Locals

Al Tanner of Macatawa Park has received a shipment of 10,000 "warmouth" bass and has planted them in the Black Lake fishing grounds.

The Holland Furnace company have been putting in hot air furnaces this week, in the houses of W. E. Stedman and W. J. Hutchinson. Mr. Hutchinson is also putting up a new windmill, with sixty-foot derrick—Fennville Herald.

While clinging to the steps of a Pere Marquette excursion train from Hammond, Ind., and searching the crowd for his brother who lives here, Wilbur Stoltz, 17 years old of Hammond, was struck by a switch arm and hurled from the train. He was badly bruised.

A farewell party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arie Hoogendorp of Zeeland in honor of the departure of the Missionaries Josephine and Sarella TeWinkel of Muskatine, Iowa, Rev. B. Rottschaefer and Miss Margaret Rottschaefer of this city, and Rev. and Mrs. G. Huizenga of Zeeland who are all bound for India.

While singing at Hope church Sunday morning Oscar Erickson, leader of the Chicago Glee club, bolted from the church after he had sung only a few bars and has not been seen since. It was learned later that Erickson burst a small blood vessel while singing which necessitated his hasty exit from the church.

Henry Brinkert jumped a board bill of $8 last week and left for Osego, having told his land lady that she could collect the money on pay day at the West Michigan Furniture factory where he had money coming. However he had only $1.50 coming there, and through the efforts of Chief of Police Kamferbeek the man was located. He settled the case out of court.

Because he slapped Melva Hunt, a girl working at King's basket factory, Hessel Jangma, another employe, was fined $4 by Justice Miles and lost his job in the factory. Jangma is a middle aged man and had been goaded to the act by having been made the butt of some of the girls' tricks. He happened to slap the wrong girl however and so was haled into court.

Castle Park on Kelley Lake has had a number of new cottages and summer home built this season. Judge Kirby of Jacksonville, Ill., is building a very fine cottage on Ridgway near the shore just west of the Castle. Another very large and commodious summer home is being built by Grand Rapids parties on a very high elevation at the entrance to Castle Park that will have an extended view of Lake Michigan.

Thus far the Crosby line has been unsuccessful in its attempt to have the name of the steamer Naomi changed to E. G. Crosby. An act of congress would be necessary, and the law says that the boat must be in a seaworthy condition before the name can be changed. The steamer is being rebuilt at Manitowoc. The Naomi is the steamer that burned to the waters edge off Grand Haven and on which six men were burned in the hole.

The engagement is announced of Louis H. Oosterhous of Grand Haven and Miss Adeline Jessie Rosenberg of Ravenswood, Chicago, the marriage to take place at a date not yet announced. Both young people are very well known in Grand Haven, where they have many friends and acquaintances. Miss Rosenberg having spent a portion of a number of summers in Grand Haven. Mr. Oosterhous who is at present city attorney for Grand Haven, is a young man with a very promising legal career ahead of him.

On complaint of the neighbors Bartje, Bill and Case Harkema appeared before Justice Miles Monday morning charged with unduly disturbing the peace as a result of constant domestic disputes at their home in this city. Without any ado Justice Miles handed Case a 30 days' sentence at the county jail since only a short time ago Justice Vander Meulen had released him on suspended sentence. Bartje Harkema insisted on a trial which will be given her next Tuesday. Only a short time ago the same family appeared in court for similar reasons, and they are in very bad repute among their neighbors, who allege that the bath Case will receive at the county jail will be the first one for years.

Cornelius Yskes appeared before Justice Miles Tuesday on a warrant sworn out by his wife charging him with habitual drunkenness. Yskes appeared several times before on the same charge. He pleaded guilty and was released on suspended sentence until Aug. 21 when he will appear before the court again.

Prof. and Mrs. Frank B. Meyer and two children left Tuesday for Bethany, W. Virginia, where they will make their future home. Prof. Meyer has secured a position as teacher of Latin and Greek in the college there. They have made many warm friends during their years' residence here who regret their departure.

Chas. Hubbard, the bicycle man of this city and Chas. Baxter of Grand Rapids were arrested Monday night by Chief of Police Kamferbeek for speeding their motor cycles on 8th street. Baxter was on his way to Indianapolis to attend the motor cycle races and will appear for trial later. Hubbard appeared before Justice VanderMeulen Tuesday and paid a $6 fine.

The great annual outing of the Story & Clark Piano Co. will be held Saturday at Jenison park. The trip down the lake to Holland will be made on the steamer Nyack and every arrangement for the day has been made by the various committees whose members have been working like niggers to have everything ready when the great day arrives.

The engagement is announced of Mrs. Henrietta Z. TeKolste, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Jas. F. Zwemer of this city to Rev. Wm. A. Worthington of McKee, Ky. Mrs. TeKolste is a graduate of Hope college and formerly taught in the Cedar Grove, Wis., academy. For the past few years she has labored in the mission at McKee, Ky., where she met Rev. Worthington. The marriage will take place during the coming winter.

The Holland Gas Co. has decided to make an increase in its discount rate of from 5 to 10 per cent. In the future a cash discount of 10 per cent will be given although the price charged per thousand cubic feet remains $1. This reduction is in accordance with the terms of the company's franchise and puts the consumers of gas on the "90 cent" basis, thus giving them gas as cheaply as the patrons of gas companies in large cities receive it. The company's business has increased greatly since it was started here, and as soon as the success of the new discount basis shall have been established, it is planned to put in a number of extensions in the district south of 18th street.

With his successors safely established in their positions as city clerk and clerk of the board of public works, Wm. O. Van Eyck is taking the first extended vacation trip of years, and with his brother, M. Van Eyck has already left on a tour of the West. The former clerk has been planning to take this trip for years, but the opportunity for it has been long delayed, so he is now taking two months' whirl over the Western country. Kansas City, Denver, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and Arizona will be visited on the way out to Southern California and then the brothers will journey northward to La Grand, Oregon where their sister resides. Returning the trip will be by way of Seattle.

Saturday afternoon Tony Van Ry, E. J. TeKoller and Mr. Bosch will go on a junket to Muskegon to inspect the Tarvia paving used on Market st. there. This committee was chosen Monday evening by the residents along 18th street when they held a meeting in the council rooms to consider the best way of paving 18th street. Mayor Bruss presided over the meeting and most of the 18th street residents as well as many of the council members were there. G. A. Nettleton, a crushed stone expert, was present to answer all questions. The gist of the meeting was that inasmuch as gravel and not the best kind either, is almost extinct here and that it will cost as much if not more than crushed stone, after being hauled in from Grandville, crushed stone would be the most logical material. As Tarvia Macadam means crushed stone treated with a sort of tar mixture, which makes a nice smooth, quiet surface, acts as a binder in holding the rolled stone together in a solid mass and costs very little in comparison to other good pavements, it looks as if this sort would be given a try out on 18th street.

Hope Church Calls Pastor

At a congregational meeting of Hope church last night it was decided to extend a call to the Rev. Louis Vandenberg, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Brooklyn, N. Y. The church has for some time been seriously considering the choice of a new minister and the decision of last night was the result of mature consideration.

Rev. Vandenberg is well known in Holland and has preached in Hope church several times. He is the son-in-law of E. Vaupell of this city.

Bad Luck in Their New Home

Word has been received here by relatives and friends that the family of Jacob Van den Bosch of Carlyle, Arkansas, has been pursued by bad luck in their new home. They were just through with harvesting a good crop from their big farm when the barn in which the entire year's crop had been stored was destroyed by fire. The Vandenberg family left for Arkansas last fall and this was the first crop they had raised on their new farm.

Mr. Vandenberg was formerly a prominent business man of Zeeland, having for many years been manager of the Vandenberg Grocery and Dry Goods Co. Mrs. Vandenberg is a sister of Mrs. L. Mulder of this city.

Electric Arches for Eighth Street

A little patriotic effort on the part of the merchants along Eighth street and Holland will be the best lighted small city in Michigan. Will Orr is putting in 24 hours a day to make the proposition a success. It is proposed to light up Eighth street from River to College avenue with arches like River street has now. There are 106 stores and offices in those two blocks and if all went into it the lights could be obtained at a cost of about $12 to each man. It is proposed to put in 12 arches, separated at a distance of a hundred feet from each other, and a paltry $12 would secure the arches and pay for the lights for a whole year.

If the lights were installed the city would doubtless put in a short circuit system for their arc lights along those two streets, because when the arches are lit up the arc lights would be unnecessary, and the saving thus obtained could be deducted from the cost of the light.

There is very little doubt that Mr. Orr's efforts will prove successful and that the lights will be put in. But the cost will perhaps be a couple dollars more than if every one interested contributed to it. Some do not see the value of the project and refuse to subscribe to it, but those are very few. Mr. Orr has already secured the promises of many of the most influential men along the street and every day is adding many new names to the list. The lights would so palpably be a benefit to every store along the street that it seems hard to understand how anyone can fail to realize it. The merchants' show windows would double in value in the evening, and the thousands of strangers that pass through this city every month on the Interurban cars from Grand Rapids to the Chicago boat could never forget the city of resplendent light. It would be a valuable advertisement all the year round.

