CIRCUIT COURT NOTES.

Eugene Tallmage, convicted by the jury of assault with intent to commit rape, was sentenced last Friday by Judge Padgham to a term of from five to ten years in Jackson prison, with a recommendation of five years.

Barney McDonald, convicted of the charge of statutory rape on the person of May Clark, received a sentence of not less than ten, nor more than twenty years at Jackson prison, with no recommendation.

James Clark, the father of little May Clark, whose testimony convicted both McDonald and Tallmage of these serious charges, was sentenced to 90 days in the Detroit House of Correction. Judge Padgham said that he was sorry that 90 days was the limit of the penalty allowed by the law. He took occasion to tell Clark what he thought of a father who had failed to provide decent protection to the bright little girl, who instead was subjected to indignities almost unbelievable among civilized beings. He informed Clark that his little daughter would be sent to the girls' home at Adrian, where the wrongs he had done her might be remedied and where she would be given care and instruction which would be beneficial to her. Judge Padgham expressed the belief that May Clark could and would yet become a good and useful woman. Clark, a pitiful figure, stood with bowed head through the arraignment, apparently cognizant of his wrongdoing.

Dick Riemersma, who pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and battery, was sentenced to 90 days in the Detroit House of Correction.

Delbert Stagg, who pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the gas company's office at Grand Haven, was sentenced to the state's prison at Jackson for a term of not less than two years nor more than five years, with the recommendation that the sentence be two years.

Augustine Chaffee, who pleaded guilty to incest, was sentenced to a term of from six to fifteen years at Jackson prison, with a recommendation that the term be six years.

The case of the People vs. Walter Sutton was tried in Circuit court Thursday. Mr. Sutton was charged with furnishing liquor to a minor, Dickema, Kollen & TenCate appeared for the defendant, and Prosecuting Attorney Louis Osterhaus for the people. Judge Padgham instructed the jury to find Mr. Sutton technically guilty of the offense charged and a verdict was brought in to this effect. The reason for this was that inasmuch as the young Brown lad, the complaining witness, had deceived Mr. Sutton in regard to whom the beer was sold to, the offense was merely a technical one. The sentence imposed by the court was a light one and Mr. Sutton paid a fine of $5 and costs, amounting in all to $19.80.

A surprise was sprung in the appeal case against A. M. Cosgrove for the fraudulent using of water. At the request of the prosecuting attorney, Dan F. Pagelsen, city attorney, had been appointed to prosecute the case. At the opening of court, Geo. A. Farr raised an objection to Mr. Pagelsen's appearance in the case, under the claim that as the city attorney Mr. Pagelsen was bringing a civil case based on the same proposition and could therefore not prosecute the criminal case under the statute. Judge Padgham sustained Mr. Farr's objection and withdrew the appointment of Mr. Pagelsen, later appointing Attorney Geo. E. Kollen of Holland to take charge of the case for the people. It took but a day to try the case before the jury and a verdict for the people was the result. Mr. Cosgrove will be sentenced soon.

The long calendar of criminal cases to be tried at the present term of circuit court has been practically closed and only one criminal matter remains to be tried at the present term. That is the case of the people vs. J. J. Ayers, charged with statutory rape, which has been paid at the foot of the jury calendar. It is expected that Ayers will be ready to stand trial before the jury is excused for the term. The jury will be on duty for several weeks longer however, as there are a number of issue of fact jury cases ready for trial, which will be disposed of if possible at the present term of court. Yesterday the case of Adeline Phillips vs. Jesse G. Woodbury was called for trial, after hanging fire for several years.

EMPLOY STUDENTS.

Several worthy students desiring to enter Hope College this Fall would like a chance to work for their board; girls would do housework in some good home, and boys be generally useful about residence, store or elsewhere. Parties having employment of this nature should communicate with Dr. Edwin N. Brown of the College. They may thus secure the desired service and at the same time aid some worthy young person in acquiring a college education.

St Louis and Holland Sugar Cos. Will Unite

At a meeting of the stockholders of the local sugar company it was decided by a vote of three fourths of the holders of stock to consolidate with the St. Louis Sugar company. There were only a few votes against the proposed consolidation. Today over in St. Louis there is being held a meeting of the stockholders of the sugar company there to pass upon the same proposition. The measure is expected to carry there.

The following men went to St. Louis today in the interests of the new concern: C. M. McLean, J. J. Cappon, Geo. E. Kollen, Geo. Souter, Arred Visseher, Austin Harrington and several others.

If the proposed consolidation is satisfactory to all a new factory will be built in some other good beet growing locality and the new company will enter into the manufacture of sugar on a larger scale.

Ring in a Fish

The latest fish story to come to our notice is told by Mr. J. B. Mulder and so far is in earnest that he offers proof of a sensational nature to back up his tale.

While Mr. Mulder and his family and a party of fishermen were angling at Macatawa yesterday one of the young ladies in the party succeeded in hooking a large white bass which was landed without any difficulty. When the fish was opened a gold signet ring worth several dollars marked with the initial "B" was discovered. Mr. Mulder has the ring which he shows to prove the story. You can take it or leave it.

Judge Kirby Makes Rescue

Tuesday while Miss Ruth Carpenter, who is resorting at Grand Haven, was bathing in the surf she was carried out beyond her depth by the undertow. She was floating on a launch cushion and as soon as she realized her plight she became frightened and screamed for help. Two men in a canoe attempted to effect a rescue but the high waves caught the little craft and quickly overturned it.

Before another boat was secured Judge Kirby, who noticed the bather's plight from the Indian village, started out through the breakers in a clinker boat, which stood up well in the sea. He soon reached her and directing her to remain on the life preserving cushion and hold fast to the boat, he brought her safely to shore.

NEW GAME LAWS.

