Democrats Name Delegates for State Convention

Lansing Keynote Urges Straight Democratic Vote in November

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Nine delegates and nine alternates to the state Democratic convention Saturday in Grand Rapids were named at the Ottawa county Democratic convention Wednesday night in the court house.

Delegates are Roy Hierholzer, Robert Marsh, William J. Swart of Grand Haven, Mrs. Marguerite Clever of Spring Lake, George Caball of Zeeland, Mrs. Emily Shaffer of Holland, Lawrence P. Smith of Park township, Gerald Dennison and Alger Beekman of Nunica.

Alternates are George Swift, John Jannenga, George VerBerkmoes and Mrs. Sally Nash of Grand Haven, Gerry Schermer of Zeeland township, Mrs. Katherine V. Johnston and Mrs. Alice C. Powell of Holland, Robert Conley of Grand Haven and Hazen Wilson of Spring Lake.

County Chairman Roy Hierholzer of Grand Haven, who presided, presented a scroll to Charles E. Misner, long-time county Democratic chairman, in appreciation of the many years of service Misner had rendered the party in the county. The convention voted to establish the office of lifetime honorary chairman as a tribute to Misner.

Misner arrived at the meeting in his wheel chair shortly before 8 p.m., accompanied by his son, Dean. A daughter, Marguerite Misner Clever, accepted the scroll on behalf of her father who was unable to speak.

Hierholzer was named both temporary and permanent chairman and Lawrence P. Smith of Park township served as both temporary and permanent secretary. Smith read the call of the convention which will convene at 11 a.m. Saturday in Civic Auditorium in Grand Rapids. Caucuses will start at 10 a.m. Several Ottawa persons indicated intentions of attending a dinner at 6 p.m. Friday with Gov. G. Mennen Williams as speaker.

The keynote, Clinton Fair of Lansing, urged a straight Democratic vote on election day in November and stated there should be at least one worker in each precinct, plus a lot of Democrats out on election day to see that the Democrats get out to vote. He referred to the bill passed by the U. S. Senate Tuesday on farm legislation and reminded the people of the depression in the '20's.

He criticized foreign policy which, he said, is hard to talk about because the policy changes every day. "But we shouldn't worry about it. In a few days the President will go fishing in Colorado, Dulles will issue an innocuous statement, Nixon will blow his top and then we'll all be confused!"

Fair pointed to differences in government the last two years and five years ago in Lansing. He said US-18 between Grand Rapids and Muskegon is a disgrace and said if he had to travel between the two cities he'd buy an airplane.

The convention adopted a resolution memorializing the late Blair Moody, candidate for U.S. senator, who was stricken while in the midst of his primary campaign. "His passing has taken from our midst a man valuable and respected in the Democratic party, one regarded as a personal friend," the resolution read.

Robert Conley was tentatively chosen as a member of the pre-convention platform drafting committee which will meet Friday night.

Officers Dragging Spring Lake for Grand Rapids Man

Man Falls Overboard During Company Outing Of 20 to 30 Printers

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Dragging operations continued today in Spring Lake for the body of 42-year-old Theodore Coolson of Grand Rapids who fell from a 60-foot schooner at 6:10 p.m. Wednesday just north of Barrett Boat Works in Spring Lake while on a company outing.

The party of 20 to 30 employees of a Grand Rapids printing firm had left Spring Lake aboard the schooner at 1:30 p.m. for a cruise on Lake Michigan. When the lake became rough, the group returned to Spring Lake and went to Fruitport. On the return to Spring Lake, a person aboard shouted "Man overboard!" Several aboard whose names were not available dove into the lake, but none could locate the body.

It was not known whether Coolson suffered a heart attack or fell overboard in other circumstances. The boat was owned and operated by Robert Kettner, 1600 Wealthy St., S. E., Grand Rapids. Coolson lived at 251 Pine St., N. W., Grand Rapids.

Dragging operations were discontinued at 9:30 p.m. because of darkness, but resumed this morning. Cooperating are the Coast Guard, sheriff's department, state police, state conservation department and Grand Haven city police.

THESE SIX BROTHERS AND SISTERS who were born many years ago in a log cabin north of Holland today boast of a total age of 456 years. Seated, left to right, are Mrs. Arthur M. Witteveen, 74; George De Weerd, 82, and Miss Jennie De Weerd, 80. Standing are Bert De Weerd, 78, Henry De Weerd, 70, and Albert De Weerd, 72. (Penna-Sas photo)

Family Born in Log Cabin Boasts Longevity Record

A total of 456 years is the boast of these six brothers and sisters, all of whom were born more than 70 years ago in a log cabin north of Holland.

The four brothers and two sisters whose ages range from 70 to 82 years old, are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ryer De Weerd who came to the United States as young people many years ago with their families. They were married here. Mrs. De Weerd was the former Henrietta Witteveen, and through the years there have been so many associations and marriages in the two families that the De Weerts and Witteveens are almost synonymous.

The children were all born in a log cabin located a half mile from Harderwyk Christian Reformed Church on Lakewood Blvd. Some years later the family moved a short distance away, but later the father built a farm house on the original homestead which today is occupied by the youngest son, Henry, 70. Five other children in the family died at birth or lived only a few years.

Although all the children were born on the farm, none became farmers, and all the boys turned to the building trades, mostly in carpentry, cabinet making and contractor. Albert De Weerd, 72-year-old local building contractor, remains particularly active today, and his brother, Henry, 70, works with him. Two other brothers, Bert, 78, and George, 82, also were carpenters but have now retired.

