Architect Hired To Examine Campus Needs

The architectural firm of Alden B. Dow Associates, Inc. of Midland, Mich., has been retained to develop plans to build new facilities to replace Van Raalte Hall, the College’s central administration building which was destroyed by fire in late April.

President Van Wylen said the firm will conduct a comprehensive study of the future development of physical plant needs for the entire campus as well as construction of new quarters for members of the administration.

The Apil 28 fire totally destroyed the 78-year-old Van Raalte Hall which was named for the founder of the College and city of Holland. Alden B. Dow Associates designed the College’s new health and physical education center and was architect for the recent expansion and renovations of the Phelps Hall dining room.

The architect is expected to make his first report to the college’s Board of Trustees at its October meeting.

The administration is presently located in scattered areas throughout the campus. Most of the central administration is housed in the DeWitt Center.

The process of salvaging documents damaged in the fire has been completed under the direction of Prof. John Hollerbach.

Approximately one-third of the materials stored in an estimated 100 file cabinets were destroyed by the fire. Another one-third was heavily damaged by water and/or smoke. The balance escaped with only the smell of smoke.

College officials also report that Van Vleck residence hall, damaged by fire on April 21, will be ready for the opening of the new school year.

The building suffered an estimated $250,000 damage when a painter accidentally set fire to the attic while burning old paint. The building, older than the Hope College campus, was in the final stages of a major restoration at the time of the fire.

Campus facilities will be utilized to their capacity when the 1980-81 school year begins in early September.

The freshman class is expected to number over 600 men and women and total enrollment should be slightly above last year’s fall semester headcount of 2,355 students.

New students will arrive on campus Saturday, Sept. 1 for three days of orientation.

There will be special orientation sessions for parents of new students, including meetings with members of the administration and information on groups on both Saturday and Sunday.

New students and their families are invited to a fine Grove picnic late Saturday afternoon.

Orientation continues Sunday, Sept. 2 with an 11 a.m. worship service for new students and their families in Dimnent Memorial Chapel.

An opening banquet for all new students will be held Sunday night.

After meeting with advisors on Monday morning students will be able to spend the rest of Labor Day in recreation, including time at the Lake Michigan beach.

Classes begin for all students Tuesday, Sept. 4, with the opening convocation that evening at 7:30 p.m. in Dimnent Memorial Chapel.

The Rev. Robert Scholte, pastor of Garden Grove Community Church in California, will be the convocation speaker.

The College will present an honorary Doctor of Divinity degree upon the Rev. Gordon Van Wyk, a 1941 Hope graduate who has been a missionary in the East for the past 35 years.

Members of the administration have been relegated in temporary quarters for the 1980-81 academic year as plans are developed for constructing a building to replace Van Raalte Hall.

NEW LOOK: Seventeenth street between College and Columbia Avenues has taken on a new look this summer with conversion of roadway into a pedestrian mall. Aerial photo looks east toward southwest. In foreground at right is DeWitt Student and Cultural Center. Toward upper right next to Dimnent Chapel is a new Van Raalte Hall site. Work had not started on west half of 12th Street when photo was taken, but it is expected to be completed in time for new school year.

Full Dorms Will Greet New Year

Major reconstruction has been done on the sidewalks and steps behind Durfee, Lobbins and Van Vleck Halls.

Several residence halls have been painted and renovated this summer, including the former Crispell Cottage which will become the first senior house on campus for members of the Delta Phi sorority.

Work is progressing on a $1.2 million renovation of Voorhees residence hall. The 73-year-old building is undergoing a total renovation which is expected to be completed during the second semester of the next school year.

Most of the exterior work has been completed with new windows and roof installed and the ivy-covered walls cleaned.

Three new members have been elected to the Hope College Board of Trustees. Doris Adams Young of Vian, Okla., Wm. the Rev. Robert J. Hoeksema of Rockford, Ill., and Dr. James W. Van Hoeven of Albany, N.Y., replace retiring trustees, the Rev. Russell Vande Bunte, the Rev. Herbert S. Van Wyk and Dr. James M. VerMuelen.

Associate Professor of Theatre George Ralph was re-elected family representative on the board and Dr. VerMuelen was named an honorary trustee. Dr. Victor W. Eimicke was re-elected chairman of the board and George F. Herring and William C. Wickers were re-elected vice-chairman and secretary, respectively.

News from Hope College invited each new member to submit a statement on their view of becoming a trustee. These statements follow the biographical sketches.

DORIS ADAMS YOUNG
A member of the Class of 1952, DeYoung attended Hope for three years and completed her degree requirements at the University of Wisconsin. She is a former member of the Hope Alumni Board and has been active in the Reformed Church Women's Fellowship. She is a member of the Board of Managers of Hope College and Wisconsin Women's League for Hope College. She has been a president of the Green Valley Enterprises, a faculty member for the handicapped.

She is married to Delbert DeYoung, a member of the Class of 1952, who operates a trucking company in Friesland and serves as president of the Board of Directors of Green Valley Enterprises, a facility for the handicapped.