So when Will Orr calls at your store give him the glad hand. He is doing an unselfish work purely for the good of the city.

A new schedule has been arranged by which the Holland-Saugatuck run will get the hour service. By direct cars from Holland to Saugatuck and by making connections with the Macatawa Saugatuck cars it will be possible to go to Saugatuck every hour as well as leave the river resort every hour. The last car will leave Saugatuck at 11:30 p. m. to give those who wish take advantage of the dancing at the big pavilion a chance to get home.

Hotel Macatawa to be Enlarged

People interested in Macatawa Park and its progress will be pleased to learn that Hotel Macatawa is to be enlarged. The experience of this season has plainly demonstrated that the demand for hotel accommodations is greater than the management can very well supply in their present quarters. The business has grown so fast that the park management has determined to keep up with it.

"The capacity of the hotel will be nearly doubled," said S. A. Miller of the park association, yesterday. "An addition will be built on the west side of the present hotel which will put nearly as many more rooms at our command as we have now. We have repeatedly been compelled to turn away would be guests but expect to be in a position next season to take care of them all. All arrangements have not yet been made," he added, "but there is no doubt whatever that the hotel's capacity will be greatly increased. Circumstances demand it."

The Mystery of VanOort, the Plumber

For the past few days the friends and acquaintances of J. B. VanOort, the Central avenue plumber, have had a lurking suspicion that something unusual had happened to him. There was a new brightness to his smile and he said his good mornings with an added zest. And finally the mystery is explained, for such mysteries, like murder, will out, in spite of all precautions. Mr. VanOort has taken unto himself a wife, and the allotted time for the honeymoon had passed by before his friends were aware of it.

The happy bride is Maggie Zwiehart of Chicago and the knot was tied in Chicago as far back as the 27th of July. Keeping this matter a secret for so long is a feat which few couples in this city or elsewhere, young or old, could duplicate. Mrs. VanOort has taken charge of the plumber's home on Central avenue and the air of mystery did not prevent the family from pursuing the even tenor of their way.

Alpena Restaurant to Move

Arrangements have been completed by which Anthony Romeyn, proprietor and manager of the Alpena Restaurant on North River street, will move his stock and fixtures into the vacant store on Eighth street just east of the Nies hardware store. The moving is being done today, and before the end of the week Mr. Romeyn expects to be in a position to wait on his numerous customers at his new stand.

The change has been under consideration for some time past. Since the Alpena was started up some two years ago in the River street quarters the business has been steadily increasing, and the River street store became too small to adequately take care of all the patrons of the restaurant. The new place of business is roomy and an ideal location for a restaurant.

When J. C. Waffle last September murdered his sister, Mrs. M. Gilmore and then turned the revolver upon himself and ended his own life it was thought that he had no funds. Now his brother, Curtis Waffle has discovered that a supposedly worthless piece of paper found in a tin tobacco box on the body of his brother is a certificate for 250 shares of a gold mine in Canada worth at the present $1 per share. The stock is of a company operating the "Lucky Boy" claim in Northern Canada and sold originally for about 10 cents a share. Now the stock is worth nearly a dollar and is rapidly advancing and bids fair like many other similar mining deals to advance to a very high figure. The stock as the dead man's property is being probated and will shortly belong to Curtis Waffle, legally.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Holland Citizen

Is your back lame and painful? Does it ache especially after exertion? Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms indicate weak kidneys.

There is danger in delay. Weak kidneys fast get weaker. Give your trouble prompt attention.

Doan's Kidney Pills act quickly. They strengthen weak kidneys. Read this Holland testimony.

Mrs. E. S. Strong, 249 Lincoln Ave., Holland Mich., says: About four years ago I suffered a great deal from kidney trouble. My back was very lame, there were pains through my kidney and I was subject to attacks of dizziness. The kidney secretions also passed irregularly. While in this condition a friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I began their use. In a few days the pain and lameness in my back had disappeared and it was not long before the kidney secretions became natural. I have had no return of kidney trouble since.

WINS OR LOSES A PATIENT.

Little God of Love is Responsible for Variations in the Income of a Dentist.

Cupid has more to do with making the dentist's income an uncertain and variable quantity than any other single influence. A dentist who from the girlhood of Gladys Vanderbilt yearly received fat fees for keeping her teeth in order remarked recently with regret at the loss of this source of revenue after she became Countess Szechenyi.

"A dentist never knows," he added, "when marriage is going to rob him of one of his most profitable patients. I am proud that it has been my experience that persons who have come to me to have their work done always come back again if their teeth need attention—until Cupid comes in to upset my calculations."

"Whenever I hear of one of my patients planning a wedding I know that I am going to lose a patient or win a new one. The bride and bridegroom almost invariably go to the same dentist. From my standpoint it's a case of lose one or win both."

The element of uncertainty that such a condition provides makes the poor dentist uneasy at times about the size of future incomes.—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

DOG THAT TOLLS FOG BELL.

Intelligent Animal is Invaluable Assistant to Keeper of Isolated Light Station.

Off the shores of Alaska, on a small, rocky island, is a little light station, connected with which is a fog bell. During the continuance of dense fogs, which frequently prevail, the bell is used to warn vessels of the danger of approaching too near the island and coast.

The lightkeeper has a large and very intelligent shepherd dog that answers to the name of Don Carlos. This dog has been trained to toll the fog bell when the weather is very heavy. So well trained is Don Carlos that, when the fog comes rolling in, he rushes, unbidden by the keeper, to the bell and begins to tug at the rope and to sound the alarm.

Don Carlos often takes his turn at the bell during the night when the keeper is busy looking after the light.

"I do not see how I could get along without Don Carlos," the keeper declares. "I am all alone and have no other assistant; but I can always rely implicitly on my dog. He knows his duty and faithfully performs it, whether told to do so or not."

Our Real Leisure Class.

Does any one think longingly of our harried and driven rich as the "leisure class"? Far from it are they. Dashing hither and yon from dawn to dawn every day in the year, at the call of emulation, none has less leisure than they. To see the real leisure classes of America visit Central park. There, on the benches and on the grass, you will see them—nurses, sitting perfectly idle for hours while baby sleeps in his cab or frolics on the grass; grandma or grandpa keeping idle guard over the third, or even the fourth generation, and a miscellaneous collection of bums, stretched out wherever they can be most comfortable and caring not a whit that the world moves so long as they do not have to. They understand the real thing in leisure.—New York Press.

The Fox Who Had Lost His Tail.

A fox caught in a trap escaped with the loss of his brush. Thereafter feeling his life a burden through the ridicule to which he was exposed, he schemed to bring all other foxes into like condition with himself, that in the common loss he might better conceal his own deprivations. He assembled a good many foxes and publicly advised them to cut off their tails, saying they would not only look much better without them, but would get rid of the weight of the brush, which was a very great inconvenience. But one of them interrupting him said: "If you had not yourself lost your tail, my friend, you would not thus counsel us."—Aesop's Fables.

Strength of Early Impressions.

Grown people have in general a very inadequate idea of the susceptibility of little children. As a little tree is easily warped from its true shape, so is the heart and the mind of a little child.

Said Froebel: "If I pierce the young leaf of the shoot of a plant with the finest needle, the prick forms a knot which grows with the leaf, becomes harder and harder, and prevents it from obtaining its perfectly complete form." Something similar takes place after wounds which touch the tender germ of the human soul. It would have been far different with humanity if every individual in it had been protected at that tender age."

Decaying Newspaper Files.

Newspaper files are giving librarians no little anxiety. For the last two decades or so the daily journals have all been printed on wood-pulp paper, which is not of durable quality. In course of time the files become as brittle as dry, thin pine shavings. It is suggested by some students and librarians that the greater journals, at least, print a few copies daily, after their regular editions are "run off," on paper of the old-fashioned, everlasting sort, enough to insure the permanency of their own files, and supplying other copies to the libraries of their home cities.

The Secret of Long Life

A French scientist has discovered one secret of long life. His method deals with the blood. But long ago millions of Americans had proved Electric Bitters prolongs life and makes it worth living. It purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, rebuilds wasted nerve cells, imparts life and tone to the entire system. It's a godsend to weak, sick and debilitated people. "Kidney trouble had blighted my life for months," writes W. M. Sherman, of Cushing, Me. "but Electric Bitters cured me entirely." Only 50c at Walsh Drug Co.'s store.

JUST A MATTER OF INQUIRY.

Why Should People Entertain or Be Entertained When It Gives Them No Pleasure?

"In a periodical the other day," says the amateur philosopher of the Providence Tribune, "I ran across a picture of what had evidently been a musical entertainment or musicale—I took it to have been a musicale for choice."

"The fiddlers had gone and so had the soloist or soloists and guests. There remained in the foreground the deserted room and a waste of empty chairs, along with the open grand piano."

"The host's head was resting on his arms on a table; the hostess had removed her shoes and was on the verge of collapse. In the background a butler was looking on commiseratingly."

"Now, there's a good deal of that sort of thing first and last the country over. It was true to life, but I never could understand it. That is, nobody has ever explained to me why people who don't enjoy entertaining or being entertained persist in making martyrs of themselves; why anybody does something for pleasure that invariably gives pain?"