The two sisters are Mrs. Arthur M. Witteveen, who marked her 74th birthday anniversary this week, and Miss Jennie De Weerd, 80, who serves as housekeeper for her brother, Bert, who lives not far from the old homestead in Harderwyk.

The four brothers and sisters who live in Harderwyk area still attend Harderwyk church. The two living in Holland city attend other Christian Reformed churches.

The family boasts 20 grandchildren, 39 great grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren.

Dumping Garbage Against the Law

City Health Inspector Ben Wiersma today cautioned people not to throw garbage in any city or township dumps, pointing to city ordinances and state laws which prohibit disposing of garbage in any dump.

Garbage attracts rats, allows flies and other bugs to breed and spread infections and germs. Garbage should be disposed of through licensed garbage collectors. Persons outside the city may bury garbage provided the garbage is thoroughly covered, but this practice is discouraged in the city because of limited space.

Wiersma pointed out that Holland has only one licensed garbage collector, Peter Jacobus, who has the necessary equipment for treating garbage properly before it is fed to hogs. He said most offenses are committed when people "mix" garbage with rubbish and it is hauled off by rubbish collectors who are not authorized to collect garbage. Most of this service involves tin cans and ashes.

Park Township Justice C. C. Wood said there have been several complaints of indiscriminate dumping of garbage in Park township, and both he and Wiersma pointed to severe penalties which can be imposed on such a misdemeanor.

The new slogan, "Don't Be a Litterbug," is a good thing to remember at all times, they pointed out.

Mad Fined for Crossing Freshly Painted Line

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — James M. Spencer, Jr., 32, Grand Rapids, paid $13 fine and $2 costs in Justice Frederick J. Workman's court Tuesday afternoon on a charge of crossing a freshly painted centerline on M-104 in Crocker township Aug. 4.

Spencer had passed a car and found himself "trapped" in the left lane. To avoid an oncoming car he crossed the freshly painted line. State Trooper David Verburg who was directing traffic issued the summons.

Two youths, aged 9 and 13, were turned over to Probate Court for action after they were apprehended taking a padlock from a downtown dime store. The boys admitted to police they took other items from several stores.

Judge Smith Releases Local Man From Jail

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Don Bosma, 27, who formerly resided at 41 East 10th St., Holland, was released by Judge Raymond L. Smith Monday afternoon from custody of the Ottawa County sheriff. Bosma was picked up in Holland Feb. 26, for non-payment of alimony and on March 11, was sentenced to serve a year in the county jail for contempt of court, or pay $750 back alimony.

Upon his promise to pay $20 a week toward the support of his two minor children, and on condition that he obtain a job as a station attendant in Grand Haven, the court order was issued. Bosma had been picked up last October in Newberry for the same offense.

His former wife, Donna, and two children reside in Holland.

School Board Will Study Too In Coming Year

School Supt. Walter W. Scott listed a four-point program of study for the coming year for board members at the monthly meeting of the Board of Education Monday night.

Sparking his comments was a quotation from Henry Ford II, "The belief that no problem is unsolvable, that nothing is being done as well as it could be done, is the one truly revolutionary force in the world today," Supt. Scott listed the program of study as follows:

1. A year-long study of taxation, state aid, tuition and sales tax in the hope of finding additional funds for salary increases, better building maintenance and additional teachers—ways and means committee.

2. A thorough and highly cooperative study of salary schedules with the Professional Problems Committee of the Holland Teachers' Club. Such study should start the first week of the new school year.—Teachers committee.

3. Plans for dedication of the new Van Raalte and Longfellow additions and a report of how the $650,000 bond issue was spent. The latter should be complete, graphic, attractively made up, and widely disseminated at the time of the dedication. Suggested time of dedication is American Education Week Nov. 7 to 13.—Schools committee.

4. Hasten the final planning and letting of bids for the fifth elementary school. Complete playground improvement program. Study building maintenance needs and estimate cost thereof to be done during 1954-55. Continual planning for site requirements for the new high school.—Building and Grounds committee.

Supt. Scott said there are other important matters that will demand the board's attention during the year, but he figured these were paramount. "All of us engaged in education are doing research, if we accept the definition recently expressed by Charles F. Kettering, 'Research,' said this well known scientist of the automobile world, is an effort to do things better and not be caught asleep at the switch. It is the problem solving mind, as contrasted with the let-well-enough-alone mind. It is the 'tomorrow' mind instead of the 'yesterday' mind. It is friendly welcoming attitude toward change."

21 New Houses Built in Township

Township officials also are reminding residents that applications must be made before signs are erected along the highways in the township, according to zoning ordinances. Several signs have been erected during the past 60 days without proper application, and officials emphasize that the proper procedure must be followed, or it may be necessary for the zoning administrator to take steps to remove such signs which have been erected without certification.

The plan was recommended by the schools committee which met with Don Crawford, Bruce Van Leuven and Neil Wiersma.

The board approved five new textbooks, three for English and the others for biology and physics. The board approved a lengthy resolution providing a new and complete accounting system for the building and site fund. Under the new plan, the four accounts have the following balances: general, $81,927.32; high school, $170,354.63; 1949 bond issue, $44,502.50; 1953 bond issue, $790,162.87.

The buildings and grounds committee submitted two reports on progress on plans for the new fifth elementary school, and a complete new policy on rental of school facilities and equipment.

Working permits for students under 18 will be issued through the Vocational Education department after Sept. 7, the board decided. More than 500 permits were issued by the superintendent's office during the past year.

Bills allowed for the month totaled $65,368.66.

President Kuyper presided and Trustee E. V. Hartman gave the invocation. Trustees Wendell Miles and Sadie Grace Winter were absent. Lacking five minutes, the meeting lasted three hours.

