The Board of Superintendents of the Western Theological Seminary, through its committee on reception of students, will meet in this city, in Prof. J. W. Beardslee's Lecture Room, Sept. 1st, at 10 a. m. to receive applications for admission to the Seminary. It should be remembered that the above does not apply to Hope College, but to the Western Theol. Seminary, which is another and separate institution. The fall term at Hope College opens on Wednesday, Sept. 16.

Last week we published a list of special premiums, offered by citizens and merchants of this city for the encouragement of various displays and exhibitions at the next Fair, Oct. 6-9. Now then, if two or three public spirited farmers would only club together and also offer one or more special premiums to the merchants or manufacturers of Holland, or Zeeland, that would make the best display of their ware, there would be just irony enough in the proposition for the farmers to get even with the merchants, and might further be considered by the latter as a timely hint that the agriculturists are on to them, as regards their shortcomings in this respect during the two last fairs.

Tuesday afternoon the corner stone of the new building at Akeley Institute, Grand Haven, was laid with appropriate ceremonies. The Tribune of that date contains two fine engravings of the present and of the proposed buildings. The latter is a large, substantial three-story edifice and will be connected with Blanche Hall by a covered walk. The same issue of that paper contains also the names of the trustees of the institution. A canvass of that list impresses one with the fact that they have been judiciously selected with a view of having Western Michigan, the territory it is intended to cover, properly represented on the board. We mention this because of the great defect existing in the make-up of the Council of Hope College, in this special regard. It is unquestionably the great cause why Hope College does not draw more students from the territory which is, or might and should be absolutely its own. Western Michigan as such is not represented in its council of administration, as it should, and as it could be without infringing in the least upon its history, object and aim, nay to the contrary it would materially aid all these, in every respect. The manner in which the golden opportunity of Hope College intrenching itself upon the territory of its location has all along and is still being neglected is inexcusable and calls for reformation. And we trust the News will be allowed to call the attention to this dereliction without hearing the stigma of being inimical to the institution.

Frank Tucker and a new company next Monday evening Aug. 24, in "The Noble Outcast", a new comedy-drama, of more than usual merit. The company includes some very clever singers and music of a high order. The following is from the Three Rivers Herald of July 3rd, 1891: "Mr. Tucker is a thorough and accomplished gentleman, but he veritably beats at his own game any tramp that ever wore a tattered coat and a frizzled top-not; while the transition from the despised outcast into the handsome and smiling millionaire is but an illustration of the pleasing contrasts with which the play abounds. The personnel of the company is first-class throughout."—See advertisement.

Our State Tax.

The state board of equalization met in Lansing this week, and nearly all the counties were heard by accredited representatives, all claiming that "they were too high." Says a report from there: "According to representations made by the speakers, Michigan is the most unprosperous state in the union, with here and there an oasis in the desert." Hon. J. V. B. Goodrich spoke for Ottawa county, and called the attention of the board to the fact that under the tax law of 1882, the Representatives who served in the legislature from Ottawa county came home and said that the whole state would be assessed at its actual cash value, whereby rich men and others of the class who had heretofore escaped taxation would be made to pay their just dues. The Ottawa supervisors fell into the spirit of the thing and made high assessments. Some other counties in the state did the same, but many others did not. The result was unjust to Ottawa county. He did not think it implied poverty to say that because there were a hundred or more less farms in a county, that decay and poverty were falling on that county. It might mean the reverse. The prosperous farmers were increasing the area of their farms and absorbing the lands of neighbors. But when a city or a village showed a decrease in business and population it meant something serious. Such was the case with Grand Haven, formerly described as a most prosperous city. The lumbering business of the county has been reduced to almost nothing, and would probably cease entirely, so far as many mills were concerned, with the present year.

Mr. Goodrich read a list of the saw mills, etc., that have stopped business, and presented many affidavits from supervisors, revenue collectors and business men, comprising the losses, depreciation and diminution of lumbering and manufacturing interests of Ottawa county. The county, he claimed, was worth only its value as an agricultural county. It was not a fruit-growing county. The board of supervisors had sent a committee to other counties and investigated how taxes were assessed there. The committee went to the offices of the register of deeds and took the conveyances by warranty deed from August 1, 1890, to August 1, 1891, and used the values found therein as a basis of comparison, finding the per cent of difference between cash values and assessed values. In Kalamazoo the assessments were 66 per cent of the values; Hillsdale, 82; Ingham, 66; Montcalm, 31; Gratiot, 47; Oceana 81; Newaygo, 63; Mason, 55; Lapeer, 63; St. Clair, 40; Barry, 60; Jackson, 62; Eaton, 64; Monroe, 77; Shiawassee, 52; Genesee, 76; Tuscola, 48; Kent, 38, and Ottawa 87. Mr. Goodrich added the statement of Abstracter George D. Turner of fifty-two conveyances in the past year, whereby it is asserted that the assessed value of the property of Grand Haven exceeds the actual value by $622.29. He deplored the decay of Grand Haven, and expressed reluctance to mention it, and only did so as a duty to the state and the county. Without making a fight against Ottawa's neighbors Mr. Goodrich showed that the adjoining towns in Allegan, Kent and Muskegon were assessed much lower per acre than the Ottawa towns. For instance, Polkton, in Ottawa, was assessed at $23 an acre, and Ravenna, in Muskegon, at $12 an acre. Chester in Ottawa was assessed at $39 an acre; Cazenovia in Muskegon — just as good a town or better — at $16.48 an acre. Wright, Ottawa county, $35.12; Sparta, in Kent county, with two good villages, is assessed at $25.04 an acre. Alpine, Kent county, approaching Grand Rapids, $25.01, just across from Wright, with $35.12; and Walker Township, next to Grand Rapids, with 8,000 of its acres newly taken into Grand Rapids, is assessed at $30.86 an acre. It adjoins this town of Wright in Ottawa county that is assessed at $35.12. And so Mr. Goodrich went on showing that Ottawa was either too high or other counties too low. He asked that the figures of Ottawa be fixed at $9,000,000.

The Triple Alliance.

The recent formal renewal of the Triple Alliance between Germany, Austria and Italy is the most important fact in the European situation. It is true that this is only the continuation of a coalition which has existed several years past, but its formal renewal has given occasion for manifestations of feeling which fix attention anew upon the peculiarities and dangers of the general situation. A new element may also be said to have entered the problem in what must be regarded, in spite of all diplomatic niceties, as an admission of England to the Triple Alliance. While it is probably true that no formal treaty has been signed by England, it is undoubtedly true that a distinct understanding of some sort has been reached, and at the Triple Alliance may count the moral support of England. In an event of war, it is currently believed that the English Government is agreed to protect the coast of Italy, and to maintain the practical neutrality of the Mediterranean Sea. Limited as the understanding probably is, an admission of England to the Triple Alliance means a great deal. It means the combination under the same direction of the greatest army in the world and the greatest navy ever in the history of the world has been so effective a combination of land and sea forces as would be secured if the German army and the English navy were to act together.

