth was taken to the Holland police station and later removed by ambulance to the hospital for a check.

Gregory told deputies he had pulled out to pass another vehicle when his car hit loose gravel throwing him into a skid. Authorities found 141 feet of skid marks before the car hit a mail box and tree.

The 1937 model car then turned over on its side. A passing motorist, John Van Putten, 1298 South Shore Dr., helped four out of the overturned car.

As they staggered out of the wreck they collapsed one by one on a nearby lawn.

The wreck occurred around 8 p.m. and at a time when many residents take an evening drive to Macatawa and back which further added to the traffic tieup.

Zeeland Council Gets Good News

ZEELAND (Special) — A tentative report submitted to City Council Friday indicated Zeeland is in the pleasant situation of having more receipts and less expenditures than anticipated.

The report, covering a period from July 1, 1954 to June 30, 1955, was the first under a new comprehensive budgeting system adopted upon recommendation of the city's auditing firm.

In the first year expenditures were $8,000 below the estimated $136,000 level, a saving of about six percent. At the same time receipts other than taxes were $27,000 more than expected, an increase of 50 percent.

Expenditures by departments varied, but Council commended Superintendent Leon Sears, Chief of Police Elmer Boss, Cemetery Sexton Simon Elhart and City Clerk John Holleman for efficient operation.

Under the new system both property taxes and other estimated receipts are budgeted in April preceding the fiscal year. Prior to this only property taxes were budgeted, and other receipts were appropriated as they were received.

The old system, according to the auditors, allowed too much leeway. Mayor Robert De Bruyn presided at the meeting and expressed satisfaction with first year operation under the new system.

'Something New' Set for Picnic

ZEELAND (Special) — Something "entirely new" is being planned for Zeeland's Farmer's Day Picnic Aug. 16 and 17, according to program chairman Dick Timmer.

At work developing "our own version of a television quiz show," says Timmer.

Local personalities will serve as master of ceremonies and prop men in the show which will be the top feature on the final night's program.

Also on the Wednesday program will be the Vandenberg Brothers, a musical quartet from Byron Center. John Swieringa of Holland will present an organ prelude at both the afternoon and night performance.

The picnic opens Tuesday night with an amateur program directed by radio station WHTC.

Wednesday morning the second annual tractor rodeo will be held at the new location on West Central Ave.

Marvin Johnson is general chairman for the event. Nick Cook and Augie Kasten are also on the steering committee.

By Neil Salm
NORFOLK, England (July 20) — "Expect the Unexpected." Every day I experience the aptness of the motto for the Experiment in International Living, the organization I am traveling under in the British Isles.

Stepping off the ship at Southampton gave us our first shock. "Don't bother to pack any thin cottons," people had cautioned me at home. "Take wool, wool and more wool. It's cold in them thin islands." As we disembarked temperatures were in the upper eighties. For two or three days more, the sun beamed down on our absurd winter clothing while the English went around in sleeveless cottons. Now, however, the temperatures have dropped nearer to normal and my feet are cold.

The second shock came as I was being sped out of Norwich toward the farm which was to be my home for the next month. "In England," people had said, "Don't be surprised if you find things done on a much smaller scale than they are back home. It's such a small country, you know." Accordingly I pictured the Norfolk farm of my host as a small truck garden of perhaps 10 or 20 acres. Imagine my surprise when I discovered the Deanes (my hosts) owned 800 acres in the family and were trying to buy another 400 acre tract for a son who is now in America on an agricultural scholarship. "But—but—but," I spluttered. There are so few of you and so much to do. Two herds of 70 cows each, sugar beets, peas, grain, chickens—how is it all taken care of?" Silently they bundled me into the left hand seat of their car, next to the driver, and piloted me around the farm pointing out the neat brick bungalows in which their farm laborers live. I found out that 23 men, with their families, live and work on the Deane's 800 acres. I was speechless. The old manorial system in full swing and I had been under the vague impression that it had died with the advent of the industrial revolution—which brings me to another point.

"Undoubtedly you will find that the English are not nearly as mechanized on the farm as we are in America," I was told. However, one of the first things the Deane's showed me was their method of harvesting peas. Four huge machines were set up on concrete slabs in the field. Into one end of each machine the peas were being fed—vines, pods and all. At the other end of the machine was spitting out shelled peas into the prepared aluminum (pronounced al-u-MIN-yum) containers. Again I was awed.