"A person who puts himself out and wears himself out in the line of duty is comprehensible, but why you should sacrifice yourself when you're pretending to be looking for fun is beyond me."

"The woman who said that her idea of a perfect life from the social point of view would be to be asked everywhere and to go nowhere: doubtless expressed the sentiment of thousands, but why go anywhere if you feel that way?"

FACTS ABOUT MOTHER EARTH.

Points of Interest Concerning This Wonderful Globe, as Vouched for by Scientists.

Our dear old earth which seems immovable and solid as we go about our daily work or travel over its furrowed surface, is yet spinning, and rolling, and swaying in complex but orderly motion. Its axial rotation gives us day and night. Its circuit round the sun brings the seasons and the year. The circling of the poles produces the procession of the equinoxes. The planets perturb in its courses. The plain of its orbit sways up and down, and its perihelion is slowly shifted. The moon swings it around a center of gravity common to both, while the sun and all our system speeds onward to some far distant goal. And if the bright star in the Taurus is the central point round which this vast orbit sweeps then Alcyona is the center of the universe for us.

As far as astronomers can judge this motion through the vast abyss of interstellar space is at the rate of about a million miles a day, and it is in the direction of the constellation Hercules. The motion through space is believed to be away from Argus and toward Hercules. Some have thought that Alcyona in the Pleiades is somewhere near the center of the vast circuit swept over by the sun and his attendant worlds. If this is true, that beautiful star as it silently twinkles in the constellation Taurus becomes of surpassing interest to mankind.

Wood Chopping as a Sport.

In Tasmania is to be found a national pastime that is special and particular to that state alone—the sport of wood chopping. At Hobart and Launceston they have their turf meetings, their cricket, football, golf, cycling, and so forth, but to a wood-chopping contest people will flock from far and near—men, women and children—and watch the ax wielders hewing away at huge blocks of timber as if life and reputation depended upon the issue. Thud, thud, thud go the axes, and the splinters fly in all directions, the judges calmly sitting near taking note of the strokes, the spectators cheering the competitors from time to time as frantically as if they were race horses. To be a wood-chopping champion means something to a man in Tasmania.

Crowding the Scenery.

The late Elinor Macartney Lane, the novelist, used to tell a story to illustrate the conviction she cherished that a superfluous detail in a story is a blemish and a disappointment.

"Up in Gloucester one summer," said Mrs. Lane, "I remember the eternal amateur sat on the beach and produced a picture which included sea, sky, rocks, boats, wagons and people for a great artist to criticize. The latter looked at it a minute and then said quietly: 'Why didn't you put in the city of Chicago?'"

"I think most of us in our work to-day," Mrs. Lane concluded, "try to put in the city of Chicago."

Ireland's King Record.

When Ireland was in the king business it made a record which all the rest of the world can't beat. From 4 A. D. down until the English began their tricks Ireland had 76 kings, and out of the lot only six died in bed. Sixteen were killed in battle, seven were slain by their successors, six fell by plain assassination, three were killed by thunderbolt, two died of plague, four entered monasteries, two were drowned, one died of grief, two were dethroned and one was choked by a fishbone.

The Price of Brains

At the last council meeting the mayor and one of the aldermen championed the cause of the working man, the one calling his plea "A square deal for the laboring man" and the other "Why don't they raise the man who shovels the coal?" We have the greatest respect for the opinions of the mayor and the alderman in question, and believe that they champion the cause of the working man from the very best motives. But we believe that such a statement as "Why don't they raise the man who shovels the coal if there is any raising to be done?" fails to take into account certain economic principles which ought not to be disregarded either by a city or a community. And one of these principles is that usually the well paid employee is the cheapest. You can depend on it that the great corporations of this country are run on a basis of strict economy, in fact economy is one of the chief reasons why various interests combine into corporations and trusts. But they recognize this principle of the cheapness of the high salaried man. One corporation pays a lawyer a $100,000 fee annually, merely as a retainer's fee and results show that he is worth every cent of it. The great Hearst Newspaper Corporation paid Arthur Brisbane a salary of $50,000, and yet he did not do as much actual editorial work perhaps as an editor in a small town working at $15.00 a week. What was this large salary paid for? For brains.

Likewise in our city affairs the city must pay for brains. It is cheaper to pay a man, who in the words of the adage "can make two blades of grass to grow where one grew before" $1500, for example, than to pay a man who grows only one blade $1000. The man who habitually wishes to economize would cry "Employ the cheaper man; it will save us $500," not recognizing the fact that instead of a saving, it would be an exact loss of $500. It pays for this city to employ the very best men and the very best cannot be retained long at small salaries. Other cities are constantly competing for their skill and brain.

But to come back to the council member's implied comparison between raising the working man and the salaried city employee. The News heartily endorses the sentiment that the workingman should receive greater remuneration for his work—not only the city employee but every workingman in the factory or on the street. They should be given a "square deal" in the fullest sense of that phrase. But just because the workingmen who work with their hands are not paid enough is no reason for curtailing the salaries of the workingmen who work with their brains. It is hardly fair to compare the salary of a man who has spent perhaps ten of the best years of his life in acquiring a technical education at great expense, with the laborer who dropped out of school in the fifth or sixth grade to become a wage earner. Efficiency and technical skill and education in every sense of that word are just as truly marketable commodities as the work of the day laborer. The disastrous results attending the failure to recognize this economic principle is seen in the profession of the gospel ministry. Authorities claim that so very few young men enter this profession because a large percentage of ministers are paid starving salaries. Anybody knows that is a great deal cheaper even in dollars and cents for many a community to pay a good salary than to let their morality go to smash.

The News does not wish to criticize the action of the council in the reduction of the salary of the city electrician. It does not know the circumstances well enough to decide whether the reduction was warranted or not. But we believe that the general principle we stated is sound and that the truest economy demands that the city pay good salaries. Incidentally we think that the chances are that in the individual case cited the council failed to recognize this economic principle.

The Company that Does Things

Many of the state papers have commented on our Venetian Night display. Some of them had special representatives on the spot, and all agree that it was a scene of marvelous beauty. As a matter of fact the firework display was so beautiful that the stock newspaper phrase "the best ever" can be applied to it without any mental reservations. The Venetian Night has become an event of greater value to this city than any event given during the season. The favorable advertising it gives Holland and its resorts is but a small item in the list of advantages that could be enumerated.

Some object perhaps that events of this kind have become commercialized, that they are given for the money there is in it for the interests that promote them. Of course, they are given for the money there is in them; no one will dispute that. But that does not necessarily detract from the beauty. All art is commercialized to a larger or smaller degree. Does it take away from the pleasure you feel in seeing a picture when you know that the artist painted it for a price? Does it hurt your aesthetic sense when you hear that your favorite poem or book brought so much in dollars and cents? If it does you will have to eschew all art and forget that you have a sense of the beautiful.

For a display like that of Venetian Night we are indebted largely to the enterprise of certain concerns. They have given a vast amount of energy to it, and why should we not pay for that? In fact if it were not for just such concerns these things would be impossible. There would be no directing hand, and no way of financing them. Therefore Holland has every reason to be grateful to the Interurban Company and the other concerns for making Venetian Night possible. This company is run along business lines, of course, but few people appreciate what it means to Holland not only on occasions of this kind but on account of the splendid transportation service it furnishes us every day of the year. Only those who have struggled with the inadequate railroad service of the days before the advent of the Interurban fully understand what a boon it is to Holland.

The cotton and woolen schedules are looked upon more or less as a soft thing.

It is not the easiest thing in the world to convince a boy that work is good exercise.

John Vander Sluis would be content if he could catch a fish for each mosquito bite he receives.

Roanoke, Va., Aug. 7.—A young woman of this town reports the birth of a child which is growing wings instead of arms. A good suggestion for our angels flight.

Unlike the son of "Elijah" Dowie, who is the unkissed, Holland has a family that might be called the unkissed—Bartje, Willemteje and Cornelinsje.

However this isn't in it with Singler Erickson who sang in Hope church Sunday and turned out to be a blacksmith, as he sang a few bars and made a bolt for the door.

If this raises a question of veracity in your mind, settle with the editor of an independent paper in Kansas. He says that a Prohibition acquaintance of his who ran for office had a big stock of campaign literature left over and stored it in his barn, unmindful of the fact that he kept a number of cows there. They ate the literature and every last one of them went dry.

A judge recently asked a child witness, "Where do the liars go?" The child thought it was to a certain place, but others believe they go down to the assessor's office to return their personal taxes.

When we were at the state fair last year an auto did the lively stunt of dragging the race course before every race. This suggests the idea of setting the autos to work on the country roads and letting them pull the log drags. They can do the work quicker and better than a team. Might be a good idea to penalize some of these speeders by making them drag a stretch of road instead of paying a fine.

WHAT YOU SAW IN THIS PAPER 35 Years ago To-day.

On Sunday the woods of Messrs. Harrington & Knoll, near the banks of Pine Creek took fire, burning 500 cords of wood, 50 thousand feet of pine, hemlock and whitewashed logs and 700 railroad ties. The boys of Mr. Knoll had been to work hauling wood the day previous and no fire was to be seen in that neighborhood. It is supposed to have been incendiarism. The wood was chopped last winter and scattered over forty acres. There were about 800 cords piled up in that immediate vicinity, awaiting shipment. The locality is about one half a mile south of the College dock. Loss between $800 and $1,000.