A little booklet has been published by the state in which all local sportsmen will be interested. It is called "A Synopsis of Important General Game and Fish Laws of Michigan in Effect August 1, 1911." The booklet was compiled by Frederick C. Martindale, secretary of State. There will be an important meeting of the Board of Trade tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Board of Trade rooms. Every member is urged to be present.

Arrested by Deputy State Game Warden Dornbos on a charge of killing snipe, Arthur Lemmon was arraigned before Justice S.oy. It was shown on the hearing that there had been no intent on the part of Lemmon to violate the law and he was given the minimum fine of $10.

Rev. Van Vleet, pastor of the Christian Reformed church at Grand Haven has declined the call extended to him by the Christian Reformed church at South Olive. The consistory of the Christian Reformed church at South Olive have made the following trio from whom the congregation will elect a regular pastor: Rev. R. Bolt, Rev. J. Wynngaarden and Rev. H. A new school is soon to be opened in this city which will be known as the Holland Drawing School. The object of the new school is to furnish technical courses which will afford every young man in the city who desires it an opportunity to secure an education either at the day sessions of the school or else at the evening sessions. Three courses will be taught: Mechanical Engineering, mechanical drawing and a course in mathematics. This school should fill a long felt want in this city as there are a number of young men who desire just such an education as the school offers. The new school is located at 30 E. 8th street where arrangements can now be made matriculation.

CITY WATER IS PURE.

Health Officer Godfrey received a report from the chemical department of the University of Michigan stating that the water supply of Holland as far as quality of the water is concerned, is exceptionally good. It was thought that the several cases of typhoid fever in the city might be traceable to the city's water supply but after this report it is very evident that these cases must arise from some other source.

At Ann Arbor the water was submitted to very thorough tests and such a report as was received speaks well for the water now pumped through the city mains. Advocates of the double piping system are not slow to see in this report a conclusive argument in favor of their theory. They feel that the maintenance of a water supply of such quality should be kept up regardless of any cost.

TALKING ABOUT SHORT CROPS.

If the estimate of the department of agriculture turns out to be correct, the cereal yield of 1911 will be much smaller than was that of 1910. The falling off will be over 500,000,000 bushels in corn, $1,000,000 bushels in wheat, 309,000,000 bushels in oats, 23,000,000 bushels in barley, and 3,000,000 bushels each in rye and buckwheat. The report for hay, rice, tobacco and flaxseed is also bad. Several stocks on the big exchange in New York dropped when this estimate was published.

But before the country works itself into a scare on this account it should consider one or two qualifying factors. The data on which the report was based was gathered much more than a week ago, and there have been rains since then which have put a different face on things in the grain-growing region. If the rains had come in the latter half of May or in June or July the effect would have been far better, but even now they will help corn and some of the other cereals. Usually the early estimates of the department of agriculture of crop conditions make the situation look a little worse than the final figures in December warrant. The department's harvest forecasts are generally below the mark. Western authorities who have taken a look over the ground more recently than the government's agents did when they were compiling the figures recently made public say that the actual present conditions are much better than the department intimates.

It is noticed that the reports from the cotton fields have uniformly been favorable in recent weeks. At this stage of the growing season apparently nothing can come which will keep the crop below 14,000,000 bales. That mark has never been touched thus far, but this year it will undoubtedly be passed. The estimates based on the department's most recent figures make it appear that the crop will be anywhere from $14,500,000 bales to 15,000,000. Texas is believed to be good for 5,000,000 bales.

Attack Like Tigers.

In fighting to keep the blood pure the white corpuscles attack disease germs like tigers. But often germs multiply so fast the little fighters are overcome. Then see pimples, boils, eczema, salt rheum and sores multiply and strength and appetite fail. This condition demands Electric Bitters to regulate stomach, liver and kidneys and to expel poisons from the blood. "They are the best blood purifier," writes C. T. Budahn, of Tracy, Cal., "I have ever found."

They make rich, red blood, strong nerves and build up your health. Try them. 50c at Walsh Drug Co., H. R. Doesburg, Geo. L. Lage.

Holland People Have Good Reason For Complete Reliance.

There's one way—your neighbors know—

Have used Doan's Kidney Pills; Have proved their worth in many tests.

Here's Holland testimony. William J. Denison, 526 Central Ave., Holland, Mich., says: "For two months I was afflicted with kidney trouble, my back being extremely painful. I could not do any work without becoming tired and I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells. I was bothered by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions and I often noticed sediment in them. My sight blurred and I felt languid and worn out. When I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills I began their use and they gave me prompt relief. I always keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house and whenever I have used them, they have benefited me. I always advise anyone I hear complaining of kidney trouble to give this remedy a trial."

ALL MICHIGAN SEEKS RICH TROPHY

Beautiful Bronze Statue Offered by West Michigan Fair Association for Heavy Draft Horses.

One of the most important features of the exhibits at the West Michigan State Fair at Grand Rapids, September 11-15 is in the department of draft horses. Horses are surely horses these days and good draft horses are worth money. Moreover, there is nothing prettier than a fine spirited draft horse or a team of them. Liberal premiums are offered in all the classes of this event but in addition the Martin draft horse trophy, a beautiful bronze statue of a heavy draft horse, is offered as a special inducement to bring the big working animals into prominence.

This trophy is offered to the best draft team owned in Michigan and weighing 3,000 pounds or more. The purpose in offering it is to encourage the raising of draft horses and to stimulate pride in the care and ownership of heavy teams on the farm and in the city.

The trophy will be awarded Wednesday, Grand Rapids day. It is required that all contestants shall drive in the grand cavalcade at 3:30 on that day. Then every person in the great crowds always present on that date will have an opportunity to see some of the finest specimens of horse flesh the state can boast. The trophy is awarded for the year, remaining always the property of the West Michigan State Fair and to be returned to the association September 1st of each year, to be competed for at the next fair. Last year the Voigt Milling Co. of Grand Rapids, with its fine team, captured the trophy, but intense rivalry has been aroused and it is expected the competition this year will be keener than ever.

