WEEKLY NEWS REVIEW.

THE EAST.

GEN. G. K. WARREN, United States army, died at Newport, R. I. He had been confined to his bed less than a week, but for a long time, especially since the close of the recent court of inquiry relative to his conduct at the battle of Five Forks, he had shown signs of great mental depression. The deceased leaves a widow and three small children. He was in charge of the United States Engineer department for the New England district.... The trustees of the mammoth hotel at Rockaway beach have leased it to a syndicate for a long term.... The cattle plague now prevailing in two townships near Reading, Pa., swept off thirty-one head in two weeks. The victims dropped dead in the pasture or the stable, and their poisonous condition prevents any attempt being made to secure the hides.

The wholesale grocers of Philadelphia have been notified of an advance of 25 per cent. in the price of matches.... Lightning fired no less than twenty-four buildings in various parts of New England one night last week, causing a loss of $150,000.... Feltville, a deserted village in New Jersey, was sold by a receiver for $11,450. There are eight hundred acres of land, twenty houses, two mills, a church, school-house and store, and $250,000 was once offered for it. It was built by Felt, a paper manufacturer, who transferred it to Townsend, the sarsaparilla man, who placed a mortgage of $60,000 upon it.

ALEXANDER TEEL, of Erie, Pa., was poisoned by taking medicine bought from a street-corner peddler, and died in one hour. Others suffered from partaking of the same medicine.

After having purchased for $300 a "gold" brick, which he supposed to be worth $8,000, a New York physician caused the arrest of the clever swindler, but the Police Magistrate discharged the man on the ground that the doctor supposed he was buying stolen property, and hence was not entitled to the protection of the courts.

THE WEST.

GEORGE VON HOLLEN, who recently died in Chicago, will be remembered as a defaulter for $125,000 while City Collector in 1876. For some years he was a refugee at Hamilton, Ont., but returned to Chicago as a witness, on promise of immunity. Failing to keep faith with the city authorities, he was kept in jail for several months. He was a native of Holland, and was about 48 years of age.... A. G. Leonard, editor of the Cairo (Ill.) Gazette, was fatally stabbed by a colored policeman named George W. Tanner.... A white man lying in jail at the Quabam Agency, Indian Territory, killed his guard, a Wyandotte Indian, by pinning him to the floor with a coal pick.... Friedrich Peters, a Chicago cigar maker, shot his sweetheart with a fatal result, wounded another girl, and then killed himself.

The Northern Pacific road is now running regular trains to Forsyth, forty-nine miles west of Miles City, and accommodation trains go to "Pompey's Pillar," 190 miles east of Bozeman. Track is being laid at the rate of two miles per day.... The survey for the Hennepin canal will be in charge of Maj. Benard, now stationed in Chicago, and work will commence on the completion of orders now being prepared.... Five cases of the most virulent type of small-pox have been discovered in a house at Stanchfield, Minn., and a quarantine has been established by the State Board of Health.

PAUL TOLLNER, a machinist, living at No. 315 East Division street, Chicago, shot and killed his wife and then killed himself in the same manner. Domestic troubles and poverty were the inciting causes.

Three laborers were killed and thirty or forty injured on the Minneapolis and St. Louis line, near Waseca, Minn., by the derailing of a train and the falling down an embankment of the caboose in which they were riding.... A fire at Spokane Falls, Wash. Ter., destroyed over $40,000 worth of property, partially insured. Several men were very severely burned.

The Chicago Tribune, concerning the crop outlook, says: "Taking the reports as a whole, it is safe to say that corn in Illinois now promises 75 per cent. of an average yield, and with good weather for the remainder of August the September report will be likely to show a still higher average condition. Nebraska seems to have been the most favored of all the Western States this year in the prolific yield of all her agricultural products. Wheat, corn, oats and potatoes promise to exceed all previous crops in the history of the State. The reports as to wheat and corn from Minnesota and Dakota continue to be in the main very favorable. The four southern tiers of counties in Michigan have suffered enormously from damage to wheat in the shock by an unparalleled duration of wet weather accompanied by high temperature."

A most horrid and brutal murder was enacted in Evansville, Ind., a few nights ago. Alexander Wieber, a German saloon-keeper, his wife, and his little son 7 years old, were found murdered in their house, the father and mother in their bed, and the boy in an adjoining room, evidently killed while attempting to escape. The heads of all three were crushed with a hatchet, and their throats cut and mangled in a most brutal manner. An infant of 6 months was found unharmed in its crib, smiling and crying, unconscious of its bereavement. The furniture on the premises was scattered and thrown about promiscuously. Two drawers of a bureau were drawn out, while the middle one was found locked, and in it $56.50. George Lenhart, Charles W. Carter, Philip Vell and Joe Byrd were arrested on suspicion.

THE SOUTH.

Out of 106 persons on board the steamer Goldust, which burst her boilers off Hickman, Ky., 64 were taken on board the City of Alton, 13 are known to be dead, 12 badly burned were left at Hickman, and 17 are missing. Capt. McCord was but slightly hurt.... Yellow fever is rapidly increasing at Brownsville and Matamoros. At Corpus Christi a company of citizens guard every road into the city.... August crop returns to the Department of Agriculture from about 6,000 correspondents throughout the crop-producing area of the United States give a generally favorable report. During the month of July cotton has improved. The condition of spring wheat Aug. 1 was higher than for several years. It is thought probable that the combined spring and winter wheat product will without loss from sprouting, reach 600,000,000 bushels, and that estimates assuming 15 to 20 per cent. more are wild assumptions to reduce the price of wheat in the hands of farmers. The European outlook is favorable for a medium crop, with a slight reduction in quality. The condition of the corn crop in the United States is represented 83, as against 77 last year. The general average condition of other crops is good.... It has been decided by the Garfield Monument Committee of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland to give a national fair, bazaar and industrial and art exposition in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington, commencing Nov. 22, 1882, the proceeds to be applied to the erection at Washington of a monument to the memory of President Garfield.

This action was taken after the proceedings of the Republican State Convention.... Stewart, independent Republican candidate for Governor in Pennsylvania, has invited Gen. Beaver, the regular nominee, and Pattison, the Democratic candidate, to discuss with him in public the political matters of the State.

The Washington (D. C.) Sunday Gazette, in an article attacking the prosecution in the pending star-route cases, and more particularly ex-Attorney General McVeagh and ex-Postmaster General James, publishes a letter over the signature of ex-Senator S. W. Dorsey to President Garfield, in which it professes to find the animus of the star-route prosecution. The letter was written soon after Garfield's election, with the idea that he was about to consult with Col. George A. Bliss as to the New York representation in the Cabinet. It advised the General to have no intercourse with such men of comparative small renown, and not to ignore Conkling and Arthur and their following in order "to make peace with Curtis, Wayne MacVeagh and others of that class." The letter says: "We now have a great, well organized, active and aggressive army. If you want to muster out that army in order to pick up sneaks, bummers and deserters in the rear go ahead, and I predict you will land in a surrendered camp. I am tired of this blithering talk about McVeagh to go into the Cabinet from Pennsylvania, and James from New York. Such detestable rot should be smoked out at once, and you ought to do it in some public way, as I have repeatedly urged upon you." John Kelly, of New York has written, and the Tammany organ has published, a manifesto declaring, in effect, that the Tammanyites will never enter the regularly-called Democratic primaries.

Other estates of which he was the manager are also thought to have suffered. He was a highly-esteemed citizen, and a trustee of the principal Presbyterian Church.... The fall and spring wheat crop of Canada is an abundant one.

At the annual meeting of the National Bar Association, at Saratoga, Alexander R. Lawton, of Georgia, was elected President, and the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the frequent occurrence of cases of irregular and fraudulent practices in the conduct of suits for divorce, involving the abuse of the process of the courts, breach of professional obligation, and connivance at actual crime, the local councils of the association and the several State and local bar associations be respectfully requested to so far as possible expose such irregularities and frauds, and secure the punishment of all parties concerned in them.

Resolved, That, in view of the growing evil of hasty and ill-considered legislation, and of defective phraseology in statute law, the association recommends the adoption by the several States of a permanent system by which the important duty of revising and maturing acts introduced into Legislatures shall be entrusted to competent officers, either by the creation of special commissions or committees of revision, or by devolving the duty upon the Attorney General of the State.

ADVICES from Mexico report that the San Carlos renegade Indians are committing fearful depredations in Sonora. A GREAT anti-Christian demonstration occurred at the funeral, in Beyrout, of a Moslem found murdered, and who was reported killed by Christians. The police sympathized with the mob. Many Christians fled to the mountains. A score of others were arrested, but only one was killed.

The New York Spirit of the Times charges the English Amateur Rowing Association with deliberate falsehood, in that, after stating that they had written to America inquiring about the status of the Hillsdale crew, no such letters have been received, and it is very probable they have never been penned.... Meany, a well-known Irish reform agitator, who left New York weeks ago, was arrested at Ennis, Ireland, his native town, on suspicion, by the British authorities.... A holy war against the Christians is being preached in Morocco.... The population of France, according to the official returns of the census, is 37,672,043.

The London Times says the English forces will not retire from Egypt and leave events to take their own course, and when the consent of Europe is necessary to sanction such a course it will be invoked in a manner very different from that with which we have lately been familiar. A German organ says the interests of Germany are not menaced, and when they are, she will have time for resolution. Her only aim at present is European peace. The Sultan's proclamation against Arabi declares him a religious rebel.... Baron Magnus, late German Minister to Copenhagen, died at Berlin.

DOINGS OF CONGRESS.

On Tuesday, the 8th inst., at 3 o'clock p. m., Congress finally adjourned. That day in the Senate, Mr. Windom submitted a report in regard to the use of money to defeat the Bonded Spirits bill. A bill was passed to transfer to the Garfield Memorial Hospital certain property of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's Home. Mr. Pendleton secured the adoption of a vote of thanks to the presiding officers. Hon. David Davis, Messrs. Anthony and Bayard were appointed a committee to notify the President that the Senate was ready to adjourn. A request by Mr. Morrill that the Tax bill be passed by unanimous consent was received on the Democratic side with derision, and the Senate adjourned sine die. The House of Representatives, after listening to the reading of the journal, took a recess to noon, and subsequently extended it to 3 o'clock. Messrs. Hiseock, Carpenter and Atkins were appointed a committee to wait on President Arthur, who informed them that he had no further business for Congress. Several ineffectual attempts were made to pass Senate bills. Speaker Keifer returned thanks for generous treatment, and the members left hastily for their trains.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

Dispatches of the 9th inst. state that De Lesseps has telegraphed to Constantinople that the whole of Egypt has embraced the cause of the national party, and that the English will find everywhere a determined opposition. The rebels at Ramleh made a forward movement but were repulsed by shots from the British iron-clad Temeraire. Lord Beresford has been promoted to the rank of Captain for services during the bombardment of Alexandria. Thirty-seven battalions of English militia have volunteered for service in Egypt. Gladstone states that arrangements have been made to prevent the telegraphing of information to Arabi Pasha from England. A cable is being laid from Alexandria to Port Said.