The Triple Alliance was, in its origin, purely defensive. It was a stipulation of mutual support, in the first instance, between Austria and Germany, and later between Austria, Germany and Italy. As between these powers it is still undoubtedly a defensive alliance, and the Emperor of Germany is entirely sincere in his repeated declarations that his sole desire is to preserve the peace of Europe. Germany has nothing to gain and much to lose from another war. She does not care to add to her territories, and in the event of a great struggle there would probably be serious trouble in Alsace and Lorraine.

On the other hand, both Russia and France have definite ends to be reached. Russia is always working in the Balkan region for additions to her territory, and always moving on patiently with unbroken determination, toward Constantinople. France is inspired with a bitter determination to recover her lost territory or be re-annexed. It is believed that the arrangement between Russia and France involves a distinct understanding by which France is to be allowed supremacy in the Mediterranean, and Russia to have a perfectly free hand in the East.

It must be remembered that while the populations of Austria, Italy, and Germany desire peace no less earnestly than their rulers, there is in France a strong popular feeling against Germany, and in Russia a latent desire for war, which at any moment may be kindled into a flame. The war initiated by Germany or Austria would be a dynastic war, but a war initiated by either France or Russia might be a popular war. The practical bearing of this fact lies in the possibility of the war being precipitated by an outburst of popular feeling in either of these two countries.

So far as the members of the Triple Alliance are concerned, war will not be precipitated save by the concurrent action of the sovereigns at the head of the states. What Italy has to gain from this alliance is not very clear. Her only apparent gain is in prestige; she is a member of the Alliance she ranks as a great power, and since the bold move of Cavour in sending Italian troops to the Crimea this has been part of her policy; a policy that has resulted in the autonomy of the Italian people. But it is questionable whether Italy secures any practicable benefit from her alliance with Austria and Germany at all commensurate with the enormous expense which that alliance involves.

So far as we can see, the only beneficial result of the Triple Alliance lies in the fact that in a way it may insure the peace of Europe. A war to-day would mean a struggle between two groups of powers who would divide all Europe between them. Not since the days of Napoleon I has Europe witnessed so gigantic a strife as would follow the outbreak of hostilities; and this fact has a tendency to make statesmen and rulers sober by making them conscious of tremendous responsibilities.

On the other hand, the Triple Alliance is the direct source of a number of very unfortunate influences. It involves a military force on all sides of nearly ten millions of men, and it represents the most frightful burden of taxation known in history. This enormous body of men must not only be supported and paid, but in great numbers they are taken out of every field of productive work, and the world loses just so much by their absence. The situation involves more loss of productive force and a heavier outgo to sustain unproductive hands, than any previous condition in the history of the world. This is a very serious fact in the economic situation, and no one who has not carefully studied it in all its bearings can understand how much Germany and France—to select the two leaders—are losing in the way of national wealth and productivity.

Moreover, the Alliance, extended now for a third term of six years, makes it impossible to take the first step towards the disarmament of Europe. It fastens the status quo more heavily than ever upon all the great nations. There is apparently no way of escape from the appalling burdens which Europe is now bearing. A great war however might so thoroughly weaken and disable one or two of the disputants as to destroy the present equilibrium and relieve the others of the dangers and fears which now surround them. Sooner or later the burden will be too heavy to be borne; it is already wearing into the hearts and souls of men; but the Triple Alliance makes it impossible to reduce the burden or relieve the situation.

The Alliance means also and necessarily the dominance of militarism, which is the worst enemy of industrialism and the spirit of democracy. So long as great perils environ five nations, so long supreme importance will attach to the man of arms. Germany has suffered more than any other country from the predominance of the military spirit. It has told disastrously upon her art, her science, and her social development. The strain of militarism necessitates an increase of national income, which is felt at the universities in a steadily increasing pressure toward more practical aims. Germany is becoming as materialistic as the rest of the world; for militarism is materialism in its worst forms. Great popular wars are often a protest against materialism and register the outbreak of those impulses which do not stop to count the cost; but a military system always produces a materialistic spirit.

Under the shade of militarism socialism is very certain to flourish, and it is not improbable that the revolt against the military burden, if it comes to a revolt, will take the form of a socialist outbreak. For no law is more certain of operation than that long-continued pressure produces excessive reaction, and the inevitable reaction against militarism is socialism. Altogether the outlook in Europe is an exceedingly dark one. That peace will be preserved for some time to come is probable, but the gloom of the situation lies in the fact that there seems to be no way to end it without a universal struggle.

The Triple Alliance may preserve peace for the next six years as it has preserved it for the last twelve, but it looks now as if it were only the postponement of a day that must come, and that becomes more and more portentous with delay. Either a great popular revolution against burdens that can no longer be borne, or a whirlwind of war that would sweep all Europe, are, as far as human vision can see, the only alternatives.

Drs. Starkey Palen's

TREATMENT BY INHALATION.

1529 Arch st., Philadelphia, Pa.

The original and only genuine Compound Oxygen Treatment, that of Drs. Starkey & Palen, is a scientific adjustment of the elements of Oxygen and Nitrogen magnetized; and the compound is so condensed and made portable that it is sent all over the world.

It has been in use for more than twenty years; thousands of patients have been treated and one thousand physicians have used it, and recommended it,—a very significant fact.

The great success of our treatment has given rise to a host of imitations, unscrupulous persons; some calling their preparations compound oxygen, often appropriating our testimonials and the names of our patients, to recommend worthless concoctions. But any substance made elsewhere or by others and called Compound Oxygen, is spurious.

"Compound Oxygen—Its Mode, Action and Result," is the title of a new book of 200 pages, published by Drs. Starkey & Palen, which gives to all inquirers full information as to this remarkable curative agent, and a record of surprising cures in a wide range of chronic cases—many of them after being abandoned to die by other physicians. Will be mailed free to any address on application.

THE BOOK TRUST KNOCKED OUT

A Card To The Public.

Some six months ago we began the publication of our reprint of the famous Encyclopedia Britannica in 25 Volumes, which we issued at $1.50 per volume. The price of the English edition always has been and still is $5.00 per volume, and the Scribner edition $5.00 per volume in the cheapest binding.

That the public appreciate so great a bargain is shown by the fact that over half a million volumes of this reprint have been sold in less than six months. This elegant new edition we still offer at the same price, $1.50 per volume. This is the greatest bargain ever known in books.

Better still, we will deliver the set complete on small easy payments, to suit the convenience of customers.

Remember this is not an abridgement, but the great Edinburgh ninth edition, reproduced page for page, with important articles on American subjects rewritten to date by eminent American authors, and new maps, later and better than in any other edition.

We further announce that we have in preparation three volumes of "American Additions and Revisions," thoroughly supplementing the original work. With these supplemental volumes you will have at small cost an Encyclopedia unapproachable in completeness; a thorough "digest of the libraries of the world," and a complete record of current progress and events.