In addition to winning the trophy, the finest team will also secure the first premium of $20, which makes it still further worth while to compete. Those not securing the trophy are offered prizes of $15, $12, $10 and $8. All drivers of the contesting teams will be paid $2 for their appearance in the cavalcade.

BIG AWARDS FOR FRUITS

West Michigan State Fair Encourages the Growers.

Michigan is distinctly the leading fruit growing state and the officials of the West Michigan State Fair at Grand Rapids, September 11 to 15, recognize this. In accordance, the horticultural department is made one of the leaders of the great exposition. A big space has been reserved for this and the best fruits to be grown in the state will be on exhibition here.

The premiums in this department are especially liberal, the fair officials recognizing the vast opportunities of the state for growing the best fruits in the world.

But in addition to what the fair officials themselves have offered, the West Michigan Development Bureau has offered special prizes amounting to $100 for exhibits of fruits and alfalfa grown in any of the 20 counties constituting the territory of the bureau.

Place these premiums on top of those offered by the fair, and the winners are due to pull down some fat awards. The competition will be spirited since western Michigan raises more and better fruits than any other section of the country.

COMMON COUNCIL.

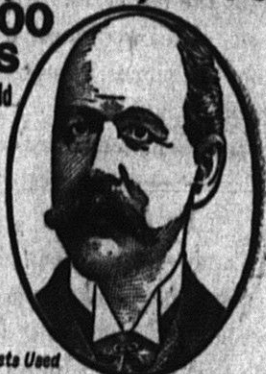

(Official.)
Holland, Mich., Aug. 16, 1911.
The Common Council met in regular session and was called to order by the Mayor.
Present—Mayor Stephan, Aldermen Van Tongeren, Drinkwater, King, Kammeraad, Mersen, Harrington and Brouwer, and the Clerk.
The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.
PETITIONS.
The Hotel Holland Co., per Wm. Wentworth, petitioned as follows:
"Inasmuch as the regulation of the sale of liquor is under consideration by your honorable body, I hereby respectfully petition for the privilege of supplying to the guests of Hotel Holland such liquors as they may wish.
"Whether this privilege is granted in the form of an open bar or under the State wholesale law of selling one bottle, is a decision I leave to the judgment of your honorable body. In either case I will gladly submit to any restrictions you may impose, and will conduct the business to the credit of my hotel and the City of Holland.
"My object in seeking this privilege is not to engage in the general sale of liquor, but to supply the wants of my guests and avoid the discrimination against the travelling public which is imposed by the present system."
Referred to the Committee on Licenses to report at the next regular meeting of the Council.
Alderman Jellema here appeared and took his seat.
D. Tiepkema petitioned for remission of taxes for the year 1911, on Lot 7, Block 2, Marsijle's Sub-division.

MESSAGES FROM THE MAYOR.
The Clerk presented the following:
Holland, Aug. 6, 1911.
To the Common Council of the City of Holland.
Gentlemen:—By authority vested in me, as Mayor, by Title VII, Section 3, of the Charter of the City of Holland, I herewith return to you without my approval, an ordinance passed by you August 2, 1911, entitled, "An Ordinance to Regulate the Care, Sale and Distribution of Milk, Cream and Milk Products Within the City of Holland; and to License Dealers in and Vendors thereof; and to Provide Penalties for the Violation thereof."
My reasons for withholding my approval from said ordinance are as follows: There are a number of very stringent restrictions in this ordinance and its passage may mean a raise in the selling price of milk. A measure which may result in increasing the price of any commodity in common use should receive the most careful consideration before going into effect. Many of the provisions of the ordinance were admittedly not thoroughly comprehended by the aldermen, except one or two exceptions, on the night of the passage of the ordinance. I believe the members of the Council should have taken further time for consideration before passing the bill. I further believe that the ordinance should be amended so as to remove from some of the restrictions the sale of Pasteurized milk.
Restrictions should not be placed upon the sale of any commodity which are not warranted by conditions. If the various provisions of this ordinance are essential to the health and welfare of our citizens, they should be enacted. I believe that the Common Council should be furnished with further data and information as to the necessity of the stringent provisions of this ordinance.
For these reasons I hereby veto said ordinance, and return the same to you without my approval.
Very respectfully,
E. P. STEPHAN, Mayor.
On motion of Alderman King, the message was received.
Alderman Mersen moved that the Ordinance be tabled until the next regular meeting of the Council.
Alderman Kammeraad moved to amend same so as to refer the Ordinance back to the Committee on Ordinances, and to the Mayor.
Said amendment did not prevail.
The question then recurring on the original motion, said motion prevailed.

A Charming Woman

is one who is lovely in face, form, mind and temper. But its hard for a woman to be charming without health. A weak, sickly woman will be nervous and irritable. Constipation and kidney poisons show in pimples, blotches, skin eruptions and a wretched complexion. But Electric Bitters always prove a godsend to women who want health, beauty and friends. They regulate Stomach, Liver and Kidneys, purify the blood, give strong nerves, bright eyes, pure breath, smooth, velvety skin, lovely complexion and perfect health. We Need a City Hospital

We are always ready to advocate and help along meritorious projects that result in benefit to the city and its citizens. We have always put our shoulder to the wheel in the interest of such enterprises as are proposed from time to time to this end. The thought occurs to us that there is one thing lacking in Holland that the city should have and that is a hospital. We look about us and find such towns as Allegan and South Haven with but three or four thousand population where the city hospital has become an established thing and we wonder why Holland with its 10,000 and at some seasons 15,000 population has not established such an institution. We would like to see something along this line started and pushed to a finish. If smaller cities can do this thing so can Holland and if such cities need a hospital do does Holland.

