Ottawa 4-H Camp Scene of Unique College Course

Students Learning
Conservation Practices
By Studying, Seeing

Grand Haven (Special)—Camp Pottawatomie, the 4-H club camp, located on Pottawatomie bayou near Grand Haven, has been the setting of a unique adventure in adult education for the last three weeks.

A college credit course in conservation of natural resources for both graduate and undergraduate students is being sponsored by Michigan State college and the Ottawa county education office. The course is being supervised by Prof. L. R. Schoenmann, assisted by G. W. Mouser, both of the college department of land and water conservation.

One unique feature is that the day is divided into three parts, lectures and study in the forenoon, planned tours in the afternoon when the class sees the things which were studied in the morning, then an evening session of discussion and movies ties in with the day's activities.

Another unusual class experience is that many of the lectures are given by men who are not teachers but experts in their own field. When the course is finished Friday the group will have shared the technical knowledge and field experience of six United States Soil Conservation men, seven men and two women from the Michigan department of conservation besides six teachers from Michigan State college.

The Ottawa county soil conservation board members held their monthly business meeting at the camp Aug. 8. Leo Arnold, Ottawa county agricultural agent, gave the teachers an interesting talk on the history of the Ottawa project.

A surprise feature was the action taken by the board giving each person taking the conservation course and resident professors, a free airplane ride over the county to see an airview of the soil saving practices being carried on. The trip was taken Tuesday afternoon.

Forests, farms, streams and lakes have been visited. A sawmill in operation, a wood-working factory, exploring a fishing trap, a peep behind the scenes in a large fish market, observing the operation of a milk farm, a look at new swamp grasses which keep a herd of cows fat and thriving, a huge gravel pit where a large scow was being loaded; studying trees, birds, insects and fishes, rocks and soils has kept the group not only interested but fascinated.

Students taking the course all were teachers, excepting one, coming from Montmorency and St. Clair counties as well as Ottawa.

Nurses Needed For Polio Work

An urgent appeal for registered nurses for polio duty in Midwestern states was made today by Mrs. Angie Van Hoven, enrollment nurse for the Ottawa county Red Cross chapter.

At least 40 nurses are needed because of a sudden upsurge in the number of cases in Texas, Colorado, Utah, Oklahoma, Wisconsin and Missouri.

During the two-week period from July 23 to Aug. 4, Colorado reported 133 new cases, Wisconsin 69, Utah 36, and Texas 183, according to a report by the public health service of the federal security agency. Nationwide the number of new cases during the week ending Aug. 4 totaled 1,203 compared with 1,185 during the corresponding week of 1950.

Red Cross officials urge especially that inactive registered nurses respond. The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis fights the bill for transportation to places of assignment and will provide maintenance in addition to salaries.

Nurses recruited by the Red Cross are requested to serve a minimum of two months.

All nurses available for polio duty should contact the Ottawa county Red Cross chapter, 6 East Eighth St., Holland, or the Masonic Temple building, Grand Haven.

Work will begin soon on the new Montello Park Christian Reformed church auditorium, which will be added to the present parish house. The architect's drawing shows the attractive colonial style of the structure, which will seat 600. The Rev. Louis Voskuil is pastor of the church.

Montello Park Church Plans New Auditorium

To keep up with a growing membership and a growing community, the Montello Park Christian Reformed church has drafted plans for the erection of a church auditorium. Work is expected to begin within a month on the 50 by 112 foot colonial style structure.

The auditorium will be built on to the existing parish house at the corner of West 20th St. and Plasmann Ave. Seating capacity will be 600.

A large colored picture window above the choir loft will add beauty to the brick edifice. A truss roof covered with asbestos shingles will make the building fireproof.

A covered entrance at the rear will allow the congregation to enter easily in all kinds of weather. A 150 car parking lot is planned for the area behind the auditorium.

The nine-man building committee is headed by Harold Vander Bie, 747 South Shore Dr. Completion of the auditorium is expected late next year.

Montello Park church received its charter on Nov. 14, 1940. First meetings were held in the gymnasium of the Christian high school under the leadership of the Rev. Henry Baker, home missionary.

Construction of the present parish house began in 1941 with climaxed with a dedication of the building on Oct. 10 of that year. The Rev. Lawrence Veltkamp, Dorr, was installed as first pastor on Feb. 15, 1942.

Rev. Veltkamp left to accept a Grand Rapids call in January, 1946, and the present pastor, the Rev. Louis Voskuil, was installed on June 20 of that year. The congregation has grown from the 32 charter families to the present 120 families.

Young Calvinists Hear Inspirational Speeches

Rev. Arnold Brink, educational director of Calvin college, addressed more than 350 Young Calvinists at a banquet Wednesday evening in Holland Christian high school. The banquet was part of the three-day Young Calvinist national convention which is concluding its sessions today.

"Give Me Thy Heart," was the subject of Rev. Brink's message. He said youth is given half truths, such as, do what's right always and you will be happy, and to be happy and successful is to do right now.

These half-truths, he said, are given by people who claim they "have gone through the mill." But no one knows what's in store for the future, therefore the statements can't be accepted as basic laws of life.

He warned of the promise of immediate returns and that success does not come without sacrifice. The liberty we have is Christian freedom. Rev. Brink said.

Chairman of the banquet was Dr. Clarence De Graaf, of Holland, federation president and Syd T. Youngsma of Chicago, was toastmaster. Group singing was led by H. Vander Linde and two vocal solos were sung by Prof. James De Jonge of Chicago. Closing prayer was offered by the Rev. John Breuker of Sioux Center, Iowa.

Calvin Bolt, speaking on the subject "America Awake" won the convention oration contest. Other contestants were Don Van Heemst, Paul Vaughn and Earl Vermeer. The contest was held Wednesday afternoon.

Proposals of the federation which have been passed include: The proposal to continue publication of "Spires," a devotional booklet for servicemen; a proposal for expansion work in the organization, and a proposal on discouraging mixed marriages.

The proposal on non-use of liquor was referred to a committee for another year of study.

This morning's session was held in the Prospect Park Christian Reformed church, convention headquarters. The Rev. Rolf Veenstra gave an address on "Consecrated Hearts." This afternoon election of federation officers will take place highlighting the meeting.

It Takes a Lot Of Food to Feed National Guards

Daily Rations Listed
For Holland Company;
Human Interest Items

Camp Grayling (Special)—It has been said that an Army travels on its stomach.

To get an idea of just what that expression means, here's the supplies that it took to feed Holland's National Guard company D for just one day at this summer encampment:

Two No. 10 cans of applesauce, 14 two and a half-pound cans of string beans, 32 pounds of boneless beef, 26 loaves of bread, seven pounds of butter, 60 bottles of catsup, seven pounds of celery, 58 boxes of cereal, four and a half pounds of cottage cheese, six pounds of coffee, 21 dozen eggs, five pounds of flour, six cans of orange juice.

Other items of that day's menu were: One and a half-pounds of lard, 33 pounds of lemons, seven pounds of lettuce, 95 fresh milk one-half pint cartons, 11 pounds of dry onions, six No. 10 cans of pears, 14 No. 2 cans of sliced pineapple, 52 pounds of pork, 65 pounds of potatoes, nine pounds of rice, 1 gallon of salad dressing.

Other items were: 14 pounds of sugar, one-half pound of tea, nine pounds of fresh tomatoes, three pounds of oleo, two No. 10 cans of bean sprouts, and 95 Dixie cups.

Besides the above, Mess Sgt. Gene Micheliens bought 20 extra loaves of bread, five pounds of butter and 10 pounds of flour.

Company D is one of the few units at Grayling that has its own dishes and serves meals family style. Most of the other outfits feed cafeteria style out of mess kits.

A week ago Wednesday evening, each member of company D was able to sleep on a mattress. Thanks to Commanding Officer Capt. Russell Kemper, mattresses were provided that afternoon for each man to replace many straw "ticks" that had been used to sleep on up to that time.