ROBERT J. HOEKSEMA
Hoeksema is minister of Addisville Reformed Church, where he has served since 1976. Other pastorates is has served at First Reformed Church of Bethlehem in Selkirk, N.Y. and First Reformed Church of Hudson in Sleepy Hollow, N.Y.

He is a 1924 graduate of Hope and received his degree from Western Theological Seminary. He has served in continuing education at the Center for Continuing Education at Hope College, and a pastor in residence program at Union Theological Seminary and Princeton Theological Seminary.

He has been a former fire department chaplain, and member of Rotary and Kiwanis International. He has also served on the board of the Camp Powder of Speculator, N.Y. and Camp Geneva of Holland, Mich. Denominational service includes membership in the Christian Reformed Church of America and the Board of Pensions. He has also served on the Committee on Reconciliation.

Hoeksema is married to the former Lucille A. Tye 55. The couple has two children: Deborah, a Hope sophomore; and Denise, a high school senior. He is a high school graduate.

From Hope College I received a wife, friends and an education and a tradition. Without them my life would have been different; my joy greater, and many blessings to Hoeksema and I am indebted to her.

John Gardner invites in Excellence: Can We Be Equal and Excellent Too.

"We are beginning to understand that the various kinds of talents that flower in a society are the kinds that are valued in society. On a recent visit to Holland, my wife asked a Dutch teacher why children and adults in that country showed such extraordinary high incidence of language skills. We expect it," the woman said simply. "We think it's important."

I believe that Hope College is one of those places where the talents and attitudes necessary to maintain an excellent Christian citizenship are valued; therefore, eagerly anticipate sharing in the life of the school as a member of the Board of Trustees.

JAMES W. VAN HOEVEN
Van Hoeven is senior minister of First Church of Albany, N.Y. He is a member of the faculty of the Central College of Pella, Iowa, from 1964-1969, teaching in the departments of religion and philosophy.

He is a 1954 graduate of Hope and received his degree from Western Theological Seminary. He received the S.T.M. from Andrews University and a master of theological degree from Western Theological Seminary.

The Way It Was
Van Raalte Time Capsule Offers Look Back

The opening of a time capsule by a group of Hope College administrators was somewhat akin to an unexpected UPS delivered package outside a college student's dorm room.

Anticipation pulsed throughout the room as Hope College historical buff Dr. Elton Bruins stood over the dusty copper box while administrators gathered in the DeVere art gallery-turned-office.

The cornerstone for the Albertus C. Van Raalte Memorial Hall was laid during a ceremony June 18, 1902. On June 18, 1980, seven days prior to Van Raalte Hall's 75th anniversary, the cornerstone box was reburied.

Coincidentally, on June 18, 1902, Hope College graduated 15 of its 53 seniors as was revealed by a commencement program found in the box. The fire that destroyed Van Raalte Hall happened less than two weeks before commencement exercises graduated 50 seniors.

Memorabilia and baseball game tickets were casualties of the blaze but neither event was prepared or seriously hampered by the tragedy.

As the time capsule was carefully emptied of its contents, those present marvelled over the yellowed but well-preserved souvenirs of Holland and Hope.

Included in the contents were items relating to the Holland Public Schools, Western Theological Seminary, and Reformed Church in America.

Newspapers in Dutch and English reported the news and graduation sales of the day. President Van Wylen read aloud an ad for fans as the perfect gifts for graduates.

One headline in the June 18, 1902 edition of the Holland City News revealed that things don't always change that much over the years as it noted that "U.S. Needs Treaty With Cuba." Among the items relating to the city of Holland were Chamber of Commerce brochures promoting the recreational benefits of the area.

Near the bottom of the box was a copy of the biography of A.C. Van Raalte written by Dr. Henry DeWet and published in 1901. The copy is a gift of the author, inscribed by him.

In an envelope was a copy of the college catalog, a brochure, "The Forty-Fifth Anniversary of the Monophonic Society, Woman's Chapel," Friday Evening, June 18, 1920, 7:30 p.m. and a copy of the "Laying of the cornerstone of the A.C. Van Raalte Memorial Hall." The ceremony was presided over by President G.J. Kolken, consisting of poems, readings, prayers, music by the Hope College Choir and several addresses.

A copy of the 1901-02 Holland City Directory revealed that Holland had experienced a three-fold increase in population since 1890, putting it on the list of cities with over 10,000 residents for the first time.

One envelope contained items relating to the Semi-Centennial of Holland in 1902. Two days were given over to speechmaking and parades as Holland residents celebrated the arrival of the Dutch in the mid-1600s.

An exhibit of the items removed from the time capsule is on display in Van Zeeren Library.

The memory lingers on...

You can have a lasting memory of Van Raalte Hall by purchasing a brick salvaged from the ruins of the 75-year-old building.

For a minimum gift of $25 to the Van Raalte Hall Replacement Fund, you will receive a brick which has been wrapped in plastic and contains a photo of Van Raalte Hall during its early years.

Proceeds from this sale will go into a fund to finance construction of a new building to replace Van Raalte.

A gift receipt will be sent to all donors to this special fund.