City fathers have yet to name a definite date for dedication of Holland's new Civic Center building, but contractors point to Sept. 1 as the date for completion.

Mayor Harry Harrington, however, last Wednesday named a committee to plan the dedication and an open house.

Work was recently held up while special girders for glass panes in the ceiling of the main auditorium were ordered, but their arrival last Thursday paved the way for quick completion.

Work on finishing the special hardwood floor will get underway this week.

Starting with a poured concrete base on a floating floor, the latest method includes a layer of adhesive, half-inch cork strip, adhesive, tarpaper, adhesive and the wood.

The hardwood flooring is in strips one foot long and two inches wide. It is grooved and fitted without any nails. Pressure, allowing for expansion, is applied by spring steel bars around the outside edges.

Tests have indicated the new method of laying floors gives a resilience and deadens the sound.

When the floor is not in use it will be covered with a heavy canvas.

Still to be installed are permanent bleachers the entire length of the floor. The bleachers fold against the wall, extending out only four feet.

Elsewhere in the structure, only one room remains to be finished. The large show room on the north side must still be covered with tile flooring.

In the basement, walls must still be painted.

SIX CARTOONS A WEEK FOR 15 YEARS — A total of more than 4,880 — and still not out of ideas. Here for the first time, Crawford is considering moving to Western Michigan from his New York home. (Sentinel photo)

Famed Cartoonist Recalls Era of Gibson, Gilbert

"Charles Dana Gibson started it in the 1890's, and we're still doing it," a visitor to Macatawa Park remarked recently.

The "it" referred to was humorous take-offs on everyday life. The visitor was William G. Crawford, originator of "Side Glances," a family life cartoon carried daily by more than 800 newspapers throughout the country.

"Gibson portrayed the adventures of two American girls touring Europe — and ended up with the world famous 'Gibson Girls,'" Crawford said.

Now cartoonists stay closer to home, and reproduce the hundreds of anecdotes that come up in day to day family life.

But drawing is not without its hazards.

"Woe unto us if we make any mistake in details," says Crawford. Readers will spot clothes a few months out of fashion, or airplanes with equipment not quite up to latest standards.

"I even had someone write in to tell me a turkey being served on a platter was not being properly carved," says Crawford.

Another problem for today's cartoonist is newspaper deadlines. Crawford, who is syndicated with Scripps-Howard, has a tough time keeping five to six weeks ahead on cartoons.

A real problem in drawing is the coarse paper used in newspapers, as contrasted with smooth finish work in magazines. "Some of the cuts certain papers turn out makes me hesitant to look at them," he adds.

Crawford has a background that includes illustration work for such popular magazines as "Post," "New Yorker," and "Harper's Bazaar." He also worked 12 years for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayor as a publicity artist.

On his current series "Side Glances" he signs it with "Galbraith" his middle name.

One of Crawford's fondest memories is doing publicity releases for "The Big Parade," one of the last pictures John Gilbert made and also one of the first to use the newfangled invention—a sound track.

A native of Utah and California Crawford hopes to return some day to the southwest where he can relax and draw a few magazine illustrations of Indians, "still the most interesting subject for an artist."

The Guards won both first and second rounds of play.

Roy Strengtholt was manager of the league champs, with Doug Mach, Con Boeve, Orin Hall, Vern Boerson, L. Emmick, Don Wittlveen, Dick Schultz, Rog Wierda, Harv Berens, Ken Strengtholt and Duane Rosendahl on the squad.

Prentice, his wife and two children returned to Baltimore Saturday after a week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Prentice of Douglas. But Prentice, a native of Douglas who is now a civilian employee of the Army Corps of Engineers, said this was nothing compared to the excitement the car caused as it cruised down the Pennsylvania Turnpike on its way here.

Chamber Moves to Offices at Center

Arrival of glass panels for Civic Center has broken a log-jam that held up completion of other details and in the words of custodian John Van Nuil, "She's fast taking shape now."

Work on permanent bleachers and the newly laid floor was halted until completion of the glass ceiling areas. The areas, on either side of the long floor, serve to let light in from skylights.

Manager Earl Price is in his bare office daily, and getting things organized for the as yet unannounced dedication date.

Seated behind stacks of books and other unfilled items are Chamber of Commerce secretary-manager William Vande Water and his aides, Mae Naber and Mrs. John Elenbaas, who moved in this week.

Although officially out of the former office, Chamber officials warn that the "moving process" takes time and may temporarily hamper service.

The new Chamber office is located on the northeast corner of the building, right next to the large front doors.

IN THE NAME OF "SPORT"

Holland's Community Ambassador, K. Don Jacobusse, recently contributed an article to the Sentinel describing his attendance at a bull fight in Madrid, Spain. It was a graphic article, well written, and it caught the drama of Spain's national sport admirably.

Moreover, Mr. Jacobusse is in good company. Ever since he published his bull-fight novel, "The Sun Also Rises," in 1925, Ernest Hemingway has been recognized as the world's greatest champion of bull fighting as a sport. Even Spanish-speaking people recognize this mid-western American as the greatest authority on a subject that is Spanish in origin and tradition.

Hemingway, later, wrote another book on bull fighting, this time not a novel but a direct exposition of the sport. He called it "Death in the Afternoon." One critic captioned his review of the book, "Bull in the Afternoon."

And that would probably be the reaction of many non-Spaniards confronted with a real bull fight, not on the pages of a romantic writer but in actuality. Bull fighting is to Spanish peoples—in Spain, in Mexico, in South American countries—what baseball is to Americans. Usually Americans are even less enthusiastic about a bull fight than Spaniards are about a baseball game.