Members of the local company dumped their straw out onto the company street and gladly took the soft-sleeping mattresses.

Ron Appleborn, Tom Carey and Clayton Ter Haar were among those taking part in an impromptu "pass and tap" football game at the end of a company street one evening last week. Each side had the regulation 11 men.

The inept were dotted with many standout football players including Max McConnell, Hillsdale college tackle; Vic Lawson, Greenville high school coach and Don Smith of Michigan State college.

Before the men quit, the game had developed into a pass and tackle contest with no holds barred.

A welcomed innovation at Camp Grayling this summer was installation of new oil heaters for the enlisted men's showers. These replace small coal stoves that were used to heat shower water in other years.

Holland is well represented on the first battalion staff of the 126th Infantry regiment of the 4th division.

Major Bill Sikkel, former commanding officer of the local company, is battalion S-3 (plans and training officer).

Capt. Bob Kouw is S-4 on battalion staff. He is in charge of supplies. And Capt. Burrell De Young of Holland is battalion S-2 (intelligence) officer.

Helen Speros, right, holds a mirror so that Lucky, a talking parakeet, can engage in one of his favorite sports, that of complimenting himself. Lucky explains that he is a pretty bird, and then preens himself and pecks at his image in the mirror. Mrs. Speros is the daughter-in-law of Gus Speros, left, who is co-owner of the bird. The Speros family lives in Chicago, but this week were vacationing at their summer cottage near Waukegan. (Sentinel photo)

Jabbering Parakeet Has 200-Word Vocabulary

Lucky is a little blue parakeet valued by his owners, Charles Marsten and Gus Speros, both of Chicago, at about $1,000, and Lucky lives up to one of his favorite sentences—"I'm a most remarkable bird."

Lucky can talk a blue streak and at last count knew about 200 words. He can juggle these words into more than 50 sentences, Speros said. Speros spent part of this week at his cottage near Waukegan, and Lucky was with him enjoying the Michigan holiday.

At home in Chicago, Lucky has a cupid statuette that is his close friend, and he talks to the cupid for hours, Speros said. When traveling about in Chicago, Lucky yells from his cage at passing strangers, "Come up and see me sometime. I live at 32 East Division, phone Superior 0905."

He started a woman from Georgia on one occasion by cooing softly. "Ah loves yo," Miss Schnell. And he continually mutters to himself about what he could do "if I had a million dollars."

"Just think," he spatters, "a MILLION dollars!"

The little bird is allowed to fly wherever it likes in the house, but generally doesn't say much except when in its cage. But then Lucky turns loose a stream of talk that would shame some Senators.

Recently, Lucky fluttered out the doorway of a house in Davenport, Iowa, where Speros was visiting friends, and all efforts to get him back failed. Speros, scores of Davenport citizens, and several policemen failed to entice the little bird out of his perch high in a tree.

"I get the blame for everything," Lucky kept squawking, and later flew away and was lost. He settled on the shoulder of Mrs. R. Viviani in Davenport about three days later, after Speros had given up efforts to get him back.

Lucky's choice of shoulders was fortunate, because Mrs. Viviani is a bird lover who spends much of her time helping birds near her Davenport home.

So she recaptured Lucky, and a two-state police dragnet was sent after Speros, who had started back to Chicago. He finally was found and returned to Davenport to get his bird.

Now the Speros family takes no chances. They close all doors and windows before Lucky is released from his cage. And they watch him carefully while he's out of his cage.

"Now," Lucky says sadly, "I'm not good, they'll throw me to the cats."

4 Girl Cyclists Struck by Auto

Four girl bicyclists were injured slightly when their two tandem bicycles were struck by a car on the Ottawa Beach road Wednesday afternoon.

The four girls, all 19, were treated at Holland hospital for bumps and bruises and later released. They were Margaret Boerman, Wilma De Kuiper and Lois Dusseljee, all of Fremont, and Kathryn Boersma of Grand Rapids.

They were riding tandem bicycles that were struck by a car driven by Mrs. Julius Rynbrandt, 28, of Byron Center. The accident happened about one mile east of Ottawa Beach at 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Rynbrandt, who was driving east, told officers that she saw the two bicycles but then looked off the road to check her small son who was in the front seat. When she looked up, she said, she was on top of the girls.

The car struck the rear of the bicycles, which were traveling abreast. One bicycle went off the road to the right, and the other to the left.

Deputy Clayton Forry issued a ticket to Mrs. Rynbrandt for failure to observe assured clear distance.

The gowns were fashioned with peter pan collars, cape sleeves, tucked bodices and bouffant skirts over hoops. They wore contrasting velvet ribbon sashes and matching half hats. The maid of honor carried a bouquet of white gladioli and ivy streamers and the bridesmaids carried burgundy centered with white gladioli. The flower girl carried a small nosegay.

A reception for 150 guests was held in the church parlors. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Post of Holland were master and mistress of ceremonies. Serving at the punch bowl were Misses Sylvia and Jean Schipper and gifts were arranged by Misses Marjory Mulder and Jacquelyn Marcuse. Miss Norma De Vries and Mrs. John Essegager, Jr., poured at the buffet table which was centered with a four-tier wedding cake flanked with white tapers and ivy. Assisting about the rooms were the Misses Carol Van Laere, Yvonne De Loof, Jane Schaafsma and Carol Kuypers.

After the reception, the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Canada. The bride's traveling ensemble included a gray shantung suit lined with red, black velvet accessories and a red rose corsage. Upon their return they will live at apartment A-2, Beach court.

Central Nine Wins In Walkaway From Green Hornets

Only one game was played at Third St. diamond Friday night, but that was a tight pitchers duel in which only four batters were able to hit safely.

Central Avenue took a 3-2 decision from the Green Hornets, in spite of only getting one hit off Bob Fortney and Marv Paddig. Fortney was shipped off to right field in the second inning after he hit a batman and gave up five consecutive walks to account for all three Central runs.

Then Paddig took over and allowed only one hit in a nice relief job for the Hornets.

However, his teammates were unable to give him enough offensive support, and got only three hits off Pree Bos, Central hurler. Bos gave Fortney a double, and singles went to Paddig and Pete Welling.

The lone Central hit went to Al Driesenge, a single in the sixth.

The second game, between the Vets and Main Auto, was rained out after the first inning, and has been rescheduled for play Aug. 23.

Also, Harry Hulst, president of the softball league, has announced that the Baker team has conceded a rained out game to Pelon Sunoco. Baker was trailing Sunoco, 18-3, at the end of four innings on Tuesday when rain halted the game.

Yugoslavs Extend Warm Welcome To Touring American Students

By Don Lubbers
Student Ambassador

Since I am traveling faster than the mails at the present time I thought that I could add a bit to this letter before I send it from Trieste. I am not continually on the go, but neither are the mails. I forgot to mention the trip our group took to the old Roman city of Solonae. This ancient city is only five miles from Split. Amidst the ruins one finds small peasant huts surrounded by cornfields. As a matter of fact, right in the center of the old Roman amphitheater we saw an old lady hoeing her corn patch.

Here in Yugoslavia the state has not had time to spoil history by fencing off famous landmarks and saying, "You may come in and look, but be careful and be sure to pay the fee." Life just sort of goes on.

In Split stands the ancient palace of the Roman emperor Diocletian. His privacy has been spoiled by the 20th century also. I think the most thrilling part of the whole excursion into the Roman empire was the mile walk on the Appian Way, the famous road which stretched across the empire. I could imagine chariots passing me and men on foot heading to Jerusalem perhaps.

Yesterday, after leaving Split with another American student we decided to spend the night on the Island of Rab, which is supposed to be, along with Dubrovnick, one of the most beautiful seaside resorts in Yugoslavia. We were not disappointed.

When we arrived we were presented with a room in the best hotel for 40 cents a day, meals included. I know this sounds like a fish story, but it is not. In the evening the officials of the Peoples Youth committee entertained us royally with refreshments, music and conversation.