SPECIAL OFFER.—We claim that our reprint compares favorably with the high priced editions in every respect, and in respect to maps, and strength and beauty of bindings is superior to them. In order that this claim may be tested by a personal inspection we make the following proposition: We will furnish volume I, at 60 cts.—a fraction of actual cost—if sent by express. Add 40 cts. postage if wanted by mail. Amount paid for Volume I will be credited on price of set when ordered.

ORDERED TO DEATH.

Thirteen Killed in a Railway Horror in Switzerland.

A terrible accident, resulting in the instant death of thirteen persons and the serious injury of many others, some of whom will probably die, occurred on the Jura-Simplon Railway near Bern. An especial excursion train which was conveying hundreds of villagers from the surrounding country to witness the fete in connection with the 700th anniversary of the foundation of the city of Bern was stopped at a siding a short distance from its destination in order to allow the regular Paris express to pass. The engineer of the express had not been notified of the fact that the excursion train was on the track ahead of him, and the heavy express dashed into the rear of the excursion train, demolishing the hindmost coach and forcing its way partly through the next one. The rear coach happened to be an empty one, which was intended for passengers to be taken on at another station. The guards in charge of it were killed, but the presence of this car doubtless saved the lives of many occupants of the other coaches. As it was, the passengers in the second coach were nearly all killed or injured. Thirteen are dead.

THE COUNTRY MERCHANTS.

Feel the Confidence Inspired by Fountiful Crops, and Buy Liberally.

R. D. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The prohibition of exports of rye by Russia because of official declaration that famine is impending has suddenly affected the grain markets of the world. Crop prospects grow brighter every day, and with assurance that the country will not only have enormous supplies of grain, but a market for it at good prices, business is improving throughout the North. The movement begins close to the farms, country merchants are buying more freely, and their purchases are felt by wholesalers and manufacturers. In the main the interior money markets are in fairly good condition, excepting at the South, and at Philadelphia confidence is gaining. If Europe is able to send cash for all the food it will require this year it is probable that this country will not lack money long. The business failures occurring throughout the country during the last seven days number, for the United States, 262, and for Canada, 25, or a total of 287, as compared with a total of 231 last week and 247 the week previous to the last. For the corresponding week of last year the figures were 197, representing 174 failures in the United States and 23 in the Dominion of Canada.

MINNESOTA BREEZE.

Work Sad Havoc in Several Towns, Notably at Elsworth.

A most terrific storm struck Ellsworth, Minn., and left the town a pretty complete wreck. A dark cloud with a greenish tint along its edges came swirling in from the northwest and crushed everything in its path. The Iowa, Minnesota, and Dakota elevators were completely blown to pieces. The Congregational Church was partially blown down. The dwelling of D. F. Cramer was thrown from its foundation, and the Burlington depot suffered a great damage about the west end. Several box cars were hurled from the track. No lives were lost. There is not a building in the village that was not hit by the storm. The loss will reach $25,000. Around Lake Benton, St. Cloud, Fulda and Worthington, the storm was very severe, the wind and hail leveling what promised to be the largest crops in the history of the country.

IMMENSE WHEAT CROPS.

Dakota and Minnesota Farmers Harvesting 150,000,000 Bushels.

Harvesting is well under way all over the Northwest, and the promise of a big crop is being more than fulfilled. Instead of averaging fifteen to twenty bushels to the acre wheat is turning out from twenty-five to thirty bushels, and the increased yield from an increased acreage makes 150,000,000 bushels the minimum product for the Dakotas and Minnesota. Other grains are close to wheat, oats especially turning out well. There is great trouble in getting labor to handle the immense crop, and the railroads are hard at work preparing to handle the grain. The lack of storage facilities will compel the great majority of the farmers to dispose of their grain soon, and transportation facilities will be taxed to the utmost. The weather for harvesting is all that could be desired.

CONVICT MINERS REMOVE.

The Biceville Mines Condemned as Foul and Dangerous.

The State of Tennessee took a hand in moving the convicts from the branch prison at Biceville. Some days ago the mine inspector was sent to Biceville, and on his return reported a number of violations of the mining laws. There was only one shaft to the mine and no ventilation. It was filled with stagnant, poisonous air, while the convicts had to wade through standing water reaching to their knees. Free and convict labor worked indiscriminately together. The roof was not adequately supported and was a constant menace to life and limb. The convicts were at once recalled, and it is thought the labor question is effectually settled.

CHRISTIANS AT WAR.

Rival Camp Meetings Are Being Run in Central Pennsylvania.

A Reading (Pa.) dispatch says: The numerous camp meeting groves in this part of the State are now the scene of a remarkable contest between two contending factions of the Christian Evangelical Association. The novel spectacle is presented of two rival series of camp meetings, all conducted with great spirit and zeal, for the twofold purpose of at once keeping alive the old-time religious enthusiasm in the denomination and of strengthening the two factional forces in anticipation of a supreme struggle next October before the general conferences at Philadelphia and Indianapolis.

CHINA MUST MAKE REPARATION.

Foreign Ministers Threaten to Make a Joint Naval Demonstration.

A serious condition of political affairs exists in China, and the combined fleets of the powers may be called upon at any moment to take effective action. In Shanghai great excitement prevails at the increasing tension between the Chinese authorities and the foreign ministers. The former are obstinate in their refusal to redress the injury done to foreigners during the recent riots. There is no reason for doubt that if the authorities do not yield, concerted action by the combined war vessels is imminent.

WRECK ON THE BALTIMORE & OHIO.

Two Freight Trains and the Depot Demolished at Attica, Ohio.

At Attica, O., a west-bound local freight of the Baltimore & Ohio Road was standing at the depot when a heavy freight train came thundering down the grade from the east at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour and crashed into the rear of it. The engine and nearly a dozen cars were shivered into splinters. Three cars were hurled bodily through the depot building, a large frame structure, totally demolishing it. The occupants of the depot narrowly escaped with their lives.

BARRING CHINESE MERCHANTS.

Celestial Traders Cannot Enter American Ports Without an Imperial Certificate.

Unless the counsel for the Chinese can secure a reversal of the United States Supreme Court decision of Aug. 1 in the case of Wu Shing no coolies will hereafter be admitted at San Francisco. The Supreme Court held that a strict construction of section 6 of the exclusion act requires that all Chinese merchants who are allowed to enter there must bear the Chinese Government's certificate that they have been merchants and are eligible to enter this country. This excluded 174 in a single day.

BLAZE AT PHILADELPHIA.

The Large Paper Warehouse of A. G. Elliott & Co. Badly Damaged.

The large paper warehouse of A. G. Elliott & Co. of Philadelphia, was badly damaged by fire. The fire was first discovered in the basement, where there was an immense amount of paper stored. The loss on building is estimated at $35,000 and on stock at $30,000, covered by insurance. The fire was caused by escaping gas from a broken main and making its way into the cellar and catching from the boiler fires.