Farmers' Picnic

We were pleased to note that the crowds that attended the farmers picnic at Jenison Park this year in spite of the cold weather were larger than they have been in several years. There was a time when these picnics were comparatively poorly attended. But that time is past. The farmers in this section of the country are coming more and more to the conclusion that this one day is their day and they are showing a determination to take advantage of it. It is a day when Holland and the people of Holland should combine with the farmer and see that he gets not only a good time each year but each year a better time than the year before. There should be no taint of commercialism in the farmer's good time. There should be no mercenary motives charged or chargeable. The farmers picnic is not the occasion for such thoughts or such charges. The men who do the most to give the touch that makes the picnic worth while have a right not to be the target for grumbling tongues. If all would pitch in and help out the picnic the mercenary argument would be forgotten or better still to be found not to exist.

Be A Booster

If you have never attended a base ball game come out to Saturday's game and get something for your money that you will never forget. If you are a fan and have seen every game played on the local diamond this season, come out to Saturday's game to show the crowd how to root for the home team. If you have not seen many games, if you have neglected to take advantage of the opportunities offered you to see first class league ball in Holland come out to Saturday's game and make up for your negligence by helping to swell the big Boosters Day crowd. If you are a fan who has been confined to the counter or work bench you will be free Saturday to take in the game and you need no advice. Saturday's game is the big BOOSTER'S DAY game. More fans will turn out to this game than ever turned out to an athletic contest in the city of Holland. The men in this city who have stood by the guns and given us a splendid brand of the real article in base ball are going to run behind with their guarantee unless this Boosters Day is the howling success that it ought to be. Everyone who wants to see Holland make good on its pledge is coming out to see this game and help the good cause along.

Incidentally while you are helping Holland by your boosting you can help the boys who wear the Holland uniform by your rooting. And you will see a good game of a ball for the Muskegon team will be the contenders. There will be a band and a balloon ascension and all in all next Saturday afternoon in going to be a gala day at the ball park.

We all owe it to the team, to the men back of it, and to the city of Holland to come out to the game Saturday and BOOST. BE A BOOSTER!

MANY ATTEND PICNIC.

Nearly eight hundred people attended the annual Merchants' picnic which was held at Saugatuck last Friday, and one of the most enjoyable affairs ever held under the auspices of the local association was ended when the big crowd came home on the loaded cars at night.

Although there were twenty-six games and contests scheduled, but twenty-two were pulled off. The Hidding family proved themselves to be strong contenders for the prizes. It was Al. Hidding's tug-of-war team that won the big prize of cars for all; Mrs. Al. Hidding was there when it came to hitting the nail on the head, easily winning the ladies' nailing contest by a good margin; Mrs. H. NEW THEATRE WILL OPEN

The Knickerbocker Theatre has been leased for a period of two years to Charles E. New and John C. Agnew of Evanston, Ill. The deal was closed through the Michigan Trust company of Grand Rapids, which has charge of the estate of Teiman Slaght. This gives Holland an amusement place of the high class that this paper has been advocating ever since the old theatre was destroyed by fire several years ago. We have several times pointed out the benefit that will be effected by the opening of a high class theatre for good productions.

The gentlemen who have charge of the new theatre are well equipped in every way for carrying on their work and promise for this city beginning in September a series of high class shows that would be a credit to a much larger city.

We hail with delight the new move, for we believe that the right kind of shows will elevate the taste and offer clean, wholesome amusement to the population of the city.

OLD TESTAMENT TIMES BROOKLYN TABERNACLE BIBLE STUDIES

DARK PROPHECIES FULFILLED

Jeremiah 39—Aug. 27

"Be sure your sin will find you out."
Numbers 32:23.

THE dark prophecies which the Lord sent through Jeremiah the Prophet finally reached fulfillment. The besieging army of the Chaldeans, after a year and a half of siege, finally, with battering rams, succeeded in making a breach in the wall through which an entrance was effected and the city forced to capitulate. King Zedekiah and his small army escaped toward the south in the direction of the Jordan, but were soon overtaken by the Chaldeans, Nebuchadnezzar, in person, was some miles distant from Jerusalem, at Riblah, and thither Zedekiah was taken.

The punishment was after the manner of the time, illustrated on some of the victory tablets which still remain. The king's eyes were put out and, a blind prisoner, he was taken to Babylon. Thus was fulfilled two very striking prophecies which, until fulfilled, seemed quite contradictory. In this we get a lesson of how carefully we should study Divine prophecy, and how faithfully we should trust its every detail if we would receive light instead of darkness.

One of these prophecies respecting Zedekiah is found in Ezekiel xlii, 10-13. The other is found in Jeremiah xxxii, 3-5. Ezekiel declared that King Zedekiah would be taken to Babylon a captive, and that there he would live and die; yet he again declared that he would never see the city, apparently a contradiction. Jeremiah predicted the downfall of Jerusalem, declaring that Zedekiah would speak with Nebuchadnezzar mouth to mouth and see his eyes. This seemed to contradict Ezekiel's statement, for if he would speak with the king mouth to mouth and see him eye to eye, how would it be possible that he would not see the city of Babylon?

The fulfillment met all the requirements. Zedekiah saw Nebuchadnezzar and spoke to him at Riblah in Palestine. His sight was there taken from him and he was taken a prisoner to Babylon. He lived and died in Babylon but saw it not.

Cruelties of the Past

In the Bas Reliefs, representing the capture of Lachish by Sennacherib, the prisoners are represented, some pegged down to the ground to be flayed alive—others having their eyes put out. In one of the sculptures at Khossabad, Sargon represents himself in person holding a prisoner by a thong attached to a ring passed through his under lip. The victim kneels before him, while with a spear he pierces his eyes.