WHAT YOU SAW 30 YEARS AGO

Mrs. J. Steketee died suddenly on Monday last, at her residence, of apoplexy. She was the mother of the members of the well known firm of P. & A. Steketee of this city, besides which she leaves five more sons and three daughters. She reached the advanced age of 67 years, and was one of the earliest settlers in the colony, and endured all the hardships of a pioneer life, besides raising a very large family. She was buried on Wednesday.

While Capt S. C. Mower, assistant United States engineer, was in town this week he showed us a sketch of a plan for a summer hotel to be built near the beach at Grand Haven. The building will be two stories high, with wide verandas all around the building. The plan contemplates a building of three hundred feet in length, proportionate width, etc., comfortable but not costly or gaudy—just what is wanted at a watering place. While speaking about the details of this plan, comprising grounds, bathing houses etc., the Captain said that at the mouth of Black Lake there was an opportunity as good as anywhere else, and the Captain's opinion ought to be correct by reason of his official position.

That the grounds, hills, valleys, ravines and fishing and bathing opportunities, at the mouth of Black Lake are beginning to loom up as something desirable for a pleasure resort, is beginning to stick out plain. The many excursions and private parties who camped out on the "wooded hills" will spread the news, you know, far and near. Some parties, whose names we are not permitted to use at present, have been to look over the grounds for the ostensible purpose of improving them and making them more convenient for picnics and such like. In connection with this we are informed that the principal owner of these lands is willing to put them in as stock with somebody who is willing and able to make the necessary improvements. This ball has started rolling and the quickest yankee here will get it. It is an admitted fact that a man with a capital of about $5,000 would have one of the most remunerative businesses, and at the same time as fine a one as there is in the State. Nature has done everything for it, and all it needs is the right man with the necessary funds.

This week a Cleveland and Hendricks reform club was organized in this city with about 80 members. The officers of the Club are: F. G. Churchill, President; K. Schaddelee, Chas. Scott, H. Walsh, R. Kantera, Jacob Van Putten, Sr., Hon. John Roost, Vice President; C. Verschure Recording Secretary; M. W. Rose Corresponding Sec'y; P. Boot, Treasurer. The club has taken rooms in the old store of J. W. Bosman, opposite the Post Office where they will keep campaign literature for all who desire to call and read. The room will be open every afternoon. A Cleveland and Hendricks banner has been put up in front of the store and it is the first that has been floated in the breeze in this city.

Two thousand and two dollars was the amount received from the sale of railroad tickets at this station during the month of July.

The Republicans of this city held a caucus in the City Hall on last Wednesday evening. The meeting was called to order by the chairman of the City Committee, E. J. Harrington and on motion P. H. McBride was elected Chairman and Geo. Van Duren, Secretary. The chairman stated that the object of the meeting was to elect delegates to the County convention, which was held in Grand Haven yesterday. The delegates elected were: In First Ward, W. H. Beach and Geo. Van Duren; Second Ward, M. Clark; Third Ward, J. C. Post, P. H. McBride and Dr. O. E. Yates; Fourth Ward, L. Mulder. A motion was made and carried that the meeting adjourn until next Wednesday evening at the store of Mr. L. Mulder on River street for the purpose of organizing a Blaine and Logan Club.

The first "professional" game of baseball played in this city this year, was contested at the college campus, between a "picked" nine of Holland boys and the Normal club, last week Saturday. The game was called at 2:30, with the Normals at bat. They succeeded in scoring four runs through rank errors on the part of Holland. For the first two innings Holland was put out in one, two, three order but after that they braced up and played ball for all there was in it and succeeded in winning the game by the following score:

Hendrik Van Eyk died Tuesday morning at the home of his daughter Mrs. Rev. A. Stegeman, North Holland at the age of 74 years. He was one of our early settlers, and for a series of years resided on his farm in Groningen, until he went west to Dakota, returning from there only a few years ago. Mr. Van Eyk was a well informed man. He was among the first Holland colonists that took an active and leading part in the administration of local affairs in Holland township, holding the positions of township treasurer, supervisor and justice, way back in the '50's. In 1864 he bought the De Holland er, and was its editor and publisher for four years. Mr. Van Eyk was an upright man and a true friend. On Thursday his remains were laid at rest in the Groningen cemetery besides those of his departed wife. The funeral address was delivered by Rev. F. J. Zwemer a former pastor of the deceased when both resided in Harrison South Dakota.

Coxey's army appears to be moving westward. As Marshal Van Ry was returning home from Grand Haven Thursday afternoon, he counted 8 "veterans" at Waverly station, 9 at "rattlesnake point," 5 at the depot and 4 at "the corner"—all of them staidbv's of Altgeld, condemning Cleveland's course in calling out troops and anxiously awaiting Pingree's next move.

WHAT YOU SAW 10 YEARS AGO

Miss Gertrude Postma and Prof. Williams D. Zoethout were married last Friday night at the residence of Mrs. H. VanDyke, Nineteenth street, mother of the bride, Rev. K. Van Goor officiating.

Mrs. John Scholten, living three miles south of this city committed suicide last Tuesday morning by taking paris green. She arose at six o'clock in the morning and soon after left the house and did not return. Her husband became alarmed at her long absence and instituted a search for his missing wife. About ten o'clock she was found lying near a stump in the field. Close beside her was a pail of paris green. Drs. Vanden Berg and Breukers of Graafschap, were summoned, but it was too late to render medical assistance as death had occurred some time previous to their arrival.

A large force of workmen are busily engaged in extending the Saugatuck and Douglas electric road. Every hour brings the road nearer the twin villages and by this time next week it will be possible to go direct to Saugatuck without transfering to the bus line.

Grief touched the hearts of many of the people of this city, when the news was circulated this forenoon that Will Lamoreaux died of consumption this morning at 9 o'clock, for Will was well known to nearly every resident of Holland and enjoyed the esteem and confidence of a large circle of friends.

Mr. Lamoreaux was born in Manlius, Mich., 32 years ago. At the age of three years with his parents he moved to Otsego and remained there 16 years. He came to Holland 13 years ago and resided here ever since. He was proprietor of the Hotel Holland barber shop the past three years and until about six months ago was able to attend to the business. Those who survive him are his wife and two children Ruth and Carl, his mother, Mrs. I. H. Lamoreaux and his sister Mrs. Frank Hadden. The funeral services will be held at the house at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Rev. Adam Clarke officiating.

New Library Catalogue

A new catalogue of the Public Library of this city has come from the press. It contains 188 pages and Miss Jennie Kanter, the librarian and her assistants have been hard at work on it for several months past. They have been perfecting the new card index system which is used in all the large libraries and the catalogue is meant to be a guide to patrons of the library who are not familiar with this system. It has never been used in this city before and so some may be unable to locate the book they desire immediately. However the new system is as simple as the proverbial "rolling off a log," when you once have the idea of it. In fact it is the most practical system that could be used in a library of any size at all. It is expected that with the aid of the new catalogue and the personal aid which the librarian is always ready to give to the patrons of the library, the public will soon be familiar with the new system.

According to the new catalogue non residents of this city can also draw books by complying with all the rules that govern the drawing of books by citizens, as well as paying a fee of 25 cents for a three months' card, in advance. Formerly the requirement was that the fee be paid semi-annually in advance. Another rule on which special emphasis is placed is Rule 10, in which provision is made for the payment of a 25 cent fine for books kept beyond a certain specified time, and the payment of an additional 25 cents in case the librarian finds it necessary to send a second notice. In the list of contagious diseases, the presence of which in any household bars any member from drawing books, is also included tuberculosis. By this provision a person from such a household undertaking to draw books from the library is by law guilty of a misdemeanor. Most of the other rules and regulations are the same as have been in force for several years.

The present library board is composed of Bastiaan Steketee, Prof. Henry Boers, Henry Geerlings and Miss Jennie R. Kanter, Librarian. Then new catalogue is the work of the Holland City News Presses.

Circuit Court Notes

Mike Bann, the holdup man, who attempted to hold up John McCarthy of Grand Rapids on the beach at Highland park, was sentenced by Judge Padgham to seven and a half to fifteen years in Marquette prison, with recommendation for a ten year sentence.

John Bauman of Reno, who was convicted of furnishing liquor to Kate Hoogerheide, a minor girl, was sentenced to 30 days in jail, with fine and costs amounting to $82. John Carrick, charged with larceny from a dwelling, got two and a half years at Ionia. Nettie Strevell drew four months in Detroit and John Harkins got six months in the same prison for illegal co-habitation.

Mike Bann and James Carrick are still in jail waiting to be taken to the prisons to which they have been sentenced. Both of these prisoners lay their trouble to booze and claim they were brought to the present situation by the red stuff. Prison life will not be new to Carrick, as he is said to have served time in both Marquette and Ionia prisons. As to this latest sentence Carrick says that it does not make a great deal of difference anyway as he will probably be dead before his term expires.

Bann who is taking his first trial at Michigan prison life says: "I'm a young man to be going for ten years when I ought to be earning money. I'm 23 years old now and I'll be pretty near an old man when I get out."

