$10,000 FOR ROSE FLOAT — Mayor Lou Hallacy (center) accepts a check for $10,000 with great enthusiasm from Mike Gorno, president of Tulip Time (right) as Tulip Time's contribution for Holland's

Need $21,500 More for Rose Parade Float

Tulip Time Gives $10,000 for Float

The city of Holland got a $10,000 boost Thursday in its fund drive to finance a float in the Tournament of Roses parade in Pasadena, Calif., next Jan. 1.

Mike Gorno, new president of Tulip Time, presented the check to Mayor Lou Hallacy at a press luncheon at Holland Country Club, attended by radio and television representatives, the press, city officials, Tulip Time and Bicentennial personnel.

Mayor Hallacy said the city now has $16,000 in its float fund, and another $21,500 is needed for its $37,500 budget. He said some $3,000 had been collected in a door-to-door campaign instead of the hoped-for $7,000 to $8,000, and concluded about 40 per cent of the residents had been reached. He said starting next week, business and industry will be canvassed.

In reviewing events which led to Holland's acceptance in float entries in the Rose parade, Hallacy said Tulip Time floats usually are 20 feet long, but Rose parade floats run 50 feet long, eight feet high and 16 feet wide. He pointed to several float designs displayed on the walls, but said no design will be selected until finances are in order. He said one design calls for tulips which would be four feet across and covered with petals of other flowers. Final design must be selected by Oct. 1, he said. Most designs had windmills, tulips and figures in Dutch costumes.

Hallacy was especially grateful for the contribution from Tulip Time, since festivals are operated on a budget of only $45,000, indicating the high degree of community support and involvement. He said former City Manager William L. Bopf who left Holland early in May for a new post in Tustin, Calif., represented the city at a hearing before the Tournament of Roses committee.

He said Holland is one of only four areas outside the West Coast to be invited to enter a float at Pasadena. Of the four, two are in Canada and one in Georgia. Based on television total viewing of 125 million persons, price per float per viewer is .0000523 cent or "the world's greatest advertising bargain," according to the Pasadena association. A total of 1½ million view the parade in Pasadena and over 800,000 view the floats at the post parade exhibit two days following the parade.

Large buttons with the theme, "Tiptoe to Pasadena," were distributed.

FIRE RUINS SKYLINE — The Skyline Restaurant & Bar north of Saugatuck was ruined during an early morning fire Friday that began near this section of the dining area. Police and fire officials said arson was suspected and may have occurred during a break-in of the building. The fire was reported at 3:50 a.m. by a passing motorist. Loss was estimated at $75,000. More than 26 firemen from the Saugatuck department battled the blaze for about three hours. One fireman suffered minor injuries when an outside lighting fixture fell from the building and struck him. Sought Father in Holland

Boy, 15, Held In Car Thefts

A 15-year-old Muskegon boy, taken to Holland by friends so he could look for his father, was held by police Saturday after he allegedly took three cars and a bicycle before he was apprehended by police this morning.

Officers said the youth was dropped off in the area of Ninth St. and Columbia Ave. Friday night and apparently wandered about the downtown district until taking a car from the area and driving it around the city until it was returned to the same area.

Police said the youth then allegedly approached a 17-year-old woman who stopped her car at Seventh St. and River Ave. and attempted to get her out of the car but failed. The report was received by police at 3:45 a.m. Saturday.

Officers said the boy then apparently wandered about the downtown area again, eluding police who were sent into the area following the report from the woman.

Eventually a sports car registered to Gregg Voss, 24½ West Eighth St., was taken from its parking place behind Hansen's Drug Store and was found wrecked at 31st St. and Harrison Ave. where it struck a tree.

Police said the boy apparently walked from the accident to a residence on 31st St. where a bicycle was taken from a garage. He apparently rode the bike to the home of Jason Roels, 322 West 33rd St., where a pickup truck was taken but not before Roels had awakened and had time to jump into his car and give chase.

Roels' wife called police and officers followed the car and truck south along the Blue Star Highway, stopping the youth south of Holland where he was taken into custody.

The boy, who was not identified, was held for juvenile authorities.

The barricade will remain in place on a six-week trial basis.

