Six Letterwinners Return; Depth Will Be Problem

Holland High football candidates were welcomed Tuesday night in a pre-season meeting and Friday the boys will have physicals and pick up equipment.

Then the heavy work will start right out Monday at 9 a.m. with the first workout.

The second will follow at 1:30 p.m. Monday and it will be two-a-days for the next week. The Dutch will have one session Labor Day and then Tuesday, Sept. 4 will begin the one-a-day 2:30 p.m. workouts.

Coach Dale Shearer, starting his fifth year as Holland High head coach, will have Bill Hinga and Ernie Post assisting again this year.

Hinga will handle the backfield and Post the line. Both held similar jobs last year. Shearer will coach the ends.

Looking over the faces Shearer expects that the problem this year, one that has plagued the Dutch, will be that of depth.

Shearer is crossing his fingers that the juniors, up from the reserve team, will come through.

Holland has six lettermen back and that's about it. From there on, the prospects appear "pretty thin."

Shearer has quite a few good-sized, fast backs and he may convert some of them into tackles and guards.

Leading the Dutch will be Wes Kuyers, a 5'10", 170 pound full-back who played mostly defense last year and Ted Van Zanden, a rugged 6'1", 180 - pound guard, who also played a lot of defense.

These boys are co-captains and are expected to do a big job.

Tom Aye, 6'2", 185 pound center, is another senior letterman who saw action last season but not as a regular.

Allan Hill, bulky 6', 225 - pound tackle and probably the biggest man on the squad, is a letterman tackle counted on to fill up a big hole in the line.

Dale Streicher, 5'11", 190 - pound senior end, who looked good on defense in 1955 will go both ways this fall. Fast, it is hoped Streicher works into a good pass receiver.

Tom Stael, a 155 - pound senior quarterback, was the regular signal caller last year and is counted on to run the Dutch again this year.

Two other lettermen, Log Ramsey and Norm Hoeve, both second string halfbacks last year, have decided not to play football this year.

The rest of the candidates are non-lettering members of the varsity and reserve team members from last year.

And from this group, Shearer hopes to pick his team.

End prospects who look most promising include Larry Alderink, Ed Van Eenennaam, Bill Boeve, John Winter, Dale Dams, and Gary Gibbons.

Paul Diepenhorst and Laverne Bronkema are expected to be fighting for tackle jobs.

With Van Zanden at guard, Jack Scully and Don Pitcher are the top choices while Tom Buis, a tackle on the reserves has been made a center along with Larry Van Wieren and they will push Aye.

Reserve quarterback Paul Elenbaas is expected to back up Stael while Bob Bolks, Keith Bosch, Joel Howard and Ron Kuyers, all up from the reserves, are the leading halfback candidates.

Jim Botsis, Bob Stael and Bruce Van Leuven, other reserves, will be battling for fullback behind Wes Kuyers.

Holland opens the season Saturday, Sept. 15 against traditional first - game foe, Grand Rapids Cretson at Houseman Field at 7:45 p.m.

All of the home games will start at 7:30 p.m. this year at River-view Park. Previously games had started at 8 p.m.

Tri-Cities Chest Boosts

New Budget by $13,000

GRAND HAVEN (Special)—The Tri-Cities Community Chest, at a meeting Wednesday night, adopted a tentative budget for 1956-1957 of $34,000. This is an increase of $13,000 over last year.

The large item is $12,000 to the Red Cross, which is coming for the first time, although it has been a part of the matching fund campaign for several years. Increases will also be given to the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the United Health and Welfare and the Muskegon Area Child Guidance Clinic.

Paul Ottman is the chairman of the drive and James Scott is the vice-chairman.

Car Rolls Over

GRAND HAVEN (Special)—State police issued a ticket for driving with excess speed under existing conditions to Joyce Wiersma, 18, of Grand Haven Wednesday after she rolled her car over on Lake Shore Dr., south of Grand Haven early Wednesday morning. Miss Wiersma was not seriously injured, but damage estimated at $1,000 was done to her 1955 model car.

AUCTIONEERS—These three children raised $18.30 for the Library Building Fund last week by holding an auction in the John J. Mrok, Jr., garage at 266 West 24th St. They contributed the money to the "1,000,000-Penny" Fund, which will be presented to the City Council by the children of the community and the Greater Holland Community Foundation for the purpose of building a new library. Left to right are: Frances Helen Mrok, 6, the junior manager; Mary Ellen Mrok, 13, the senior manager and Jim Grossman, 12, the auctioneer.

Children Hold Auction To Boost New Library

Thanks to the $18.30 contributed last week by the latest scheme children have devised, the "1,000,000-Penny" Library Building Fund now stands at 35,000 pennies, or $350.

The newest money-raiser is an auction, held Aug. 9 by Jim Grossman and Frances and Mary Ellen Mrok. The children sold dishes, handkerchieves, gloves, toys and antiques to the highest bidders among some 75 guests in the Mrok garage at 266 West 24th St.

The money was turned over to Mrs. Hazel Hayes, head librarian at the City Library, last Saturday morning. Mrs. Hayes filed their sign advertising the auction to her collection of projects children in the elementary schools have done.

Among the projects is a calendar with a penny attached for every day in the year, a drawing of a huge tree loaded with fruit in the form of pennies and a one-dollar bill earned by pupils who marched in the Tulip Time parade.

Large fishbowls are displayed in the library to encourage individual donations in addition to the children's efforts. Mrs. Hayes reported that the bowls she has are filling up, and that her main need now is for more fishbowls.

Mrs. Hanyes said the overall aim of the penny drive is to raise $10,000 which the children, with the Greater Holland Community Foundation would present to City Council. She said the Council has been asked by children to consider financing the rest of the building if they raised the initial sum. Estimated cost of the planned one-story building is $250,000.

Present library facilities will be unable to house the books within two years, she said. The library now has 32,688 books in stock, about half of the American Library Association recommendation for a city of Holland's size. Library standards call for two and a half books per person, or about 65,000 for the Holland area.

The "1,000,000-Penny drive should be completed by Oct. 31, Mrs. Hayes said. She expects activity to increase when school starts again and when children are able to begin canvassing neighborhoods selling paper bricks at a dollar apiece. Council has granted permission for the solicitation. Schools in the entire community, not just within the city will be participating, she said.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Hayes is impressed by the children. "Considering, it is summertime, the job the children have done has been marvelous, and their enthusiasm is magnificent," she said.

Egyptian Chemist Visits Holland

"Holland beaches with their beautiful clean environment bring to my mind the magnificent scenery of Switzerland," said Dr. El-Ahmadi Heiba, Egyptian chemist, who is visiting the United States on a post-doctorate fellowship from the University of Michigan.

Heiba, who earned his Ph. D. in chemistry from London University, visited Holland Monday through his trip to North Michigan to see Prof. L. C. Anderson, chairman of Chemistry department at the University of Michigan.

The Holland Sentinel which he visited in the afternoon was among the places that left a great impact on him as "a distinguished local newspaper and well-equipped from the journalistic point of view."

"I have heard about Holland as a summer resort," said Mrs. Heiba, a German who recently came to this country, "but I am sure now that reality is more than what I had anticipated."

Heiba is fascinated by "the friendly and generous attitude of the people in Holland and the cleanliness of the city."

The Egyptian chemist who visited all the countries of Western Europe is now conducting studies and research on the effect of gamma radiation on chemical reactions. This work is performed in the new Phoenix Building attached to the North Campus of University of Michigan.

He believes that the Phoenix project "is the biggest private research center run by a non-state university throughout the world to carry fundamental research in making use of the atomic energy which will be the future power source."

Many individuals, private enterprises and industrial firms in the State of Michigan contributed toward cost of the huge project which includes among its staff two doctors from India and Egypt.