I tell you these things because I hope to show you what being an American means in Yugoslavia. We are treated so wonderfully because the people admire our nation.

They sometimes feel other Europeans look down on them, but they are impressed by the manner in which Americans greet them and talk with them. I must say that the Americans who preceded us made a good impression and paved a smooth path for us.

My father warned me about writing long letters and I'm afraid this one has stretched far beyond the limit of a good letter. However if I may I would like to tell Miss Meyer and Mrs. Prins that the little French they were able to pound into my head has helped me immeasurably the last two days. On the ship to Rab I spent most of the day conversing with a French couple who were able to give a great deal of advice concerning my forthcoming stay in Paris. They spoke a little English and I "francais un peu" so we got along magnificently.

This morning if I hadn't been able to mumble a little French it would have been impossible to get a fair price on some souvenirs. It is time for lunch so I must close for now.

Locals Attending Adventist Camp

Grand Ledge — Duane Miller, pastor of the Holland Seventh-Day Adventist church and many of his members were among the 10,000 visitors to the annual Adventist camp meeting near here last weekend.

As part of the conclave, members donated 500 pints of blood to be flown to medical centers in Korea. This is part of the denomination's civil defense program.

George E. Hutches was re-elected president and Edward F. Willett, secretary-treasurer by the Michigan delegates from 151 Adventist churches.

Willett announced that Michigan members gave $2,218,327.71 in tithes and $728,788 in foreign mission offerings during the last two years.

Guest speakers for the 10-day session included Evangelist Robert M. Whitsett of Washington, D.C., and H. M. S. Richards and the Kings' Herald quartet from Los Angeles.

The camp meeting will close Saturday night.

4 Allegan City Streets Closed

Allegan (Special)—Four platter but unopened streets running east of Ely St. were officially closed by the city council Monday night in preparation for the re-ravine of M-40 south into the city via Tannery ravine.

City Manager Philip Beavals said the state highway department informed him the project would be let for contracting this fall.

According to the proposed plan, the highway would be re-located west of the present route and cut through the ravine, to join M-89 about 200 feet south of the present intersection.

The four streets to be closed are on the city map but never have been used. They are extensions of Spruce, James, Cherry and Ravine Sts.

In connection with state highway affairs, the council learned about $6,000 additional annual income will be forthcoming under the new distribution formula of state highway maintenance done by the city. Previously, the city has paid about 30 per cent of the cost of work on M-118 and M-89 within the city. From now on, the state will pay all of it, Beavals announced. This year's work is budgeted at $14,295.

There are more than 1,200 Chinese paintings and 800 Japanese in the Charles Freer collection.

Despite the rain, a large crowd of Holland barbershoppers gathered at the Clarence Jaiving home Monday evening for the third summer SPEBSQSA meeting. Fifty-four attended the event which featured a steak fry and a lot of singing, barbershop style.

C. C. Wood, as master of ceremonies, introduced visiting quartets, the Overtones, from Benton Harbor-St. Joseph chapter, the Cro-matrix, Four Fathers and Coronators, from Muskegon. The Windmill Four of Holland, including Art De Waard, Jack Essenberg, Pete Van Iwaarden and Fred Wise, sang several numbers.

Several others from the Muskegon chapter, sponsors of the local group, were present, including Bill Quirk, district regional co-ordinator, Frank Morse, Herb Allen, Muskegon secretary, Len Horton and others. Impromptu quartets were formed by local members and visitors for woodshedding.

Newly-elected officers of the Holland chapter formed a quartet and sang for the group. Jack Essenberg is president; Fred Wise, secretary; Wayne Smith, treasurer.

A plea was made for new members and it was announced that any man who wishes to sing is welcome to visit. From September to July the chapter meets the second and fourth Mondays of each month at the Warm Friend Tavern. Plans already have been made for the Parade of Quartets on March 14. The Schmidt brothers, now international champions, will appear at the concert.

Allendale to Build Community Center

Allendale (Special) — Ground will be broken soon for Allendale township's new modern Community center. The building will be located on M-50, east of the village, on the south side of the highway.

Approval for the new structure, which will replace the antiquated hall now in use, was given by voters of the township in last April's election. Voters approved building of the hall 100-7, and approved a four mill tax, to run for 10 years, 97-13.

The old township hall, which now is too small for many community gatherings and other meetings regularly held there, is located about an eighth of a mile south of Allendale center. It has been the center of township activities for many years.

The new building, however, is expected to be more than a township hall. It will provide housing for the Allendale fire department, which now is located at Pearlina hardware, a mile and a half east of Allendale.

The edifice will include an auditorium which will seat 450, and a kitchen. It will be of cinder block construction with brick facing. Because of its central location in the county, it is believed by township officials that the center will be widely used. Until now, many gatherings have been held in Coopersville or Zeeland, where facilities could provide for larger groups.

Date for completion of the structure has not been announced.

AFTER US, WHO CARES?

Those three Coloma young men
who were fined by Municipal Judge Ervin Andrews in Allegan
for using a picnic table as fuel
did not get any more than they deserved. Chopping up a table that had been provided for the enjoyment of all, they converted it into firewood so they could cook a meal for their own enjoyment in the camp fireplace. What did they care about the other citizens who might wish to spend a few hours
of leisure at the camp? They couldn't be bothered to hunt for fuel when there was a nice supply
of wood near at hand in the form of a table that had cost the public a good deal of money to provide. Why should they worry about others? They would probably never have occasion to use
the camp again. Let those who followed them look out for themselves.

These particular young men
found it a costly business. The judge made their punishment stiff enough so that they will have to put in many hours of hard work
earning the money to pay their fines. There are many others using picnic camps and roadside tables in the same spirit who get off without paying the penalty.

Not that many destroy picnic
tables, but they do many other things that show a similar spirit—
the spirit of "After us, who cares?" Although the state provides garbage cans for refuse,
they scatter watermelon rinds all
about the place, and they leave
the place in a condition which
would suggest that a herd of hogs
had been spending the day there.
Those who come after them have
to turn themselves into garbage
collectors before they can spend
a hour there in comfort.

The truly experienced and civilized camper takes pride in leaving a camp or picnic table location in as good a condition as he found it. If he is really experienced he usually leaves it in better condition for those who follow him
than it was in when he arrived. He understands that it was he who,
through his elected officials, established those camps and tables
and that it is he who is paying for their maintenance. More than that, he understands that it is up to him to be a gentleman. He protects state property in the same way in which he treats his own possessions. Even if he's on a long trip thousands of miles from home
and knows that he will never see
the place again, he feels under obligation to treat the people of that community the way he expects them to treat his own community. Wayside table and camping etiquette deserve as much attention as the etiquette of the private dining room. This also applies to state and county parks. With Holland's State park running first
in the state in the number of people this year, it would be well for our senator and representative to check with the park division of the Department of Conservation.
We need some plans and action.

The Christian's Responsibility in Public Life
Matthew 5:13-16; 13:33;
1 Peter 3:13-18

By Henry Geerlings

Our country was first settled by Christian people who were seeking to find a land where they could worship God according to
the dictates of their own conscience. The majority of men
founding our nation believed in God and in Christ. God's authority is recognized in both the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.
Our President is sworn into office
on an oath pledged on the Bible.
Many of our great national holidays are religious in character—
Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter. The majority of the religious groups in our country claim to believe in Christ. For these reasons we sometimes say that this is a Christian nation.

However, only about 40 per cent of the people of the United States are on church rolls. Of these only 20 per cent are professed Christians. Many practices
of our country are un-Christian,
as the legalization of liquor and gambling, social injustices, racial prejudices, low moral conditions,
and the high rate of divorce. All
point to the fact that in reality
our nation is not Christian. Who is responsible for making it so,
and what should be our attitude
toward the Government are basic questions which must be answered by us today. Can we shift the responsibility to officeholders and
say that when they straighten up
we will support them? Can we leave the work of making ours a
good government to political parties and secular organizations?