Make your check payable to: Van Raalte Replacement Fund and mail to Hope College, c/o Development Office, Holland, MI 49423

LIMITED EDITION

Alumna Katherine Steketee MacKenzie '48 of Holland has designed a unique needlepoint kit to be used as a cover around a Van Raalte Hall brick (right).

This limited edition kit (only 25 numbered sets) is individually hand-painted on 12-mesh interlock canvas and is measured to fit precisely on a Van Raalte Hall brick. The kit includes a rendering of Van Raalte Hall on the top with the building's name on one side and Hope College on the other. The College's new and old seals appear on the ends.

Included in the kit will be sufficient amounts of 13 colors of Persian yarn for design and background, needle, felt (for bottom finishing), and tips for accurate stitching and assembly. Commercially, this kit would be valued at $30 without a brick.

Cost of the kit with Van Raalte brick is $50. Purchasers will receive a gift certificate receipt for $25 while the rest of the cost is to cover materials and shipping. Orders will be received until Friday, Oct. 24. If more than 25 orders are received, a drawing will be conducted to determine winners. Refund will be made to those whose names are not drawn. A check for $50 must accompany your order.

The Not-so-funny Papers

by Albert A. Bell, Jr., Ph.D.

Comic strips have been with us so long that we take them for granted. We assume they are in the paper to give us a chuckle as we start the day or relax before dinner.

But the "funny papers" have come a long way since 1890s, when they were introduced as a circulation booster by William Randolph Hearst.

For the first 50 years of their existence, one scholar has noted, the strips "contained nothing but grotesque or burlesque humor...that depended mainly on delight in others' misfortunes."

But "Pogo" and "Peanuts," which appeared in the late 1940s and early 1950s, introduced a new type of comic strip which, as character in "Pogo," once said, "ain't necessarily funny."

Today there are hundreds of humorous strips running in various papers across the country, and virtually all follow the lead of Walt Kelly and Charles Schulz in focusing their attention on social issues.

Their humor comes not from "delight in others' misfortunes" but from the reader's recognition that the strips are making valid, often profound, observations on human life. We recognize life as it is and occasionally see a glimpse of what it could be.

These strips have been analyzed by theologians, sociologists, philosophers and artists.

When I became interested in them several years ago, I decided to go right to what historians call the primary sources, the creators of the strips themselves. I was pleasantly surprised at the gracious responses.

They all stress the same point: They are humanistic, but they are all concerned about the human predicament.

Howard Post said his strip, "The Dropouts," reflects "man's concern with all the current and temporal issues (short of actual political parties) and with those root issues which remain always the domain of mankind: technology, survival, religion, interpersonal and societal relationships, etc."

It would be impossible to discuss all the strips running today, so let's look more closely at two: "Hi and Lois" and "Broom-Hilda."

"Hi and Lois" is a strip about a family and can be appreciated by all members of a reader's family. Mort Walker and Dik Browne, its creators, call to our attention the need to be constantly on the watch for one another's feelings.

This is important at a time when the breakdown of the family is a major problem facing our society. In one strip, a child tries to get his busy mother's attention but she brushes him aside: "Not now, Ditto! Go away and play! I have a million things to do!"

Ditto mopes away, saying: "I'm getting tired of this. She always has a million things to do—and not one of them is me."

Another strip gets to the heart of the problem of families' breakdown. As Hi finishes supper, Lois looks at their calendar: "Tonight's meeting on busing. Tomorrow's the zoning board hearing. Wednesday's the lecture on drugs. Thursday is the ecology rally, and Friday is the PTA discussing sex education for preschoolers."

As Hi gets dressed, he muses, "My father used to come home from work and rock on the front porch till 9 o'clock bedtime."

One of the most thought-provoking strips is "Broom-Hilda," whose three main characters represent different facets of human personality.

Once, when asked, "If you had one wish, what would it be?" they revealed their basic outlooks on life.

Gaylord, the vegetarian buzzard, wanted "to gain as much knowledge as possible until I perhaps someday understand the meaning of life."

Irwin, the gentle troll, would "like to give a flower to everyone in the world." But Broom-Hilda, a beer-guzzling, cigar-puffing witch, wanted to "kidnap Paul Newman, rent this cheap hotel room, and..."

The strip sometimes puzzles readers. Gaylord recently read a letter from a reader who complained: "I find the Broom-Hilda strip weird, bizarre, disturbing, and very, very strange."

A Alan A. Bell, Jr., is assistant professor of classics and history, having joined the Hope faculty in 1978. He is a graduate of Carleton-Neuman College and holds the M.A. from Duke University and the Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina. This article was originally a report for the National Federation of College Women's Clubs.
Ambassadors
Basketball Team's Trip to Mexico
More than Winning/Losing Games

It's a good thing that the Hope basketball team didn't visit Mexico primarily to win ball games.

Coach Glenn Van Wieren and eleven members of the Flying Dutchman team were surprised upon their arrival in Mexico City to learn that they were scheduled to play the Mexican Pre-Olympic basketball team, as well as a state all-star team and high-rated Mexican university teams.