Bann while not on a high scale of intelligence, is beginning to appreciate what ten years in Marquette will mean for him. He is considered a dangerous man by the officers and it is believed best to keep him locked up for a while.

Cornelius Schimmer and John Dunnink who were fined $100 and costs or 90 days in jail by Justice Van Duren of Holland some time ago, appeared for sentence on appeal. Judge Padgham however, affirmed the justice court's decision and the fine remains the same.

The jury in the case against Geo. Lawrence of Holland township, charged with bastardy brought in a verdict of guilty as charged. Lawrence was accused by Belle Nichols, also of Holland township.

Circuit court is busy with the case of Dr. J. W. VandenBerg of Holland against Conrad Slagh. The case is an old one which was sent back from the supreme court on appeal. Dr. VandenBerg, it is alleged attended Slagh who had broken his arm and as Slagh claimed to be dissatisfied with the job, he refused to pay the doctor. The case was tried once before and the jury decided in favor of the doctor. The matter was taken to the supreme court and sent back for retrial. Diekema & Kollen represent Dr. VandenBerg and C. O. Smedley appears for Mr. Slagh. Expert testimony is being used on both sides and several physicians and surgeons are testifying in the case.

A Monologue

Our New Holland correspondent has sent us a monologue of a farmer looking forward to the delights of Home Coming Week. This clever bit of farm "dope" expresses the consensus of the opinion the farmers in the vicinity of Holland have formed of the big event.

"Whoa there Trixie. Well, well, John, I thought I had better stop a little while as it is some time since that I saw you last. Well I am glad you have come but if it makes no difference to you I had rather you come after the Fair is over at Holland. You see we are terribly busy and can not get a man to help us out; they all want to go to the Fair the Home Coming Week. We are all working over time so that we can go every day and evening. Yes everybody expects to go, walk or ride. Well I was in town last Saturday and I had a talk with Johnny the Rusk man, and if everything is true that he tells me then I expect to stay all week. And they tell me that Joe Brown expects to have Carrie Nation there and I can not miss that. They also tell me that Doc was to Detroit last week and had a talk with Jack Johnson and I want to shake hands with that fellow, and I also saw A. B. You all know him. You know he made a trip to Paris and if you hear him tell you what is going to happen that Home Coming Week it is enough to give you the chills. Well, I must go to work, and if you hear of any more things that are going to happen let me know by wireless. Well good bye, hope to see you at the Fair."

Farmer's Picnic August 25

The annual Farmer's Picnic and Big Barbicue will occur on Wednesday, August 25th at Jenison Park. Low excursion rates will be made from all points on the interurban line to Jenison Park for that day. The committees are working out the program for the day, which will start in the morning and run up until late at night. Each year has seen the Farmer's Picnic at Jenison Park more of an attraction. For this year in addition to the ball games and amusing contests, the big feature will be a big barbicue. Several large steers will be roasted whole on the picnic grounds. In addition there will be several sheep and other meats used. The roasting will begin the night before, so that when noon time comes every one will have an opportunity of being served. The committee will serve coffee to everyone without charge from 11:30 until 1:30. Every one is invited. The tables and seats are for the free use of the picnickers on that day.

The program will be long and varied. There will be free attractions, band concerts, many novel and amusing sports, base ball games and plenty of other excitement.

This will be the last big celebration at Jenison Park for the 1909 season, with the exception of Labor Day. Jenison Park has been greatly improved every year and this year is the greatest in its history.

Isaac Marsilje Weds

Surprises come thick and fast in the local marriage market. Isaac Marsilje the local real estate and insurance man formed the latest surprise by announcing yesterday his marriage last Monday to Miss Magdalene Van der Werp of Rochester, N. Y.

The wedding took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. William Swanker, 359 University Ave., Rochester, Rev. Dr. Halleck, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church, officiating and was witnessed by the father, a sister and a brother of the bride and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Marsilje of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Marsilje left on the afternoon train for this city where they will make their home. A little later they intend to take a short trip. This makes the third wedding in Mr. Marsilje's family during the year, a son being married in the early spring and the wedding of his youngest daughter taking place less than a month ago.

The Main Guy

Up in circuit court the other day in Grand Haven Judge Padgham was listening to the many applications for citizenship. The judge looked bored as one after another went through the routine of questions, under the examination of the government agent who was here for that purpose.

At last a man from Zeeland with a desire to discontinue his allegiance to Queen Wilhelmina and become a citizen of this glorious United States slipped up. The agent sounded him as to his general knowledge of the country which he was about to claim as his own soil, and the sounding did not promise well.

"Who is the president of the United States?" asked the agent. The applicant shook his head. More questions and the expression of hopelessness on the man's face as he each time shook his head, was pitiful.

The agent seemed a little impatient and the court looked bored, but suddenly out of the darkness came a great light to the uncomfortable man.

"Who makes the laws of this country?" asked the agent.

A bright smile flitted across the man's face. "Billie Smith!" he almost shouted. Then the darkness settled down again and there was a long series of helpless shakes of the head.

"What is the capital of Michigan?" asked the agent in a hum drum way.

"Don't know."

"Who is the governor of Michigan?"

For a moment there was a pause and then the great light came again and the applicant cried out in glee.

"Billie Smith."

And yet people wonder why William Alden never worried about his elections at the hands of the people—Grand Haven Tribune. The News would suggest that the G. R. Press copy same.

Candidate for Prosecuting Attorney

Louis H. Osterhouse has announced his candidacy for the republican nomination of prosecuting attorney. It is still a year away from nominating time but Mr. Osterhouse is not a gum shoe politician, in fact doesn't pretend to be a politician at all, and he wants his friends throughout the county to know that he is a candidate for the office and is asking it on his merits as a Republican worker and a lawyer. Mr. Osterhouse is self made in his profession. He has studied and worked hard the past several years and is today considered one of the best read, best posted and ablest young lawyers in Ottawa.—Grand Haven Tribune. The News heartily endorses this item in the Tribune, having known Mr. Osterhouse from boyhood up and having seen his struggles to gain the goal, as an able attorney.

Tears were Unavailing in Court

The jury in the circuit court Friday brought in a verdict of guilty against John Bauman of Reno, charged with furnishing liquor to Katie Hoogerheide, a minor girl. The girl was the principal witness for the prosecution. She testified that last May Bauman had given her a glass of beer and she had drank about half of it. The defendant and his sister were present in court yesterday, and Bauman's sister testified in his behalf.

During his argument Prosecuting Attorney Coburn called attention to Miss Bauman in not the gentlest of terms and the girl dropped her head in her arms and burst out crying while the prosecutor dryly remarked, "sympathy dodge."

The next case called was that of the people vs. John Harkins and Nettie Strevel, for lewd and lascivious co-habitation. Geo. A. Farr, Jr., appeared for the defendants. The case was stubbornly fought on every point. They were found guilty by the jury in the afternoon after being out a few minutes.

OF UNCERTAIN MIND.

By MARY T. ELLIOTT.

[Copyright, 1902, by American Press Association.]

Mme. Tourget and her daughter Cecile were eating supper in their pretty cottage when there came a knock at the front door.

"Cecile," said the mother, "go and see who is there."

Cecile opened the door and revealed the figure of a stranger standing with his back to the cottage. The girl waited for him to turn, but since he did not she coughed to attract his attention. This failing, she said, "Monsieur, what can I do for you?" Since he still paid no attention to her, thinking him to be deaf, she touched him on the shoulder. Then he turned and looked her in the face. He was of small stature, and his countenance was intellectual. He looked at the girl with a puzzled expression, but did not speak. The girl repeated her question.

"I don't know," said the stranger at last.

"Well, come in. It is beginning to rain."

He entered the house and sat down by the fireplace, peering into the fire as one in a dream.

Mme. Tourget looked at him impatiently and was about to say something irritable when Cecile threw her a deprecatory glance. Then the latter said to the stranger:

"Have you supper, monsieur?"

The man, as if awakened from a dream, glanced up at her, smiled faintly—the girl thought it a very pleasant smile—turned his big eyes upon the supper, arose and took a seat by the table. Cecile served him, and he ate with the same preoccupied or, rather, somnabulistic air he had maintained since his arrival. When he had finished Mme. Tourget questioned him.

"From where do you come?"

"I started from B. this morning."

"From B? On foot?"

"Yes. No, I believe I had a horse."

"You believe you had a horse?"

A puzzled look passed over the stranger's face. Then he arose and, going to the fireside, fell into the same dreamy condition as before. Cecile, beckoning her mother to follow her, left the room.

"I wonder if he is ill or"—the girl began.

"He is either a mental imbecile or is shamming in order to secure food and lodging. He may stay till morning, but no longer. We are too poor to take care of mental wrecks."

"He is no impostor, mamma. I am sure of that. Nor was he born mentally weak. We must keep him till we can find out who he is and can turn him over to his friends."

During the evening the mother sat by a table knitting, the stranger on one side of the fire, Cecile on the other. Now and again he would turn his glance from the flames and look at Cecile, who, by the way, was very comely. At 9 o'clock Mme. Tourget asked him if he would like to go to bed. "Not yet," was his reply. "I'm thinking and haven't got through."