Nowhere did Christ or His apostles urge or instruct His followers
to revolt against the governments
that he, even though these governments might be un-Christian.
His was a policy of changing
every individual until the entire lump was goodly. He told the Jews who desired to entangle Him
in revolutionary schemes, that they should render to God what was God's and to Caesar what was Caesar's. We are to submit ourselves to the ordained governments that are over us.

The Christian is a good citizen,
and if he is living as Christ would
have him to do, he is the best citizen. As Christians we are to pay
our taxes, participate in matters
affecting the public welfare, show
respect to rulers, obey the laws,
and exercise a co-operative spirit.
This does not mean that the Christian neglects his Lord, since
we have seen that governments
are ordained of God, and by serving our government, by trying to make ours a good, Christian country, we are only adding to our service to God.

All our basic laws are based on
the commandments of morality
found in the Bible. When a Christian follows the teachings of the Scripture, he will not only be doing the will of God, but will au-tomatically be obeying the laws
of his country. That is why he is the best citizen. He has deeper motives for being law abiding and serving his country.

But just obeying the laws of the land is not enough to make one a good citizen although this is the first requirement. One must be actively engaged in trying to improve the spiritual standard of his country and to make the actual
machinery of running the government more in harmony with the will of God. So the Christian citizen must take an active interest in the running of his country. It is his responsibility and privilege to vote. He should not vote, however, for whom he is
prejudiced by reason of friendship
or party affiliation. He should not vote haphazardly and without giving the matter proper thought. He should vote intelligently, carefully, and for the man whom he thinks, after prayerful consideration, is the best man for office. He should vote for Christian men,
men of honesty, integrity, righteousness, and Christian ideals.

Once having voted for the best
men, it is the duty of the Christian as a citizen, to support the
one having won the election as far as possible in accord with one's Christian principles. In a democracy the majority rules. The church is a democracy where, under the constitution of the Bible,
we each take part in local affairs
of the church, but the majority
rules in matters of nonessentials.
The individual Christian ought to be the best citizen in this regard,
since he should be practicing democracy in his local church.

Evangelism plays a great part
in making our nation Christian. It can only be Christian when individuals become Christian. When all are conscientious Christians,
then we will have a Christian nation. Although we are to try to vote for the Christian candidates
for office, although we are to do
our best through legal and political channels to make our nation better, it is impossible to make it a Christian nation by simply voting. It will become Christian only as we win people individually to Christ. This being true, a Christian is serving his country and his God best when he is diligent in trying to win people to Christ.

Library Adventures

By Arnold Mulder

The death of E. Haldeman-Julius,
founder of the "Little Blue Books" movement makes it timely to place that movement in perspective. Found dead in his swimming pool at his home in Girard, Kansas, at a time when he had been convicted of tax evasion, he may be regarded as a suicide, or
he may have been the victim of an accident. In either event, the "Little Blue Book" idea lives on.

For the Haldeman-Julius idea
has been taken up in other forms
by regular publishers. A generation ago, when Haldeman-Julius
first hit on the idea of publishing great books in such cheap editions that millions could afford to buy them, the price of books was far lower than it is today. In those days $1.50 was the usual
price of a new cloth-bound novel,
and even hefty biographies and
other books of that kind seldom went beyond the $3 price. But the income of the average citizen was also far less than it is today when $3 is fairly low as the cost of a new novel and when $5 and even $10 may be charged for other types of books.

At least Haldeman-Julius conceived the idea that millions of people
with small incomes would form a market for cheaply printed and
cheaply bound books in mass production. And he was right. Almost from the start of his venture, the editions had to be so enormous that the circulation of the books became big business.

The Haldeman-Julius idea could
of course not be applied to new publications. Such books have to produce royalties for their authors,
as by right they should, and they have to face many other publishing costs that the "Little Blue Books" did not have to contend with.

When Haldeman-Julius produced
"The Republic" of Plato or
"The Praise of Folly" by Erasmus, he did not have to worry about paying 15 or 20 per cent of the returns from each copy sold.

In royalties to the author, Plato
has been dead for thousands of years, and Erasmus for several centuries. Moreover, there were no copyright laws when those
authors wrote their books.

Haldeman-Julius understood
that there is no limit to the number of books that could be published from what may be called the "public domain." It includes virtually all the books that were published before the opening of the twentieth century—certainly
all before the middle of the nineteenth century. And there are so many forms of literature, from poetry to drama to novel to philosophy, that they could be made
to appeal to readers of all kinds of tastes.

There was one difficulty. Some of the greatest books of all time
have been very big books. It was not practicable to print a thick
volume at the low cost charged for the "Little Blue Books." The expense in typesetting and paper
alone would be several times that of the cost of the "Little Blue Books." So Haldeman-Julius was in the habit of compressing such books into smaller space, keeping
the original language but omitting
sections that he considered less significant. For real book lovers
that was a great drawback; no
one likes to have an editor or compiler come between him and the great writers of the past.

During recent years so-called
regular publishers have found a way of at least partially overcoming this difficulty. Several of them have been publishing paper-
covered books at costs as low as
from 50 cents to 75 cents, without cutting and without editing of any kind. That is much higher than the price of the "Little Blue Books," but the idea seems to stem from the Haldeman-Julius experiment. And it is all to the good. A paper-covered Plato or Shakespeare is just as good reading as one bound in cloth or leather.

Fords Nip Central
And Furnacemen
Wallop the Moose

Three city league softball teams
wound up their regular season's efforts Tuesday night at Third St.
diamond, and for two of them it
was a pleasant victory-colored finish.

The two winners were Barber
Fords and Holland Furnace. The Fords thumped Central Avenue,
6-1, in the season ender for both teams, and Furnace beat the Moose, 10-3. The Moose had one game remaining on its schedule.

The win for Fords didn't help
their standings much, because Furnace kept pace and the two teams remained tied for third place in the league. Now the Ford nine must await the outcome of the first-place battle between Sunoco and Main Auto before
final playoffs start.

At present, Sunoco and Main
Auto each have one loss, and unless one of them loses in remaining games, a second half playoff
will be necessary.

In Tuesday's game, Ford went to work early and got three runs home when C. Johnson hit a round-tripper with two aboard.
Fords added two more in the third
on a homer by Hank Prince and
on a pair of errors that got Howie Diepenhorst home.

In the sixth, Fords tallied again
when G. Bos smacked a double
and was driven home by one of Jud Vander Zwaag's two singles.

Other hits for Ford in the game
went to Walt Wlodarczyk, and Norm Boeve, each of whom got
singles.

For Central, Ford Pitcher Norm
Boeve allowed only two batters to hit safely, Don De Vries getting
a single and Ted Schreuer banging a homer.

In the second game, the Furnace nine got five singles and a triple in the fifth inning off Herk Cramer, and those clouts were good enough for seven runs. The seven were added to two made
the first inning and one made the second frame.

The Moose had gone ahead in
the first inning, getting three runs
on three walks and a double by Don Hulst, but the team's scoring
started and ended with that brief rally. Ray Morren and Floyd Van-den Belt shared pitching chores
for the Furnace nine and allowed Moose only five hits.

Those hits went to Hulst, who got two doubles, to Cramer who got a double, and to Paul Fortney
and Ted Bos, each of whom got
singles.

For the winners, the batting
story was a bit different, and the Furnacemen got 13 hits off Cramer.

Leading the parade was Bill
Franks, who socked four singles
in five trips to the plate. Corky Weener got two sniggles and a triple, and Morren hit two singles.
Van Wieren hit a triple and Griep
and Prince each hit singles.

Snoopy, "the cat that came back," is enjoying himself immensely at the home of his master and mistress, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Eriksen, 902 South Shore
Dr.

Last Sunday a neighbor of the Eriksens looked out and saw a cat answering Snoopy's description lying in the road in front of their home. She pulled the cat out of the road and called to tell them the sad news. The believed owners found a box, put
the cat into it and drove out into the country to give him a suitable burial.