One American who recently saw a bull fight in Mexico City reported: "My sympathies were all with the bull; I couldn't help hoping that the animal would get one or more of his tormentors."

For the bull has little or no chance. He has been bred up from calfhood for this half hour of torture. His half dozen assailants are armed with all sorts of weapons, and the horse of the picador is protected with a padded covering. Barbs are stuck into the bull's back to arouse his fury, and in some cases even his nose is slashed to make him look more bloody and fierce.

Yes, the bull fighters take chances—about one to fifty from the angle of the bull. When a bull fighter is killed it becomes a front-page newspaper story, whereas at the usual bull fight six bulls are tortured to death in an afternoon. Sport? People like Ernest Hemingway get sentimental about bull fights. The reaction of many others is: "Bull in the afternoon!"

Self Discipline for Growth
1 Corinthians 9:24-27;
Hebrews 12:1-4

By Henry Geerlings

In a letter addressed to the Christian church at Corinth, the apostle Paul might very well allude to the institution which above all others held a place in popular esteem at that period. If he were writing to inhabitants of London today he might draw his illustration from the aerodrome at Hendon or the motor racing track at Brooklands. Cobham's wonderful fight to Australia might come in for mention.

If the football season were at its height he might say something about the immense out-courses of people drawn together to witness a cup-tie match between two splendidly trained opposing teams. But great as is our national interest in sport, none of these means as much as the Isthmian games used to mean to Greece. There was the keenest rivalry between one city and another as to which could produce the finest athletes. No one was allowed to contend in the arena unless he could furnish evidence of having undergone a thorough course of discipline in preparing for it. If he could not pass this test he was rejected. When the great day came the athlete who was counted worthy wrestled fought, and raced under the gaze of victors in previous contests, who sat in elevated seats of honor looking down on him. If he won he was crowned with laurel and borne home in triumph. Poets composed special odes in celebration of his deeds; his family and his native place shared in the glory henceforth attaching to his name.

The apostle has all this in mind as he writes, and gives it a spiritual application. "So run that you may obtain." That is, though only one can obtain the prize in the Greek games, all may obtain the spiritual prize. In order to obtain the recompense of the reward it is necessary that we have a clear conception of what we run for. The apostle had a distinct aim, a definite creed. He saw clearly in what the grand prize of life lay and the clear path to the goal. He knew what he was about. His purpose and plan were clearly defined. So if we are to run well we must clearly discern the prize and be assured of its reality and sufficiency. What then, is the prize of life, the supreme goal on which we must fix our eyes? It is the perfection of our highest nature, our immortal perfection.

To run successfully the race of life we must exercise the utmost determination and discipline. As the athlete concentrates himself on the race so must we concentrate ourselves on the work of our sanctification. We must deny our lower nature for the sake of the higher. The apostle keeps his body under. He is wary of self-indulgence. Such indulgence may come in the form of ignoble ease. It may come in the guise of pleasure.

Atlanta, stooping to pick up the golden apples lost the race. And a greater race is often lost through yielding to temptations of wealth and fashion. By denying the body the Greeks realized the importance of the body. They tempered it to its full perfection of strength and loveliness, of fleetness and vision, and by denying ourselves in lower and lesser things to secure the full glory of our being. If the spirit of a man's life is really worthy, every day will see him raised. His diviner self will shine out, a hundred little unremembered acts will refine and exalt him; but if the aim is not really sincere and high, he is being continually degraded. The secret of success is to give the higher the preference.

We must deny ourselves for the sake of others. The reading of this chapter makes the duty of selflessness very clear. In the ordinary race jealousy of one's rivals prevails. There is no effort on our part to help others. It would be a strange sight to see the Oxford crew assisting the Cambridge crew to a fresh start in the place of the one they had broken. In the very nature of physical contests such things cannot be; but in human life it is the very essence of success that we are helpers of one another, that the strong aid the weak, the wise counsel the inexperienced, the pure lift up the fallen; and the more sincerely we deny ourselves to save others the swifter are our steps and the brighter our diadem.

Anderson Opens Suit In Circuit Court

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — A suit commenced by Walter E. Anderson of Muskegon in Ottawa Circuit Court is asking that the city of Holland be permanently enjoined from enforcing a zoning ordinance covering property at the northwest corner of River Ave. and 13th St.

In his bill of complaint, Anderson said he purchased the property Nov. 19, 1951, and claims he desires to build a modern gasoline filling station on the premises. He claims the property was zoned as a "B" residential district in 1927 and in 1947 the Board of Zoning Appeals recommended to council that it be rezoned to "C" commercial, a recommendation he says council approved.

Application for a filling station was rejected by council July 1 and an appeal was denied by the appeal board July 28, Anderson said.

Scientists believe that the earth has a central core of heavy metal, probably iron.

FINISHING TOUCHES on two bridges on East Adams St. near 104th Ave., were completed last week as traffic was reopened. The two bridges, one constructed by Canonic Excavating Co. of South Haven and the other by county workers, eliminate a bad jog in the roadway. Fill will be allowed to settle for a year before final blacktopping operations in 1955. The eastern bridge includes a piling foundation and massive cement abutments. The entire structure is steel and concrete. The other bridge, about 75 yards west, is entirely of steel except for cement abutments. (Sentinel photo)

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

"And now they have started out to make books 'painless' for the teenagers. A publishing house has been organized for the sole purpose of issuing books that have been simplified for the young people."