Cecile gave her mother a glance that she would look after the poor man, and Mme. Tourget went to bed. The stranger sat for an hour peering into the fire, occasionally stirring the coals with a poker. Then suddenly he seemed to return to a normal condition. Cecile noticed the change and expected an explanation. Turning to her, he said:

"You're a nice girl. Would you like to marry me?"

Up to this time Cecile had hoped that after all the stranger might be of a healthy mental condition. Now she gave that up. He must certainly be insane. She realized the necessity of getting him to bed quietly. To humor him she said:

"I will consider your proposition and give you an answer in the morning—that is, if you will go to bed."

She arose, the stranger followed her, and she conducted him to his room.

The next morning Cecile, looking from her bedroom window, saw the stranger walking in the yard. His abstraction seemed to have left him. At least it was not so pronounced. At breakfast he was a new man, though his memory was evidently badly impaired. He remembered to have started from B. the morning before on horseback, but could not recall what had become of his horse. Cecile, with a palpitating heart, wondered if he would remember having proposed to her. Since his remarkable recovery she secretly hoped that he would. He manifested no disposition to proceed on his journey and during the morning sat by the fireplace with something of his previous abstraction, but now he spent a part of his time in making drawings in pencil on the backs of old letters he took from his pocket. Cecile spied upon them, but could make nothing out of them. They were neither figures nor landscapes. In the afternoon while he was thus engaged a horseman rode up to the house in a hurry and asked if they had seen anything of a man who was to have passed there the day before, describing the stranger. When taken to where he was sitting the new arrival seemed much relieved.

"We thought he must have met with foul play on the road," he said.

"Has he escaped from an asylum?" asked Mme. Tourget.

"An asylum! No. He is a great electrical genius. He has doubtless been solving a problem. When thus engaged he is lost to everything else."

Just before the two men departed the electrician said to Cecile, "Have you considered my proposition?"

"Yes."

"And your answer is?"

"Yes."

THE STAGE IN JAPAN.

Origin of the Drama—Women's Arduous Preparations of Dress.

There is a legend in Japan that the theater had its origin in that country in the ninth century by reason of an earthquake which took place in the province of Yamato. A large crevice was formed by reason of the upheaval, from which emanated poisonous vapors which spread death and destruction all around. An awful scourge was the result until the priests conceived the idea of performing a symbolic dance of incantation on the grass covered hill outside the temple. As if by magic the death vapors vanished, and peace and happiness were restored to the country. The legend concludes that this is how Japanese acting originated. The Japanese word for theater, shibui-ya, is supposed to have come from its origin, shibui, meaning sad, and ya, a house.

In Japan when a Japanese lady intends to go to the theater she is called upon the day previous by a hairdresser to build up the artificial structure which is the pride of every Japanese highborn lady. This necessitates her spending the night in her state dress, reclining her head on a wooden block, called makura. A few hours before going to the theater she covers her lips with a thin layer of gold, as it takes several hours for this paint to change into the cherry color which lends charm to the artificial white complexion of the face.

As a rule, Japanese performances last from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m., although certain historical dramas which follow the life of the hero through all his vicissitudes to his death go on for several days.

In Japan, officially, the social position of the actors is that of the lowest class of society, but in reality they enjoy great consideration and are idolized by the general public.—Washington Post.

HUGO AS AN ARTIST.

The Great French Writer's Opinion of His Own Drawings.

When Victor Hugo's "Marion Desorme" was read before the troupe of the Porte-Saint-Martin theater, the actor Laferrere, then a young man, protested against the insignificant role assigned him, in which he would have only ten lines to recite. Hugo promptly reduced him to silence by thundering, "Ten lines of Victor Hugo are something not to be refused—for they endure." Hugo attached a similar exaggerated significance to everything he did and to every object that was in any way associated with him.

For instance, he considered his drawings, which were for the most part commonplace enough, of sufficient importance to make them the subject of a testamentary provision. In his will of Aug. 31, 1881, he wrote, "I give my drawings and everything which shall be drawn by me to the National Library of Paris, which will be one day the Library of the United States of Europe."

Hugo's drawings are said to have been produced more often than not in the following manner: If a blot of ink chanced to fall on his paper while he held his pen aloft in quest of a word or rhyme, he enlarged the spot absentmindedly and made additions to it instinctively under the influence of a species of subconscious direction until he had produced a sinister moonlight scene or a "venerable bourgeois dominating with its bristling ruins the shuddering waters of a river or legend." He elaborated with great care, however, during his irksome exile at Guernsey certain crude impressions he had transferred to his sketchbook during his journeys in the valley of the Rhine. Furthermore, being a great lover of children, he drew figures of the most extravagant sort for the amusement of the young people of his household.—Alvan L. Sanborn in Bookman.

Ending a Letter.

The simplicity of "Yours" as a letter ending would have astounded Jeremy Taylor, whose letters to John Evelyn often wind up with perfect triumphs of complexity in this respect. His best is, "Believe me that I am, in great heartiness and dearness of affection, dear sir, your obliged and most affectionate and endeared friend and servant," or "Your very affectionate friend and hearty servant." Even in his shortest perorations of the kind the "affectionate" and the "servant" are always the two indispensable words. Probably no man, woman or child would combine these two at the end of a letter today.—London Tatler.

A Division of Labor.

The following dialogue at the Bow county court deserves to be recorded:

Witness—One day I had some shrimps to sell, and I asked the plaintiff to help me. He said, "I can't push the barrow because my arm is bad, but if you like I'll come along with you and holler."

Counsel—Why was that?

Witness—Well, it's like this, sir. A man can often shout when he can't shove.—London News.

Unreasonable.

"Your baby cries a great deal at night. Can't you do anything for it?"

"Your dog barks a good deal. Can't you do anything to stop him?"

"Confound it, such unreasonable people as you haven't any right to live in a flat!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Result the Same.

"Gimme some of that prune pie."

"Sen, you've had two kinds of pie already."

"Then another kind won't matter. There's only one kind of stomach ache."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Contracts have been closed for a high class bill replete with novelties, which guarantees to patrons a rare treat in the amusement line at absolutely no expense. Clean, wholesome vaudeville and circus acts in which figure some thrilling innovations will be the offering at the coming and greatest of West Michigan State Fairs. As usual, these performances will be given from a platform facing the grand stand, during the intervals between the heats of the racing events.

As a headliner this year there will be seen Captain Treat's trained seals, certain to prove a hit with old and young. The seal, despite his ungainliness, is one of the most intelligent as well as most docile of animals and, well trained, performs feats of incredible skill. Captain Treat's pets are favorites wherever they have appeared.

Arnold's trained wild animals are a decided innovation in this class of entertainment, his pets being leopards, panthers and jaguars, the most treacherous of beasts, and the most difficult to reduce to a state of subjection. Arnold, however, has his beasts well in hand. Other engagements are with the Landauer troupe of comedy aerial bar experts and the Simple Simon trio, trick house and comedy acrobatics.

All these acts will be given each afternoon of the fair from a platform in front of the grand stand.

All railroads are offering one and one-half one way round trip fares to Grand Rapids during the fair.

MARTIN DRAFT HORSE TROPHY.

One of West Michigan State Fair's Most Interesting Features.

One of the most interesting of West Michigan State Fair features during the past four years has been the competition for the Martin draft horse trophy. This will be repeated at the coming fair, which will be held in Grand Rapids, Sept. 13 to 17.

The Martin trophy will be bestowed on the best draft team of any age, over 3,000 pounds in weight, owned in Michigan. The owner of the winning team has the honor of retaining possession of the trophy until Sept. 1, 1910, when it will revert to the West Michigan State Fair to be again offered for competition. Four liberal cash prizes will be awarded the owners of the four best competing teams. Drivers of all non-winning teams will be paid $2 each.

The Martin trophy was won in 1905 by the Quigley Lumber company, in 1906 and again in 1907 by the Voigt Milling company and in 1908 by the Phoenix Furniture company. Scoring in this contest is on the basis of 75 points for team and 25 points for harness and wagon. Contesting teams are required to be on the grounds from noon until 4 o'clock and to drive in the grand cavalcade on Wednesday, Grand Rapids day. The purpose of the offer is to encourage the raising of draft horses and an honest pride in the care and ownership of heavy teams for farm and city work.

AN ABSOLUTELY CLEAN FAIR.

Gambling and Liquor Selling Tabooed at West Michigan State Fair.

Pursuant to its policy of giving the people the very best entertainment of its kind, the West Michigan State Fair, to be held in Grand Rapids, Sept. 13-17, will adhere to its established precedent of barring gambling and liquor selling from the grounds. None of the lures of professional tricksters will be permitted to divert money brought to the city from its rightful uses to fatten the fortunes of gaming concessionaires at Comstock park.

From the date of its organization gambling devices have been tabooed at the West Michigan State Fair, despite strenuous promises of large financial returns to the fair. Since 1906, in the determination to provide the people an absolutely clean, unobjectionable fair, liquor selling privileges have also been denied.

The results have been most gratifying to the fair management and the great majority of the patrons. None who have visited the fairs the past few years will have any hesitation about repeating the visit this year. They know their will be no gambling on the grounds and that no liquor will be sold therein. The fair is clean, and worthy of anyone's visit.