The ball, which will be the 40th held in Saugatuck, will be the high point of art week which extends through Labor Day under sponsorship of the Saugatuck-Douglas Art club, a group of both resident, professional artists and amateurs. The club is also holding its annual exhibit in the gallery in the village hall.

The local griddler will lead 61 Michigan aspirants in drills Saturday, Sept. 1 and then the annual fall grind will be on.

And Maentz, like all of the Michigan grid d e r s, hopes that grind won't end until they've tucked away a conference championship and then the big plum, a victory in the Rose Bowl.

Maentz plans to workout about an hour and a half a day the rest of this week and through Thursday next week. He's practicing at the 22nd St. field.

He'll leave here Friday morning and will report in the afternoon for the annual "press day."

Maentz figures the toughest foes will be Michigan State, Ohio State and Illinois.

"We're thinking of that conference championship most of all and of course if we win that then it's the Rose Bowl," Maentz said.

"I notice where we're picked by most writers to finish third in the Big Ten. But if we avoid personal injuries, materialwise, I think we've got it and could win the championship."

Maentz could well include himself in the "injuries" list. The last two years he has had to miss games because of injuries.

"I'm all set right now and I hope I can go through without anything this year."

Maentz will report weighing 215 but he expects the early two-day workouts to cut him down to a playing weight of 210. He stands 6'3".

Maentz returned to Holland Monday after completing the summer session.

He has been thinking about attending law school following graduation in June, 1956 and decided to take the additional work this summer.

It depends on what kind of a season he has this year as to whether he takes a crack at the pros.

Maentz will be anchored at his right end post and he expects Ron Kramer to play the other flanker.

"I figured when spring practice closed Ron would play end and then some at right half, if needed," Maentz said.

TWO LIVED THROUGH THIS—A Zeeland couple somehow escaped with only minor injuries Thursday night when their station wagon was struck from behind by a semi at US-31 and M-21. Mrs. Cynthia Kollen, 30, of 42 East Central Ave., Zeeland, is in Zeeland Community Hospital with head lacerations and bruises. Her husband, Benjamin, 33, was also hospitalized with similar injuries. Ottawa County deputy Bud Gysen (left) said Allen Harold, 29, South Haven, told him the brakes on his northbound semi failed. He struck the Kollen vehicle which smashed into another car which hit a third car. Operators of the other cars were James Carboneau, 27, Grand Rapids and William Chambers, 37, East Grand Rapids. All the vehicles were northbound and the three cars were just preparing to enter the intersection. Gysen estimated damage to the two cars and semi at $1,300. What was left of the Kollen vehicle was junk. The Holland Township fire department was also called out when gasoline spilled from the car. Several Zeeland officers assisted directing traffic. Beaux Arts Ball Scheduled Friday

SAUGATUCK (Special)—Throughout most of the summer season you'll find—at the most—only about 200 artists, working and studying in this famed summer art center, but for one night at least, everyone gets into the act.

It is the night of the Beaux Arts Ball, traditional highlight of Saugatuck's summer season which, this year, will be held Friday night in the Big Pavilion under joint sponsorship of the Saugatuck Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Summer School of Painting.

Friday night's ball will be based on the theme of "Pirates" and the replica of a huge ship is being constructed inside the pavilion. The ship will be complete with a "brig" into which will be cast those who fail to appear in costume. Fines levied against those not in costume will be used to help defray expenses of the ball.

The ball, which will be the 40th held in Saugatuck, will be the high point of art week which extends through Labor Day under sponsorship of the Saugatuck-Douglas Art club, a group of both resident, professional artists and amateurs. Board Defers Action On Medical Facility

ALLEGAN (Special)—Hoping to get more information on lower cost building plans, Allegan County Supervisors once again postponed action on the proposed million-dollar care facility at a special meeting Tuesday.

A resolution proposing a special election Nov. 6 for the purpose of voting on the required million dollar bond issue and a 1½ mill increase in the county tax limitation for a period of 20 years was defeated by a 2-5 vote.

The special medical care facility committee indicated it still wanted time to study lower cost plans being used in Van Buren and Barry counties.

The board voted to meet again Sept. 7 at which time action must be taken or it would be too late to get the bonding-proposal on the Nov. 6 election ballot.

Moose Moves Up Into Fifth; VFW Wins Exhibition

The Moose took a hold on fifth place Tuesday night in City Softball League action with an 8-3 win over Raphael at Van Tongeren Field.

The win gives the Moose a 10-15 season's mark and leaves Raphael with a 6-19 record.

In the other game, the VFW walloped the Grand Rapids Catholic Vets, 11-0 in an exhibition game.

Luna Veldman, hurling for the local nine, pitched a two-hitter. In the opener, each team scored one run in the first inning. Don Huist walked and came home on a passed ball for the Moose and Herb Maatman homered for Raphael.

The Moose took over in the second inning with five runs on only one hit, a long double by Fred Handberg, scoring three runs, plus five walks, a couple of wild pitches and an error.

The final two runs were added in the third. Stu Baker's single pushed across Jim Doornweerd and Bill Zyk, who had walked. Jerry Prince led off the Raphael fifth with a home run and Mel Koenes, hit by a pitched ball, came home on an error after being advanced on Stan Wlodarczyk's single.

The winners only made three hits but all the walks, errors, wild pitches and passed balls made the difference.

Raphael slapped out seven hits with Mastarm, Koenes, Wlodarczyk each had two and Prince one.

Baker, Jas De Vries and Handberg made the Moose hits.

Don't Dump Those Lawn Clippings at the Curbs!

City Manager Herb Holt today reminded local residents that it's against the law to dump lawn clippings, etc. at the curbs in the city.

Recently there have been cases where such clippings and other junk have been dumped at the curbs and when it rains, such as during last night, the stuff clogs the sewers.

"It's a big headache for our crews when the sewers get clogged," Holt said.

YOUTH

Youth is being raised to a pinnacle of idealization in the current political campaign that must make the several million newest voters a little dizzy. The old politicians with polished domes and artificial teeth are telling the world that their party must lean on youth.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who has always had a good intuitive sense of the beat of the nation's pulse, even made that idea the theme of her speech to the recent Democratic convention. And both Republicans and Democrats have echoed the idea to the point almost of its becoming monotonous.

But as so often happens with platitudes, the idea is both true and desirable. The party that does not appeal to youth is almost certain to be on the skids. The ideas and ideals of yesterday will not permanently serve the needs of today.

The old-timers who run the show invariably live in the past. If Democrats, they are sure to call upon the names of Jefferson and Jackson and Woodrow Wilson and Franklin Roosevelt; if Republicans, they are just as sure to appeal to the memories of Hamilton and Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. By implication they would solve all the problems of today in terms of the precepts enunciated by those former statesmen who now lie peacefully in their graves.

But youth, living in the present, knows intuitively that those oldtimers cannot be depended upon to cope with the problems of today. Those men, many of them, were youngsters when they developed their political wisdom and techniques. Most of them are remembered today for the simple reason that they were not afraid to refuse the dictates of the oldtimers of their own day and strike out for themselves.

All those old statesmen of the past deserve the honor that clusters around their names. They represented the best of America of their own day. Democratic and Republican; and they are the heritage of both Democrats and Republicans of today. The Republicans own Jefferson and Jackson and Wilson as much as do the Democrats; and the Democrats own Hamilton and Lincoln as much as do the Republicans.

But today is a new page, a new chapter, in the Book of America. And youth is better able to read it than the party oldsters who have become set in their ways. The appeal to youth is wholesome for both parties. We need to have more young people busy. Idle hands create many problems for old and young alike. Mr. Hoover believes in more work. So do we.

Park Attendance Passes 1,000,000

Season attendance at the Holland State Park passed the one million mark during the weekend, although the cool and rainy weather held the crowds down Saturday and Sunday.