To what shall we give the credit of our modern progress and civilization? We cannot give the credit to any church, sect or party. We must honestly acknowledge that every sect, in its turn, has displayed more or less of bitterness, bigotry, superstition and persecution—contrary even to its own standards. In the last analysis we must admit that the great influence which has moulded the civilization of our day has come to us from the words and example of "the Man Christ Jesus, who gave Himself a ransom for all to be testified in due time" (1 Timothy ii, 6). The great truths which he uttered have come echoing down the centuries, speaking righteousness, peace and love, even for our enemies. Everywhere His "Wonderful Words of Life" have made an impression, and here and there have effected the transformation of character.

We should more and more feel our obligation to the great truths which came to us from the Bible, and less and less obligation to the sects and parties which have quarrelled and battled over those Words of Life.

Thus, gradually, we will come to discern the truth of the Bible declaration that there is but one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, and one Church of the living God, the Church of the First-Born, whose names are written in heaven. These, found scattered in all the denominations and outside of all, constitute the saintly few who have the promise of the First Resurrection, as joint-heirs with Messiah in His glorious Kingdom which will soon be established in the earth and enforce righteousness.

Jesus was the great Light which came into the world, and His followers were to be lights or candles also. "As He was, so are we in this world"—light-bearers. The Church is not of the world. As Jesus said, "Ye are not of the world." Yet the Church is the light of the world. Each individual Christian should let his light shine before men, and the Church as a whole is to be like "a city set on a hill which cannot be hid" (Matthew v, 14-16).

"Pass it up—most anything, I reckon."

"Worse'n that. Struck me for fifty."

"And got it."

"Got it? No; not much he didn't sonny. He drew just ten, and he was lucky to get that. I've done a favor or two for that feller, first and last, and to have him shoot at me made me sore—although he missed me by several locations. I'll say that for him—so I gave him the ten and told him I'd kick the hump on his back so high up on his shoulders he could wear it for a hat if he ever shoved into my daylight again. And you never in your life saw a humpback make better time than he did."

"Well, here's for your jackass. Which way's the herd?"

"Right up over the hill."

Jim sat patiently on the sack until Bud returned with the burro.

"Here's your thoroughbred," hollered Bud. "Get up there, Mary. Look at the knowing ears of him, will you? You bet cher life you've got an animal there that'll go when he gets ready and as fast as he pretty well dern pleases. Nail him!"

Jim tied a gunny sack on his noble mount, and the two rode on together to the fork in the trail. Jim tried to thank his friend, who knocked his hat over his eyes, and said: "Aw, write it down when you've got more time. Never see a feller in my life I cottoned to more'n you, Jim. First I thought you was too smooth for my kind of traveling, but later I see it was only the grain of the wood. I believe in my friends, I do. Here we go hopping around this little world for a small time, and then that's done. S'pose you ain't got any real friends for the trip? Rotten, I say. You go ahead and rip Plattsburg up the back. Wish I could be there with you. Don't you mind consequences. So long, old man! Hike! You beggar!"

The buckskin pony was off with a snort and a splashing of gravel as the irons touched his sides, and Bud vanished down the road without a look behind him.

The next day Jim was in Plattsburg. One does not know what an alluring quality, what a hazy enchantment, can linger around even a small town until an absence in a real wilderness has given man's work a new flavor.

The people coming and going, the traffic of the stores, the dwellings with small cultivated plots around them, warmed Jim like a fire. He had been very lonely without knowing it. In the afternoon he went down to the depot to see the eastern train come in.

Here again absence played a part and restored the locomotive to its proper proportions of a miracle.

As the engine glided in, shaking the ground beneath it, it seemed impossible to Jim that man really made it.

What! Bend those mighty rods of steel to his will? Twist and shape those others? Cast those great drivers? And after to drive the monster with a hand?

He drew back as the buzzing engine passed him with something like awe. Then the moving village came to a stop, and the passengers sallied forth to test their legs, wearied with long sitting.

There was humanity of all shades, from the haughty aristocrat of the Pullman to the peasant of the emigrant car.

Jim had a sense of pleasure in beholding well dressed folk again, yet it was merely an aesthetic pleasure, for he found when he began to speculate on the possibilities of the throng before him that he was more interested in those whose all was staked on the trip than in those to whom it was only an excursion.

People of widely differing nationalities occupied the emigrant car. Jim wondered whether they would ever become Americans according to his ideas of Americans, a people in which he had great pride and delight, and he shook his head doubtfully as he took them in.

Suddenly a small boy darted out of a car—an exceedingly small boy, thin to emaciation, who made his way through the crowd with that sprawling, active, dancing manner peculiar to thin small boys and spiders.

Jim half laughed at the little chap until he saw his face. Then he realized at a glance that the matter was no laughing one for the boy.

At the same time he saw the shocking thinness of the little face made into a wolf's face by hunger, the mingled horror and desperation of the eyes. The big man would not have believed a child's face could express emotions of such magnitude. He was wonder stricken at the sight and felt an instinctive sympathy for the fugitive.

It is a strange thing how fortune will sometimes guide with certainty when reason shows no path.

The boy came unerringly toward Jim. Jim had a sort of prophetic insight that he would. Back behind him the urchin ran. "Don't cher give me away, mister," he pleaded. Jim flapped a hand in answer.

At the time he was leaning against a corner of the station. A little back of him was a small lean-to shed, where various trucks were stored.

Out of the car came a burly brute of a man, who stared about him rapidly. "Dat's der ol' man," whispered the boy. "If he gets holt of me there won't be a hull bone left in me body."

The man walked up to the conductor and spoke to him.

"Aggh!" said the boy. "Now dey'll get me sure. Der jig is up. Dey'll have der hull gang erlop o' me!" the voice trailed off into a strangled sob and then continued, in a fierce whisper: "Aggh! If I had me growth I'd show 'em! I'd show 'em!" And then a burst of hair raising profanity.

The argument was growing loud between the man, who was urging something, and the conductor, who was declining. Others were walking toward the moderate excitement.