Fire Hits Skyline Restaurant

SAUGATUCK — The Skyline Restaurant & Bar located along the Blue Star highway north of Saugatuck was razed by fire early Friday and police and fire officials said arson was suspected.

Firemen from Saugatuck were called at 3:50 a.m. by a passing motorist who spotted the flames. More than 26 firefighters battled the blaze before bringing it under control about three hours later.

One fireman, Harry Aalderink of Saugatuck, was injured when an outdoor lighting fixture attached to the building broke loose and fell on him. He sustained bruises and was treated in the Douglas Community Hospital before returning to the fire scene.

Fire Chief Bob Jones said flames were shooting from windows of the dining area of the 100 by 60 wood frame structure when firemen arrived.

The Allegan County sheriff's department said arson was suspected as a cause of the blaze but added detectives and a Fire Marshal from the State Police were probing the ruins to determine the exact cause.

The fire was believed to have started in the southwest section of the building where the dining room was located.

Jones said there was some evidence the building may have been broken into after the last person was reported to have left the building between 3 and 3:15 a.m. Friday.

The loss was estimated at $75,000.

It was the second popular dining and night spot in the Saugatuck - Douglas area to be destroyed by fire this year. On Jan. 30 the Tara restaurant in Douglas was leveled during an early morning fire.

The Skyline was reportedly owned by Thomas Newhouse of Kentwood and managed by Ronald Sobota of Holland.

Parts of the building were believed 45 to 50 years old, Jones said.

PARK TOWNSHIP SYSTEM — Construction of the Park Township Water System near Holland was completed in 1974. Preservation of the natural environment was a chief concern in the Waukazoo area, and even shortly after construction the only indication of a water main was an occasional fire hydrant.

HOLLAND TOWNSHIP SYSTEM — Cooperation between citizens, township officials, and county personnel has helped make the Holland Township system a highly successful water project. Maximum expansion of the systems with the available financing has been achieved and in two short years service has been extended to nearly 400 customers.

Ottawa County's Water: An Expanding Network

By Lynn Deur

Water. Like air it is one of those resources we take for granted. It will always be there. It will always be clean. It will always be free.

Wrong. We do take it for granted. But clean, good water is not inexhaustible resource. And only in its raw form is it free. Making it convenient and safe costs money.

City residents have long accepted the fact that water must come from a central supply system. They have understood the water at their disposal to be a manufactured product, extracted from a raw source, purified, and delivered.

But through the years, as cities stretched into the suburbs, needs have changed. People who considered themselves country residents, reliant on their own wells, now find they must make decisions for or against proposed water systems. Private water systems seem to have begun a long slow death.

Waste systems take time. The need has to be determined. A water source has to be located. Both engineering and financial plans have to be located. Both engineering and financial plans have to be laid. Then there can be a referendum. In short, months and months and often years pass before actual work on a water system even begins.

Ottawa County has an expanding network of water systems, reaching into several sections of the county. Since an agency to administer water and sewer projects has been in existence less than 15 years, the progress is remarkable.

Like several other Michigan counties, Ottawa's water and sewer agency is a department of the Road Commission.

In 1939 the state passed a law authorizing the Road Commission as a county agency for public works. Using this law as a guideline, the County Board of Commissioners named the Road Commission as the county agency for water and sewer in 1961.

The Water and Sewer Department at the Road Commission both administers and operates water systems. If a township, city, or village desires a water system, the department provides technical and administrative assistance as a water source is determined and plans are laid.

Since water systems involve large sums of money, the department is authorized to apply for grants and loans, to issue bonds, or enter into agreements with units of government for financing.

The Grand Valley System was the first project to be built by the Water and Sewer Department of the Road Commission. Two large wells were constructed to serve the college and surrounding area over the years, however, demands that the water supplies be expanded. Plans are now being made to draw water from the Grand Rapids Water Plant with the original wells serving as a standby source.

Several of the county water systems come from the Wyoming-Ottawa Water Supply System. When construction of the Lake Michigan Water Supply System and Pipeline began in 1965, Ottawa purchased a 15 per cent interest. In 1973 the system expanded and the county purchased 15 per cent of the increased capacity.