News from the seat of war of the 10th inst. is to the effect that the armored train of Alexandria, which patrols the track nightly, exchanged a few shots near Wallahs Junction with the second line of rebel intrenchments. The family of Gen. Stene was escorted from Cairo to Port Said by Arabi Pasha's men, at the request of the American Consul. Dervish Pasha, having completed his preparations to leave for Egypt, went to the palace at Constantinople and asked for orders, when he was told to wait for instructions. The Sultan has signed an irade proclaiming Arabi Pasha a rebel. Thirty thousand persons witnessed the departure of the Gordon Highlanders from Aberdeen. The Egyptian rebels are fortifying the junction of the Suez, Ismailia and Cairo lines of railroad.

At the sitting of the conference at Constantinople, the British Ambassador, on the 10th inst., announced the assent of England to the plan for a temporary international protection of the Suez canal. He repeated his demand for a protection against Arabi, and that Turkish troops be under control of England. In the British House of Commons the Under Foreign Secretary stated that the Porte had submitted to the English Government the draft of a proclamation supporting the authority of Arabi Pasha by name. Mr. Gladstone announced that an indefinite occupation of Egypt was not contemplated. The Turkish Government will at once send 5,000 troops to Egypt to co-operate with the British forces. In the mean time England continues to forward troops to Alexandria, evidently concentrating a formidable army. Some of the feudatory states of India have volunteered to furnish contingents for the English army.

England's reply to the questions of the Russian representative in the conference touching the occupation of Suez has given satisfaction. Great Britain insists that, should an international police be formed for guarding the canal, they must not interfere with military operations. The Turkish newspapers have assumed a friendly tone toward England, and the ulemas have been prohibited from preaching for Arabi. The conduct of De Lesseps in Egypt is causing complications. Preparations are making in England for the sending to Egypt of additional troops. Alexandria dispatches of Aug. 12 state that Arabi was constructing a strong redan and high embankments about 5,000 yards from Ramleh. A holy war is being preached in Morocco.

The Mussulman priests say Arabi Pasha, inasmuch as he is opposing aggressions by a Christian nation against a Moslem country, is simply fulfilling his duties as a good follower of the Prophet, and therefore the Sultan must not take part with a power determined to crush Arabi. Cable dispatches of the 15th reported a great deal of excitement at Port Said, and an outbreak was expected at any moment. It was stated that a wide divergence of views existed between the Porte and Lord Dufferin touching the wording of the manifesto against Arabi.

No Match.

We will call him Major, though that is not his title. He is not married; but if he had not been matrimonially inclined this o'er-true tale would not now have an existence. A short time ago the Major selected a wife. The matrimonial adventure was in answer to a newspaper personal, to which he hurriedly replied. The answer was prompt. Photographs were exchanged and a meeting was arranged to take place in New York. The lady was all that his imagination had painted her, except that she limped. This was a serious drawback in his eyes. She interrupted his thoughts and relieved him of further embarrassment in that direction by remarking, "Sir, I am most agreeably surprised to find in you the polish and refinement that my heart desired, and—"

Here she halted, and our friend, highly pleased with the delicate compliment, was wondering if he couldn't, after all, endure a slight physical deformity in a lady of so much intelligence and possessed of so many charms. Here the lady resumed:

"And nothing would afford me greater delight than to wed you, but there is an obstacle—"

"Stop!" interrupted the gentleman. "I know what you are about to say. Your beauty, your amiability, your grace and loveliness more than compensate for any such slight defect—"

"Oh, you misunderstand," she said; "it is more than a slight defect. I fear it forms an inseparable barrier between us and—"

"No, adorable one. It is not so. If you had two cork extremities instead of one, it should be no obstacle."

"Sir!" she exclaimed, and her eyes flashed with indignation. "My lameness is temporary, and is not due to any deformity whatever. When you interrupted me I was about to say that I had mentally resolved never to wed a man who was not taller than myself, and in spite of your attractions I must live up to my resolution." You are a head and a half too short."

The interview terminated very abruptly.—Hartford Times.

Hints to Letter-Writers.

It is a matter of common complaint in business offices that a large number of correspondents, many of them of the most intelligent class, often neglect to give the name of the State as well as the place from which their letters are dated. Subscriptions to newspapers, orders for goods, and many other communications are sent through the mails in this incomplete form, and the receivers are neither able to fill the orders nor to return the money for want of the full addresses of the senders. Sometimes letters calling for answers are posted without even a date; sometimes they have dates, but the postoffices or States are wanting. There are firms which number cases of this kind by the thousand. It does not always answer to take the postmark on an envelope, even when that is legible, for the regular postoffice of the writer; because he may have posted the letter at some other than his regular postoffice, or in a postal car. There is but one business way of commencing a letter, and that includes the legible inscription of the place where written in full, unless the writer prefers to give this information at the foot of the page. When the communication is on business, and as a general rule in all cases, the postoffice address of the writer should be distinctly given under his signature or in the body of the letter, whenever it is different from the name of the place at which the communication is written.

This cheap and simple remedy is recommended by somebody for the nose-bleed: Move the jaws rapidly, as in the act of chewing. A wad of paper, or gum, or tobacco, or a piece of boarding-house beef, will answer for the experiment.

MICHIGAN AFFAIRS.

Michigan as a State.

The Chicago Inter Ocean voices the facts, as seen and recognized by the people of the metropolis of Illinois, when it says that "Michigan is not a State to be sneezed at as a land of big fires, malaria and mosquitoes." She last year, according to statistics, turned out 2,330,000 tons of iron ore, 15,000,000 bushels of salt, 4,000,000 feet of lumber, more copper and more charcoal than any other State in the Union, and as rich stores of minerals and timber as any, and the coming decade will see her take a long stride to the front. Chicago is as deeply interested in the prosperity of Michigan as in Illinois, and millions of her capital are invested in developing the wealth of her mines and forests.

Health in Michigan.

Reports to the State Board of Health, Lansing, by seventy-three observers of diseases in different parts of the State, show causes of sickness during the week ending Aug. 5, 1882, as follows:

Diseases in Order of Greatest Area of Prevalence.	Number and Per Cent. of Observers by Whom Each Disease Was Reported.	Number.	Per Cent.
1. Intermittent fever.....	54	74
2. Diarrhea.....	53	73
3. Rheumatism.....	46	63
4. Consumption, of lungs.....	42	58
5. Cholera morbus.....	40	55
6. Neuralgia.....	40	55
7. Remittent fever.....	32	44
8. Bronchitis.....	25	34
9. Cholera infantum.....	23	32
10. Dysentery.....	23	32
11. Tonsillitis.....	16	22
12. Erysipelas.....	16	22
13. Influenza.....	15	21
14. Whooping-cough.....	12	16
15. Typho-malarial fever.....	11	15
16. Diphtheria.....	11	15
17. Pneumonia.....	11	15
18. Measles.....	10	14
19. Inflammation of bowels.....	9	12
20. Scarlet fever.....	8	11
21. Puerperal fever.....	7	10
22. Typhoid fever (enteric).....	5	7
23. Small-pox.....	3	4
24. Eczema.....	2	3
25. Mumps.....	2	3
26. Inflammation of eye.....	2	3
27. Cerebro-spinal meningitis.....	2	3

Beside those tabulated above, the following-named diseases were reported each by one observer: Diabetes, Bright's disease, chorea and membranous croup. For the week ending Aug. 5, 1882, the reports indicate that cholera morbus, cholera infantum and diarrhea considerably increased; that puerperal fever increased, and that tonsillitis and whooping-cough decreased in area of prevalence.

At the State Capitol, during the week ending Aug. 5, the prevailing winds were southeast; and, compared with the preceding week, the average temperature was slightly lower, but still high, and the extreme moisture of the air prevented ordinary loss of bodily heat by evaporation, the average relative and the average absolute humidity was considerably more, the average day ozone was much less.

It thus appears that the increased prevalence of cholera morbus, cholera infantum and diarrhea was coincident with a high temperature, a great increase in relative and in absolute humidity; also, with a low atmospheric pressure, and a considerable reduction in the day ozone.

Including reports by regular observers and by others, diphtheria was reported present during the week ending Aug. 5, and since, at 20 places, scarlet fever at 8 places, measles at 11 places and small-pox at 17 places, as follows: In Deerfield township, Lapeer county, July 30; at Lansing (one case, convalescent), July 31; in Crystal township, Montcalm county (four cases), Aug. 1; in Rapid River township, Kalkaska county (four cases); in Orange, in Sebawa, in Danby, in Ionia county, and in Marcelona township, Antrim county (three cases), Aug. 3; at Mt. Morris, Genesee county (one case, convalescent), Aug. 4; at Detroit (three cases), Flint and Portland (one case), Aug. 5; in Walker township, Aug. 7; at Grand Rapids, Aug. 9; at Olio, Genesee county; in Ionia township, and near Carson City, Montcalm county, Aug. 10.

Water Power in Au Sable.

One who has been upon the river cannot help observing the world of giant power displayed by this stream as it goes whirling along in its mad career. Let a man try to ford the stream near this place where the water is no more than four feet deep and appears to run very quietly. The stones will roll under his feet, the water will roar around his body, and if he does not proceed with the utmost caution one is almost certain of being swept away. If one hundredth of the amount of power along this river were used there would be mills and factories at every mile. A practical machinist tells us, what we have long believed, that current wheels could be profitably used here. There is never any ice in the river, and the only drawback to this is the running of logs, which lasts from some time in the winter until the end of June. Wheels simply moored in the stream and turned by the force of the current could be constructed at a trifling expense, and as the river is over 100 feet wide, while the current tends strongly to one side, it is not improbable that side booms could be so constructed as to keep running timber and logs from the wheel at all times. A surface velocity of twenty-five feet per second could be given to a current wheel almost anywhere, and there is practically no limit to the number that might be used without interfering. The attention of machine and mill men is in these days so much drawn toward steam as a motor that the giant forces running wild in our rivers do not get their share of attention, but we believe the time is not far distant when the Au Sable will be utilized for mechanical purposes.—Michigan Mail.

A Snake Story Which Bents Them All.

Lewis Arnold was bitten by a massasauga, last Saturday forenoon while binding wheat on the farm of a man named Barnes, a few miles northeast of this village. Arnold had tied wooden stockings about his wrists to prevent the wheat spears and stubble from pricking him. He was binding without a rake, and in gathering up a sheaf he felt a sudden stinging sensation in one wrist, which he attributed to wheat spear or stubble. He raised his arm, however, and was horrified to find a huge massasauga clinging to it, its teeth having become entangled in the stocking yarn. He threw the reptile off and killed it. On examining his arm he could see only a very slight scratch of the skin and a little blood. He thought so little of it that he merely took a small quantity of whisky and returned to the harvest field to work. He, however, had bound but a few stations when things began to look black to him and he was taken to the house and given more whisky. Dr. Parmenter was then sent for, and on his arrival found the patient suffering intense agony and flashing his tongue in and out like an enraged serpent, while his body would twist and wiggle about as near like the contortions of a snake as it is possible for the human body to imitate. Under proper treatment Arnold improved, and when he regained his senses he said he could hardly resist the impulse to get down on his body and crawl like a snake. He talked to the doctor just as rationally as anyone could, telling him where to put up his horse, inviting him to stay for supper, and asking how much the charges were for the visit. But Sunday he came to town and called upon the doctor, who was surprised to learn that Arnold could not remember anything that transpired except the fact that he was bitten. He remembered nothing of the above conversation and is likely to suffer from the effects of the bite for some time.—Albion Recorder.