TROOPS SENT TO FOURMIES.

Serious Rioting Apprehended as a Result of the Labor Disputes.

Troops have been sent from Lille to Fourmies to put an end to disturbances there which have resulted from labor disputes. Serious rioting is apprehended. Fourmies was the scene of the recent bloody May day riots which resulted in much loss of life, considerable ill-feeling against the troops and local authorities, the government being blamed for the troubles.

IT PROVED A SUC-ESS.

Arrival of the Whaleback Charles W. Wetmore at New York.

The whaleback steamship Charles W. Wetmore has arrived at New York on her first western trip. She brought a cargo of machinery. The vessel has proved satisfactory in every particular. The ship is the forerunner of a revolution in the marine carrying trade.

TEN THOUSAND STRIKERS.

Miners in the Aberdare District of South Wales Quit Work.

The miners in the Aberdare district of South Wales, where extensive collieries and iron and tin works are situated, have gone on strike. About ten thousand men are out. This action is taken in spite of the lessened demand for coal caused by the stoppage of many factories.

Indiana Farmers Will Read More.

At Indianapolis a number of representative farmers of the State met and established a State farmers' reading circle, which will be conducted after the manner of the organization formed by the State teachers. In his opening speech State Senator Mount said that all the ills of the farmer grow out of the fact that he is not informed upon current subjects.

The Great Red River Valley.

It is said that the Red River counties of North Dakota, with a population of 200,000 souls, will this fall receive in payment for the crop now being harvested a total of $40,000,000 in money, an average of $200 for every man, woman and child in the valley. The average of money per capita throughout the United States is $24.

Vreck on the Union Pacific.

A fatal accident occurred on the Union Pacific about two and one-half miles north of Brighton, Col., in which two men were killed and another badly wounded. The engine of the freight train had died out, and while it was standing on a curve, a special crashed into it, completely telescoping the caboose and going a part of the way through a car of ore.

The Fire Record.

Fire destroyed the furniture factory, in Cincinnati, of Still & Duhmiller, valued at $60,000; insurance, $50,000. Also, the Anderson (Ind.) Daily Bulletin and a laundry, causing a loss of $15,000; insurance $10,000; Woldeen & Johnson's warehouse and a dwelling; loss $3,500, fully insured; and Humphrey's sawmill and 1,000,000 feet of lumber at Lindonville, Vt.

Drowned His Joy in Rum.

The escapades of John L. Ganzhorn, a Justice of the Peace of Kansas City, Mo., have brought to him considerable notoriety. His bibulous tendencies have brought him to a position now where he does not know whether he is a married man or not. He was very drunk from celebrating his marriage, yet at the same time he loudly declares that he was not married.

Mrs. Polk Is Dead.

Mrs. James K. Polk, relict of the eleventh President of the United States, died at Nashville, Tenn. Mrs. Polk was born at Murfreesboro Sept. 4, 1803. SATURDAY, AUG. 22, 1891.

Two Accidents.

Saturday afternoon Cornelis Bos, a farmer and fruit raiser from Laketown while attempting to cross the C. & W. M. track on Thirteenth street in the face of the approaching mail train, was caught by the engine and instantly killed.

In approaching the railroad crossing on Thirteenth street, from the west, as was the case with Mr. Bos, the track is hidden to the right and left by two hills, the street at that point being a deep excavation. It is only recently that Thirteenth street has been used to any extent as a thoroughfare, and hence the neglect to have that crossing duly provided with gates or flag-man.

We have made some extracts from the testimony given at the inquest, which will explain the details of the tragedy. It further appears that Mr. Bos, in making the fatal effort, was driving a single horse and light wagon; that the horse had nearly crossed the track when it was hit by the locomotive and its right hind hoof torn off; that the man had his right arm completely severed, his head cut open and body otherwise mutilated, and that his body was carried a distance of about ten rods. The vehicle was smashed and the injury to the horse necessitated its killing.

An inquest was held before Justice Post and the following summoned as jurors: W. Diekema, J. Van Putten, Jr., Geo. H. Souter, Ben Bosman, J. Kramer and J. Kruisinga.

The witnesses testified substantially as follows:

Seward Doty, a painter at work on a house near by: Saw Mr. Bos driving along, whipping his horse; he appeared to see the train and whipped his horse into a gallop. When on the middle of track the train hit him. The train whistled a little this side of Sixteenth street. Engine appeared to be shut off when it hit him; gave two long, and two short blasts; bell was ringing continuously. The man appeared to be all right; I did not note anything out of the way in his appearance. Saw a man pick up his arm and saw other parts of his body lying upon the track.

Dick Gravengeot:—I was on the stoop of my house, east of the crossing. Saw train coming; also horse and buggy. As he was getting pretty close to track he whipped horse 3 or 4 times. Making him go so fast I think he must have seen or heard the train; he acted as if he wanted to get across in a hurry. Saw engine strike the buggy and the man and carry them along. The horse was about over the track. Bos was coming from the west, going east. When he whipped the horse he was not more than a rod and a half from the track. He was sitting. Could not see anything out of the way, only chasing up his horse. Train was slacking up a little.

Geo. Zibbell, engineer:—I was coming on train No. 1, from the south. The first I saw was a horse on the right of my pilot. Carried the horse along about 10 feet, when he fell off on the right hand side, and ran about 6 or 8 car-lengths after striking it. Knew nothing of the man or the buggy till I ran the train back and saw them. The train ran about 6 or 8 miles an hour. Whistle was blown for every crossing and bell was ringing steadily. I could not see the man coming because I was on the right hand or east side. I should think the fireman could see a man on that particular crossing about 8 or 10 car lengths before he got into the cut. Witness supplemented his testimony the next day, as follows: Have been engineer 20 years. When we stopped the train, the rear end of the car was 10 feet beyond the north end of the plank crossing on Twelfth street. That was as soon as the train could be stopped. The rail is slippery at the yard.

William Gorman, fireman:—When I saw the man he was about a car length from me. He was not making any effort to stop, and I thought we were going to hit him. Notified the engineer, and stopped train as soon as possible. Went about 5 car lengths after that. Train was on time and running at usual speed, about 6 or 8 miles an hour. Saw the engine hit the buggy, did not see it hit the man. Was about 3 or 4 car lengths from the crossing when I saw the man. Don't think it would be possible to stop a train running at that rate of speed and on that grade in two car lengths.

The jury rendered the following verdict:

...We find that said Cornelis Bos was killed by being run over and torn in pieces by the mail train from Chicago on the C. & W. M. R'y, at the crossing of Thirteenth street, in the City of Holland, at three o'clock in the afternoon of Aug. 15, 1891; it being train No. 1 of said railroad.

We also think it our duty to declare that we consider it inexcusable negligence on the part of our city authorities and the Railway Company to permit so dangerous a railroad crossing as that of Thirteenth street, where this accident occurred, to be used without requiring gates, or at least a watchman to warn those crossing the railroad tracks against the danger of passing trains. We also think from the testimony that the train was running at a dangerous rate of speed within the limits of the city of Holland.