Early Monday morning Mrs. Er-iksen heard the unmistakable
meowing of a cat, asking to be let
in. She went to the window and there was Snoopy. Her husband
insisted it couldn't be their cat,
he'd buried it, but they let him
in and sure enough, it was their pet.

Since Snoopy is of the garden
variety gray-striped type, someone stray cat had a decent funeral and the Eriksens are very happy.

If you broke the law before
Aug. 13, you have a better chance
of beating the rap than if you broke it after Aug. 17. At least in Ottawa county.

Why? Prosecutor Wendell A.
Miles was at Northwestern university school of law last week
taking a short course for prosecu-toring attorneys. And from the looks of the program, the 126 attending attorneys covered everything in the book—plus a few things not in the book.

Here are a few section titles of things studied: Prosecution pitfalls in homicide cases, investigation of blood stains and blood
grouping tests, burned bodies and skeletal remains, comparative mi-
crography, and the examination
of questioned documents, including typewriting identification,
identification of paper and inks
and the decipherment of obliterated
and latent writing.

Miles regards the course as "a marvelous opportunity" in improving his knowledge and in acquainting him with newest techniques.

Farmer Relates Pollution Gripe

Allegan (Special)—In preparing a report on farm damage from the polluted Kalamazoo river, Guy Teed, Allegan chairman, has heard many stories recently.

But the tale recounted by Dan Arnold, Plainwell, so far is the most graphic.

Arnold said four of his cows strayed some distance, and he had to drive them home. They were overly warm when they arrived at the Arnold barn, so he withheld them from the watering tank.

"They didn't have water all day, and when I turned them out to pasture later on, they were as thirsty as cows could get."

"I saw them go straight down to the river. But they took one sip, and walked away."

"As dry as they were, they refused to drink the stuff."

Four questions are being asked on the information sheet being circulated by Teed's Anti-Pollution committee. They cover the value of property affected by pollution, specific examples of damage, benefits which would result from a river clean-up, and the landowner's opinion of the Water Resources commission's attempt to halt pollution.

Virtually all restaurants in Holland cater to a coffee hour in the morning—and often in the afternoon. Many places sell thousands of cups (maybe millions) throughout the year to keep pace with the pleasant chatter. The above group is representative of dozens of

State Police Cite Driver in Crash

A charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants was lodged against Luther W. Pleasant, 40, of Hayti, Mo., after a two-car collision at 8 p.m. Sunday three miles south of Holland on US-31.

South Haven state police, who investigated the crash, issued the ticket and ordered Pleasant to appear before Justice Irvin Andrews of Allegan.

State police said the accident happened when Pleasant tried to pass a car driven by Mrs. Helen White of Muskegon, but couldn't make it because of approaching traffic. Pleasant swung back into his own lane and struck the ear of the White car, then went into the ditch. Both cars were headed north.

Pleasant was thrown from his car when it left the road, and received treatment for head cuts and bruises. Estimated damage to each vehicle was about $100.

Holland police handled traffic and took charge of the case until South Haven officers could be summoned.

Transient Jailed For Second Time

Joe Calhoun, 50-year-old transient railroad worker, was back in Municipal Court Saturday on a drunk and disorderly charge, the same thing that had him before Judge Cornelius Vander Meulen Thursday.

On Thursday he was discharged from city jail after paying fine and costs of $14.70, but he was picked up again Friday on another intoxication charge. Saturday he was given a suspended sentence of 10 days on condition he leave town.

David Nixon, 49, of Missouri, also with the same work company, paid fine and costs of $14.70 on a similar charge. He was picked up Thursday on East Eighth St.

In other court cases, Blagio (Benny) Ingallina, 45, route 2, Fennville, paid fine and costs of $23.90 on a charge of violating the apple law by not having proper advertising stamps affixed. Arrest was by a state agricultural inspector.

George Vander Wal, 25, of 386 West 21st St., paid $5 fine and costs on a speeding charge. Parking fines of $1 each were paid by Eleanor Brink of 175 East 25th St., and F. Buursma of Ottawa Beach.

Justice L. L. Junkerman ordered $10 fine plus costs, and suspended a 30-day jail sentence with the understanding that Woudwyk spend five week-ends in jail. He is to report to the jail at 9 a.m. Saturday and stay there until 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Junkerman imposed a similar sentence on a like charge against another minor earlier this summer.

Saugatuck police made the arrest.

Have a Cup of Coffee! Everybody's Doing It

That pleasant little habit of running out for a cup of coffee in the morning—a traditional mainstay of downtown business life in Holland—has cropped out all over the country.

From New York to San Francisco, people have learned what a pick-me-up a cup of coffee in mid-morning can be...and they like it. The habit has become as deeply entrenched as the seventeenth-century stretch or the hotdog.

Actually, America has just recognized a pleasantry Holland, Mich., people have been enjoying all their lives. For the downtown coffee kietz has been a delightful habit here ever since there was a downtown.

Some wags say the first thing unpacked when the Dutch colonists arrived here more than 100 years ago was a coffee pot.

Others say America nearly lost the war when coffee was rationed back in 1942.

Joking aside, coffee rationing was rougher on Holland, Mich., than the bigwigs in Washington could have thought possible. It has been said that Holland, Mich., drinks more coffee per capita than any other place in the U.S.A. This was borne out several years ago when a national coffee concern chose Holland, Mich., as a pilot city to test some coffee advertising. Their campaign was so successful that to this day the special brand of coffee remains tops and in some cases accounts for 50 per cent of the coffee sales in certain stores.

Business men downtown regard the coffee kietz period as a "must" on the day's program. Here, they discuss politics, express their opinions and exchange the time of day. It has been said more business is transacted over the coffee cups in Holland, than over the conference tables.

It used to be that the morning coffee kietz was only for the privileged group—the merchants, owners or top men. But it is gradually evolving into a more democratic custom in which more and more people take a break and plunk down seven cents for a cup of coffee. Many people observe this pleasant habit in the afternoon too. As for downtown employees, it is clearly impressed on their from time to time that abusing privileges might cut out the coffee break.

Some firms put in their own coffee nooks to keep their employees on the job. In other places, employees protest it's the change of scene they crave as much as the cup of java.

Even Hope college added a coffee kietz in the basement of Van Raalte hall a few years ago—partly because of demand for such accommodations, and partly to keep students on the campus.

As the pleasant habit of coffee drinking spread, some employees blamed the war. In the rough days of World War II when trained labor was hard to find and harder to keep, the wise boss indulged in such little liberties as a morning coffee break. Today, no frown daunts the coffee breakers. And usually the boss who does try to maintain discipline finally gives up and goes out for a cup of coffee himself. He finds he likes it too.

The coffee habit isn't confined to the business and industrial world. Small-town and suburban housewives have adopted "morning coffee" as an excuse to go neighboring after the beds are made and dishes washed.

Throughout the country, employees have tried vainly to check work losses by various stratagems—serving coffee at desks and from pushcarts at factory benches, by setting aside definite coffee periods. And they find what so-lace they can in surveys showing that workers are more alert and make fewer mistakes.

As for the habit itself—no cure seems to be in sight. Besides, who wants a cure? Thousands have learned that a cup of coffee in the afternoon tastes as good as it does in the morning.

In fact, many Hollanders demand a cup of coffee before going to bed at night, rounding out three regular meals and three snacks. At a cup or two a throw (many drink more) it's easy to understand how daily consumption runs up to a dozen cups in many instances.

The Dutch farmer always wants his coffee in the morning and afternoon. And the factory worker has always had a break for coffee in Holland, Mich. In some cases, the five-minute break observed for years and years is a 15-minute break now under union contract.

As for the newspaper world, reporting and coffee have long been synonymous. A good story can always be made better over a cup of coffee—and the newspaperman who doesn't drink coffee (and he is rare, indeed) has a firm conviction he's really missing something.

National Guards See Fire Power Of F-51 Mustangs

Camp Grayling (Special)—Several members of Holland's National Guard company D sat on a hillside in an isolated section of this sprawling military reservation Friday afternoon to watch a demonstration of Air Force fire power.