Only 23,149 people visited the beach on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, but they were enough to push the summer total to 1,035,071. Friday's attendance was 8,691, Saturday's 6,821 and Sunday's 7,637. Park officials said that the heaviest activity was in the middle of the week, before the weather cooled off. Total attendance for the week was 57,900.

Marketplaces of Significance
Matthew 20:3-7; Mark 12:38-40;
Acts 16:19-21

by Darrell Franken

To the leader: School is a marketplace. It is the place where individuals receive that merchandise called "knowledge", which has been purchased through the taxes your parents pay. The apostle Paul spent a lot of time in the marketplace of the Roman Empire, speaking with men of his wisdom and intelligence. Youth also spent a lot of time in their marketplace—the school, talking to their friends. As youth you can be influential as Paul was, if you will use some of your words to tell others about your church, your denomination and your faith.

Idea for Your Meeting

1. Invite your minister to speak to you about witnessing. Have him show you exactly how you might witness to different types of people in different circumstances. You could give him The Christian Endeavor World to use as a guide for a short meditation, or let him discuss it as he wished.

2. Another way of learning to understand how to witness in the marketplace is through group discussion. You might discuss the question: "How does one witness among school friends?"

If you decide to have a discussion type of meeting, and you have a group of 20 or less, try sitting in a circle. When this is done everyone has a better chance to participate, because no one has his or her back turned to another person. It has been proven many times and in many places that if the group sits in a circle everyone will feel more like offering comments or asking questions. You may also like to try sitting around a table.

In a discussion meeting be sure to have several questions ready to stimulate your group's thinking.

Here are some questions about witnessing in school—a teen-ager's marketplace. How do you show someone else that you are a Christian? Why isn't it enough just being a shining light? What can you say to them? What do you do if they laugh at your Christian comments? Won't you lose friends if you show you are a Christian? If non-Christians don't like you what should you do?

School is a teen-ager's marketplace. What are you going to do while you are there?

Advantages of Discussion

Most discussion type meetings fail for two reasons. (1) Pains are not taken to create the right set-up or atmosphere for it. That is why it was suggested above to sit so that all are facing each other. (2) Very often too, they fail because the issue they are trying to discuss is not vital enough. For example, it is much more difficult to have a lively discussion on Missions in Asia than it is to have a discussion that comes as close to home as witnessing in our marketplaces.

Here is a list of the advantages of a Discussion type meeting.

1. It encourages more people to participate.
2. It trains people to think and speak constructively.
3. It incorporates each one's personal experience as an illustration.
4. It gets people involved, resulting in personal benefit.
5. It is geared to the level of understanding of the group.
6. It is democratic and group-centered.
7. Those participating are more ready to accept the solutions of the problem if they had a hand in making them.

Peter Bol Faces Two More Months Of Total Darkness in Antarctica

ANTARCTICA — Navy Chaplain Lt. Comdr. Peter Bol, who still considers Holland, Mich., his home town, is living in weather quite different from the warm summer breezes that sweep western Michigan these days.

Chaplain Bol is with men of the Navy's Special Mobile Construction Battalion spending the long winter night in Antarctica approaching two more months of total darkness with temperatures dropping as low as 80 degrees below zero and with winds reaching velocities of up to 100 miles an hour.

Last word the family in Michigan heard from Chaplain Bol was a birthday greeting received through a Red Cross telegram last Aug. 4 on the birthday anniversary of his father, Martin Bol, currently living in Spring Lake. During the roughest period of the 18-month sojourn in Antarctica, there is no mail service or communication other than by telegraph or short wave.

Mail service should resume in October or November, the family was informed.

Chaplain Bol has a sister, Mrs. Hollis Northuis, and two brothers, Jake and Andy, in Holland, and another brother, John, in Grand Rapids. His wife, the former Frances De Pree of Holland, and their son, Michael, are living in Arcadia, Calif., not far from Los Angeles.

Chaplain Bol, a graduate of Hope College and New Brunswick Theological Seminary, is with the wintering-over group at Little America-3 on Kainan Bay in Antarctica. Little America is the main science station for the International Geophysical Year on the world's southernmost continent. Personnel stationed at this remote base are all volunteers. After passing rigid physical tests they accompanied ships of Task Force 43 to the Antarctic last fall and began construction of the stations during the short Antarctic summer.

When ships left the Antarctic last March, Seabees stayed behind to finish construction of the base at Little America and to prepare equipment and supplies for the tractor train operations scheduled next October. These tractor train operations will be climaxed with the building of Byrd Station in Marie Byrd Land at 80 degrees S, 120 degrees W.

Men of the Special Mobile Construction Battalion will return to the United States upon completion of the second phase of Operation Deepfreeze, the Navy's support mission for the International Geophysical Year 1956-58.

In all, the personnel will spend 18 months away from the continental United States; almost 15 months of it in the continent of Antarctica, and five months of that time in total darkness.

When tornadoes hit Western Michigan last April, Chaplain Bol was one of the first outsiders to communicate with relatives here to determine whether his family was safe.

Rotarians Hear Talk on Israel

H. J. Bylan, president of the Great Lakes Region of American Hebrew Congregations, was the speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon at Castle Park Thursday.

In his speech on "Freedom of Heartbeat in the Middle East," the Rotarian emphasized that he "is not going to praise Jews or bury Arabs" but give factual information as "an American interested in democracy and peace."

The scholar who had almost toured the world in successive visits to Europe, South America, Egypt, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Lebanon and Israel summed up basic causes for the present turmoil in the Middle East.

"The vast oil reserves which the West wants to acquire and the East wants to dominate," he said, "is the most important cause of disputes in the area." Russia's efforts to Communize Arabs strengthened by social structure, ignorance, and prevailing disease are also potent factors in the existing conflict.

Bylan is of the idea that the endeavors of the west to transplant democracy in an area still retaining a medieval mentality are also to be blamed for such disturbances in the Arab world.

The speaker gave a bird's eye view about the social situation in Israel and a full background about sufferings inflicted by Hitler on Jews. He drew a lively portrait of the Jews crowded in trains on their way to gas chambers. He expressed most satisfaction that they have returned to their promised land.

Bylan expressed hope that the "very undesirable, regrettable, and unfortunate incidents of the borders between Israel and Arab countries would come to a halt and that the maritime blockade against Israel would be ended. He showed great sympathy towards the refugees in the displaced persons camps, and hoped that they would find some permanent solution for their acute problem.

Four possible solutions Bylan suggested for a fair settlement between Arabs and Israelis:

- 1) Both sides should have genuine desire for peace to enable the United Nations to find a permanent solution;
- 2) Israel should be granted by the West more arms and a security pact;
- 3) The problem of the displaced persons in camps should be solved as quickly as possible, giving them as well as the Arab countries living with the West more economic aid;
- 4) Water projects on Jordan River should be carried out for the benefit of both Israeli and Arabs.

John A. Collins, District Governor, introduced the speaker to the group advocating the importance of cooperation and understanding between nations which will make a more peaceful world.

It is estimated that one-sixth of the rain that falls on the United States is absorbed by vegetation or sinks into the ground.

Strength Through Trial
James 1:2-18
By C. P. Dame

(Based on copyrighted outlines produced by the Division of Christian Education, National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. and used by permission.)
A lesson such as this one is for every one for we all meet trials and troubles in life. The person who thinks that Christians do not have difficulties in life is greatly mistaken. It is through trials that strength is gained.

I. Life's trials test. The next three lessons are from the Letter of James, the brother of Jesus. He grew up with Jesus in the home in Nazareth but he did not become a disciple until after the resurrection of Jesus. For about twenty years he was the leader in the church in Jerusalem where he was held in high esteem and became known as "the Just." At the Apostolic Conference held in Jerusalem in regard to admitting Gentiles James fanatics in A.D. 62. This letter is addressed to "the twelve tribes which are of the Dispersion"—the Jews who were scattered throughout the Roman Empire. It was written about the year 50 A.D. Its teaching is decidedly practical.