The deceased was about 60 years old and the father of three sons and three daughters, all grown up and residing in this city and vicinity. His first wife died several years ago and although in 1889 he married again they did not live together for the first steps had all been taken for a divorce. Mr. Bos was a farmer in the neighboring township of Laketown. He expected to realize about $2000 from his fruit crop this year.

On Sunday evening we had another accident, which had it not been for the presence of mind of some of those present, might have had serious results.

It was about 7:25 in the evening, as the audience were gathering in the Episcopal church on Ninth street, when one of the lamps, a large "sun" lamp, began to puff, ready to explode. Peter Laridas, who resides near the church, went in with a step ladder, unhooked the rod at the ceiling and was carrying it out when the weight of the rod as it inclined downward caused the lamp to tip, spilling the burning oil over the cushions, pews and matting in the aisle. A large blaze at once filled the small edifice, but the promptness with which the burning carpets, matting and cushions were removed, saved the wood work from igniting.

The damage is only nominal and covered by insurance. Mr. Laridas was the greatest sufferer, inasmuch as the burning oil was spilled over the lower part of his body and his left limb seriously and painfully burned.

The above is only one of a series of similar accidents constantly occurring throughout the state, and is directly attributable to the action of the last legislature in amending the law on the standard test of kerosene oil. The test that has been acceptable to the people and the dealers of this state for the last ten years, has been reduced last winter—it is said at the behest of the Standard Oil Co. The old test was a safe one and gave us a non-explosive oil, while the present standard is not, as it permits the heated oil to generate gas, causing explosion and fire.

Under the old law accidents as the above were of rare occurrence, but it is intimated by the press that now they will become all too common throughout the state. Hence people should bear this in mind and use greater caution in handling this "squawbuck kerosene" than they did before.

Until this year Wisconsin had the same test Michigan has to-day. The legislature last winter changed the law and adopted the Michigan test, while our reform legislature took a step backward and adopted the test Wisconsin was only too glad to discard.

THE HAIR

To prevent this, the best and most popular dressing in the market is Ayer's Hair Vigor. Galbraith & Starks, Druggists, Sharon Grove, Ky., write: "We believe Ayer's Hair Vigor to be the best preparation of the kind in the market, and sell more of it than of all others. No drug store is complete without a supply of it."

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor with great benefit and know several other persons, between 40 and 50 years of age, who have experienced similar good results from the use of this preparation. It restores gray hair to its original color, promotes a new growth, gives lustre to the hair, and cleanses the scalp of dandruff."—Bernardo Ochoa, Madrid, Spain.

After Using

A number of other preparations without any satisfactory result, I find that Ayer's Hair Vigor is causing my hair to grow."—A. J. Osment, General Merchant, Indian Head, N. W. T.

"Ayer's Hair Vigor is the only preparation I could ever find to remove dandruff, cure itching humors, and prevent loss of hair. I can confidently recommend it."—J. C. Butler, Spencer, Mass.

That during the summer months, with our present number of water takers, in connection with the street sprinkler, our present supply of water is inadequate to meet the wants of the public and at the same time furnish water in case of fire. This again should be the number of water takers increase during the summer months proportionately as they have done during the past ten years, it will not be many months before the present wells will be wholly unable to furnish the amount of water required by the public.
We therefore request your honorable body to appoint a committee to confer with responsible parties who are engaged in the business of supplying corporations with water, whether a per capita supply of water can be obtained for the Holland City Water Works, and if water can be so obtained, on what terms they will guarantee the city the necessary amount.
Communication accepted and a committee of five appointed by the Mayor, as follows:
Aldermen Ter Vree, Lokker, Breyman, Dalman and Habermann.
The clerk of the board of water commissioners reported that he had been instructed to notify the common council that the contractor for laying water mains would be ready to have the test made on Wednesday, August 14th, 1891, at 2 o'clock p. m.—Accepted and ordered that when the council adjourns, they adjourn to Wednesday, August 14th, 1891, 2 o'clock p. m., to meet at the corner of Eighth and Market streets for the purpose of testing the water mains.
The board of assessors of the city of Holland report a special assessment roll for the improvement of Eleventh street, between Market and Cedar streets.—Accepted, ordered placed on file in the city clerk's office, and ordered that notice of same be given two weeks in the HOLLAND CITY NEWS; that Tuesday, the 8th day of September, be fixed as the time when the common council and board of assessors will meet at the common council room to review the assessment.

Dr. F. J. Schouten: Dear Sir—About three months ago I bought a box of your anti-rheumatic pills and after using one half of them I find myself in perfect health. Last year I went to Mt. Clemens, Mich., and although I obtained relief there, it did not cure me. At the urgent desire of some of my friends I tried your anti-rheumatic pills with the above happy result. I deem them the best I have used and I have tried nearly everything.

Male and Hearty.
These two adjectives by no means imply the possession of great muscular strength. There are many men and women of slight build and delicate features to whom the terms "male" and "hearty" perfectly apply. Their complexions are bright, eyes bright and vivacious, pulses tranquil, step elastic, movements steady, sleep undisturbed, appetites sound. These indications of health and heartiness Hostetter's Stomach Pills will assuredly bestow upon the feeble, nervous and dyspeptic. No tonic of the century compares with it in popularity, no other rivals it in efficacy. As permanent invigoration means also the previous regulation of the system, Hostetter's Stomach Pills must also be regarded as chief among regulators. It conquers and prevents malaria, rheumatism, overcomes inactivity of the liver, bowels and kidneys, and promotes the assimilation of food as well as vigor.

Shelling Peas.
An Albany firm has gotten out a patent on a device for shelling peas. The novelty about this machine is that the peas are cut down like wheat or barley, and the vine and pod are all fed into the machine, which separates the green peas from the vine and pod perfectly free and clean. The machines are large, being sixteen feet long, eleven high and six wide. The company do not sell these machines but let them out on a royalty, and they are in great demand in all places where canned goods are put up, as they make a very great saving in the harvesting of peas.

Gone—all the painful disorders and chronic weaknesses peculiar to the female sex. They go, with the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Periodical pains, weak back, bearing-down sensations, nervous prostration, all "female complaints" are cured by it. It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless—a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nerve, imparting vigor and strength to the whole system. It costs you nothing if it fails to give satisfaction. It's guaranteed to do so, in every case, or the money is refunded. It can be guaranteed—for it does it. No other medicine for women is sold on such terms.

That's the way its makers prove their faith in it. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion; a legitimate medicine, not a beverage. Purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system.