Jim wheeled and caught the boy by his arms. "Up you go!" he said and tossed him on top of the shed. "Lie low behind the wood there and you are all right."

Then came the conductor's voice: "Say, my friend, if you think I'm going to hold my train while you hunt up a lost kid there's something in you that don't work right. Why didn't you take care of him while you had him? Now you've got just four minutes by the watch. Either hustle around and hunt or drop off the train and hunt. What's that? Now, don't you give me any slack, you black muzzled varlet, or I'll have the fear of God thrown into you too quick. Get out of here now! Get out of my way!"

The man slouched off and made a hasty search around the station. A woman's face—scarcely an improvement on the man's—leaned out of the car window and jeered at the hunter, who cursed her back savagely.

The man walked up to Jim. "Say, did yer see a kid go by here, mister?" With a shrug of his shoulders, Jim asked him that question in Mr. Ollendorff's French method about the pink and green overcoat of the shoemaker's wife's sister.

The man showered low abuse on what he supposed was a foreigner until Jim's ribs rose with the desire to kill him.

"Ayr, wot are yer wastin' time wid th' dago fur?" called the woman. "Th' kid's on the roof!" Jim's heart almost stopped, so thoroughly had he identified himself with this quarrel. He made up his mind to fight for the boy, right or wrong.

But he was saved the trouble. It was only a jest of the woman's, for she suddenly called, so earnestly that even Jim was fooled. "No, he ain't neither. I see him! I see him! There he is." It was the perfection of acting, voice and gesture.

The man ran out to see where she was pointing. "Where is he?" he asked, looking wild around.

"On top der flagpole, like er monkey! You're it!" she cried, with a shriek of laughter at the black brows of her dupe.

"I'll show yer der joke when I git in dere," he threatened.

The woman leaned her chin on her hands and smiled. Jim never forgot

"UP YOU GO!" HE SAID.

the utter undauntedness, impudence and malice of that face. "Yer allus goin' to do sumpin', Pete," she retorted. "Yer'll be a man yet."

A more amiable man than Pete might have been provoked by such conduct. He strode forward, with white knuckled fists and a very unpleasant expression on his face. Several men started to interfere, but it wasn't necessary.

The woman quietly looked at her bully, chewing a straw with the utmost nonchalance. "Give us a kiss," said she. The man's crest dropped. He said something in an undertone and got on the car.

Jim needed no further knowledge of this delightful couple to be thoroughly on the boy's side. It seemed to him that the man was quite capable of keeping a small animal at hand for the fun of torturing it, and as for the woman—well, if there was her like in hell Jim determined to be good for the rest of his days.

"All aboard!" cried the conductor. And with a few mighty breaths the iron giant whisked its load out in the open again.

"Stay where you are, son, till I see whether that fellow is playing a trick," said Jim, and not until he had looked under the platform, up and down the track and in the waiting rooms did he give the command, "Come down!"

CHAPTER II.

THE passenger agent saw the performance with astonishment. "So you had the boy tucked away all the time?" said he. "Just what kind of a game is this?"

"Dunno," returned Jim. "Let the boy speak for himself. Now, young man, what's the matter?"

The urchin stood before them, taking them in thoroughly with his sharp little eyes. More big men strolled up. As a particularly fine foil to the boy's diminutive form Benny, the baggage smasher, whose overhanging shoulders testified whence came the power that had reduced many a proud Saratoga to elemental conditions, and "Happy Jack," the mammoth, soot black, loose jointed negro porter, placed themselves on either side of him. They made the boy look more like an insect than ever.

"Wot's de matter?" he cried in a voice at once hoarse and shrill, with a cursing note in it and accompanying the words with an extravagant, dramatic gesture of his skinny claw. "I'll tell yer wot's der matter. Dey beat me—dey beat me bad. I don't ast youse to take me word fur it. Look at me back—dat's all I ast yer—jes' look at dat!"

He ripped the shirt from his shoulders. An angry growl went up from all those big bearded men when they saw the horrible stripes and welts—raw, blue and swollen—on the poor little back.

Happy Jack threw up both his gorilla arms. "Good Lawd! Who done you like dat, boy?" he cried. "F I got m' hooks on him, cuss me 'f I wudn't put bumps on him bigger'n yer hull body."

"Now yer talkin'," shrieked the boy, bared his teeth to the gum and, with clutching talons gripping at the air, yelled: "Aggh! If I had me growth I'd bite his heart out! I'd tear his neck for 'im!"

The men looked astounded on this mighty fury, pent in so small and miserable a cage. The voice had a peculiar alarming call to it, like the note of a fire gong.

Suddenly the boy's head dropped on the crook of his arm. "Treated me wuss'n a dog," he sobbed out. "Done so it makes even dat nigger holler when he sees it."

Happy Jack was taken aback. The other men smoothed down their faces forcibly.

"Say, li'l' boy, you think dat's a plite way to talk to people?" inquired Jack.

The boy wiped his eyes on his sleeve and went over to him. "Say, don't yer holt nothin' ag'in me fur der word."

AN ANGRY GROWL WENT UP.

said he. "Dey've got me looney, dat's wot. Yer've used me likeer frien', and if it holt's yer yer can kick me pants fur me, and I won't say nothin'."

"Well, the e's two pound and a half of dead game sport for you, all right!" cried Benny. "Good eye, kid!"

Happy Jack smiled a mollified smile eight inches wide. "You is all right, beau," said he. "An' as fur as my bel'n' a nigger's concerned, I'll admit my kerplection ain't light." He slapped his ham and brought down a foot on the platform. "Hyah, hyah!" he roared. "You bet dere ain't no dam' blond 'bout tse!"

The infectious darky laugh started the others off and brought matters to a common sense footing.

The passenger agent took up the interrogation. Was the man the boy's real father? Answer—"How'd I know? Dat's der song he giv me." Were there any relatives, friends? Answer—"Naw." Well, what did the boy propose to do? Answer, digging his toes into the boards—"Didn't know—anyting." What was his name? "Jim."