Peculiarities of the Great Michigan Fire.

A correspondent of the Fireman's Journal, who has lately gone over the territory devastated by the great fire in the forests of Michigan last fall, says his observations are conclusive that phenomena aside from the ordinary conditions of combustion were developed. In the first place the fire created at least two veritable storm-centers which had the essential features of storms, and especially the spiral winds. The evidences are confirmatory of the belief that this storm center, after it became fully developed, consisted of a heated body of air or gas in a state of combustion, which was constantly fed by the smoke and vapor driven to the center by the whirling winds and the gas generated in the combustion of the pines and other resinous woods. This body of air, or burning gas, if it may be so called, by its heat acquired an ascensive force, but by the rapid forward motion of the fire was sucked forward and devoured, actually preceding the fire proper. It is evident that body this was of intense heat, possibly as great as 400 degrees Fahrenheit, at which point oxygen and carbon unite. That such a body of luminous vapor existed, detached from the fire, is asserted by many who saw it from a distance, and by those who were under it, but who escaped from the fact that it passed above their places.

The idea is further sustained by the fact that the fire jumped whole patches of inflammable slashings, and alighted beyond, lifting and falling in its forward motion like a balloon touching the earth. Fences in the center of broad fields burst into a blaze as if by explosion, and others nearer the fire escaped. A man in fighting the fire took off his trousers, fearing they would catch fire and burn him up, and left them in a furrow in the middle of a field remote from any combustible material. When he went to get them he found them burned, and six quarter-dollars that were in the pocket melted together. A set of spoons were served the same way at another place.

Mrs. Lock and five children were burned to ashes, nothing but their bones remaining in the middle of the road, one hundred feet from any heavy timber. Green timber was dried and burned, and perhaps the most conclusive evidence was the apparently spontaneous appearance of fire in stumps and fences when no sparks were falling. These blazes appeared of white light and indicated a chemical union of carbon and oxygen. Another general feature is the fact that the fire appeared to move forward in parallel lines of varying width, and that in these lines everything was burned, and frequently to ashes. At the edge of the track a fence would be burned square off, just as though it had been cut or sawed perpendicularly; a house would be taken and the barn left; a wagon and a fanning mill were within five feet of each other, and the wagon was burned to ashes and the fanning mill not charred. It would be impossible, under ordinary circumstances, to burn a wagon without piling combustible material over it, but of this nothing but the iron was left.

Finally, the storm and fire disappeared simultaneously; that is to say, the fire was dependent upon the storm, or secondary to it—that it was prevented from lingering in the track or from burning sideways. In from two to three hours the fire was practically out where it had passed, indicating that the prime cause of the rapid combustion was in the storm which had passed, and which passing, perhaps, carried in its wake a condition of atmosphere opposed to combustion. This hypothesis explains pretty much all the phenomena except the balls of fire, which exactly correspond with what is known as "ball lightning," but which is a form of electricity wholly disputed by some, but recognized by Prof. Loomis.

The statements of Ballentine and Kabocks are confirmatory of this ball lightning idea, and contradictory of the idea that these lights arose from the intense heat, or they themselves could not have survived it. Other statements are to the effect that this ball of fire fell on the ground and exploded, running in all directions. This is explained by some who were not present, who say that it was but the resinous cones of the pine ignited, carried by the wind, falling, scattering the burning pitch about them; but it should be remembered that those people who saw this phenomenon are men who have lived amid forest fires all their lives and have seen all the ordinary phenomena, and are not of a class exactly visionary or imaginative. It is fair to assume the possibility of electrical phenomena incidental to this fire storm, both from the fact that it was a great commotion in the elements and because it differed from a storm only in the facts of the absence of rain and presence of fire.—Scientific American.

Here and There.

A CITIZENS' league is being formed in Muskegon to enforce the liquor laws.

At Whitehall two little boys, named Ashman, fell out of a second-story window. Both were insensible when picked up.

NEARLY two tons of fine pickarel were received at Port Huron the other day, the catch of one day, near Point Edward.

LIGHTNING killed five horses belonging to Wm. Haddrell, in an open field, on his farm in North Branch. The horses were in a group, though not all together—some being several rods apart.

STANTON Clipper: Jas. Guilmer was killed at Derby lake by the bursting of a gun. The breech of the gun struck him in the forehead and the screw struck him under the eye. His head was literally blown off.

A WELL, being bored for salt, at Muskegon, struck oil at a depth of 1,300 feet, and all the indications give color to the belief that there is such a quantity of oil in that vicinity as to warrant fuller developments.

BURGERS raided the house of ex-Congressman Bradley, at Saginaw, a few nights ago. Mrs. Bradley was aroused, and, taking a revolver, went to her daughter's room, and there found a man in the act of chloroforming the young lady. He made his escape.

MARSHALL Expounder: It is reported that a Methodist deacon living near St. Mary's lake purchased a binder of parties in this city, and insisted on having it set up Sunday in order that he might commence his harvest early Monday morning. The machine was accordingly put together, and quite a crowd assembled to see it work. After going around the field a number of times doing satisfactory work the deacon remarked: "It is all right, brothers, now let us go home and pray."

BUCHANAN Record's snake story: Mrs. A. Linsenmeyer, living on the Shepardson farm near Clear Lake, took her little 2-year old child to the garden, and while she was at work left the child on the ground. After a time her attention was called by the child laughing, and, upon examination into the cause of mirth, found that a large black snake had crawled up across the child's bare legs and was having a lively game of snap and grab that appeared to please all parties present except the mother, upon whose appearance the snake withdrew from the scene.

The Luck of a Historic Knife.

Everybody knows under what circumstances Henry IV. was assassinated by Ravallac. The assassin, passing his arm through the window of the coach, struck the monarch two blows with a knife, the latter of which pierced his heart. While still brandishing the knife, he was arrested by the orders of the Duc d'Epemon, the knife being wrested from his hand by Pietro de Malagolino, an Italian attached to his suit, who afterward declared he had dropped the weapon in the crowd. It would appear, however, that Malagolino, who was a great amateur of curiosities, kept his historical relic until his death, when he left it to his descendants. It is difficult to say how it came in possession of Maurice de Saxe afterward; but certain it is that a month before his death the Marshal made it a present to his physician, Senac. Senac bequeathed it to his son, M. Senac de Meilhan, who presented it to the Marquis de Cregui, at whose death it became the property of the Baron de Blacheport, her cousin, when again it was lost sight of for nearly sixty years, until it turned up the other day in the bureau of the Commissary of Police in the Quartier Latin, being then owned by a student whose father had been steward to the Raimboval family. This student had been for some time in the greatest poverty, and had been heard to say that life was becoming a burden to him. The other morning he found himself absolutely penniless, a prey to the hallucination that the knife had brought him ill-luck. Determined to put an end to his existence, he plunged it into his breast. Fortunately, it was too rusty, blunt and hacked about to do much harm, and the unhappy youth only succeeded in inflicting a wound from the effects of which he will be cured in a fortnight. Ever since the story became known the bureau of the Commissary has been visited by a number of collectors, each of whom has been until now under the impression that he was the sole possessor of the actual knife with which Henry IV. was slain.—St. James' Gazette.

HYDROPHOBIA.

The Cause of It—Pasteur's Experiments.

(Paris Letter in Boston Post.)

"And what," said a visitor to Pasteur's laboratory, "is the result of the experiments which you have recently been making on hydrophobia?"

"If you desire," said M. Pasteur, "we will go down into the cellar where the animals inoculated with the rage are, and you can there soon see for yourself."

The visitor descended into the basement in company with M. Pasteur, with certain uncomfortable sensations in the calves of his legs, fearing a possible encounter with some one of the inoculated dogs, and he found himself in a large cellar, into which air and light were poured through great tunnels. Immense cages ranged round the sides of this subterranean apartment, and in each of these cages was a dog. Here were all sorts of canines, the bulldog, the terrier, the spaniel, the poodle, etc. Over each cage was a placard indicating the day of the inoculation of each animal. "Up to this time," said M. Pasteur, "I have been able to discover but little; still, I consider it a first step. Before I began my experiments it was believed that hydrophobia could be communicated only by the saliva, and people were frequently astonished at seeing dogs that had been bitten by mad dogs remain sometimes all their lives without manifesting any symptoms of the dreadful malady. I have discovered the virus of hydrophobia in the brain of the dog, in the spinal marrow, and in the whole of the nervous system generally. One drop of that virus preserved from contact with the microbes of the atmosphere and introduced into the brain of a healthy dog invariably gives him hydrophobia and he dies of it within fifteen days."

"Look," said M. Pasteur, "here is an animal inoculated with the virus about ten days ago. Just put your foot up to his cage." The visitor did so, but with fear and trembling. "You see he licks your foot with every manifestation of affection. In two days he will be dead. He is now in that period of affectionate manifestation which generally precedes by two or three days the period of violence, in which he will bite anything that comes near him. Here is another one. Just give a kick at his cage. See how he springs at you. He will die tomorrow. Notice his harsh and curious barking. He is affected with hallucinations, and no longer recognizes anybody. He was inoculated just fourteen days ago, and he will be dead tomorrow. Men have the same symptoms, with this exception, that the duration of what may be called the incubation is usually thirty or forty days, and that they have a horror of water, a phenomenon which is never seen in the case of dogs."

"There are cases on record of men who have not died after being bitten by mad dogs. That was because the saliva had been subjected to the influence of the atmosphere, and that a kind of struggle was going on between the microbes of the virus and the microbes of the circumambient air. These latter appear sometimes to neutralize or modify the effect of the virus; but with the virus in the pure state, as I extract it from the brain of one of my dogs here, death in a fixed period is certain, and up to this time we have found no remedy for this pitiless affliction."

"Now, I hope, if my life is spared, that, after many comparisons, and experiments, I shall finally get a remedy; but, before getting to the end of my researches, must exactly establish the organic constitution of the microbes of this virus, for these invisible beings differ from each other as a man differs from a horse, and a horse from an elephant. They are also subject to divers influences, and that which diminishes the power of some augments the capacity of others. This accounts for the manner in which I treated the carbon which was slaying thousands of sheep every day before the invention of my vaccine matter, which is nothing less than the virus itself reduced. By exposing the virus to an atmosphere of 40 deg. during a certain time, the microbes become so feeble that when they were in the body of an animal they only communicated the very lightest carbon, and thus forever guaranteed the animal against the epidemic."