THE BROOK.
know where its stream first sees the day,
Far be it in the rock-bound walls;
And it softly creeps on its sinuous way,
A thread of light through the pebbles gray,
Singing—ah, what? who tells?
The wavelet craps on its widening sea,
And dancing bubbles break.
As an artist draws, with a hand full free,
Circle and line—soft vocal glees
Ripples along their wake.
he ancient thought that the tune of the tide
Laughed through some maid's throat;
But 'tis only the music that doth abide
At the heart of all, what'er betide—
Creation's hopeful note.
In noiseless pools—like reeds that lie
In song, too deep for speech,
Gleams the calm beauty of the sky—
The measureless Divinity—
Love soaring beyond reach.
The mirrored stars afar off swinging,
Join in the brook's low rhyme.
The endless fuge through all space ringing,
Chords, hearts, and spheres and spray-drops
dingling—
The symphony of Time.

Sing, brook! soft syllables repeating
What sages may not know!
If I could tell what foam-waves breaking
Might tell, or the wind the long grass shaking,
How would my numbers flow!

HER SON-IN-LAW.

BY HELEN FORREST GRAVES.

"I kind o' hate to let that furniture go, Betsey Jane," said Mr. Piggott.
"Well, I wonder why?" slowly enunciated his better-half, who stood with her hands upon her sides, and a big white apron pinned around her by no means slender waist. "You ain't Noah, I guess, nor I ain't Noah's wife, and we don't want the kind o' furniture that come over in the Ark. Mis' Squire Nipps, she's got real black walnut, and Doctor Hawley's wife has Spanish mahogany that you can see your face in, and these chairs, at their best, weren't nothin' better than common curly maple with rush bottoms."

The August sun was steeping the old shingled roof in brightness, the round, tremulous tops of the monster butternut trees were a study in green and gold, and a flock of young turkeys were clucking sleepily in the high grass of the adjoining meadow.

Mr. and Mrs. Piggott stood out on the dandelion-strewn grass, proudly viewing the old house which had just been newly painted of a vivid olive, "picked out" with Venetian red.

"It b'longed to my gran'ther," said Mr. Piggott. "He went to housekeepin' in it when he was married."
"Well, so long he's been dead and buried forty year," said Mrs. Piggott, curiously, "I don't see what difference that makes."

"Tell ye what, Mis' Piggott," said a frank, cheery voice, as a tall young farmer in his shirt-sleeves, with a scythe balanced lightly across his stalwart shoulder, came up to the well curbed to get a drink. "I'll give you twenty-five dollars for that set o' furniture!"

Jemima Piggott—for short called "Jimmy"—who was sitting on the doorstep, hemming a red-bordered towel, looked up with a sudden bright smile in her dark-blue eyes.

"Oh, Moses," said she, involuntarily, "I'm so glad."

Mrs. Piggott sniffed scornfully.

"Well," said she, "if you and Moses Raintree are willin' to go to housekeepin' with such a lot of old truck as that—"

"It was Grandair Piggott's," said Jimmy, simply.

"Twenty-five dollars," said Moses. "Is it a bargain?"

"Yes, and glad to get it," answered his mother-in-law-elect, with equal brevity.

Mrs. Piggott went to the nearest town the next morning and bought a staring set of machine-made parlor furniture, upholstered in cheap and showy tuft.

"Jemima hain't a speck of her mother's pride," said she, "or she'd never marry a man that can't do no better than put her into a blacksmith's shop made over."

"It's very neatly fixed up," interposed her husband, "and you couldn't hardly tell it from a regular built house. Mis' has done it himself out of hours, every nail and screw of it. And he bought the lot himself out of his own honest earnin'."

When Grandair Piggott was a boy—
"Oh, I'm sick o' hearin' of your Grandair Piggott!" unceremoniously interrupted Mrs. Piggott. "Now look here, John, that walnut furniture is just the thing I've wanted this long time."

"I'm glad you're suited," said Mr. Piggott, dolefully.

"And now the next thing is a pianer for Lucilla!" began his wife.

"A—pianer!"

"Yes. Why not? Every girl has one nowadays."

"Jimmy hadn't no one."

"Jimmy hadn't no ambition. Lucilla's quite a different kind. Lucilla's clear Higginbotham. There ain't a bit o' Piggott about her. Lucilla must go in good society, and marry some one that's a peg higher'n a workin' man."

"You mean William Warburton?"

"I don't name no names," oracularly responded his wife. "What I mean is that Lucilla must be fixed up like other girls, and she and me, we've settled it she must have a pianer—on installments, you know. Of course we can't expect to pay for it all at once."

"But, Betsey Jane, we ain't paid off the old mortgage on the wood lot yet."

"Well, what o' that?"

"Mr. Mudge may foreclose any day."

"Father," spoke up Jimmy, "I don't want any wedding. Moses and me, we calculate to begin jest as we mean to go on. We've got the little three-roomed house and Grandair Piggott's set o' furniture, and we'll go right to Parson Parker's in the mornin' and get married, by ourselves, and we go straight to housekeepin' in the afternoon. You shan't be put to no trouble nor expense for us!"

"I told you there wasn't no Higginbotham about Jemima," said Mrs. Piggott. "However, I don't care, if she's suited."

"But Moses and I don't want a weddin', father," affectionately urged Jimmy, patting his cheek with her slim brown hand. "We love each other, and we're willin' to rough it together. Why should we want to add to your expenses and troubles?"

"There's a good deal o' sense in what Jemima says," observed Mrs. Piggott. "Moses Raintree's only a farmer. Wait until Lucilla marries young Warburton. Then I'll show you what a wedding is!"

So Moses and Jemima branched off by themselves into their quiet new life.

A glittering piano was ordered, the gorgeous party was given, and finally, with a grand flourish of trumpets, came Lucilla's marriage to Will Warburton.

"I hope she'll be happy," said Mrs. Raintree, wistfully, to her husband; "but I'm not just certain. I don't altogether like that young Warburton. He's made Lucilla too many expensive presents, and I don't understand so much speedin' fast horses and playing billiards at the tavern."

"Well, we'll give 'em a chance," said Moses Raintree, cheerfully. "And in the meantime, what do you say to Mrs. De Minford's offer of two hundred dollars for that old set of furniture?"

"I don't want to sell it," said Jimmy. "It was Grandair Piggott's, you know. But, if you really need the money—"

"Choose for yourself, my girl," said Moses, laughing. "The furniture is yours, not mine."

That very night—a raw, March tempest, full of driving sleet and wailing winds—Lucilla came, pale and weebone, to her sister's house, and slunk in at the back door.

"Jimmy, can't you help me?" wailed she. "The officers are waiting for Will around the corner of the house. He didn't mean it. He surely expected to be able to make up the money before it was missed, but luck was all against him, and now—now—he'll be put in jail, and—"

And a tempest of tears checked the piteous utterance of the poor little six-weeks-old bride.

"He's been—stealing, eh?" said Jimmy, her sweet face hardening involuntarily.

"Not stealing! Oh, he never meant that," pleaded Lucilla. "He was so certain of being able to replace it! Dear, dear, Jimmy, if I could only raise two hundred dollars! Father he says Will has drained him dry of every cent, and mother can only cry and rock herself backwards and forwards—"

Jimmy went into the back room to take counsel with Moses Raintree, who sat there adding up figures at his home-made pine desk.