James tells his readers to count it all joy when they fall into various temptations. The word "temptations" as used by James sometimes means trials and at other times the solicitation to do evil. In the first verse it means trials. The reason why believers should rejoice in trials is because they teach us patience. It is by the trials of life that we learn to know the strength of our faith. We become perfected in character through life's trials. We reach spiritual maturity only through discipline. Light loads do not cause strong muscles.

II. Prayer helps the Christian. Times of trial call for wisdom. It takes wisdom to see the benefits that come from trials. God can give us this wisdom and therefore we should ask God to give it to us. There are various ways of asking. We should ask in faith. James calls a wavering Christian "double-minded"—he describes him as being unstable.

Trials do good to both rich and poor. Most of the early Christians were poor. James tells the Christians of low degree to rejoice in the fact that he has been exalted to a high estate on becoming children of God. What about the rich man? Faith in Christ gives to him the spirit of humility and lowliness. Whether a Christian is poor or rich he is blessed through his faith which makes it possible for him to overcome life's circumstances.

III. God does not tempt any one. James calls the man blessed who endures temptations—that is trials. James makes it clear that God does not tempt any one to do evil. We are born with physical appetites, the desire for possessions, the sex urge, the ambition to achieve and these things are not evil in themselves but they may lead to evil when uncontrolled. God calls upon all tempted people to fight and do the right and shun the wrong. God stands ready to help those who face temptations and cause them to conquer.

1. Some prosperous fathers blunder when they withhold all troubles from their children.
2. God wants his children to be disciplined.
3. God promises rewards to conquerors.
4. Every person is responsible for his temptations.
5. Trials make us either bitter or better.
6. We should always strive to do God's will.

Ex-Major Leaguer Directs Legion Baseball Program

Although Lou Brissie, director of American legion baseball throughout the nation won't be in attendance at the All-Star game here Thursday night, the terrific impact he has made on selling the program around the country will be felt.

Brissie, the hulking former pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics and Cleveland Indians, has under his wing the largest single youth sports program in the country.

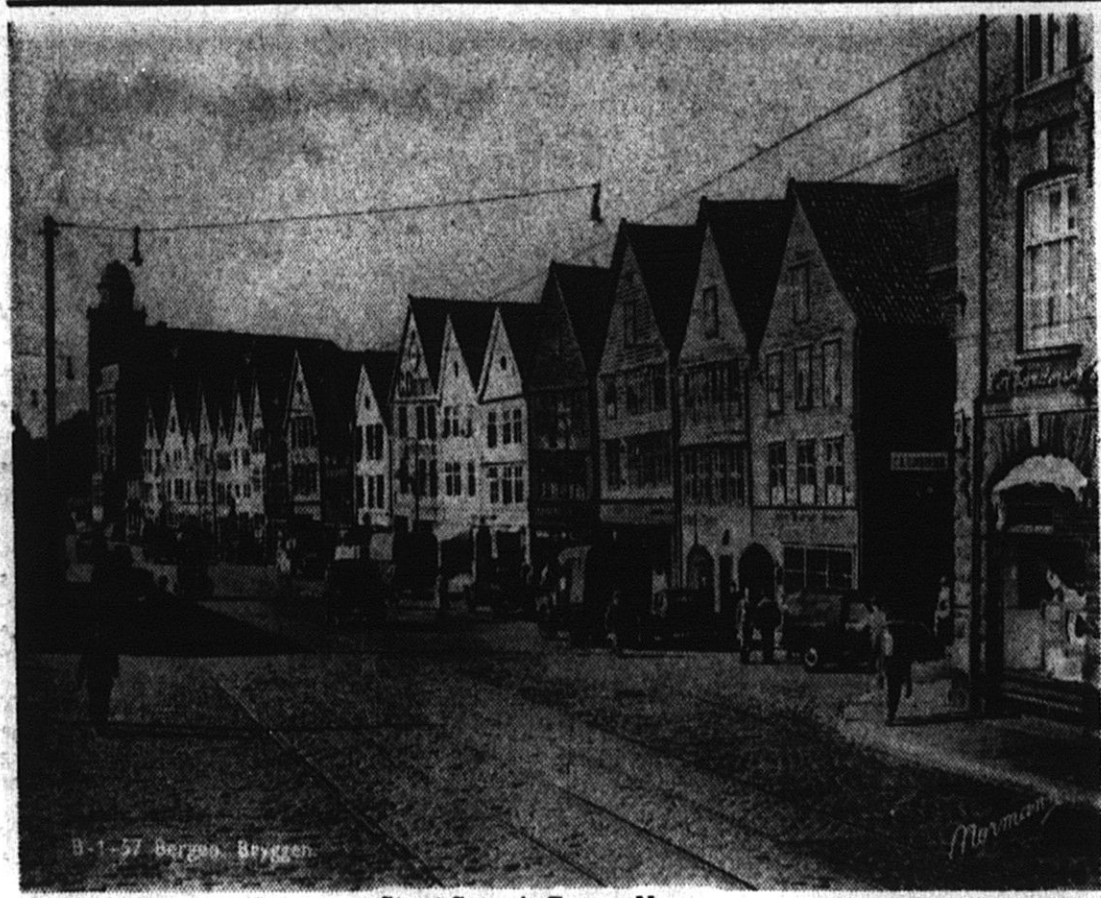

Right now more than 17,000 teams, not counting Little League and Babe Ruth groups, involving about one million kids come under Brissie's jurisdiction.

A couple of those teams are slated to meet in the All-Star game here.

The Holland nine to 12-year-olds will face a similar unit from Fremont at 7:30 p.m. at Riverview Park.

Donations here will go toward construction of a couple Little League fields at the 19th St. diamond.

Street Scene in Bergen, Norway

Tours Through Fjords in Norway Offer Tourists Beautiful Scenes

Matt Wilson
We left Tromsø, Norway on a steamship through the fjord to Bergen and I took a picture of the midnight sun at 12:35 a.m. Many Boy Scouts, looking very clean and neat, with their knapsacks, bed rolls and other camping accessories came aboard and at every stop to Bergen others came on until we had 199 with scoutmasters.

They were to attend a big jamboree at a town some distance from Bergen and later we saw the camp which had more than 7,000 Scouts from eight or nine countries including the U. S. and Canada. The only trouble was that they had no cabins and as a result they had to sleep on the decks, and with only four or five washrooms with toilets aboard it sort of complicated things in the morning. The boys were nice looking and well behaved and this was a real experience for them since most people seldom travel more than a few miles from their home towns or farms.

The fjords, or inlets, from the sea are several thousand feet deep and any ocean liner can navigate through them. As a result, there are many cruises that take in the fjords and travel many miles up them. From the edge of the water the land goes up quite abruptly to mountains which are several thousand feet in height. As you can imagine, the scenery is magnificent.

With so much rocky land and mountains, the farms are all found clustered along the edge of the water and there is not much land to work. The main crops seem to be hay and potatoes. The hay is cut by scythes and anyone who can handle a rake is out raking the grass into rows. Then this is carried by hand to wires strung between posts and hung there to dry.

It is so damp that if it is left to dry on the ground as in the U. S., it will rot. The hay is put into barns and is used to feed cattle during their long and dark winters. Milk is the final product. In order to supplement their income, many farmers are also fishermen and catch herring, sardines (for which Norway is famous) and salmon. Farmers along the lake regions, where there are no salt water fish, take to lumbering as their side line.

We got off the ship at many of its stops, but Tromsø was the most interesting place between Tromsø and Bergen. It is the third largest city in Norway and it is where the present King Haakon was crowned in 1907 when Norway separated from Sweden. Since Norway had no line of royal succession, the Norwegians went to Denmark and asked for a ruler from their royal family to become the king of Norway. Prince Haakon accepted, providing that the Norwegian people have a secret ballot to see if all of them wanted him for their king. This was done. In accepting their offer, he took a Norwegian name and his young son did likewise.