Two Stories of Actors.

An actor, representing some Eastern potentate, had to make an imposing entrance on the back of an elephant, who, disgusted with the whole proceeding, and particularly with the glare of the foot-lights, sent the unfortunate actor head over heels in a most unkingly somersault. The representative of Oriental power was, however, equal to the situation; recovering himself before the audience had time to laugh, he indicated the animal with his scepter, and loftily exclaimed: "Away with him! Load him with chains and apply the knout! He shall feel a monarch's vengeance!" [Thunders of applause.]

Still another, apropos de rien: A supernumerary had to rush in and cry out to a dethroned King: "My liege, fly! Fly for your life! The enemy is at our gates!" The poor super was frightened and "stuck dead," all he could do was gasp nervously and ejaculate: "A fly!" The monarch arose, and, with imperial grandeur, thus took in the situation: "Pursue him instantly; but—spare his life!"—Boston Herald.

The Whole Alphabet at the Prize Fight.

Such a crowd as the Garden held one seldom sees. Artists, actors, burglars, bankers, bunko steers, beer jekers, blacksmiths, confidence men, cappers, clog dancers, clerks, capitalists, Cap tains, Chinese, Danes, doctors, detectives, divines (one), engineers, firemen, Frenchmen, Germans, Governors, harlots, horse thieves, idiots, Irish, jai birds, keno men, lawyers, machinists,

Mexicans, negroes, officers, politicians, Portuguese, quacks, reporters, Russians, rancheros, Spanish, sailors, tailors, undertakers, vintners, waiters, xylophonists, youngsters and zealots were jammed together so thick that the mass looked like Broadway pavement, with bald heads for cobbles.—New York Times.

An Interview with the Pope.

After waiting more than two hours, the doors at the farther end of the gallery were opened, and a brilliant group appeared in the opening. The distance was so great that we could not distinctly see its several parts, only a general effect of bright colors, in which splendid uniforms predominated. This group at first appeared to be stationary; then, after a time, we became conscious it was moving, but so slowly and with such frequent pauses as to be almost imperceptible. By degrees it came nearer, and we saw two chamberlains walking backward; then came some of the Guardia Nobile, the Pope's body-guard, each member of which is a nobleman, and wears a tall, crested helmet, like an old Roman. Then came a number of stately dignitaries in violet robes, Cardinals and Monsignors; and at last we caught a glimpse in the center of a small figure entirely in white—his Holiness himself—then more violet robes, and lastly, more guards, closing the procession. It was impossible to see that slowly-advancing figure, with its imposing surroundings, without being most powerfully impressed. He is the representative of a power—a spiritual hierarchy—which, as Macaulay says, "can certainly boast of a far longer succession than any dignity in the world; linking together the two great ages of civilization. Our modern feudal Kings are mere upstarts compared with the successors in regular order of Sylvester and Leo the Great."

A Monsignor who walked by the side of the Pope asked the name, nationality and religion of each person, for the information of his Holiness, who then said a few words. He speaks only Italian and French. He had a short conversation in the latter language with the priests next us, which of course we could distinctly hear. They spoke of their intended mission, and he replied that the merit of such actions lay in the intention, no less than in their successful performance.

The Pope is small and frail in figure, with the whitest and most-bleached looking complexion it is possible to conceive. One could scarcely imagine him able to go through the prolonged fatigue entailed by even such a ceremony as that in which we saw him. His manner is most gracious and pleasing, and his expression of countenance benevolent. He was dressed in a white cloth robe with small cape, white skull cap, and white shoes embroidered with a cross; a white silk sash, with gold-fringed ends, round his waist. A large cross of magnificent emeralds was the only spot of color in his attire. The pontifical ring, which it is the etiquette to kiss, was especially splendid, and appeared to have the head of St. Peter engraved upon it. A dignitary carried his scarlet cloak, and another the large hat of the same color, tied up and edged with gold cord. He remained a few moments in colloquy with our party, which happened to be the last in the assembly. Then turning round to face the gathering, he blessed it collectively with outstretched arms, in the name of the Trinity.

Elder Toots to the Front.

During the last two or three meetings Elder Toots had managed to keep awake most of the time by keeping a bit of ice on his head and permitting the melting stream to trickle down the back of his neck, but on this occasion he slept sweetly for twenty minutes, when he suddenly rose and offered the following resolution:

"Resolved, Dat dis club do hereby express its sympathy fur de cause of liberty in Cuba."

During the deep silence which followed the reading of the above, Prof. High-Strung Smith was plainly heard chewing slippery elm, and a sudden sneeze from Gen. Overworked Johnson rattled along the ceiling and brought down hundreds of small pieces of plaster.

"Brudder Toots, what do you know 'bout Cuba?" asked the President.

"Nuffin, sah."

"What do you know 'bout de cause of liberty?"

"Nuffin."

"Who axed you to present dat resolution?"

"Judge Gallipole Thompson, sah." "Brudder Toots, you go an' soak de back of your neck in cold tea! You has bin made a fool of! You are a purty middlin' aiverage old nigger, but de mo' you sleep while present at our meetings de me' benefit you will derive from de puercedina. As fur you, Brudder Thompson, you are hereby fined $900 and costs fur disruptin' de reg'lar puercedina. I may add at dis time dat de costs am about $400."

The Judge fell to the floor in a dead faint, but was immediately drawn out of the hall by the left leg and business went right on.—Time-Kin Club.

THE New York Evening Post considers the following Longfellow's finest sonnet:

As a fond mother, when the day is o'er,
Leads by the hand her little child to bed,
Half willing, half reluctant to be led,
And leaves his broken playthings on the floor,
Still gazing at them through the open door,
Nor wholly reassured and comforted
By promises of others in their stead,
Which, though more splendid, may not please him more:
So Nature deals with us, and takes away
Our playthings one by one, and by the hand
Leads us to rest so gently that we go
Scarce knowing if we wish to go or stay,
Being too full of sleep to understand
How far the unknown transcends the what we know.

DR. GUNTHER, in a paper read before the London Zoological Society, declares that there is no such thing as the distinctive whitebait, and that herring and whitebait, so called, belong to one fish family.

EVERY noble crown is, and on earth will forever be, a crown of thorns.

THE Public Printer says that the census reports in progress of printing, when completed, will be the largest work ever produced in a similar establishment, for it will make about 18,000 pages, folio size, and will cost upward of $1,000,000.

SENATOR Ben Hill, of Georgia, died at Atlanta last Wednesday morning. About 2 o'clock he was discovered to be sinking, and by 6:15 he was dead. Four hours before his death he made a sign for a hypodermic injection of morphia. He appeared to be awake and conscious several times, but could not speak. At 6:15 he was apparently awake, when he closed his eyes gently, and died without a tremor. The funeral will take place Friday.

A RECENT canvass shows that Georgia has no fewer than forty-two counties where the prohibitionists claim to be in the majority. The spread of the prohibitory movement at the South during the past few years has been striking. When the project was started in New England to put under ban the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors, it was considered a Yankee device not likely to thrive elsewhere. Yet it now finds as hearty support in Texas and Arkansas as in Maine and Massachusetts; and Southern Legislatures have very nearly succeeded in passing laws such as would delight the heart of Gen. Neal Dow himself.

It has not been our expectation that the Star route men would be convicted. They are so powerful, their relations are so extensive, their hold upon the grand old party is so tenacious, and they possess so much "soap," that their escape is to be expected. Yet as the trial has proceeded, the case against them has been seen to be stronger while the prosecution has been conducted without any mercy toward them. And now, as it is near its conclusion, it becomes plain that their only hope of escape lies in the corruption of the jury. If there is a venal jurymen in the panel, they may buy him; if there is not, how can they avoid the retribution of justice?

AFTER all, this is to be a great peach year. In the spring the prophecies regarding the fruit were all evil. Only a small crop was predicted. Even at the beginning of summer we were told to expect little from the famous peach-growing region of Delaware and Maryland. Better reports came in a few weeks ago, but now, when the time for the ripening of peaches has actually come, they are promised the largest crop ever picked, that great yield of 1875 alone excepted.

"To-day," says the Philadelphia Press, "every peach tree on that long stretch of land between the bays of Delaware and the Chesapeake, and extending from Wilmington to Northampton County, Va., is bending under an overload of luscious spheres." It is estimated that that region will yield the enormous quantity of five million baskets of peaches. And the quality of this extraordinary crop is said to be far better than that of 1875, when only was the abundance equaled. Because the peaches are so exceptionally good, the growers anticipate comparatively high prices; but with a supply so vast, there is no reason to doubt that during the next four weeks we shall be able to get remarkably good peaches at low rates.

The great crop will also stimulate the business of canning the fruit, and make the prices of preserved peaches moderate during the winter. The canning industry is now one of the most active in the country, and helps to largely increase our export trade. The work is very often done near the orchards, and improvements in the processes are made yearly.

The peach region is made up of portions of Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia. More peaches are produced there than on any other equal acreage in the world. The number of trees aggregates something like six millions, young and old, and the orchards vary in size from a few hundred trees to ten thousand. Three of the leading growers of Maryland, for instance, have one hundred thousand trees in bearing this year. The whole region is given up to the business, and during the peach season, we are told, every inhabitant of the peninsula, male and female, is engaged in picking the fruit or preparing it for market. And never before, except in the single August of 1875, has the activity been so great as it is now.

In every direction nature is giving us the assurance of low prices for food. Wheat, rye, barley, potatoes, are all promising better than ever before, or have actually been harvested in exceptional profusion. The oat crop will be by far the greatest ever raised. Corn alone may be a little below the average. Vegetables have found this an exceedingly favorable year. Most of the fruits have done equally well, and of apples, especially, the crop is likely to be enormous, affording plenty to make prices cheap at home and to allow a great surplus for export.—N. Y. ## JOTTINGS.

Muzzle that dog.

Mr. Henry Ferry, of Detroit, is visiting relatives and friends in this city.

The pay car of the Chicago and West Mich. Railway passed through this city last Saturday.

Mr. J. G. Cameron, of the Muskegon Mail Publishing Company, was in the city last Saturday and made this office a pleasant call.

The Holland Manufacturing Company have erected one of their wind mills in the vacant lot between Burgess' Gallery and H. D. Post's store.

Last Thursday evening quite a party of our people went to Macatawa Park and spent several hours "tripping the light fantastic" at the Park House.

The City Marshal now carries a double barreled shot gun in his pocket and is on the war-path. Muzzle your dog and prevent a wholesale slaughter of the "pups."

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Hardacre of Cincinnati, O., guests of the Park House, Macatawa Park, caught 87 black bass one day last week. "It was not a very good day for fishing either."

Last Wednesday evening the Democrats of this city, held a caucus in the office of I. Fairbanks, Esq., and elected delegates to the County Convention which was held in Grand Haven last Thursday.