"We weren't ready for that kind of competition. We played against some of Mexico's very best players. But we adjusted quickly," reports Coach Van Wieren.

During some of the games the Dutchmen were defeated with courtesy. But we adjusted quickly," reports Coach Van Wieren. "I think we accomplished that.

Van Wieren and the team spent two weeks (May 15-28) in Mexico. The trip was the first time that any Hope basketball team traveled outside the U.S. The trip was partially financed by donations from several Holland area Reformed churches, with individual team members paying the remainder of their costs.

After a week in Mexico City the team moved on to other games and work with the Reformed Church missionaries in San Cristobal and Buenos Aires in the state of Chiapas.

There are a lot of things that tourists don't usually see," notes Craig Van Arendonk, a senior from Kalamazoo, Mich. "Seeing the village was very enlightening for me personally.

Van Arendonk observes that the poverty of the villagers is matched by the dedication of Reformed missionaries working with them.

While in the San Cristobal area, the team was hosted by Vermont and Carla VandenBoorn Five Star, who were Hope classmates of Coach Van Wieren.

The Hope Dutchman team traveled to Buenos Aires where they were hosted by RCA missionaries Sam and Helen Taylor, Sib Hoffman, and Paul and Dee Meyrink.

Here the team was put to work painting the church and educational facility, inside and outside. "We were tired of playing ball by this time and ready to get some work done," admits Schrotenboer.

On Sunday in Buenos Aires the basketball players-turned-painters discovered they were expected to take on yet another duty: while attending the area Indian church, it became apparent that the natives wanted their visitors to serve as their choir. And so after more than six deep breaths for fortitude, the singers—after considerable effort to get the Indians to understand what was expected of them—began their worship services.

The entire service lasted about two hours and was conducted in the Indian language. The temperature outside was in the 90s and the church had a metal roof. Elders roamed around inside the church, waking people up. Over 700 Indians attended the service, despite the fact that the parking lot contained only two vans, two horses and a donkey. Many of the parishioners had walked for 1 1/2 hours in order to attend the service.

The highlight of their Sunday outing was attending church," observes Van Wieren. "The Indian culture is based on fear and superstition. Christianity has given these people freedom from their fears. It was inspiring to see them and worship with them.

The trip marked the second time in recent years that Hope students have aided RCA missionaries in Chiapas. During Christmas vacation, 1976, a group of Hopeites traveled to Tapachula where they began work on a swimming pool at a conference center there. These Hope students were the guests of RCA missionaries Chuck and Jean Taylor, Van Engen and their trip was sponsored by the Chaplin's Office and the Reformed Church.

In addition, the Hope Department of Business Administration and Economics sponsors a social responsibility internship program which places Hope students in work relationships with RCA missionaries in a variety of foreign locations.
Changes Announced in Athletic Administration

Two new appointments in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics have been announced by F. Sheldon Wettsack. Revel for the natural and social sciences.

Gordon Brewer, associate professor of physical education, recreation and athletics, has been chairman of the department while Raymond Smith, also an associate professor, has assumed Brewer's former responsibilities as director of men's athletics.

The new appointments follow the decision by Dr. William Vandenburg, associate dean and chairman, to return to full-time teaching in the department at the conclusion of his term as chairman, and after accepting the invitation from the department and college administration to assume the chairmanship responsibilities. Academic department chairman at Hope are appointed for one-year terms, in order to allow for periodic review of professional goals.

Vandenburg has been at Hope for eight years. Under his leadership the department has introduced new programs in recreation, dance and health fitness, and has moved into new facilities in the Dow Health and Physical Education Center.

In addition to assuming his new roles, both Brewer and Smith will continue with their current head coaching responsibilities, in track and field respectively. Vandenburg will continue to coach Hope's cross country team.

As chair of the department, Prof. Brewer will provide leadership and direction for the college's largest academic departments with eleven full-time and several part-time staff members. According to Wettsack, the responsibilities associated with this position have also increased in the past two years with the opening of the Dow Center. This new facility is the primary administrator for all programs emanating from the department and the Center. Working under the chairperson are the men's and women's athletic directors. The program director of the Dow Center, Drs. Anne Irwin and George Kraft hold the latter two responsibilities.

Prof. Brewer completed his undergraduate work at Hope in 1964 and an M.A. in history at the University of Michigan in 1965. He taught in the Kalamazoo Public Schools before joining the Hope faculty in 1965. Brewer has served as men's athletic director for the past 20 years. He is the fifth athletic director in the college's history following such prominent names as John (Jack) Schuiten, Bill Higdon and Al Vanderbuyst. Only Schuiten served in the position longer than Brewer.

While Brewer has been director of the college's athletic program, he has guided the team through its participation in the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association (NCIAA). He has been a member of the Division III steering committee since 1976 and also serves on the NCIAA post-graduate scholarship committee which is responsible for selecting recipients for the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association post-graduate scholarships.