Tromsø is another medieval city with a cathedral which dates back to 100 A. D. The older portion is pure Norman style with all its austerity, but then as French and English workmen were hired to complete the cathedral, the narrow pointed windows and door arches became apparent. It is not quite Gothic, but similar to it. This church would be an architect's or artist's paradise. It has magnificent carved stone work, stone filigree of heads of animals, lovely stained glass and a beautiful altar. The churches, which were formerly Catholic, are now Lutheran. We walked miles through Tromsø's old and narrow streets and were surprised at the very modern and well-stocked stores in the business section.

Arriving in Bergen, we spent the morning doing the various things which pile up on a five or six day trip. In the afternoon we took a short bus trip to the home of Edvard Grieg whose music exemplifies the country of Norway with its lakes, mountains, fjords, woods and streams. Although his early life was a hard struggle for recognition, he lived to become famous and to enjoy many years free from want. His home became a mecca for visiting musicians, composers and artists. Ole Bull, the great Norwegian violinist, was the first to recognize Grieg's ability and helped him to success.

Throughout Norway, there are a number of very old, wooden churches known as "Stave churches" because of their construction. They are quite small and today they have been removed from their original sites so that they are more secure from fire hazards. They date from 1050 A. D. and are built of small staves of wood which overlap and soar up into a sharp top. All of the work was done by hand and the eaves are carved to represent some weird animal to frighten away the devil. There is only a small window near the roof so that no evil spirits can come in. One church had a small opening through which Communion was passed to the lepers who were not allowed within the church. Incidentally, there is a Leper Hospital in Bergen where Dr. Hansen worked and today the disease is known as Hansen's disease.

Along the waterfront are museums preserving the buildings of the Hanseatic League. This league was formed by German merchants in the 15th century to protect themselves against pirates. They fortified this part of the town and erected vast storehouses holding grain, spices, furs, cloth, silks, wines and liquors. In addition, the buildings were used as sales and sample rooms, as well as living quarters for the master and his apprentices. The apprentices were treated almost like animals. They were poorly fed and clothed and they were beaten for infractions of the laws of the master. At night they were locked in the closets which held the beds.

In time the merchants became so strong that they ruled Bergen. They cheated whenever they could and in buying fish from the sailors, they used short weights on the scales. The sailors, in turn, became smart so they would fill the fish with stones or water. This sort of reminds me of the scandal a few years ago when some poultry merchants in Chicago injected water under the skins of the turkeys before deep-freezing them.

We left Bergen on Bennett's six-day fjord tour, which we felt ranks as one of our finest tour experiences. This tour, which was partly by bus, owed its success largely to an extremely fine young woman who was the tour director and also to a fine, careful driver. There was a very nice group of 20 Americans. Our luggage was always delivered to our rooms without having to worry about it or look for it. Stops were made every morning for coffee and cakes and in the afternoon for tea. The meals and hotel accommodations were superb. American hotel managers could learn a lot about cleanliness, friendliness and courtesy from these innkeepers. The meals were excellent and more than ample and they varied a lot at each stop. We had delicious strawberries, raspberries and cherries. In addition to the inevitable boiled potatoes we now had other vegetables. The fresh brook trout were delicious and we had them boiled with drawn butter one day and baked in butter another day.

The scenery changed each day and we traveled fjords, sailed on them and crossed high mountains with lots of snow and frozen lakes. The skiing is good only in July and August because of very high winds in the winter. We saw hundreds of rivers, lakes and beautiful waterfalls. At Leon we visited the Kendall Glacier and had a little picnic with our guide and chaffeur serving us raw salted or smoked lamb. We were taught several Norwegian folk songs and that night we saw some Norwegian dances. The last part of the trip was through broad, green valleys and rich farmland. Arriving in Oslo in early evening, we concluded this delightful journey.

Oslo, the largest city and the capital also dates from 1200 A. D. but many of its old buildings were destroyed during the German invasion but they are being restored. This is a very modern and interesting city. Frogner Park and the Vigeland Statues are outstanding. Tours also included a museum of Viking ships, the S. S. Fram, used for Polar explorations and the Kon-Tiki raft.

225 Kids Brave Rain to Catch Fish in Rodeo

More than 225 Holland area youngsters took part in the third annual fishing rodeo Saturday afternoon at Kollen Park and caught a record number of 30 fish, including eight different species.

The intermittent rain, which caused the event to start one-half hour late, didn't bother the youngsters and they went at it in many kinds of rain regalia.

Danny Dorn, a 12-year-old, was successful in catching the first fish, a 15 1/2-ounce sheepshead while Gerry Van Gelderen, 15, caught the largest fish, a 26-ounce sheepshead.

Jerry Van Wieren, 13, caught a 30-ounce sheepshead for the second largest fish and Dorn was third. Ruth Hornstra, 9, a 24-ounce sheepshead had the largest fish among the girls and Elaine Peerbolt, 13, with a 14-ounce sheepshead was second and Ann Riksen was third with a 12 ounce sheepshead.

Van Gelderen caught the first bullhead and Rickey Hey, 7, the first sheepshead.

Five-year-old Mark Klungie brought home the first perch and his brother Jim Klungie, 9, caught the first speckle bass.

Bobbie Hamm, 6, caught the first black bass and Billy Boersma, 10, the first bluegill. Bennie Phillips caught the first sun fish and Edward Lee the first smallmouth bass.

The rodeo was co-sponsored by the Holland Recreation Department and the Holland Fish and Game club and prizes were donated by Holland merchants and National Better Fishing, Inc.

Dog Notes

by Peter Boggs

A Dog Trained Too Well
P. L. Anderson, of San Diego, decided after he had purchased a young fox terrier, that he was going to make the dog one of the best watch dogs in his locality. He spent hours teaching the dog to bark and growl whenever strangers entered his yard. This super training of his dog almost cost him his house.

A few months ago Mr. and Mrs. Anderson went out to the movies and left their dog alone at home. A neighbor noticed a wisp of smoke coming from an upstairs window and called the fire department. As the firemen broke open the front door the terrier ran outside. He then went to work, doing the one thing his master had taught him so thoroughly—guarding the premises.

The firemen were strangers and when they didn't seem to heed his warning barks and growls, he began to nip at their legs. Each time a fireman started toward the house the dog drove him back. For over ten minutes the dog delayed them in their efforts to combat the blaze.

It was only after someone threw a coat over the dog and locked him up in a neighbor's garage that the firemen were able to go about their business.

Your Dog's Intelligence
A survey was recently made regarding the intelligence of the dog. Extensive tests were given a group of dogs at a well-known university.

They used a device called a "psychogalvanometer." After the tests were over, they said the average dog had as much sense as a 12-year-old child.

Personally I think the machine was in error. Sometimes, I think dogs show more common sense than most human beings of any age. A dog won't eat when he is not hungry and he will relax and rest when he has nothing to do. And above all, he profits by his experiences and doesn't very often do something a second time that got him into serious trouble the first time he did it.

It's Probably Hives
A number of readers have written in asking if dogs are susceptible to ivy poisoning. Some have described symptoms in their dogs like those suffered by victims of poison ivy.

Dogs are not susceptible to ivy poisoning. The dogs with such symptoms are apparently victims of hives—the same kind of hives we humans suffer from. To treat such a condition do the following:

Keep the dog quiet and out of the sun, restricting him to a milk and meat diet in rather small amounts. This is a simple treatment, but under this treatment, the rash will clear up and the hives should disappear within a couple of days.

Construction of America's first great national highway was provided for in the Ohio Enabling Act of 1802. The first comprehensive plan for a national system of highways and canals was put forward as early as 1808 by Albert Gallatin, Secretary of the Treasury, with the collaboration of Thomas Jefferson.