One final misconception I wish to deal with. On the first night of my residence here, Mrs. Deane placed a cup of steaming hot coffee before me after the rest of the supper things had been cleared away. I looked at it suspiciously, having been warned that English coffee wasn't fit to drink. After my first sip my face cleared and I exclaimed in surprise, "Why this is very GOOD coffee!" Mrs. Deane looked at me with an expression that plainly said "Why shouldn't it be?"

Clumsily I tried to explain my preconceived prejudice. From that moment I swore that nothing further would surprise me in England. If my English sister, Angela, should run in right now and tell me there was a two-headed mermaid sitting on the water lily in the garden pool I would not turn a hair. Maybe two-headed mermaids are common in England and I wouldn't want to betray my ignorance by appearing surprised! Your wisest but not sadder Community Ambassador, Neil Salm.

Borgman's Homer Wins for Bareman; Fords Top Moose

Bob Borgman homered with a man on in the ninth inning Tuesday night in City League softball to give Bareman Service a 5-3 victory over cellar-dweller Vandenberg Buick.

The blast came after the contest had gone into extra innings tied up at 2-all. Then both squads scored a single run in the eighth.

Vandenberg scored in the fifth, capitalizing on a pair of Bareman errors. Farnley was safe on the first error, went to third on the next one and scored on Al Dozman's single.

Vandenberg picked up No. 2 in the sixth on singles by Fortney and G. Boeve.

Bareman led up the ball game in the sixth when Bob Visser, Vandenberg hurler, had a wild few moments, giving up two walks and throwing a couple wild pitches.

These, combined with Bob Altena's single, accounted for two runs.

With the pressure on in the eighth frame, Jerry Skaag singled for Vandenberg, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on G. Boeve's single and scored on an infield out.

Again Bareman countered with a run on a walk to Jerry Kruitthol who scored on Ted Bos' triple.

You May Sprinkle Your Garden Starting Thursday

The Board of Public Works eased the city's sprinkling regulations today despite Tuesday's 96-degree scorcher.

BPW Superintendent George Rendleman announced that sprinkling would be allowed for Holland gardens starting Thursday.

All sprinkling and car washing were cut off Saturday by a BPW ultimatum, but the ban or commercial car washing was lifted Monday.

"We want to give people a break," Rendleman said. "So we'll let them keep their gardens watered as long as possible."

Rendleman's figures on water levels and gallons pumped showed clearly why the board had to ban all lawn sprinkling, even the limited hour basis that had stood up until Saturday.

Water levels in the four wells that pump 80 per cent of Holland's water are down 40 feet from 1947, Rendleman said.

Two of those wells are located just east of Holland on Eighth St. and two more are on 120th Ave. (Waverly Road) between Eighth and 16th.

Other city water comes from a well near Fairbanks Ave. and the 19th St. pumping station. Another pumping station on 28th St. is seldom used, Rendleman said.

With the water levels down and the burning heat wave, Holland's water use climbed until last Wednesday when it reached a peak of 5,200,000 gallons pumped.

When the heat continued and the water use remained high Thursday and Friday Rendleman found it necessary to impose the complete sprinkling ban.

It showed, too, as only 3,575,000 gallons were pumped Monday, which was another scorcher.

Last Wednesday's high didn't even come close to the water pumped on June 18, 1954, however.

That's the day the all-time record was set with the pumps spewing 6,880,000 gallons into the city's mains despite sprinkling restrictions imposed only three days before.

On June 15, 1954, the BPW restricted unlimited sprinkling to every other day, depending on which side of the street you lived.

Three days later the city was in the midst of a heat wave and the record was set, bettering the mark of 1952 when 6,825,000 gallons were pumped one day.

On June 19, the BPW slapped some further restrictions on sprinkling — the well-known hourly basis from 6 to 8 a.m. and p.m.

Even with those restrictions the city used 5,853,000 gallons last July 28 for that month's high.

So the restrictions were kept when the sprinkling season started this summer.

"We hope we can let people sprinkle their lawns before the summer's over," Rendleman said. "A good rain would sure help."

Bans on car washing are quite common among cities that are hardpressed for water, he said.

What happens to a resident who defies the city and sprinkles his lawn anyway?

"Well, I've never had to do it, but I do have the power to shut their water off," Rendleman said. "Most people are pretty good about it."

Holland residents had reason to be. They could look forward to a whole lakeful of water within a couple of years.