Brewer has been active in the development of the school's athletic programs and in the sport of soccer. He has been involved in the development of the current league policies of the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association (MIAA) which is recognized as a model league for Division III schools belonging to the NCIAA. He is recognized as one of the major programs in the MIAA, he suggests that Brewer's positive influence and administrative experience, particularly for the administration of Division III athletic programs within the academic dimensions of a school such as Hope. I anticipate that his background and abilities will serve the department well as he chairs it during the next several years.

As director of men's athletics, Smith will continue Brewer's responsibilities in managing the college's athletic program. His past experiences include serving as a director of men's athletics at Hope.

Smith has been at Hope since 1979 and has served as head football coach during the entire time. He has established a winning tradition with an overall record of 65-22-3 and four MIAA championships.

Prior to coming to Hope, Smith coached at Annapolis College in California following a highly successful football career at UCLA. He also played professional football with the Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Canadian Football League. During the past seven years he has served as director of athletic recruiting at Hope.

According to Wettsack, "Smith will continue Brewer's tradition as a director of men's athletics. He understands the nature of a school such as Hope and I am confident that he will continue Brewer's leadership for the future development of our men's athletic program."

Smith will continue to serve as director of women's athletics and will work closely with Smith and Brewer in this capacity.

New Coaches Named In Soccer, Wrestling

Two new head coaches of men's athletic teams have been announced. Gregg Afman has been appointed assistant coach while Jim DeHorn will become wrestling coach.

Afman, who has served as assistant soccer coach for the past two seasons, succeeds Glenn Van Wieren who has resigned the Dutch for the past seven years.

Afman, an outstanding athlete at Calvin College, joined the Hope staff three years ago as junior varsity basketball coach. He will continue in that capacity.

He previously served two years as varsity soccer coach at Holland (Mich.) Christian High School. He is presently completing master's degree in physical education at Central Michigan University.

Van Wieren served as head coach from 1973-79 compiling a record of 51-46-6. For the past four years his teams have finished no higher than second. His 1977 squad captured the MIAA championship. He will now devote more time to a variety of responsibilities in the Department of Physical Education, Recreation, Athletics, as well as head coach of the men's basketball team.

Afman competed in basketball and track at Calvin, earning All American honors in the javelin.

DeHorn, a 1970 Hope graduate who competed in football and wrestling, will continue to serve on the faculty at Allen- Dale (Mich.) High School where he is chairman of the athletic department and a member of the First Reformed Church of Alton.

He is currently completing work toward a master's degree in athletic administration at Western Michigan University.

DeHorn replaces Bruce Hafington who had a one-year appointment as head coach. He also served as director of athletic recruiting at Hope.

According to Wettsack, "Smith will continue Brewer's tradition as a director of men's athletics. He understands the nature of a school such as Hope and I am confident that he will continue Brewer's leadership for the future development of our men's athletic program."

Smith will continue to serve as director of women's athletics and will work closely with Smith and Brewer in this capacity.
Bruce Johnston, associate dean of students, didn't spend entire summer on a rock pile, but was part of a group of volunteers who cleaned Van Raalte Hall brikes after they were removed from building rubble.

by Deb Hall '80

Ever wonder about the college professors who keep themselves out of trouble during the summer months when the majority of undergraduates are home filling up their bank accounts? Well, we at News from Home got curious one day and decided to seek out a handful of professors to find out what they really do during the three month vacation from the school year grind. The following is the product of our summertime sleuthing:

This summer, Bill Mayer, assistant professor of art, was found in his campus studio creating "mixed media drawings." "It's a type of collage," he said explaining his art form. Mayer used cardboard as his working surface (an idea inspired by students who did cardboard sculptures during the school year) and added "the unorthodox" to vary a constant theme which is present in his collection of drawings.

One finished piece features a cardboard tube from a small linecracker purchased in a variety store. The tube is onsale into the cardboard for a dimensional look. Of the cardboard, Mayer said it's not "elaborate, but has a nice quality." Behind glass, the cardboard takes on a rich hue. Drawing frame and glass add to what Mayer referred to as a "packaged idea."

Mayer's "packaged art" will be on display in a solo exhibit at Bethel College, in St. Paul, Minnesota, in October.

Three generations of the Penrose family spent eight weeks in Alaska. Larry Penrose, associate professor of history, his son Geoff, and his father, drove from Portland, Oregon to Anchorage, Alaska. They camped and fished along the way and returned to Portland via the ferry from Anchorage.

When asked why anyone would want to drive through Alaska, Penrose answered: "It's sort of my father's dream and he told me I'd have to go to Portland July 1 with his grandson.

Toews will be on academic leave at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory where he will work with the group responsible for monitoring x-ray and neutron radiation from various experiments involving basic physics research, energy research, and instrumentation. The basic physics project is an effort to detect neutrons from underground nuclear tests. The neutrino is a fundamental particle whose interactions with matter are very weak, making it hard to detect and therefore limiting our knowledge of its properties.

Laser fusion is an area of energy research in which laser beams are used to compress and heat heavy hydrogen isotopes until they fuse, releasing large amounts of energy. Toews' work will entail fabricating a system to measure x-rays emitted during the compression-fusion process. Information thus obtained is required for a good understanding of the process.