Holland Township Water System is one of the systems built by the Water and Sewer Department that uses water from the Wyoming Pipeline. The Park Township Water System, also built by the Road Commission, receives a portion of its water from the pipeline and a portion from the City of Holland.

A current project of the Water and Sewer Department lies in the northern part of the county. In a referendum voters recently approved the Northwest Ottawa County Water Supply System. Plans include a ten-mile transmission main to distribute water purchased from Grand Haven to customers in Ferrysburg and Spring Lake Township.

Unlike systems in some parts of the country, water quality is not a problem in Ottawa County. The basic reason is that Lake Michigan is one of the cleanest bodies of water from which municipal supplies are taken.

Most intakes are located far from shore and are very deep, so the effects of questionable river and stream discharges are minimal. Modern sewage treatment plans in the western part of the state have helped drastically to cut heavy concentrations of pollutants in rivers and streams that discharge into Lake Michigan.

The Water and Sewer Department of the Road Commission has earned the reputation for strict enforcement of standards in both workmanship and materials. Standards and specifications are vigorously checked, and then necessary unproven materials or inferior workmanship have been rejected.

A small, but highly trained staff also helps assure county residents of a continued supply of high quality water. The personnel maintaining and operating the systems are knowledgeable of modern techniques and, most importantly, are aware of potential hazards of improper operation. In both county and city operated systems personnel are certified by the Michigan Department of Health.

With an expanding network of systems, water is gradually becoming everyone's business.

Hope's Set Designer Also Fine Puppeteer

Coordinating the staging of a repertory theatre presents particular problems because the set units must be changed each day for a different performance.

The Hope Summer Repertory Theatre is presenting three different productions during its season this year. From Aug. 1 through Sept. 6 the productions will alter nights Monday through Saturday.

Oklahoma! and The Miser are presently being presented in the air-conditioned DeWitt Cultural Center on the campus of Hope College and will be joined by Saint Joan on Aug. 1.

The properties-set decoration designer for the current season is Brad Williams who is with the company for the fourth year. Williams is also an accomplished puppeteer.

Williams' job entails designing set units to change and alter the appearance of the permanent set so it suits each play being performed.

"A major consideration is the mobility of each unit," Williams notes. "They have to be able to be taken on and off stage quickly. Every night after a performance we convert the stage into the next show and its particular design."

Williams' experience and education is varied and extensive. A Hope College graduate in art, his interests always have pulled him to the theatre. While a student he did mostly acting and technical work. After graduation he went to New York as an assistant designer at Henry Street Theatre.

In 1971 he came into contact with Burr Tillstrom, creator of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie Show. Williams became an assistant for Tillstrom when a retrospective show was put together, recounting the years of the Kuklapolitan Players. This show, a part of the Hope Summer theatre's 1973 season, traveled to the National Puppetry Festival and later to Chicago and the Goodman Theatre.

More recently Williams has been puppeteer with Don Batjes in Grand Rapids, designing and constructing puppets. Now his own creations and show, The Punch and Judy Show, can be seen occasionally at the Saugatuck Flea Market or upon demand.

His puppetry skills are also exhibited during intermission of the nightly Hope productions. Further education is in sight when in the fall he plans to attend the University of Connecticut working on a master of fine arts degree in puppetry.

Certain each night for the Hope Summer Repertory Theatre is 8:30 p.m. Reservations may be made between 10 a.m. and 11 p.m.

Red Barn's 'Sleuth,' Electrifying Theatre

By Helen Wright

Overworked words such as "tour de force" assume new meaning in "Sleuth," the latest Red Barn offering that opened Tuesday and will continue through Saturday.

Selected by Red Barn patrons as the play they would most like to see, it opened to a quite thin audience, which must have been disappointing for Ted Kistler and both Don Bonevich and Michael Page, for whom the production is obviously a labor of love.

"Sleuth" is an actor's delight, but the direction and setting are vastly important, and Kistler, who seems to have hit his stride in the current season, provides a proper mix of Gothic pretension and shabby comfort that fits the role of thriller-author Andrew Wyke, in whose English country house the action takes place.

The plot is simple, but the ending is so surprising that any hint is unfair to those who have not seen the play. Suffice it to say, that it involves the conflict between two men over a woman on the simplest level, but in reality is the clash of two overweening male egos.