Jim what? "Didn't know. Sometimes der gun callt himself 'Darragh' an' sometimes 'Mullin' an' sometimes 'Smit.' Aggh! He callt himself the foist 'ting dat come to his tongue. He didn't have no real name."

The agent talked to him a bit more, winding up by saying kindly: "You've had a pretty rough time of it, Jimmy, and we'd all like to give you a lift. Now, just say what you'd like to do and maybe we can fix it."

"I'd like to go along wid dat feller 'f he'll take me," replied the boy, tossing a thumb toward Jim Felton. There was a becoming access of shyness in his manner. Moreover, Felton had an increased interest in him when he knew they bore the same name—a sort of kinship, as it were.

"Well, it's up to you, Mr.—" said the passenger agent, with a smile.

"Felton," said Jim. "I'm in. I'll take the boy. Hard rustling down my way, but I guess we can make out somehow. Sure you want to go, kid?"

"Yessir!" very heartily.

"Done, then!"

Happy Jack snatched off his uniform cap, spat on a bill and flapped it into the bottom thereof.

"Goodby, f'ren," said he. He shook the cap in front of the others. "Here's fur the li'l' rooster. Step up to the capen's office an' settle, gents!" he called. "Member what de Bible says, 'Fool an' his money soon parted.' Come up! Come up!"

They came up generously. "Stick a five in there for me, Bill," said Benny to the passenger agent. "I'm strapped."

"How much you got, boy?" asked the agent as Happy counted the money.

"Fo'ty dollars, even money, Mist' Breckenridge." The agent was a bachelor with a fat salary. "Here, that makes it fifty," said he. He turned to Felton. "Now, what do you say if we go across the street and—er—discuss this matter a little further?"

"Go you," replied Felton.

"Now, Jimmy, you sit here for a moment. 'We're going on some business.'"

The boy glanced at them sharply. "Youse fellers is goin' to get a drink," said he.

Those big men put their hands on their sides and roared.

"You'll find that kid worse than a wife, Felton," said the agent.

"No use of our being hypocrites to the little chap. I reckon he's seen worse things than the inside of a saloon. Come along, laddybuck."

They lined up and partook. The agent told the story of the waif. "And we started him off with fifty, Mac," he said to the saloon keeper. "Suppose you break away from some of your ill gotten gains in the good cause."

The saloon keeper opened his cash drawer without words and slid over a five dollar bill. He seemed very glad to part with it.

"Confound it! Now we're upsticks again," said the agent. "Tell you what let's do. Here's ten of us. Each man put up a two and we'll shake the dice to see who gives it to the kid, winner to set 'em up. That'll make seventy-five, a very respectable figure."

They played a new interesting dice game in which the figure of a pig drawn in chalk upon the bar furnished the "layout." It is a game which increases in interest to the last throw. They stuck the saloon keeper and were gleeful.

"We ought to name the boy," said Felton under the inspiration of the second refreshment. "My name's Jim, and I want something else to call him by. I'll make him a present of my last name."

"Gad, that's so," replied the agent.

"Call him Chescheela Jim," put in a cowman. "That's Injun for 'little Jim.' 'Ches' ain't a bad nickname."

"Mac, hand over one of those toy sample bottles of California fiza," said the agent. "We'll put this craft down the ways in shape."

Felton broke the neck off the bottle with a tack hammer and poured the wine on the boy's head. "I christen thee Chescheela James Felton. May you become a good, seaworthy craft and not fill your skin with this stuff when you grow up," said he dramatically.

The small boy squinted up his eyes to keep the wine out, then he shook the liquid from his hair, looked up and grinned.

"Youse fellers is reg'lar kids," said he.

"Lord, that's a great boy!" said the agent. "He's the oldest man in the crowd. Say, let's give him a white man's start, beginning with a bath."

The whole party went to the barber shop and made the darky proprietor dispense a bath and a haircut for nothing.

"Shave, sir?" asked the latter when the hair had been properly trimmed.

"No," replied the youth. "I tink I'll let me whiskers grow. Dere's enuff wind in dis country ter keep der moths outen 'em."

Then they raided the clothing store and abused the Hebrew owner until he reduced the price. "Oof der lodt—"

"SHAVE, SIR?"

"Look here, Sol. Will you swear that on a piece of pork?" demanded the agent. The Hebrew moaned.

"Doaned dalk to me," he cried. "My heardt is prooken."

Clean, trimmed and clothed, Chescheela James Felton was a different looking boy. Months only could take those animal lines out of his face and fresh air and wholesome food all out the hollows of the cheeks; but, all in all, he was not a bad looking youngster.

The venerable Robert Mabbs died in Allegan, aged 85 years. He was one of the old residents of this country and the oldest member of the G. A. R. post of Allegan. He was the father of Dr. Mabbs, formerly of this city.

F. M. Coulter and his thirteen guests ended a long cruise when they arrived here in the Coulter yacht, the Carondelet. Leaving their homes in St. Louis the party traveled to Chicago by way of the Illinois river and canal. From Chicago they followed the shore line to Macatawa. While here Mr. Coulter will entertain his guests at the Coulter cottage.

The steamer Charles McVea has been purchased by the Benton Transit Co., and as soon as some necessary repairs are made she will be put on the Benton Harbor-Chicago run, the steamer Woods being unable to handle the business. Phil Hancock has gone to Benton Harbor to do some work on her.

Ben Van Raalte of Holland drove up to Grand Haven last evening in his Sampson car. Upon his arrival here he was compelled to wait until damages to the clutch could be repaired at the Briggs-Thieleman garage.

The carpenters and plumbers from Holland held their annual picnic in the park here Wednesday, and it was attended by about 400, all of whom had a good time. In the afternoon the two organizations played ball, but the rain stopped the game at the end of the fourth inning, leaving the carpenters ahead.—Saugatuck Commercial Record.