"I know he's a scamp," she said, in a low voice, "but he's Lucilla's husband."

"Not such a scamp after all," said kindly Moses. "Only weak and conceited and easily led astray. Well, Jimmy?"

"If you don't object, Moses, that set of furniture that Mrs. De Minford wanted—"

"Jimmy, you're a noble-hearted little girl," said Raintree. "Where is Lucilla? I'll fix the thing for her."

Lucilla could scarcely believe the measure of her own good fortune.

"I never shall happen again, Moses," said she—"indeed it never shall! Because if Will once tides through this trouble, he's the promise of a place in the new rolling mill at Steelkirk. Mr. Farrell knows the foreman, and he says he can get him a place. Will's seen the folly of horses and gambling. And he says for my sake—"

And once more poor frightened little Lucilla broke down into tears and sobs, like the veriest baby.

"Yes," said Moses, quietly, "Mr. Farrell knows the foreman, Lucilla, and so do I. I had meant it for a surprise for Jimmy, but I am the new foreman at Steelkirk Mills, at a salary of fifteen hundred dollars a year, and a new frame house to live in, and a team o' horses kept for me to drive around and see to things with."

Jimmy opened her soft blue eyes wide and drew a quick, gasping breath.

"Oh, Moses!" was all that she could say.

"Yes," said Raintree, reaching down his hat, "you've been the best and dearest little wife in the world, Jimmy, and it's high time you had some reward. And we'll keep Grandair Piggott's furniture for our best parlor after all. I do believe the old sticks brought us good luck. Come, Lucilla, I'll go with you now to settle with them men."

"But you've got to get the money somewhere," hazarded Lucilla, timidly.

"The two hundred dollars?" He touched his vest pocket. "I've got it now—right here."

Lucilla stared. The family of Piggott had got so in the habit of regarding Moses Raintree as a sort of semi-pauper that the idea of his actually possessing money in any amount did not seem a possibility.

"I most believe I'm dreaming!" faltered she, in the overflowing fullness of her joy.

"What!" cried Mrs. Piggott, "Moses Raintree paid that money? Where under the sun did he ever get two hundred dollars? Moses Raintree the foreman of the grand new rolling mills? It ain't possible! Jimmy to live in a new house, with a Queen Anne roof and double parlors, and a horse and rockaway carriage! And Lucilla's husband to clerk it under Moses Raintree! Well, wonders never will cease, that's certain!"

"Other folks thinks more o' your son-in-law than you do, Betsey Jane," said Mr. Piggott, with a sly chuckle. "And what's more, Jimmy's goin' to begin life in the new house with Grandair Piggott's curly maple chairs and tables! Eh, what's that? A van, come to take away the pianer for non-payment of instalments! I ain't sorry to be quit of it. And the next money I can scrape together I'll pay toward the farm mortgage. I've had enough of style." And for once in her life Mrs. Piggott was ready with no retort.—[Saturday Night.]

A BRAVE WOMAN.

The Heroism and Terrible Trials of Mrs. Grimwood in India.

The English people are very proud of a little lady whose heroism equalled that of any male hero who ever wore the medals of honor. She is Mrs. Frank St. Clair Grimwood, the young and pretty wife of the British resident at Manipur, where the recent shocking massacre took place.

She was only three years a wife when she was called upon to endure trials that would have overcome many a more experienced woman. A few weeks ago it will be remembered the natives about Manipur became rebellious. Three Englishmen under a flag of truce went out to parley with them. Only their heads came back to the Residency.

Then the Europeans knew the worst had come, and they prepared to sell their lives as dearly as possible. For several days the handful of British defended the hotly assailed Residency. The wounded were placed in a cellar, where they were tended by brave Mrs. Grimwood, who though shot through the arm, would not give up.

At last the ammunition began to give out and it was decided to retreat. The little band had dwindled till there were scarcely enough to carry the wounded. Not a man was left behind on that dark night when the Residency was abandoned by the back way, and the frightened but brave squad plunged into the thicket. In the morning their flight was discovered by the enraged besiegers, who, taking their trail, harassed them day and night as they made for a friendly territory.

Through that terrible retreat the little lady bore up with great bravery. Though bullets were falling about her she never faltered. She set out with her ordinary house shoes. These were soon worn out and she had to put on heavy ammunition boots.

For ten days the retreat continued. Day by day the pursued became weaker. Then the last hope flickered out on the tenth day, when it was found that the cartridges would last only through that day. The next they would be at the mercy of their pursuers.

But Mrs. Grimwood cheered on the men. Her words of encouragement and hope remained to the weary fighters and they struggled on. During the day Colonel Butcher, in command, gave out all the cartridges but two—one for himself and one for the lady, to end their lives in case of capture.

But just as it looked as if they would have to be used a body of friendly Ghoorkas was met. These charged the Manipuri, rescued the British, and carried Mrs. Grimwood in triumph to their chief city, whence she reached English territory. Then she took off her clothes the first time in ten days.

She speedily recovered from the terrible strain, and her convalescence has been assisted by the gracious appreciation of Queen Victoria, who has given her the Royal Red Cross. Admiring friends in London have also presented her with a wreath of honor and are moving for a public recognition.

Locusts in Europe.

The appearance of locusts in Southern Italy and the country near the mouth of the Rhone reminds the correspondent of a German paper that this is by no means the first time that the latter district has been visited by them. The local history of Arles mentions between the years 1545-76 several processes at law against the locusts; for at that time the custom still survived of subjecting animals and even inanimate objects to trial, sentence, and the ban of the Church, just as if they were human beings.

In 1565, when the locusts laid waste the region in question, the people were in despair, and forthwith demanded their expulsion. Accordingly a summons calling upon the insects to appear before the Court of the "Official" was issued and proclaimed throughout the fields around Arles. As in due time the locusts, who it may be presumed were wary of justice, failed to appear, a well-known advocate, named Martin, was appointed to plead for them "in absentia."

The defense was admirable. The locusts, said Maitre Martin, were but instruments in the hand of God for the punishment of those who refused to pay the tithes due to the Church, and to lead them to penitence and the renewed fulfillment of their duty.

He submitted that the curse should not be pronounced against the "defendants," but that they should be regarded as blessings in disguise, and suffered in patience till God should remove them. But this pious defense failed. The locusts were formally cursed and called upon to leave the country without delay. The record adds that notice of appeal was given against this decision, but that before the day of hearing arrived the locusts, probably finding their quarters no longer safe, had flown to seek fresh fields.—[London Telegraph.]

Cattle at the World's Fair.