Bonevich turns in one of his best Red Barn performances in a role that could easily get out of hand with less sure direction than Kistler provides. Michael Page, seen only in supporting roles so far this season, fulfills the promise of his shorter appearances.

"Sleuth" is a rattling good story, with lines that crackle and outrageous humor. Bonevich and Page hurl the brilliant lines at each other, each peeling from himself the layers of civilization down to the savage, classical confrontation. They deserve a packed house for their electrical theatricals.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

Physics Department At Hope Receives $12,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded the Hope College physics department a $12,000 grant to help equip the laboratory for a new course in process control utilizing microcomputers. The NSF funds will enable the department to purchase the main items needed to establish the course.

"Recent advances in microelectronics have allowed complete computers to be contained in only a handful of components," according to Dr. James van Putten, physics department chairman. "Along with the size reduction has come a similar cost reduction. It is now feasible for each process to have its own dedicated computer. Because these computers are controlled by programs rather than wiring, it is easy to modify their control routines, to fit changing process needs."

Already microcomputers are being used in scientific, industrial, and consumer applications. Simple versions are the heart of the programmable, hand calculators seen everywhere. In consumer applications, they are found in electronic games, automatic television controllers, and in some kitchen appliances. They are used industrially in machine controllers, traffic light systems, data terminals, printers, and medical instrumentation. The reason for their popularity is that they can replace more complicated systems and their mode of operation can be changed easily to follow changes or improvements in the products or processes they control.

Hope College has the distinction of being one of the few undergraduate schools in the country where microcomputer process control is being taught. This course will mark the first time that process control with microcomputers will be taught in this area of Michigan. In the program, students apply the theory of process control by constructing microcomputer systems, programming the computers, and controlling actual processes. The course is designed to fit the needs of science and engineering students.

INELEGANT ENDING

The Apollo Mission that has just returned to earth is the last of the series. No more space attempts of that sort will be made until the space shuttle begins some years in the future.

So we have come to the end of an era, and we always like endings to be spectacular and memorable. This one was not, just as the endings of all space missions have a way of seeming primitive and somewhat messy compared to the efficiency and sophistication of the take-off and the flight.

Scientists refer to this efficiency and sophistication as elegance. They don't mean by that anything fancy or dressed up, but just clean and neat and doing what must be done in the simplest way. Many are amazed at the simplicity with which the huge payload was lifted off the launching pad and curved in a purposeful way toward its target. But the re-entries were always somewhat disappointing.
Instead of being firmly in control as in other phases of the flight, the astronauts were pretending much at the mercy of nature.

They had to employ a device as primitive as parachutes and when they were finally down they found that their module was not a very satisfactory boat. It was likely to splash down up-side-down, and this time it released gases that may prove harmful. There was always something, as the scientist would say, inelegant about the end of a flight.

When flights are resumed at the time of the establishment space shuttle return will be made to land rather than to the ocean and that should give the astronauts a degree of control they have lacked and make the return more elegant. So we have come to the end of a space era and the end of a return technique.
We assume that man's effort in space will not end here and that when it resumes it will have added another dimension of elegance.

Resources for Christian Living
Philippians 4:4-7;
Colossians 3:1-4, 12-17.
By C. P. Dame

Parents like to see their children grow. Our Heavenly Father is much pleased when His children grow physically, morally, intellectually and spiritually. God has made provisions and if we use the resources provided they will grow. Growth is possible.

I. Christians can always rejoice. Not all do. The man who wrote the lesson material was in prison at the time of writing. He sang in prison. What he told others to do, he did. He told believers to be forbearing, to stick to principles graciously. Seeing the Lord is ever near, don't be anxious about anything but by prayer and supplications make requests known with thanksgiving. When that is done then God's peace will be present.

People like to talk. Listening is hard for many. Often people who talk much think little. Paul summons us to think. And he gives us something to think about — things that are just, true, lovely, of good report, things that deserve praise — all worthwhile. These noble virtues they had seen in Paul's life. Today, dedicated believers seek to manifest these qualities in their lives.