The publishers, naturally, call it a "wonderful idea." This is what they say: "Teenagers who have outgrown children's books — yet find the length and complexity of adult novels still a bit beyond them — have been waiting for this wonderful new idea. Here is all the meat of each best-selling novel—the characters, the story, the colorful historical background—in fast-moving, wholesome adaptations by respected, successful writers for young people."

In other words, the teenagers are to be protected against the books of the masters—the Dickens, the Thackerays, the Walter Scotts, the Jane Austens, the Hawthornes, the Coopers, the Hardy's, the Dreisers, the Hemingways, and all the others on whose work many generations of boys and girls have fed.

Every one of the books of such writers is to be given an overhauling by "respected, successful writers for young people." Those adapters are expected to reduce the volumes to the level of comprehension of the more stupid readers, and as a result teenage reading and comprehension will be leveled down to the synthetic product from which genius has been strained out.

For the so-called "meat" of best-selling novels, on which the new publishers pride themselves, is next to nothing. What if it is a novel has a "plot"? Plots are all more or less the same, or at least there are only a few of them. A Dickens "plot" has no more "meat" to it than one by a trivial writer. And the same thing is true of characters and background.

The thing that makes a novel, say, a Joseph Conrad greater than one by, say, Zane Grey, is the stuff given to it by the greater mind of Joseph Conrad. That stuff can't be eliminated without killing the novel.

The contention that "adult novels are a bit beyond" teenagers in their "length and complexity" is a delusion. It is of course true of some teenagers, but that statement will also apply to some who are expected to profit from the new simplified volumes. Some teenagers are incurably "dumb," in the school boy's sense of that word. That is unfortunately an "act of God" for which there is no cure. But to suggest that the average American teenager is too mentally dull to be able to enjoy the great adult novels as they were written by the masters is to insult the intelligence of young America. It can only mean, if true, that the teenagers of today are far more stupid and mentally sluggish than the young people of an earlier generation.

The teenagers would deny this, and rightly so.

It is of course true that some of the things in the books written by the masters for adults went over the heads of the youngsters of an earlier generation who read them. That's why they can reread a Jane Austen book or one by Hawthorne or Melville in later life and get still more out of it. But they got enough to make it worth while for them as teenagers to feed on the rich meat of literature instead of on pre-digested foods.

Making things too easy for teenagers is fatal in literature as it is in life.

Contractors Begin Pouring Cement On US-31 Bypass

Massive grading equipment will grind to a halt this weekend as actual paving operations begin on Holland's new US-31 bypass.

Norm Goodwin, job engineer, said Friday the first of more than 115,000 square yards of concrete would go in "between Thursday and the next Monday."

For the last few weeks things have really been humming near the M-21 and US-31 intersection east of town. Following razing of the old rendering works a fleet of earth movers leveled a large sandhill over the swampy area.

Bulldozers and cranes joined in the effort to fill in a large section on the northwest corner of the intersection where another lane will be added to the new Holland-Grand Haven stretch.

Last week contractors completed installation of gravel support beds in some areas where special reinforcement is needed. Other special equipment like huge gravel bins and monstrous concrete mixers were being moved in.

First section to be paved will be the southbound lane beginning on the southwest corner of the intersection. The lanes are 24 feet wide, and nine inches thick. The dual lanes are separated by a landscaped area.

No fancy intersections will be employed where the two highways meet. Addition of an 800-foot blacktopped lane on the north side will mean the intersection joins dual lanes from all directions except Holland proper.

Contract for the 3.9 miles of roadway is held by Carl Goodwin and Sons of Allegan. Goodwin won the award with a $574,833.52 bid on promise of completion date of Dec. 31.

And nothing short of "an earthquake" can slow the job down now, according to Wayne Goodwin who also is on the job. Up to 80 men will be employed during the paving.

Cement crews are currently installing 16,000 square yards of concrete in roadways at the General Electric plant, and will be finished about Tuesday.

The M-21 bypass south of Zeeland, which also joins up at the Holland intersection, is under grading contract with Gould and Cross Co. of Grand Rapids.

County Nurse Gives Talk About Retarded Children

At a meeting of the Ottawa Association for Retarded Children Thursday evening at Coopersville School gym, Miss Florence Vander Woude, supervising nurse of Ottawa County Health Department, spoke on problems of retarded children.

She mentioned the need for thorough medical and mental examinations and evaluations, but warned of the waste involved in paying for many treatments, which have no value. Once damaged, brain cells do not replace themselves, she said.

The retarded child, like any child, has a need to be loved for himself, regardless of his shortcomings as an individual. If the retarded child can be cared for at home, without being too great a burden on the strength of the mother, that is good. However, if the child's care is too difficult for the mother or makes life difficult for normal children in the family, these things should be considered. Sometimes, Miss Vander Woude said, it is best to give the child the advantage of placement in a residential home or school. Cost and crowded conditions in such institutions are two great problems.

The business meeting was conducted by Victor Van Oosterhout. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Henry Van Kampen and her committee.

The Rev. K. Stickney announced that large size used toys, old nylon hose, primary Sunday School papers, large balls and mesh potato bags are articles to save for use at the Coldwater State Home and Training School, Pine Rest Retreat and the Haven School. These articles are useful in play and craft activities.

The next meeting Sept. 2, will be held in Grand Haven. A movie, "Forget Not These Children," will be shown. Mrs. J.E. Holmes will report on her recent trip to Ypsilanti Workshop.

Raspberries Should Be Sprayed After Pruning

Be sure to give your raspberries a thorough spraying with fermetate after you finish the pruning job this summer.

That's advice from Robert F. Carlson, a Michigan State College small fruit researcher. The spray is needed, he says, because of the anthracnose, or cane spot, epidemic this summer. Cool, wet weather helped spread the disease.