Our thanks are due to Mr Geo. S. Harrington for a number of very fine early peaches, one of which measured 8 1/4 inches in circumference. This is without doubt the largest peach brought into the city this year.

At present the steamer Douglas leaves here on Sundays, Tuesdays, and Thursday at 8:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and leaves Chicago Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, at 7 o'clock in the evening. Our readers will please remember this.

Mr. John Brennan, of Grand Rapids, succeeded in landing a large muskallonge last Saturday morning, weight, 35 lbs; length, 4 feet and 5 inches; circumference, 24 inches. This is the largest fish that has been caught in Macatawa Bay this season.

The "Jolly Pathfinders" will give an entertainment in Lyceum Hall, on Saturday evening September 9. This company gave good satisfaction, when they were here last summer, and we have no doubt but what our people will patronize them liberally upon this, their second visit to our city.

Last week work was commenced on the new bridge over Black River. It is to be completed on or about the 15th of September, and will open another avenue leading into this city. It is to be hoped that our citizens will not be behind in pushing this very commendable manner of inducing farmers to come to this city to make their purchases.

The Star Hook and Ladder Co.'s excursion last Tuesday was a success in every way. About two hundred and fifty people partook of the pleasures and fatigues of the excursion, and the patronage given to the Company will not soon be forgotten by the "boys." The Douglas behaved herself nobly on Lake Michigan, and thoroughly proved herself to be a staunch and reliable steamer, well worthy of the patronage of this community.

If some of our 100,000 subscribers will come and pay their subscription, bills ranging from one dollar to one hundred (mills), they will avert a great panic in our otherwise very bright prospect and will save us from immediate financial ruin. This is intended to serve as a permanent "dun" as we are always on the verge of ruin and we feel very delicate about parading our misfortune through the columns of the News. Don't forget to bring a new subscribers with you when come to pay your bill.

A tremendous thunder storm passed over the south-east corner of the township of Jamestown last Tuesday at 11:30 o'clock. A new barn, belonging to Wilson Plant, was struck by lightning at one corner and set on fire. Two men, Arend Bush and Fred. Richardson, rushed into the barn for the purpose of saving some property, when the barn was again struck on the opposite corner, stunning them. John Picard went to their rescue and with great difficulty saved them from perishing in the flames. The barn was filled with hay and grain and is a total loss. Two other barns were struck in the immediate neighborhood. Several large forest trees were entirely demolished by the lightning. A traveler who was out in the storm, with horse and buggy, had his horse knocked down twice by lightning striking in close proximity to him. The rain poured down in torrents, the wind was terrific and there was some hail. The storm lasted one hour and was the most severe one that has visited that township for years.

Miss Saddle Howard is visiting relatives in Fredonia, N. Y.

Mr. G. A. Koning, of Milwaukee, Wis., is visiting relatives and friends in this city.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday the Michigan Press Association were in session at Grand Rapids.

Our City Marshal is looking for dogs without muzzles. It is sure death to the dog if he sees one.

Mr. F. I. Walsh returned from his trip to Petoskey last week. Frank looks "much better" and says his health is greatly improved.

QUARTERLY meeting at the M. E. Church to-day. Preaching at 2:30 p. m. Rev. H. M. Joy, Presiding Elder, will be in charge of the services.

Last Thursday we were shown a blue Egg Plum, grown on the farm of Mr. Thos. S. Purdy, which measured six inches in circumference.

The iron sheeting is nearly all put on the new mill and the building is rapidly nearing completion. Architect J. R. Kleyn is a "rusher" and no mistake.

List of letters remaining in the post-office at Holland, Mich., Aug. 17th, 1882: Chas. Sutherland, E. A. Benedict, Wm. Verbeek, P. M.

Mr. Chas. Waring, telegrapher, returned last Wednesday from a visit to Buffalo, N. Y., and can again be seen attending to his duties in the Chicago and West Mich. Railway depot.

Mr. G. A. Haywood, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. J. H. Holman, of Indianapolis, Ind., guests of the Park House, Macatawa Park, caught 11 black bass last Saturday in a remarkable short time.

Rev. H. Uiterwijk, of Grand Rapids, Mich., preached to a large audience in the Second Reformed Church last Sunday. He will fill the same pulpit both morning and evening, next Sabbath.—Pela Blade.

ALD. Reidsema, publishes in the last Grandeeet, a card in which he admits making a mistake in accusing the Clerk of falsifying the Council proceedings. That is the honorable way of correcting a mistake—admit it.

THE following "pleasure seekers" arrived at the City Hotel and visited Macatawa Park: James W. Watkins, Frank Williams, R. H. Calkings, Simon Mangold, John Walker, John H. Brouwer, C. E. Amsden, Miss Cheney, R. Van der Werp, Grand Rapids; R. T. Van Brunk, Chicago.

We were in error last week in stating that Mr. E. J. Harrington had employed Mr. Jas. Koning, Sr. Mr. Koning, Jr., is behind the counter and sells good clothing for small money. Mr. Harrington has the largest and best stock of clothing in this city, and if you desire to save money on a suit of clothes just give him a call.

ZEELAND ITEMS.

Mr. J. Kooke, of the firm of De Graaf, Frieling & Co., of Grand Rapids, is visiting friends here with his family.

Mr. Chas. Steffens left for Chicago last Thursday, where he goes to accept a position as bookkeeper in a foundry. His numerous friends wish him the best of success, feeling assured that he will fill the position with credit to himself and satisfactory to his employers.

Wm. Van de Luister, a farmer aged 68 years, and one of the old pioneers of this town, while driving from a field, with a load of fence posts, fell from the wagon. His son who was with him, hastened to his side, but he never spoke after falling, and died in his sons arms. Mr. Van de Luister will be greatly missed by the village people as he was the only milk peddler here, and was very popular with our citizens. The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon in the Church.

Mr. Alonzo Herold, of Grand Rapids, is spending a few days at Macatawa Park.

BENNIE Gee's Juvenile Band are out on another concert tour and are meeting with very flattering success.

Last Tuesday a number of people were pleased to see the Steamer Douglas distance the Brower in a very short but rather decided race.

The Republicans of the city of Holland, held a Caucus last Wednesday evening in the room over the store of Mr. E. J. Harrington, and elected delegates to attend the County Convention held yesterday in Grand Haven.

Last Saturday the propeller Menominee is reported by her captain to have encountered in mid-lake on Tuesday night a thick cold cloud, which burst on her decks, covering them with snow and slush to the depth of six inches. For 5 minutes the atmosphere was like that of winter, but as the steamer was moving rapidly she soon came into a warmer temperature. The event is unprecedented here, but the accuracy of the facts is vouched for by other officers and passengers, and the story is corroborated by the thermometric conditions of that night.

We gather the following from the crop report issued from the office of the Secretary of State: On the first day of August the wheat crop of Michigan promised an aggregate yield of 32,000,000 bushels, which is an average of 18 1/2 bushels per acre of the acreage reported by the supervisors in May. This, it is estimated, would have been the product had the entire crop been secured on that day. Oats, it is estimated, will yield 34, and barley 26 bushels per acre. Corn improved during July, but is yet 17 per cent below the condition August 1, 1881. Meadows and pastures, and clover sowed this year, are in good condition. Apples promise 63 per cent, and peaches 64 per cent of an average crop, as compared with 87 and 80 percent respectively July 1.

GRAND HAVEN ITEMS.

ON Thursday morning last Sheriff Vaupell went to Detroit with three candidates for the House of Correction, sent there by Justice Pagelson. One of them was Josias Dillon, who broke into Donker's saloon last May but was acquitted by the jury. He got six months this time.

THE water-power saw-mill near Lake Harbor, Mich., owned by Ferry Brothers, of this city, was destroyed by fire, early Monday morning. Loss about $10,000; Insurance, $5,000 in the Metropole, Amazon, Lancashire and Newark Companies. The origin of the fire is thought to be incendiary.

LAST Wednesday night at about 10 o'clock the tug Johnson was discovered on fire. She had been laid up at her dock and everything supposed to be safe. The alarm being given the fire department hastened to the spot and succeeded in putting the fire out saving the hull and machinery. The cabin and pilot house are burned off, but the boat is otherwise not much injured.

LAST Sunday afternoon at about half past four o'clock, a girl 13 years old, named Jennie Waters, was drowned in Spring Lake opposite the Spring Lake house. She was with a party of picnickers. A young man took her into the lake to teach her to swim, and getting in deep water, she drowned before assistance reached them. Her body was recovered. She was a daughter of Mrs. Waters, living in Spring Lake, whose husband was drowned two years ago by falling overboard from the schooner David Macy. He was captain of the vessel.

Dr. Schouten's SPECIFIC FAMILY Remedies.

DR. SCHOUTEN'S COMPOUND SYRUP OF RHUBARB, is too well known to the public to need any recommendation. It is enough to say, as is proven by numerous testimonials, and hundreds besides who have used it, that it is exactly what is claimed for it. If you or your children are troubled with diarrhoea, one or two doses will convince you as to the merits of the preparation. In complaints of children it has no equal. It being a Tonic for the bowels, cures all these miserable complaints, when not of too old standing, with a few doses. It does not only check the Diarrhoea, but after being stopped, it moves the bowels naturally again.

ANTI-BILIOUS and EXPECTORANT PILLS. These Pills are rapidly taking the place of all others. They are composed of the most valuable tonic, alterative and cathartic properties known, and acting directly upon the liver, stomach and bowels, effectually purify the blood. Their action is mild, yet always cleansing, but never gripping or painful. If you use them once, you will always prefer them above all others.

"OLD ABE" BITTERS. These Bitters are an excellent Tonic and Appetizer, and are very popular with those who are acquainted with their virtues.

AROMATIC SPIRITS. This distilled liquid is a remedy for all kinds of pain, in young and old, and is an instant restorative for disordered stomachs after a debauch. It is taken from the Belgian Pharmacopoeia. The formula can be found on the bottles.

BALSAM LOCATELLI (Spilker Balsam.) This Balsam is a wonderful healer, and works like a charm in all kinds of wounds, cuts, bruises and burns.

IPECAC TROCHES. The great and well-known specific remedy—Ipecac—for croup, coughs and colds, influenza, etc., is the main feature of these Troches, and prepared in such a nice manner that they are craved for like Candy. The formula is on the box. See Pharmacopoeia Neerlandica.—This is an excellent remedy for hoarseness, and is highly recommended for public speakers.

DR. SCHOUTEN'S COUGH BALM. This is a valuable combination of expectorants and compounded in such a manner that old and young pronounce it palatable. In severe cases it is recommended to take a few of Dr. Schouten's Expectorant Pills, at night before retiring.

CAROL.

By S. Dobson.

As Mary sat a-reading
Within her porch long while,
There came an angel speeding,
Who on the maid did smile;
"And hail thou Holy Lady,
That men shall blessed style!"

And in his hand he bore her
A lily all of light,
Which he did bow before her;
She marvel'd at the sight,
"And hail thou Virgin Lady,
Thou art more lily-white!"