It is gratifying to learn, as we do from recent announcements, that the cattle department of the proposed Columbian Fair at Chicago is receiving much attention throughout the world; and it will probably constitute the finest exhibition of cattle ever made. The American Jersey Cattle Club and the Holstein-Friesian Association have each appropriated $10,000 for showing their cattle. J. F. Sarg, of Nussdorf, Germany, who represents the Cattle Breeders' Association of Baden, the largest breeders' association on the Continent, writes that he intends to send a herd of Simmental cattle. These cattle come from Switzerland and are large, the cows weighing about 1,400 pounds, and often 1,600 or 1,700 pounds, or more. They are white, and marked with large, irregular and sharply defined spots or bars of red, yellow or drab color. They are nicely shaped, have fine bone, head and skin, and should make a good impression, though they are probably no improvement to the breeds now found in America.—[New York Independent.]

Gratifying to All.

The high position attained and the universal acceptance and approval of the pleasant liquid fruit remedy, Syrup of Figs, as the most excellent laxative known, illustrate the value of the qualities on which its success is based, and are abundantly gratifying to the California Fig Syrup Company.

Used Up.
A Detroit youth of 6 years, who has just begun going to school, was so impressed with the importance of it that he was early out of bed and down promptly to breakfast for two mornings. The third morning he came a little late, looking very sleepy.

"How's this?" said his father, pretending to reprove him.
"Well, by jimmies!" said the youngster, "this hard work at school is using me up."

OUR NEIGHBORS.

Grand Haven.

The question of electric street lighting will be submitted by the common council to the property holding voters, at a special election.

Rev. W. Moerdyk of Muskegon has declined the call of the First Reformed church.

One hundred and four persons joined the teachers' class at the examinations for certificates held here on Thursday and Friday of last week. The number applying for second and first grade certificates was greatly in excess of the number at former examinations. The papers presented were generally very meritorious, especially by those who have been in attendance for the past few weeks at summer normal schools.

Marvin H. Creager, of Jamestown, Kansas, was in the city this week.

Rev. Henry T. Rose, of Massachusetts, a former pastor of the Presbyterian church, visited his friends here.

The guests at the Spring Lake House and the Grand Haven ball club played an exciting game here Thursday afternoon, resulting in a score of 47 to 12 in favor of the former.

James Safford, aged 23 years, an employee of Henry Bloeker & Co., of this city, was caught in the shafting Thursday afternoon, losing an arm and being injured internally. His recovery is doubtful.

Part of the saw mill machinery of the Cutler & Savidge Lumber Co., Spring Lake, will be transported to the Upper Peninsula, where the company own 40,000 acres of fine pine land.

Saugatuck.

Judging from the prevailing tone of the last issue of the Commercial, Saugatuck is just more than realizing a harvest from the peach crop. Its long deferred boom is on. We clip the following:

On her trip last Monday night the steamer McVea carried over 12,000 baskets of peaches to Chicago.

We have four daily boats now. Two to Milwaukee and two to Chicago each night; also a daily boat to Holland.

Our merchants are all wearing broad smiles over the increased traffic the fruit season brings them.

Fruit solicitors are around again as thick as ever. There is plenty of work for them this year.

There is a temporary falling off in the amount of peach shipments just now, but in the course of ten days they will be moving livelier than ever.

Last Saturday $1,500 were paid out at the Exchange Bank in cashing fruit checks. As the bank is only one of a half dozen places in Saugatuck and Douglas that cash fruit checks, it may be surmised that money is coming in this country quite lively now; and after all it is not much compared to what the first weeks in September will yield.

The half bushel package has come to be quite a favorite with the peach shippers this year, and is being used more than ever before.

The steamer A. C. Van Raalte is among the recent boat arrivals and is on the route from this place to Milwaukee, making tri-weekly trips and carrying peaches for three cents per basket. Capt. Nelson Napier is in command.

Parker Bros. of St. Paul, have a representative on the ground here, buying peaches delivered at the dock direct from the growers. They want at least a car load per day and will take more if it is offered.

Nothing but the greatest vigilance and heroic treatment will prevent the peach orchards of this county from complete destruction by the yellows, as were the orchards in Berrien county twenty years ago. The disastrous situation in Manlius township now is plainly due to the neglect of the owners of some of the large orchards there to observe the rules of protection that experience has taught to be imperatively necessary. There is no reason to contradict that peach yellows may not only be held in check but entirely eradicated by prompt treatment.

The success of the steamer Kalamazoo on the Holland route has been such as to lead her owners to the determination of building another steamer of about the same size and establishing a daily line there. Should nothing occur to change present calculations, the boat will be built here the coming winter.

Mrs. Frank Komp is staying with her people here. The family will reside at Holland as soon as they can secure a house there, which is a hard matter now, as vacant houses are not known in that thriving city.

Hamilton.

Ira Phoop and wife visited friends at Allegan last week.

The mill dam which has been under an extensive system of repairs during the past two months is completed. It is a much better one and is a credit to the village.

Peter Fisher soon goes to the Valparaiso Normal School, where he will take the classical course; his brother Cornelius will study medicine at the Michigan University.

U. S. B. O. took in the excursion to St. Joseph.

Harry Randolph has returned from the Park.

Quite a number of our young people will take in the resorts Sunday.

A. Culver, at one time a resident of this place, but now of Grand Rapids, is in town. He will soon move back here.

J. Harvey, of the firm of Harvey & Benjamin, returned Wednesday from a business trip to Muskegon. He reports the flour trade in a flourishing condition.

Miss Nellie Randolph is at Kalamazoo.

Geo. L. Gillies has been elected principal of schools at Carbonado, Iowa. He is a young man of remarkable abilities. With the exception of the advantages offered by the Hamilton public school, and a year at Hope College, he has acquired his education without aid, and is well up in all that pertains to the teacher's profession.

G. Parker, of Paw Paw was in town Wednesday.

Wheat is coming in at a great rate.

Resort Notes.

'Odd Fellows excursion, Saturday.

C. & W. M. Ry. employees of Muskegon will take their annual excursion this year to Ottawa Beach, Saturday.

The young folks of the First Ref. church picnicked on Wednesday.

Three heavily loaded excursion trains from Kalamazoo, Three Rivers and other points in southern Michigan were unloaded at the resorts, Tuesday.

There were three fire companies, three brass bands and hundreds of visitors.

The week was noted for local and family picnic parties.

The government tug Graham was at the harbor Tuesday.

Mart Witteveen, deputy sheriff at Ottawa Beach, captured and locked up a petty thief at that place, Sunday.

RESORT REFLECTIONS.

That it is a great mistake to infer that people you don't know are your social inferiors.

That wealth without refinement produces more snobs than any other condition.

That the struggle to keep up with the procession makes chronic invalids of many.

That over-dressed, pert and ill-mannered children are very conspicuous.

That the way some women dress for the evening hop looks as if they intended to bathe.

That the surf air is as bad as ever for artificial complexions, starched dresses and frizzled bangs.

That women yelling and screaming in the surf may always be counted upon as desirous of attracting attention.

That the character of a hotel is formed by the character of the men who keep it.

That trying to keep up appearances produces more insomnia than neuralgia and nervousness.

That the conversational abilities of the average society youth are exhausted in less than five minutes.