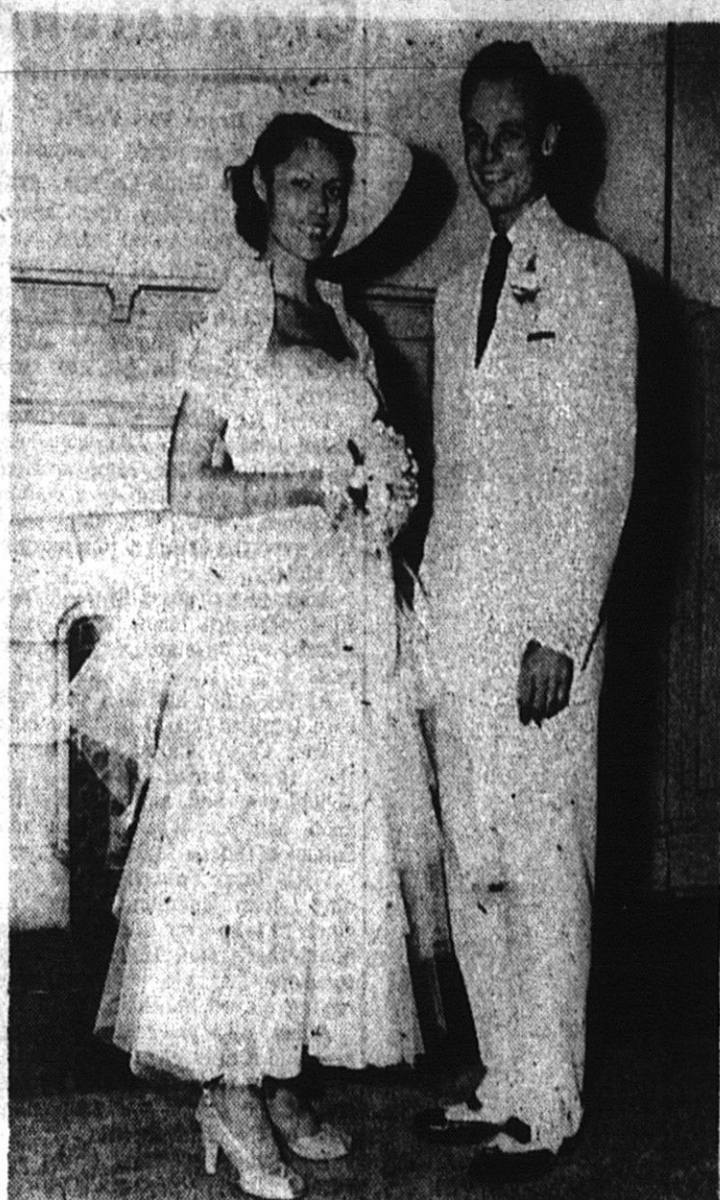

Doing a good pruning job, said Carlson, means cutting out all the old canes and the weak and spindly ones. It's a good idea, he cautions, to burn all of the cut out canes. This will aid in controlling diseases. Don't cut off tips of canes during the summer, it's better to let the new canes grow and tip them next spring, he said.

Grandstanding...

By Bruce Van Voorst

Despite a seemingly pessimistic look at the Hope College grid team ranks Tuesday, there are a good many things that make even calculating Coach Al Vanderbush grin.

Vanderbush says, "We're shy on backs." But it should be clear that the ones he got are top notch.

Take for instance a scatback called John Adams. Adams was tie with Tallarico for Hope scoring honors last year, and in a couple instances it was his brilliant runs that gave the Dutch a thin margin of victory.

Adams was named to the MIAA All-Conference team, and is considered a dependable defensive man.

At the other halfback post will be a familiar face to Holland fans—Tom Carey. Carey was one of the finest backs Holland High School ever had, and played some good ball for Western Colorado School of Mines in 1951-52.

With Harry Voss out of the running John Holmlund seems to cinch to take over full time at the quarterback slot. Holmlund came to Hope last year without ever having played football.

Aided by a powerful throwing arm and a natural athletic ability, he rapidly took shape and by the end of the season was frequently used by the coaching staff.

Holmlund's specialty is an accurate "bullet" pass that he can heave 60 yards if necessary.

Zeeland's Dave Kuylers will probably be handling fullback chores, although Dick De Vries of Kalamazoo will see a lot of reserve action. Kuylers earned a letter last season filling in for the injured Dave Kempker.

On the line at ends will be Bob Hoeksema, who after seeing action in all four backfield slots for Vanderbush, is being converted to an end. Hoeksema is a good defensive man and will do most of the Hope punting.

One of the anchor men in the Dutch line will be Lynn Post, returned service veteran who played for Hope in 1951. Post is a "smart" football player and rugged enough to take on all comers.

The center of Hope's line is "potentially very fine." Barring injuries it could be brilliant.

At tackle will be a host of veterans—most of them with injuries that may or may not hamper them. Bill Heydorn, All-Conference guard last year, will be at a tackle slot. Heydorn a Co-captain had his foot in a cast for a month this summer with a heel injury.

Warren De Witt will be in the fight for a position, while Don Hollander and Doc Van Hoeven, despite leg injuries, should see a lot of action. Co-captain Don Vander Toll will be a key man in the line while Earl De Witt seems like a good bet for a guard slot.

Transferred to center will be Ron De Gaw, a letterman. Tom Harris, Darl Nienecker, Dick Schultz and Gene Oudekerk will also see action in the lines.