Jefferson Clark, 60 years old, met almost instant death Friday when he fell into the separator of a threshing machine which was in operation on the farm of Dr. Methezeon, eight miles from the city. Clark slipped from the feeding board, upon which he was standing. The cogs of the machine tore his right leg from his body and he was otherwise mutilated. Before the engine and thresher could be stopped and Clark taken from the separator, he was dead. He is survived by two sons and a daughter residing in this city.

Dr. G. J. Kollen has moved from the president's home at Hope college and is living in a dormitory. Dr. Ame Vennema, the new president, will move into the home in a short time.

A jury in circuit court found Carl Hermanson not guilty of stealing a pocketbook from a Mrs. Hoogerhyde on a Muskegon interurban car. He was arrested on the car in Grand Rapids.

Andrew Angeston and Edward M. Drain, arrested by Officer Steketee on the charge of being drunk were arraigned before Justice Sooy Tuesday. Both pleaded guilty to the charge and paid a fine of $5.

The reunion of the old 21st Michigan infantry will be held in Grand Haven September 15. A. Farr of Grand Haven has been secured to give the address of welcome to the veterans and the remainder of the program will be announced later. There will be regimental meetings during the day with a camp fire in the evening, either in the armory or the Congregational church.

The corn crop of 1910 was the first which passed the 3,000,000,000 bushel line. More acres were planted this year than ever before, and the early indications pointed to a yield of 3,300,000,000 bushels, but the drought stepped in and spoiled this prospect. Some hope still is expressed, however, of having an average harvest in most of the cereals.

An increase of $19,000,000 in the valuation of Ottawa county is advised in figures furnished the state board of equalization yesterday by the state tax commission. Ottawa county was placed at $24,000,000 in 1906 and at $25,557,908 in 1911 by the county board of supervisors. The figure suggested by the commission as the cash valuation of the county is $44,347,162. The state tax commission places the value of the entire taxable property of the state at $2,645,953,822. Five years ago the state was valued by the commission at $1,931,568,000. It was equalized at that time at $1,570,500,000.

A new ordinance limiting the number of saloons in Grand Haven to five has been passed by the common council of that city. This ordinance is the chief topic of conversation in the county seat city these days. This is especially the case as the new measure will cut off 8 of the 13 saloons now operating there. Some of the aldermen who voted in favor of the measure claim that it cannot stand a legal test, others that it is ridiculous on the face of it and will not be enforced. Some people are inclined to believe that someone has "hung something" on the city dads. There is talk to the effect that the mayor will veto the ordinance. Many wish to let the whole thing go to a vote of the people.

A. H. Meyer and C. St. Clair were in Grand Rapids Tuesday.

Mr. Brown, manager of the Holland Umbrella and Specialty Co., was in Grand Rapids Wednesday.

PIUS X., HIS GUARDS AND HIS PALACE

IN THE accompanying illustration the upper panel shows a group of the famous Swiss Guards of the Vatican; the lower panel, some of the pope's Noble Guards, a body composed of titled men of many nationalities, but chiefly Italians. Above, to the right, is the majestic face of the pope, and below he is seen in his beautiful and impressive pontifical robes. In the center of the picture is the marvelous pontifical palace, the Vatican.

The Madison Square people of Grand Rapids are holding their annual picnic at Jensen Park today. Friday the First Reformed church of Holland will picnic there and on Saturday the employees of the Bissel Carpet Sweeper company of Grand Rapids will come to the popular resort on their picnic.

35 barbers were examined by the state board of examiners in Grand Rapids Monday. The questions asked tended to test the knowledge of hygiene and sanitation, ability to care for tools, and skill as practical workmen. The examination of barbers is made compulsory by law in this state. The fee for examination is $5 with a fee of 50 cents annually for renewing the certificate. There are 600 barbers in the state and the entire number are being brought into line as rapidly as possible by the examiners.

An unknown man made an attempt to assault a young girl of this city Monday evening when she was passing along 16th street between River and Pine on the way to her home about 9 o'clock. At first she was too frightened to cry out but after the man made an attempt to tie her hands with a rope she found her voice and screamed for help. The residents of that neighborhood heard her cries and rushed from their homes to her assistance but before help arrived the man had fled. Many gave chase but the assailant escaped unrecognized. Officer Leonard spent several hours looking for him. The girl was unable to give a very good description of the man, it being dark where the attempted assault took place.

Although Saturday will be the opening day of a series here it will not be ladies day. The recent plan of the management has met with great success and each opening day since the plan was inaugurated has brought out large numbers of the fair sex. But owing to the fact that the next opening day is Saturday it will be excepted from the usual system. Owing to the limited capacity of the grounds and the fact that so many desire to see Saturday games who can not do so on other days this rule has been made necessary.

Instead of at Grand Rapids, next Sunday's game between Muskegon and Holland will be played at Muskegon and negotiations are now under way to also have the Monday game played in Muskegon which move would save the expenses of both clubs going to Holland for the last game of the series.

DEATHS.

The six months old child of Mr. and Mrs. John Knoll, 66 west Nineteenth street, died in its mother's arms last Wednesday afternoon while its parents were on the way home from Crisp, where they had been visiting relatives. The child went into convulsions and died almost immediately. The funeral was held Friday afternoon from the home, the Rev. Mr. Tunk, pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Reformed church, officiating.

Accused of Stealing.

E. E. Chamberlain, of Clinton, Me., boldly accuses Bucklen's Arnica Salve of stealing—the sting from burns or scalds—the pain from sores of all kinds—the distress from boils or piles. "It robs cuts, corns, bruises, sprains and injuries of their terror," he says, "as a healing remedy its equal don't exist." Only 25c at Walsh Drug Co., H. R. Doesburg, Geo. D. Lage.