Mrs. D. Nolan Kaiser

Nancy Joanne Hagans Wed in Candlelight Rites

Miss Nancy Joanne Hagans, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. John O. Hagans of 69 West 10th St., and D. Nolan Kaiser of Pontiac spoke their marriage vows Friday evening in a candlelight service conducted in First Methodist Church by the bride's father and her uncle, the Rev. Stanley Buck, of Benton Harbor.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton D. Kaiser, 740 Ledyard, Pontiac.

The double ring rites were read at 8 p.m. before the altar banked with white gladioli and zinnias. Mrs. Claude Lamoreaux arranged the flowers. "O del mio dolce," Gluck, and "Sheep May Safely Graze," Bach, were sung before the ceremony by David Sennema of Grand Rapids. During the service, Mrs. Arthur Placeway of Lapeer, aunt of the groom, sang "Entreat Me Not to Leave Thee," Gounod. Organist was Carl Sennema of Grand Rapids. The recessional was especially written for this occasion by Anthony Taffs, teacher at Albion.

The bride's gown was fashioned by her mother. Made of taffeta and Alencon lace, it featured an empire waistline and boat neckline enhanced by a pearl embroidered lace collar. The long sleeves were tapered and the floor-length skirt with overskirt of Alencon lace extended into a chapel-length train. A Juliet cap of Alencon lace, heavily beaded with pearls, held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white rose buds and stephanotis. Her only jewelry was a pair of pearl earrings, gift from the groom.

Miss Margaret Hagans was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack Chetleburgh of Pontiac, sister of the groom, Miss Shari Robertson of Brighton, the bride's roommate, and Misses Carol Kuyper and Sally Damson of Holland. They wore identically styled gowns of dotted swiss with long fitted torsos, boat necklines, short sleeves and full, waltz-length skirts. The honor at-tendant's gown was light blue and the bridesmaids' medium blue. All wore small picture hats to match their gowns and carried colonial bouquets of pastel carnations and roses.

Mrs. Hagans chose for her daughter's wedding a beige sheath dress of embroidered polished cotton, styled with draped neckline and cummerbund. Her accessories were pink and beige and her corsage was of pink roses. Mrs. Kaiser, the groom's mother, wore an aqua lace dress with pink accessories. She had a corsage of talisman roses.

Mr. Kaiser attended his son as best man. Serving as ushers were Joe Serra of Detroit, Alden Burns and Lee Parkinson of Grand Rapids and Jack Chetleburgh of Pontiac.

Five hundred guests attended the reception in the church parlors, with the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the church in charge. Mrs. Stanley Buck, the bride's aunt, cut the wedding cake, assisted by her daughters, Patricia and Liane Buck. Misses Doris Glover of Fowlerville, Hanna Providence, Detroit, and Audrey Neidlinger, Grand Rapids, served at the punch bowls. Master and mistress of ceremonies were Dr. and Mrs. W. K. Moore of Albion, uncle and aunt of the bride. They were assisted by Mrs. Gladys Aldrich. Mrs. Carlton French had charge of the gifts.

The newlyweds have left on a northern Michigan wedding trip. For going away, the bride wore a beige raw silk dress-suit, beige and brown accessories and a corsage of gold zinnias.

The bride is a graduate of Holland High School and a 1936 graduate of Albion College. The groom is a graduate of Pontiac High School and Albion College, where he was a member of Sigma Nu and Phi Beta Kappa. He is a graduate student at the University of Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaiser will be at home after Sept. 1 at Terrace Apartments, Ann Arbor.

He is survived by his wife, Bertha, a daughter, Merretta Jane, and one sister, Mrs. Gertrude Dickenson of Allegan.

The body reposes at the Chapel Funeral Home in Fennville. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at the Methodist Church. The Rev. Willis B. Hunting and the Rev. Garth Smith of Coloma will officiate. Burial will be in the Fennville Cemetery.

Police Question Woman In Grand Haven Theft

GRAND HAVEN (Special) — Virginia Wainio, alias Virginia Martin, 26, a former Grand Haven resident, was returned to Grand Haven Tuesday for questioning after she was picked up by officers in Detroit late Monday night.

Miss Wainio was questioned to-day regarding an alleged theft of $1,870 from the home of Joe Mistretta, 1624 Franklin St., Grand Haven. According to Mistretta, Miss Wainio was at his home on July 11, 1935, to do some cleaning. After she left, he said he discovered the money missing from underneath a mattress.

Officer Jack Billups, accompanied by his wife, brought Miss Wainio from Detroit to Grand Haven Tuesday night.

Teenaged Killer Will Appear Oct. 8 On Murder Charge

Held Without Bond
After Hearing Here
Tuesday Afternoon

Mrs. Helen Thomas, accused of first degree murder in the shotgun death of her husband Aug. 13, was bound over to Circuit Court, where she will appear on Monday, Oct. 8, after preliminary examination in Holland Municipal Court Tuesday afternoon. She is now being held without bond.

Seven witnesses testified at the one hour and 40 minute examination, giving their impressions of what happened on the night 17-year-old Mrs. Thomas shot her husband, Emmerson Kenneth Thomas, 24, with a 20-gauge shotgun she said she had never fired before.

Mrs. Thomas was in court, did not take the witness stand, sat with her attorney, Randall Dekker, and conferred with him only twice. She was dressed in a dark gray suit with white piping and two rhinestone buttons on the collar. She carried a light blue handkerchief with which she occasionally dabbed her eyes. She wore black, open-toed sandals with no stockings.

Russell Jesiek of 742 Park Ave. in Jenison Park, owner of the small frame house in which the Thomas family lived, was the first witness called by Ottawa County prosecuting attorney, James W. Bussard.

Jesiek said that on the evening of the shooting, Mrs. Thomas came running into his house and told him, "I just shot Kenneth. Will you see if he's all right?"

Jesiek said he then called the Holland police and went out to the Thomas home where he found Kenneth lying on his side partially in the bathroom. He said Thomas was groaning when he arrived. The shotgun was lying on the living room floor, partly broken, he said.

Under questioning by Dekker, Jesiek said Mrs. Thomas appeared very excited and upset. She seemed concerned about her husband's condition, he said.

Mrs. Thomas' sister Buelia Mays, 11, who apparently saw the shooting, was extremely upset, and he considered calling a doctor to care for her, Jesiek said. Buelia was waiting outside the courtroom, but was not called during the examination.

Julius Kleinhessel of the Dykstra Funeral Home, who brought Thomas to the Holland Hospital, said that Thomas was still alive when the ambulance arrived at the hospital, but he appeared to be dead by the time they got upstairs.

Dr. Alvin Bonzelaar, who examined the body, said that he removed an irregular slug about two inches long from the body. The slug was within an inch of the skin at the back, he said, and had made a hole about an inch in diameter below the lower rib where it entered. He said death was caused by hemorrhaging, secondary to injury to the liver and possibly the kidney.

Deputies Leonard Ver Schure and Peter Meeuwse testified they were at the scene shortly after the shooting and described the conditions they found there and the subsequent questioning of Mrs. Thomas on the second floor of the Holland police station later that night.

At that time, according to the notes taken then and read in court by Ver Schure and Undersheriff Harris Nieuwma, Mrs. Thomas readily told officers she had shot her husband of 13 months after a day-long quarrel, the climax of months of fighting.

According to the notes presented, Mrs. Thomas had left her husband at least twice and that each time he had come back to get her from her parents home. She told officers that her husband often beat her and that he drank frequently. Deputy Bernard Grysen, called by the defense, testified that he has been investigating two men Thomas was supposed to have been with the afternoon before he was shot, and a woman in a car with Thomas when Mrs. Thomas found him before taking him home.

Dekker said that Mrs. Thomas would stand mute when she appears in Circuit Court. In such a case, the court enters a plea of not guilty for the defendant.