DON JACOBUSSE'S SPANISH FAMILY

Madrid Mayor Conveys Greetings To Holland Through Ambassador

By K. Don Jacobusse

Holland's Community Ambassador

MADRID, Spain — Today not only me, but the Mayor of Madrid the Count of Mayalde, sends his best wishes to the City of Holland. After my long, informative talk with this modest Senor he conveyed his greetings to his colleague, Mayor Harrington, and to the people of Holland.

I have also paid a visit to the resident Bishop of Madrid. He came from behind his desk and held out his hand. I shook it. In my ignorance I didn't know that the accepted and proper thing to do is to kiss the hand of a Bishop. Although that great faux pas drew a somewhat blank look from the Bishop, I made up for it by kissing his hand as I left.

The Bishop is a revered gentleman to the Spanish, as they are a very religious people. There is comparatively no freedom of religion here. I have met no Protestants. And yet, the fact that Roman Catholicism is the State religion, represented in the Congress, does not seem to daunt the devotion of the people.

Church is the accepted thing every Sunday. Prayer is said before every meal. In the room in which I sit now, the picture of the Last Supper is on one wall, and an image of Christ on the other. In classrooms at the University of Madrid, a picture of Franco hangs beside Christ on the Cross.

There is a fallacy in the United States that the Church of Spain is keeping the people poor. There are many poor in Spain, but it's not the church that is doing it.

There is a Cathedral here in Madrid being built by the alms of the people, which has been in construction for 77 years! It is still far from completion. Their regular churches are much like ours in Holland.

The picture above is of my Spanish family. Left to right stands: my brother, Hector, Mi Madre, Mi Padre, and my brother Fernando. They are all very individualistic, but even at the age of 27 and 23, like my brothers, the son in a Spanish family obeys explicitly the word of his parents.

Mother is very quiet, and sympathetic a direct contrast to father who is fiery and peppy. Hector, in mood and talent, is an artist. At times he will be full of talk and again he'll be mute. Fernando and I are together a great deal. He is a soft-spoken, intelligent and friendly person. Only last week he finished his service in the Army. Among many other things, we have visited the great museum of art in Madrid, The Prado.

We share a bedroom in our apartment of six rooms on the fifth floor of an apartment building. Nearly all people of Madrid live in these. Like all rooms, our bedroom is small. The "Comedor," or living room is small. It has a large table in the center and a rollaway bed for Hector. The other bedroom is for Madre and Padre. The kitchen, with coal oven, two electric plates, and ice box is where the maid spends most of her day. The maid also does all of the washing by hand.

Yesterday during an excursion to the mountains we saw some women in a small "pueblo" doing their washing on their hands and knees in a stream. The maid sleeps in the room where we eat every meal. The bathroom has all of the normal American plumbing, but quite antique.

Here we rise up in the morning at about 9:30 or 1 and have dinner at 3. Supper comes at about 11 at night. Because all night life is after 11 we never go to bed before 1:30 a.m. but, midway, from 1 to 4, everything in Madrid closes for the siesta. It's that time now, so I'll close, too.

De Mey and Co. Wallop Dutchmen In 10-0 Rout

ZEELAND (Special) — Zeeland's Chix replaced the Holland Flying Dutchmen in a tie with South Haven for the Southwestern Michigan Baseball League runnerup slot Tuesday night with a resounding 10-0 shellacking.

And if "three times and out" means anything in baseball, the Dutchmen better stay home next time speedballer John De Mey takes the mound. Holland whipped the Chix in the first encounter 12-8 early this year. That was before De Mey was imported.

The Chix brought the former Calvin College ace as a regular, and here's what happened. First he struck out 20 men for a 2-1 win. Then he struck out 17 to bury the Dutch 13-4.

Then Tuesday he struck out 15 men while holding the Dutch to one hit—Ron Boeve's triple in the second inning.

Meanwhile, Jack Kempker was serving up 12 safeties to the Chix, including doubles to Schrottenboer, Howie De Jonge and De Mey.

The early innings started slowly, but when Boeve was left on base after tripling the Chix started to simmer. Schrottenboer's double went for naught, but in the third they chalked up a pair of runs.

Wiersma singled, and De Mey was safe on an error. Both men advanced and scored on Tony Diekema's single. Zeeland chalked up another run in the fourth when De Mey doubled with Wiersma on base.

The Chix paraded six men across home plate in the fifth frame, mainly on De Jonge's double and singles again by Wiersma and De Mey. Final tally came in the sixth when Wiersma, who had four singles in five trips, scored De Jonge.

The win pushed Zeeland into a tie with South Haven, each squad having a 3-3 record. Holland is one game out with a 3-4 mark. Key game in second half standings will pit Zeeland at Grand Haven Thursday. The Athletics currently lead the loop with a 4-1 record.

A profusion of palms, ferns and candelabra enhanced with white gladioli bouquets formed the setting for the ceremony. Marty Hardenburg, soloist, was accompanied by Miss Elaine Beckvoort, organist, who played traditional wedding music.

Approaching the altar with her father, the bride was attired in a floor length gown featuring a sheer yoke, chantilly lace bodice and sleeves, pointed at the wrists. ## Anglers (to Be) Urged to Enter 'Fishing Rodeo'

Hey there, you budding anglers. Start saving those worms, 'cause Saturday's the date for the second annual Holland Fish and Game Club "Fishing Rodeo."

Sinkers will hit the water at 2 p.m.

Co-sponsored with the City Recreation department, the event officially known as Better Fishing Inc., has two aspects that should bring out another 300 children to Kollen Park.

First is the fishing. Prizes, currently on display in a downtown store window, will be awarded in a number of divisions. So far, in addition to the grand prize, awards are slated for the second heaviest fish caught by boy and girl, third heaviest fish, youngest boy and girl registering a fish and the first fish registered of any species.