Enter Your Products at the Fair.

Every farmer or breeder in this locality should not fail to enter his choice products at this year's West Michigan State Fair, which it is assured will be the greatest in the history of the organization. He often feels that among so many entries he will stand small chance of securing the prizes. His neighbor feels much the same way. Then when they visit the fair and see their neighbors walk off with prizes won by specimens far inferior to their own their chagrin is great.

No one is to blame but himself. The successful competitor was more enterprising, that is all. Enter your products at the fair. It will pay you.

A DEMONIACAL MOMENT

By LOUISE JACKSON STRONG

(Copyright, by W. G. Chapman.)

John Blair, Sr., did not sing. He loved to listen to Helen's carolling, but it had not seemed a particularly desirable accomplishment in a man. That was before the advent of Junior, with his voice, and the duetting that had gradually absorbed Helen in an intimacy that had of late left little time for himself. He growled an unaccustomed curse, as the sound of voices and piano drifted out to the veranda, where he sat, moodily smoking; then he rose and said through the thin, swaying curtains: "It's time we were off, Junior."

"Guess I won't go this afternoon, old fellow," the young man replied, with a meaning glance at his companion. Senior noted the look, and without a word strode off, mounted Witch and dashed away, caring little if the half-tamed brute flung him to his death down the precipice that skirted the road.

Junior, but lately from college, knew little of the mine owned in common with, and hitherto managed by, his cousin, except that it was barely paying expenses. He had come to believe that they were working in the wrong direction; that the rich vein had only suspended in the old part which had been abandoned before they bought. Since his arrival he had studied it, with careful examinations, and Senior, although not sharing his opinions, had reluctantly promised to investigate with him.

They were to go over the old part next morning, and Senior left without rousing Helen. She had returned from her ride with Junior extremely late and slipped to bed as if careful of waking him; and Senior had lain sleepless, with staring eyes and set teeth, vowing there must be an end to it!

"Hello, old fellow," Junior greeted, cheerily, when they met at the works:

He Was Seized, Gagged and Bound.

"I've brought my diagrams, and line to do some measuring, and I think, or hope, you'll be convinced when we're through."

Senior mumbled something as they went below. A sudden flood of bitter hatred of his blithe young cousin swept through him. He heard not a word of Junior's earnest exposition as they traversed the passages to the limit of the old mine, where it had been, presumably, exhausted.

"Now then, Senior, see here—" Junior stopped with a cry. In the flickering light there glared at him the face of a devil, malevolent purpose in every rigid feature. Almost before his startled cry escaped him, he was seized, gagged and bound with his line securely to one of the upright timbers. Then the distorted, unnatural face and fiery eyes mocked him in a hideous, silent, malignant triumph and he was left helpless in the darkness.

A little later Senior was inspecting the pumping apparatus.

"She's groaning and wabbling worse all the time; it's likely she'll lay off entirely before the new gear comes, if it isn't here soon," grumbled the foreman.

"It should have been here," Senior remarked, tightening and loosening in various places. A few stealthy maneuvers, and the groaning wabble increased with indications of collapse.

"She's going to quit—get the men out! I'll gallop to the station and rush on the new outfit."

Witch was in a temper that matched his dark mood, and he alternately goaded and restrained her, with delight in the conflict, all the while gloating over the mental picture of the young traitor straining at his bonds, with horrified eyes and inarticulate efforts at speech.

And now by this time the water was rising slowly but surely. It would rise, and rise, lapping his feet—arkles—knees—inch by inch crawling higher—slowly!—slowly!—plenty of time he would have to reflect upon his baseness, to shiver and shrink from the clutching, inevitable death! Junior would not die easily! He loved life as the young do!—only the other day he had been telling Helen—Good God!—Helen!—Helen!

He brought his horse up with a suddenness that nearly unseated him—Helen!—he struck his forehead with his fist—Helen!—how was he to meet her after—then in one blinding flash he realized the horror of the deed! Murder! Oh, for power to undo! He tore out his watch—there might yet be time! God grant, for Helen's sake, that there be time!

He raged back, his broken, vehement thoughts one gasping prayer for time! Faster! Faster—in sight—Oh, faster! He cruelly spurred the already maddened animal, there was a frantic, plunging bound and he lay senseless.

When he roused, Helen was bending over him with tender, tear-blurred face.

"He'll be all right soon, no broken bones, just a bad shake-up," the doctor assured her, and departed with injunctions for rest and quiet.

Senior's wits suddenly returned. "Have I been here long?" he cried, starting up.

"You were unconscious nearly an hour, dearest. Lie down; you must be quiet. Oh, dearest, if you love me! If you love me!" she pleaded, with restraining arms about him.

Unheeding, he leaped to his feet, exclaiming: "Junior!"

"No one could find him, but—" He broke from her and dashed to the mine, a ghastly object with his bandaged head and wild, blanched face. There was no resisting his violent, threatening commands, and when Helen and others arrived he had disappeared below. It was remembered then that Junior had not been seen since morning, though it was supposed that he had followed Senior when he came out.

Senior plunged along, striking the water at the mouth of the old passage. It sloped sharply; he felt the flood deepening, and measured it as he had fancied Junior doing—feet!—ankles!—knees!—No further! Then he hoped. He flashed the light against the wall, it dripped from recent washing. The water had been to his shoulders. It had unaccountably fallen, but the passage still sloped—it had been deeper beyond—Junior was as tall as himself—but could he have escaped? Again and again he measured his height with the wet wall, finding it always nearer the death mark! In a frenzy he ran and shouted, and ran, and ran, till he stumbled, breathless, against his victim, standing as he had left him.

"Oh, not dead, Junior!—not dead!" he gasped, slashing the bonds.

Junior pulled the knotted handkerchief from his mouth, drew a deep breath and laughed.

"I knew you couldn't do it, old fellow! I've been looking for you back every minute—though it looked at one time as if—but I knew you couldn't do it!—you'd have the water pumped out in time—and then all at once it—" Senior interrupted: "I—I meant to—"

"And if what you thought of me was true, you ought to! I would myself! I was going to explain while we were down here—Grace and I were married last evening and she's safe, where they won't find her. They have been trying to force her to marry Henderson. Helen has helped us—we had to have some one to get around the watch-cat aunt—but we made them think that Helen and I—that explains our intimacy. Helen has balked sometimes because I wouldn't have you told—but I couldn't, Senior, till all was safe. You know you objected to my attentions to Grace at first—you remember what you threatened! But it's all past and done with—everything's all right!—and, Senior, I love Grace as you love Helen, and if she will only love me as Helen does you, after we've been married as long, I'll be perfectly happy, old man!" Junior poured out the jumble joyfully.

Senior staggered and dropped the light. Junior caught it, saw the other clearly and cried: "What has happened? What have you done to yourself?"

Senior explained, adding: "That's why I was not here sooner. Oh, Junior! Junior! What will Helen say to me for this!"

"Helen? She is never to know! Never! I was mooning around down here, as I do so much, and got myself fast in the old timbers. That's all! You hear?" shaking him. "And now let's see what lowered the water, though I suspect."

He led the way a few yards on, and flourished the light at a ragged break into another passage. "You see! We were right. They have been tunneling under our property, and doubtless found enough to account for their efforts to oust us. I shouldn't wonder if they hold my opinion as to the vein—maybe they—See, Senior," he exclaimed; "this water-washed ledge—it looks—it is! Hallelujah! Senior, look for yourself, the vein! the vein!"

After an inspection that left no doubt, they hurried away, Junior jubilating triumphantly. But Senior was heavy with his sin.

"Junior, I ought to—I must—confess to Helen, I—"

Junior interrupted him wrathfully. "If you say a word I'll swear that you are crazed by the fall, so help me heaven! Now, then!"

They glared at each other an instant, then Junior's ready laugh bubbled out, joined presently by Senior's unsteady, shamed quaver.

Fans of Artificial Flowers.

A pretty ballroom fancy comes from Paris—that of carrying fans made of artificial flowers. One carried by an American belle at a recent reception was of lilacs-of-the-valley, which were massed upon the sticks toward the end. Roses, violets, all kinds of artificial flowers are utilized and the fans are tied with ribbons of a color harmonizing with the color of the flowers.

A clever girl who attended this reception went the artificial flower fan one better at her next party. She took a white gauze fan and covered it half way down from the ends of the sticks with real roses, short stemmed and fastened on so they lay flat. It was a fan and a bouquet combined and the fragrance, when she waved it, was charming.

C. VanSchure, cashier of the Holland City State bank, and A. Van Putten expect to go on an extended trip next week. Their itinerary will be through the East and will include Niagara Falls, Buffalo, New York city and Long Island.

At a meeting of the special city hall commission Tuesday evening, F. N. Jonkman, the local contractor and builder, was decided upon to superintend the building of the city hall. The recommendation will be considered by the council at their next regular meeting and doubtless Mr. Jonkman will receive the appointment.

The Ottawa County Medical society enjoyed their annual picnic at Saugatuck Tuesday. Drs. D. G. Cook and G. H. Thomas of this city and Dr. J. A. Cousins of Douglas composed the committee in charge of the picnic arrangements and they had the Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church serve them up a fine picnic dinner at 12:30 in the big pavilion. Dr. C. Brown of Spring Lake acted as toastmaster.