Zuवरink to Aid In Maxwell Day

George Zuवरink of Holland, big righthander for the Baltimore Orioles, will help in the celebration of Charley Maxwell Day, Wednesday, Oct. 3, in Paw Paw, Maxwell's present home.

Big George will serve up the pitches and Maxwell will put on a hitting exhibition as part of the day-long celebration.

Zuवरink has had several occasions to pitch to Maxwell this season in contests between the Orioles and Detroit Tigers.

Maxwell socked one of Zuवरink's pitches for a ninth-inning, game-winning home run earlier in the season. At that time it was the first homer hit off Zuवरink since he came to the majors. Maxwell calls Zuवरink one of the toughest pitchers in the big leagues because of his effective slider and sinker and because he can control the ball.

"He knows where it's going all of the time," Maxwell said.

The day for Maxwell will start with a motorcade at 11 a.m. with the Chamber of Commerce in charge. A noon luncheon will honor the Tigers left fielder and he will be given a key to the city.

The Maxwell Fan Club will be in charge of the hitting exhibition at the high school field. At night a Maxwell banquet will be held at the high school gym. The fan club plans a program with gifts and a sizeable purse for Maxwell.

Hope Gets Ready For Grid Campaign

19 Letterwinners Return; Practice To Start Sept. 1

Coch Russ De Vette is scratching his head these last few days before the opening of football practice, not sure what he will have this year.

De Vette, starting his second season as head grid coach at Hope College, figures he will have 19 lettermen back, a nice nucleus around which to build a team. But from that point on he is not sure.

Hope begins drills Saturday, Sept. 1 and equipment will be issued Friday, Aug. 31.

And that will be the time when the Hope coach finds out just how many men he will have.

He has heard about several outstanding prep players from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and New Jersey. Many have communicated with him but just how many will show up on the Hope campus, only time will tell.

As for the freshman crop from Michigan, De Vette doesn't expect much.

Taking a look at the lettermen who will be on hand brings smiles. Captain Dave Kuyers, who should come in this year at 205, will be a few pounds over his 1955 weight and De Vette is hoping the pile driving fullback picks up where he left off last year.

Kuyers was out most of the season with injuries, but he got into the last three games and really ground out the yardage.

Hope scored 129 points in its last three games last year and Kuyers was the main reason.

Unanimously elected captain by his teammates, the Zeeland senior, De Vette hopes, won't be injury prone.

Harry Voss, of Muskegon, a senior, and Del Grissen of Holland, a junior, are the two quarterbacks returning while De Vette has a flock of halfbacks returning.

Dave Woodcock, who alternated between halfback and fullback, leads the group. The Saginaw junior is one of the shiftest 200-pounders in the MIAA.

Teaming with Woodcock, De Vette will have four more lettermen.

Ron Wetherbee from Zeeland and Mert Vander Lind of Grand Rapids, a couple of juniors and Jack Faber and Pete Watt of St. Joseph, two sophomores, are the other lettermen halfbacks.

Up front, De Vette has 6'4" Paul Wiegink and 6'7" Jim Hilmert, both juniors, ready to go at the ends. The two fastest hurdlers in the MIAA, the former Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo athletes should be fine pass catchers this season.

Behind them, Curt Menning of Grand Rapids, another junior and Gerry Hendrickson of Grand Rapids are set to go.

Four lettermen guards are also returning, Dick Gantos, and Mick Faber, both juniors and regulars last year will be back for another stint. Both are from Grand Rapids.

Tom Harris, a senior from Philadelphia and Bill Brookstra, a Davenport, Iowa sophomore are the other returning guards. Both saw a lot of service last year.

Larry Ter Molen of Grand Rapids and Matt Peelen from Kalamazoo will be the lettermen tackles back and Earl De Witt, a Grand Rapids senior, is the returning center. All played in reserve roles last year with Ter Molen and De Witt seeing the most action.

From this list of lettermen De Vette will pick his team.

De Vette must fill an end spot left vacant by the graduation of co-captain Lynn Post, the most valuable player last year, and the right half position of co-captain John Adams, named to the MIAA team.

Don Van Hooven and John Hollander, a couple of burly tackles will also be missed along with center Ron De Graw.

John Holmlund, regular quarterback last season most of the time and expected back, has decided not to play this year and Blaine Timmer, a hard-working guard has received an appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, so won't be around either.

From this area, De Vette expects to pick up Gene Van Dongen, a good linebacker from Grand Haven, who was out of school last year and Ron Bronson, a regular end for Holland High last season. Ron De Boer, a Grand Rapids Lee end, is another possibility.

De Vette's staff this season will include Al Vanderbush, working with the ends; Gord Brewer with the line and Ken Weller, the scouting. De Vette will work the backs.

Brewer, new to the Hope staff after a successful prep record at Kelloggsville, is regarded as one of the top high school exponents of the split-T.

Weller will be completing work on an additional degree at the University of Michigan again this fall but will be available for the few weeks of practice and for scouting.

Community Ambassador Finds Suez Crisis 'Touches' Most Frenchmen

By Larry Stedentop
Holland's Community Ambassador

Much has transpired since I last wrote, not only in my personal traveling, but in France itself, where the nationalization of the Suez Canal has caused very considerable agitation. All of the press, with the exception of the Communist journals, and virtually all the people, consider this a personal threat and both find the relatively cautious attitude of the United States somewhat irritating. This personal concern is abated by the press which continually notes that three-quarters of Western European industry depends upon Suez oil.

But from politics to my experiences... As my family had to go to Dijon for several days to settle affairs concerning the family estate (all family business is a matter of utmost seriousness in France), I found myself free for several days and decided to pay a visit to Geneva, Switzerland, which is less than 200 kilometers from Grenoble.

Travel restrictions in Switzerland are at an absolute minimum, as this nation virtually thrives on the tourist trade. This is evident as one enters the city, for in spite of the fact that neutrality protected Geneva during the war, its appearance is that of a relatively new, rebuilt city. Shops, cafes and hotels offer everything imaginable to the tourist, and the variety and newness of things makes Geneva seem far more nearly American than other comparable European cities.

This is not to deny the justice of Geneva's tourist trade. Situated at the head of the system of Alpine lakes and more specifically on the largest of these lakes, Geneva contrasts her magnificent white facade with the blues and greens of the Alps. The city itself has certain distinguished attractions also.

Foremost, without question, is the Palace of the League of Nations, an imposing white structure with four major wings, which was built through the contributions of all member states. It was this building which witnessed the pitiable disintegration of peace in the 1930's and now, under the auspices of the United Nations, it is the seat of several international agencies which are attempting to prevent a recurrence of the '30's. I was fortunate enough, the day I visited the Palace, to attend a session of the Economic and Social Council, one of the five major organs of the U. N. As Secretary General Hammarskjöld was also present, it was a very satisfactory day.

The other major attraction of Geneva are the remnants of the Reformation. These are not particularly great in number, but are rich in historical value. For example, churches where Calvin and Knox preached, the Protestant National Cathedral, the tomb of John Calvin and an astonishingly rich collection of religious manuscripts in the University library. Above all, however, symbolizing the Geneva of Calvin, Knox and Swinigen, the Geneva of the persecutions, the Geneva of Calvin's theocracy, is the monument to the Reformation constructed by the World Alliance of Churches of Reformed Faith about 50 years ago. Between simple but effective statues of the leading Reformation figures are found bas-reliefs of the leading events in the Reformation, an expression of freedom of conscience.

But there are more utilitarian motives to account for Geneva's popularity with tourists. More than the traditionally unbelievable selection of watches, it is the free money market which draws value seeking Europeans and Americans. Here one soon realizes that it is the Swiss franc, not the American dollar, which is the hardest currency in the world. But it is other countries, France among them, that suffer most from the free money exchange. For example, in Geneva one receives 405 French francs for one U. S. dollar, instead of the usual 350 as in France. This is a considerable difference, and, as a result, the French find it far too expensive to travel extensively in Switzerland.