Eight F-51 Mustang fighter planes from the 140th Fighter Bomber group Buckley Field, Colo., were used in the demonstration of air-ground force teamwork.

Targets of old automobiles, stacks of white-marked wood and other targets were set up to represent enemy installations. Through a loudspeaker system set up on the hillside overlooking the area, the audience heard a ground observer direct the planes to the target.

The first four planes peeled off and each dropped two 250-pound general purpose bombs. Next four other planes swished over the targets and each let go with four five-inch rockets.

The first formation returned to drop two 110-gallon napalm tanks each. After that, the second formation returned to blanket the area with a smoke screen.

The demonstration was used to show the fire power of tactical Air Force units and also to show how much is tied in with ground attacks.

Major Paul E. Coughlin of Pope Air Force base, Fort Bragg, N. C., was in charge of the show. His wife and sister-in-law, daughters of the late John W. Goodspeed, Sr., of Grand Rapids, were in the audience.

'The Philadelphia Story' Proves Happy Selection

Saugatuck—"The Philadelphia Story," a laugh-filled comedy on a sophisticated level, is a happy selection for the final presentation this season for the Saugatuck Summer Players.

Its first performance Friday night drew appreciative applause from first nighters, and little rough spots such as prompting detracted but little from the sparkling comedy based on one of Tracy Lord, a rather superior young lady about to embark on her second marriage.

The part of Tracy was well played by Pat Robertson of South Bend who appeared as Regina in the play house's last presentation of Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts." Miss Robertson was given strong support by John Corlick of Saugatuck as her ex-husband, and Maurice Kelly of Kalamazoo and Fran Funk of Saugatuck as the reporter-photographer team covering the fashionable wedding.

Bobbie Rudisill Grabs Top Honors In Turtle Derby

Jaycees-Sponsored Event Attracts 145 Ambling Turtles

Bobbie Rudisill was grand prize winner of the Junior Chamber of Commerce sponsored Turtle Derby Tuesday night under the lights at Riverview park.

Besides attracting an unexpected 145 entries, the derby lured several hundred spectators to the park, including a liberal scattering of adults mixed in with the maze of enthusiastic children.

Each turtle averaged between four and six inches in diameter. Entries were divided into six heats of 24 turtles each. Races were held on a specially marked canvas and the winner in each heat and the final race had to cross the outside circle line.

Young Rudisill was trainer of "Penny Days" and won the fifth heat in the fastest time of one minute and 45 seconds to qualify for the final race. His J. C. Penney Co. sponsored speedster then went on to win the final race and thereby win a brand, spanking new bicycle for Rudisill.

Second place in the final race went to Carolyn Koops and her turtle "Gorgeous George," sponsored by Koops Service. Her turtle won the second heat in the fastest time of the evening — one minute and two seconds — to earn a berth in the final race.

Other heat winners, their trainers and sponsors were: "Kandy Kid," Jane Van Tatenhove, Van's Candy Co., two minutes, 55 seconds.

"Bi-cuspid," David Masselink, Dr. H. J. Masselink, one minute, 30 seconds.

"Mobile Special," Donny Krone-meyer, Krone-meyer & Schippers, one minute, 30 seconds.

"20/20," Jimmy De Vries, Dr. H. G. De Vries, one minute, 32 seconds.

Children entering the park were presented with a helium-filled balloon with a string and card attached. Each child was supposed to fill out his or her name and address on the card, then release the balloon.

A total of 500 balloons were released, according to Jaycee President Ray Helder. Persons that find the balloons and attached cards are asked to send them to the Junior Chamber of Commerce and another prize will be awarded at the end of two weeks to the person whose name is on the balloon that traveled the furthest distance.

All proceeds from the colorful derby are earmarked for the Jaycees' community fund project.

Harbor Jottings

Harbormaster Chester Kramer reports:

Several persons have asked the history of the little patrol boat used by the harbormaster. The boat is about 50 years old. It was kept in one of the boatshouses that formerly lined the shore where the lake fishing boats now dock and in the vicinity of Phil Brooks' home.

In 1913, these boatshouses were torn down, and instead of removing the boats, they were simply weighted down, pushed into the lake, and sunk.

The Harbormaster's boat was one of these. About 10 years later, it was removed from the water by Peter Rank, who worked for many years as a handyman at Macatawa Park. When he removed it from the water, the old two-cylinder engine still had oil in the base and held lubricating oil in the head of the engine.

Rank removed that engine and put in a model A Ford engine, which still remains in the boat today. The boat was sold to Charles Bradford of Macatawa Park about five years ago, and the Port of Holland Authority purchased it from him this spring.

The harbormaster worked on the boat about two weeks, and now reports it running well and doing a splendid job.

Overheard at the yacht club Saturday: Some of the small boats were short crewmembers, and someone suggested that maybe the harbormaster would sail as a crewmember. The young lady skipper who needed a crew said, however, that she doubted if the harbormaster knew how to sail. He assured her that he did.

The Coast Guard towed in the 20-foot sloop Respite Saturday afternoon after the boat had been run aground about four miles north of Holland State Park. The boat had broken its rudder and the two men aboard put her on the beach because it was difficult to control in the heavy seas. The two men are making a trip around the lake in the small craft. The Respite now is being repaired.

Visitors: The Susann, Chicago, a 90-foot power yacht owned by a South Bend firm was brought into Lake Macatawa Monday for repairs. The boat will be taken south for the winter. The boat generally is tied up at Charlevoix during the summer. Five men crew the big boat.

The Snooze, a 45-foot cruiser, owned by Tom Stevens, Burnham Park, Chicago, entered the harbor during the week-end. The Snooze departed Monday morning on a trip North.

The Margot, 30-foot sloop owned by Tom Brown of Chicago, came in Monday night and will stay for a short visit.

The six dead-eye dicks shown above will represent the Holland police department in the 14th annual Michigan police shoot at Jackson on Aug. 29. The six Holland finalists held a final match Tuesday afternoon, with Sgt. Ralph Woldring posting the high score of 280 out of a possible 300. Woldring teamed with Sgt. Ernest Bear to win the class D championship for the last two years in a row. In 1950, Woldring and Bear shot 716 out of possible 800. In 1949, a second team of Sgt. Isaac De Kraker and Dennis Ende placed third in the state meet. Class D is for cities with less than 21 officers on the force. Shown left to right, with Tuesday's scores: Bear 258, Ende 251, Clarence Van Langevelde 231, Woldring 280, Henry Hoekman 225, and De Kraker 259. Three teams will go to Jackson this year, according to present plans, but how they will be grouped still isn't decided. The state meet is sponsored by the state police in cooperation with the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police and the Michigan Sheriff's association. (Sentinel photo)

Police Identify Strange Mr. 'X'

Grand Haven (UP)—An "Amnesia" victim found wandering last week in Grand Haven was identified Monday by state police as Ronald O. Schultz, 38, who fled the Traverse City State hospital June 3.

Schultz was suffering from malnutrition when taken into custody by Ottawa county Sheriff Gerald Vanderbeek.

State police fingerprint files in East Lansing were used to make the identification. Schultz was committed to the Traverse city institution from Chesaning on July 3, 1946, the department reported.

Schultz lived a "Robinson Crusoe" existence on an island in Grand river near Jensen where he was discovered last week.

He lived on turtles and marsh onions for three weeks before sheriff's officers found him and took him in custody.

Draws Term in Jail

Louis Volkema, 48, of route 4, was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail after pleading guilty Monday to charges of assault and battery. Volkema appeared before Municipal Judge Cornelius Vander Meulen. He was arrested by city police Sunday night on Lincoln Ave. His wife signed the complaint.

A German youth will come to Holland for a year as a "young ambassador" under an American Field Service International scholarship, it was learned Friday.

The program of exchanging "young ambassadors" on the secondary school level was begun about four years ago in co-operation with the National Preparatory School committee. Scholarships for young people of high school age were adopted since it was found those of older ages often stayed in this country, and the object of the program is to have the students return to their own countries.