And say mothers, don't worry about junior. Members of the police department will be on hand to give first aid, and lots of adult supervisors will keep an eye on the fishermen.

Entry regulations are simple. Contestants must be under 17 years of age on Saturday, and anyone under 10 years must be accompanied by someone 18 years or older.

Participants must furnish their own equipment and bait. Entries may be made at Main Auto Supply, Superior Sports Store or Bob's Sport Shop. A complete outline of rules is available at these locations.

Ottawa Farm News

Richard Machiele County Agricultural Agent

We are in need of two farms for crop variety demonstrations for next season. We would like to place winter barley varieties and oats varieties with someone interested in these crops. Usually six varieties are planted side by side, seed will be furnished by the crops department of Michigan State College. The County Agent will help plant the plots. Usually less than one acre will be needed. So that more folks would be able to see the plots a location on a main road will help.

I have seen a lot of Anthracnose or Cane spot of raspberries this season. This disease causes the canes to dry out and die just as the berries are ready to ripen. The new canes generally also are infected. Small circular grey spots on the new canes indicate the disease is present. In order to control this disease the old canes should be removed and burned as soon as they are through bearing. A spraying with fermetate helps after the canes are removed and a second spraying using lime sulphur early next spring before the leaves are fully developed.

Have you noticed the brownish-black insect about one-fourth of an inch long in your house. If it moves very slowly and falls when you touch it, it's the strawberry root weevil. They cause no damage in the house. Using Chlorodane outside the foundation of the house and a foot or two of the area around the foundation will keep them out of the house. Follow directions on the Chlorodane container. If they are already inside the house use the vacuum cleaner.

The department was also called out at 3 p.m. Monday when grass and railroad ties along the C&O right-of-way burned on property just behind the bulk plant of Theisen-Clemens Co. on the North side. John Vanden Burg is chief of Holland Township Fire Department No. 1.

Velderman Triples Gets Two Homers, Hurls 5-1 Win

North End hurler Case Velderman put on one of the finest hitting performances recently recorded at Van Tongeren Field as he slammed out two home runs and a triple in three times at bat accounting for all his team's scoring in a 5-1 triumph over North Holland.

It was strictly a personal performance as he also held the Hollanders to 5 singles. But the rest of the North End hitters also had their heavy artillery along as they walloped nine hits off losing pitcher Bern Ebels.

Velderman tripled in the second inning, later scoring on Don Van Ingen's single.

Velderman homered in the fourth inning.

Velderman homered again in the sixth, this time with two men on base.

Elsewhere for North End, Dell Koop had a double, and Van Ingen and Bill Zych had a pair of singles each.

North Holland's lone run came in the seventh on errors, as Jun Hop scored.

Al Bosch did the pitching and his mates did the hitting as Hulst Bros. racked up another win in the nightcap.

Hulst combined five hits for a 5-1 win over VFW.

The Vets took advantage of a Hulst error in the second inning as Al Kraal was safe on first, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on an error that put Bob Schutt all the way to third.

But that was all. Schutt didn't score, and neither did any more Vets.

In the meantime, in fact the next inning, Hulst tallied. Dale Hulst walked and scored on Glen Nykamp's single. That was a starter and in the next stanza Ron Wetherbee singled and scored on Bob Vork's center field double.

Vork later scored on a wild pitch.

Things were quiet until the sixth when Ed Klinge and Dale Hulst singled as the major factors in a two-run outburst.

But it was Al Bosch who really put on a mound performance. Bosch struck out 10 men, allowed no walks while getting tagged for only one hit.

Dog Notes

Exercise by Peter Boggs

In the "horse and buggy days" a favorite form of exercise for dogs was to let them run alongside or under or in front of the family carriage or the horseback rider. A still faster mode of exercise was to let your dog accompany you on a bicycle ride.

These methods were all right—if your dog was well enough and spirited enough to stand the pace. Which usually, he was. For the average canine, such jaunts were good training, except in the case of an all-day drive or of a cyclist "century-run." (Are you old enough to remember a century run?)

Then came the motor car with its speed of 30 miles an hour and more. No dog could keep that hot pace. So presently he was taken aboard, instead of galloping alongside. This left the problem of systematic exercise up in the air, except when an owner cared to accompany his dog on foot. Hiking is the ideal form of exercise for both master and dog.

But last year, one Arthur Lyons, of San Francisco, decided to exercise his dog by tying the animal behind his car. He drove 13 blocks before he was stopped by the S.P.C.A. The dog's paws were raw, and its underbody scraped and gashed. Lyons was jailed for 30 days.

When, if ever, will mankind learn common sense and humanity, in dealing with dogs?

A War Chanced Dogdom

It was a war of conquest which led indirectly to the forming of most of the varieties of dogs we see in America today. In 1066, a Norman duke—known to history as "William the Conqueror"—invaded and conquered England and became its king.

Up to that time there were only a few kinds of dogs in all Britain: chiefly the collie, the mastiff and certain hounds.

But the Conqueror and his nobles imported from France, a throng of fancy new breeds, ranging from bloodhounds and poodles to miniature spaniels and other lap dogs. That was the only phase of the Conquest which seems to have pleased the conquered inhabitants. They improved and developed these canine newcomers and blended them with their own few breeds until England was known as the foremost dog-raising country on earth.

As soon as the American colonists had time and money enough to indulge such luxuries, hundreds of the best of these British dogs were brought here. It is their descendants, for the most part, that form the dog population of America today.

And a war in 1066 started it all!