I have made it evident, I think, that Geneva is essentially a tourist's haven. But there is an old quarter, where one finds antique shops, art shops, book stores, and above all, real Genevans. It was here that I most enjoyed Geneva and where I found a restaurant that served superb sirloin steaks or fondue for the equivalent of $1.25. Fondue, a cheese plate, is one of the specialties of Geneva, and in this restaurant I found a souvenir of a fondue party held there in honor of Capt. Anthony Eden in 1933.

My return to Grenoble was only in order to prepare for my departure for a three weeks camping trip into Brittany and the Valley of the Loire. Farewell to my French parents was far from a happy occasion, as I had found them gracious, instructive hosts.

The camping trip will be the subject of my next letter, but I cannot refrain from commenting on the train connections to Brittany. Virtually all French trains pass through Paris (so centralized is this nation), and our journey by second class was made more crowded, more rushed, and more interesting by the fact that the first week in July is when nearly everyone in France departs for vacation. Many of the innumerable French shops, and many of the factories also, close for three weeks while everyone leaves for other parts of France or Europe. Second class on S. N. C. F. we had the impression that all Europe was coming to Brittany this summer!

With the cooperation of Willard C. Wichers, director of the Netherlands Information Service in Holland and his staff and Machiele, the visitors will be housed with farm families during most of their stay in the United States.

"We will also visit various farming operations in Ottawa and adjoining counties," Rietberg said. Other visits to some farm-manufacturing plants in the area, co-operatives, and numerous activities are also scheduled.

Through their visit to Canada, Rietberg and Doornbos were fascinated by the progress and efforts achieved by Dutch immigrants.

Speaking about agriculture in the United States and the Netherlands, Rietberg said that "it is difficult to compare agriculture and rural life in our country with that of United States with all its potentialities and scientific methods. Farm work here is highly mechanized, farms are bigger, more automatic feeders are used, better scientific methods are available, but we hope one day to reach the same standards and give our farmer a better life," Doornbos said.

Switching to education, Rietberg said that "our education is more theoretical if compared with the practical system of the United States, but we also put much emphasis on training because we have more hours devoted to the school day."

The Dutch visitors are proud of the 99 percent literacy in the Netherlands. Though they do not have "mass education," they take advantage of "natural selection" in various fields of education.

Doornbos and Rietberg will leave for the Netherlands on Sept. 8.

Members of the Pricilla and Aquila society of Second Reformed Church will hold their annual picnic Thursday evening at 6:30. This will be a potluck supper at the Kiwanis Camp. A program on scouting is being prepared.

Next Sunday the Rev. Harold Englund will be serving at Camp Geneva, and the Rev. John F. Pelon of the Fort Plains Reformed Church of New York will preach in Second Reformed Church.

The Bowl at Zeeland City Park was the scene of a large gathering Sunday evening, August 19. The second performance of the film, "Seventeen" was shown after services in the various churches of the city. Gilbert Van Wyzen, director of the Holland Youth For Christ, was in charge of the presentation.

At the morning worship service in Second Reformed Church, the Rev. Harold Englund preached the sermon, "The Destiny of God's New Community." The two anthems were sung by the Sunshine Aires, a group of young people of First Reformed Church, under the direction of M. Lorenzo Meengs. At the evening service Rev. Englund used for his sermon topic, "Pages From The Life of David, 5-Great Sinner and Great Penitent." The Golden Chain Choir under the direction of Mrs. L. Meengs sang. Elmer Lievens presided at the organ and accompanied the choir.

Discharged from Holland Hospital last Friday were Arthur C. Becker, route 3; Hanna G. Hoekje, 91 West 10th St.; Lloyd Lacy, route 2, Fennville; Mrs. Harvey Visser and baby, 746 Riley St.; Mrs. John Lorence and baby, 707 Washington St.; Mrs. Coy Mills, Box 141, New Richmond.

Admitted to Holland Hospital Monday were Mrs. Henry Boss, 103 East Ninth St.; Harold Taylor, 3415 Riverside Dr., Saugatuck; Edward W. Hekman, 451 Central Ave.; Elsie Spykerman, 502 West 48th St.; Robert Wright, 2516 Lake Shore Dr.

Discharged Monday were Mrs. John Voss, 36 West 17th St.; Mrs. Marion Donaldson and baby, 356 1/2 West 17th St.; Peter Kulzenga, 173 Walnut Ave.; Mrs. Jacob Kraal and baby, route 3; Mrs. Mary Yntema, route 3; Mrs. Donald E. Ter Haar, 377 West 22nd St.

George Zuerink of Holland made his 50th relief appearance of the season for the Baltimore Orioles Saturday. Pitching against the New York Yankees, Zuerink came on in the eighth inning and didn't allow a run in the final two frames. Going into the contest, Zuerink's earned run average was 4.01.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Merle Vredevelde. She wore a floor-length gown of embroidered tulle, fashioned with a fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, short sleeves and bouffant skirt. She wore matching lace mitts and a fingertip veil secured to an embroidered tulle cap. She

Dutch Experts Visit Farms in Ottawa County

Two principals of Christian Agricultural Schools in the Netherlands who are making educational trips through Canada and the United States visited Holland Friday.

P. Doornbos, director of undergraduates in the Agricultural College at Leeuwarden, and H. Rietberg, director of Agricultural Winter School at Dokkum, visited the Netherlands Museum and schools and farms in Ottawa County, accompanied by Professors Herbert De Kleine and Garrell Adler, teachers in Holland and Zeeland.

Their one-month trip will include visits to East Lansing and Holland, Lafayette Ind., Wooster, Ohio; University Park, Pa., Washington, D.C.; Long Island, N.Y., and Canada.

Both scholars made the trip at their own expense with some transportation help from the Netherlands government. They hope to become familiar with the United States institutions providing agricultural education.

"We planned the trip to get more information on vocational-type institutions teaching agriculture," Doornbos said. They want to get first hand information on physical plants, curriculums, books, teaching aids, practical training opportunities, youth organizations and activities in the field of agriculture.

Both scholars put much emphasis on their visit to Michigan State University where they will meet professors and experts in agriculture. "We will observe and discuss extension service methods and county agents work, along with other drainage work," Rietberg said.

They will alternately stay in the 350-acre farm of L. Aukerman at Jenison, and with County Agricultural Agent Richard A. Machiele during their visit to Holland and vicinity. "We are glad to live among the hospitable and friendly Americans and become familiar with American farm life," Doornbos said.

With the cooperation of Willard C. Wichers, director of the Netherlands Information Service in Holland and his staff and Machiele, the visitors will be housed with farm families during most of their stay in the United States.

"We will also visit various farming operations in Ottawa and adjoining counties," Rietberg said. Other visits to some farm-manufacturing plants in the area, co-operatives, and numerous activities are also scheduled.

Through their visit to Canada, Rietberg and Doornbos were fascinated by the progress and efforts achieved by Dutch immigrants.

Speaking about agriculture in the United States and the Netherlands, Rietberg said that "it is difficult to compare agriculture and rural life in our country with that of United States with all its potentialities and scientific methods. Farm work here is highly mechanized, farms are bigger, more automatic feeders are used, better scientific methods are available, but we hope one day to reach the same standards and give our farmer a better life," Doornbos said.

Switching to education, Rietberg said that "our education is more theoretical if compared with the practical system of the United States, but we also put much emphasis on training because we have more hours devoted to the school day."

The Dutch visitors are proud of the 99 percent literacy in the Netherlands. Though they do not have "mass education," they take advantage of "natural selection" in various fields of education.

Doornbos and Rietberg will leave for the Netherlands on Sept. 8.