Arrangements are being worked out locally by Willard C. Wichers of the Netherlands Information service, high school principal J. J. Riemersma and Supt. Walter Scott.

Tuition and school fees are arranged with the school and the AFSIS program pays $3 weekly allowance to the scholarship holder, in return for which the "young ambassador" is expected to do certain tasks in the home in which he will be living.

Wichers is seeking a home for the German youth who will arrive just before Labor day and leave next June. The household selected for the youth should be well adjusted, warm hearted and should have some experience with adolescents.

Local persons interested in entertaining such a youth for the next 10 months are asked to get in touch with Wichers.

Young people receiving scholarships must be from 16 to 18 years old, have better than average academic records, must be sufficiently mature, adaptable, serious of purpose and friendly.

Last year about 300 were involved in the program and this year 400 "young ambassadors" are expected in this country. They will come from France, Norway, Netherlands, Denmark, Finland, Belgium, West Germany, Luxembourg, Britain, and some South American countries. Americans also study in these countries under the program.

Lloyd Hollett, field representative for the program, was in Holland to assist with local arrangements.

Summer taxes total $759,953.91, of which $728,224.54 was paid before Aug. 15, Stoner added.

A two-per cent penalty is added from Aug. 15 until Sept. 10, at which time the unpaid taxes are spread on the fall tax roll with a six per cent penalty increase, he said.

Allegan Soil Tour Was Big Success

Fennville — The annual tour of the Allegan soil conservation district on Aug. 9 proved to be a day well spent for better than 40 fruit growers, dairy men, and beef cattle growers, according to Varun Dille, acting chairman of the district board.

Dille said that the three main features of the tour were pine tree growing and reforestation, fruit growing and culture under sod and cover crops, and management of grass land for pasture and hay.

The first stop of the tour at the Huyser farm in Laketown township, evidence of the importance of reforesting land unsuitable for growing crops other than timber or Christmas trees. Manuel Huyser, owner of the farm, first showed the members of the tour the district's pine transplant beds after which he led the group over his farm showing them his extensive tree planting which he has been carrying out for the last 10 years.

For the management of sod and cover in orchards, the tour stopped at the farms of Roy Van Dragt and Walter Wightman in Saugatuck township, Leo Tucker in Ganges township and Barden Bros. in Casco township. For pasture and hay management the group stopped at the Menzie farm in Glenn. This farm is being leased and operated by Walter Wightman and is managed entirely for grass land farming.

"The important point brought out throughout the day," said Dille, "was the importance of fertilizer and organic matter in conserving soil and growing better crops."

Wayland Pair Has Wrangle in Court

Allegan (Special) — A Wayland woman who claims her employer beat and bruised her without provocation and a Wayland man who claims self-defense have brought their troubles to the Allegan Circuit Court.

Miss Betty Korienek has filed suit against Charles Krizik for $2,000 damages on an assault and battery charge and for $13,000 in back wages she claims were earned in the past five years on the Krizik farm.

Miss Korienek claims Krizik attacked her and drove her from the farm on Aug. 3 after she had worked as housekeeper, assistant farm manager and laborer since May, 1946.

Krizik declares he never employed the former Chicago woman, that she came to the farm for the purpose of inducing him to marry her. He states he has a wife in Czechoslovakia.

The defendant further said he grabbed Miss Korienek's arm when she took $200 of his money, and she hit him with a flashlight. In self-defense, he says, he shoved her.

Blanket denial of Krizik's counter-charges were filed in Miss Korienek's behalf yesterday.

National Program On School Lunches Shows Increase

Michigan Benefits Equal New Record; Program Explained

By James Van Wagoner, Tutty of our Washington Bureau.

Washington—Some 300,000 children in Michigan benefited by the national school lunch program last year, the department of agriculture announced today.

That's an increase of about 1.5 per cent over the 1949-50 period and establishes a new state record.

The 52 million lunches served cost $6 million in Michigan, with federal support accounting for $2 million.

Throughout the country 84 million children participated. Sixty-seven per cent of the 14 billion lunches served were complete meals including at least one-third of a child's minimum daily requirements of nourishment. A half-pint of milk, two ounces of meat or poultry, three-fourths cup of vegetables or fruit, topped with bread and butter supply a single serving.

The government dished out $350 million to back the national program last year. The funds were divided up between the states on the basis of individual family income and the number of children of school age. This does not mean that each child is supported by the program, rather the children who cannot afford to pay for the entire meal are assisted. The participating schools are reimbursed, in part, according to the number of meals served.

The school lunch program is designed to improve the health and well-being of the nation's school students and expand the market for agricultural food commodities.

Pollutionists Plan Large Delegation For Local Meeting

Allegan (Special)—Allegan Anti-Pollutionists, chided for having raised their voices so late in the Kalamazoo river clean-up debate, promised action to a representative of the Water Resources commission Friday night.

Besides circulating petitions and getting data on pollution damage, the group planned a large delegation to the Sept. 25 meeting in Holland when the WRC will decide the future of the stream.

The only worry of some spokesmen was that the Holland facilities wouldn't be large enough to hold the Allegan district delegation.

Loren Oeming, chief engineer for the commission, who was speaker for the public meeting, said a turn-out of down stream residents would be welcome.

"We've been disappointed because we haven't heard from you long ago," he declared.

Oeming, outlining the commission's stand on paper mill and raw sewage dumping and its efforts to improve the river, gave Allegan residents a new slant of making the Kalamazoo as industrial river.

"Certainly we would classify it as an industrial stream. But our concept is far removed from your Kalamazoo—which is in far worse condition than any so-called industrial river."

"The Kalamazoo can serve industry by providing water supply, a certain amount of waste disposal, and still be useful for farming and recreation in the Allegan area. It doesn't need to be a sewer."

"In fact, our principal aim is to enhance your potential industrially. For unless controls are placed now, there's no hope of industry coming into the downstream communities."

"The water is too foul right now to be used for cooling or condensing in manufacturing. I say the river is only suitable to float a boat, and hardly that."

Oeming predicted that if the commission issues the final order in September forcing Kalamazoo area paper mills to take anti-pollution measures, Lake Allegan would be fit for swimming in a few years.

"Don't expect the Kalamazoo river will ever become a trout stream," he warned. "For the benefits of developing your recreational area, to attract industry, to be relieved of the foul odors, and get a few fish in the river, you can tolerate a certain amount of waste dumping in controlled amounts."

He said the commission's plan to cut the daily dumping of 180 tons of solids to perhaps 80 tons would allow the stream flow to carry off the excess without damage.

Oeming said the commission's Sept. 25 decision might not be the final word. He pointed out the possibility of the problem reaching the courts, or that those opposing the program might seek legislative action.

He said the commission took the position that it must hear both sides, but that the downstream receiving end of the pollution has been "taking it" in dead silence. Allegan's city manager Phillip Beauvais was appointed to the Kalamazoo river study committee, he said, at the commission's suggestion so that this area's viewpoints would be presented.

At this time of year—the waning days of the hollyhock season—little girls the country over strip their mother's gardens to make hollyhock ladies. A full blossom, turned upside down, makes a shining, graceful hoop skirt, while a bud is turned into a rosy-capped head. Busy making their family of dolls were Janice Orton and Martha Cheever of Allegan; but Martin Cheever paused only for a look en route to a baseball game.

By unanimous vote, the members instructed Chairman Guy Teed to arrange a local meeting for a caravan of delegates to the Holland session. Delegates from many organizations who have voted resolutions supporting the anti-pollution drive, will also be part of the group, it was decided.

Wendell Ball, Paw Paw, representing the Michigan United Conservation clubs, set the audience discussion going by declaring Allegan would miss its opportunity if it didn't rally now.

"Because we're sportsmen, we're interested in conservation. But the economic side of the question is the most important. The paper mills are still stalling and meantime the Kalamazoo is too thick to flow and too thin to plow," he declared.