And thus to her the angel
Did sing the gracious word:
"Thou art of God beloved well,
For Him thou hast adored;
And He doth greet thee, Mary,
Thou Child of the Lord!"

Then Lady Mary bowed
The glory of her head,
And from her lips there flowed
Such lovely words, 'tis said
That in their graves they shouted
That long afore were dead.

Then up and sang the little birds
The blessed dawn is near;
"And up and cried the learned Kings
"His day-star doth appear."
And out and sang God's angels all,
And sang both loud and clear;
But kneeling, Mary whispered—'Lo!
My Lord and King is here."

TWO WEDDING DAYS.

Everything had been duly and properly arranged for our wedding. The engagement of Miss Nell Bartley to Mr. Bertram Langley had been duly announced in the fashion columns of the leading society journal, and the wedding day had arrived.

I am Bertram Langley—commonly called Bert—and, while I confess to be most sincerely and entirely in love with my little Nell, I must add I had been quite annoyed about our marriage, first at the persistence with which she insisted upon a grand wedding.

I hate fuss and parade, and have an old-time notion that a marriage rehearsal giddily and eventually solemnized before a crowd of gossiping, gaping people, is robbed of all its sweet purity. Then, too, the trousseau! The whole business is a nuisance! Excuse the big word, but my feelings are strong on that point. What on earth a woman wants of clothes enough to last five years, and gawgaws more than she can ever hope to use, I never could see; unless, indeed, she entertains a horrible suspicion that the new firm may refuse to furnish a fresh supply.

It's all right, I suppose, since they all do it (no slang intended), but it was a trying time for me, I can tell you. I could scarcely get a glimpse of Nell, she was so busy with dressmakers, milliners, etc., and when I did see her she was in such a rattling hurry to be off to keep an appointment with some workwoman or other that I actually grew a little savage.

For a month before we were to be married I believe I never entered the house once but Kate, Nell's sister, rushed into the room with an—

"Excuse me, Bert, but Nell is wanted a moment." Or, "Don't look cross, Bert, but Nellie must see Madam This or That," till I lost all patience.

There was another cause of annoyance, too; Nell's father was a rich man, and as able as he was willing to furnish his daughter with as much finery as she might desire, while I, on the contrary, was a man with his way still to make in the world.

True, I had a fair income and fair prospects, but I could not hope to give Nell as luxurious a home or as elaborate a wardrobe as her papa provided, at least, not for some years; but I could afford to support a wife, and I loved Nell with all my heart.

When I asked Mr. Bartley's consent to our marriage, he was at first just a little inclined to find fault with my financial condition. An older man, with a well-secured fortune, would have suited him better. He had a most unwholesome dread of fortune-hunters, and even went so far as to have a mild suspicion that I might be just a bit interested in that way; but all that wore off in time, and we were on the best of terms.

I only mention this to show how a suspicion once entertained will return on the faintest invitation, and not infrequently on none at all, for the time came when Mr. Bartley not only entertained this unjust surmise, but eagerly hugged this foul thought to his heart, and grew murderous in that vital organ toward me—Bertram Langley—as innocent a man as ever stepped.

The day before the one fixed for our marriage Nell and I had our first tiff. I called to inform her of the smallest possible hitch in the church machinery. The regular sexton was obliged to leave town, but he had secured the services of his brother (a very deaf and stupid man, as it turned out). Possibly she might have some instructions to give him.

I waited full half an hour in the reception-room, cooling my heels and warming my wrath, before Nell rushed in.

"What is it, Bert?" she asked breathlessly. "I am awful busy!"

A spark is enough to ignite a whole city if it only falls upon highly inflammable material, and a word is quite enough to raise a furious temper in a man who is itching to get mad; so I answered curtly:

"If you are in such a hurry, it is no matter what I wished to say."

Nell opened her brown eyes in surprise.

"I've got to select some lace," she exclaimed. "And Kate can't wait."

"Neither can I," I retorted shortly, pulling on my gloves. Then after a moment I added: "You think a great deal of furbelows, don't you?"

"Indeed I do!"

"I am afraid you will have to do with vastly less when you are married."

Nell bowed her head sadly.

"All the more reason I should be allowed to enjoy those papa gives me."

That shot went home. I bit my lips, but managed to keep cool outside, though inwardly I was boiling.

"It is not too late to beat retreat," I said coolly. "If you repent your bargain, there is time to escape."

Nell's eyes grew big with horror at the idea.

"Indeed, it is entirely too late!" she cried. "Why, everybody knows it! All our set have cards—I should die of mortification to put it off now! We must go on, anyway; I have no fancy for being a laughing stock for every one."

"Better be laughed at a week than miserable for a lifetime," I retorted.

Nell opened her lips to answer, but just at that moment Kate put her head in at the door.

"Nell! Nell! Excuse me, Bert—I staid to hear no more, but turned on my heel and strode away."

No sooner had I reached my hotel when I was heartily ashamed of myself; and when Tom, my elder brother and only living relative, rushed in and told me that he had left his wife ill at home, so anxious was he to see me married, the last bit of crossness departed, and a great wave of tenderness stole over my heart for the brown-eyed girl whom I knew loved me far better than the elegance of her father's home or the costly trifles he could give her.

Tom was ill at ease and worried, and I knew nothing but my marriage or funeral could have induced him to leave home when Lottie was ill.

Next morning I saw Nellie for a moment only, but the kiss I pressed on her dear little mouth was a silent plea for pardon, and a promise for better control over my temper next time.

Evening came—the church was packed—and I, feeling most uncommonly stiff and awkward in a span new suit and speckled gloves, was awaiting in the vestry.

Nellie was to enter on her father's arm, followed by her bridesmaids and groomsmen—six in number—while I was to enter in the nick of time from the vestry, the minister from his study, and meet before the altar.

It was all very pretty, but I almost knew I should make a mess of it—and I did, with a vengeance.

I had requested to be allowed to be alone, so as to keep my part in my mind, and for the same reason went early to the church not to be stared at and confused, for this show affair was not one bit to my mind.

Just at the last moment Tom came rushing in, followed by the regular sexton.

"I've got a telegram from Lottie," said Tom, his voice quivering. "She is worse, and I must start at once. Just in time to catch the train. Good-by, old boy! God bless you!"

"I'm going too, just came to wish you joy, Mr. Bert," said the sexton, who had known me since I was a lad. "Sorry I can't see you married. My road's the same as your brother's, so I'll go with him;" and off they both hurried, the door shutting with a sharp click behind them.

The time for the arrival of the wedding party drew near; I advanced to the door that opened into the church, designing to open it and peep through. It resisted my efforts. I struggled with it sharply, no use! the door was locked.

Muttering a curse upon the stupidity of the sexton, I strode to the outer door. In shutting the door it too had become locked, and was as fast as fate.

Great drops of perspiration stood out on my forehead. What was to be done? I asked myself the question, and mopped my face with my immaculate handkerchief, but failed to find the answer.

Then I flew back to the inner door and listened. The organ was playing gayly and a subdued hush told me that Nellie was entering on her father's arm, and here I was standing, caged like a rat.

Oh, how I tried to open that door! My gloves split, and the perspiration ran in rivers down my face and dropped off the end of my nose, but not one inch could I budge it.

I have wondered since how should I have looked if I had succeeded in bursting open the door and been suddenly projected before the creme de la creme, with limp collar, torn gloves, and distended eyes. I can smile now, but I can assure you I saw no fun in it then.

I tried the door till positively no hope remained in that direction. Then I flew again to the outer door, and pounded, and even shouted, but to no purpose.

Utterly hopeless, I returned to the inner door once more. All was silent. Should I thunder upon its panels and proclaim my presence and demand to be let out? Nobody likes to look like a fool if he can help it—and I hesitated.

I glanced around. The windows caught my eye—why had I not thought of them? I could at least make my escape, and the ceremony might be delayed, and consequently awkward; still Nell would not be utterly put to shame.

Like the madman I was, I seized the table, dragged it to the window, sprang upon it, and climbed onto the high and narrow window sill; throwing up the sash, I prepared to leap out; but I had reckoned without my host; the cord that held the weight was broken, consequently the moment my hand left the sash the window descended with startling rapidity, striking me full upon the head, and knocking me off the narrow sill, dashing my head against the sharp corner of the table, and at last landing me full length on the floor.

I tried to rise; something warm rushed over my face; I put up my hand to clear my eyes—my hand was covered with blood.

I felt giddy and weak, still I staggered to my feet; then a black mist arose around me, and I knew no more.

This was Thursday eve. Sunday afternoon the sexton, returning to his duties, found me lying upon the floor half dead, wholly delirious, my face covered with blood, and a hole in my head large enough to let the life out of any man. That mine was spared was because I had fallen with the wound down, and the soft pile of the carpet acted like lint to staunch the blood.

As soon as I could control my thoughts I begged to know of Nellie. Poor little girl! she had been quite overwhelmed. When I failed to appear Kate's husband rushed out to inquire of the sexton if he had seen me. He was positive that I had been there, and equally positive that I had left again in company with his brother—both seemed in a great hurry, and had jumped into a carriage and been driven rapidly away.

Messengers were sent to my hotel, but without gaining a clew to my whereabouts; so after a mortifying wait Nellie had been taken home, and the very morning of the day I was discovered the whole family sailed for Europe.

As soon as I was able to stand, I sailed in search of the woman I had so innocently humiliated. Not knowing her whereabouts, it was two months before I found her. At last, one evening, wandering on the seashore of a quiet little English town, I espied her—and alone.

That she believed me a most blackened villain was plain, for the look she gave me when she recognized my presence was one of unutterable contempt. Now that I had found her I was determined she should hear the truth.

"Nellie," I cried, hurrying to her and grasping both her little hands before she had time to escape.

"Well, sir," she replied, haughtily, trying, but trying in vain, to free her hands.

"My darling," I pleaded, "you will at least hear a man before you condemn him?"

Her face flushed angrily.

"What can you say," she burst out hotly, "that will make your conduct less dastardly? Have you not made me the object of every one's ridicule and contemptuous pity? Offering me public insult no woman could ever forgive? Have you not made me hate everybody, myself most of all? What more do you wish, Bertram Langley—you villain?"

I winced a little at the word, as I thought of my broken head—though God knows I did not blame her, believing as she did.

"Why are you here? And why did you run away?" she demanded, with a whole world of scorn on the words, "run away."

"I did not run away; I was locked up."

"Locked up! What for? Where?" cried poor Nell, starting back, a look of horror creeping up into the brown eyes.

I verily believe that she thought for an instant I had added murder to other crimes.

"Why, in the vestry," I explained a little foolishly. "Come and sit down and let me tell you. I am quite ill yet."

This was a master stroke. Nell seated herself without demur, and I, half sitting, half lying at her feet, related to her the chapter of my misfortunes.

Dear little girl! her face brightened before I was half through—indeed, I am sorry to say, she laughed quite heartily; but she became sober when I told her about the window coming down, and leaned over and kissed the scar on my head tenderly, and I knew that peace and confidence were restored.