II. By looking up to the heavenly we grow. Believers have been risen with Christ. Since Christ is in heaven believers should fix their minds upon heavenly things. To do this in a materialistic age is not easy. Doing the earthly, in a heavenly manner, requires help from above.

III. Christians have a two-fold duty. They must put off the sins of the flesh mentioned in verse 8. In addition they must put on the virtues cited in verses 13 and 14. Love binds all the virtues together in perfect harmony. When the word of Christ dwells in the heart, then it is expressed in teaching, admonishing one another and in song.

If we want to grow, we can, by the use of the resources at hand. Opportunities challenge us. What are we doing in order to grow? A nation lost a war. It had weapons but did not use them. The will to win was not there. Are we Christians growing in this so-called busy age?

Heart Attack Fatal To Sulky Driver At Ottawa County Fair

A tragedy took all the fun out of the final harness races Friday afternoon at the Ottawa County Fair, as sulky driver Bill Holmes of Holland died of an apparent heart attack after driving in three of the first five heats.

Holmes, 51, collapsed walking behind the grandstand at the intermission and was quickly rushed to Holland Hospital by Dykstra Ambulance Service.

Holmes, who worked for Holland Horse Equipment for the past 17 years died shortly after at Holland Hospital.

"It sure takes all the fun out of these races," said a sad Ken Raak, superintendent of speed. "Bill has driven here for many years and was a real fine driver."

Holmes finished third on Mardee Torpedo, was fourth on John Pathuis' Pride's Diller and came in 11th on Tarlo. Chuck Johnson of Holland replaced him in the sulky in the second heat.

After a brief wait, another ambulance arrived and the races continued.

Marmarg Pete took the first heat of the first division of the first race in 2:14.1 while Invader took the second heat in the same time.

Tinkering Tom, owned by C & R Howard of Marshall won the Highlander's Men's Wear trophy blanket by finishing first and second in the two heats of the second division. His winning time was 2:11.4.

Molly Tona, who came in seventh in the first heat, was first in the second in 2:11.0. Hank Ward of Kalamazoo was owner and driver of the six-year-old sire.

Stan Cimbal's French Star ran away with the third race for trotters and non-winners in 1974 with 2:10.2 and 2:10.4 clockings. Both times were the fastest ever for the brown sire. They were also the fastest recorded trotting times of the week.

Northgate Lumber sponsored the blanket for the third race. Kent City's P. Cavanaugh drove Marmarg Susan to the victory in both heats of the fourth race for trotters with times of 2:17.3 and 2:15.4.

NOSE Tips By Leo Martonosi

Loves Softball

Saving energy isn't Jean Mast's bag but when it comes to playing slow pitch softball, that's another story.

Miss Mast, a 1955 Holland High and 1965 Hope College graduate, doesn't care how far she has to drive to play softball, as long as she plays.

President Ford doesn't like this but the major oil companies do, as the 37-year-old Mast has put on the average of 160 miles round trip to play softball for Overland Equipment each Thursday night.

The former Hamilton coach and teacher, now makes her home in upper Silver Lake. She is community education director at Shelby Public Schools.

"I would have probably played for a team closer to my home but when I moved there, most of the positions had been taken," said Mast. "And I jumped at the opportunity to play with my sister Sherry Beckman and Overland."

The Holland native was in charge of a recreation program in Denver during the summer of 1965 and for the following two years she taught on an Indian reservation and was active in the mission church. She spent the summer of 1973 working in Muthambi Girls Secondary School in Meru, Kenya, East Africa and while there helped with their track program.

Jeanie moved to Silver Lake after completing her teaching duties at Northwestern College in Orange City, Iowa where she coached basketball, softball, volleyball, track and field hockey.

In a recent scrimmage game against Burger King, Miss Mast played against Carol Braaksma, one of her students at Northwestern.

"That was a different kind of experience," she stated.

She feels that track is a fantastic sport, especially in Kenya, where there is little transportation except by running or walking. While there, she met Kip Keino, the internationally famous track star.

The ex-Vandenberg Buick and Sun-Glo rightfielder, is one of the big reasons that Overland Equipment is the only undefeated women's softball team in Holland.

While the price of gasoline might force Jean Mast from playing next year in Holland, you can be sure that she'll be playing some where. She's just too good a ball player not to be.