In the instrumentation project, a television camera and microcomputer will be combined to provide a system capable of rapidly analyzing an oscilloscope display, so that information about processes that take only microseconds can be analyzed and stored.

A phone call to the Harvey Blankenbaker residence revealed that the associate professor of biology and his family spent the entire summer probing swimmer's rich at the University of Michigan biology station in Pulion, Michigan.

Tom Ludwig and David Myers of the psychology department, Robin Kendrick-Gray of the economics department and Melard Westphal of the philosophy department combined forces this summer on a book bringing together their three separate disciplines.

Their purpose is to analyze the present economic situation from an economic and psychological perspective. Then, on the basis of biblical principles and insights from their analysis, they plan to make recommendations as to how Christians might respond to economic problems.

Their project has its roots in articles co-authored by Ludwig and Myers which discuss the psychological impact of economic changes. An editor at Gospel Press read one of the articles and suggested to Ludwig that he write a short book on the topic.

According to Ludwig, he and Myers felt they'd written everything they wanted to on the subject from the viewpoint of psychologists. To expand the topic into a book they needed to incorporate the expertise of an economist and someone who could give the subject a philosophical and historical perspective. Hence, they called in the talents of Klay and Westphal.

They plan to finish the book by September 1, and hope for publication next summer.

Professor of chemistry Don Williams wrote a paper for a group of Lake Michigan environmentalists in Chicago. The topic was how to persuade a legislator that he can care for Lake Michigan and keep his job.

And as always, Williams maintained and added to his collection of funny signs. He takes photographic slides of signs that aren't meant to be funny, but are such as "Leemre's Used Cars" or "Dr. Max Carver---General Surgery" or "Terry Hunt---D.D.S."

Laws and funny signs are "a way of seeing things that makes driving around the country so much more enjoyable."

The economics and sociology departments combined ranks in the persons of Bob Cline and Ron Mulder.

They received a grant from the Grand Rapids Area Employment and Training Council, an association of local government agencies that coordinate CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act) programs in Grand Rapids.

The labor market research project is a bi-level study. Cline, specializing in microeconomics and econometrics, has been developing an econometric model to forecast employment opportunities by industry over the next two years.

Mulder's specialty is survey research. He has been surveying major employers to find out what jobs are opening up, the extent of on-the-job training, and the skills needed to fill the positions. Mulder is also surveying occupational educational programs to identify the supply of new workers in various occupations.

Their findings will be published in an international package for use by area vocational education programs. CETA agencies and high school counselors. They expect to work through December of 1981 making the study available sometime in January of 1982.

Summer vacation for Ruth Todd, chairman of the department of foreign languages and literatures included a five-week trip to Greece. According to Todd, there was no "digging," but the group of professionals involved in various aspects of the specialized archaeological sites and museums. The trip included stops on the islands of Phikopi and Lepso.

Chairman of the religion department, Elton Bruins, completed a 205 page family history this summer.

The Bruins family chronicle was published in time for the July 17 family reunion. The history begins with the family settling in Alto, Wisconsin, and includes a brief history on Alto's Reformed church, reminiscences by individual family members, a genealogy, and a 17-page index.

Dr. Bruins, who is the chairman of the Archivist Council of Hope College, and a historian on Holland history also devoted time to researching the Masonic Controversy of 1877-1882 in Holland which caused greater division between the Reformed church and the Christian Reformed church.

In the search for interesting and somewhat "off-the-wall" professional activities, Nancy Taylor, associate professor of English, happily agreed to the following: "What I'm doing this summer is not off-the-wall, it's on-the-wall." The Taylor household among other things, painted, papered, and put up riding on their walls.

Actually, Taylor did more with her summer than what she originally told News From Hope. The English department sponsored four courses in writing and literature during the first week in August. Taylor, coordinator of the program, taught a session studying the content and structure of novels by three winners of the Nobel Prize for Literature—John Steinbeck, Pearl Buck and William Faulkner.

25th Anniversary Vienna Summer School Tour for Alumni and Friends

Dr. Paul Fried, Director of International Education, announces plans to celebrate the silver anniversary of the Hope College Summer School in Vienna, Austria with two special programs for alumni and friends next summer.

Since 1955 over 1,000 students from Hope and other colleges have participated in the Vienna program. All friends of the College are invited to join Vienna alumni in this program.

VIENNA SEMINAR PROGRAM

June 22-26, 1981

Focus will be on the cultural, social, political and economic dimensions of contemporary Europe—the historic setting of the Austrian capital. Seminar sessions will include joining Hope students enrolled in the Vienna Summer School during some of their regular classes; meetings with government officials, excursions and receptions, as well as attendance at musical performances.

Austrian and other European alumni, Hope students in Vienna and other friends will be invited to the final banquet, which will also mark the end of the first three-week session of the Vienna Summer School.

STUDY TOUR

Through Czechoslovakia, Poland & Hungary

June 28 to July 11, 1981

The week-long seminar in Vienna and environs will be followed by a 13-day bus tour through important parts of Eastern Europe. A variety of excursions and activities highlighting the historical and political significance of four important cities should provide participants with insights not generally available to tour groups.