After a while we fell to talking over it in a general way.

"It was a dreadful blow to me," said Nell, pensively; "I thought that my heart was broken."

"I thought it was a pretty tough blow myself," I laughed. "By Jove, I thought my head was broken! When that window came down it knocked me higher than Gilderoy's kite! The next time we are married, Nell, I won't be left to dig out of any such ridiculous hole as a vestry; if there are any windows that have got to be bumped out of we'll hop out together."

Great was the family wonder to see us walk in together; but everything was all right as soon as explained, and Mr. and Mrs. Bartley consented that Nell and I might be married next day in the quaint little church in the place.

And so we were. I led my bride in myself, and Papa and Mamma Bartley followed soberly behind, and Kate and her husband were all the crowd we had.

A curate, who had a bad cold, officiated, and the time-honored and world-renowned Dickens woman pew opener, shabby and snuffy, was on hand to make everything romantic and proper.

So this is why we were married without bridesmaids, and had two wedding days.

Drying Her Husband's Grave.

A Chinaman died soon after his marriage with a young and lovely woman. As he was dying his wife was loud in her protestations of grief and her determination not to marry again. The husband was not unreasonable; he only asked that if she had to take another spouse she would wait until the earth upon his grave was dry. He died and was buried, and many a young and handsome bachelor of the province of Shantung was present at his funeral.

She listened to no suitor, for woman's heart is tender, and she could not so soon forget the lost one. Daily she stole to his grave. She wept, but no tear fell upon the soil; she took good care of that. At last, after a few days, Chwangtze happened to pass, and saw her fanning, not herself, but the damp earth. He asked the reason. She told him of her husband's last request, and begged him to assist her. She offered him a fan to assist her, and there they sat to fan away the moisture; the grave was so long a-drying!

The Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers met in annual session in Chicago. Nearly 70,000 persons are said by President Jarrett to be members of the organization. Of this number about 18,000 are idle because of strikes.

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS.

INDIANA REPUBLICANS.

The Indiana Republican State Convention convened at Indianapolis on Wednesday, Aug. 9. The Committee on Permanent Organization, through their Chairman, Senator Grubbs, reported for Chairman of the convention the Hon. Richard W. Thompson, and N. P. Richmond principal Secretary. The report was unanimously adopted.

John Overmyer, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, then read the following platform and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted.

The Republican party of Indiana, represented in delegate convention, recalls as an incentive to future exertions for the public welfare the achievements of the party in restoring the national Union; in overthrowing slavery; in securing to disabled soldiers and to the widows and orphans of those who fell in battle or died from wounds or diseases contracted in the service of the Union, laws providing for liberal bounties and pensions; in building up an unexampled public credit upon the simple foundation of an unchangeable public faith; in reducing the great debt necessarily incurred for the suppression of the rebellion one-half, and the interest on the remainder to so low a rate that the national debt is no longer regarded as a burden; in establishing a currency equal to any in the world, based upon the convertibility of greenbacks and national bank notes into gold or silver at the option of the holders; in increasing the value of agricultural productions and the wages of labor by building up home markets on the policy of reasonable protection to domestic industries; in exalting the value of our naturalization laws to our foreign-born citizens by securing to American naturalization everywhere the full rights of American citizenship; in founding American citizenship upon manhood and not upon complexion, and in declaring that citizenship and the ballot shall ever go hand in hand; in maintaining and cherishing as a chief safeguard of liberty our system of free schools, supported by a tax imposed upon all property for the education of all children, and in the submission from time to time in respectful obedience to what has been deemed the popular will of amendments to the national constitution and the constitution of the State. Animated by these recollections, it is

Resolved, That, reposing trust in the people, as the foundation of power, we demand that the pending amendments to the constitution shall be agreed to and submitted by the next Legislature to the voters of the State for their decision thereon. These amendments were not partisan in their origin and are not so in character, and should not be made so in voting upon them. Recognizing the fact that the people are divided in sentiment in regard to the propriety of their adoption or rejection, and cherishing the right of private judgment, we favor the submission of these amendments at a special election, so that there may be an intelligent decision thereon, uninfluenced by partisan issues.

2. That we feel it due to the memory of President Garfield to express our sense of the great loss suffered by the nation in his death, and we recall with pride the fact that, springing from the humblest condition in life, Lincoln and Garfield rose, step by step, without any help but the force of their ability and virtues, to the front rank among Americans, and were chosen by the Republican party to bear its banner in its struggles to maintain the supremacy and glory of the national Union.

3. That the lapse of time cannot efface from the grateful recollection of the Republican party its memory of the brave soldiers, from whatever section or party ranks they may have come, who offered their lives in support of its policy of restoring and maintaining the Union of the States.

4. That a revenue greatly reduced in amount being all that is now needed to pay the interest on our public debt and the expenses of the Government economically administered, the time has arrived for such a reduction of taxes and regulation of the tariff dues as shall raise no more money than shall be necessary to pay such interest and expenses, and we therefore approve of efforts now making to adjust this reduction so that no unnecessary burdens upon the consumers of imported articles may exist, and that no injury be inflicted upon our domestic industries, or upon the industrial classes employed therein.

5. That we are gratified to observe that the laws for the protection of miners and securing their wages, under the constant administration of them by Republican Mine Inspectors, have done much for the comfort of the workers in mines, and that we hope to see the important suggestions of the present Inspector for amendments further to promote their comfort adopted by the next Legislature.

6. That the relations between capital and labor should be so adjusted that the rights of laborers shall be fully protected.

7. That the fees of all State and county officers should be so regulated as to give a fair compensation to them, but not so great as to tempt applicants to corrupt methods to obtain the same, or to impose unjust burdens upon the people.

8. That we join with our Irish fellow-citizens in sincere sympathy with the efforts of their brethren in Ireland to break up, by means of just legislation, the large landed estates in that island, and to introduce upon these lands for the general good of the people, peasant proprietorship; and we join with them also in the hope that efforts for home-rule in all matters of local concern will prove successful.

9. That it is the duty of Congress to adopt laws to secure a thorough and complete reform of the civil service, by which the subordinate positions of the Government should no longer be considered rewards for party zeal, which will abolish the evils of patronage and establish a system making honesty, efficiency and fidelity the essential qualifications for public positions.

10. That the industry, wisdom and firmness of President Chester A. Arthur meet the cordial indorsement of the Republicans of Indiana.

11. That Senator Benjamin Harrison, by his able and faithful discharge of duty and on account of his eminent abilities, challenges our admiration and confidence.

ILLINOIS PROHIBITIONISTS.

The Illinois Prohibitionists held a State Convention at Bloomington, 150 delegates being present. John B. Finch made a statement that Lieut. Gov. Hamilton had avowed his willingness to see a saloon in every building in the State rather than the Republican party should lose its control; but Mr. Hamilton sends out a sweeping denial. Judge Irwin, of Madison county, was nominated for Treasurer, and Convention of Indiana ex-Senator Henry S. Lane, one of the gifted and ever-honored founders and trusted leaders of the Republican party, has departed this life, and left a void in our ranks that fills us with sadness. He was eloquent for the right, always moved by the highest impulses of patriotism, and his memory is enshrined in the hearts of the people of the State.

12. That Gov. Albert G. Porter is a wise and honest executive officer, and we congratulate the State upon securing the services of so faithful a public servant.

13. Since the last meeting of the Republican After the adoption of the resolutions the present State officers were unanimously nominated as follows:

Secretary of State—E. R. Hawn.
Auditor of State—E. H. Wolf.
Treasurer of State—R. J. Hill.
Attorney General—D. P. Baldwin.
Reporter of Supreme Court—Jonathan A. Gordon.

Superintendent of Public Instruction—John M. Bloss.

A committee from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union were introduced. Mrs. George Merritt, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Helen McGangor addressed the convention in advocacy of the constitutional amendment.

Prof. Matthews, of Galesburg, for Superintendent of Schools. A State Central Committee of forty-four members was appointed.

MASSACHUSETTS PROHIBITIONISTS.

The Prohibitionists met in State Convention on the 9th inst. Amos Cummings was temporary Chairman, and J. H. Roberts permanent Chairman. Speeches were made showing the necessity of the State and National Prohibitory party. Thirty-nine cities and towns were represented in the convention by 155 delegates. Charles Almy, of New Bedford, was nominated for Governor by acclamation; for Lieutenant Governor, John Blackmar; for Secretary of State, Solomon E. Root; for Treasurer and Receiver General, T. J. Lathrop; for Auditor, Jonathan Buck, and for Attorney General, Samuel M. Fairfield. It was stated that $1,000 at least were needed for the campaign. Almy, the candidate for Governor, made a short address, promising to faithfully serve as candidate. The usual prohibitory resolutions were adopted.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS.

The Republicans of Kansas held their State Convention at Topeka. Gov. St. John was nominated for re-election by a large majority on the first ballot. The remainder of the ticket is as follows: D. W. Finney, present incumbent, for Lieutenant Governor; James Smith, present incumbent, for Secretary of State; McCabe, a colored man of Graham county, for Auditor; Treasurer, Samuel S. Howe; Attorney General, W. A. Johnson; State Superintendent, H. C. Speer; D. J. Browne, for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court.

The following platform was adopted: We, the Republicans of the State of Kansas in delegate convention assembled, affirming our faith in, and adherence to, the principles of the Republican party, hereby express our confidence in our present national and State administrations, and we pledge ourselves to their support, and announce the following as our declaration of principles:

Resolved, That we declare ourselves unqualifiedly in favor of the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and pledge ourselves to such additional legislation as shall secure the rigid enforcement of the constitutional provision upon this subject in all parts of the State.

Resolved, That we demand the enactment of such laws as will prevent discrimination by railroad companies, and will provide for such freight and passenger tariff as shall fully protect the interests of the public.

Resolved, That we request the next Legislature to submit such an amendment to the constitution of the State as, will secure to women the right of suffrage.

Resolved, That we request our delegation in Congress to secure such an amendment to the revenue laws as will prevent the issuing of receipts or stamps to sell intoxicating liquors to any person other than those authorized so to do under State laws.

Resolved, That we are in favor of the strict and immediate enforcement of all the laws now upon the statute books for the regulation of railroads.

Resolved, That we ask of the Republican majority of the Congress of the United States to pass such laws as will compel the railways of this State to take patents for the lands granted them for the public domain, to the end that all property in this State shall pay its just proportion of the taxes levied to support the Government.

Resolved, That the Republicans of Kansas heartily indorse President Arthur's veto of the River and Harbor bill and the action of the united Kansas delegation in sustaining that veto.

A Georgia Catfish.