The Royal Neighbors of America are enjoying a picnic at Jenison park this afternoon. Mrs. J. Wise is on the program for making the speech of the afternoon and besides the literary program the following program of sports will be given: running race, rough and tumble race, thread and needle contest, spoon and egg contest, hanging contest, nailing contest, double running contest, women's indoor ball game, women's side step running race, tug of war, ball throwing contest.

The "Colonial Benefit association" of Zeeland has been organized by employees of the Colonial Manufacturing Company. The association has a membership of 52 and its object is to provide a fund from which its members will receive $6.00 per week in case of illness or disability. A constitution and by-laws have been adopted by the association with membership fee set at 50 cents and a monthly assessment of 25 cents. Officers have been elected as follows: president, John Staal; secretary, Cornelius Poest; Treas., Henry Kouw.

Leghorns are good foragers because they are light birds and get about quickly. They roam much farther afield than some of the heavier breeds. They are thus cheaper to keep on a farm than some of the breeds that show an inclination to hang about the barns and wait for feeding time. Besides, they are more useful from the standpoint of insect destroyers. This is a matter of considerable importance in some years when the grasshoppers are very numerous. The foragers get a better quality food than the birds that depend on getting grain feed, for the reason that insects are very rich in nitrogen. For the general farm, it is doubtful if any breeds excel the Leghorns, so far as looking out for themselves is concerned.

The open season for brook trout and other kinds of trout found in the inland waters of the state will close this year on Aug. 15. Many people have the impression that the new law, passed at the recent session of the legislature, making an open season from May 1 to Sept. 1, has the effect of extending the open season this year until Sept. 1. Others think that the season will close Aug. 15, and then reopen on the 19th and remain open until Sept. 1. Still others think that the season will close Aug. 15, reopen on Sept. 1 and remain open until Sept. 15. The laws passed at the last session of the legislature will not go into effect until the first day of Sept. therefore the new law cannot effect the season this year, which will close finally Aug. 15. After this year the open season will be from May 1 until Sept. 1.

Bessie Douma, aged 17, a stitcher at the shoe factory, had her left wrist lacerated by broken glass Friday morning. In attempting to open a window near the machine, her hand slipped and crashed through the pane. She was removed to her home where the injuries were dressed by a physician.

Chief of Police Kamferbeek has given notice that hereafter he will ask jail sentences for violators of the automobile law. The last man to be arrested was R. S. Bolkey of Grand Rapids who paid a fine and costs of $20 in Justice Miles' court for hitting the high spots in his auto Saturday.

At the great Maccabee picnic held at Muskegon Saturday in which some 3,000 Maccabees from twelve counties in the association took part Crescent Hive, L. O. T. M. M., of this city won the first prize in the grand drill. They wore black conventional dress of the Netherlands, and with their wooden shoes, neat white aprons, Dutch collars and pointed caps they made an odd but pleasing appearance as they moved through the different figures of the drill which was greatly applauded by the hundreds present. At the business meeting held at 1 o'clock in Lake Michigan Park theater, Grand Haven was decided upon for the meeting place next year, after a strenuous attempt by the Holland delegates to land the big picnic for this city.

It has been announced that Thomas A. Edison has perfected his long promised storage electric battery, and that it meets the most sanguine expectation of its inventor. If the prediction is verified a single farmhand in ten years will find it an easy task to plow, disk, harrow and plant 40 acres of corn from rise to set of single day's sun, and during the crop season he will be able to cultivate 200 acres planted to that cereal, with less draft on his constitution than ten acres tax him now. When that day comes farm life will be delightful. A storage battery in the cellar will provide light and heat, and in the intense warm months of summer it will be put in requisition to cool the torrid atmosphere. Hay will be cured within an hour after the grass is cut by electricity and stored in the barn ere the sun goes down that day.

Independents Will Accept

No official action has as yet been taken by the Holland Independent base ball club in regard to the challenge of the Independents of 1899 for a game during Home Coming week. But they will accept; there is not the slightest doubt about that.

The Independents are game to the core and would have accepted the challenge on the spot if it were not for the fact that the team is likely to be in a crippled condition by that time. Some of their best players will not be able to be in the city at the time. For instance, "Rat" Rottschaefer will be a full fledged professor in a high school in the eastern part of the state and instead of making home runs he will be doing his best to make a hit with somebody's young hopefuls.

Although no official action has been taken the News was assured yesterday by individual members of the team that the challenge would be accepted without fail. The game will necessarily be played either on Thursday or Friday, the two big days of the week, and arrangements will soon be under way to complete all the details.

Neal Ball has again given assurance that he will be there and Buttons Doesburg has also written to the same effect. Every day Jackie VanPutten, who is organizing the 1899 team, discovers new material that he had overlooked. This week he has discovered that he failed to mention Joe B. Hadden. He calls him "Holland's fastest base runner in the old days" and further refers to him as "that good race horse." Those who are competing for the $5 prize should not fail to consider his name.

The plan is to make the great game the nucleus for an afternoon of sports which will include foot races in base ball togs and a preliminary game by a couple of kids' teams. All in all the affair bids fair to become the most interesting event of the Home Coming Week, if the Independents cooperate enthusiastically with the Home Coming Committee in charge of the sports.

INTERURBANS 17—GRAND HAVEN TIGERS 2.

In a rather one sided game played at Jenison Park on Venetian day, the Interurbans defeated the Fant and Stone Tigers of Grand Haven to the tune of 17 to 2. The Tigers came touted as one of the fastest teams that had ever represented the county seat, but proved to be a regular frost in the baseball line. Not only were they unable to solve Henricks' benders but the visitors also seemed unable to field the ball, they putting up a ragged fielding game. The locals on the other hand found no difficulty in solving the twists of the opposing pitcher, and hammered the ball all over the lot. They kept the visitors chasing the ball throughout the whole game and only let up on them when they had piled up a total of seventeen runs. The Jenison Park men scored in almost every inning while the visitors only succeeded in putting two of their men across the plate. There was a fair sized crowd out to see the game which all agreed was a slaughter of the innocent.

INDEPENDENTS 12—KALAMAZOO 0

The Independents also managed to get in a slaughter of the innocent, last Saturday afternoon when they gave the Kalamazoo Independents one of the worst beatings that a baseball club can get and still lay some claim to being a ball team. The visitors came to Holland flushed with a shutout victory over the fast Middleville aggregation of ball-tossers and confidently expected to turn the trick on the locals. But they ran up against something stronger than they had expected and went home with nine goose eggs as a reminder of the fact that Holland can turn out some ball players even though it may not be as large as Kalamazoo. The locals started right in in the first inning by putting 4 runs across the plate. This evidently gave the gentlemen from the asylum town a severe attack of stage fright for from then on the visitors played one of the slowest and most listless games ever put up by any team on the local diamond. Many a time with a man on first the locals would hit into what ought to have been easy doubles, but the visitors generously booted the ball so as to allow the runners to reach the bases safely. The outfielding of the Kalamazooites was also ragged the centerfielder alone muffed three easy chances. In the fifth the locals got their swatsticks after Maus' curves and drove him from the box. Myers who relieved him after the locals had clouted him for 5 runs fared little better and the Wooden Shoes secured enough runs off him to win an ordinary game. When the last man was retired in the ninth the crowd heaved a sigh of relief. The game was practically featureless. The score: R H E
Independents—4 0 0 0 5 0 12—12 10 1
Batteries—Shaw, TeRoller
Maus, Myers, Hodge.

INTERURBANS 3, HASTINGS 1
The Interurbans added a well earned victory last Saturday afternoon when they defeated the fast Hastings team in a hard fought game by the score of 3 to 1. The Park men got after Kynett's benders before the visiting pitcher had got settled down and by timely hitting coupled with several costly errors by the Hastings fielders brought three runs across the plate in the first inning. The Hastings team scored its lone tally in the second. After the first inning Kynett settled down and held the Interurbans safe throughout the rest of the game. Karsten, formerly of the Denver club of the Western league, did the twirling for the Interurbans and pitched a fine game of ball holding the hard-hitting men from Hastings down to four hits, only one of them being good for more than one base. The Interurbans managed to get six off Kynett's delivery. The Interurbans felt justly proud of their victory since the Hastings team is reputed to be one of the fastest independent teams in the state. Elton's hitting was the feature of the game. The score: R H E
Interurbans—3 0 0 0 0 0 0—3 5 3
Hastings —0 1 0 0 0 0 0—1 4 6
Batteries—Karsten, Elton
Kynett, Robleski.

The Crescents, a junior baseball team of this city last Saturday afternoon defeated the Wastiwaka Tailors of Grand Rapids by the score of 12 to 5.

Independents play the Allegan Tigers at Allegan Thursday. On next Saturday afternoon they will again meet the fast Detroit God Lucks. These two teams recently played an eleven inning tie, neither side being able to score. The game will be called at 3:15 sharp.

Johnny Boone came in for second and third money in the short Ship races at Bay City last Friday when Lady Hastings finished second in the 2:25 pace and Neil Ball took third in the 2:13 pace. Both these horses will be doing things right a little later in the season.