Because faculty and students of the Hope College Vienna Summer School have visited all three countries frequently during the past 20 years the college has many friends in this area who will assist in making this tour a truly memorable event.

For further information write: Dr. Paul Fried, Director of International Education, Hope
The new program balancing the exchanges was initiated by a 1977 visit to Meiji Gakuin by Hope President Gordon Van Wyk and a visit by Meiji Gakuin University Chancellor Kanai and American studies professor Gordon Van Wyk (Hope '50) to Hope in 1978.

In Japan, Hope students went to classes from 8:00 until 3:00, Monday through Thursday. Three days a week they had sessions on Japanese language. Other classes included seminars on contemporary Japanese social and economic issues and a joint seminar preparing for the arrival of Japanese students on Hope's campus in the fall. Complementing the lecture seminars were field trips to factories and businesses on Fridays.

Hope student Holly Cope was interested in learning about Japanese business. She tried to go to bank management and expressed an interest in penetrating Japanese business. "They said, 'Women aren't in bank management,' and wouldn't answer questions," she said. "They said a woman's duty is to be a mother."

Cope was one of 11 Hope students who went to Japan. Among each other, these students now share some Japanese words and phrases, and when they get together they talk about everything from fish to ice cream, Japanese shrink to American shrines in Japan—MacDonald's and Pizzahut.

Expecting houses of bamboo and rice paddies, Cope and David Schackow were amazed at modern Tokyo. They experienced a "very cosmopolitan" city describing its people as "more European than we are."

Schackow recalled an evening out on the town with several Meiji Gakuin students. "I looked around the table and they were all eating with forks and we were all using chopsticks," he said.

Luckily for Schackow, MacDonald's and Pizzahut were a couple of "western" features of Tokyo. Schackow hates fish, the main element of Japanese diet. It's possible after sampling such eastern delicacies as smoked squid and octopus, Schackow had fish even more.

But he wasn't alone. It was difficult for most of the Americans to eat the raw and exotic fish without a little hesitation.

"The first time around it was 'uh oh, I know what this is and if I don't put it in my mouth now, I never will,'" explained Craig Schumann.

Schumann did try the sushi (raw fish) and liked it. He even liked the salty dried seaweed he had for breakfast at one of his homestays. Cope seemed the most enthusiastic about Japanese food. She made soup every day, over a description of "tempura"—vegetables and shrimp fried in light batter and dipped in soy sauce. And while Schackow craved chocolate cake ala mode, Cope raved about Japanese ice cream declaring it "better than ours."

"However, 'student cannot live by bread alone' and the escapades of Hope students in Japan included things other than food.

For instance, Cope, Schackow, and Schumann had individual impressions of the city—its physical nature. Collectively, their comments described Tokyo and other Japanese towns as "shabby," "poorly planned," "exotic," and "urbanized" with streets "zig-zagging and criss-crossing."

According to Schumann, Japanese cities are poorly planned and cluttered because of the space at which they had to rebuild after the destruction of World War II.

However, in the midst of the populated city of 18 million, a shrine which by Cope's description sounded like a Garden of Eden.

"It's peaceful," she said, "a forest right in the middle of total city chaos.

Friday field days included visits to Buddhist and Shinto shrines. The group visited Kyo-to, an ancient Japanese capital famous for its shrines and imperial castles.

According to the students the Japanese people seem to practice their religion individually before the ornate shrines—seemingly whenever they pass. Christianity is growing but only a small percentage of the people practice the faith.

Meiji Gakuin is a Christian institution and according to Schackow the Japanese are very accepting toward Christians—they are a bit incredulous that Sunday mornings are set aside for group worship.

The comparison of American culture to Japanese culture went beyond religious customs. Schackow discovered the true meaning of the phrase "middle class" used to describe the ethnic culture of America. Japan is a mono-cultural and as a result the respect between the people for each other is greater.

Crime is at a minimum. Schackow said that the worst thing for a Japanese to do is to hurt a fellow Japanese.

Along the lines of being a mono-culture, one might say that Japan is a short mono-culture.

"Everything is mini," said Schackow, "doorways, subways, cars, people, buses..."

"First assistant professor of sociology and director of the Hope program" and Schumann have bups on their heads from running into doorways," said Cope. "I'm only 5'3 and I fit right in size-wise."

A definite bonus in student exchanges is the quality of the experience as compared to what a tourist might experience.

Hope students stayed with families on weekends and got first-hand impressions of how the Japanese really live. In the families they saw the mix of customs—old and new. Schackow related an incident where a family showed him slides of their wedding. The couple wore the traditional kimono during the wedding ceremony then changed into western wedding gowns for the reception. On the streets of Tokyo, the older generation wears the kimono while members of the younger generation wear the latest European styles.

According to Schackow, a tourist would never have experienced all the native sites that Hope students experienced with Meiji Gakuin students. He listed native restaurants, villages, homestays, travel and the classes and visits to Japanese businesses as examples.