In the early days of Rome, about forty years ago, a poor widow, a Mrs. Parks, occupied a rude habitation about sixteen feet square, constructed of rough poles, on the site where Dr. Gregory's residence now stands. This poor woman had two children—the elder a stout, robust girl about 18 years of age, Martha by name. The other was a boy of 7. One day Martha, who took in washing to help support the family, went to the spring near the house, on the banks of the Etowah river, to do some washing; her brother was with her. On arriving at the spring, which is only a few feet from the river, she noticed an enormous catfish lying in the cool branch of the spring in water nearly deep enough to float the fish. A batteau was fastened to a tree near by, and stepping to the boat she seized a paddle, and, quick as thought, dealt the monster fish a blow on the head which stunned it, and the little boy, Scruggs Parks, jumped into the stream and seized the fish, but in his excitement and attempts to secure the prize he thrust both hands into the gills of the fish. The gills closed on them with a vise-like grip, and the fish in floundering about with the boy at length struck water deep enough to support him, and, with head to the river, with a mighty effort shot into the stream with the speed of an arrow, the boy on his back. A moment of terrible anguish and suspense to the poor sister, who was a helpless observer of all that was passing, and the catfish landed high and dry on an island some sixty or seventy feet from the shore, with the boy in a fainting, frightened and half-drowned condition. The cries of the sister soon brought men on the scene, who took the boat and in a few minutes landed fish and boy on the shore of the river. The fish weighed sixty-five pounds.

The editor of the Bulletin says: We vouch for the truthfulness of this story, getting the facts, as we do, from an old citizen, who was an eye witness to the rescue of the boy from the clasp of the gills. There are a few other citizens still living in Rome who will remember the incident, which created some excitement at the time of its occurrence.—Rome (Ga.) Bulletin.

A SCIENTIST who has investigated the chances of the game of "pitch and toss" with a penny or piece of silver says that in 10,000 flips there will be 5,000 "heads" and as many "tails." Sometimes the "heads" will come out fifteen or twenty ahead, but on the next 10,000 "tails" will catch up, or vice versa. To this it is added, however, that if a penny is tossed up a hundred times it will probably come up "heads" fifty times and "tails" fifty times, but if a player undertakes to call each toss he will not be right fifty times.

A Hard Hit.

Those people who always write poetry when they are sad, were well and deservedly hit Curran, who said of Byron: "Here is a man who first weeps over his wife and then wipes his eyes with the public."

PESTERING THE PASTOR.

One of the Martyrdoms of Popular Metropolitan Clergymen
(From the New York Sun.)

"Pious bores are insufferable nuisances," said the sexton of an up-town fashionable church. "There is one fellow who has been boring the church for a year until at last I was compelled to threaten him with arrest. He would come at the busiest time on Sunday morning and insist upon being shown to the best seat. I could not put him off. If I did not give him the seat he would follow me up the aisle and coolly walk in after another party."

"It was not so much the seat as his conduct in it that made him objectionable. He would be officiously polite to the occupants in handing books or finding hymns. He would find out the names of the pew-holders and bore them with conversation. He would go to their residences and bore them there under pretense of interest in the church work. He would waylay the minister and monopolize his time after service, to the exclusion of members of the church, whose only opportunity to see the pastor might be in those few moments."

"One day our pastor, who is an exceedingly courteous man, was vexed. The bore darted at him after morning service and insisted upon a talk."

"Excuse me," said the pastor, "I am not now at leisure."

"But I have some important thoughts to talk over with you," continued the bore.

"I beg your pardon, but you must come some other time."

"My thoughts are very pressing," persisted the bore, as he was again rebuffed in the pastor's blandest style. But still he persevered, until even that amiable clergyman ejaculated, "if you do not get out I will call for the police."

"Clergymen are very often martyrs to this sort of persecution. Being non-combatants, they are expected to submit without resistance. There is hardly a clergyman in New York, of any prominence, who has not some special bore in his congregation who almost worries his life out of him. Frothingham had one who used to get a chair and sit agape close to the platform, and after service rush to pull Frothingham's hand out of his pocket to shake it. Deems had one who came so often that the minister was convinced that the fellow wanted to steal his books."

"But it is old ladies who distress popular young ministers most in this way. Frequently they have little else to do. They pester the pastor in his study, in the church, the vestry, the doorway and the street, until life becomes a burden to him, and yet he dares not protect himself, lest he should be accused of lack of interest in his work. The poor parsons cannot, like ordinary folk, say they are not at home when they are. They cannot be harsh or abrupt, but have simply to bear it as best they can. Of all the afflictions of clergymen the most offensive is the pious bore."

Nutritious Food.

The pleasure of living is increased by a judicious selection of nutritious food. The true epicurean will avoid a diet not pleasing to his palate and satisfactory to his stomach. An invalid suffering from dyspepsia who finds that this or that gives him greater or less stomachic suffering, heartburn, etc., should choose the ones less aggravating to his feelings. The writer cured himself of dyspepsia by a diet consisting principally of soft-boiled eggs, toast, beefsteak cooked rare, baked potatoes and warm milk, using as a tonic Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla, a medicine highly recommended as strengthening to the digestive organs.—Times Correspondent. Ask your druggist to get it for you.

Dr. Holland's Sayings.

Fiction is most powerful when it contains most truth; and there is but little truth that we get so true as that which we find in fiction.

A fit of anger is as fatal to dignity as a dose of arsenic is to life.

His marvelous accomplishment and powers won for him the respect of the great, and his sympathy with the humble drew to him the hearts of the world.

There is more of the element of mystery in Longfellow's "Psalm of Life," than in all that Byron and Poe ever wrote. Value in character makes value in verse.

Life is so grand, so full of meaning, * * * that, despite all its sorrows, I would willingly live it over again.

All the things we see are types of things we do not see—visible expressions of the things and thoughts of God.

That which man was intended to be is that which unperverted womanhood demands that he should be.

Faith draws the poison from every grief, takes the sting from every loss, and quenches the fire of every pain; and only faith can do it.

I have learned that to do one's next duty is to take a step toward all that is worth possessing.

A man who does not learn to live while he is getting a living is a poorer man after his wealth is won than he was before.

No idle man, however rich he may be, can feel the genuine independence of him who can earn honestly and manfully his daily bread.

A woman is a curus bein'; she cries when she's tickled, and she laughs when she's mad.

Well, he's a broken reed—a broken reed—but I hope Mrs. Snow will tie something on him—or starch him—or something—to make him stand straight for once.

Mrs. Maria L. Winton, of Batavia, Ohio, writes: "I believe I suffered more from dyspepsia than any woman living. It just seemed that no kind of food would rest on my stomach. My habits were very irregular and my general health consequently broke down. Several medicines I tried relieved me at first, but I soon got worse again. I was recommended to give Dr. Guyot's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla a trial. It has now been three months since I quit taking it, and I have not suffered any symptoms of dyspepsia since, and my habits are now very regular."

Intelligent people make many blunders, because they can never believe the world as stupid as it is.—Chamfort.

The Colonel and the Cat.

Col. Tom Clark, of Brooklyn, once owned a cat on which he showered all the affection of his bachelor heart. And the shower took the shape of a pound of mince meat every day. One morning the Colonel noticed that his feline namesake had wasted away to a mere skeleton, and immediately he summoned his boy Bill to appear before the bar.

"Didn't I tell you to give that cat a pound of meat every day?" asked the Colonel.

"Yes, sir, and that's what I give him every morning before you're out of bed," answered Bill.

"I don't believe a word of it. My opinion is that you either pocket the money or eat the meat yourself. Bring me the scales and the cat."

The scales and cat were brought; the latter was placed on the former and Tom and the marler stopped at the one-pound mark.

"There," exclaimed the boy in triumph, "Didn't I tell you I gave him a pound of meat this morning?"

"There's the pound of meat sure enough," said the Colonel, stroking his chin. "But where the devil's the cat?"

It is getting very fashionable to adorn the home with handsome specimens of fancy work. May it suggest the thought that the family cat nailed by the four claws to the parlor mantel and painted red would have a novel and beautiful effect?

The Agony Over.

Corns are small in size, but their importance is not to be judged by their size, as any one fond of a tramp can testify. Try Putnam's Extractor for corns. ## The Big Four.

They are represented by more people, have more subjects, call oftener, stay longer, and yet are the most unwelcome guests you can have on your list of visitors.

The first of this precious quartette of unwelcome guests gives you an excruciating headache even to think of him.

The second takes away your appetite, debilitates your system, gives you a sallow complexion, and makes you truly miserable generally.

The third bestows upon you a legacy of skin eruptions, and disordered secretions, constipation and other irregularities too numerous to mention.

The fourth takes forcible possession of your peace of mind and health of body, and makes you a perfect martyr to his tyrannical unjust government. He caps the climax, and what little the others have left he robs you of, you cannot eat without fear and trembling, and sleep becomes a stranger to your eyes.

The Stomach, the Blood, the Liver and the Kidneys constitute

THE BIG FOUR. A YEAR ago last winter, when the W. C. T. U. was laboring at Springfield for the passage of the Hinds Bill, a gentleman was journeying in the central part of the state, and in crossing a river on the ice, stopped on an island in the only habitation there, to get warm. The house proved to be a saloon. Presently a man came in for his grog. As he raised the glass he said: "I wish to God there was none of this stuff ever made." "O don't wish dat," said the Dutchman at the bar, "dat time come enough." "No," returned the drinker, "it'll never come—this miserable whisky'll always be manufactured." "You tink so? Nein, I tell you nein. Wat dem vimmens doing at Springfield? Dem vimmens down dere now. Den dey'll vote. Den verre'll de beer and whisky bet?" Echo answers, where?

A MAN in Illinois, who is chairman of a license board, heard his own ruined son say recently, after a dreadful fit of delirium tremens, in which he tried to kill himself: "Now, father, what sense is there in your argument that we must have the license money to keep up this town? Here I earned $148 as a hod-carrier, because I've wasted myself so that I'm fit for no better business. I then went on a spree and spent every cent of it in one of these saloons, and am now in debt fifteen dollars more to the proprietor. Is there much money in that for our family firm?"

But his father could not see it, and still believes in "regulating (?) the traffic!"

His mother sees clearly, but neither she nor the other women in the community can help it. Beautiful scheme!—Signal.

Mr. Earnest Sylverton, a rich Wall street broker living in Hoboken, N. J., opposite New York City, writes: "The excessive strain of nervous excitement resulting from stock speculation and too high living made quite an invalid of me. Brown's Iron Bitters restored me to perfect health and strength."

A NEWSPAPER man, perhaps Bob Burdette, having been asked by a lady, "What is a party platform?" thus explained: "Well, a platform, Julia, is one preamble and twenty resolutions; strong in nonessentials, vague in essentials; round the bush on the tariff, and rough as thunder on the Mormons; clamorous for civil service reform; down on corruption, loud in its praise of purity and determined to have it if it takes every cent the party can raise. The platform you understand, Julia, is a legitimate and necessary part of the campaign pump and circumstance; it goes along with the banners, transparencies and torches, and when the campaign is over—well, it is stored away in the cellar or the garret, along with the rest of the uniforms and torches. A campaign platform is very much like the campaign torch, indeed; it gives out a great deal of smell and smoke with a very uncertain, flickering light."