Hulst, Harlem Pound Out Wins In Local Softball

Two ordinary and not particularly eventful softball contests were played Thursday night at Van Tongeren field.

In a City Softball League match, Hulst walloped Barenham Service, 5-2 and in an outside contest Harlem of the Zeeland League edged Barber Fords, 7-6.

Hulst led right from the start as Ron Weatherbee, Jud Gebben, Bob Vork and Hulst drew singles. Weatherbee and Gebben scored.

Some infielder bobbled Vork's hit in the third inning. A wild pitch and another error later, Vork scored. Ted Bos, Bob Borgman and Lou Borgman singled for Barenham in the fourth frame, good for a single tally.

Hulst came right back as Barenham hurler Joe Berens served up two walks a wild pitch and a single to Vork to score Lavern Zoerhof. Barenham's final score came in the sixth on Joe Berens' double and a single by Lou Borgman.

Hulst would up the night with a round tripper by Bud Hulst. Winner on nine hits was Al Bosch, loser Berens on 10 safeties.

In the nightcap Harlem already had four runs in the fifth when Gene Keil and John Stegenga pounded out consecutive homers. Two of the runs had scored in the third on Don Bloemers' double, while Stegenga, Pete Talsma and Jack Van Slooten singled for two runs in the fourth.

Fords finally got going in the fifth. Harlem hurler Bloemers loaded the bases with two hit batsmen and a walk.

Jay Hop singled and Howie Schutt banged out a double. Score for the inning: three runs. The losers picked up two more runs in the sixth, and a final one in the seventh when Schutt doubled again, scoring on an error.

Wayne Hop was the loser allowing eight hits. Bloemers got the win, giving up only six safeties.

Library Adventures

We here in western Michigan did not know it at the time, but we were once the subject of intensive consideration on the part of Washington politicians in their plans for an unusually important election. The suggestion was made to try to capture the so-called "Dutch vote." The fact that nothing came of the suggestion does not make the attempt any the less interesting.

The suggestion came from Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior in Roosevelt's cabinet. The occasion was the drawing of the blueprint for the famous third term campaign of Roosevelt. The details are given by Ickes himself, in the third volume of "The Secret Diary of Harold L. Ickes," a work that is in process of publication. Three volumes have been published and the fourth is understood to be in press.

Ickes was originally a native of Chicago, where he was a lawyer when Roosevelt named him as Secretary of the Interior, even though he was a Republican. He had worked for Roosevelt's election in 1932, and that gave him the job he coveted.

Being from Chicago, Ickes knew a good deal about conditions in the Middle West. He had come into contact with considerable Dutch element in that city, and he had learned about what he calls the "concentration of Hollanders" in Michigan and other sections.

Ickes was one of the first advocates of a third term, and he and the President and the President's advisers overlooked no bet to put this revolutionary movement over. He advised that speakers should be sent into the Michigan "concentration of Hollanders"—that is, to us—to corral our votes for the third term. He added that the same thing should be done for the large groups of Hollanders in Illinois, Wisconsin, the Dakotas, and even far-off Washington state.

If the whole "Dutch vote" could be captured for the third term it would help considerably, in Ickes' opinion, to put the President over.

His reasoning was at least plausible. Hitler had invaded the Netherlands in 1940. The "Dutch vote" was composed of people whose fairly recent ancestors had come from that unhappy country. Roosevelt was generally known to be at least devoted to the job of liberating them (and the rest of Europe); that was why men like Ickes wanted him elected for a third term. What more natural than that the "Dutch vote" would favor this candidate?

There was another reason that was somewhat plausible, at least on the surface. Roosevelt is a Dutch name. Three hundred years ago it was spelled "Van't Rooseveelt," and the family had for three centuries been part of the Hudson Valley Dutch aristocracy. The crude, unattractive Hollanders of the Middle West, so Ickes argued, would succumb to the magic of the Dutch name.

He did not add, perhaps he was too ignorant to know, that Roosevelt was as much a Swede as a Hollander. His maternal ancestry came from Sweden, and he certainly had as much Swedish as Dutch blood—to say nothing of English blood added through the intermarriages of three centuries. Even if Ickes knew this, it was not necessary to reveal it to the politically naive Hollanders of Michigan and other states.

Nothing came of it, so far as the Ickes diary shows. But it was at least a good illustration of what makes the minds of Washington politicians tick.