Cope had an experience that, for her, summed up the friendliness of the Japanese people. The day the Hope students left Tokyo for home, Cope lost her plane ticket and her passport. A Japanese girl on the street noticed the anxiety on Cope's face and offered her help. The girl spent the entire afternoon with Cope at the police station. In the city looking for the missing items, she was Cope's babysitter and when nothing turned up and the American embassy was notified, she arranged for a new passport, which was sent by her to Cope off her. She had arranged to stay for the night. Cope was, as the boy said, amazed that somebody off the street would offer that much assistance.

No wonder she can't wait for the Japanese students to arrive in the fall. No wonder she is excited for the next group of Hope students to arrive in Tokyo. Cope experienced an own.
Garbage! A Not So Trashy Vocation

by Eileen Beyer

While “Oh, rubbish” has made it into some pretty posh circles, garbage is not exactly a conversation starter. True, more than one domestic argument has been generated over the question of who’s going to take it out.

It has inspired a few unforgettable literary images—like the valley of ashes which serves as a backdrop for the eyes of Doctor J. R. Eckleburg in F. Scott Fitzgerald’s The Great Gatsby. And what was the first thing that came to mind when you heard the phrase “trash man”?

But for the most part, people consider garbage to be a rather trashy topic and they would rather bag it than talk about it.

So Peter H. Huizenga, 60, vice president and secretary of the Board of Waste Management, Inc., of Oak Brook, Ill., the most consistently profitable company in the burgeoning management consulting industry, decided to write a book that would bring up the subject of garbage and its management.

He’s written a book, and he’s taking it on tour to promote the message of waste management.

Huizenga’s book, “Thorny Issues,” is a first-person narrative that deals with the history of the garbage industry, the challenges of managing waste, and the future of the industry.

He’s even named a public seminar on waste management after his book: “Huizenga’s Great Garbage Seminar.”

The seminar is designed to educate and inform the public about the importance of waste management and to encourage the development of better practices.

In his book, Huizenga argues that waste management is a critical issue for our society and that it must be taken seriously.

He writes, “Garbage is not just a matter of personal hygiene; it’s a matter of public health, safety, and the environment.”

Huizenga’s book is a call to action for all citizens to take responsibility for their waste and to support the companies that are working to manage it.

He concludes his book with a message of hope, saying, “We need to face the facts about our garbage problem and work together to find solutions.”

The book is available in bookstores and online.

Garbage management is a growing industry, and it is expected to continue growing as our society becomes more aware of the importance of waste management.

Garbage management is a critical issue for our society, and Huizenga’s book is a valuable resource for those who want to learn more about this important topic.

Great Ovations

Michigan Congressman Guy Vander Jagt '53 has put the oratory skills he gained at Hope to good use in recent months. He is pictured addressing the 3,000 people, including President Carter, who attended annual National Prayer Breakfast. Calling his message "powerful and inspirational," the editors of The Saturday Evening Post published it in its August-September edition. Vander Jagt also delivered keynote addresses to Republican National Convention and to the Parents' Club. Later, when interviewed by NBC, he credited his College speech teacher, the late William Schriker, for developing his oratory skills. Vander Jagt was a nationally-recognized orator during his undergraduate days.

Help!

We have rebuilt our file of past Alumni Magazines, but are in need of two editions of New Hope College to be able to have a complete set. We would appreciate receiving two copies of the May-June 1976 edition and one copy of the November-December 1975 edition of News from Hope College.

The Alumni Office is in need of many editions of past Milestones. These are vital in helping plan reunions and in conducting research for our publications. We need Milestones for every year except the following: 1916, 1919 (two), 1922, 1923, 1946, 1967, 1968, 1971, 1974, 1975, and 1978.

We also would like to complete our file of past editions of the College Catalog. We need catalogs for every year except 1927 thru 1923, 1924, 1925, 1931 thru 1930.

We would be pleased to receive any of the above materials. Please send them to: Office of Information Services, Hope College, Holland, Michigan 49423.

ALL IN THE FAMILY PLAN

McDonald's of Holland and Grand Haven will again team up with Hope College to offer a super football ticket special for the entire family. You and all members of your immediate family can attend all Hope College home football games by purchasing an All in the Family pass for $16. When you do you'll receive from McDonald's a number of coupons worth more than $10 in McDonald's menu items, as their way of thanking you for supporting Hope College.

RESERVED SEASON TICKET

A prime 50-yard-line seat on the home side will be reserved for the entire season for only $16. Your season ticket will also provide one admission to the Community Ox Roast on Sept. 6.

RESERVED PARKING

$5 per car for the entire season. An option available only to season ticket holders. Arrive just before kickoff and avoid a long walk by parking adjacent to the stadium.

SINGLE GAME TICKETS

(Available after August 15)

General admission tickets will be on sale in Dow Center office at $2.50 for adults and $1 for students. Single game reserved seats available beginning for $4.00 each.

1980 HOME SCHEDULE

Sept. 6 - Grand Valley (Community Ox Roast), 1:30 p.m.
Sept. 20 - DePauw, 1:30 p.m.
Oct. 4 - Kalamazoo (Youth Day), 1:30 p.m.
Oct. 25 - Albion (Homecoming), 2:15 p.m.