Local residents were promised aid from Plainwell and Otsego members, and plans were made to alert Douglas and Saugatuck groups to the cause.

"If the pollution goes unabated, it will sometime reach Lake Michigan. It has now definitely contaminated Lake Allegan and how fast it moves downstream would depend on how fast the mills increase production," Oeming concluded.

New Operation At U of M May Increase Crops

$100,000 Loan Grant Made Research Possible For First Four Years

Ann Arbor—"Operation Tracer" at the University of Michigan may lead to increased yields and greater nutritional value in farm crops.

The research program, which has just been announced, has been made possible by a grant of $100,000 to the Michigan Memorial Phoenix project by Dearborn Motors Corp. The grant is designed to establish and finance the research for the first four years.

Centering the university's school of natural resources, "Operation Tracer" will seek more information on trace elements in the soil. Scientists know that the presence or absence of these elements—iron, boron, copper, zinc, manganese, molybdenum—is of tremendous importance to the growth of virtually everything humans eat. But beyond that little is known definitely.

"Operation Tracer" will attempt to discover how plants assimilate trace elements and to determine which elements, how much and in what form they should be applied in order to make such crops as corn, potatoes and wheat grow faster and better. The trees on the wood lot which should be a part of every farm also will be included in the study.

Although only small amounts of these trace elements are needed by plants, spectacular increases in yields have been obtained when they were added to deficient soils. Thomas A. Farrell, president of Dearborn Motors, pointed to the following:

Iron sulfate sprayed on soy beans in Iowa doubled the yield. Without zinc sulfate, sweet corn cannot be grown on some muck soils in Michigan. But yields of more than eight tons per acre are possible with the application of 100 pounds per acre.

In commenting on the Dearborn Motors Corp. grant for "Operation Tracer," University President Alexander G. Ruthven said, "The teamwork between an important industrial concern and a University research staff which is contemplated by the project is exactly the kind of mutually beneficial program that we envisioned when we launched the Phoenix project. That the study of tree and plant physiology should result in immense benefits to mankind will be the common goal toward which both of our institutions will strive."

Construction is expected to get underway in September.

Ottawa to Draft Ten in October

Ottawa county will send 10 draftees into the armed forces in October and Allegan county will send 15, according to an announcement today by Col. Glenn B. Arnold, state selective service director.

The two contingents will be part of 2,831 men who will be called for induction from Michigan draft boards.

Col. Arnold explained that Ottawa's quota is less than Allegan's because enlistments also are taken into consideration. Allegan has had fewer voluntary enlistments than Ottawa, hence its call is greater. For September, Col. Arnold said, the reverse was true. In addition, the October call was described as "sort of clean-up call in various age groups" according for minor fluctuations along the line.

The 10-man quota for Ottawa is said to be the lowest since the draft was resumed about a year ago.

At right is a Pierce Arrow, carrying its owners, Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Greiner of Springfield, Ohio. At left is a Packard, with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frei, also of Springfield, Ohio, aboard. The two

Two Tennis Stars Stop Opponents In Straight Sets

Joyce Alverson and Pete Paulus won the girls' and men's tennis titles for the city of Holland Thursday afternoon on the 21st St. courts.

Miss Alverson stopped Mary Sanger, 6-4, 6-2, in the finals Thursday, and by so doing will be the first tennis star to have her name engraved on the new girls division trophy.

Exo almost took the first set, when he had Paulus down 5-4 and nearly had set point. But Paulus rallied and went ahead to win the set.

Paulus is the second player of junior division age to win the traveling cup, and his name will be engraved on it as this year's champion. Roger Brunell, also a junior, won the trophy in 1949.

In girls under 15 doubles play, Miss Alverson teamed with the singles finalist she defeated Thursday, Miss Sanger, and the pair took the doubles trophy, 6-0, 6-0, from Sonja Bouwman and Nancy Moran. Misses Bouwman and Ploeg beat Marietta Vander Ploeg and Marcia Welch, 6-2, 6-2, to get into the finals.

Car Hits Bike At Intersection

Five-year-old Phillip John Van Ess had a cast on his fractured right leg Friday afternoon. The youth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Ess, 333 West 17th St., received the injury when he was struck by a car while riding his bicycle at the intersection of 16th St. and Van Raalte Ave.

Driver of the car was Frank A. Rennie of Detroit, who was traveling west on 16th St. Rennie told police he stopped at the intersection, let a truck turn left in front of him then started up. He said he was going about 10 miles an hour when he struck the bicycle on the west side of the intersection.

Rennie said he could not tell from which direction the boy came, but "all of a sudden he was right there in front of me." His car was not damaged.

The Van Ess boy was released from Holland hospital after treatment.

Big Trailer Spills Produce on Road

Allegan (Special)—Fruit salad by the bushelful was available on US-131 Friday morning to anyone who happened along from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m.

It was the result of a freak accident that tumbled a big semi-trailer into a ditch and dumped its load of produce all over the pavement. Traffic was slowed to one-way most of the night.

Potato sacks were soaked by watermelon juice, onions flavored bananas by close contact, oranges squeezed peaches, and tomatoes gushed liberally over the lot.

"It was a mess" summed up Deputy Roy Priest, who directed traffic while the truck owners cleaned up.

The truck was driven by Francis J. Braun, 27, Grand Rapids, for the Star Transfer Lines, Grand Rapids. As he passed Moline, driving south, his trailer came loose from the tractor, and dropped to the pavement, skidding into the left-hand ditch.

Saturday's Play Ends Three City Tennis Tournaments

The Women's division of the Recreation department's annual city tennis tournament ended Saturday when Barbara Stagg whacked out a decisive net triumph over her aunt, Mrs. Virginia Stagg, 6-4, 6-0.

The victory for Miss Stagg meant that she had retired the "traveling" trophy. Miss Stagg won all three years, thus earning the right to permanent possession. It had been donated to the Recreation department in 1949 by the First National bank.

Miss Stagg banged out her victory Saturday with some of the most vicious driving forehand shots ever seen on local courts. She whacked many of the softer shots of her aunt for outright placements.

After taking the singles trophy, Miss Stagg teamed with her aunt, and the two took the doubles trophy, thus ending play in that division by beating two of Holland's bright young stars, Mary Sanger and Joyce Alverson, 6-2, 6-0. The two youngsters were able to take many points during the match, but experience proved itself for the two Staggs.

Another tourney ended saw little Paul Dykema add laurels to his state honors with a 6-3, 6-2 final victory over Paul Mack in the boys under 15 division.

Dykema was state runner-up at Kalamazoo this year, and was on the doubles team that took the state crown during the same tourney. He is only 13, giving him more years to play in the boys division.

Dykema's win Saturday came as the result of playing good and intelligent tennis, and he was never in serious difficulty during the match.

In men's doubles play, Warren Exo and Ron Bos ended that division with a 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 triumph over Dr. Champion and Pete Paulus. This was the second consecutive year that Exo and Bos have taken the doubles trophy.

The winners took an early lead in the second set after winning the first easily. Then Paulus and Champion made a strong bid by coming back to capture the second set, but faded in the third to give the trophy to Exo and Bos.

It was commodore's night at Macatawa Bay Yacht club Saturday when the club's top officer and his predecessors were honored at the annual Commodore's Ball. The gala affair featured a dinner party followed by dancing to the music of De Forest Poole's orchestra.

Preceding the club house event, all the commodores and their wives gathered at a party given by Mr. and Mrs. Phillips Brooks and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Van Domelen, Jr., Chester Van Tongeren, A. W. Tahaney, Phillips Brooks, Lester F. Harrett and O. W. Lowry. (Hollis S. Baker is absent from the photo.)

This 45-foot Swedish yacht 'Elly' here illustrates the 'twin-wing' sail principle that has made the Ljungstrom boat famous. Owned by Carl Fox of Chicago, the Elly probably will compete in the Macatawa to White Lake race Friday. (Sentinel photo)
